NEW CITY OFFICIALS

Mayor Shea Promises Appointments on Monday

Mayor Shea said this morning that he should send to the City Council on Monday the announcement of his official family for the coming year. While the newly appointed officials will not assume office until the first Monday in February, he thinks it a good plan to have these matters settled as soon as possible, so that he can give all of his attention to business, and not be bothered with applicants and friends of applicants seeking appointments to positions. Just what changes will be made in the Mayor's present official family is not known, but some are anticipated. There will be at least three vacancies among the present administrative boards.

—What is, of all books, the world's "best seller?" It will astonish some persons, it will do the hearts of multitudes good, to learn that each year there are printed and sold 17,000,000 Bibles, giving that book an indisputable lead over all its possible competitors. There is still hope for our literature.—New Haven Register.

WITH MUSIC AND DANCING

Clan McGregor Welcomes the New Year

For the twenty-ninth year Clan McGregor No. 5 O. S. C., ushered in the New Year with music and dancing. The event was at Music hall, the first of the evening until 10 o'clock being given over to a grand concert. Over five hundred persons attended the concert and dance, making the annual party even more successful than in previous years. The concert was in two parts, and consisting of Scottish songs and dances by the following favorite artists:

Songs by James Singer, Miss Margaret K. Alexander, Miss Mary Ogalvie and James Whyte.

Selections by the orchestra and character sketches by Billy Doctor of Pawtucket, R. I. Dancing by the Misses Jessie and Grace McDonald.

At 10 o'clock the floor was cleared and dancing began which was enjoyed with Thompson's orchestra accompanying until 3 A. M. Dancers continued to arrive even up to 2 o'clock and the large hall was crowded to its utmost, while everyone enjoyed themselves thoroughly. Refreshments were served at intermission in the dining hall annex.

The floor was under the direction of John M. Troupe, who was ably assisted by James F. Reid. The aids were Alex T. Black, M. A. McDonald, Alexander Hall and David T. Drummond.

The reception committee which came in for a large share of praise, consisted of James M. Birnie and George S. Murray.

The committee of arrangements was composed of the following well known members of the clan: James M. Birnie, Angus Kerr, John M. Troupe, George M. Mavers, M. A. McDonald, Alex T. Black, James F. Reid, Alex. Mutch, David T. Drummond, Neil McDonald, George S. Murray, Alex. Hall, Thomas Johnston, Robert McDonald.

There was a large number present in full Highland dress, and they added color and beauty to the scene. The little tots in their picturesque dress being especially productive of comment and praise.

At 3 o'clock, the assembly dispensed, having had a grand time and fittingly ushered in the New Year and watched out the departing year.

BUSY NIGHT AT QUINCY POINT CHURCH

And Unanimous Election of New Pastor, Rev. Charles P. Marshall of Westford.

Last evening the parish connected with the Washington Street Congregational church concurred with the church and extended a call to Rev. Charles P. Marshall the pastor of the Congregational church at Westford. And at the same time they gave a reception to their retiring pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Ray Atwood, who closed their connection with the church that day.

A fellowship service at 7.45 took the place of the weekly prayer meeting. The pastoral prayer was by Rev. A. M. Thompson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church on School street. T. B. Pollard led the gospel chorus.

At 8 o'cock there was a business meeting of the parish with E. R. Stone as moderator. T. B. Pollard read letters recommending Rev. Charles P. Marshall of Westford to the church and it was voted unanimously by ballot to concur with the church in extending the reverend gentleman a call. Mr. Marshall has a wife and one child. He is warm hearted and sympathetic, a thoughtful and practical preacher, and a man of affairs well posted on current events.

After the business meeting adjourned a reception was given to Rev. and Mrs. Atwood. J. W. Hendry addressed the gathering briefly, intimating that a presentation was to follow. He spoke in appreciation of the services of the retiring pastor and hoped he would ever keep a green corner in his heart for his Quincy friends.

T. B. Pollard spoke more at length. He said Mr. Atwood had been pastor of the church over four years and that his salary had been small, but compensation had hardly entered his mind. Life was given with a zest, and he had stirred us all up to good work. He never spared himself or his wife. He had accomplished much, as the good condition of the church attested. Mr. Pollard in behalf of Quincy Point friends took pleasure in presenting Mr. Atwood several standard religious works, including George Allen Smith's geography of Palestine, Jerusalem in two volumes, and Hasting's Bible Dictionary. He also presented Mrs. Atwood an elegant seal bag.

Mr. Atwood thanked all for the books. He asked for his successor the same hearty support which the people had always given him. The parting was not grievious as all have worked in harmony and cooperation that the Kingdom of God might be advanced in this community. He invited all to call on him at Patterson, N. Y., especially the young people on their honeymoon and those called to New York on business. Mr. Atwood expressed kind words for the willing work of Alexander Shirley the janitor, to the members of the financial committee for their work, to the Ladies Aid Society to the Sunday School officers and teachers, and to every one connected with the church. The only cloud of the evening was the absence of Deacon Sherburne by illness. Mr. Atwood also spoke highly of his successor and in closing wished the church to continue to prosper.

Mrs. Atwood also thanked the church for the gift to her.

Rev. A. M. Thompson was then introduced. He had kind words for the retiring pastor, who was the first clergyman to greet him when he came to Quincy. He complimented the church upon calling another pastor so promptly, believeing it was always a mistake to go long without a pastor.

Hot chocolate and delicious cake were served at the close by a committee of eight ladies with Mrs. Christie Brent as chairman. Each one present shook hands with Rev. and Mrs. Atwood and wished them success and happiness.

Mr. Atwood's sister and other friends from South Weymouth attended the reception.

Rev. Mr. Atwood enters upon his new duties at Patterson, N. Y., today and will preach at the services on Sunday. Mrs. Atwood and the children will stay in Quincy for a few days.

ALARM FROM BOX 26

Suspicious Fire at the Star Supply Company

The alarm from Box 26 at 5.45 last night called the department to a suspicious fire in the Star Supply store in the Hancock chambers on Washington street. The fire was in a pile of bed comforters in the rear part of the store. The fire was discovered by the occupants of the tenement in the rear of the store. Their attention was called by the strong odor of smoke. Rushing around front they found J. Winnok, the proprietor, apparently asleep in the front part of store, and a fire burning in a pile of comforters. An alarm was sounded and in spite of the hard going the department made good time. Throwing the burning goods into the street they soon had the fire out. Chief Williams says the loss will not be over $50. Speaking of the cause he said it was rather a suspicious fire and that he should report it to the State fire marshal for investigation.

—San Francisco proposes to celebrate the completion of the Panama canal with a big Panama California exposition in 1915. That important event will richly deserve the fullest possible recognition and there is special appropriateness in California's taking the initiative in the matter, but the general public interest in world's fairs has waned in recent years, and it is doubtful if even so important an event as the completion of a Panama canal would create sufficient interest to assure the success of a great exposition such as has been proposed.—Milford Gazette.

WHIST AND DANCE

Brilliant Party of the Quincy Catholic Club

One of the largest attended and most successful social whist parties was that of the Quincy Catholic club last evening at Alpha hall. Fifty-four tables were in play during the early part of the evening, and while the contest for supremacy was keen, the constant progressing afforded the players much enjoyment, as well as an opportunity for many social chats between hands at each table. While the play was in progress an orchestra furnished a musical accompaniment, and Miss Mary L. Gavin, the president of the club, and the ladies in charge of the whist were constantly on the move among the party to see that nothing was lacking to make it the success that it surely was.

The ladies in charge of the whist were Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, Mrs. George H. Norris, Mrs. Timothy J. Carey, Miss Mary W. Dinegan, Miss Mary Colligan, Miss Anna Woodward, Miss Christina McPherson and Miss Elizabeth Manahan.

While the whist was in progress the committee in charge of the refreshments were busy preparing that end of the evening's entertainment in Union hall. These ladies were Mrs. Charles C. Hearn, Miss Nellie Munday, Miss Elizabeth Keating, Mrs. J. J. McAnarney, Miss Mary Coyle, Miss Mary Harkins, Miss Charlotte Donovan and Mrs. James Dunn.

At 10.15 the whist was concluded and all adjourned to Union hall, where a dainty lunch was served. In the meantime the ladies in charge of the whist were busy deciding who were entitled to receive the souvenirs for the best scores. These were awarded as follows: Miss Ethel Blair, a silver candle stick; Miss Margaret Ford, a half dozen sherbet glasses; Miss Alice King, a brass candle stick; Miss Ann Peterson, a bon bon dish. To the gentlemen souvenirs were given as follows: John McGowan, an umbrella; Albert Coffin, Jr., a silver and glass smoking set; Mr. Bliss, a pig skin collar box, and to Joseph A. Dasha, a bronze ash tray.

Dancing was then in order until midnight. At the hour of the New Year all joined in dancing a Virginia Reel to the tune of Auld Lang Syne, after which there was a "Home Sweet Home waltz" and the party left for their homes after wishing each other a Happy New Year.

Music For the Millions.

Millionaire's Daughter—Papa, here's Lord Mustairt come to call, and he's brought his coronet with him.

Man of Millions (busy making a few millions before dinner)—Take him to the other end of the house. I haven't time to listen to his confounded music just now.

BRIEFS

The seventh day of sleighing.

Freezing temperature all the week.

Be careful that you do not forget and write it 1909.

Watch party gatherings were plentiful last night and there were many people in City Square at midnight.

A few of the night shift remained at the rooms of the Granite City club until midnight and wished each other a Happy New Year.

Chas. Sherburne the superintendent of the Sunday School at the Quincy Point church is seriously ill with la grippe.

The annual meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ church will be held in the parish house Wednesday afternoon at half past two. Annual reports will be read and officers elected.

The Young People's society of Christian Endeavor of Bethany church will hold a New Years consecration meeting Sunday evening at 7.30.

The many friends of Mrs. L. B. George of Farrington street will be glad to know she is able to be out again after a severe illness of several weeks.

The Christmas program planned for last Sunday at the Wollaston Congregational church will be given tomorrow, the church service at 10.45 A. M. and Sunday school at 12.15. The four o'clock vesper service will not be held until Jan. 9th.

The trains have been having a very hard time all the week. Monday morning they started in well after the storm but at about seven-forty the work train became derailed at Neponset blocking the inward track for three hours and the northbound trains had to use the southbound track between Atlantic and Harrison Square. Then the extremely cold weather has been causing considerable delay in the South Terminal yards and also in South Braintree and Braintree yards, by the signals and switches freezing. Since Sunday morning there has not been a telegraph line working, but the railroad laid a twenty-five wire cable on the ground from Boston to Braintree and expect to have wires working today.

Washington, Jan. 1.—Senator Lodge has raised an interesting question by causing to be reprinted by the senate for circulation as a senate document a recent discussion of the Payne tariff act by Representative McCall, published originally in the Atlantic Monthly. The publishers have written the secretary of the senate to know on what authority this copyrighted article was reprinted.

The facts appear to be that the senate always has been in the habit of ordering such reprints without inquiring into the question of copyright. In this case Lodge offered the order to print, but a vote of the senate was necessary to secure action, hence the technical responsibility for the republication is supposed to fall upon the senate body rather than upon Lodge.

The senate always has proceeded on the theory that a republication is a compliment and benefit to writer and publisher, and no complaints for infringement appear to be on record.

COULDN'T STAND JOKING

Newly Married Man's Mental Outfit Damaged as a Result

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 1.—Herbert W. Mero, aged 34, was committed to the state hospital by Drs. Lincoln and Burley. Christmas day Mero was married and was made the butt for considerable joshing in the Sherman Envelope shop, where he labored daily since returning from the honeymoon.

Mero finally threw the place in an uproar as one of the girls cracked a joke at his expense on the marriage matter. Mero is said to have been very touchy on the marriage question and the constant joking by fellow employes in the shop and on the street weighed heavily on his mind.

SMALLPOX SCOURGE INVADES MILL TOWN

Board of Health Puts Ban on Public Gatherings

Winchendon, Mass., Jan. 1.—With seven cases of certified smallpox, with other cases under suspicion, with seventy-five people in quarantine among the afflicted and with 1000 of the mill workers just vaccinated or about to be vaccinated, this cotton mill town of 7000 population is passing its New Year in a "closed" condition that passes all precedent in its history.

The board of health has ordered that the public schools, closed for the holidays, shall not reopen till further notice. All church services are forbidden. The Winchendon theatre and two moving picture houses have been closed. Four dances have been called off. In every way public gatherings are discouraged.

WON'T BUY PEARY SHIP

Treasury Department Turns Down Proposition of the Arctic Club

Washington, Jan. 1.—Peary's Roosevelt, the steamship in which the explorer traveled to Cape Columbia on his successful dash to the North Pole, has been offered for sale to the government. The offer was made in a letter to the treasury department from a member of the Peary Arctic club. No sum was named, but it was suggested that the vessel might make a useful addition to the Behring sea fleet which is used for patrol purposes.

The department has replied that it appears inadvisable to buy the ship. The Roosevelt is still at New York, and if this refusal by the government proves final the vessel may be lost to preservation.

CAUGHT BY LIQUOR

Escaped Prisoner Will Finish Out His Sentence For Express Robberies

Boston, Jan. 1.—William H. Howard, who escaped from Deer island by swimming Shirley gut on Aug. 22, and was arrested in the North End for drunkenness, was positively identified in court by two officers from Deer island.

Judge Murray sentenced Howard to ten days on the drunkenness charge and he was taken back to Deer island to serve that time and also his unexpired term of three years for express company robberies.

BANK IS SAVED FROM BANDITS

GOT STARTED ON THE JOB

Breaking In Rear Door When Marshals, Headed by Jack Abernathy, Make Their Appearance and Put Them to Rout—Two Are Killed, One Is In Jail, and Posse Is After Pair Who Escaped

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 1.—Five men who intended to rob the bank and postoffice at Harrah, Okla., ran into a party headed by United States Marshal "Jack" Abernathy, Roosevelt's friend, who catches wolves alive with his bare hands.

As a result, two of the bandits are dead, one is in jail at Guthrie, wounded, and two others are pursued by armed citizens.

Frank Quigg, a former baseball player, was shot dead during the fight with the deputy marshals. He lived at Atchison, Kan., and was the son of a wealthy mother. Frank Carpenter, another robber, was mortally wounded during the fight and died in jail. J. C. Dilbeck, the third bandit, was only slightly hurt.

The robbery was well planned, but Carpenter told some one of the plot and postoffice inspectors learned of the affair. Abernathy was advised, and when the officers reached Harrah he was ready for them.

The officers waited until the robbers began breaking in the rear door of the bank and then charged. The robbers ran and the deputies fired, wounding Carpenter and Dilbeck at the first volley.

Carpenter, in an ante-mortem statement, said that "Red" Rogers and Pearl Wilson were the men who escaped. He and his associates, he said, recently robbed the Golden, Col., postoffice of $3000.

Dilbeck said that Rogers and Wilson were on top of the bank at the time of the raid, keeping watch, and fled from town after the fight.

Quigg's brother George was a member of Roosevelt's Rough Riders and died in the National Soldiers' Home at Leavenworth, Kan., a year ago.

OUR GARDEN OF EDEN

Lloyd-George Says It Is the Abiding Place of the "Serpent of Hunger"

London, Jan. 1.—In refuting the contention of the Conservatives that persistence in the policy of free trade created unemployment, David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, addressing a meeting in Queen's hall last night, argued that unemployment was more prevalent in protectionist countries than in England.

As an instance of the truth of this argument he cited the United States, which he described as "the protectionists' paradise, where customs officers line the shores like cherubim, with flaming swords, keeping every foreign-made article out of this garden of Eden; but, once inside, you find the serpent of hunger, want and unemployment hissing in every grade."

NO TRACE OF CREW

Boston, Jan. 1.—An organized effort was made yesterday to recover the bodies of the crew of the five-masted schooner Davis Palmer, that sunk in forty feet of water in Broad sound.

Three times John Olsen, a veteran diver, went down to the wreck, each time cutting his way among the tangled mass of rigging, but was unable to tell whether or not the crew sank with the vessel. His efforts to determine if the yawl boat swung at its davits was balked by the mass of sails and ropes.

FOR MURDER OF FATHER

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 1.—An indictment charging Ivory Buzzell of Canaan with murder for the fatal shooting of his father on Dec. 11, was reported by the grand jury of the supreme court.

Counsel for Buzzell, who is confined to the county jail here without bail, announced that he would move to have Buzzell committed to the state insane asylum for observation of his sanity.

New Navy Yard Commandant

Boston, Jan. 1.—Captain Joan C. Fremont, U. S. N., son of Major Fremont, known as "the Pathfinder," took command of the Charlestown navy yard and station last evening. He will fill the vacancy caused by the transfer of Rear Admiral Swift, who goes to Washington to be one of the aides under the reorganization plan of the navy department.

Gyroscope Road In British Columbia

New Westminster, B. C., Jan. 1.—Work has been begun on the first gyroscope railway in North America to be devoted to commercial transportation purposes. The line of railroad will encircle Okanagan.

FOUR DEAD IN WRECK

Spencer Trask, Well Known as Banker, One of the Victims

New York, Jan. 1.—Spencer Trask, the head of a firm of bankers, was crushed to death in his private compartment while returning to New York from Yeddo, his country place at Saratoga. Three others met death in the wreck.

Trask's compartment was at the rear of the last car, a sleeper. The train halted near Croton and was supposedly protected from the rear by the block signal system, but it had hardly come to a stop when a heavy freight struck it from behind with great force.

Spencer Trask was for years one of the most notable figures in Wall street and, as a director of many railroads and financial institutions, wielded a large influence. He was born in Brooklyn in 1844.

Trask leaves a widow, well known as an author of fiction and of two plays. Last September Trask lost an eye as the result of an auto accident at Cambridge, Mass. He is thought to have left a fortune of nearly $50,000,000.

COLOR LINE DRAWN

Court Decision Favors Elks' Contention Against Negroes

New York, Jan. 1.—Negroes are restrained from using the ritual, password, pin and colors of the Elks by a decision of the appellate division of the supreme court, filed at White Plains.

The decision was the result of an action brought by the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of this state against the Improved Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the World, an organization for negroes.

The lower court granted the injunction sought for and an appeal was taken to the higher court.

PETS REMEMBERED BY A MILLIONAIRE

Leaves $70,000 to Care For His Horses and Dogs

Boston, Jan. 1.—Servants were remembered to the extent of $60,000 and horses and dogs to the amount of $70,000 in the will of the Back Bay clubman, Charles F. Wright, filed in the probate court yesterday.

After providing liberally for a few relatives and several friends, the codicil names the Free Hospital for Women and the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children as the two largest beneficiaries.

It provides that in event of the death of the any of the legatees their interest in the estate shall become a part of the residue, to be used for the maintenance and benefit of these two institutions.

BLACK HAND ARRESTS

One of Three Alleged Blackmailers Caught With Marked Bills

New York, Jan. 1.—By the arrest in Brooklyn of three Italians, the police believe they have the leaders of a Black Hand organization which has successfully levied tribute in this and other sections for years.

Erasimo Rubino, one of the captured, had been arrested twelve times before in connection with Black Hand complaints, but sufficient evidence to convict was lacking.

On this occasion, however, the police say they found in his pockets bills which they had previously marked and given to a widow to pay to blackmailers who had threatened the lives of her children unless she paid $500.

Rubino and his companions fought the detectives before they were subdued.

FORTY-SEVEN DEAD

Fewer Gloucester Fishermen Lost In 1909 Than In Previous Year

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 1.—Forty-seven lives is the toll of the sea for the year 1909 from the Gloucester fishing fleet. In addition four vessels valued at $40,000 were lost. As a result twelve women were made widows and twenty-five children became fatherless.

The toll for 1909 was lighter than for 1908, when five vessels went down and sixty-two men lost, causing fourteen widows and forty-six children to become fatherless.

Jail For Mail Swindler

Boston, Jan. 1.—Albert B. Clarke, the Confederate veteran who came from Los Angeles last month to operate an advertising swindle through the mails, was sentenced to jail for four months.

Sermons by Mail to the Sick.

During the year 1910 the First Congregational church of Oak Park, Ill., will print a sermon once a month for distribution among the sick and elderly and those who are unable to attend the services regularly. It is the desire of the pastor, the Rev. W. E. Barton, to keep in touch by this means with the absent members.

Indiana Millionaire's Odd Charity.

Adolph Melzer, millionaire soap manufacturer of Evansville, Ind., is building a large stable, where he will this winter feed the horses of poor people who are too poor to properly care for them.

CARING FOR THE NECK.

Hints as to How Its Charm May Be Retained to Middle Age.

It is only now that the American woman is waking up to the fact that far too little attention has been given to the feminine neck, especially to its preservation. One has but to make a study of the necks of a group of middle aged women to realize the need of a reform. How rarely does the shapely neck of the American maiden retain its charm until middle age! If it does not become wrinkled and discolored it is likely to take on layers of superfluous fat which are totally destructive to symmetry and good looks.

RUBBING WITH ALCOHOL.

Much of the blame for the scraggy and shrunken appearance of female necks has been ascribed to the fashion of high and tight collars. No doubt much of this is deserved, but the necks of those who have never adopted the absurd fashion are scarcely less unsightly. The sedentary life and the neglect of proper outdoor exercise, especially the failure to walk with head erect, are even more directly responsible.

Fortunately no part of the human anatomy is more responsive to proper treatment than the neck. It is still possible for those women who are bemoaning the threatened distortion of this once beautiful feature to arrest the process of disfiguration and in many cases to effect a partial or even a complete restoration.

The patient and judicious use of a really efficacious skin food, coupled with massage employed intelligently, will sometimes rejuvenate the tissues in the most wonderful and satisfying manner.

In the instance of that much dreaded and positively disfiguring fat accumulation known as "double chin" the outcome of intelligent treatment is even more positive. The practice which has proved successful in a multitude of cases is to keep the neck extended almost continually during the day by personal effort and at night by means of a rubber bandage and pillows properly arranged. In conjunction with this the redundant fat layers are to be massaged frequently with alcohol in a downward direction. The process of reduction is not a matter of days, but of months and possibly of years.

ELLEN A. CHRISTIE.

Romance From Japan.

Princess Ito, whose great husband was recently assassinated in Korea, married the eminent Japanese statesman after a courtship founded on an unusual incident. Over forty years ago the prince, pursued by a band that belonged to a party then opposed to the mikado, took refuge in a tea house where he was known and implored one of the geishas to hide him. There is in every Japanese house a dust hole. As the ground floor is raised about two feet above the earth a square hole is cut in the floor to serve as a receptacle for the sweepings of the rooms. With great presence of mind the geisha put Ito down this hole, which she covered with a board, placing a brazier on top. When the pursuers arrived they found a languid girl sitting by the fire, who expressed her surprise at their visit and assured them they were at liberty to look through the house. After a search they departed disappointed, not one of them having thought of the dust hole. The prince thereupon scrambled out, dirty, but grateful and full of admiration for his preserver's coolness and promptitude. He returned many times to that tea house, and ultimately the heroine of the adventure became Princess Ito.

Women Horse Dealers.

In spite of the general impression that only a man with the intuition of David Harum knows anything about horses, there are women in England who make a living by training these animals and looking after their health. These women also deal in horses, buying and selling them for profit. The business is a success largely because women are more hotfest in their representations of the live stock in which they deal. Some of the women have become veterinary surgeons, and others are shoeing horses. It is not a fad, as most of those engaged in the business have taken it up because it promised greater remuneration than housework.

Women Outnumber Men.

Women are encroaching upon the west. Between 1890 and 1900 they gained perceptibly in Idaho and Colorado. In only one instance did the men gain, and that was in Arizona. In all other western states, however, women have more than held their own. On the other hand, according to the showing of the last two census reports, women in the east are losing ground. In practically all occidental countries, and most especially in cities, women exceed men in numbers. Some students of these questions do not hesitate to predict that when the population of the United States becomes settled, if such a thing ever occurs, the women in this country will outnumber the men.

WITH A MUCH MARRIED MAN

Sixteen-Year-Old Heiress Disappears From Philadelphia

FORFEITS $10,000,000 LEGACY

Girl of Unusual Beauty Is Daughter of New York Stock Broker and Had Just Been Adopted by Grandfather, Who Declares He Will Cut Her Off For Her Escapade—Both Fled In Disguise, It Is Said, to Gotham

Philadelphia, Jan. 1.—Knowing that she would forfeit a legacy of $10,000,000 thereby, Miss Roberta B. De Janon, the 16-year-old granddaughter of Robert Buist, is alleged to have eloped with a waiter of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. The man, Ferdinand Cohen, is married and is three times her age.

By letters and scraps of paper left behind by Cohen, and found by his wife in their home, the couple were traced to New York and the police of that city expect to take them into custody there.

When they left Philadelphia the man is said to have worn a false mustache and the girl a blonde wig.

Buist, a wealthy merchant, had just drawn up papers adopting his granddaughter as his daughter and making her heiress of his estate, which approximates $10,000,000.

The grandfather is almost frantic over the girl's escapade and declares he will at once cut her off and let her father take care of her.

Miss De Janon, a girl of unusual beauty, is the daughter of Ferdinand De Janon, a New York stock broker. She is of medium height and slender build, weighing less than 100 pounds, and is a pronounced brunette, with remarkable eyes. In fact, Mrs. Cohen said her husband told her that Miss De Janon's eyes fascinated him to an extent that shattered his will power.

Cohen is 45 years old, short, slight and partly bald. He was born in Vienna. The police say his wife told them that he had two other wives besides her.

MUST "TAKE HIS MEDICINE"

All Hope of Saving Morse From Prison Is Abandoned

New York, Jan. 1.—Charles W. Morse, sentenced to serve fifteen years in the federal prison at Atlanta, for violation of the banking laws, will probably start for prison this evening, all hope of saving him from the long term of imprisonment having been abandoned when his counsel, Martin W. Littleton, failed to appear before the United States circuit court of appeals to argue for the issuing of a writ of error, which would have acted temporarily as a stay of execution of sentence.

Littleton was scheduled to appear before that court at 2 p. m. yesterday. United States District Attorney Wise was ready to argue against the issuing of the writ. When Littleton failed to put in an appearance at the scheduled hour announcement was made by Wise that all hope of saving Morse had been abandoned.

JEWELRY SHOP FIRE

Two Men Perhaps Fatally Hurt and Sidewalk Strewn With Gems

Providence, Jan. 1.—Two score of jewelry workers and shop clerks were thrown into a panic, two men lost their presence of mind and leaped from a third story window, and many thrilling and heroic rescues were made by firemen, when a fire swept through the Dyer block. Two men were probably fatally hurt.

The sidewalk was literally strewn with diamonds, valuable jewelry and cut glass, and a police guard was thrown about the building to prevent looting, which started at the height of the excitement.

HEAD IN WASTE BUCKET

Evidence of Murder Found In an Atlanta Office Building

Atlanta, Jan. 1.—The head of a white man, evidently freshly cut from the body, was found in a waste bucket in the Prudential building, a large office structure. There is no clue to the man's identity.

The head was neatly severed, the flesh clean cut and the bones sawed. A deep wound was found in the back of the head as if a portion of the skull had been blown away with a gun. The victim was about 28 years of age.

Mason's Case Postponed

Boston, Jan. 1.—Frank H. Mason, formerly clerk of the United States district court, who was indicted for embezzlement some time ago, was arraigned before Judge Aldrich in the United States circuit court. As demurrers had been filed, District Attorney French asked that the hearing be postponed, which was done.

Passing of Gretna Green

Providence, Jan. 1.—Today marks the passing of Rhode Island as a "Gretna Green." The act of the last general assembly, making necessary a delay of five days between the time of application and of granting marriage licenses, became effective at midnight.

WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC

Band of Men Carry It on In the Heart of New York City

New York, Jan. 1.—The charges made and vigorously denied during the recent municipal campaign of a wholesale white slavery traffic in this city were in some part substantiated by Joseph C. Gravour, a probation officer, in the court of special sessions.

Gravour declared on the witness stand that an investigation he made showed that a centralized group of men took possession of 200 flats, between the middle of the city and Harlem, for immoral purposes.

Many Polish servants, he said, were enticed, and, if the inducement to live the life suggested was not sufficient, a bogus marriage was performed.

Gravour was instrumental in preparing the evidence in the case of Samuel Rogoff, who was sentenced yesterday to eleven months in prison and a fine of $500, the maximum penalty.

SAVED BY WIRELESS CALL

Provincetown, Mass., Jan. 1.—Disabled and variously damaged after giving seaway of more than 200 miles to the Christmas storm during a week's unsuccessful battle, schooner Abbie and Eva Hooper was towed here by the revenue cutter Gresham.

The Gresham picked the Hooper up off Orleans, where she had been sighted by the life savers flying signals of distress, and to which place the Gresham was dispatched by wireless from Boston.

Never, probably, except in the case of the Republic, has the wireless summoned assistance quicker in the seas from such a distance. The Gresham had taken the schooner in tow within two hours of notification in Boston.

IMPORTANT LAWS ARE USHERED IN

Include One Concerning Child and Women Workers

Boston, Jan. 1.—A number of laws enacted by the legislature go into effect today. The most important is the fifty-six hour law, which provides that no child under the age of 18 and no woman shall be employed in a manufacturing or mechanical establishment for more than fifty-six hours in any single week.

The new automobile law provides new and uniform speed regulations, new penalties and a sliding scale system for license fees proportionate to horsepower, and ranging from $5 to $25.

Employes injured in the discharge of their duties through a defect in machinery will be entitled to action for damages, if such defect is reported to the person whose duty it is to remedy the defect.

Mrs. Sage Gives Yale $650,000 to Purchase Hillhouse Estate

New Haven, Jan. 1.—Announcement is made at Yale of an offer by Mrs. Russell Sage to the university of a gift of $650,000 to be used for the purpose of meeting the entire cost of securing the thirty-acre park at the head of Hillhouse avenue, known as the Sachem Wood estate or Hillhouse property. The offer will be accepted.

Mrs. Sage makes the gift "without condition or restriction, payment to be made, say, on or before Feb. 1 next."

It is believed the park will be used as a site for the college's athletic field, to contain a stadium for football and track events, as Yale field has been outgrown.

FARMAN CREATES A RECORD

Flies Forty-Three Miles Across Country In Sixty Minutes

Paris, Jan. 1.—Maurice Farman, in a biplane, flew across country from Chartres to Orleans, a distance of forty-three miles in one hour. He followed the high road, maintaining an average height of 180 feet.

This constitutes a new cross-country record, the most successful previous similar feat having been accomplished by Captain Cody, head of the balloon department of the British war office. Cody made a flight last September of about forty miles in sixty-three minutes.

Draper's New Secretary a Democrat

Boston, Jan. 1.—Governor Draper has given the position of governor's secretary to William A. Murphy, state house reporter for the Boston Globe for the last sixteen years. Frank Dean, the present secretary, retires to resume law practice. Murphy is a Democrat.

Tennessee In "Dry" List

Nashville, Jan. 1.—Distillers and brewers closed down their plants at midnight last night. At that time the new Tennessee law forbidding the manufacture of intoxicating beverages in this state became effective.

NEW SYSTEM OF BIG CANALS

Found to Be In Process of Construction on Mars

GREAT DISCOVERY BY LOWELL

Astronomer Tells Special Gathering of Scientists That Flagstaff Records Give Clear Proof That Planet Is Inhabited—Admits Experiencing Thrill In Learning That Phenomenon Was Actually Previously Non-Existent

Boston, Jan. 1.—Life on Mars is the logical and almost inevitable deduction from the latest observations at Flagstaff Hill as related by Dr. Percival Lowell, the noted astronomer. "Animate will" is the term Lowell applies to the force which is bringing about a most remarkable phenomenon on the planet.

In the popular way of reporting what Lowell has discovered, in terms applicable to seemingly similar undertakings on earth, the inhabitants of Mars are engaged at this moment in building a new system of canals.

Dr. Lowell's first public statement concerning the observation was made at a special session of section A (mathematics and astronomy), American Association for the Advancement of Science, and he spoke in terms within the range of understanding of a lay public which had been invited.

In his introduction Dr. Lowell commented upon the different definitions of the word new, noting that in one sense it referred to what had never before been seen by human eye and then again it is new because it never existed before.

"New canals on Mars, in the first sense," said the speaker, "though always interesting, and at times highly important, are no novelty at this observatory, inasmuch as at least 400 have been discovered here in the past fifteen years. When Schiaparelli left his great work he had mapped 117 canals; with those detected at Flagstaff in addition, the number has risen to between five and six hundred.

"To observe, however, a canal new in the sense that it had never existed anteriorly, and to prove the fact is an astronomic detection of a different order and one the significance of which speaks for itself. This is what has happened at the last apposition at Flagstaff."

On Sept. 30, 1909, when the region of the Syrtis Major came into view again after its periodic hiding of six weeks, two striking canals were evident to the east of the Syrtis in places where no canals had ever previously been seen. Not only was their appearance unprecedented, but the canals themselves were the most conspicuous ones on that part of the disc.

The new canals ran from the bottom of the Syrtis Major and from a point on its eastern side south, converging to an oasis, itself new, on the Cocytus about two-thirds of the distance to where that canal meets the Amenthes. The Amenthes itself was not visible except possibly as a suspicion. The new canals were recorded in independent drawings by Assistant Slipher and the director, and shortly afterwards were photographed as the most conspicuous canals in the images.

That the canals were indeed new was conclusively established by examination of the records of previous years. The records of the observatory go back to 1894. Nor had any observer previous to 1894 recorded them. Schiaparelli had never seen them nor had his predecessors or successors. This determined definitely that no human eye had ever looked upon them before.

"But stirring as it is to know that one is the first to see a new topographical feature on another planet," said Lowell in his description of the discovery, "akin to the thrill of finding land in our own Antarctic regions, there is a scientific interest greater still in learning that the phenomenon was not only previously undiscovered, but actually previously non-existent. For in that case one has seen something come into being, with all that such origination implies."

The speaker then took up the question of whether the canals might not have been there all the time, but unseen. This, he said, may be answered definitely in the negative.

No New Peers Named

London, Jan. 1.—Had the usual practice been followed Premier Asquith scarcely could have escaped the elevation to the peerage of some of his staunch supporters on New Year's day. In view of the present denunciatory attitude of the Radicals toward the upper house it was considered apparently to be inconsistent to add to its numbers.

Russell's Body Found

Georgiaville, R. I., Jan. 1.—The body of a man found in a deserted blacksmith shop by hunters was identified as that of Richard Russell of Woonsocket, R. I. He recently escaped from a Massachusetts asylum.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health is Worth Saving, and Some Quincy People Know How to Save It.

Many Quincy people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger when all diseases and aches and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is a Quincy citizen's recommendation.

Nicholas Albanese, 16 Gilmore street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I was annoyed by attacks of backache for some time, often while at work sharp, shooting pains darted through my loins, causing me great misery. I also had dizzy spells and my sight seemed to be affected. I tried many remedies, but did not receive relief and as a last resort, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and in a short time after using them, I was helped. I have no hesitation in giving Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for my cure."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Have you made any new resolutions today? If not think long and carefully before you begin. It was a wise man, who, after long deliberation decided to make no resolutions of any kind. In other words he resolved not to resolve.

During the past 130 years the United States government has been in the business of carrying the mails and during the first thirty years business was done each year at a profit with the exception of a single year. It is not the policy of the government, however, to seek a profit from the postals department but on the contrary to supply at a minimum of cost a wide range of service. As a result of the widening of the scope of the service and the minimizing of the cost there has resulted in recent years deficits which have grown continuously larger. The report of the Postmaster General covering the operations of his department deals particularly with this annual deficit problem. It also undertakes to explain in just what branches of the postal business the government is furnishing service at actual cost. The deficit arises from the low rates on a particular class of second-rate mail matter and upon the rural delivery service. It is pointed out that mazazines and other periodicals, exclusive of the daily newspapers, comprise about 60 per cent of the second class mail. The average carriage distance of magizines is about 1,000 miles and the average cost to the government for hauling alone is over five cents a pound. It is tentatively suggested that a length of the haul should be regarded in fixing the rate for second class matter. The rural delivery service has expanded tremendously from year to year with a continued widening of the hiatus between the cost of the service and the revenue derived therefrom. It is conceded that immense benefits are derived from this division of the mail service and though it is suggested that economies can be and should be effected it is not recommended that the service should be withdrawn or curtailed. The Postmaster General urges the passage of an act conferring authority on the postal department to pay for ocean mail service and his report will no doubt be used as a strong argument by the advocates of ship subsidy in Congress.

Father Time finished out another year of faithful service last evening for just at the stroke of twelve an infant bearing the banner, 1910, dodged by him and his sythe and is now out of his reach for at least 365 lays.. He is with us.

Today nearly everyone has some habit he is trying to break, he resolves to do better he tries to be at peace with the world but despite all of these grand resolutions there are better one that can be made. One of the better ones is to resolve to better your home city.

This may seem out of your line but it is nevertheless your duty to see that you do your share. Don't wait for others to do it all. There is, appearing in a well known Boston newspaper a daily cartoon, entitled, "Let George Do It." This may cause a smile for the artist's creations are intended for that purpose but the idea can be applied to many right in our midst who say in response to this question "Let others do it."

1909 did much for us. We learned that 406 new houses were built in Quincy that 438 permits had been granted for new homes to be built at some future date. We also bought new fire apparatus to protect our homes, re-elected a man who has proven his worth to fill the Mayor's chair, built the largest battleship in U. S. navy at one of our plants and also learned that the merchants of Quincy had banded themselves together with the intention of working along harmonious lines to impress Quincy people that they can do better by trading at home and by doing so gain much. Quincy is bound to grow, sooner or later but the only way to do it now is to get the residents to spend the money they earn at Quincy stores. We must get out of the rut and forge ahead.

Resolve to trade in Quincy in 1910 and you will do your share towards making our home a bigger, better, busier and more beautiful Quincy.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The new Washington post-cards have George's picture on one-half and his wife's picture on the reply card ,thus recognizing woman's right to the last word.—Des Moines Register and Leader.

Only when one steers his bark with such sense of his own responsibility in making the life port need success in a right landing be axpected. If trouble comes, smile?—yes, but not emptily over the difficulty. Smile in the brave recognitionn of the fact that life is still worth while and that there is always a new tack to sail on. So easy it is to say be happy! But happiness never yet came by injunction. Happiness was born a twin, its mate being loving service, and except where that comes first the other never follows. Optimism will never thrive on the mere theory of life's being worth while. It is only the proof that will bring satisfaction, and the proof can only be found in the effort to make it worth while. Then will come the settled conviction that will save from whim and mood that shift with circumstances, and despair will never have a chance to point the finger of scorn at the husk of satisfaction.—New Bedford Standard.

If wealth is the obedient and laborious servant of virtue and of public honor then wealth is in its place and has its uses; but if this order is changed and honor is to be sacrificed to the conservation of riches, riches which have neither eyes nor hand nor anything truly vital in them, it cannot long survive the being of their vivifying powers, their legitimate masters and their potent protectors. If we command our wealth we shall be rich and free; if our wealth commands us we are poor indeed. We are bought by the enemy with the treasure from our own coffers. Too great sense of the value of a subordinate interest may be the source of its danger as well as the certain ruin of interests of a higher order. Often a man has lost his all because he would not submit to hazard all in defending it.—Edmund Burke.

ENGAGEMENT LUNCHEON.

Tuesday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Davis, of 140 Highland street, Brockton, was the scene of merry festivities. The occasion was an engagement luncheon which was given in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mabelle E. Davis to Mr. Julian E. Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Artemas L. Morrow of Washington street, South Braintree. The table was beautifully decorated with roses both in red and white. One extremely pretty and original feature was the placing at each cover a Jacqueminot rose, to which was attached with red ribbon card engraved with two tiny golden hearts and the names of Miss Davis and Mr. Morrow. A dainty chafing dish luncheon with coffee, ices and cakes was served. The guests twelve in number were among the intimate friends of this popular young couple.

Mr. Morrow is a common councilman from ward two of the city of Brockton, and retires at the expiration of the present term. He is a member of the Brockton Public Market company of which Mr. M. A. Davis is president, and is prominent in the work of the first Baptist church, where Miss Davis is also an active worker.

One vacancy.

The Daily Ledger makes a few interesting comparisons between the new City Council of 1910 and the City Councils of recent years. Where some Councils have had 3 new members, and others 11 and 13, the Councils for three years have had 8 new members. The Council of 1908 established a record with a member serving for his ninth year (Charles M. Bryant) and Councilman Bryant was reelected both for 1909 and 1910, breaking a record each year. The summary follows:

YEARS OF SERVICE.

First Year,	8	8	8	9	13	11	3
Second Year,	7	5	6	9	4	2	8
Third Year,	2	4	6	1	1	3	3
Fourth Year,	3	2	1	1	1	2	6

AGES OF COUNCILMEN.

The ages of the Councilmen average under 40 years, which is about the same as last year and more than in 1908. A closer calculation cannot be made as there is one vacancy. The summary for seven years follows:

	1910*.	1909.	1908.	1907.	1906.	1905.	1904.

* One vacancy.

PLACES OF BIRTH.

Only six of the members of the new Council were born in Quincy, but this is as many as in any of the recent Councils. A majority were born in Massachusetts, and 16 of the 22 in New England. The number of foreign born is 6, which has only been equalled once in the past six years. The summary follows:

	1910*.	1909.	1908.	1907.	1906.	1905.	1904.

MEN'S PARTY WOMEN'S PARTY

Two Gatherings at Houghs Neck Last Night

The annual New Year's party and installation of the new officers of the Houghs Neck Associates was held last evening at Pandora hall, and was an occasion of much enjoyment. The association sat down to a New Year's supper a little after 9 o'clock, and at the strike of midnight Archie Baird the retiring president of the association installed the new officers. Speechmaking followed, during which a letter was read from Mayor Shea expressing his regret at his inability to be present. While the men were having a good time, the ladies of the association were also holding a New Year's supper, to which the men were excluded. Taken as a whole, there was not much sleep at Houghs Neck until after midnight.

WHY GAS IS THE BEST LIGHT FOR YOU

QUALITY—The soft, mellow steady light of the modern mantle burner is absolutely the best artificial light to work or read by.

DOES NOT TIRE THE EYES.

CONVENIENCE—By using the Chain Pull attachment on the burners, the use of matches is abolished.

QUANTITY—The Reflex Inverted Light with Holophane Reflector gives a light equal to 200 candles directly under the light.

We will put in a light on trial; if you don't like it we will take it out without expense to you.

The Social Realm

Did no one see an Old Man go
Alone across the fields of snow,
His tattered cloak blown in the wind,
And all his treasures left behind,
Faring a way he did not know—
Did no one see that Old Man go?
Did no one mind a tolling bell?
And did no voices call farewell
Adown the wind with piteous haste
To one upon the wintry waste?
O bells ring loud, and voices cry,
And bid the going Year good-bye!

RESIGNATION OF CITY OFFICAL

Chairman of Board of Heatlh Retires

William J. Walsh, chairman of the Board of Health, has tendered his resignation as a member of the board to Mayor Shea, and it has been accepted. Following are the letters:

Quincy, Mass., Dec. 31, 1909.
Hon. William T. Shea, Mayor,

Dear Sir: I hereby resign both as a member and chairman of the Board of Health of Quincy. I regret the necessity of resigning before the completion of my term of office, but my private business is so increasing and requires so much of my time, I cannot in justice to myself spare from it sufficient time to properly attend to the duties of the Board of Health.

I wish to thank you for the confidence you have shown in me by twice appointing me to office, and through you I desire to express to my associates on the board my appreciation of the many courtesies they have extended to me during the years we have been together. For you and them I wish a prosperous New Year.

Very truly yours,
(signed) William J. Walsh

Quincy, Mass., Dec. 31, 1909.
Mr. William J. Walsh, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir: Your favor of even date containing your resignation from the Board of Health of Quincy at hand. I recognize the force of what you state concerning your business needing your entire attention, and your inability to longer serve the city, therefor I accept your resignation.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for your faithful and efficient service as a member of the Board of Health, and assure you of my appreciation of the good work the board has done during your term of office.

With best wishes for your future success, I remain,

Very truly yours,
(Signed) WILLIAM T. SHEA.
Mayor.

NEW YEARS AT Y. M. C. A.

Rev. E. N. Hardy Gives Midnight Address

At 11 o'clock last night about fifty members of the older Y. M. C. A. fellows assembled at the association building to watch the Old Year out and the New Year in.

They gathered about the fireplace which was filled with glowing logs and were entertained in fine style by Warren G. Richards of Boston, who told stories, gave impersonations, and rendered instrumental selections of the highest order. The entertainer is well known in amusement circles for his fine sketches, reproducing the humorous side of Boston life.

When Mr. Richards had finished, refreshments consisting of coffee, cakes and cheese were served by members of the Y. M. C. A. After all had appeased their last empty feeling of 1909, Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy took charge, and the more serious side of the occasion was touched upon until the clock announced that 1909 was of the past, and 1910 with all its fresh hopes had been ushered in. Rev. Hardy spoke both interestingly and convincingly describing the bearing of the New Year in regard to the spirit; its origin and the fresh field of endeavor which 1910 opened to the young men of Quincy, and especially to the Y. M. C. A. members.

Secretary E. G. Gay read a short account of how New Years came to be an established fact, and the meeting closed with singing and prayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett E. Hobart celebrated their fifth wedding anniversary at their home in Holbrook Christmas. It was also Mrs. Hobart's birthday. Owing to the weather, there were only about fifty present. Ray Glover and Mrs. Arthur Hobart presided at the piano. Ice cream and cake were served and they received many beautiful presents.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

Rev. Leon H. Austin, pastor of the Roslindale Congregational church, formerly of the Quincy Point church, has written a beautiful poem as a New Year's greeting to his people.

Day of beginnings; tell to me
What coming months shall bring.
Sadness and sorrow, darkest night,
Or sweetest songs to sing?

Oh child of earth! 'Tis yet for thee
To know of life in part;
The morrows will be sad or gay
As in thy soul thou art.

Day of beginnings; shall I see
The end of this fair year;
And thus assured, in confidence
Press onward without fear?

Oh child of earth! dost thou believe
Mere time thy fears can quell?
Go forward, strong through faith in Christ;
Trust Him and all is well.

The monthly social meeting of the Young Women's club will be held at the Women's club house this evening, at 7.30 o'clock, a New Year's meeting.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS THIS NEW YEAR'S

THE HUSBAND

I AM resolved this New Year's day
To go a new and better way.
No more the lodge shall I attend;
The homeward road by nine I'll wend.
While in the house I'll never smoke
Or tell my wife a "chestnut" joke.
The servant girl I'll never kiss,
But be content with wedded bliss.
I'll bear with patience all my ills
And swear no more at dry goods bills.

THE WIFE

RESOLVED am I for this new year
In no high bonnets to appear.
All costly wraps I'll now forego
And do away with idle show.
In husband's business I'll not mix
And get him in another "fix."
My shopping I'll curtail at once,
For well I know I am a dunce.
In scandals I shall no more speak;
I'll lecture only once a week.

THE PREACHER

AS this is New Year's, I may say
I'll turn a leaf for this good day.
My sermons now I'll shorten some;
No more they'll charge that I'm humdrum.
The wealthy sinner I'll assail
And scorn his wrath if I shall fail.
My salary I shall not seek
To swell, for I'll be plain and meek.

THE LAWYER

WITH this new year I'll aim to please.
I'll do great work for little fees.
Prevarication I'll eschew
And utilize no dodges new.
I'll advocate no unjust cause
And break no wills, whate'er the laws.
These resolutions are not grudged,
For lawyers, too, in time are judged.

THE DOCTOR

ANOTHER year! Well, I must make
In my prescriptions no mistake
In 1910, for these young men
In drug stores talk too much — ahem!
The code I'll follow close this year;
No advertising shall appear.
I'll speak no ill of other "docs"
And quit for good all throwing rocks.
I'll be on hand in hours late
And greet good husbands at the gate.
I'll upright live as any Quaker
And spare my friend the undertaker.

THE GROCER

WELL, this, I s'pose, is New Year's day
And time for me to change my weigh.
From this time on I'll do things clean
And sell no oleomargarine.
To patrons old I'll be as good
As to the new ones, though my food
I risk in doing so. I'll bust
Or sell as cheap for cash as trust.
To him who pays I shall not place
The debts of those who fall from grace.
Adulterations I shall scorn,
For honesty may e'en adorn
A grocery, and grocers reap
Rewards in heaven, heap on heap.

THE PLUMBER

OH, WELCOME, New Year's!
Joyous day
That finds the plumber's heart still gay
And full of vows of true reform.
To him's ne'er dark the winter storm.
For plumber's time and helper's toil
I'll charge much less this year and oil
My patron's fixtures free of cost
(The generous yet have never lost.)
And when I grease his stop and waste
My bill I'll not present in haste.
His pipes I'll give the proper fall
And lay them on the southern wall
To do things well shall be my mission
And thus crowd out all competition.
'Tis my belief that sanitation
Is yet to save this periled nation.

An Editor's Telegram That Had a Double Meaning.

By LOUISE OSBORN.

"Miss Bradley!"

"In a minute, Mr. Dunn," said Helen Bradley as she tossed her hat on the top of her desk, hung her coat carefully on a peg in the wall and crowded her gloves into a pigeonhole marked "Recipes."

Then she gave an adjusting pat to her hair and hurried through the door connecting her little room with the office of the Sunday editor of the Star.

"Good morning, Miss Bradley," said Mr. Dunn, just as he had said it every morning since, five years before, Helen Bradley had begun to work on the woman's page of the Star. "I'm going away tomorrow morning, and I'm going to ask you to do some of my work."

Helen gave a startled "Oh, I'm sorry you're going!" blushed and regained her usual businesslike voice. "Very well," she said. "What work?"

"I'll tell Jimmie to give you all manuscripts addressed to me. Open them. Read the stuff that's sent in and pass on it. You've helped me out so many times, I guess you know a good thing when you see it as well as I do. I'm putting it right up to you, Miss Bradley. That's all, thank you."

John Dunn swung round in his chair.

"Hello!" he said into the telephone receiver. "Give me the composing room."

Helen heard him calling emphatically and ungently for overdue proofs as she closed the connecting door between the rooms.

Then she sat down to wonder why Mr. Dunn was going so suddenly away and to map out her two pages for the next week's Sunday paper.

The day was a hard one for the editor of the Star woman's page. The photographer telephoned that there wasn't enough sunlight and the fashion photographs wouldn't be ready until the next day.

The "beauty" writer sent word that she had a cold and couldn't get her copy in on time possibly.

Mr. Siddons, the managing editor, came in to say that he didn't think much of the new series of fashion articles Helen was running.

Her typewriter broke down, and she had to wait two hours for a man to fix it. Five o'clock found her still at her desk, struggling to think of something besides hash to tell about in the column she was writing on "How to Make Attractive Leftover Luncheon Dishes."

"Oh, Miss Bradley!" Mr. Dunn came into her room, his coat on and his hat in his hand. "I forgot to tell you. Don't be soft hearted and accept things just because you think the writer looks pinched and poor, the way you did those fashion articles Siddons kicked about. To go the stuff's got to have plenty of human interest, you know. It's got to have personal appeal. Remember that."

Then he looked at her flushed cheeks and shining eyes in the bright circle under the green drop light over her desk.

"What's the matter?" he said, for a moment the tone of the businesslike editor giving place to that of a sympathetic fellow worker. "You're tired, Miss Bradley. Shut up your desk and go home. Tomorrow you'll be fresh, and things will go better. Jove," he added, "it's a shame to pile extra work on you!"

"Oh, Mr. Dunn," said Helen, "I don't a bit mind! And I'm awfully glad to do it for you. I'll try not to make any dreadful blunders."

Helen smiled as they shook hands. "Goodby," she said. "I hope you'll enjoy your trip."

Then as he went out of the room she said to herself: "Now, I must remember. Human interest and personal appeal." And she scribbled the two phrases down on a slip of paper and pinned it to her calendar.

By the time John Dunn had been away from the office a week Helen had several times had recourse to the two watchwords he had given her.

The task of passing on manuscripts was always a hard one for Helen. She knew a good article when she saw it, as the Sunday editor had said; but, as he had also hinted, her sound business sense was too often overcome by her imagination.

If the copy she read was written with a well worn typewriter ribbon, if the paper seemed cheap or the ink looked watered, Helen was always disposed in favor of the article.

"I suppose," she said to herself more than once, "that a really good editor—like Mr. Dunn, for instance—doesn't pay a bit of attention to anything but the story itself."

And with the desire always before her to discharge her added responsibilities in a way that would please the absent editor Helen read the articles submitted to her in her most professional manner and submitted them all to the tests of "human interest" and "personal appeal."

As the week passed Helen found that her desire to please the grave and dignified Sunday editor was not only a desire to do her work well. With some annoyance she realized how much she had grown to depend on his friendly "Good morning" and "Good night."

She called herself foolish, for she remembered that from the time she had begun to work for the Star Mr. Dunn had never shown her more than the whole hearted friendliness he showed every one who worked for him.

"Well," she said to herself one morning as she looked into his empty room, "he's been gone just a week. I don't know whether I'd rather have him come back or stay away. Anyway, I'm a silly goose."

She went resolutely back to her desk and sat down before the pile of letters and manuscripts addressed to "Mr. Dunn."

Among them were a few letters for herself. She put these aside and tackled the manuscript first. After a couple of hours' reading she had two piles, one labeled "Rejected" and one labeled "Accepted." Between them was a long envelope.

"I'm not sure about that one," thought Helen. She reread the brief note accompanying the manuscript. "'Please wire if you do not find it available. I have a duplicate, and I think I can place it here.' Well," she added to herself, "I'll think about it while I read my own letters, and then I'll wire."

She began mechanically to read and file her own mail—recipes, fashion notes, inquiries and requests—the same kind of thing that came every day. Suddenly she stared as she hurriedly tore open an envelope bearing Mr. Dunn's handwriting.

"What can he be writing to me for. I must have made some absurd blunder about a story, but I don't see how he'd know yet."

As she read the letter her eyes sparkled and her cheeks glowed with pleasure.

"I have often thought of telling you," said the last paragraph, "but I always felt that it would be unfair to let you know, for of course I know that you regard me simply as a business associate, and I know also that you would not want to work with an editor you knew wanted to marry you. So you leave the Star, and I'd be alone.

"Something, that last night when I came to say 'goodby,' gave me an idea perhaps you did care, after all. Anyway I must know, and if you don't I can go west to a paper that has made me an offer out there.

"That's what I came here to see about. It may seem strange—I've waited so long, but now I'm impatient. Please wire me—just a word or two, so that I may know."

"Dear, stupid, dignified John!" smiled Helen to herself after she had read the letter through again. "Jimmie," she called—"please, Jimmie, come here. Do you think that you could send away any one who comes to see me in the next hour? You see, I—well, you see, I just don't want to be bothered. And, oh, Jimmie, please bring me two telegraph blanks."

"Sure, Miss Bradley," said Jimmie, good nature from the tip of his snubby, freckled nose to the tips of his stubby boots.

Then Helen settled herself to the composition of two telegrams, and when in the course of three-quarters of an hour they were done she again called the faithful Jimmie.

"Here, Jimmie," she said. "I want these two telegrams sent right off. This one's to go to this man," and she handed him a slip of paper containing the name and address of the owner of the doubtful manuscript, "and this one's to Mr. Dunn." Then Helen put the doubtful manuscript in the pile labeled "Rejected."

The next day passed quickly, and in her excitement and happiness Helen's work piled up on her desk. When she tried to read proof she found herself absently counting the "j's" and "d's" instead of looking for missing words and misplaced letters. And she found it much easier to draw plans of visionary cottages surrounded by shadowy gardens than to dispose of the manuscript before her.

"I don't care," she thought as she heard the neighboring church bells chime out 5 o'clock. "I'll quiet down now and stay until 6 or so and finish everything up. Let me see—he must have got my telegram today, and tonight maybe he'll write, and I'll get his letter tomorrow, and then I can write again, and—oh!"

Helen stopped suddenly as the door opened. Breathless from running upstairs, mystification and uncertainty in his kind eyes, John Dunn burst into the room. Helen started impulsively toward him, but when she saw the look in his eyes she hesitated.

"Why—what's the matter?" she exclaimed.

"Helen—Miss Bradley," he said, "I came to see—I don't understand—your answer."

"Didn't you get my message—a telegram?" demanded Helen, as mystified in her turn as John.

John held a little slip of yellow paper out to her. "Cannot accept," it said. "Not enough human interest. Needs more personal appeal." Then Helen laughed as she gave the slip of paper in her hands to the still uncomprehending Sunday editor.

"Don't you see?" she said. "It's Jimmie. He sent you the wrong message. That's what you told me to say—it's for a man who sent in an article I didn't want. I'm afraid we'll have to take the consequences and patch up the story, for, you see, he's got your answer, and that says—'Accepted.' But, John"—Helen smiled up at him—"I shouldn't mind a little more personal appeal!"

The personal appeal was made then and there. Fortunately there was no one present to witness the fervor with which such an appeal should be made, so the fervor was forthcoming. John said afterward that he rolled off three or four columns of it, but his wife declares there wasn't more than a "stickful." Anyway the matter was settled satisfactorily to both parties, and they are now one happy couple.

CHAPTER IX.

AT 9 o'clock in the managing editor's room in the Advance building Wheeler Brand and three other men, Howard Hartley, Jeff Thorne, staff reporters, and Bill, their much browbeaten understudy, were industriously at work. At one side of the office diagonally from the managing editor's desk was a high mahogany desk which backed against a wooden partition which cut off a small room used as a "morgue," the place where newspaper and magazine clippings are kept for reference.

Through the partition a round hole about five inches in diameter had been cut with a handsaw, and on a table in the morgue a camera had been rested with the telescopic protuberance containing the lens projecting through the hole in the partition into a private mail box directly above the desk. The door of this box, into which were placed letters arriving for the managing editor during his absence, had been unlocked. A line of shoe thread had been fastened to the door of the box and extended down behind the desk to the floor and across to the left hand side of Brand's desk. A slight tug on the thread would cause the door of the mail box to open, exposing to the lens Brand's desk, his chair and another chair which had been placed at the right of the desk next to the telephone.

For several minutes the mysterious preparations went on. Just what they meant no one but Brand could tell, and he was strangely silent, except as to directing what should be done.

Hartley was anxious to make certain that the lens aimed directly at Brand's desk. He measured the line with his eye.

"Get it?" called Jeff.

"No, not yet. Wait a minute," Howard answered, dodging around quickly toward the little "morgue." "I haven't got the focus right yet. Hold on!"

Jeff lighted a match, held it up and stood between the two chairs.

"How's that?" he cried.

The answering voice came back.

"Yes; that's the very thing. It's all right now."

Brand stepped for card from a corner of the room from whence he had been watching the final preparations for the strange event that was to occur.

"Are you all set now, boys?" he asked. "Is your camera in the right place for the flashlight?"

"Yes, sir!" cried Jeff and Howard simultaneously.

"The flashlight is planted here, sir," said Howard, pointing to a narrow pan

in a shadowed spot on top of the mahogany desk and close to the lens.

"Have you tested this?" asked Brand.

"Yes, sir."

"Be careful, sir, or you'll explode the flash," warned Jeff as Brand lighted a match to ascertain the location of the powder.

"Go into room 4, boys, and wait till I send for you," directed Brand.

Jeff and Howard went out. Brand went to his desk as the office boy, Durkin, entered.

"Joe Dillon's here," said the lad.

"Drunk?"

"Just one over."

"Broke?"

"Sure!" The boy grinned.

Dillon, one of the "has-beens" characteristic of the type that prey on the newspaper men at night in the big cities, would ordinarily have received short shrift from a busy man like Brand, but Dillon, an ex-newspaper reporter, had once given Brand, when a beginner, some valuable pointers, which the now managing editor had never forgotten.

"Tell him to come in," ordered Brand. He reached for the office telephone and called the night city editor. "The Patriot has got the town skinned on shipping," he said. "Do you know who's doing it for them? Well, I think you'd better hire him."

Joe Dillon wandered in.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand," he said weakly. Durkin, who had summoned him, followed him in.

"Well, Joe, what is it?"

"Wait a minute, Durkin. Got a story for us, Joe?" queried Brand sympathetically.

Dillon staggered forward.

"Better sit down," cautioned Brand. "Same old story, eh?"

"No. I'm hungry."

"Durkin, go get one hot roast beef sandwich and a big pot of black coffee and see that he gets them."

"Yes, sir." The lad sped away after dexterously catching a quarter which Brand tossed him.

"I wish I was going in there to work with the boys instead of eating charity grub," began Dillon plaintively. "I know you mean all right, Mr. Brand. I've tried and tried again to fight it off, but it's useless. I can't. It's too late. I'm a dead one. The hard stuff, the five cent whisky, has got me. You never heard how this thing started, did you, Mr. Brand? If it hadn't been for my wife"—

"Oh, cut it out!" cried Brand, and Dillon shambled out of the room.

Downs hurried in. He had become night editor when the shakeup occurred at the time of Brand's promotion.

"Young Bobbie Doolittle pinched again for speeding," he rattled off. "Three show girls in the auto. All of 'em lit up. Bobbie weeping because the girls had to miss the theater, and his mother's at me all evening to keep it out. What'll I do?"

Brand leaned back and smiled.

"Well, it was on her account we kept out his partial elopement with her French maid and the time he kissed the head waiter at the St. Honore hotel in lieu of a tip, and I guess—well, print this one. It may help brace him up."

"Oh, and that disappearance case," reminded Downs. "The girl's come back—old gag, visiting her friends in Jersey, but she's been off on the suit case circuit all right."

"Home now?" jerked the managing editor.

"Yep."

"Think she'll stay there?"

"She might."

"Well, she can't if we print this, so let's forget it."

"But we've had a man on it two days," persisted Downs. "We're the only paper that's got it."

"Well, we won't be the one to kick her down," pronounced Brand, turning his head away to end the conversation.

"All right, just as you say."

The telephone bell rang. Brand took off the receiver.

"Hello! Tell Mr. Dupuy I'm busy!" he cried after taking the message. "What? Send him in. That's all, Downs. See that they take care of Dillon, will you?"

The night editor nodded in the affirmative and gazed rather curiously at Brand as he went out.

Dupuy came into Brand's office with a most circumspect and deferential air. Dressed in evening clothes, carrying his silk hat in his hand and with a boutonniere of hothouse violets in his lapel, he gave every indication of being the society figure that his name and wealth had made possible for him.

The lawyer lobbyist walked directly to the desk at which Brand was seated. In reply to the managing editor's salutation he bowed stiffly and leaned forward over the desk.

Several moments elapsed before Dupuy spoke. He was trying to put his opening words in the most judicious language, and well he might hesitate when one considers the nature of his evil errand.

"The gentleman who was coming to see you tonight," at last he said carefully, "has had to go to the opera with his daughter. He has asked me to come in his stead."

An expression of complete bewilderment spread over the other's face.

"A gentleman? What gentleman?" he interrogated.

Dupuy was momentarily nonplused.

"Why, the gentleman who—ah, with whom you made an appointment for 9 o'clock this evening—here—at your office."

Brand still refused to show his hand.

"I should be very glad to hear what you have to say, Mr. Dupuy, but, frankly, I don't know what you are driving at."

The visitor was annoyed. He was positive that Bartelmy would not send him on a wild goose errand. Surely the judge and Brand had come to terms regarding the silence of the Advance as to the Lansing Iron case decision. The editor was playing with him now, he knew—dangling him on a verbal hook to tantalize him.

"Oh, come, you know who I mean—Bartelmy!" snapped the judge's despicable tool.

"Judge Bartelmy!" exclaimed Brand in surprise. "Well, what about him?"

Dupuy produced a card, which the editor glanced at.

"What's this?" he asked. Then he read: "'Dupuy will represent me.' In what?"

He started to put the card in his pocket.

"Perhaps you would better let me have that so I can return it to him." Dupuy reached eagerly for the card, which Brand slowly extended to him. "This refers to that transaction of which you and he were speaking this afternoon," continued the lawyer.

Brand laughed loudly.

"Well, Dupuy, I'm a poor hand at guessing riddles. I give it up. What's the answer?"

The lawyer became impatient.

"The transaction involving the—ah—the investment—of a certain—sum of money," he explained haltingly.

"A business deal I was going into with the judge?" in amazement.

"Precisely."

"If I had any business with the judge, Dupuy, I would prefer to do it with the judge."

"But I am his plenipotentiary."

"Mhm, mhm!" grunted Brand negatively.

"You are rather unreasonable, Brand." A wearied and hopeless look began to show in the lawyer's visage.

The young editor noted this and resolved to temporize with and exasperate this man whom he despised above all others, even above Bartelmy himself. Bartelmy, believed Brand, even if he was a scoundrel, actually had superior mental ability, was a brilliant thinker and acted boldly in many of his dishonest transactions on the bench. But Dupuy—he was to Brand the hanger-on, the skulker, the vandal jackal that devoured corpses in the night that braver animals had fought and killed by day. His eyes blinked in the light, did Dupuy's. It was in the underground runways that he coursed the swiftest. And as these thoughts sped through his brain the editor looked away absently.

Dupuy came hot on his trail.

"Shall I make an appointment with him for you, say, tomorrow morning?" he anxiously queried of the newspaper man.

"I don't care."

"Then I'll do it!" he said decidedly and moved away from the desk. "And—er"— He saw that Brand was still indifferent. He returned to the desk. "Things will remain stationary until then?" he asked.

"A business deal."

"Things never remain stationary in a newspaper office," responded the managing editor laconically.

"What I mean is that there would be no story—er—about him until you see him."

"I don't know what you are talking about."

"Can we let it go over for one day?"

"I don't know what you are talking about."

"You insist on his coming here personally?"

"Of course I don't. I don't insist on anything."

"How much time have we got?"

"He knows all about that."

Dupuy was immeasurably relieved at this last remark. It was the first time that Brand had indicated that Bartelmy and he had had an engagement.

"Mr. Brand, I can almost assure you that my client will keep his appointment." The lawyer's voice rang out firmly.

The editor nodded carelessly toward the speaker, who spun on his heel and speedily strode away. The telephone bell sounded. Brand bent over quickly.

"Hello! Who—oh, yes, Mr. Nolan. No, sir, not yet, but I think we'll have him landed all right in about half an hour. Please don't worry about it. It'll be all right. Just go away and hide somewhere, for they'll be doing the baby act as quick as I trap him, and you'll be squeezed to death before we get to press. You promised me this chance. You want to know what's going on? Well, where will you be? Triple 3 Plaza. Get off the wire, Miss Stowe. Yes, Mr. Nolan, they cut in on us. I'll call you up later."

CHILDREN WHO ARE SICKLY

Mothers who value their own comfort and the welfare of their children should never be without a box of Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children, for use throughout the season. They break up Colds, Cure Feverishness, Constipation, Teething Disorders, Headache and Stomach Troubles. THESE POWDERS NEVER FAIL. Sold by all Drug Stores, 25c. Don't accept any substitute. A trial package will be sent FREE to any mother who will address Allen S. Olmsted, Le Roy, N. Y.

To School by Air Tube.

"Fifty years from now there will be no schools in Chicago," said Architect Dwight H. Perkins of the Chicago board of education the other day. He meant that conditions in Chicago, particularly transportation, will have changed to such an extent that the schools will be thirty or forty miles beyond the city limits, far from its smoke, dust, dirt and turmoil and close to nature.

"We will shoot the children out through pneumatic tubes every morning into fields, groves and parks to school," was the architect's enthusiastic prophecy. "And in the evening we will shoot them back again."

New Street Name In Washington.

"Possum avenue" is the latest in street names for Washington. Executive avenue is the deceased name of the street separating the treasury building from the White House. The new cognomen is the child of the veteran who guards the treasury department door. He was asked the other day to point out the way to the White House by a party of visitors.

"Step right across Possum avenue and you will be in the White House grounds," he replied.

Oh, Sugar!

Our country's growing better.
This is no empty praise,
For there is every sign that
She intends to mend her weighs.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Snow Makes Work for Hub's Photo Smiths—The First Woman Musician to Score a Triumph as a Boston Symphony Player—The Commonwealth's New State Actuary Will Figure Largely—Back Bay Society Approves Barefoot Dancing—Captain Robert Bartlett Explains the Sealskin Game.

Because Boston has looked pleasant every kind of camera from the baby Brownie to the big professional panorama has been in evidence these last few days in the hands of men, women and children, all anxious to get a lasting souvenir of nature's beautiful handiwork, or of the results of her destructive fury, as the case might be. The parkways, Public Garden and Common presented a picture seldom equalled, with the trees laden with snow till the branches touched the ground, every crystal sparkling in the sun. Snow shoe tracks and ski trails form a network across the white plains and wooded hillsides of Middlesex Fells, Franklin Park and the other reservations around the Hub. And yet there are folks who say that winters are not what they used to be.

Score one for musical woman. A novel sight was that witnessed by patrons of the Boston Symphony orchestra this past week. Think of it. A woman was seen to take her place among the military mustached Germans, Poles, and Belgians of the organization and for the first time in history feminine talent combined with masculine virtuosity in rendering the weekly concert of this famous organization a success. All this came about as a result of the sudden illness of one of the regular members of the orchestra, when it was found that the artist most competent to take his place was a woman. A trying ordeal, it must have been for the lady player, for a blunder on her part would have meant serious discord, confusion and recrimination, but this artist met the situation splendidly and held her own with marked success throughout the concert. She may be proud of an honor which is unique in the musical history of New England.

"Blessings on thee, barefoot girl," Whittier might now write, say through the mediumship of Eusapia Paladino. Hub society, at this writing, is on the qui vive over the announcement that one of its pet daughters, a member of the famous Vincent Club, and now a French countess, is to appear on the stage in a repertoire of classical dances. A little romance attaches to this decision which is approved by her noble husband, who, himself, went to work as a metallurgic engineer in a big Chicago steel concern when he found that the support of a wife in the style to which she had been accustomed required something more than the old and distinguished name he was able to offer her. The Countess has a number of barefoot dances, but does not follow in the footsteps of her predecessors to the extent of emulating their style of gowns. Hers will be of artistic design, but not of the gauze variety. Her original creation entitled "The Dance of the Elements," which symbolizes the evolution of the soul is expected to be an innovation in the world of imagination and of poetry of motion and emotion.

New England girls who have appreciated this year for the first time what it means to have a good long opera season can understand how the operatic bee has begun to buzz in other sections. The Hub's experiment in local grand opera has evidently already proved itself sufficiently successful in the eyes of Chicago. From the western metropolis has come an authoritative announcement of the organization of a Chicago Grand Opera Company, capitalized at $500,000, and to be financed by wealthy men of Chicago and New York. It is said that Campanini is to be the director of the new enterprise. As the Boston opera continues to meet with appreciation and success it is more than likely that other cities will follow its example. Each of these advances in the world of opera improves the conditions for obtaining operatic training in this country without the young man or woman student having to undergo the many hardships and dangers of foreign study.

A young man who will figure largely in the affairs of this state is the new State Actuary whose nomination Governor Draper has just confirmed. Harwood E. Ryan, who has succeeded Robertson G. Hunter in charge of savings bank life insurance, has already as assistant actuary worked out many of the complex calculations by means of which men and women of this good Commonwealth are enabled to prepare for financial independence in old age at the lowest possible rates. Mr. Ryan is a native of New York City, a graduate of one of the Brooklyn high schools and was specially trained in the mathematics of life insurance by the celebrated actuary, Henry Moir of Edinburgh. Mr. Hunter, who has gone to one of the New York insurance companies, retains such personal interest in the Massachusetts plan that he has volunteered his services as consulting actuary without pay—an offer which the trustees of the General Insurance Guaranty Fund have accepted gladly. Meantime the actual work of completing the figuring or policy forms, consulting with manufacturers who wish to open agencies, explaining the system before audiences and doing a thousand and one other necessary things will fall upon Mr. Ryan, who made an excellent recod as Mr. Hunter's assistant.

Sealskin always interests femininity, and not the least entertaining of the tales of adventure told by Boston's temporary citizen, Captain "Bob" Bartlett, skipper of Peary's ship, the Roosevelt, are those of sealing days off Newfoundland. The captain, who is now lecturing before various organizations in New England, tells how as a young fellow he ran away from the Methodist college at St. John's where he was in training for the ministry, to follow the bent of all the brigus Bartletts for life at sea. He consequently knows a lot about sealing and other kinds of fishing, and when he is not relating incidents of the eventful trip from Etah to the Pole he is apt to bring forth reminiscences of March days on the ice floes, waiting for the young seals to reach the age at which their human companions do what they have to do. The period of expectation is not usually very long for the infant seals grow so rapidly, the captain says that a stock amusement of the sealers is to run a loose string around the little creature's throat and watch it disappear in the fur in three or four hours' time. When finally the exact hour has come and the seal's encasement is at the stage best adapted to making soft, pliable and yet firm leather for gloves and pocket books then that event takes place of which the Boston girl does not like to think. Enough that the conduct of Captain Bartlett and his associates, although a necessary part of the world's work, reminds her of this nursery jingle:

"Two naughty boys went in the shed,
They hit the baby on the head,
But all the baby ever said was
'O dear me'."

SATOLLI'S HONORS.

Distinguished Prelate First Apostolic Delegate to the United States.

Cardinal Satolli, the distinguished prelate of the Roman Catholic church, was born in Marsciano, archdiocese of Perugia, July 21, 1839. His family was a noble one of very ancient lineage.

His success in difficult research first won for him the regard of his great friend, the late Pope Leo.

Completing his studies, Satolli was assigned to the faculty of the College of the Propaganda and in an unusually short time became professor of theology and philosophy. The work of teaching and the opportunity for study and research appealed strongly to Satolli, and if he had been guided alone by his own inclinations he would have preferred to remain a teacher, but the church had need of him outside of the class room, and after a few years he was made archbishop of Lepanto and then sent to America by Pope Leo XIII. to represent the Vatican at the Columbia exposition.

He remained as the first apostolic delegate to the United States. The clerical work connected with the administration of the church in America had heretofore been in charge of the propaganda, which has superintendence of all missionary countries. When the Catholic body in a missionary country is of a size to warrant the change the propaganda hands over its powers and duties to that body itself. If the pope has treaty relations with the particular country, as in France, a nuncio from Rome resides at the capital, but where no treaty relations exist, as in the United States, the pontiff is represented by a delegation, such as Mgr. Satolli established at Washington.

Just before coming to Washington Archbishop Satolli had been made president of the Academy of Noble Ecclesiastics, one of the greatest positions in the ecclesiastical world of Italy and of the Roman Catholic church. On the heels of this great honor came the appointment of Satolli as apostolic delegate to the United States, and only a comparatively short time after this came the news that Satolli was to be made a cardinal.

He was duly created and proclaimed cardinal Nov. 20, 1895, taking title from St. Maria in Aracoeli. After the red hat had been conferred upon him Cardinal Satolli became prefect of the Sacred College of Studies and member of the Congregation of the Propaganda, Oriental Rites and Index.

Among all the offices held by Cardinal Satolli in his long ecclesiastical career the one he recalls with the greatest satisfaction is that of apostolic delegate at Washington. A title not conferred on him by the church, but one which is said to please him very much, is that of the "American cardinal." This title was bestowed on him because of his intense and sincere love for the United States.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

The authorities at G. A. R. hall evidently realize the advisability of proper lighting facilities. They have lately removed the central electrolier in the main hall and installed Tungsten lamps instead.

The three extra letter carriers furnished by the government during the Christmas holidays were greatly appreciated by the expectant public. Few delays in delivery because of splendid service was the consequence.

The members of the Clover bridge whist club were entertained by Mrs. George B. Moody of Fountain street, Thursday afternoon.

The Ladies Auxiliary A. O. H., will meet on Wednesday evening January 5th. Business or importance to be transacted. A full attendance would be appreciated.

Rev. and Mrs. George H. Parkinson were guests of Dean and Mrs. William Wallace Fenn of Cambridge for their recent reception in honor of President and Mrs. Lowell of Harvard University.

The conductors and motormen on the Randolph line were well awarded for their kindness shown the public in the past year.

Last evening a New Year party was held at the home of Miss Grace and Norma Beckwith. The evening was enjoyed with many laughable games and songs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Haskell have sold their property in Holbrook and have rented the estate of the late Miss Ann Penniman located on Franklin street.

Many friends of Fred Goodnow of Washington street are greatly interested in his case. It has been found necessary to operate on his limb to save further complications and he was taken to the St. Elizabeth hospital this week. It is the intention of some friends to give a benefit dance in the near future.

Mrs. Joseph Powdrell of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. William A. and Masters Elmer and Kenneth Moore of Worcester, Mr. and Mrs. J. William and Master Earl Powdrell of Randolph and Mrs. F. Sterne and family of Dorchester spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Powdrell.

The Krow Eldeen program for December included a delightful evening at the home of Miss Anna May Thayer, Dec. 21. Miss Wilkinson, librarian, was the guest of honor. Mrs. William F. Rogers gave an interesting address Dec. 14, on "The Madonna in Art." Miss Cowles and Miss Hobart will be in charge of the program for January.

Mrs. Alice Rogers has returned from Springfield, where she was called by the serious illness of her brother's wife, Mrs. Charles Marriott, who had passed away when she arrived there. Funeral services were held on Friday, Dec. 24, at her home. Besides her husband she leaves one daughter, Wilhelmina, nine years of age, and three sons, Raymond, Roland and Ralph, triplets, aged two weeks. A sad Christmas for the afflicted family, who have the sympathy of their many friends.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 30th at the Town hall, South Braintree, Miss Clara E. Shay of Washington street, carried to a very successful finish, the first of a series of entertainments to be held in aid of the building fund of the St. Francis society. About one hundred and fifty couples braved the storm and bad travelling, coming from Woburn, North Cambridge, Boston, Arlington, Dorchester and other towns bordering Braintree. The many beautiful costumes showed to advantage in the well lighted hall. The music furnished by Cuff's orchestra was of its usual high rank.

The Christmas season is the scene of many merry family reunions it is true, but it is doubtful if any roofs in town sheltered a happier company than those who accepted the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. H. Willie Simonds of Tremont street during the holidays just celebrated. Friday evening, the festivities began when thirty relatives gathered to enjoy the pleasures prepared for them. The residence was aglow and the parlors decorated with Christmas adornments, red and green being the color scheme. A tree, heavily laden with gifts for all was the main feature and furnished remembrances for young and old.

W. P. BARKER PASSES AWAY

Was for Many Years a Granite Manufacturer

William P. Barker of Greenleaf street, a member of the old granite firm of H. Barker & Sons died at his residence at 6.30 this morning, after being confined to the house about ten days. He had however been in poor health for some time.

Mr. Barker was a son of the late Henry Barker and was born in Quincy, June 3, 1843. After completeing his education he become a clerk in the Mt. Wollaston Bank. Two years later he accepted a position in the National Exchange bank of Boston, where he was from 1863 to 1867. In the latter year he became one of the firm of H. Barker & Sons, having large granite quarries at Quincy and at Lanesville.

Upon the death of his brother George A. Barker, he assumed control of the business, which he conducted for a number of years. Later on, in 1889, he went to Lanesville, where he operated the quarry at that place for several years. Some months ago he purchased one of the quarries of the Quincy Quarries Co. at West Quincy which he was operating at the time of his death.

In his younger days he was fond of yachting, and was one of the racing members of the Quincy Yacht club.

He leaves a widow; one son, the Rev. H. W. Barker of Chelsea; and two daughters, Mrs. A. P. Benson of Decham and Miss Stella Barker of Quincy.

Funeral services will be held from his late residence on Tuesday at 3 P. M.

EAST BRAINTREE.

Rev. James Bradley of St. Mary's college, Baltimore, Md., is visiting his sisters the Misses Bradley of Commercial street.

Members of the fire department received their annual salary last week in time for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Clapp entertained a party of twenty relatives and friends at their home on Commercial street, Christmas evening. A banquet was served at which each of the guests was presented a handsome favor. Vocal and instrumental music followed.

Rev. Mr. Snyder for several years pastor of the Congregational church at Gilbertsville, Mass., and a former pastor of the Union church accepted the pastorate of the Congregational church at Chicopee, Mass.

Chief Frank O. Whitmarsh who was seriously injured while responding to an alarm of fire last week, is undergoing treatment at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston. He was reported as not quite so well the past few days, but his recovery is looked for.

Misses Justine and Marion Snyder of Chicopee, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Granville Bowditch of Quincy avenue. Miss Marion Snyder is a teacher in the High school at Springfield.

Mrs. F. L. Flowers has gone to New York city to spend New Years by special invitation of her friend, Miss Miller.

A Christmas tree was held at the home of James W. Hender on Commercial street, Dec. 24. Mr. Hender who was sexton of the Union Congregational church for a number of years has been confined to his home for sometime by illness, and the tree was arrayed by the members of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of that church. A purse of gold was among the gifts received by Mr. Hender.

MAKARIA BOWLING

Wollaston Team Takes Three from South Quincy

The Wollaston team in the Makaria league under the able guidance of Fed Penley not only beat the South Quincy team Friday night on the Y. M. C. A. alleys but took every string by good margins. The total pinfall was 1184 to 1117, a difference of 67 pins. W. Ganzel was high man with a 93 string and 258 total. This game gives Penley's team a good lead over the other teams in the league.

The excuse offered by the defeated bowlers was rather poor on the whole, they claiming that in the hurry and excitement to get upstairs to the food which was waiting at the watch social, they lost their usually good eye for the pins.

The summary:

THAYER ACADEMY.

This afternoon there will be held in the boys' gymnasium at 2.30 o'clock a basket ball game with the Alumni. This year's Alumni team will be especially strong having Crocker and Elwell from Tech, Richmond from Dartmouth, and Carson from Yale, yet after the way Thayer showed up against Winthrop there is no doubt but what the Alumni will have to go some to get a look in.

The Thayer College Council lately established will hold its second council meeting at Miss Thompson's some time during the afternoon and a jolly time is anticipated. At 5 o'clock the two upper classes from the school will join the Alumni meeting and consultations regarding school life will be carried on. At 6 o'clock supper will be served through the kindness of Miss Thompson.

In the evening the Alumni dance will be held in the girls' gymnasium It appears that Jan. 1st will bring forth a very pleasant afternoon and evening.

QUINCY'S DEFEATED.

The Quincy team in the Columbus club league went up against the real thing Thursday night when they met the Shawmuts at Dorchester, losing all three strings. The summary follows:

NORFOLK DOWNS LEAGUE

Team Four Defeats Team Two

In the Norfolk Downs bowling league Thursday evening, team 4 defeated team 2 in two of the three strings and won by 21 pins, the total pinfall being 1235 to 1214. W. Bugbee was high man with 277, and he also scored the highest single string getting a pinfall of 108.

INAUGURAL CEREMONIES

And Organization of the City Council

The twenty-second year of the city government of Quincy was inaugurated at 12 o'clock today in the presence of a large gathering of citizens who completely filled the audience space of the Council Chamber, while the gallery which was reserved for ladies was well filled with the fair sex. Extra seats were provided in the main room and these were all occupied and standing room was at a premium. Inside of the rail were practically all of the present city officials as well as officials of other years.

On the President's platform in addition to the Mayor was Rev. Henry T. Grady of St. Mary's church, who opened the ceremonies with prayer, and Hon. Albert E. Avery, justice of the district court of East Norfolk. The President's desk was ornamented with several bouquets of beautiful and fragrant flowers sent by admiring friends of the Mayor. These served to add a little color to the scene.

PRESIDENT HOBBS.

As the minute hand on the First church clock approached the hour of twelve the councilmen elect took seats in the enclosure set apart for their use. Then there was the sound of an opening of doors and the inaugural party entered from the rear stairway. The party was led by City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell who has performed the same function for so many years. Following him came City Clerk Harrison A. Keith, Mayor Shea, Rev. Henry T. Grady and Judge Avery.

OATH OF OFFICE.

The City Clerk occupied the President's chair and presided until after the Council had organized. The first business was to administer the oath of office to Mayor Shea. He then called the roll of the City Council as follows:—

GEORGE A. BOLSTER
HARRY T. BOYD
ERNEST W. BRANCH
CHARLES M. BRYANT
JAMES M. CANTFILL
WILLIAM A. CAREY

FULL TEXT OF MAYOR'S ADDRESS

Financial Statement of the City in Detail Showing Increase of $28,845 in Debt

Mayor Shea's address in full is given below and contains an unusually large number of recommendations, such as he believes are necessary in a progressive and rapidly growing city. It should be carefully read by every citizen of Quincy.

Gentlemen of the City Council:—

In accordance with the provisions of our City Charter we are assembled this morning to inaugurate the twenty-second year of the municipal life of the City of Quincy. The government of our city for the coming year is this day placed in our hands. The people have a right to ask of us our best efforts in all our official actions. Let us not be influenced in the performance of our public duties by any mere personal ambition, pride of opinion or sectional feeling. Let us assume the responsibilities of our office with that singleness of purpose and spirit of fairness which our fellow citizens have a right to expect from us.

I deem it proper at this time to gratefully acknowledge the honor of my re-election. I thank the citizens of Quincy for the confidence they have expressed in me, and I take this opportunity to assure them that I will in the coming year, as I have in the past, serve them to the best of my ability.

It is customary at this time for the Mayor to call to the attention of the Council such matters as he believes requires action on its part, and also furnish it with a statement of the financial condition of the city. Accordingly I submit the following for your consideration.

BRIEFS

Miss Ann Peterson of Vassar college has been the week end guest of Miss Mary W. Dinegan.

One of the enjoyable pastimes of the week has been long tramps over the hills on snowshoes.

Alzaman H. Maxwell of this city has filed a petition for divorce from his wife, Sarah E. Maxwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Pratt, nee Fay Hitchcock, were in town for the Tennis club dance and were given a hearty welcome by their friends.

Mrs. Seth Frye Burt formerly of Cambridge died on Friday at her home 205 Billings street. Funeral services will be held today and the burial at Forest Hills.

Rev. A. R. Atwood continued his interest in Quincy trilobites up to the last, and Dec. 31 shipped to a geological syndicate in New York 360 pounds found along Town river.

Miriam Luff failed to recover anything in her suit before the Norfolk Superior court this week for damages arising from assault and battery by Singer Sewing Machine Co. in December 1907.

A horse owned by George Mitchell of Wollaston, driven by George Davis got into a water trench on the corner of Billings road and Beach street Saturday. It was with some difficulty that he was taken out.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Johnson and daughter Olive have returned to their home, corner Newton and Babcock streets. They have been visiting relatives in Brockton the past week. Mrs. Johnson who has been quite ill is much improved.

Farewell services to Rev. A. R. Atwood were held Friday afternoon at Sailors' Snug Harbor. The old sailors feel that they never had a local pastor who took quite as much interest in them as Mr. Atwood and regretted exceedingly the fact that he was going away. Some presentations were made.

Dick Freeman of Wollaston although most modest is looked upon as something of a hero by his friends for his rescue of several cows during the recent storm. The cow barn at Wollaston beach was flooded with icy water and the cows were induring much suffering and in danger of drowning when discovered by Mr. Freeman. He took them one by one to a place of safety which was hard work as some of them balked and the elements were unfriendly. The owner of the cows was ill and unable to look after them. Before his work was accomplished Mr. Freeman was joined by his father who was of great assistance. Neither of the Good Samaritans suffered any ill effects from their battle with the elements.

MORSE STARTS FOR ATLANTA

Gives Newspaper Men Bitter Comment on His Case

VICTIM OF "BRUTAL SENTENCE"

Says Private Detectives of Prosecution Had Charge of Jury, the Members of Which Were Rum Drinkers—Hopes For Pardon From President—Convicted Banker Takes Tearful Leave of His Family In New York

New York, Jan. 3.—With a supreme effort to be cheerful, but with emotion occasionally getting the better of him, Charles W. Morse left New York Sunday to serve fifteen years in the federal prison at Atlanta for violation of the national banking laws.

Before leaving the Tombs, Morse received his wife and two sons and then the newspaper men. He was too affected to say anything, but he handed out a carefully prepared statement of comment on his case.

Morse left Jersey City on the Birmingham flyer of the Southern railway at 10:43 a. m. in custody of Deputy United States Marshals Steebling and Linicus.

"I am going to Atlanta to begin penal servitude under the most brutal sentence ever pronounced against a citizen in a civilized country," is the opening sentence of Morse's statement.

"I have hoped," the statement continues, "with that hope which comes from a consciousness of my innocence, that I will not have to close out forever the light and liberty of this world under such an inhuman sentence. I had felt that the fact that I had paid a fine of $7,000,000 and served a year in prison would satisfy the cry for a victim, and I have steadily believed that the courts would be compelled to give me a new trial.

"When I learned that the private detectives of the prosecution were the keepers of the jury; that the jury drank like men upon a jaunt or a holiday rather than citizens engaged in a serious service, and that as a result two of them were rendered unfit, I naturally hoped I would be allowed another trial by another jury free of these hostile influences.

"It seems, however, that the courts intend to establish the practices which make rum-drinking a part of jury service and private detectives as the custodians of a jury a permanent institution. By this sentence and judgment I may be brought to ruin; but the damage done to me is not half as important as the injury to the administration of justice.

"I am now up in years andl must with the passing of time pass also; but the record of my conviction, and they way it was brought about, will remain a lasting and dangerous example of a government gone mad in search of a victim.

"Whether I shall serve my full sentence I am not able to say, much depending upon how much the government at Washington shall look upon it. I have great faith that all right-thinking men and women who know of me and my case, and who realize the inhumanity of my sentence, will make known their feelings to the president.

"Whatever the future may hold in store—liberty or imprisonment—I shall endeavor to meet in the same way I have struggled against the misfortunes of the past two years."

A few minutes before the train's departure, Harry and Benjamin Morse appeared for another farewell to their father. He embraced them and wept as they left him.

Morse braced himself for a final picture by a crowd of newspaper photographers, but he said nothing further. He hid his face in a newspaper after he had boarded the car.

TWO HOURS LESS A WEEK

But Carpet Mill Operators Will Not Suffer Reduction In Wages

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 3.—Matthew J. Whittall, the largest individual carpet manufacturer in the United States, operating mills in Worcester and Palmer, employing over 1500 hands, announced that today his mills will go on a fifty-six-hour schedule with no reduction in wages.

The mills have been running fifty-eight hours. Those on piece work are given a raise of 5 percent to compensate for the advantage given the rest of the help in shorter hours.

Suicide In Police Station

Revere, Mass., Jan. 3.—Harry Bennett, aged 30, committed suicide last night in a cell in the police station. When found he was lying in the lower bunk in the cell, with his head hanging over the edge, and twisted tightly around his neck was one end of his suspenders, while the other end was made fast to the slats of the bunk above.

Says Leopold Merits Prayers

Brussels, Jan. 3.—The Archbishop of Mechlin has issued a charge inviting prayers for the late King Leopold, who, says the archbishop, "by his religious marriage and eminently Christian death merits the prayers of all good Belgians and Catholics."

PRIEST UNFROCKED

Achieved Fame as Author of Interview With Kaiser Which Was Suppressed

Middleboro, Mass., Jan. 3.—William B. Hale, who wrote up an interview with Emperor William of Germany for The Century Magazine, which was suppressed, has been canonically and formally deposed from the priesthood of the Episcopal church, according to information received by his acquaintances here.

The action was taken by Bishop Whittaker of Pennsylvania, Hale's last charge having been at Ardmore, in that state. He had a church here from 1892 to 1899. For several years he has been engaged in newspaper work. That is his present occupation abroad.

A special cable to the New York Sun from Berlin at the time the interview was suppressed, quoted Die Welt and Montag as authority that the German government had paid Hale $50,000 to suppress publication.

ALL ARE NAMED JOSEPH

Six Chinamen Are Baptized In the Home of a Boston Priest

Boston, Jan. 3.—Six Chinese converts were baptized by Rev. Father McQuaid at the St. James Parochial residence Sunday. All of the men are members of the St. James Sunday school for the Chinese and vary in age from 25 to 60 years.

Joseph Lee, Joseph Soo, Joseph Gee, Joseph Fong Wah, Joseph Wong and Joseph Wong Pole are the converts. Each of them had for a godfather one of the members of the Sunday school. There were no godmothers, as no women are connected in any way with the school.

GAINED WIDE FAME AS AGNES BOOTH

Death of Mrs. Schoeffel, Who Was Long a Popular Actress

Boston, Jan. 3.—The career of one of the most successful and popular actresses this country has ever known ended Sunday when Mrs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel, wife of John B. Schoeffel, the owner of Tremont theatre, died in their home at Brookline.

For two years Mrs. Schoeffel had been an invalid, suffering from what the physicians termed pernicious anemia. For some days she had been unconscious much of the time and died without regaining consciousness or recognizing her husband and family at the bedside.

Theatre-goers of an older generation will always remember Mrs. Schoeffel best under her stage name of Agnes Booth, in a score of parts that she created and made famous, as well as in Shakespearian repertoire.

Beginning as a child as a ballet dancer, Agnes Booth appeared on the stage the first time in Sydney, Australia, where she was born Oct. 4, 1846. She was married to Schoeffel in 1885. Her husband and two sons survive her.

A CONSCIENTIOUS SHERIFF

Thinks That the Emoluments of His Office Should Be Reduced

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 3.—At the next meeting of the board of supervisors Sheriff George H. Bean will request that the necessary steps be taken to put his office on a salary basis.

Bean is serving the third term in his office and he has been doing a good business under the fee system. Although the constitution prohibits a change of compensation during the term for which an officer is elected, Bean believes that an understanding could be made with the supervisors provided the salary agreed upon was less than the income from the fees.

The job on a fee basis is believed to be worth from $4000 to $8000 a year. Bean has been the most efficient sheriff Jackson has ever had.

SMALLPOX GAINS GROUND

More Than a Hundred Houses Are Quarantined In Winchendon

Winchendon, Mass., Jan. 3.—Three additional cases of smallpox have been reported in this town, where over 100 houses are quarantined as a result of the plague which seems to be spreading over this section of the state.

Practically every house on Glenhall street, near the mills, has either a red tag or a red flag notifying the people of smallpox in the house.

Kills Wife and Self

Pittsburg, Jan. 3.—Winfield Gibson, a resident of Munhall, a suburb, shot and killed his wife, seriously wounded his son, fired three shots at his fleeing daughter and then sent a bullet into his brain, dying instantly.

Crushed by Freight Train

Webster, Mass., Jan. 3.—John Ryan, aged 33, baker, of Worcester, in attempting to board a freight for home, fell between the cars here and was instantly killed.

MONUMENT TO LEW WALLACE

How "Ben-Hur's" Author Will Be Honored In Washington.

GIFT FROM HIS NATIVE STATE

Statue of Famous Soldier and Patriot, Heroic In Size, Will Be Unveiled In the Hall of Fame at the Capitol Before a Distinguished Assemblage.

General Lew Wallace, soldier, patriot, statesman, diplomatist and author, is to receive the highest honor in the gift of his native state (Indiana) and his country when on Jan. 11, 1910, his effigy in marble will be unveiled in the hall of fame in the capitol at Washington.

More than anything else done by the great author, his work in giving to the world his imperishable "Ben-Hur—A Tale of the Christ," has earned for him this superlative honor. It was President Garfield's gratitude to Wallace for the immortal romance that made him minister plenipotentiary to Turkey—a gratitude which the whole nation shared and which the civilized world echoed, for "Ben-Hur" has been translated into and read in every language used in the known literature of the globe.

Monument of Heroic Size.

Statuary hall in the capitol has become the American hall of fame, for here the several states of the Union honor their greatest men. Indiana in placing General Wallace among them recognizes his services to his country and the heritage of posterity in his written monument, his "Ben-Hur," "Fair God," "Prince of India" and other works from his pen. Each state is allowed two representatives in that wonderful statuary hall. General Wallace will share the place of honor with the war governor of Indiana, Oliver P. Morton.

The statue of General Wallace which will be unveiled is the work of Andrew O'Connor of Paris, one of the best known sculptors in Europe. It is of Carrara marble and of heroic size, being seven feet high. The figure is clad in the uniform of a major general of the United States. The committee which selected the artist to make the statue and to decide on the details of the work was appointed by Governor Hanly, acting under an act of the Indiana legislature.

Many Famous Men Will Attend.

One of the most interesting features of the unveiling of the statue on Jan. 11 will be the presence of the grandsons of General Wallace, Lew and Noble Wallace, sons of Henry L. Wallace. Lew Wallace, Jr., will pull the cord which will disclose the statue The exercises will be of more than national interest and will enlist the services of many men prominent in the highest circles in the United States.

Midday has been selected as the hour for the ceremony. William Allen Wood will make the presentation, and Governor Tom Marshall, on behalf of the state of Indiana, will respond. Senator Albert J. Beveridge will deliver an address, and the Rev. Dr. Dudley will offer a prayer. A poem written for the occasion will be read by its author, James Whitcomb Riley, a lifelong friend of General Wallace. Both congress and the senate will be represented officially by delegations.

The Indiana society will have a Wallace meeting on the evening of Jan. 11, and several prominent men will make addresses. At this meeting it is expected the survivors of the Eleventh Indiana regiment, which was General Wallace's command in the early part of the civil war, will be present in a body.

The monument of marble in Washington is the concrete and material expression of the monument in the hearts of the grateful thousands who honor and revere the great author of "Ben-Hur."

A Woman's Good Deed.

The book really owes its printed existence to a woman. When General Wallace took his manuscript to New York and gave it to the firm of Harper Bros. it was passed from one to another of the firm's readers, and each of them rejected it as unprofitable. Wallace himself told the story to C. F. Towle, manager of the company which is presenting the dramatization of the romance through the country.

"'Ben-Hur,'" said General Wallace, "came near having an untimely death. James Harper, to whom it was first given to read in manuscript, sent it to the several readers employed by his company, and they each rejected it. Mr. Harper gave as the reason the generally accepted belief by readers and publishers that no religious novel could be made a commercial success. And when he showed me the list of failures in this line it looked as though there was much force in the argument. But I was tenacious, and I kept after him, for my faith in my book grew stronger with opposition. At last he agreed to look over the manuscript himself, and he took it home with him. By some chance his wife read it, and after she had finished it she said to Mr. Harper, 'If you never print another book, print "Ben-Hur."' The next day Mr. Harper ordered the book to press. So, after all, it was a woman who saw clearly the possibilities of the work, while the men who professionally decided on the chances of success had their judgment warped by tradition."

EULOGY OF GLADSTONE.

Ambassador Bryce's Tribute to Statesman on Centenary of His Birth.

Here are some guides to greatness as chosen from the life of William Ewart Gladstone by James Bryce, British ambassador at Washington, who recently spoke at Carnegie hall, in New York, under the auspices of the Civic forum at the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of the British statesman.

According to Mr. Bryce, who was an intimate friend of Mr. Gladstone, these were the characteristics which made him great:

His oratory, by which he first won fame and maintained his ascendency.

His great fighting force, which was aroused to the greatest effectiveness when under formidable attack.

His capacity for grasping the whole of a subject, which made him a great minister of finance.

His caution, his strong sense of personal duty and responsibility of office.

His intellectual curiosity, which showed itself in the incessant reading of poetry, theology, political economy and history.

His force of character, tenacity, strenuous will, untiring energy, rested only by a change of labor.

His self restraint. He was never rude or acrimonious.

His modesty, never speaking of himself, but always wholly occupied mentally in the subject under discussion.

"Gladstone held in high reverence the liberty of this American republic," added Mr. Bryce. "His admiration for George Washington was boundless. He placed Washington, in respect of his fidelity to freedom, far above Oliver Cromwell.

"He was much blamed for having consented as prime minister to the arbitration of the Alabama claims, but everybody now recognizes this was an act of the highest wisdom, for it removed a cause of quarrel between Britain and Canada on the one side and the United States on the other and laid the foundation of that friendship which now happily exists and which he so much rejoiced to see growing during his later years.

"Although he never actually took sides during the civil war of 1861-5, he did once or twice use language which gave that impression, and he admitted frankly afterward that he had not properly understood the real issues involved. Such ignorance was common among the upper classes of England, who were then very ill informed about American affairs."

MISSISSIPPI'S NEW SENATOR

Strange Story Told About Colonel James Gordon's War Record.

Sought at one time by the federal authorities under a $10,000 reward for his capture, dead or alive, for his alleged part in the conspiracy that resulted in the murder of a president of the United States and now appointed as a member of the highest legislative body of that country is the strange experience of Colonel James Gordon of Okolona, Miss., who has been named senator by Governor Noel of Mississippi as successor to the late Senator A. J. McLaurin.

Mr. Gordon was one of several Confederate leaders suspected of being in conspiracy with J. Wilkes Booth to kill President Abraham Lincoln. He escaped arrest and probably death only by the intervention, it is stated, of a Yankee colonel with whom he had crossed swords in a fight in Virginia.

During the earlier years of the war Colonel Gordon had formed an intimate friendship with Booth, and after the assassination of President Lincoln the reward of $10,000 was offered for his capture. Colonel Gordon went to Canada, and it was several months after the close of hostilities before he found it safe to return home.

During one of the campaigns in Virginia Colonel Gordon had crossed swords with the colonel of a New York cavalry regiment. Both were wounded in the conflict, but they afterward became fast friends.

Colonel Gordon wrote a letter to this New Yorker, denying that he had any part in the conspiracy and stating that he desired to return home. The former foe took the matter up with General Dix, then in command of the army forces in New York, and the latter sent him a passport and an invitation to come to New York and surrender, which he did. He afterward satisfied General Dix that he knew nothing of the Lincoln conspiracy.

He took the oath of allegiance and returned to his home in Chickasaw county, where he has since resided.—Memphis News Scimitar.

French Chamber to Vote by Electricity

It is proposed that the French chamber of deputies shall vote by electricity in 1910. A screen will be placed near the secretaries' table containing the names of the deputies, and against each name will be five spaces marked "Present," "Absent," "Yes," "No" and "Vote Unrecorded.' At the beginning of each session when the deputy takes his seat he will press a button in front of him and so record his presence. Then at the time of the vote he will vote "Yes," "No" or his wish to abstain by pressing the necessary button.

A Maine Silver Gray Fox.

Rich Hunnewell, a fur dealer in Auburn, Me., has sold the silver gray fox he recently purchased to Newfoundland parties, who will use the animal for breeding purposes. Mr. Hunnewell intended to kill the animal for its pelt, but fortunately neglected to kill it until the Newfoundland parties heard he had it in captivity.

LIMIT OF TAX LEVY.

The law allows us to assess $12 per $1,000 on the net valuation for the preceding year for the current expenses of the city for the present year.

$12 on $1,000 (amount available for current expense,)	$375,695

The total City Municipal debt outside of the debts authorized by special Acts amounts to $541,205, and of that amount $107,375 falls due this year.

SCHOOLS.

The schools of our city have always maintained a high standard. The rapid increase in the school population keeps the question of providing adequate accommodations for the school children almost continuously before us. The School Committee has recommended the erection of a new building in the Montclair district and another in the Bigelow Park district. Both buildings I believe to be needed.

The schoolhouse in the Wollaston district is a wooden building, built about 30 years ago, to which additions have been made from time to time; and while this schoolhouse is not in as bad a condition as has been recently reported, on investigation I find that it will cost about $5000 to make the necessary repairs on the building, and even then it will be far from satisfactory. I am of the opinion that a new schoolhouse should be provided in this district, and recommend your early consideration of this matter.

The new Coddington school, which was opened to the pupils one year ago today, has proved in every way to be a very good building, and of great comfort and convenience to the pupils.

During the past year the Council appropriated $12,000 for a four-room addition to the Lincoln school. Owing to the fact that this work was begun while the frost was in the ground, some slight weather cracks, which in no way affect the solidity of the building, have appeared in the outer wall. This addition was erected at a much less cost per room than any school building that has been built in the city for a number of years, and will compare favorably with other school buildings in our city that were erected at a much greater cost.

Work on the new building at Houghs Neck, for which an appropriation has been made will be commenced in the early spring.

STREET DEPARTMENT.

Considerable work has been done by this department during the past year.

The following is submitted as a brief statement of a portion of that work.

Number of miles streets built,	5.6
Number of feet surface drain pipe laid,	11,000
Number of catchbasins built,	87
Number of feet edgestone laid,	6,800
Number of feet crosswalks laid,	540
Number of tons crushed stone put on street,	10,100

In 1909, Brook road and a portion of Hancock street were paved with granite blocks. I believe this to be the best method of road building, particularly for heavily travelled streets. I recommend that an appropriation of $10,000 or more be made this year for the purpose of continuing the paving of Hancock street.

Quincy is a growing and prosperous city. Provisions should be made for its future development. Attention at this time should be given to improving the conditions of such of our streets as connect the centre of the city with the outlying districts. A broad thoroughfare should be constructed connecting West Quincy with Quincy Centre. Hancock street between Granite and School streets should be straightened and widened. School street between Franklin and Hancock streets should be widened and rebuilt. A suitable road should be built to Houghs Neck.

In my inaugural of last year I called attention to the importance of relocating and rebuilding Howard street between Quincy avenue and DesMoines road. I am still of the opinion that this work should be done. Objections may be made that the work outlined in the foregoing recommendations would involve a large outlay of money, nevertheless, I believe it would prove a good investment and that the future growth of our city will justify it.

In this connection I desire to call your attention to Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1899, authorizing the City of Quincy to borrow $150,000, outside the debt limit, for street improvements. The city has incurred indebtedness under this Act to the amount of about $80,000, leaving a balance of $70,000, which the city may borrow, outside the debt limit, for street improvements.

The matter of a new bridge over the Neponset river was considered by the Legislature of 1909, and referred to the incoming Legislature. At the present time the City of Boston is making extensive repairs in its portion of the present Neponset bridge. When this work is completed the bridge will be in condition to meet the requirements of public travel over the same for years to come.

The Fore River bridge will need many repairs during the current year. It needs painting, its piers and fenders need to be rebuilt and in fact the whole structure requires strengthening. To do the work necessary to put this bridge in proper condition will involve the outlay of a substantial sum of money. As Quincy is obliged by law to pay one-third of such expense, the Council will be called upon later to make an appropriation for that purpose. Estimates of the work required will be made in the early spring when the matter will again be called to your attention.

During the past year a new contract was executed with the Quincy Electric Light and Power Co. The conditions of the contract, in my opinion, are very advantageous to the city. Provisions are made therein for all-night lighting. I am a firm believer in well lighted streets, and trust that your body will appropriate sufficient money to provide for all-night lighting of the streets.

SIDEWALKS.

It is important for a city to have good permanent sidewalks. In 1909 the city expended $8,000 in building permanent sidewalks with very gratifying results to the citizens. I earnestly urge that the work of building permanent sidewalks be continued, and recommend that a substantial appropriation be made for that purpose.

SEWERS.

Three and five-tenths miles of sewers of various sizes from 8 inch to 15 inch were built during the year. These sewers were all built on petition. The work has been distributed over the different sections of the city, each ward receiving its share.

An important piece of work done by the department last year was the extension of the sewer to the Gridley Bryant school, in which a new system of plumbing was installed and connected with the public sewer.

A system of sewerage for Houghs Neck has been designed by the City Engineer and after approval by the State Board of Health, adopted by the City Council. Work should be commenced on this system in the early spring.

Three hundred and ten buildings have been connected with the public sewer during the year. There are still some petitions for sewer extension on file in this department. The work called for by these petitions will be attended to in the early spring.

PLAYGROUNDS AND PUBLIC PARKS.

Our city should be liberal in providing Public Parks and Playgrounds in the different wards for the use of its children.

Chapter 513 of the Acts of 1908, having been accepted by the city, it will be necessary for us this year to lay out and properly equip one or more playgrounds of the character contemplated by that act. I recommend that action be taken on this matter without unnecessary delay.

POOR DEPARTMENT.

The demands on this department are constantly increasing, making it difficult for the Overseer to conduct the department within the limited appropriation placed at his disposal. During the year the work of the department has been most conscientiously attended to.

POLICE DEPARTMENT.

This department at the present time consists of a chief, one lieutenant, two sergeants, an acting inspector, 21 patrolmen and 8 reserves.

Excepting Wards 3 and 5 all the wards of the city have a regular day patrolman. I believe these wards should each be provided with a day patrolman, and I recommend that two more men be added to the permanent force for that purpose.

In view of the extensive territory the Police department must cover, and the importance of the police arriving promptly at the scene of an accident, or disturbance, and responding to other emergencies, I believe the time has come when the department should be provided with a combination police ambulance and patrol automobile, and I recommend the purchase of such automobile.

The sanitary conditions existing at the Central Police Station are very bad, and immediate action must be taken to remedy the same. The station should be properly plumbed and suitable sanitary arrangements provided for it.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the past year many improvements have been made in this department. In addition to the new steamer, which has proved very satisfactory, several pieces of apparatus have been overhauled and put in serviceable condition, so that the equipment of the department is in better condition today than it has been for sometime. The fire station at Houghs Neck at the present time has but one permanent man. I believe there should be two men at this station, and I recommend that two men be permanently maintained there.

WIRES AND SHADE TREES.

In my inaugural address of last year I called the City Council's attention to the advisability of establishing a department to have charge of and exercise supervision over the public wires and shade trees of the city. No action was taken on that recommendation. The experience of the past year, particularly in connection with the recent severe storm, convinces me of the wisdom of my recommendation to last year's Council. The number of wires extending along and over our streets is fast multiplying, and in many instances our shade trees are being injured thereby. Once more I call the City Council's attention to this matter and earnestly urge the establishing of such a department.

DEPARTMENT OF WATER FRONT AND WATER WAYS AND NAVIGATION.

During the year 1909 on my suggestion, the office of Commissioner of Water Front, Water Ways and Navigation of the City of Quincy was established, and much good has already been accomplished.

Our city is being kept to the front in the matter of Waterway and Harbor improvements. The United States government is spending one million dollars annually deepening and improving Boston harbor as a terminal, and it is also spending two thousand dollars a month in field work on a survey for a canal from Taunton to Boston. The office work in connection with the survey will be finished and a report made as to the most feasible route next fall. I feel strongly that if a favorable report is made, all our water frontage is bound to develop commercially, and our industries prosper as never before, as this Atlantic Deeper Waterway project must help all the coast south of Boston.

I feel the city is to be congratulated in having secured

Mayor Shea and President Hobbs were unusually prompt in making their appointments. It was not expected that the Mayor would make any important changes, but he had a few vacancies to fill. The City Council will have new chairmen of some of its standing committees. The Committee on Licenses has several new members and its work will be watched carefully.

The inaugural address of Mayor Shea was one of the most progressive in the history of the city. If everything recommended were to be accomplished in one year, a debt would be created which would be too great a burden, but his honor does well to look ahead and plan for the future. It must be admitted that Quincy is growing very rapidly, and there are some things that cannot longer be delayed; and development should be along well defined lines. Three new schoolhouses are recommended, but if appropriations are made this year for the overflows at Montclair and Bigelow Park, there may be an opportunity another year to replace the schoolhouse at Wollaston.

As the Mayor recommends, something should be done each year in street paving and permanent sidewalks. It is doubtful if much can be accomplished in widening the thoroughfares of the city although the Mayor points out places where it should be done. Perhaps smaller appropriations will be needed this year for sewer and water extensions, although the Mayor recommends a sewerage system for Houghs Neck.

The Mayor devotes considerable space to the scavenger work, and in view of the situation as presented it would seem advisable for the city to take over this work as a health measure. Perhaps there is a better way of providing more room for city officials than suggested by the Mayor. But the whole address should be carefully read by every citizen of Quincy. The Daily Ledger invites letters for publication.

Th financial statement as presented by the Mayor shows that the total debt of the city was increased $18,945. We wish it might have been reduced that much. The increases were in the Municipal debt $7,045, and in the Sewer debt $18,700, which were partly offset by decreases of $3,300 in the Street Improvement debt, $500 in Water debt, and $2,000 in Park debt. A glance over the loans authorized in 1909 will show items where $35,000 to $40,000 might have been saved or postponed. This year the maturing Municipal debt amounts to $107,375, and an effort should be made to keep the city loans of 1910 within that amount.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The newspapers continue to publish facts concerning the increase in the cost of living, something that all heads of families know all about. But the situation is to be met by a demand for an increase in wages all along the line, and if these demands are granted the railroads and other employers of labor will put up rates and prices and even things up. This chasing around a circle may be interesting to watch, but it has got to end sometime, just how, who can say? Probably the way out of the difficulty will eventually be found in an adoption of more scientific cultivation of the soil and the return of a portion of the population of the country to the working of the land and other things that go with farming. Cultivating the soil isn't easy work, but it has got to be done, and if people are to live at all a goodly number of them have got to get their living that way.—Banker and Tradesman.

In this year of grace, 1909, and in these enlightened United States it is startling to be told that less has been done to give the baby a chance to grow up into healthy maturity than has been done for the average calf. But cattle have long been recognized as national assets. They have a definite money value; so state and federal authorities have enacted and enforced laws in their behalf—laws which secure hygienic surroundings intelligent care in feeding, and abundance of fresh air and sunlight and, to a certain extent immunity from preventable disease. That a baby is worth anything in dollars and cents to a community is a new idea. It is estimated that about 2,500,000 babies were born in the United States last year, and that 375,000, or 15 per cent. of that number, died within the year. To find the value in dollars and cents of this appalling loss of human life you only have to multiply 90 by 375,000. It amounts to $3,375,000. Add to this an average of $25 apiece spent for medical care and other attention, and you pile a few more millions on the total loss. Physicians who have gone straight to the heart of the matter believe that 50 per cent, if not more, of this tremendous waste of life could be prevented. They fix the blame partly on social conditions and partly on the indifference and negligence of health officials. They declare that the problem could be solved by the registration of births and in connection with that the instructions of the mothers in the proper care of the babies, the enforcement of the regulations which prevent the contamination of the food and of the water supply and of those which secure improved housing conditions with an adequate supply of fresh air and sunlight for rish and poor alike.—Haverhill Gazette.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST

A NUISANCE.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Disseminators of news from Boston are employing methods that would indicate either that we have no rights or that they think we have none. No tradesman, pedler or huckster would be allowed to distrub the peace with such yells and outcries as the venders of a certain newspaper emit every afternoon and evening on every corner in City Square, to say nothing of the insolent boldness with which the paper is thrust in the faces of our citizens. Here, I submit, is a matter requiring the immediate attention of the police department. No plea for competition should blind the officers to an intolerable nuisance. In no other place than Quincy would the thing be tolerated one day.

Yours truly,
Citizen.

IN QUINCY CHURCHES

Christmas Music and Sunday School Concerts

Several pastors have not availed themselves of the opportunity to give publicity to their church services in this department. The Daily Ledger hopes all churches will be represented every week.

BETHANY CHURCH.

The Christmas music was given Sunday morning at Bethany church the choir being assisted by soloists and Bernard Fiedler the violinist, and was of a high order. Sunday evening at 6 o'clock a pleasing. Christmas concert was given by the Bible school the parts being taken largely by children of the primary department.

FIRST CHURCH.

The Young People's Religious Union met in the chapel of First church Sunday for what proved to be a most interesting meeting. After the usual devotional exercises, Misses Ruth, Dorothy, Ella and Minnie Packard gave a charming vocal selection, their voices blending in perfect harmony. Rev. George H. Reed of Belmont was then introduced, who spoke on "The religion of Robert Louis Stevenson." Mr. Reed told first of his character, his terrible suffering and bravery and called him a "high type of hero." He told of his early aim to be a soldier, but said that Stevenson's life proved what a hero outside of war was really was. Mr. Reed told very interestingly of Stevenson's childhood, of how the sick room became a land of fancy to the boy and his bed a boat. As he grew up he lived always with the expectation of death and so much of his work was done with "one brave push," to use Stevenson's own words. Mr. Reed told of how once Stevenson's doctor had ordered him not to speak he was obliged to sit in a dark chamber but in spite of all that he composed part of his "Child's Garden of Verse." In speaking of Stevenson's religion, Mr. Reed told of the simplicity of his sermons and prayers, his constant thankfulness, his great kindness to others. In conclusion, Mr. Reed summed up Stevenson's religion by saying it was real, simple, practical, belief in one God and above all the serving of others. The whole address was scholarly and intensely interesting and greatly appreciated by the union.

HALL PLACE M. E.

The Christmas services at the Hal Place M. E. church which were postponed from Dec. 25 on account of the storm were held Sunday. At the morning service the choir rendered special anthems "Joyous tiding" and "Heaven's melodious strains." A duet was sung by Miss Olive Grant and Miss Margaret Shirley, "Song of the angels."

Rev. Carl H. Raupach, pastor, baptized Edwin Ellis Roberts, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered by the pastor. After the sacraments the pastor took for his text part of the 22d verse of the 9th chapter of 1 Corinthians, "That I might by all means save some," speaking along evangelical lines. Notwithstanding the bad walking the services were well attended.

Sunday School was held at 12 o'clock. There were no Junior or Epworth League services.

At 7 o'clock the Sunday school rendered the Christmas concert which was to have been given last week, but which the storm prevented, the program included exercises and songs by the School, and recitations by: Ethel Nichols, Robert McCormick, Clara Olson, Ethel Newcomb, Paul Raupach, Bertha Harvey, Henry Nichols, Mona Norris, John Roberts, Gertrude Trotman, Milton Campbell, Grace Newcomb, Ardis Raupach, Clara Olson, Ethel Nichols, Lillian Williams, Ralph Newcomb, Hannah Roberts, Carl Olson, Reta Hunter, Elizabeth Williams, Addie Newcomb, Maud Nichols, Elva Bent, Frank Stanchfield, Grace Thorne and Sarah Fuller.

During the next two weeks special revival services will be held. This evening at 7.30 at M. P. Fuller's Hall place, and Joseph Nichols, Station street; Tuesday evening, at the homes of Henry Geer, Wesson avenue and John Manhire, Albertina street; Wednesday night, at the homes of H. W. Williams, Barry street and David Thomas, Bunker Hill avenue; Thursday evening at the homes of William Scott, Willard street and Joseph Francis, Centre street. Friday evening the service will be held in the vestry of the church. During the second week the meetings will be held in the church, the pastor bein g assisted by visiting ministers.

Next Sunday the annual election of officers of the Sunday school for the ensuing year will be held at the close of the Sunday school session.

On Sunday, Jan. 16, Rev. John Galbraith, District Superintendent, will hold the Fourth Quarterly Conference at 3 P. M.

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

The choir rendered the Christmas music which was to have been given a week ago: Organ prelude, "Christmas"; anthem, "The Wise Men"; response, solo, offertory selection Messiah; anthem, "And He shall reign." The pastor took for his text Jer. 6: 16, from which he spoke of the old paths of business, the old paths of the home life, the old paths of Sabbath keeping and the old paths of comfort, eternal peace, and of eternal life.

Mr. S. A. Kay had charge of the Sunday school. Miss Sadie Teed led the Junior League service, and Mrs. Wesley Wiggin led the Epworth League meeting, taking for her subject, "Making religion a business."

At 7 o'clock the pastor took for his subject, "The great need and how to meet it." Miss Edith M. Sisson of the Deaconess Training school sang the following solos: "My Father knows", "If He journey with me", "My Lord and I".

Miss Sisson will sing every evening during the week. There will be meetings every evening except Saturday at 7.45. All are invited.

The following officers have been elected for the Sunday school for the ensuing year: Superintendent, A. J. Sedgwick; assistant superintendent, F. G. Bennett; secretary, Miss Bertha Teed; treasurer, Walter Sutermeister. Everybody invited to these services. Good preaching, good music.

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S

At St. Chrysostom's church, Sunday morning, Dr. Manchester preached an inspiring sermon on "Faith." He took for is text Hebrews XI:27—"By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the King for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible." The anthem "Sing,O Heavens" by Berthold Tours with Miss Susie Louise Nichols as soloist was exceedingly well rendered by the choir.

At the evening service the rector, Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg gave his fifth talk on the life of Christ; the subject was "The temptation." Christmas hymns and music were well rendered by the choir.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

Rev. Joseph Walther preached Sunday morning from the Text James 4:14—"For what is your life?" It is even as a vapor that appeareth for a little while and it is gone. Life is a public highway; man the traveler."

We are Pilgrims and strangers on the way; citizens of a country toward which we are journeying. There are hills to climb and valleys to ascend, but God is there with us. A life is like a weaving machine; the shuttle is passing to and fro and according to our weaving so shall our life be. Life is as a battlefield; constant conflict with Satan; but our weapons are spiritual; let us put on the whole armor of God. Life as a race course. We are builders. At this point Mr. Walther gave his people as a ew Year's message these words: "Take heed how ye build." Life is short even the longest life. As one proof he gave the following: Select 100,000 healthy boys at 10 years of age. At the present rate, when the boys were 23 there would be 1,000 deceased; at 50 years 3,000 would have passed away; at 75 years, 6,000; at 85 years, 90,000; and at 93 years of age, 99,999 would have gone hence. In the short space of 10 0years all would be in their graves, but one, and that one alone in the midst of a great cemetery. A boy has one chance in ten of reaching 65 years of age.

The preacher urged the people to value every minute because life is so short; emphasizing the spiritual life especially. This is our only life and it can never be lived over again. Life is the gift of God.

Closing Mr. Walther asked three personal questions. "What is your life?" "Are you going to repeat the old year?" "Shall it be a year to glorify God."

The Sunday schol held its Christmas concert postponed from last Sunday. The way in which the children did their parts and the success of the entertainment bestows great credit on the committee who had the work in charge. Mr. Walther gave a very interesting illustrated lecture which was enjoyed by the children and older people as well.

The Christian Endeavor service was interesting and helpful. Many new resolutions were made and all were determined to live the life and do the work that will be pleasing to Christ.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The beautiful and elaborate Christmas decorations in the church are greatly admired by every one in the parish. They were done under the direction of Mrs. William H. Boynton and Mrs. William E. Rowe.

For the convenience of those attending divine service at this church there have been placed in the pews small stationary iron boxes for voluntary contributions. The money gathered from them each Sunday will be used for the running expenses of the church.

All that desire to identify themselves with our church are requested to hand their name to the pastor. New members will be voted in at the annual parish meeting, Monday, Jan. 24.

At the meeting of the Wollaston Ladies' Aid Alliance, Wednesday, Jan. 5, in the vestry, the Rev. Joseph Henry Crooker, D. D., of Roslindale, author of that valuable book "The Church of Today," which enjoys the unique honor of being published simultaneously by three denominations—the Universalist, the Trinitarian Congregational and the Unitarian Congregational, will deliver an address on "Feeding the roots of lif

At the Y. P. R. U. meeting next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, Miss Helen Brown will have charge of the devotional part and Frank E. Parlin, the former superintendent of the public schools. will speak upon "Loyalty." The public is cordially invited.

The regular meeting of the Earnest Workers Lend-a-hand society will be held tomorrow at 4 o'clock.

A number of our churchpeople attended the New Year's reception given by the American Unitarian Association and the Allied Societies at 25 Beacon street, Boston.

The first of a series of monthly vesper services was held in the Wollaston Unitarian church Sunday afternoon. Rev. Carl G. Horst preached a strong sermonette with the text "None of us liveth to himself." Taking many instances from the Bible to demonstrate this Mr. Horst continued by showing the large influence small things sometimes have. He spoke of John Bunyan and the good that his "Pilgrim Progress" had accomplished. He drew a lesson from Browning's "Pippa passes," and told how the poor peasant girl by her joyousness unknowingly cast rays of sunshine into so many people's hearts. "We are not only individuals but members of society," said Mr. Horst," and we are ever either adding to the world's health, happiness and good, or contributing to its sorrow or pain. We should use our influence to do good, not harm." A double quartet which rendered some excellent selections was composed of Frederick H. Bishop, Louis B. Weston, Chester J. Hogue, Paul R. Bennett, Miss Abbie Penley, Mrs. Frank A. Page, Miss Ernestine Litchfield and Miss Jennie C. Foster. A vocal solo by Miss Penley was also enjoyed.

BRIEFS

Miss May Williams has accepted a position as teacher in a school at New London, Conn., leaving on Sunday for that place.

The thaw of Sunday did not take off all the snow and sleighing continues. More snow was falling when the Daily Ledger went to press.

Mrs. E. C. Butler, Mrs. Edward B. Marsh and Miss Miriam Marsh attended the New Year's reception at the Unitarian building, Beacon street, Saturday afternoon.

Col. Edward Anderson gave an address on "Young Men of America" on Sunday at a young men's meeting under the auspices of the Boston Y. M. C. U.

Mr. George Michael of Montpelier, Vt., son of Mrs. William Michael of School street is visiting his mother for a few days, before he journeys South for the winter and early spring.

Remick Brothers have bought out the F. D. Fellows Company in City square. They already have the largest men's furnishing store in the city besides conducting several stores in other cities.

A divorce libel was filed at Dedham last week by Mrs. Selia Bertha Bickford of Boston, formerly of West Quincy. She charges cruel and abusive treatment and confirmed habits of intoxication against her husband George Bickford, a quarryman of West Quincy. She asks for a retention of her maiden name, Selia B. Cook. The couple were married in Plymouth, N. H., in 1900, and moved to West Quincy.

Miss Jessie Alexander Smith, daughter of Mrs. Minute Smith and Mr. Percy H. Thorne, chief engineer of the steamship Henry M. Whitney, were united in marriage Friday evening at the home of the bride at 53 Scammell street. The bride was unRev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy officiating. attended and the ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate friends. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne left later in the evening for a southern trip, returning from which they will make their home in Dorchester.

THE CITY SLANDERED

Mayor Shea an Unwilling Tool of American

One seldom sees Mayor Shea excited, but he was certainly hot on Sunday when he read the American, and the statements attributed to him. He wishes the Daily Ledger to state emphatically that he made no such statements, particularly that the city had been controlled for years previous to his election by a corrupt ring, and that the Ledger was controlled by said ring. It would not do to print all Mayor Shea did state when he called at the Daily Ledger office today, but it was plain that he has very little use for the Boston paper. He regards the article as a slander upon the city and wants to deny all connection with its publication.

Members of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution are extending sympathy to Mrs. William Porter of Randolph, treasurer of the chapter for several years, whose mother passed away on Saturday. Funeral services are to be held on Tuesday.

Adjourned at 1.18 until Jan. 10.

HENRY O. FAIRBANKS.

Who was elected to succeed himself as City Auditor, has been connected with the city government as Councilman, Mayor and Auditor almost from the first. He was born in Boston, June 21, 1852; removing to Quincy in 1875, where he has since resided. His first public office was as councilman from Ward Five in the first City Council serving on various committees. Re-elected in 1889 he was elected as president of the City Council of 1890. In the fall of that year he became a candidate for Mayor and was elected, and was reelected in 1891 and 1892. Retiring from the office of Mayor he followed the business of a commission flour business for several years and later took up the business of insurance and accounting. When George A. Sidelinger retired from the office of city auditor in 1906 he was elected to the position of city auditor which he has since filled.

He is a past master of Rural lodge of Masons, and is also a member of the Knights of Honor, Elks and other organizations.

HARRY W. TIRRELL.

In point of service at City Hall none exceed that of Harry W. Tirrell, the genial City Messenger. He was the gentleman selected as the first city Messenger of the city in 1889 and has been reelected without opposition every year since that time. He is a son of the late Quincy Tirrell, and was born and has always made his home in Quincy. Receiving his education in the public schools of the town he entered the employ of Tirrell & Sons carriage manufacturers, where he remained for some time. He then in company with his brother opened a store for the sale of gentlemen's furnishing goods.

When Quincy became a city he was a candidate for the office of City Messenger and janitor of City Hall, to which he was elected. He is an active member of the City Messengers Club of the State, and has held several offices in the organization.

GEORGE T. MAGEE

Who was reelected as Clerk of the Council and Clerk of Committees, is too well known to the readers of the Daily Ledger to need any formal introduction. Although born in Hingham, Aug. 9, 1860, he has spent the greater part of his life in Quincy. Coming to Quincy at an early age he received his education at the private school of Miss Saville on Chestnut street and at the public schools, being one of the pupils of Miss Julia E. Underwood. In 1873 he removed to Hingham where he remained until 1876, when he returned to Quincy. Shortly after he entered the employ of the Telephone Dispatch Co., now the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., by whom he was employed as chief operator in the express department for five years.

His newspaper experience dates from 1887 when he went to Weymouth as local reporter for the Weymouth Gazette. When that paper was sold to a syndicate in 1890 he returned to Quincy and accepted a position on the Quincy Daily Ledger with whom he has since been employed. Early in 1891 he was assigned to cover the meetings of the City Council and during all the years intervening there have been very few of the meetings of that body at which he was not present.

During the illness of Christopher A. Spear, the Clerk of the Council in April 1905, he served as clerk protem and upon the death of Mr. Spear in March of the same year he was elected to fill the vacancy, and has been reelected every year since that time.

Mr. Magee is a member of Wollaston Masonic lodge, Quincy lodge of Elks, the Quincy Yacht club, Granite City club and of the Knocker's dining club.

GEAR WORKS CELEBRATION

Over Rebuilding of Plant Destroyed by Fire

Poland's hall was the scene of a very enjoyable time Saturday evening when the employees of the Boston Gear Works held a reunion and dance to celebrate the opening of their new shop which is nearly completed; it takes the place of the old one which was burned five weeks ago.

The entertainment was in charge of H. A. Burgess, who obtained talent from out of town. Piper and Stowers, two comedians, kept every one merry with their witty expressions. Speeches were made by many connected with the works. The flag which was in the office all through the fire was unfurled in one corner of the hall.

After the entertainment a buffet lunch of sandwiches, coffee ice cream and cake was served by the young ladies. Music was furnished by Holman's orchestra.

Much credit is due Mr. Burgess for the way he has conducted his business since the disastrous fire. He has kept all employees at work full time and under his supervision a new building has been built, in five weeks which rivals the old one.

BY BLOOD POISONING

Well Known Granite Manufacturer Passes Away

Patrick Maguire, the well known granite manufacturer at East Milton died Sunday at the Boothbay hospital, Boston, of blood poisoning, aged 43 years. Recently Mr. Maguire received a bad cut on his finger from a piece of broken eye glass. The glass was in his vest pocket, and reaching in to get it, he cut his thumb. Nothing serious was thought of it until a few days later when it began to swell. The swelling spread rapidly and soon the poison had spread all over the body. He was taken to the hospital but despite the best medical treatment be continued to fail.

Ms. Maguire was born in Ireland, coming to America when a young man. After learning the granite trade he started in busines for himself in East Milton with the late James O'Heron. The firm had a large and modern plant, and built many handsome memorials, the latest of which was the massive Pilgrim monument at Provincetown, not yet dedicated. He leaves a widow and several small children. The funeral will be held Tuesday from St. Gregory's church Milton.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

AGRICULTURE IN ITS INFANCY

Opportunities For American Farming Never Greater

WHITNEY ON PRICES OF FOOD

Chief of Bureau of Soils Declares That Continual Advance Is Due to Increased Consumption and Variety of Diet Demanded—Summer Products Now Within Reach of the Masses In Midwinter at Moderate Prices

Washington, Jan. 3.—Professor Milton Whitney, chief of the bureau of soils of the department of agriculture, has added his voice to the general chorus of explanation as to why the price of food continually advances and never recedes. His is the explanation of the scientist who is watching the development of the producing capacity of our farm lands, the increase in the volume as well as the value of our products.

Professor Whitney inclines to ascribe the unremitting advance to the fact that as Americans grow richer in material wealth, such as incomes from capital and from the results of labor in its various forms, they are constantly increasing the amount they eat, the variety of their diet and the quality of food which they demand. Whitney said:

"The secretary of agriculture has for years been calling attention to the increase in the amount and value of our crops. Why the increased cost, if productivity has more than kept pace with the per capita growth? Obviously because of the increased demand per capita. The amount we consume is in some sense proportional to the variety of our foods and our ability to purchase.

We are as a nation very rich; wages are high, and we can afford variety, and we all enjoy far greater variety than we did fifty years ago. The markets in our cities, large and small, already have in December spring and summer vegetables, fruits and meats at prices within the reach of the masses of our people.

"We have tempting varieties of breakfast foods and other preparations made of wheat and corn. This variety tends to increase consumption. We eat more per capita than we used to. If the people can afford it, why not?

"The present conditions of soil productivity, the falling off of our exports, and the high price of food stuffs, if taken together with the general prosperity, do not, to my mind, indicate danger of starvation, even if we were compelled at some future time to tone down the high living we are at present enjoying.

"It does show that our farmers are engaged in a winning and a growing occupation with a large and growing demand for the things they produce.

"Agriculture in this country is in its infancy, and we have hardly more than cleared the ground and got the fences up. When we settle down to the real business of farming, and get a thorough knowledge of the soil of each field, as the people of the longer settled countries of Europe have done, we shall have fewer failures to pull down our average of productivity.

"There never have been greater opportunities offered for American farming. In the east and south especially are cheap productive soils awaiting resettlement and reoccupation, with ever increasing variety of products.

"We should apply ourselves in earnest and with determination to get the best out of them by exercising intelligent control of these valuable assets. We should, furthermore, do this by force of intellect or foresight, rather than by force of necessity."

WITHIN HUNDRED DAYS

Edward Weston Plans to Walk From Los Angeles to New York

New York, Jan. 3.—Edward P. Weston, the veteran pedestrian, announced here that he will make one more transcontinental walk and that he will get from ocean to ocean this time within 100 days.

Weston will start from Los Angeles at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Feb. 1 and will be due in New York on May 28. His tramp from New York to San Francisco early last summer took him 105 days.

No Prospect For Clemency

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—The conviction of Nicholas Tchaikovsky and Catherine Bretchkovsky at their coming joint trial for inciting the assassination of the czar and an armed revolt of the Russian peasantry is regarded as an absolute certainty.

Nicaraguans Welcome Marines

Granada, Nic., Jan. 3.—There was a spontaneous demonstration by the citizens of Granada in favor of the United States on the occasion of a visit, in their private capacity, of Captains Gulick, Gilson and Little of the marine corps from the cruiser Buffalo.

Doctors' Income Is Cut

New York, Jan. 3.—American Medicine declares that there has been a further reduction in the income of physicians until New York doctors are at present averaging only $1200 a year, while the average throughout the whole country is less than $600.

MORE TROUBLE IN LYNN

It May Result In Reopening of War Between Shoe Workers' Unions

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 3.—An outbreak of the war between the United Shoe Workers of America and the Boot and Shoe Workers' union is forecasted, those familiar with the situation say, by a strike order issued Sunday by the joint council of the United Shoe Workers.

The council ordered the lasters, lasting machine operators, McKay stitchers and levelers at the factory of the A. M. Creighton Shoe company here to join the packers, treers and ironers now on strike at the same factory. In all about 400 operatives will be affected.

The strike started last week over dissatisfaction of operatives, who resented the "docking" system applied to them.

NEARING CENTURY MARK

Young Old Fellow Moves West to Grow Up With the Country

Seattle, Jan. 3.—One of the late arrivals at the Palace hotel is P. S. Morrison, aged 96, whose home was Powell, Wyo., but who, having taken a look over Seattle, has concluded to settle down here, and, as he puts it, "grow up with the country." He was in the Mexican war and served throughout the Civil war.

Morrison carries a cane, "not because I need it," he said, "but because Billy Bryan gave it to me in Lincoln, Neb., when I was visiting there. Bryan said it was part of a tree that grew at the Hermitage, where President Jackson died."

MURDERED MOTHER FOR REMARRYING

Son Objected to Stepfather With a Bad Record

New York, Jan. 3.—Acknowledging that he shot and killed his mother, Mrs. Catherine De Blazio, Edward Deperino was held without bail on the charge of murder.

"Yes, I shot my mother," he said; "but I was driven to desperation by her conduct. I tried to have her live down the past for the sake of us children, but she wouldn't do it."

Mrs. De Blazio's first husband disappeared after some trouble he had in a saloon he owned. It is said that he is still alive and living in Italy. Afterward Mrs. Deperino married George De Blazio, much against the children's wishes.

De Blazio was sent to prison for assault and for being implicated in the blowing up of a house with a bomb. He served twenty-two months. Young Deperino had tried to get his mother to give up her second husband, but when the man returned to their home he was warmly welcomed by Mrs. De Blazio. Her son became greatly incensed and the killing is said to be the result.

GLOVE MAY FURNISH CLUE

Dead Man Bound Hand and Foot to a Chair In His Loft

New York, Jan. 3.—Morris Nathanson, a well-to-do real estate holder and clothing manufacturer, was found dead in the loft of his factory, bound hand foot to a chair with half-inch rope.

He had been dead for hours and the big loft was filled with escaping gas from a broken pipe just above his head. There were no marks of violence on the body.

On a sample table was a woman's fur-lined kid glove, torn and partly turned inside out. The safe was locked. Near it lay Nathanson's hat and above it the gas lamp had been broken.

Nathanson, so far as is known, had no reason to commit suicide. He was 49 years old and in the best of health and spirits. His business was solvent, he had ample outside resources, and he lived happily with his wife and daughter. Two sons are in business at Fayetteville, Tenn.

Puzzled, the police detained Gold, the partner. Before the coroner, Gold was so frank in his statements that he was released in $1000 bail.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK

Crew Escape, but Twelve Who Return to Get Money Are Drowned

London, Jan. 3.—British steamers Ayrshire and Arcadian collided in a fog in the Irish channel. The Arcadian sank in five minutes. All of her crew scrambled aboard the Ayrshire, but twelve Lascars returned to get their money and were drowned.

The Ayrshire had 200 passengers aboard. She was seriously damaged, but tugs succeeded in towing her to Holyhead.

Chance to Die at Cut Rates

Baltimore, Jan. 3.—The funeral directors' trust and the independent undertakers are waging a gruesome war in Baltimore. As a result there is a liberal pictoral display of coffins all over the city, the illustrations of satin-lined coffins being accompanied with such legends as "Try my $75 funerals. You will like them."

Kingston Again Shaken

Kingston, Jam., Jan. 3.—Two earth tremors were recorded here. They were of slight intensity and not sufficient to cause damage or alarm.

FULL TEXT OF MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Crane for the office of commissioner. Mr. Crane's thorough familiarity with the subject will make his services of value to the city.

The matter of establishing public landings in Quincy should engage our early attention. I have requested the commissioner to give careful consideration to this subject, and I will at an early date lay before you the results of his investigation and study of the matter.

NO LICENSE.

Our city has again declared in no uncertain voice in favor of no-license. Last year the Council passed 22 licenses authorizing the transportation by express concerns of intoxicating liquor into Quincy. Two of them were revoked and one not issued, making 19 licenses in operation the greater part of the year. The police have been vigilant in the enforcement of the liquor laws the past year, and during the coming year I shall insist upon a strict enforcement, not only of the liquor laws but of all the laws for the protection of our citizens.

GRADE CROSSINGS.

The matter of the abolition of the grade crossings at Saville and Water streets is still pending before the Commissioners. The city has always maintained and will continue to urge upon the Commissioners that the only manner in which these grade crossings can be abolished, and the rights of all parties interested fully protected, and substantial justice rendered to each, will be by having the tracks of the railroad company materially depressed and an overhead bridge, for public foot and vehicle travel erected at each crossing. We are hopeful of a report from the Commissioners in the early spring.

WATER DEPARTMENT.

During the past year mains have been laid to Squantum of sufficient capacity to provide for the needs of that section of the city for the next twenty or twenty-five years. Permanent mains have also been laid to Rock Island. The pipes in several streets have been replaced with larger ones, and better service no doubt will be the result. Forty-two hydrants were set, making a total of 757 hydrants in service at the present time. Four hundred and eleven new services were put in making a total of 6,814, about 3,600 of these are unmetered. I believe a substantial portion of them should be metered during this year.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The scavenger work as it is being done at present is most unsatisfactory. The work is done by contract, but on account of the large number of sewer connections which have done away with vaults and cesspools among the better class of buildings, it is most difficult to collect payment for the work. The City Scavenger will not clean vaults and cesspools unless—as a rule—paid in advance. This causes much delay and annoyance, as well as an unsanitary condition. There is not enough work at present to keep three teams at work all the year, but in the spring and summer months the work piles up. Therefore the contractor does not keep his teams in commission all the year and the work cannot be done without great delay at such times. Where the contractor is not protected by the city for his pay it does not seem as if he can be forced to clean vaults and cesspools in a case where he has not been paid for past work. Our present contractor claims that there is not enough money in the work to enable him to renew his contract. The prices now charged are unjust.

I suggest that the city take up this work itself and combine it with the collecting of ashes. If the city does the work it would be well to have the City Council frame an ordinance ordering all cesspools and vaults to be cleaned at least once each year, and as many more times as in the opinion of the Board of Health they become a nuisance and dangerous to the public health. All bills due the city for doing such work to be a lien on the property where the fixtures are located and all money due the city for said work to be paid to the City Treasurer. The bills rendered to the City Treasurer by the Board of Health for scavenger work to be collected by him. In the winter months one team can be kept in commission all the time thus preventing the work all coming in at one time in the spring of the year. The horses used on ashes can be used in the summer on scavenger work and garbage work. In this way the work would be self supporting and done entirely satisfactorily. The outfit would consist of one double team and two single teams. The board have two single teams at the present time, one on ashes and one on garbage. By having five more horses it seems as if the garbage, ashes and scavenger work could be done with a large saving to the city. The city can buy the tank wagon that the City Scavenger now owns, together with his two vault wagons at a reasonable figure, thus the expense for initial outlay would be chiefly in buying the horses.

The cost of caring for the tuberculosis patients of the city is fast assuming serious proportions, and it will soon be necesary for the city to provide a suitable place to care for these patients. At the present time the Anti-Tuberculosis Society is attempting to establish a camp in which such patients will be cared for. This is a most praiseworthy work, and the efforts of this society should meet with the approval of our citizens. Any appeal by it for funds for the purpose of carrying on this work should receive prompt and generous response.

CITY HALL.

Some of the city departments have outgrown the accommodations provided for them in the City Hall. The State law requires that the city records shall be kept in a fireproof room or vault. The State authorities have repeatedly called attention to our omission in this respect, and have recently commanded the city to comply with this law. The city at present is not in a position to comply with this law. In order to meet this condition of affairs the city must in addition to building a fireproof vault or room, either hire accommodations for some of its administrative offices outside of the City Hall or enlarge the present building. I believe it wiser for the city to pursue the latter course. The city should acquire the Henry M. Faxon property, lying between City Hall and property of the New Haven Railroad, and an addition should be erected on the westerly end of the present City Hall building. I recommend that the Council take appropriate action in this matter.

Gentlemen:—I have briefly referred to some of the important matters with which your body will have to do in the coming year. Having voluntarily assumed the duties of public office we are bound to exercise our best judgment in the discharge of such duties. The Council must of necessity appropriate large sums of money. Let me impress upon you that the money belongs to the taxpayers. Every appropriation should receive your careful scrutiny, and let us at the end of the year have the satisfaction of knowing that we have done our best.

CHAPTER X.

BRAND hung up the telephone receiver with an anxious expression on his face. "Nolan must keep away from this," he muttered tensely. "Let him take a train or go to sleep or bury himself if he wants to. If Bartelmy or Dupuy gets hold of him after I've shown my hand there'll be the merry d—l to pay, and if they find him they might succeed in coaxing— I wonder if Nolan will stick; I wonder if Nolan will stick," he kept repeating over and over to himself.

The noise of voices raised in indignation broke in upon him from the outer hall at his right. "Oh, that's a chestnut," some one cried; "he's always out, always when I come."

The editor glanced around and saw Sylvester Nolan leading in his friend Powell, the poet.

"You're not out, are you, old man?" asked young Nolan of Brand. "Who's that fly duck that tried to keep me from coming in?"

"I'm sorry, Nolan; I'm very busy tonight, and you'll have to excuse me. I'm very busy."

"Brandy, old boy, I came in on business. Want to get a job for my friend Powell here. He's a poet." He dragged the wan eyed rhymester up to Brand's desk.

The editor looked Powell over.

"We don't carry poets on the payrolls," he grunted.

"But just look at this one. Powow, let Mr. Brand see your ode to the opening of the Omaha exposition. He went in the competition with this."

Powell handed the poem to Brand.

"And I see he came out with it," snorted the newspaper man.

"Yes, sir," agreed Powell faintly.

"People haven't time for poetry," commented Brand.

"That's what I've been trying to tell Powow," put in Sylvester. "He was born after his time."

"How would you like to be a reporter?" asked the editor.

Powell's eyes gleamed with a sickly color that showed that he was enthused.

"A reporter? Oh, yes, sir!" he said.

Brand took down the phone.

"Hello! Give me night city editor, please. Hello! That you? I've got a cub here named Powell. Please give him a week's trial. Report to city editor."

"Where is he, sir?" asked Powell, bewildered.

"You're a reporter now. Find out.'

"Yes, sir." He started toward the hall door.

"Over here, Powow!" cried Sylvester, leading him in the opposite direction.

Joe Dillon now added to the managing editor's troubles by again coming into the office.

"Thank you, Mr. Brand," he began. "Could you spare me a little car fare?"

Brand tossed him a quarter. "Never mind now," he said. "Say, Joe, go out with that cub tonight. It will give you something to think about, and you can show him as much in a night as he'd learn in a month alone. Mr. Dillon, allow me to present you to Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Mr. Dillon broke me into the business," said the editor to the newspaper owner's son.

"How would you like to be a reporter?"

Sylvester drew a ponderous wad of bills from his pocket and offered the top one to the old "down and outer."

"You want to handle my friend Powow with gloves," advised Sylvester. "He's just full of temperament."

The old newspaper man indignantly refused the money which young Nolan held out to him and plunged out of the office.

The poet stood a mute witness to the proceedings.

"Go after him!" commanded Brand.

"Thank you, sir," and Powell darted frightenedly after Dillon.

"Who is that old joker?" asked Sylvester of the editor.

"He was the best reporter that the Advance ever had."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Booze."

"Too bad! Well, a fellow ought to learn to control himself," remarked Sylvester pompously. "Now, Brandy, old boy, I want to ask you just one more favor tonight, in reference to a little actress friend of mine, Miss Gueneviere McKenzie."

"Oh—come—don't"—

"Run her picture in a prominent place, won't you?" Sylvester handed Brand a photo. "Miss Gueneviere McKenzie. Don't you know her? She's in the second row at the Tyroll, and it's a darn shame. I've got a libretto for her later on. Can't you help her out and get her a small part now?"

"I'm afraid that is hardly in my line."

"You'd be doing a favor to the show, for she's good enough to be a prima donna. She's been kept back by jealousy. Told me so herself. When will you have it in—tomorrow?"

"I scarcely think we can do that sort of thing in the Advance. We don't print pictures of chorus girls unless there's some good story about them—lost jewels, barred from a hotel on account of a dog, divorce or"—

Sylvester broke in relievedly, "Oh, she's been divorced!"

"Has she! When?"

"Last year."

"That's dead. Wait till her next. She doesn't go in."

"Why—why—won't you do it?" stammered the young man, who, deeply appreciating the fact that he was his father's son—yes, indeed—failed to comprehend how any employee on the Advance could refuse him anything. "She's the cutest little girl you ever saw, you old gazoot. You stick to me, and I'll give you an interest in this paper some day. Why, she was in"—

He inserted the point of the lead pencil.

"That all may be," responded Brand, rising to end the conversation, "but the Advance doesn't issue passes to the stage entrance."

Sylvester's jaw fell in his astonishment at this unexpected blow, and after a moment, after vainly endeavoring to find appropriate words for a reply, he went out of the room.

Brand was impatient because of the precious time that had been wasted. He had work to do and little time in which to do it, and it was the most important work he had ever done in his life.

He sent the office boy to bring the two reporters, Howard and Jeff. Speaking to Miss Stowe, the "central" of the Advance's private telephone system, he said: "Do not put anybody else on this wire until you hear from me, no matter how long it takes. Understand? Connect this phone with editorial room 4 and have it connected until I tell you. Now be sure about this. Understand? Again he repeated, as it concerned the success of his entire scheme. "Don't break the connection until I tell you myself."

The two reporters came in.

"Now, boys, understand what I want you to do. You've got to take, word for word, a conversation I'm going to have here. Go in room 4. You, Jeff, take the receiver."

"Yes, sir."

"And you, Howard, take the extension. Thus you will each hear what is said. Keep it glued to your best ear and take down every word you hear tonight between Judge Bartelmy and me. The judge will sit in the chair at the right of my desk. I will be in my own chair. The telephone will thus be midway between us. Whatever words he and I say will be said almost directly over the mouthpiece of the phone. Now, you see what I am going to do"—

Brand took a lead pencil from his pocket and began a proceeding which the two reporters, accustomed as they were in their business to ingenious strategy, failed at first to understand. Then the scheme dawned on them. Brand took the telephone receiver from the hook, and the metal arm immediately snapped upward, establishing the connection. Then he inserted the point of the lead pencil in the small aperture under the little metal arm or hook and deliberately broke it off. The tiny wedge thus held up the hook. Brand now hung up the receiver, and the pencil point prevented the weight of the receiver from bearing the hook down and breaking the connection. The connection was made continuous without the slightest indication that such was the case. Every word now spoken within a reasonable distance of the mouthpiece would be conveyed to the telephone and the extension telephone in editorial room 4, where Howard and Jeff were to be stationed. They had stenographers' pads with them, on which they were each to take down the conversation in shorthand.

"This phone will be open all the time that Bartelmy is here," announced Brand. "Go in there, Howard, and see if you can hear Jeff and me talking. Sit over here, Jeff." He pointed to the chair at his right. Howard went out.

"Now, Jeff, take down this and take down what you say to me," continued the editor.

Brand turned to Jeff and began to talk in a natural tone of voice.

"Jeff, you know I think the dog in the moon was seven times too slow in his journey through the paths of men, having lost 6,749,739,274,480 pounds in his auto northward. Is that your opinion?"

"No, not entirely. Hence and hereafter we complain of such a miraculous egotism of generality and solecism of peaceful garments and cold thought."

Brand struck a blow on the desk.

"On the contrary, it was unquestionable and with nasty justice, miscalled

"One can never be too careful about matters of this kind."

namby-pamby—got it?" cried the editor, bending over the mouthpiece. "Come in, Howard!"

Howard hurried into the room.

"Compare your notes, boys," instructed the managing editor.

They held the records side by side and quickly glanced over them.

"They are almost exactly the same," they exclaimed in unison.

A smile of satisfaction spread over Brand's face.

"All right. Now chase back to room 4, both of you!"

The office boy brought Brand a card. He took it, and as he glanced at it his eyes narrowed down into little sparks of light.

"He's on time," he murmured. "Very well, Durkin," he ordered, "show him in, and, Durkin, remember, don't let any one else in under any circumstances."

A half a minute later Judge Bartelmy stood in the doorway. He nodded briefly to Brand, and his eyes swept around the entire room before he stepped in. Slowly he proceeded in front of Brand's desk.

"Good evening, judge," said the editor.

"Good evening, Mr. Brand."

"Let me take your things. I'll hang them up," offered Brand. Just as Dupuy had been, Bartelmy was in evening dress. He took off his white kid gloves and put them in his pocket and then handed his hat and coat to the editor. Brand opened the door of a closet at the right hand side of the room and hung the judge's things therein. He closed the door. Bartelmy stepped to the closet, opened the door and peered sharply into its four corners, even fumbling behind his long coat, to make sure that no witness was lurking there to spy on him.

"Oh, that's the way you feel!" commented Brand. "I'll show you over the place. But you shouldn't worry."

Bartelmy coughed nervously.

"One can never be too careful about matters of this kind, Brand. I should think that you would have learned that much by this time."

"This is my first experience of this kind," said Brand.

"Of course it is," answered Bartelmy, with a tinge of sarcasm in his voice. "It always is 'the first time.' But you are assuredly very lucky indeed, Brand, to do so very well at your first try at—at"—

"Come, look over the place, and let's get through with it," put in the editor.

He crossed and locked the door through which the judge had entered. Then he led his visitor over to the door on the opposite side of the room opening into a hallway which extended to various rooms. He pointed to the room directly across the hall. "It's quite dark, you see," he said. "This is where a couple of editorial writers sit. They go home nights, lucky dogs, not being newspaper men." Bartelmy was quick enough to catch the ironical comment of the busy managing editor on the scholarly men who wrote the opinions of the paper. Brand drew the judge back into his office and locked the door behind him.

"Now we are alone, absolutely alone," commented Brand significantly. He led the way to his desk and pointed out to the judge the chair at the right hand side. Brand dropped into his own chair. "Have a seat, judge," he said.

Judge Bartelmy drew the chair indicated even closer to the managing editor's desk and seated himself in it. He leaned forward toward Brand and rested his elbow on the desk. His face was within ten or twelve inches of the telephone.

HOLY JUMPERS IN BOSTON

"Burning Bush" Church Dedicated and Services Formally Begun

Boston, Jan. 3.—The first permanent quarters of the "Holy Jumpers" in Boston were opened yesterday at the dedication services of the "Burning Bush" church, at the corner of Washington and Madison streets, with exercises by Rev. J. W. Hubbart and his wife.

With the Hubbarts came Rev. Aaron Carlson. The leaders are all from the west, on their first visit to Boston.

There will be three services daily, morning, afternoon and evening. The opening services yesterday were not crowded. While the audience sang "Whispering In My Heart," Mrs. Hubbart, on the platform, shrilled queer cries, and the two evangelists on the platform with her leaped about.

GIFTS STORED IN BASEMENT

Archbishop Discovers That They Are Valued at About $25,000

St. Louis, Jan. 3.—Archbishop Glenno, who recently celebrated his silver jubilee, learned yesterday that several boxes sent him during the celebration contained pictures valued at approximately $25,000. They had been stored unopened in the basement of the archiepiscopal residence.

The pictures, 144 in all, are copies of Tissot's Bible studies of New Testament characters, and were presented by Herman G. Luytes, a millionaire chemist. The Old Testament pictures in the same series were recently purchased by Jacob H. Schiff of New York for $32,000 and presented to the Astor library.

DANGER FROM MEAT STILL MENACES US

Diseased Animals Delivered to Uninspected Slaughter Houses

Washington, Jan. 3.—That half the meat eaten in the United States can be called uninspected and that a real and serious danger to the public exists as a result, is one of the conclusions reached by Dr. Melvin, chief of the United States bureau of animal industry, in his annual report to the secretary of agriculture.

Inefficiency of the government inspection because of its lack of authority to reach business done entirely within a state, is given as one of the causes, and Melvin points out the great need of supplementing the government inspection of meats with state and municipal inspections.

One result of the federal inspection is to cause the diversion of diseased and suspicious looking animals to the uninspected establishments, where are slaughtered for the local market, says the report.

SNEEZES OUT BUCKSHOT

War Veteran Had Pellets Fired Into Him Forty-Seven Years Ago

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 3.—Francis Roger, a Civil war veteran, after carrying three buckshot in his head for forty-seven years, ejected them from his nose in a fit of violent sneezing.

He was shot in the head at Antietam with buckshot during a charge upon the Confederate lines and severely wounded. The surgeons did not extract the pellets.

The leaden missiles have been in the front portion of his head since and have often caused terrific headaches, but physicians did not like to probe for them because they lay so close to the optic nerve. They have gradually been working themselves about, but Rogers had no idea they were to come out until they appeared

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND

British Unionists Consider That It Would Be a Standing Menace

London, Jan. 3.—The Unionist Association of Ireland has issued a manifesto to the British electors, accusing the Nationalist party of separatist designs, which is proved, the manifesto asserts, by the party's acceptance of separatist Irish-American funds, and the recent Irish tour of Condon and O'Callaghan, delegates from the United Irish league of the United States, as Redmond's guests.

The manifesto warns the British people that the granting of home rule would lead to Irish independence, involving a standing menace from a military and naval viewpoint.

TRAGEDY IN BOSTON SALOON

Bullet Grazes Bartender's Cheek After Murder Had Been Committed—Prisoner Puts Up Desperate Fight, Slashing a Policeman With Dirk Knife—Slain Man and His Wife Had Forbidden Murderer's Suit

Boston, Jan. 3.—Angry because his sweetheart's father had refused to allow him to marry the girl of his choice, Dominick Bennett, or Benedetti, 22 years old, an Italian, whose home is at Wakefield, shot and almost instantly killed Luigi Calonico, aged 55, in a liquor store in this city.

Following the shooting the murderer fired a shot directly at Amedio Denti, a bartender, who leaped over the bar and grabbed Bennett. Denti's cheek was grazed by the bullet. Bennett, finding escap ecut off, turned to a countryman and, handing him the revolver, shouted: "Turn it on me; I want to die, too."

In a few minutes after a struggle Patrolmen Byrne and Chawford rushed into the saloon and, grabbing Bennett, tried to put the twisters on him, but he fought fiercely, and in the struggle pulled out of his pocket a dirk knife with a five-inch blade, which he used on Byrne, giving him a severe wound on the right knee.

Byrne drew his short stick and gave Bennett a blow over the forehead, which caused a cut a couple of inches long. Even when the twisters were put on his right wrist he fought so hard that he drew the blood. After getting his man to the station Byrne was taken in the ambulance to the relief hospital for treatment.

For sime time, it is said, Bennett, who has been in this country for a number of years and become thoroughly Americanized, even to the point of changing his name, has been an admirer of Jennie, the 22-year-old daughter of the slain man. His suit was not looked on with favor by the parents of the girl and some time ago he was refused permission to come to the house.

Calonico was employed in the Hanover street saloon in charge of the lunch bar. Bennett went into the saloon, confronted the father of his sweetheart and demanded an explanation as to why he was refused to see Jennie, also intimating that he would marry the girl in spite of any parental objections.

In less than five minutes the argument had become so heated that Bennett pulled from his pocket a five-chamber revolver and fired one shot at Calonico. The shot went wild and crashed into a mirror over Calonico's head. Another shot rang out and the bullet hit the old man's head and he dropped to the floor. Bennett then rushed to the side of the old man and fired two more shots into his body as he lay dying in front of him.

PROBING POLICE SCANDAL

One Captain Dropped From Baltimore Force as a Starter

Baltimore, Jan. 3.—Police Captain Bernard J. Ward was dismissed from the force after a trial on charges of neglect of duty in that he failed to report promptly the existence of a disorderly house in his district and failed to include in the report finally made mention of money the women involved in the case confessed having paid to a local politician for protection.

Accusations of misconduct against other officers of the uniformed force were made by the defense at the hearing, and the board announced its intention of probing the scandal in the department to the bottom.

CUTS HIS WIFE'S THROAT

Prosperous Man Then Disappears, With Threat to Commit Suicide

Taunton, Mass., Jan. 3.—After attempting to murder his wife by cutting her throat, Enrique Silva, a prosperous resident of this city, left his home with the avowed intention of drowning himself. The police are hunting for Silva, while his wife is in a critical condition.

The couple, although married only a year, have had much domestic trouble, according to the neighbors. Silva is 45 years old and his wife is 30. They have no children.

Postal Clerk Sent to Prison

Boston, Jan. 3.—Joseph A. Lyons, formerly a postal clerk at the Essex street station, was sentenced to the federal prison at Atlanta for two years. He pleaded guilty to an indictment accusing him in several counts of the embezzlement of money from letters sent to a certain department store.

Railroad Fireman Killed

Boston, Jan. 3.—A misplaced switch caused the death of Colby D. Harmon, a fireman and injuries to two others in the Boston and Maine freight yard at the North station. An inbound freight engine that had been turned to another track crashed into an outbound locomotive.

HEBREW SCHOOL DEDICATED

Will Teach Bible and War History

With commendable interest in education and the advancement of their race in affairs generally, the Hebrews of the city have established a school at Quincy Point, on Cyril street. The dedication ceremonies were held Sunday afternoon at 3.30 having been postponed one week because of the storm.

Prof Kallen of Harvard College was expected to make the principal address, but he and Miss Kallen were unavoidably absent because of sickness. Hyman Edelstern, the president of the association, presided, and there were addresses by Rabbi Friedermann of Boston, Rabbi Julius Sandlovitz of Quincy, and several others.

It is not the intention of the Hebrews to take their children out of the public schools, but to give them additional instruction after regular school hours, and to keep them off the streets. Three classes will meet at different hours, one at 4.30 P. M., one at 5.30 and one at 6.30, each continuing one hour. The school will be in charge of Prof. M. D. Abkerivitz of Boston. About 25 will be enrolled.

About 25 will be enrolled.

The officers of the association are:
President—Hyman Edelstern.
Vice President—Samuel Castleman.
Treasurer—Joseph Levowich
Secretary—Morris Zirlstein.

The fifth man on the board of directors will be Morris Zirlstein.

Most of these men are prominent in the Synagogue on School street, and will continue with that society. Sunday services however will be held in the chapel of the new Hebrew school.

BASKET BALL.

There were two interesting contests at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night the first team losing to Reading first 46 to 23, and the Fore River Apprentices winning from Reading second 36 to 4.

The big game of the evening was rather one sided after the first half, but the work of the Reading five, which was clean cut and classy all the time, was interesting to watch. Besides having the passing game well developed, they had a great eye for the basket. The Quincy team played individually and were certainly weak where they should have been strong, that was in shooting baskets. Mundie and McKenzie played the best game for Quincy.

The Fore River in the second game simply outclassed Reading in every way. Boyle and Gisburne of Fore River played great game, Gisburne showing a good eye for shooting.

WHIST PARTY.

The Jolly Sixteen met for their annual watch party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howes Friday evening, Dec. 31. On entering, each was given a bow of colored ribbon, the lady and gentleman with ribbon matching became partners for the evening. Whist was enjoyed for an hour, each lady winning a prize. After the prizes were awarded, the president of the club presented each lady with a cabinet photograph of himself. Supper was served at 11.30, the menu including: Clam chowder, cold meats, potato salad, salmon salad, cakes, pies, fruit and coffee. Just as the clock was striking 12, each gentleman presented his partner with a handsome piece of hand-painted china. A delightful musical program ended a most enjoyable evening.

BODY CLAIMED.

The body of William Hoffman was claimed on Sunday by an uncle and nephew fom Lebanon, N. J., who made arrangements to have the body sent to that place. Mr. Hoffman dropped dead at East Milton, Dec. 17, while milking cows at the barn of Josiah Bass and since that time has been at Hall's undertaking rooms in Quincy.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Aldrich and Moritta Vallalle were fined $10 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

Sam Fuler was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for assault at Quincy.

Joceph Fitzgerald was arraigned for larceny at Quincy and was sentenced to four months in the house of correction. Sentenced suspended until July 1.

WATCH MEETING

Several Speakers at Hall Place Church

Special services were held in the Hall Place M. E. church, on the last night of the old year. At 8 o'clock the Rev George Mecklenberg of Boston University gave an interesting and instructive stereopticon lecture on "A visit to ten nations." Mr. Mecklenberg presented views taken by himself while on his European trip during the summer, of England, France, Germany, Holland, Sweden, Norway and Switzerland.

The lecture was followed by the watch meeting, opening with the thank offering service and the opening of the mite boxes. These mite boxes were distributed one hundred days ago and a cent was deposited each day, the money being brought as a special thank offering for the year. This service was in charge of the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach. Mrs. F. Badger presented the money on behalf of the committee and the people to the church, the same being accepted on behalf of the church by Robert F. Newcomb, the collector of the church for the past two years.

During this service, Prof H. Ernest Williams gave a short sketch of the life of Charles Wesley, founder of Mehodism and the writer of one of the greatest hymns "Jesus lover of my soul" which was sung by the congregation. After the thank offering prayer, Miss Hilda Francis gave a short sketch of the life of one of the two greatest American hymn writers, Ray Palmer. Dr. Palmer was the author of that great inspiring hymn, "My faith looks up to Thee," one of the best known and best loved hymns the world of hymnody has ever known.

After this service a social half hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. W. A. McCormick and Mrs. F. Badger.

The last service of the evening commenced at 11 o'clock with a season of praise and prayer. The pastor spoke briefly on the meaning of the words of the third verse of the hymn "Rescue the Perishing" after which he introduced Rev Mr. Mecklenberg as the speaker of the hour. Mr. Mecklenberg took for his text the words of the great Master, "I am the light of the world" and spoke of the influence of that Light and the effects of that Light in the life of a human being and the great good which would result from the union of those people who already had the light in their own lives and would strive to bring it into the lives of others.

The pastor closed the service with an exhortation to the people to seek the light now, at the beginning of the New Year.

As the clock struck out the last strokes of the last hour of the old year of 1909, the people bowed in silent prayer as the New Year of 1910 was ushered in.

RESCUED FROM FLAMES.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Remick, nee Christine Bumpus, and their infant son had a narrow escape from fire Friday afternoon, when the David Hall Rice mansion in Brookline where they board caught fire. That many lives were saved was due to quick work of Miss Harriet Woods, a neighbor who discovered the fire. She ran to an upper floor and gave the alarm, and carried the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Remick to a place of safety, after which she returned, and with the assistance of Patrolman Kelter assisted others in escaping. The fourteen people in the house got out in safety, although some were slightly burned and many lost personal belongings. Quincy friends of Mr. and Mrs. Remick are pleased that they came through the fire without serious results.

SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph F. Gustafson of Granite street observed their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday evening, a number of friends being present including members of the Grand Army, Mr. Gustafson being a veteran of the Civil war. Refreshments were served and a general good time enjoyed. The couple received several presents.

CAME ASHORE.

A large float target from Fort Revere and a boat supposed to belong to the schooner Davis Palmer came ashore at Adams shore on Sunday. The target was so marked that the owner was readily ascertained. There were no marks on the boat however. Another boat was seen floating about in the vicinity of Veazie rocks, but it could not be captured.

MOTORBOAT CARNIVALS.

Long List of Events Planned For Power Craft In 1910.

RACE OF A THOUSAND MILES.

Contest From Juneau, Alaska, to Seattle, Wash., Will Test Endurance of Frail Water Craft—International Events April 1 to 14—Other Races.

Judging from present indications, it looks as if motorboat enthusiasts will have a big inning in 1910. Any number of races are scheduled here and abroad. The first of these will be held on Lake Worth, Palm Beach, Fla., March 15 to 18. In April a power boat race from Philadelphia to Bermuda will be run, and the international races abroad are to start April 1 and continue until April 4.

There will be seven events for entrants in the sixth annual regatta of the Palm Beach Power Boat association, which is to be held on Lake Worth, Florida, on March 15, 16, 17 and 18. Judging from the list of events and prizes, it appears as though the club proposes to make the races more pretentious than ever. The feature event on the regatta card is the Palm Beach grand prize, worth $2,500 in gold, to the winner.

The racing committee has already made certain stipulations regarding the races. Boats that are unable to make twelve miles an hour are ineligible to compete for the prizes, and entrants for the grand prize will be disqualified unless they reach the Royal Poinciana basin on or before March 6. These are also required to show a minimum speed of twenty miles for the entire course.

When the power boat race is run from Philadelphia to Havana next April it is planned to include an auxiliary class, so that interest in the event will be increased. It is said that there will be no restricting size rules, and both power and sail may be used. A valuable cup will be awarded, provided there are three starters.

Probably one of the longest power boat races ever staged by an American motorboat club will be held next August under the auspices of the Motorboat club of Seattle. The race is from Juneau, Alaska, to Seattle, Wash., which is a distance of about a thousand miles. The course over which the race is to be contested is a very dangerous one, and it requires the most skillful navigation. A number of entries have already been received, and present indications point to the Pacific coast as being the gathering place for motorboats during the month of August in 1910.

The race will be started probably about the third week in August, giving the contestants from the south time to cruise up leisurely. Stops will be made at Ketchikam, Prince Rupert and Vancouver to report and take on gasoline if necessary. Both the United States and British governments will be asked for vessels to patrol the course. The measurement system of handicapping will be employed. Boats may take a pilot, but they must be accompanied by the owner or some other member of the association. It will probably take between four and five days to complete the course.

The seventh international motorboat meeting at Monaco, France, will be held from April 1 to 14. This event is the largest of its kind of the motorboat racing year, as it not only draws the cream of the power boats for competition, but the prizes awarded are the largest presented to winners of motorboat contests. According to the arrangements, the first two days of the meeting will be given over to exhibitions, while the racing events will not take place until April 4. The prizes to be awarded aggregate the sum of $24,000. Except where otherwise stated in the list of events, the length of the race is fifty kilometers, and any boat which competes three times without winning a prize will be guaranteed 500 francs.

The challenges for the British international cup for motorboats have been received by Walter Murray Bieling, secretary of the Motorboat Club of America. The Dixie II., owned by E. J. Schoeder, last won the cup at a speed of 27.75 nautical or thirty-two statute miles an hour. There was no race for the cup last year owing to the failure of the Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain to follow up its challenge by sending the necessary boat to race. The challenges this year come from the British Motorboat club and the Motor Yacht Club of Great Britain, both sent by cable, and the former followed by an immediate letter of confirmation.

Sheridan to Rest In Winter.

Martin Sheridan, the great all around athlete of New York, intends following his usual plan and, though competing now and then, will not do any hard training in the winter months. He says he finds he can perform a great deal better in the outdoor season by taking it easy during the indoor season.

Against Numbering Football Players.

The plan of numbering football players, it is declared, never will go on teams that have anything like a complicated attack. It would take coaches on the side lines about two plays to know what was going on.

"ANOTHER'S SHOES."

A Phrase That Had Its Origin In an Ancient Custom.

The expression "stepping into another's shoes," like many another common phrase, had its origin in an ancient custom.

The old Norse law required that a person to be adopted must step into a previously prepared shoe. This shoe was made from the skin taken from the right hind leg of a "three-winters-old bull."

The skin was flayed from above the hock, and out of this the shoe was made. The person to be adopted stepped into this shoe, taking into his arms one at a time, it is presumed, the younger sons of the man making the adoption. If there were also sons who were of age they stepped into the shoe afterward, by this sign showing their consent to the adoption.

A man in this way could adopt an illegitimate son, making him his lawful heir, but in that case the father was obliged to step into the shoe first. If there were any full grown sons, they stepped into the shoe afterward; if there were no full grown sons, then the next of kin did the stepping, and without his consent, by the way, this special adoption could not be made.

Witnesses to the ceremony in the use of the shoe were required to establish its legality.

It will be seen that this was considered an important ceremony, and since so much "shoe stepping" was done it is not strange that the expression as now used passed into common speech.—Chicago Record-Herald.

OSTRICH BATTLES.

The Great Birds, as Strong as Horses, Box With Their Feet.

Ostriches battle for supremacy with as much ferocity as stags, bulls, buffaloes and other animals. An ostrich fight is amusing, inasmuch as it amounts practically to a boxing match with the feet, wherein the combatants lightly dance around each other.

There is, however, this difference—if any human boxer could hit as hard with his hands as can an ostrich with its feet the championship would be decided by a single blow. In sparring the ostrich stands on one foot, with the other foot and the wings raised, the bill wide open and the neck distended. He strikes with the force of a trip hammer.

Sometimes on an ostrich farm a keeper will become involved in such a mixup, in which event it is not infrequently the case that the human emerges from the scrap with a broken leg, arm or head.

Under modern training an ostrich equals a horse in power and indeed can perform many of the "stunts" whereof his equine colleague is capable. In one respect, however, he excels the horse, for by the aid of its wings the ostrich can leave behind the swiftest running thoroughbred. In harness an ostrich has at Hot Springs, Ark., paced in about a horse's time.—Harper's Weekly.

His Unlucky Day.

Even the least superstitious are often struck by the misfortunes which attend some persons on certain dates. A large firm in the city has in its employ a living instance of the fact. On June 12 an employee lost his left arm by coming in contact with machinery. The accident disabled him for his then employment, and he was given that of a messenger. On another June 12 he was run over in the Strand while on an errand. Result, a broken leg. The next accident was a fall on the stairs in the firm's buildings—again June 12—the right arm broken this time. The fourth mishap on another anniversary broke three ribs. The firm took the case into consideration and issued an order that in future the employee was to take a holiday on that date, an order with which he has now complied for several years.—London Chronicle.

His Second Thought.

A politician named Blank got a place for a clerk during one of the sessions of the legislature of his state. The clerk was very grateful, says the Saturday Evening Post. At the end of the session he came around to Blank and said: "Mr. Blank, I want to tell you how much I am indebted to you for your kindness in getting me the place I have had. It meant more to me, Mr. Blank, than you may think. I thank you from the bottom of my heart. Also I want to say, Mr. Blank, that if there ever comes a time when I can do anything for you—anything at all—you are to command me. I will do anything you may ask me to do. I am at your service."

Blank thanked the man, and he started to go. As he reached the door he turned and said, "Of course, Mr. Blank, I would prefer that it should be something honorable."

"I give you my word, the next person who interrupts the proceedings," said the judge sternly, "will be expelled from the courtroom and ordered home."

"Hooray!" cried the prisoner.

Then the judge pondered.—Judge.

THAYER VICTORY.

The Thayer academy basket ball quintet defeated on Saturday a team composed of former stars at the school. The individual playing of the stars did not compare with the splendid team work of the present students, and as a result the regulars won by a score of 34 to 10. Allen and Capt. Avery played well for the winners and work of Crocker now a member of the Tech varsity team shone for the alumni.

BRIEFS

The big boys mett which was scheduled to take place Saturday at the Y. M. C. A. was postponed until next Saturday because of the fact that many of the boys were out of town during vacation time.

The annual meeting of the Quincy local of street railway employees was held Friday evening and these officers elected: President, J. C. Faircloth; vice president, Thomas Joyce; secretary, W. Coyle; treasurer, Geo. Slavin.

SENATOR HULTMAN.

The Legislature of Massachusetts for 1910 will convene Wednesday, this district being represented in the Senate by Hon. Eugene C. Hultman of Quincy, while in the House will be William R. Thomas and Louis F. R. Langelier; all three enter upon their second terms.

REPRESENTATIVE LANGELIER

The Republican caucus of the Senate will be held tonight. Hon. Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge will succeed himself as president of the senate and Henry D. Coolidge of Concord will be the caucus choice for re-election as clerk. Rev. Edward A. Horton as chaplain, Thomas F. Pedrick of Lynn as sergeant-at-arms to succeed Capt. D. T. Remington, who retires.

The republican caucus of the House will be held Wednesday morning. Joseph Walker of Brookline will be again called to the speaker's chair. James W. Kimball clerk, Rev. D. W. Waldron chaplain. The house caucus will agree with the senate in choosing Mr. Pedrick for sergeant-at-arms.

The legislature convenes at 11 o'clock on Wednesday, Senator-elect Mahoney of Holyoke, as the senior member, calls the senate to order and prayer will be offered by Bishop Beaven of Springfield. S. H. Boutwell of Andover, the senior of the house, will call the lower branch to order and Rev. Dr. Dean A. Walker of Andover will offer prayer. Committees will notify the governor that the members are ready to take the oaths of office and the governor, attended by the lieutenant governor and the council, proceeds to the respective chambers and administers the oath of office, whereupon both branches organize.

The senate and the house meet in joint convention on Thursday at 11 o'clock and about 900 invitations have been issued for the inauguration of Gov. Draper. The invited guests meet the Governor at noon and all proceed to the house chamber. The oath is administered to the Governor by the president of the state senate. Then

INAUGURATIONS ELSEWHERE

Brockton Must Enlarge Its High School Building

The inaugural address of Mayor William H. Clifford of Brockton was four columns long, one-fourth of which was devoted to the public schools. He recognizes the need of enlarging the High school building, the enrollment being 1121 and accommodations for only 834. No new school buildings are recommended. The gross debt of the city has increased from $3,135,150 to $3,180,700, and there is also a debt of $2,359,700 by special acts of the Legislature. The Mayor says, "the Water department is conducted under a commission, its finances being handled in such a manner that all debts incurred by it in the extension of water mains and other necessary purposes are paid by it from the returns accruing from its water rates. I consider it to be one of the best conducted departments in the city."

Mayor Howard of Salem said in part: "I renew the pledges made during the campaign to administer public affairs publicly. Publicity is a guarantee of honesty and secrecy is the sure mother of political corruption. In the first place, it shall be my earnest endeavor to procure for the people proper service from the various public service corporations upon which we are in large measure dependent. It cannot be denied that in the Police department literal demoralization exists and that a thorough reorganization is necessary. It is my intention, with the cooperation of the aldermen, to place at the head of this department a man of experience and character, with the reputation of a reformer and disciplinarian, who is to take hold of the administration with a firm hand and require every member of the department to do his whole duty to the city. Politics and favoritism shall have no place in the department. Insubordination, neglect, inefficiency or worse shall speedily meet the deserved punishment and efficiency and merit have full recognition and reward." In conclusion the mayor recommended the appointment of a finance commission to investigate existing forms and business conditions of the municipality and make radical changes in the charter and ordinances that shall provide for government on business and not on political lines. He favors a small, single-chamber council.

Mayor Clifford M. Brewer of Medford, in referring to the police said: I have tried through the head of the department, tried hard to correct its deficiencies, but I have not been entirely successful. I shall, however, give this department a little closer personal attention during the coming year and hope to eradicate some, if not all of the laxity and inertia."

Mayor Moore of Melrose recommends an increased appropriation for street improvements and says that it is not wise economy to neglect them. Relative to the water service he says the placing of the entire city on a metered basis has shown a saving of about $4000 the past year, while the quantity of water used has been reduced from 15,304,000 gallons to 10,506,300.

Mayor Murray of Woburn favored the replacing of the water mains. He said. "For 35 years the water system has furnished a plentiful supply for daily use, and the departmental income has not only maintained the works and paid off the original bonded indebtedness, but for the last few years has earned a surplus annually of about $25,000, which has been used for other municipal indebtedness. The factor of depreciation seems to have been overlooked. We shall be obliged to borrow money immediately with which to replace the mains weakened by long and constant use. It is estimated that such replacement will cost $350,000 and I recommend that the legislature be asked to allow the city to borrow such sums as may be necessary to relay the mains on Main street from the Common to Page place, and that the surplus earnings of the department be devoted to the same purpose."

GOVERNOR DRAPER.

Mayor Edward A. Walker of the city of Waltham in his address said that public sentiment seemed to be against granting liquor licenses to druggists and the issuance of permits to transport liquor. He said that he would soon appoint a special commission of competent men to supervise the building of a new city hall. He predicted the near possibility of the abolition of grade crossings and the building of a new public library. Mayor Walker recommended the building of at least one new schoolhouse this year; also the equipping of the board of health with suitable apparatus for testing milk and butter, as a protection to public health.

Mayor John M. Woods of Somerville suggests several changes. He said in part: "I believe it well worth the experiment to elect the mayor and aldermen for two years or more, and that the board of aldermen be reduced to seven or nine, all elected at large, and to have all matters considered in committees of the whole. There should be a new competent head of the highway department. I believe the city will not suffer if a less number of druggists' licenses are granted. No harm would come to the city if no permits were issued to expressmen to transport liquors into the city. The momentous danger lies in the lethargy of the people. At the city election forty-four and a fraction of every hundred voters said by their action:

LIEUT. GOV. FROTHINGHAM.

'We have no interest in the enforcement of law and care nothing how the money we pay in taxes is expended or who expends it.' Take no interest in the welfare of your city, and some day you may awake to find a corrupt political demagogue in the mayor's chair

ANNIVERSARY OF KNOCKERS

Judge Avery and Others Among Speakers

The third anniversary of that famous dining club known as "The Knockers," was held Monday afternoon after inauguration, at Thompson's restaurant and it need not be said that the occasion was one of pleasure to the fifteen who sat down to as good a dinner as was ever set before a man.

Mayor Shea sat at the head of the table, and at his right was Hon. Albert E. Avery, judge of the district court, while at his left hand was Francis A. Spear, the president. Few however knew of his presence, he was so quiet, and there were frequent inquiries where the president was. The members missed those moss covered stories. He was there all right, however, and at the proper time was heard from through the Overseer of the Poor, James H. Elcock, who spoke for him. All of the rest of the club were present, and one or two new members.

The dinner was served at 2.15 the menu including: Chicken broth, Scallops on toast, potato saute, celery, fruit, Vermont turkey, mashed potatoes, cranberry sauce, spaghetti, apple fritters, ice cream, cake, crackers, camembert cheese, coffee and William T. Shea cigars.

During the dinner there were the usual number of knocks floating through the air, all of the shafts being true to the mark. After cigars had been lighted Judge Avery was introduced. He paid a high compliment to Mayor Shea, who he said was a long-time friend. He spoke briefly of the good administration which the Mayor had given the city during the two years which he had been in office, and predicted the same good administration the coming year. He then spoke of the good work of the Police department under Chief Burrell and complimented him on the appearance of his officers in court and the manner in which they presented their cases.

Last but not least he spoke of the probation officers. At a meeting of some of the judges some had advocated a Sunday School superintendent as the proper person for a probation officer. He did not agree with that gentleman however. He believed that the probation officer should be a man who knew the common people and their ways. One who knew the failings of men. In Mr. Spear we have such a man, and he complimented him on the work of his department in the district court. He also had a word to say as to the efficiency of the Overseer of the Poor of the city, James H. Elcock.

Mr. Elcock speaking for the President had a good word to say of Judge Avery. He had occasion at times to consult him, and he had always found him most courteous.

Then there were a few remarks from the Chief of Police of Milton, as to the enforcement of the automobile law, and he promised the Mayor and the Spokane commissioner that he would continue to enforce the law, even if the fines under the new law did go to the state, and it would not be safe for them to go speeding through the town.

Spokane Commissioner Hearn was willing to try conclusions with the officers and had a word to say about those whom he had run up against while speeding through the country in his car. He had found them gentlemen. He should not be afraid to run his car through Milton now as the poles were all down.

Mr. Shields of Boston, the contractor for the paving of Hancock street and Brook road, said that he had many such contracts throughout the State. That the price of the Quincy job was the lowest he ever received, and that he would have done the job for no man as cheap if he had not been Mayor Shea. He was now at work on a similar contract in Boston, for which he was receiving ten cents more per yard than for the Quincy job.

At the conclusion of the speaking all arose and drank a glass of water to the success of the new administration.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

It is a dangerous thing to bend a good resolution to the breaking point.

If Mr. Roosevelt is ever elected President again, he will find his old friend Brownsville puzzle still unsolved and ready with a welcoming smile, in all human probability.

The new King of the Belgians is said to resemble strikingly the Duke of Orleans. This is unfortunate, but not necessarily fatal to his majesty's hopes, we should say.

The Washington government has very properly warned the new President, Madriz, that he will be held personally responsible for the safety of all Americans in Nicaragua outside of the territory, held by the insurgents.

The appointment of Robert E. Foy on the Board of Park Commissioners pleases those who resort to the playgrounds and parks. He is one of Quincy's most successful merchants who is interested in his employees and the public generally. Ward Three is honored by the appointment.

At last Ward Four has a representative on the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library. For years most of the members of the board have hailed from Ward One, and it is only right that the other wards should be represented. The experience of James F. Burke on the School Committee and in city affairs makes him a good man for the place.

Over twenty columns of the Daily Ledger of Monday were devoted to the inauguration of the city government of 1910. This would not have been possible with a four-page paper of 28 columns. It was the most complete report ever given of a city inauguration in Quincy, and was a good issue to send to out of town friends and former residents. It may also be prized as a souvenir number with its half tones of Mayor Shea and other city officials.

The Daily Ledger intimated that there may be a better way of providing more office room at City Hall than by enlargement as proposed by Mayor Shea in his inaugural. The Council chamber is much larger than necessary, and there is considerable waste room. Some years ago plans were prepared for offices along the Depot street side of the Council chamber, which would not be as expensive as an enlargement of City Hall and seems a feasible plan. It would be possible to put offices on both sides of the second floor, as on the first floor, and have the Council chamber on the third floor. An enlargement of City Hall would be very expensive.

The Finance Committee of the City Council, as appointed by President Hobbs, is composed entirely of members who have served one year or more; Councilman Bryant the chairman entering his eleventh year, Councilman Whiton his sixth year, Councilmen Clark and Moir their fourth year. All wards of the city are represented and also both political parties. Ward Three does not get the chairmanship of any committee, but it has two members on the Finance Committee. All the other wards secured chairmanship, while two go to Ward One, two to Ward Five and two to Ward Six.

Are you satisfied with your present position? Is it one that offers promotion as soon as you show you deserve advancement?

If you answer these questions in the negative, perhaps it is your own fault. It may be that you have not considered this before. This is a new year, your chance to turn over a new leaf and we want you right now to think how you can better yourself. A few ideas. Do more than is expected of you. Don't shirk. If you are a poor writer you can easily remedy that fault by simply writing a short time each day. "Practice makes perfect." Be pleasant. Don't enter your place of employment in the morning with a grouch. It is like a rotten apple in a barrel, bound to spread to others.

Don't be discouraged when you see others forge ahead. They may have seen their opportunity and grasped it. Remember there is no such thing as luck. You are simply what you make yourself. Brace up, go out into the world determined to conquer your foes in a peaceful way and show us before this time next year that you are on the right road to success.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Dr. Cook has maintained the reputation of the people of his country of doing the biggest things of any people on earth. Peary found the pole but Cook was the "biggest faker. He got what he was after, which was a couple hundred thousand dollars. He will need to go to the north pole to get much satisfaction out of the spending of it unless he lives "incog" the rest of his life. Cooked and faked will be synonymous terms.—Milford Cabinet.

Newton is fortunate in the possession of a body of public spirited citizens who have clubbed together and purchased a plot of ground which they have presented to the city for a public playground. It contains three and one-half acres, situated in a populous district, and well adapted to the purposes to which it will be devoted. There are 57 names of private individuals on the deed of gift, and they have set a fine example to their fellow citizens and to those of other cities. The most of them, and possibly all of them, reside in the neighborhood of the new playground, and their purchase of the property is a benefit to themselves, as well as a public benefaction. Such opportunities appear in all growing towns and cities, but usually the abutters content themselves with petitioning the government to purchase the property and benefiting them. The city is fortunate that contains "57 kinds" of citizens such as the donors of the West Newton common.—Lynn Item.

CHRIST CHURCH MEN'S CLUB.

The Men's club of the Christ church held their first meeting of the new year on Monday evening in the parish house, and the large attendance and interesting program augured well for its success of 1910. There were over half a hundred present to listen to Col. Anderson, the well known Civil war lecturer. He spoke on the part played by the frontier Indians in our Civil war.

The date of the banquet to be held by the Men's club has been changed from Wednesday, Jan. 19, to Tuesday Jan. 18. The rector also announced that the postponed union meeting for the guilds and clubs of the church would take place next Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. Rev. S. S. Drury of St. Stephen's church, Boston, will be the speaker of the evening.

HUSTLING FIRM.

Remick Bros., Quincy's leading dealers in men's outfittings have again come to the front, this time by purchasing the entire stock, store, etc., of the F. D. Fellows' Co. City Square.

This news did not cause much excitement for the purchasers are constantly springing surprises, and buyers have come to regard this progressive firm as prime movers in the movement to show Quincy people that they can do as well by trading at home as elsewhere.

That the firm will soon have one of the best sales of men's clothing in the history of the city is apparent by the way in which they are preparing the main store in Music hall block. Look for announcements of this grand mark-down sale in the near future it will pay you to wait for it.

MEMORABLE STORMS OF PAST

Review by the Observer at Blue Hill

Editors Daily Ledger:

A heavy snow storm began on Nov. 17, 1798 and lasted for three days.

The great southeast gale of Sept. 23, 1815, caused immense destruction on land and sea, and at Providence the damage exceeded $5,000,000.

In December, 1839, three storms moved up the coast, wrecked 300 vessels, drowned 150 persons, and caused a loss of $1,000,000.

On Oct. 2, 1841, a southeast gale off Cape Cod, caused a loss of 57 lives at Truro alone.

In an easterly gale of Oct. 7, 1849 a bark went ashore near Minot's Light and 143 souls perished.

On April 16, 1851, a furious northeast gale destroyed Minot's Light. (Then standing upon iron supports.)

On Jan. 17, 1867, a heavy snow storm raged and the snow averaged five feet deep in Dorchester. Many lives were lost in the drifts.

A brief but violent southeast gale raged on Sept. 8, 1868. There was a great snow storm on Jan. 9, 1886, also the "March Blizzard" of 1888, and the snow storm of Feb. 1, 1898, all of which were very severe.

The Boston Herald reports, in the great storm of Nov. 26, 27, 1898, that 141 vessels were wrecked on the New England coast, and from these vessels 280 persons were drowned. besides the 175 on the Portland, all of whom were lost. The great energy of this latter storm was caused by the junction of a storm from the Gulf of Mexico and one from the Great Lakes which occurred off the Massachusetts coast. The wind blew on Blue Hill at rate of 72 miles per hour, as usually reckoned, and then the cups were blown off the Anemometer. Seventeen inches of snow fell. Between 8. P. M. of Nov. 26 and 2 A. M. of the 27th, 10 inches of snow fell, or 1 7-10 inches per hour. The great feature of the November gale of 1898 was the heavy fall of snow so early in the winter.

The statement is frequently made that the "climate is changing." If so, the change could not possibly be enough to be noted since America was discovered. Nature's changes are too gradual to be recorded except by centuries. The seasons vary much in their routine and this appears to be permanent for a while; then comes the swing back to the average. I have seen it stated in old records that one winter about a century ago no snow fell, except a few flurries of no appreciable quantity. During the recent storm the ice on the wires in places weighed 3 1-2 pounds per foot. The most marked feature of the recent storm appears to be the exceedingly high tide. The next Blue Hill Bulletine will give the statistics relating to this storm, if their custom is observed in this instance.

James L. Edwards.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

At the Wollaston M. E. church Monday evening an appreciative audience listened to a sermon by the pastor from the text found in Heb. 3: 2. The pastor spoke of the great need of a spiritual awakening. He spoke of the condition of the times that called forth the prophecy, from which the text was taken. He said there is a great need of such a work today. This is shown by the religious condition of the world, by the religious condition of the church, and by the religious condition of the individual life. A true awakening in the renewal of our love to God; a renewal of our faith in God and His word; a deeper consecration to His service. The agencies to be used are God; that is, His providence and the guidance of the holy spirit, and men or the agent through whom and with whom He is to cooperate for the accomplishment of His divine purposes.

Miss Edith M. Sisson, the gospel singer from the Deaconess Training school, sang with acceptance "The Starless Crown," and "The King's Business." Rev. Herbert Cassidy will preach tonight at 7.45.

J. A. Sedgwick led the praise service and Miss Ada Stone was the pianist. Everybody is invited to these services. There will be different speakers every evening and Miss Sisson will sing every night. Come in and share in the blessing of these services.

Relative to commission government Mayor Edwin H. Moulton of Haverhill said: "The administration of city affairs is now confided to a single board of five, the Municipal Council. The old boards of aldermen and common councilmen are abolished. The council has created four general departments of city affairs, each headed by an alderman elected by the council. The mayor in addition to specifically imposed duties has exercised general superintendence over all the departments. A practical testing of this administrative method had demonstrated beyond a question that the city's business has been more quickly despatched, avenues of ill-advised and facile expenditure have been closed, daylight methods of expenditure have been followed, personal responsibility for official acts impossible of attainment under the old system has been secured, and centralization of final authority has enabled each department to keep in touch with the others."

LEDGER PRIZE AWARDED.

December was a lucky month for several Ledger newsboys but unusually so for John G. Byrne who not only won the prize for selling the most Ledgers but made good money every day on his sales. He sold 1235 Ledgers on which he made a cent each; he also carried a route of subscribers delivering over 1200 Ledgers at half a cent each so that his income from route and sales was nearly twenty dollars. His customers remembered him generously at Christmas and he won the prize of $5 in gold which gives him a good start on the New Year when he will probably make an even better record. How would you like to be the newsboy? He certainly makes a good thing out of a few hours work.

Byrne's nearest competitor was Richard Crane with 1022 sales to his credit and over 600 subscribers delivered. Crane's sales were about his usual average through the year.

Robert Staples on the Quincy Point route was third.

Boys carrying routes for agencies at Wollaston, Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, Quincy Point and at South and West Quincy all report increased demand for the Ledger and good sales.

ILLEGAL TO TAKE ORDERS.

A new Federal law which went into effect Jan. 1, has, says the Journal, caused the last of those cases which guised as "pony expresses" have purveyed liquors to certain parched people in dry New England towns, to evaporate.

The "pony express" was speedy. A man might go to an express office of this type, order liquor and fifteen minutes later have it in his possession, no matter how far the limits of license were from the place in which he put in his order.

The new law, which "pony express" lawyers have pronounced armor proof, makes it illegal for any person to take orders for liquor in a dry town and requires that all liquors be plainly labeled in such a manner as to show the contents. The fine for evasion is two years' imprisonment and $5,000 fine.

THE WEEK AT Y. M. C. A.

Many Events Planned in Boys' Department

The attractions for this week in the Boys' department of the Young Men's Christian Association are the best of the season and are certainly a good starter for the new year.

Tuesday afternoon, the regular meeting of the College club, at which important matters are to be discussed. The gymnasium class for Juniors will meet, and in the evening the Bible class supper and study for Juniors. Also a meeting of committee for the big meeting in Music hall Saturday morning.

Wednesday night is the "Big Night" of the week. All the extension clubs and Y. M. C. A. members are to be on hand at the grand assembly in Y. M. C. A. hall. "Gil" Browne, right end in Harvard football team, as the speaker; Warren G. Baker of Boston as entertainer; and refreshments make up the program for the evening. About two hundred boys are expected to be on hand to enjoy one of the best nights of the season.

Saturday morning a big mass meeting for boys is to be held in Quincy Music hall. Thomas F. Elgar of London, England, and New York city is to be the speaker. Special music. Mr. Elgar will tell of his experiences among the prisons of our country, and the chain gangs of the South.

This meeting is for every boy in Quincy over twelve years of age, and it is hoped Music hall will be packed. It is a strong attraction and is well worth any boy's time.

Sunday afternoon Don. S. Gates, a Dartmouth graduate, is the speaker, and a big meeting is looked for. This is certainly a busy week and just proves that this season is bigger, busier and better than ever.

A Question to the Women of Fashion

Why pay your money and take your chance or will you give your order on a money back proposition when you take no chance? PROPOSITIONS AT BARRE

Manufacturers and Granite Cutters Getting Together

It is believed at Barre that some progress is being made toward a settlement of the granite labor troubles although the propositions of both sides have been turned down.

The so called Quincy proposition of the cutters to the manufacturers read:

"In the pending dispute in Northfield, Vt., as a difference of opinion seems to exist about the intention of article 8 of the regulations, in reference to operation of surfacing machines, it is mutually agreed that the suspension of employment incidental to this dispute shall terminate, that the men return to work and that these machines are to be used in accordance with the provision in article 8 of the regulations, requiring equipmen with a device to remove dust.

"As a means to this end, we agree to the following regulations:

"Stones to be cut with this machine are to be bankered in the end of oblong-shaped sheds, or on the side of sheds, where the same space would be as available as in the end of sheds.

"Use of the hand-surfacer is to be accompanied by a three-cornered or other screen of sail-cloth or other suitable material, to prevent the dust from molesting fellow workmen. Screens to be not less than seven feet high and in no case to be less than three feet above surface of stone on which machine is being operated. Suction fans to be provided in part of sheds where machines are being used. Water is to be used to keep down the dust. A broom is to be used to remove it, and by-laws are to be enacted by both bodies, in each instance containing provisions whereby employer and employe are alike to be responsible for the faithful performance of these regulations.

"These, and other similar devices which may be agreed upon, are to be posted in all sheds where the hand-surfacers are to be used.

"Hand surfacers not to exceed nine pounds in weight."

MANUFACTURER'S BILL.

"In the pending dispute in Northfield, Vt., as a difference of opinion exists about the understanding of article 8, regulations, in connection with hand-surfacing machines, we hereby recommend that the suspension terminate and the tools in question be used with the following regulations, equipment and devices for the elimination of the dust inside the cutting sheds, which might otherwise arise from the use of said machines:

"Whenever possible, stones upon which the machine is to be operated shall be bankered next to partitions or sides of sheds. Water to be used wrenever possible on that part of stone which machine is cutting. At all times a broom must be used to remove the dust, per article six, regulations. Adjustable screens are to be furnished to fully protect fellow workmen from the dust and chips caused by said machine. These screens to be made of wood, or a wooden frame with canvas covering. The foregoing regulations to be immediately put into force and a copy posted in all sheds where the machine is used. The employer and employe are to be jointly responsible for the faithful enforcement of these regulations and do hereby agree that any violation of same by an employe shall be immediately investigated by the employer and rectified; also that any violation reported to the employer shall also be immediately investigated and corrected."

In order to make the above proposition more acceptable, the manufacturers' committee further offered to make the last clause of the proposition apply also to the manufacturer; to limit the weight of the tool to nine pounds and not allow it to be used to cut any surface to a greater depth than five-eighths of an inch.

ARTICLE EIGHT.

Article 8, which is referred to in each proposition, reads: "No surface-cutting machine to be working in cutting shed during working hours, unless properly equipped with suction fan or other device to remove dust. Workmen to be amply protected at all times from dust from said machine, whether in the shed or outside."

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS
PAZO OINTMENT is guaranteed to cure any case of Itching, Blind Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days or money refunded. 50c.

DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

He Was Not In the Colored Porter's Hall of Fame.

A southerner noted for the liberality of his tips stopped at a Baltimore hotel where negro porters predominated. His name was speedily known to every member of the serving fraternity and his every wish anticipated. Soon after his arrival he sent his card to a friend who made his home in the hotel, but whose temperament happened to be quite the opposite of that of his open handed caller—retiring, not given to "tipping" or any other form of sociability and who therefore lived almost unknown to those about him.

The old darky who received the card studied it for a full minute.

"'Scuse me, colonel," he said, "but I don't b'leebe nobody by dat name come here dis mawning."

"This morning!" returned the other. "Of course not! Mr. Blank has lived here for months. You know my name well enough, and I haven't been here a day. Do you mean to say you can't remember a man who has made his home here since some time last winter?"

"Scuse me, colonel, sah," began the old man deferentially, "but you must know, sah"—as if uttering the subtlest compliment—"dat dere's gemmans what can make demsels more notorious in one day, sah, dan odder gemmans does in a year, sah!"—Youth's Companion.

THE SETTING SUN.

When Vulcan Sailed It Round the Ocean So It Could Rise Again.

The ancients had some queer theories whereby they sought to explain the rising and setting of the sun. They thought the earth to be flat and were greatly puzzled to know how the same sun which plunged into the ocean at a fabulous distance in the west could reappear the next morning at an equally great distance in the east. A number of remarkable theories were advanced, and every one of them was wrong.

Mythologists of old asserted that after the sun had dipped in the western ocean at sunset (the Iberians and other ancient nations actually imagined that they could hear the hissing of the waters when the glowing globe was plunged therein) he was seized by Vulcan and placed in a golden goblet. This strange craft, with its astonishing cargo, navigated the ocean by a northerly course so as to reach the east again in time for sunrise the following morning.

Among the more sober physicists of old, as related by Aristotle, it was believed that in some manner the sun was conveyed by night across the northern regions and that darkness was due to mountains which screened off the sunbeams during the voyage.

Anticipation.

Lieutenant Shackleton tells how when in the antarctic wastes he and his companions sustained their spirits and their bodies as well when supplies had to be cut down to a minimum by dwelling upon the glorious eating they would have on returning to headquarters. The value of such mental sustenance has long been recognized by up to date commanders. There was the German officer in the war of 1870 who sustained the flagging spirits and weary legs of his men by shouting: "There is a brewery inside that town! Let us get there before anybody else!" History relates that the men did get there with remarkable speed. Equally shrewd was that Japanese commander in the Manchurian war who, seeing his men exhausted with thirst and knowing full well the wonderful properties of pickled plums, cried out, "Two miles from here there is a forest of plums." The anticipated plums went far to relieve their parched mouths.

What West Point Does For Its Cadets.

What West Point does for its cadets is precisely this: It takes its youth at the critical period of growth; it isolates them completely for nearly four years from the vicious influences that corrupt young manhood and from the atmosphere of commercialism; it provides absorbing employment for both mental and physical activities; it surrounds them with exacting responsibilities, high standards and exalted traditions of honor and integrity, and it demands a rigid accountability for every moment of their time and for every voluntary action. It offers them the inducements of an honorable career and a sufficient competence as a reward of success, and it has imperative authority for the enforcement of its conditions and restraints.—Colonel Charles W. Larned in National Magazine.

"Can I get the silver service for the fire department?" inquired a young man at the free library.

"The what?" asked the girl at the desk.

"The silver service for the fire department—the questions they ask you when you take the silver service examinations, you know."—Newark News.

REPORT ON TAXATION

Commission Is Adverse to Three-Mill Tax

The report of the special commission appointed to investigate the laws relating to taxation, which has just been made public, is of local interest outside of its great influence on the proposed important amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth.

The resolve providing for the amendment of the Constitution, the desirability of which this commission was appointed to consider, had passed the House of Representatives of 1909 without debate, and had taken one reading in the Senate, when on May 13 Senator Hultman opened the debate in opposition to the resolve. On that day, although he was the only senator speaking against it, the resolve was defeated.

This summary disposal of such an important matter created considerable agitation as a former special Commission on Taxation had recommended the amendment by implication; and the Boston Chamber of Commerce, guided by large financial interests were seeking the amendment.

The matter was finally adjusted on May 21, when Senator Hultman introduced with the consent of all parties, the resolve to provide for an investigation of the laws relative to taxation, under which resolve the commission which has just reported was appointed.

This commission, in its report, not only completely vindicates the position taken by Senator Hultman, but really only elaborates the arguments put forth by him in the Senate in opposition to the Constitutional Amendment. These were that no case had been made out by the former Taxation Commission that the 3-mill tax would be successful in Massachusetts, as it has in some other states, in producing additional revenue, but that it would, to quote the language of the report "cause economic disturbance by unsettling, values and encouraging capital to seek foreign investments. Second, that the desire to secure legislative favor in the form of reduced taxation would produce constant agitation by various interests pleading for changers in the tax laws.

The reason that Senator Hultman agreed to the compromise in the last session, by the appointment of this special Commission, was that before a Constitutional Amendment is submitted by referendum to the people it must pass the Legislature in two successive years. It will be interesting to see what fate befalls this amendment in this session of the Legislature.

FIRE ALARM WORK.

The superintendent of the fire alarm is having a hard time getting the fire alarm wires back into working order, as the wires were not only down all over the city, but many of the boxes were burnt out by the fire alarm wires becoming crossed with the wires carrying currents of heavy voltage. Up to this noon 14 boxes were in working order. The linemen are now at work on number one circuit, which takes in the fire alarm boxes in the Quincy Point district, but just when it will be in working order is hard to tell.

His Rent Flag.

On Jan. 18 every year, the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo, the Duke of Wellington is bound to present to the sovereign a small flag, which is the annual rent in "petit sargenty" by which the estate of Strathfieldsaye is held of the crown. The flag must be a miniature tricolor or eagle of the Napoleonic army, fringed with gold, with a gilded eagle on the head of the staff and the number of the year embroidered at the top corner of the flag near the eagle.

THE BABY TURTLE.

He Has to Paddle His Own Canoe From the Moment of Birth.

Just so soon as a baby turtle emerges from the egg off he scuttles down to the sea. He has no one to teach him, no one to guide him. In his curious little brain there is implanted a streak of caution based upon the fact that until a certain period in his life his armor is soft and no defense against hungry fish, and he at once seeks shelter in the tropical profusion of the gulf weed, which holds within its branching fronds an astonishing abundance of marine life. Here the young turtle feeds unmolested while his armor undergoes the hardening process.

Whatever the young sea turtle eats and wherever he eats it, facts not generally ascertained, one thing is certain—it agrees with him immensely. He leads a pleasant sort of life, basking in the tropical sun and cruising leisurely in the cool depths.

Once he has attained the weight of twenty-five pounds, which usually occurs within the first year, the turtle is free from all danger. After that no fish or mammal, however ravenous, however well armed with teeth, interferes with the turtle.

When once he has withdrawn his head from its position of outlook into the folds of his neck between the two shells intending devourers may struggle in vain to make an impression upon him.—Harper's Weekly.

LINCOLN'S LESSON.

The Way He Learned to Tell When a Thing Is Proved.

Abraham Lincoln was once asked how he acquired his wonderful logical powers and his acuteness in analysis.

Lincoln replied: "It was my terrible discouragement which did that for me. When I was a young man I went into an office to study law. I saw that a lawyer's business is largely to prove things. I said to myself, 'Lincoln, when is a thing proved?' That was a poser. What constitutes proof? Not evidence; that was not the point. There may be evidence enough, but wherein consists the proof? I groaned over the question and finally said to myself, 'Ah, Lincoln, you can't tell.' Then I thought what use is it for me to be in a law office if I can't tell when a thing is proved?

"So I gave it up and went back home. Soon after I returned to the old log cabin I fell in with a copy of Euclid. I had not the slightest notion of what Euclid was, and I thought I would find out. I therefore began at the beginning, and before spring I had gone through the old Euclid's geometry and could demonstrate every proposition in the book. Then in the spring, when I had got through with it, I said to myself one day, 'Ah, do you know when a thing is proved?' and I answered, 'Yes, sir; I do. Then you may go back to the law shop,' and I went."

Tombs of Abelard and Heloise.

Of the hundreds of thousands who make a pilgrimage to Pere Lachaise on All Saints' day few doubt the authenticity of the most famous tombs. One in particular is never questioned—that of Heloise and Abelard, the story of whose unhappy love is so grandly told by Pope. This monument is the work of Alexander Lenoin, the sculptor, and dates toward the end of the revolution. The tomb was built by Lenoin with fragments of a chapel of the convent of the Paraclete at Nogent-sur-Marne, of which Heloise was the abbess. Lenoin managed to bring some glass from the windows of the old chapel, and two medallions which adorn the tomb the sculptor purchased from a religious house in Paris. This is all that is genuine about the tomb.—London Globe.

That Headache!

"This is such a beautiful treat," said the impecunious man at the matinee where they went on her pass, "that I want to take you to dinner afterward if my headache gets better."

"Is your headache getting better?" she asked him after the second act.

"It's terrible," said he. "I can hardly see."

After the third act she again approached the subject. "How does your headache seem to be getting?" she queried solicitously.

"Worse and worse," he frowned.

When the performance was over he held his head with both hands. "My head aches so," he moaned. "I'm afraid I'll die of it."

"I knew it," said she as they walked on home.—New York Press.

Enlightened.

"Before I married," said Mr. Henpeck, "I didn't know what it meant to support a wife."

"I presume you know now."

"Yes, indeed. I looked up the word 'support' in the dictionary and discovered that one of its meanings is 'endure.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Spoiling a Poet.

Flood In Boston Causes $375,000 Damage to Property

GREAT WATER MAIN BURSTS

Accident Occurs In Heart of City and Turns Streets Into Mill Races—Stock Stored In Store Cellars Washed About—Subway and Tunnel Almost Put Out of Commission by Raging Torrent

Boston, Jan. 4.—A thirty-inch water main, just south of Eliot street on Tremont, burst with a roar that drew people to their doors in terror; turned Tremont, Eliot, Lagrange, Washington and Beach streets into mill races; for nearly two hours flooding cellars, drenched the Majestic theatre, causing it to close; threatened to swamp tunnel and subway, and discommoded all the theatre traffic in the city, early last evening.

In a wave nearly two feet high, the flood poured down Tremont street, filling the basement of the Majestic theatre, extinguishing fires, washing out dressing rooms, and making an evening performance an impossibility.

Through a grated ventilator on the sidewalk in front of the Winthrop school, 700 gallons of water a minute poured into the subway, taxing to the utmost the emergency pumps, and stalling traffic in the sub-subway for nearly half an hour.

The flood cut off the Lagrange street entrance to the Boylston station of the tunnel, and only frantic work of the station men in forming a dyke of sand and sawdust prevented the flooding of the tunnel through this entrance.

Women, marooned in doorways, were forced to wade in icy water. Surface car lines were cut off for a while until a route was arranged around the flooded district. Taxicabs and autos, venturing into the torrents, were stalled, and occupants forced to ford the streets to take refuge in doorways.

Several theatres and moving picture shows were partially flooded, although the Majestic alone was forced to close its doors.

Undermining buildings, ripping out pavements, pouring into stores, isolating two large blocks, the flood raged for about two hours, until the three cutoffs that control the main at the point of rupture were shut down. In half an hour after these were closed the flood had subsided.

The exact cause of the break has not yet been determined. Pipe layers had been connecting a supply pipe with the new Shubert theatre, the Lyric, at the corner of Seaver place. While they were at work, the main on the other side of the street burst. In connecting the pipe the big main must have been damaged.

The workmen turned to see a geyser tearing out of the sidewalk. Great lengths of sidewalk were torn up. The pressure behind the geyser forced a stream of water across the street, along the line of pipe they had laid, driving them out of their trench.

The volume of water gushing out of the sidewalk, now from a dozen holes, seemed to gather force. In a small tidal wave it swept down Tremont street toward Boylston, with a first wave nearly two feet high.

From stores and houses near the break people rushed to the sidewalk, appalled by the torrents raging through Tremont street. One woman, leaping from the door of a store, waded through the water, which was pouring up right in front of the door. She stumbled and fell into one of the holes in the sidewalk. Almost immediately she disappeared, only to be cast forth again by the terrific pressure of the stream of water. Willing hands reached out and dragged her to a dry place on the up grade side of the flood.

Almost with the first warning the wave of water filled Tremont street from curb to curb, then surged over the sidewalks, making the street from house to house a swirling torrent.

Cellar windows were carried away, and cellars filled almost to the level of the flood in the street. Fires in furnaces were extinguished, stock stored away washed about, people were driven into stores, forced to race with the rush of water to a dry place.

The damage by the flood will reach at least $375,000.

A Dismal World.

"Why are you sad, my dear? You ought to be supremely happy. Here, I've just inherited a fortune, and everything looks rosy. I can't understand why at such a time as this you should look so dismal. What is it? Have you heard bad news from home?"

"No, no; it isn't that. I'll try to throw it off. I suppose I'm foolish not to be thoroughly happy. Let us not mention the matter again."

"But I insist on knowing what it is that so depresses you. If it's anything that I can help I shall"—

"Well, if you must know, I've just heard that the Snobleighs next door are going to move away, so she'll not be here to feel jealous of me when we begin to put on style after you get your money."—Chicago Record-Herald.

BRIEFS

The tenth day of sleighing.

Almost zero weather this morning.

Another cold wave, and more snow is predicted.

Several sleigh parties were out last night.

The sun will rise earlier next week. The afternoons are already twelve minutes longer.

Additional electric street lights are burning each night the Electric Light Company having been very busy since the Christmas storm.

President Hobbs will probably name the two additional members of the License committee at the next meeting of the City Council.

The games in the Old Colony bowling league tomorrow night will be: Quincy at Braintree, Norfolk Downs at Weymouth.

Charles M. Bryant of Quincy and J. M. Cutting of Braintree will be judges at the show next week of the Boston Poultry Association.

Harold Davenport and Joel F. Sheppard, 2d., are among the prominent men who enjoy the winter sports on the pond of the Brae-Burn club at West Newton.

Another meeting of the Quincy Retail Merchants Association will be held on Thursday evening at Alpha hall to elect officers, act on report of committee on bylaws, and transact other business.

The Telephone Company improved the mild weather of Sunday and Monday and have connected up several of the lines which have been out of commission since the Christmas storm.

The next regular meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held at Protection hall in the Johnson building, at 3 P M., Thursday. The L. T. L. on the same day at 4 P. M. in same hall.

Councilman Bryant did not desire to retain his old seat and preferred to cast his lot with the new councilmen. The drawing of seats placed him directly back of Councilman Whiton, so that the two scrappers are together.

The naval orders of Jan. 3 transferred Lt. D. A. Weaver, from command Tarantula to command Salmon; Ensign C. W. Nimitz, from command Plunger to command Snapper; Ensign J. A. Hinkamp, from Octopus to command Tarantula.

The social of the employees of the Boston Gear Works last Saturday evening was such a success that it is proposed to hold similar gatherings annually or oftener. Plans are on foot for the organization of a benevolent society among the employees.

Councilmen-elect Loud, McDevitt and Woodward were not present at the inauguration ceremonies on Monday. All were out of town; Councilman Loud is in the west, Councilman McDevitt at the Cape, and Councilman Woodward in Jamaica.

Fortunate are those who reside in the section of the city where the streets are lighted by gas lights. During the past ten days when streets usually lighted by electric lights at night have been in darkness owing to the wires being down by the storm, the gas street lights have thrown out their welcome glow. This is particularly true at Houghs Neck, and on Adams street.

LUCKY IMITATION.

An Experience With the Russian Autocrat Marshal Gourko.

Marshal Gourko, the famous Russian general, was a terrible autocrat. On one occasion an impersonator of celebrated men was performing at a theater in Odessa. One evening he received a mysterious message, which read, "Study General Gourko." In Russia it is better not to inquire into matters that one does not understand, and so the artist spent an hour in privately impersonating the autocratic Russian.

Just as the evening performance was about to commence an order of arrest signed by Gourko was presented to the impersonator, and without explanation he was led through the streets to the marshal's palace and into an apartment where the terrible man was seated. "They tell me that you impersonate celebrated men," he roared. "Impersonate me!"

Giving a hasty look at Gourko, the performer turned to the mirror to "make up." It was an anxious time, for if the marshal should take exception to the representation he had unlimited power to inflict punishment. The impersonator dragged himself together and turned to the marshal a copy of his own face and overbearing manner. Gourko burst into a roar of laughter, and the dangerous moment was over.

EELS IN JAPAN.

The Restaurant Cook Catches Alive the Fish the Patron Selects.

Entering a Japanese restaurant, a guest who wishes broiled eels and rice is led to a tank of squirming fresh water eels and bidden to point out the object of his preference, says a writer in the Delineator. The cook, who stands by, selects the wriggling victim of his choice, strikes its head smartly upon a wooden block and, squatting by it, grasps the creature's neck, inserts a knife in the left side of the vertebrae and dexterously runs it down to the tail, then, rapidly applying his instrument to the other side of the backbone, repeats the process, leaving the eel split open.

GATES CLOSE UPON MORSE

Convicted Banker Starts Long Term In Atlanta Prison

PRESENTS A CALM EXTERIOR

But Agitation of Man Broken In Spirit Shows Beneath the Surface—Former Millionaire Becomes Prisoner No. 11,987 and Has Negroes and Indians For Company—Wife to Try and Secure Pardon From President

Atlanta, Jan. 4.—Charles W. Morse, the convicted banker, of New York, is now in the federal prison just outside of this city. He was ushered throught the iron gates of the place by two deputies and immediately bathed and shaved and assigned to a cell and a number.

For the next fifteen years of his life, unless he is pardoned in the meantime, he will remain here with his cell mates, for a greater part negroes and Indians, and be known not by name, but as No. 11,987.

Pale, haggard, the lines of care and despair traced on his features, but bearing up well nevertheless, Morse arrived in the custody of Deputy United States Marshals Seibling and Lincius of the staff of Marshal Henkle of New York.

"It is a life sentence," said Morse to Seibling, as he entered the prison and bade good-bye to his custodians. About the railroad station there was gathered a big crowd of the curious.

Morse was calm, but beneath the surface could be seen in flashes the agitation of a man broken. He answered the questions put to him in a straightforward manner, but his voice was husky. The note of hope and enthusiasm which never left him in his long battle to escape his sentence of fifteen years was gone. The vim that marked him when last summer he cleared away nearly $8,000,000 of his debts while out on ball for three months, was absent.

The keynote of his attitude was resignation. Morse, the ice king, the steamboat magnate, the financier whose jugglery in part brought on the panic of 1907, was a broken man. Only in his attire was there a trace of the debonnaire man of affairs. And in a short time this last remaining trace of the past was taken from him and he was clad in the garb of the condemned.

The journey to Atlanta was without especial interest. Morse was stoical all the way. He had little to say. He approached the prison coolly and was seemingly unconcerned.

Morse will enjoy several advantages in the federal prison that might have been denied him in another. He will wear a plain suit, not one of stripes. Like the other prisoners he will be allowed to smoke in his cell, have access to a library of 7000 volumes and attend frequent concerts and lectures. He will be allowed to see one visitor a week.

The prison is surrounded by a park of 321 acres, much of which is laid out in farms that the prisoners cultivate. There are 200 negroes and a number of Indians in the place. Most of the latter are there for murder. Benjamin D. Greene and John F. Gaynor, who, with former Captain Oberlin M. Carter, were convicted of gigantic frauds in the government work in the harbor of Savannah, are among the prisoners in the institution.

It is reported that Mrs. Morse will establish her home near the prison. It is also reported that she intends to start a movement to influence President Taft to pardon her husband.

ROYAL SECRETS SAFE

Noted Keeper of "Family Skeletons" Retires From Practice of Law

London, Jan. 4.—Sir George H. Lewis, the most famous solicitor of the present generation, who has been engaged in all the greatest legal cases in the past half century, has retired from practice.

Sir George knows more of the social life of Great Britain than any other man and has been called the keeper of English society's skeletons. He numbered among his clients many royal personages, but it is believed that all their secrets are safe, for he has declared that he would write no memoirs.

NO ATROCITIES IN CONGO

Belief Expressed In Statement Issued by Archbishop Ireland

St. Paul, Jan. 4.—Archbishop Ireland in a statement issued for publication says:

"As time is allowed for calm consideration of facts, the general American press changes very much for the better its tone with regard to the administration of the Congo under the late king of Belgium. There was at first the passionate outcry against barbarous cruelties committed under his regime. Now, however, the bogey of atrocities is being more or less put to rest.

"As a plain matter of fact there were no 'atrocities' in the Congo. This may not be taken as meaning that the Belgian operations on the whole, in a new and untried field of labor, were at all times free from abuses of any kind, but that the oft-proclaimed 'atrocities' took place and were the result of a general administration is entirely false."

SUFFOCATED IN SAWDUST

Young Man Buried For Second Time After Being Partially Freed

Rochester, N. H., Jan. 4.—A twenty-five-foot pile of sawdust, partly frozen, caved over upon a team in which were Dean and Earl Tufts, brothers, burying the former. He died after being buried a second time, following partial release by Earl.

Both had seen the great pile totter as they backed their team against it, but Dean did not move quickly enough.

With rapidly numbing fingers, Earl scraped for nearly half an hour at the sawdust heap, which imprisoned his brother, and had cleared his head, when he great pile again gave way. Dean was 23 years old.

DRUG APPETITE BEYOND CONTROL

Boston Man Goes to State Prison Because of Downfall

Boston, Jan. 4.—On an old case for forgery, George A. Steele, in the superior criminal court, was sentenced to the state prison for not more than seven or less than five years. Steele, who is 37 years of age, figured prominently in the circumstances leading up to the investigation of the use of morphine by inmates of the institutions at Deer island.

Steele was before the court in November to answer to a forgery charge and uttering, and Judge Wait, to give him an opportunity to overcome the opium habit, which he represented was the principal cause of his downfall, ordered him to be admitted to the hospital at Foxboro.

Steele was given an opportunity to spend Christmas at his home in Boston, and was arrested for the larceny of property at a jewelry store. He explained that he started for Foxboro when the opium habit again overcame him and under the influence of that drug he committed the larceny with which he is now charged.

Judge Wait did not regard Steele as a safe man to be at large, and therefore imposed the sentence above given.

BOSTONIAN TO BLAME

Man Arrested In Washington as a Crank Is Set at Liberty

Washington, Jan. 4.—Frank M. Tower of Boston, arrested here Saturday as having designs on the life of President Taft, was allowed his freedom Monday. The police are satisfied that he is a loyal citizen and that a mistake was made.

Tower blames his troubles to someone in Boston at present unknown, who as a joke, or out of spite, sent a letter to the Washington police, declaring Tower was a dangerous crank.

MURDER IS CHARGED

Benedetta Case Continued Until Policeman Is Able to Testify

Boston, Jan. 4.—On a charge of murder, Domenico Benedetto was held without bail in the municipal court for a hearing on Jan. 10. The continuance was asked by the government in order that Patrolman Burns, who is now in the relief hospital because of injuries received while arresting Benedetto, might testify.

The prisoner killed Luigi Colonico in a salloon in Hanover sreet Saturday evening.

DUTY HE OWES COMMUNITY

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Heads Special Grand Jury

WILL PROBE "WHITE SLAVERY"

Court Orders That Investigation Be Thorough and Promises All the Machinery of Law, as Well as Sympathy and Sentiment of Law Abiding Citizens, to Attain the Desired Results

New York, Jan. 4.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was sworn in as foreman of a grand jury, the special mission of which will be an investigation of the so-called "white slave traffic." When Judge O'Sullivan observed Rockefeller's name among those drawn for the special grand jury he immediately asked him to assume the foremanship. Rockefeller begged to be excused, pleading ill health and a stress of business matters.

"We have a very important inquiry to pursue," said O'Sullivan, "and I believe that you owe the community this duty which I have selected for you."

Mr. Rockefeller withdrew his excuse and he was sworn in as foreman and took immediate charge. He will meet with the special grand jury each week day during the month or until the body is ready to make its report to the court.

Judge O'Sullivan, in his address to the grand jury, directed that the white slave traffic be thoroughly investigated.

"It is not enough that we should await federal action or seek new legislation. We must look to the law as it is now," said the justice. "The existing law is adequate to punish specific offenses. If you find that active agents in the commission of any of these offenses have been acting under the direction of others or that others have directly or indirectly procured the commission of any offense, such persons are equally guilty with the active participants. And the fact that such other persons are not or were not at the time within the state of New York does not deprive you of jurisdiction.

"The main object which I desire you to keep in mind throughout the investigation," continued the court, "is the uncovering, not alone of isolated offenses, but of an organization, if any such exists, for a traffic in the bodies of women. The law's machinery is at your command. The wealth of this opulent city is at your call. The sympathy and sentiment of its law-abiding citizenry are with you.

"Your inquiry should not be satisfied by any half-way answer. If organized traffic in women exists in this city the law is adequate to end it and punish the persons engaged. If such traffic does not exist, your inquiry should end forever the sensational slanders against the city of New York."

A VERGATUS ARRIVES

Roosevelt Comes Across a New Animal In British East Africa

Washington, Jan. 4.—A new animal has been discovered in British East Africa by the Smithsonian African scientific expedition which, under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, has been in that region getting specimens of fauna and flora for the national museum of this city.

The new animal, the first announcement of whose discovery was made at the Smithsonian Institute Monday, is a hitherto unknown species of otocyon to which officials of the scientific organization have given the specific name of vergatus, meaning striped. It is a small carniverous mammal closely resembling a fox.

IS FRIEND OF STRIKERS

Miss Morgan Would Bar Socialist Orators From Their Meetings

New York, Jan. 4.—Miss Ann Morgan, daughter of J. P. Morgan, objects to the injection of Socialism into such meetings as the striking shirtwaist makers held at Carnegie hall.

She was at the meeting as a friend of the strikers' cause, but in a public statement she deplored the fact that some Socialistic orators were permitted to preach to the girls.

"It is very reprehensible," she said, "for Socialists to take advantage of the dire straits of these poor girls and to teach them their doctrines."

Cheers For Peary

Portland, Me., Jan. 4.—Rising in their seats and cheering lustily while the orchestra played "America," the citizens of Portland last night paid their tribute of respect and honor to Commander Peary on the occasion of his first appearance on the lecture platform in New England since the discovery of the North Pole. No reference to Dr. Cook was made.

Thinks Cook Ignorant of Situation

Copenhagen, Jan. 4.—Walter Lonsdale, Dr. Cook's secretary, announces that he has received a letter from Cook, but he declines to give the explorer's address. Lonsdale says that he will inform Cook of theuniversity's decision, of which he is convinced Cook is still ignorant.

REMAINS SINGLE TWO WEEKS

Society Woman Quickly Weds After Leaving Reno Divorce Colony

Boston, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Marie D. Frost, divorced two weeks ago at Reno, Nev., and a well-known figure in the social circles of this city and Quincy, has tired of single life and married again. This time the man is Hamilton W. Cary, a millionaire clubman and widower of New York. The ceremony was performed in New York.

Elihu B. Frost, the divorced husband, is the head of the Holland Submarine Boat company. He is a lawyer.

Cary, who succeds Frost in her affections, has also had domestic troubles. He is a relative of the Astors and has been prominent in society for years. He is fond of horse racing and is accustomed to spend much of his time at the race tracks. Having a fortune of his own he has had no definite occupation.

TOBIN ENTERS A DENIAL

Boot and Shoe Workers' Union Does Not Furnish Strike Breakers

Boston, Jan. 4.—President Tobin of the Boot and Shoe Workers' union denies an intimation contained in a dispatch from Lynn to the effect that his organization would furnish strikebreakers to take the places of those now out at the factory of the A. M. Creighton Shoe company. He said:

"We have no connection of any kind with the firm involved in this difficulty, and will not interfere. Our organization has never allowed its members to be used as strike-breakers. In a few isolated cases where individual members of our organization have accepted unfair employment, where independent organizations have had strikes, they have been fined and ordered from the factory."

WENT TO A DANCE INSTEAD OF WAKE

Girl Fatally Shot at Ball of Gang of Roughs

New York, Jan. 4.—Grace Foley, 19 years old, the daughter of Patrick Foley, at one time a wealthy ice dealer, was mortally shot in a pistol battle, supposedly between gang leaders, in Lyric hall, 725 Sixth avenue. She had been sent to a wake, but went to the ball instead.

More than 200 men and girls were sent flying down the stairways in a stampede that left many of them with fractured bones and cuts and bruises.

The affair at the Lyric was the annual ball of "The Fashions," of which "Kid" Betts is one of the leading lights. The organization is said to consist largely of the waiters and other help of tenderloin resorts.

Five men entered and began shooting and the "Fashions" returned the fire, thirty shots being discharged in all.

The police ascribe the attack by the gang to a feud between "Kid" Betts and the "Jimmy" Kelly association.

DISCARDS HER SHOES

Prima Donna Wants Pedal Extremities to Keep In Proper Shape

Pittsburg, Jan. 4.—Lydia Lipkowska, Russian prima donna with the Boston Opera company, which arrived here with 347 "arteests," startled the natives by discarding shoes and stockings and appearing on Fifth avenue with her dainty feet simply protected by numerous thongs of fur.

The prima donna, accompanied by George Baklanoff, the Russian baritone, refused to be bothered by the crowd which followed her. She explained she does not believe in ruining the shape of her feet, and therefore has decided to give up the wearing of shoes.

"IN A BAD WAY"

Many a Quincy Reader Will Feel Grateful for This Information.

When your back gives out;
Becomes lame, weak or aching;
When urinary troubles set in,
Your kidneys are "in a bad way."
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Here is local evidence to prove it:

Mrs. F. Olsen, 197 Whitwell Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "For some time my back was weak and gave me a great deal of trouble. I could not sit up in a chair for more than a few minutes at a time without having severe pains in my back. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells and at times was very nervous. I was becoming discouraged when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention. I procured a box at the Cox Drug Store and through their use received immediate relief. I did not expect to be speedily cured, as my condition was so serious, but I can say that the results could not have been more satisfactory. In a few weeks I was restored to good health. Doan's Kidney Pills certainly have my highest endorsement."

CHAPTER XI.

BARTELMY, now that he had taken the final and extremely distasteful plunge and had come to the office of the Advance, waited for Brand to make the opening remarks about the particular object of his visit.

Brand was waiting for the judge to do the same. It was the newspaper man who spoke first, after the two had seated themselves. He was anxious to get the matter over with as quickly as possible, for he well knew that, in spite of all his precautions, affairs in a newspaper office are so uncertain that an interruption of an unexpected nature might occur to ruin the entire plan.

"Mr. Dupuy was here a short time ago," he ventured.

Judge Bartelmy proceeded to explain the appearance of the lawyer lobbyist in the affair. While it was plain to Brand that the judge had sent Dupuy as a go-between so that it would be impossible to connect Bartelmy with the payment of any money as a bribe, the jurist did not propose to acknowledge that such had been his laudable purpose. He gave an entirely different reason.

"Yes, I know," he said. "He found me at the opera with my daughter. I hoped, Mr. Brand, that by allowing me to act through him you would spare me this last humiliation."

"Would it not be safer for you if no third party knew of your transaction with me?" suggested Brand.

The judge pitied the colossal ignorance of this amateur in trickery. Did not he know that in the superior spheres of crooked practices it became necessary to employ third persons on many occasions to put through matters of this sort? And he was a newspaper man of years of experience too. No, this peculiar young man would never finish supplying the judge with surprises; of that Bartelmy was positive. Perhaps it might be in order to observe at this point that, while Brand of course could not know that these thoughts were passing through his visitor's mind, he at the same time would have been ready to confess that he was going to provide several more surprises for the jurist. But there are different varieties of surprises.

"Dupuy is in my confidence," the judge pronounced with an air of finality.

"He's not in mine," responded the managing editor.

"You're mistaken in him. I know him intimately."

"Oh, the pity of it," exclaimed Brand, "that you should be intimately acquainted with such a man as Dupuy!"

Bartelmy could not restrain a sarcastic smile at the editor's sneer at Dupuy.

"Mr. Brand," he said quickly, "your moral reflections at this juncture impart a certain quaint humor to the situation."

"I am afraid that is the trouble with me. My humor is nearly always unintentional." Brand sighed as though sorry for himself.

The judge began to show signs of nervousness.

"Well, shall we get on with it?" the editor asked him.

"Yes. I must rejoin my daughter. She's waiting for me at the opera. She was very anxious that I should not come here tonight. It was curious—her persistency in the matter."

Brand drew his chair closer to the desk—closer to the telephone.

"Let us get to business," he said.

The judge went on talking about his daughter.

"She displays an unusual, I should say an extraordinary, curiosity as to my mission here," he said. "My daughter would have made a great cross examiner if she had been a man."

"We're wasting time, judge." Now it was Brand who was becoming impatient.

"Am I to understand that the payment of this sum"— Bartelmy began.

Brand raised his voice to a high pitch.

"Ten thousand dollars!" he said.

"Yes," agreed Bartelmy cautiously. "Am I to understand that it—ah—wipes out of your recollection not only the incident of which you were speaking, but also as to"— He paused.

Brand helped the would be briber to complete his sentence.

"You mean your secret interview last night with Dupuy and the attorney for the Lansing"—

The visitor raised his hand warningly at Brand's loud tones, as though to counsel caution.

"Yes, yes."

"Lansing Iron corporation?" continued Brand, bending close to the telephone.

"Yes. Will this sum, paid in hand, induce you to forget—ah—not only that incident, but also various other matters to which the Advance seems to have taken exception in the past?"

"Dupuy is in my confidence."

Brand sank back in his chair.

"You mean you want us to let up on you all around?"

"Precisely."

"Then that's understood."

"You will make a memorandum for me in writing to that effect—a receipt, so to speak?"

He pushed a pad toward the managing editor.

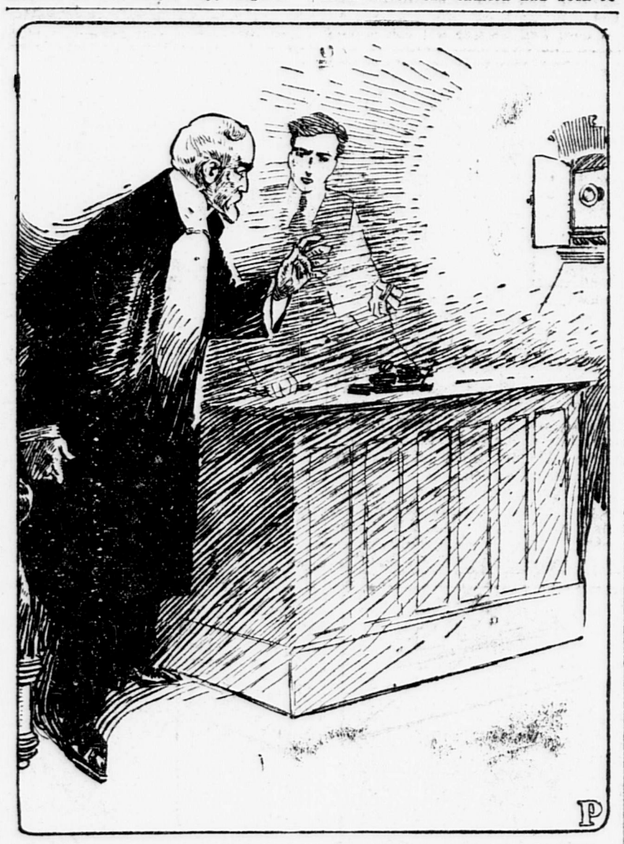
"All right—certainly," agreed Brand, taking up a pen.

The judge began to congratulate himself on the ease with which he was handling the young man.

"This is—ah—more businesslike," he said.

But Brand gave him another shock when he said:

"Yes; I'll draw it up in duplicate. Each of us will keep a copy—signed."



"IT IS A PICTURE OF YOU IN STRIPES, JUDGE BARTELMY."

"Ah—ha—ha!" The jurist leaned back and laughed. "You're a clever lad, Brand. Well, well; youth will be served!" He pushed the pad away.

Brand glanced at the clock fixed in the wall opposite him.

"It's getting late, judge," he warned.

Bartelmy reached into the inside pocket of his evening dress coat and extracted an oblong package. Slipping off a rubber band that encircled it, he unwrapped the yellow paper and laid before him on the managing editor's desk a neat stack of crisp new bank bills, all of the $500 denomination.

Bartelmy started to count the money, but he desisted and pushed the bills over toward Brand.

"Count it," he said.

"You count it."

The judge leaned forward and began the task. His head was within four or five inches of the mouthpiece of the telephone. He picked up the bills, one at a time, and as he counted them he laid them in another pile.

"Five hundred," he said—"one thousand, fifteen—two thousand, twenty-five—three thousand, thirty-five—four thousand, forty-five—five thousand. There is half of it," he remarked.

"Yes; that's $5,000." assented Brand.

"Six thousand," said the judge, continuing with his task—"seven thousand, seventy-five—eight thousand."

"Eight thousand dollars," agreed Brand.

"Nine thousand," counted the judge.

"Nine thousand dollars," said Brand.

"Ten thousand dollars," the judge counted.

"Is that correct?" he queried of the editor.

"Ten thousand dollars, correct," was the reply. "That will wipe the slate clean between us."

Brand held out his hand to take the money.

The judge picked up the pile of bills, compressed them with his hands and extended the money across the desk.

"Take it, Brand," he said.

As the false judge said these words and stood with the money in his hands and held it out to the editor a loud explosion thrilled every nerve fiber in his body. A blinding glare of light filled the room, and the air was filled with the choking gaseous fumes of the smoke of the powder used by photographers in making flashlights.

A pang of terror shot through the craven heart of the would be briber. He started back in his alarm, his eyes almost blinded by the unexpected flood of light that had subsided as quickly as it had come.

"My God! What is that?" he cried, rubbing the back of one of his hands across his eyes.

Wheeler Brand, who had risen in his place at his desk when the judge had finished counting the money, set his face into hard, unyielding lines as the judge besought him to speak, to explain. He had won. He had completely at his mercy this cold, crafty betrayer of the public trust he had sworn to hold sacred. And it was with unmistakable triumph in his voice that he gave the reply that was to be imprinted on the brain of the false judge as long as he was to live—a reply that would haunt him while awake and awake him when he slept:

The judge, realizing that he had been tricked—that he had been photographed in the very act of handing bribe money to the managing editor of the Advance—displayed rare presence of mind for a man whose complete social and professional ruin had become suddenly imminent. He rushed across the room at the point where the flash occurred, hoping to obtain hold of the camera and destroy the plate. Owing to the pall of smoke he had been unable to see just in what manner the camera had been arranged. But when he reached the side of the room there was no camera to be seen, only a round hole extending through the partition into the next room and from which the camera had been removed. He stood and gazed in dismay. He knew now that he was at the mercy of Brand and the Advance to a degree that he hardly dared to estimate.

"You count the money, judge."

He turned around and walked back to the desk. Brand was still standing in his place, looking fixedly at the judge.

Bartelmy was not beaten yet. He knew that he would not be beaten until the Advance appeared in the streets spreading forth to all the world the story of his shame.

Shaking from head to foot in his rage, he pounded the desk and cried out:

"You have gone to all your trouble for nothing. I am going direct to Mr. Nolan's house, and in less than an hour you will receive orders to kill that story—that dastardly pack of lies you want to print!"

Brand smiled calmly. He gathered the $10,000 in bills, which lay scattered on the desk where Bartelmy had thrown them when he dashed for the camera.

"I'll keep these as evidence," he said "When they have served their purpose we will return them to you, or maybe we will send them to the minority stockholders in the Lansing Iron company. That's who the money probably belongs to."

Bartelmy accepted the situation with stoical composure for the time. He saw that he would have no chance in a hand to hand struggle with the young athletic editor for possession of the money. Besides, he must see Nolan—must see him at once. That was the most important matter to which he should now attend.

He walked deliberately to the closet and secured his hat and coat. He turned the key and went out of the door leading to the outer hall.

As the judge disappeared Wheeler Brand sank heavily into his chair. He spread his arms on his desk and bowed his head between them until his cheek rested on the cool polished surface.

"Judith, Judith!" he sobbed, and his body shook uncontrolledly as he wept for the girl he loved.

$1,000,000 WILL CASE

Contestants Demand That the Pope Be Summoned as Witness

Rome, Jan. 4.—Demanding that Pope Pius himself be summoned to court as a witness, the relatives of the late Mgr. Adami brought suit to break his will, which left $1,000,000 to the pope. The relatives charge that undue influence was used to secure the bequest for the Vatican.

Mgr. Adami was one of the wealthiest prelates in the world. He died on Dec. 18, 1906, leaving the major portion of his fortune to the Vatican. In his lifetime he made many valuable presents to Pope Leo XIII and to Pope Pius.

Among his gifts to the latter was a gold pastoral cross set with brilliants, and was reputed to have cost a small fortune. He gave liberally to the church on many occasions and for many purposes.

THREW BROTHER INTO CANAL

Young Man Becomes Desperate From Lack of Employment

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 4.—Out of work and made desperate, it is said, by his inability to support his infant daughter and his 12-year-old brother, Adelard, George Marcotte, a mule spinner, 21 years old, threw the young lad, whom he cherished, into the Hamilton canal. The crew of a passing train rescued the boy.

His father and mother are both dead. Since their death he has supported his young brother.

Two years ago he married. About a year ago his wife died, leaving a that he will inform Cook of the unidaughter. Since then George Marcotte, out of his small wages, has supported his young brother and the little girl, besides sending money to a sister in Manchester.

RESOURCES OF $150,000,000

Captains of Finance In Trust Company Merger In New York

New York, Jan. 4.—J. P. Morgan, Thomas F. Ryan and Levi P. Morton have linked hands in New York in a trust company merger which unites resources of $150,000,000.

It is a triple combination, bringing the Guaranty Trust company, the Morgan Trust company and the Fifth Avenue Trust company, all of this city, under one head, with the title of Guaranty Trust company.

Directors of all three companies met Monday and informally approved the terms of the merger, which will be put in more definite form on Wednesday.

Jamaica Hotel Burned

Port Antonio, Jam., Jan. 4.—The Hotel Titchfield, one of the best known tourist resorts in the West Indies, and a favorite stopping place for Bostonians, burned to the ground. The loss is estimated at $275,000. No one was injured, the hotel not having been opened for the season. It was to have been opened on Jan. 5.

Navy Engineer Killed by Gas

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 4.—Archie B. Bacheler, a member of the engineering force of the U. S. S. Washington on the famous cruise around the world, died of gas poisoning at the home of his aunt in this city. The medical examiner refuses to discuss the case.

STEEPLE SEARCHLIGHTS.

To Be Used Instead of Chimes In a Brooklyn Church.

The Rev. Dr. James Farrar, pastor of the First Reformed church, at Seventh avenue and Carroll street, Brooklyn, recently had the lofty tower of the church equipped with four strong searchlights pointed north, east, south and west.

The lights will be flashed just previous to and during evening services, and the ringing of the chimes will be discontinued. The lights will be 200 feet above the ground and will be visible from the Narrows.

ESTIMATES ON HUB VOTE FOR MAYOR

Managers of Three Candidates Name Coming "Majorities"

Boston, Jan. 4.—The managers of the three principal candidates for mayor have given out preliminary estimates of the vote by which each one will win the election. The Fitzgerald people say that he will win by 10,000 over Storrow; the Storrow managers declare that he will beat Fitzgerald by 9000; and Hibbard's friends assert that the mayor will have 5000 more that his next competitor, Storrow.

The managers of the three candidates give Taylor less than 3000, and Taylor makes no estimate.

Nathaniel H. Taylor's name will be printed first on the ballot among mayoralty candidates, James J. Storrow's will come next, John F. Fitzgerald's third, and Mayor Hibbard's last. The positions on the ballot were drawn by lot.

A BLACK HAND OUTRAGE

Bomb Follows Grocer's Inattention to Letters Demanding Money

New York, Jan. 4.—Several persons were knocked down and shocked and a wild panic among 150 tenants was created when, in an attempt by Black Handers to blow up a Chrystle street tenement house, a quantity of dynamite was exploded under the first floor stairway. Great holes were ripped in the floor, the nearby walls were shattered and the whole building was badly shaken.

Threatening letters, demanding an aggregate of $8000, had been received recently by the grocery firm of Guiseppe Gerisco & Co., which occupied the ground floor store. Gerisco says that he paid no attention to the letters, believing some one was trying to hoax him.

LURTON TAKES HIS SEAT

Joins His Associates In Supreme Court of the United States

Washington, Jan. 4.—The new associate justice, Horace H. Lurton of Tennessee, took his seat on the bench of the supreme court of the United States at the incoming of the court Monday.

Following the reading of Lurton's commission by Clerk McKenny, the oath of office was administered by that official in the presence of a distinguished array of attorneys and members of congress. Then kissing the Bible on which the oath was taken, Lurton assumed his seat on the extreme left of the chief justice.

GIANT DINOSAUR FOUND

Important Contribution to Natural History by Discovery In Utah

Pittsburg, Jan. 4.—The director of the Carnegie museum announces the discovery in Utah by a Carnegie exploring party of the bones of three specimens of the Sauropod dinosaur.

There is every reason to believe these specimens of giant dinosaur are older than the famous diplodocus on exhibition here.

Showed How to Commit Suicide

Union, Me., Jan. 4.—Remarking: "If I were going to shoot myself, this is how I would do it," Arthur Smith, 18 years old, placed a revolver against his neck and was instantly killed when he pulled the trigger. It is not known whether the tragedy was accidental or not.

BRIEFS

The public schools reopened Monday after the Christmas holidays.

Annual meeting of Board of Trade tomorrow evening.

The Girls' club of the Memorial Congregational church will present an entertainment on Saturday night.

Many Quincy friends of James Curtain are sorry to learn that he is seriously ill at his home in Atlantic.

Prof. and Mrs. Wrigley are to entertain the senior members of Christ church choir at dinner in the real Old English style on Thursday evening.

A meeting of the Social and Benevolent society will be held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Chase have closed their cottage "Shore Den" on the Quincy shore boulevard, and are registered at Young's hotel for the remainder of the winter season.

City Treasurer Curtis will open bids Thursday for $20,000 four per cent. school bonds, for the new schoolhouse at Houghs Neck, $2,000 to be payable each year for ten years.

During the month of January Mrs. Charles Stecker of Botolph street and her little daughter Constance are to be guests of Mrs. William Parsons of Philadelphia, Pa.

Word was unofficially received at the Boston navy yard on Monday that the North Dakota, which is completed at the Fore River yard, would be officially delivered to the navy department early next month at the Boston yard.

J. L. Eddy of Needham reports the sale of his fruit and poultry farm at Needham, on the corner of Highland avenue and Webster street to B. S. and E. D. Gourd. It comprises six acres.

Special cottage prayer meetings are being held by the members of the Memorial Congregational church on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week. There are to be three meeting places to accommodate the different members throughout the ward and a large number of people should respond. The regular Friday night service will be union meeting of those held throughout the week.

COURTHOUSE PETITION

Citizens of Quincy Will Go to Legislature

A petition was in circulation among the legal fraternity this morning which will be presented to the Legislature asking for an act allowing a court house to be built in Quincy. The petition is being circulated by a committee of the Board of Trade. It is understood that the petition asks for a building for the district and probate court usages, and does not include a building large enough for superior court sessions.

SPORTING NOTES.

Teams 1 and 4 bowl in the Norfolk Downs league this evening.

At Randolph last night at basket ball Randolph A. A. defeated the Crescents of Boston 71 to 28, a total score of 99.

The Boston Chess club opens its rooms to all lovers of chess on Wednesday evenings during this month, when one of the local experts will give an exhibition of simultaneous chess plays in which all comers are invited to take a board and participate.

BRIEFS

Two services were held at the Union chapel at Houghs Neck on Sunday, Rev. Mr. McMeeken preaching both morning and evening.

Mrs. Ella Chase and her grandson, Joseph Eaton, who have been entertained by Atlantic friends since Thanksgiving, have returned to their home in Yonkers, New York.

The Potted Head club surprised Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McLennan of Trafford street Saturday evening and presented them an oak side board. Refreshments were served.

The Salvation Army held a children's service yesterday at 3 P. M. and an evening service at 8 o'clock. Other meetings are announced for this evening and Wednesday and Thursday nights; also a meeting for women at 3 P. M. Thursday. Major Christoperson is in charge.

Fooled the Town.

University students have long enjoyed a reputation as practical jokers, but there has been nothing quite so successful as the famous sultan of Zanzibar hoax of some years ago at Cambridge. One day the mayor of the town received the following wire from one Henry Lucas, Hotel Cecil, London: "The sultan of Zanzibar will arrive at Cambridge at 4:27 for a short visit. Could you arrange to show him buildings of interest and send carriage?" The mayor rose to the occasion, and in due course four dark complexioned gentlemen with turbans and voluminous trousers arrived at Cambridge. The mayor and corporation entertained them right royally, but to their chagrin they discovered a few hours later that the interesting orientals were simply a quartet of undergraduates who had played an immense practical joke upon the town.—London Spectator.

MUSEUM WHERE CARSON DIED

Daughters of American Revolution to Honor His Memory.

Work of restoring the ancient, tumbledown building at old Fort Lyons, Colo., now the United States naval sanitarium, where Kit Carson, greatest of western scouts, died, has been commenced, and within the next few months it will be turned over to the Daughters of the American Revolution of Colorado for a museum.

The restoration will bring it back to its original condition in practically every detail and give to the state one of the most historic landmarks which it possesses.

It is an old stone house, warped and weather beaten, but in such condition that it can easily be restored. It stands almost in the center of the big group of buildings at the naval sanitarium.

It is quite likely that when the restoration is completed it will be dedicated with appropriate ceremony by the Daughters. Already an effort is on foot to collect relics of Carson's day, particularly articles belonging to him personally, and a pistol and inkstand have been secured as a nucleus.

Originally the little old stone building was the medical headquarters of the fort, and Carson had been taken there from his home, at Boggsville, some miles from Lyons, a very sick man. The only persons with him when he died were Dr. Tilton, medical officer of the post; First Sergeant Luke Cahill and a hospital steward whose name is now forgotten, and of this trio the only one living is Luke Cahill, a resident of Las Animas, Colo.

KESSLER'S POLAR DINNER.

George A. Kessler, the New Yorker who gave the famous gondola dinner at the Savoy hotel in London in 1905, celebrated the Yuletide by giving a north pole dinner on Christmas eve at the same hotel. Thirty-three persons sat down at the reputed cost of $300 a head to a feast which was given in the winter garden, transformed for the night into a realistic representation of the north pole. A corps of waiters dressed as Eskimos in furs resembling polar bear skins served the guests. On the back of the menu were a number of original verses by Proctor Smith satirizing Dr. Frederick A. Cook's story of how he reached the pole.

When he was asked what was the occasion of the function Mr. Kessler said, "I did it on the spur of the moment when I learned officially that Cook had not reached the pole."

Besides the dinner each guest received a handsome piece of jewelry at an average cost of $750 a head.

LONG POWER BOAT RACE.

Arrangements for the long distance power yacht race from Philadelphia to Havana, which is to be started on May 21, are nearing completion. The prizes to be awarded are of a tempting nature, yachtsmen declare, and are expected to draw a large number of entrants. The prize which will go to the winner consists of a cup valued at $1,000 and $1,000 in cash. The second boat to finish will receive a $500 cup and a similar amount in cash. The third boat will get a $250 cup and $250 in cash. To make the event more interesting the Havana Yacht club offers to the winner of the race back home a cup valued at $250.

The distance of the race is about 1,100 miles, but owing to the conformation of the coast the voyage is from 150 to 200 miles longer, depending upon the course taken.

LEMM A GOOD ONE.

Swiss Wrestler Certainly Entitled to Another Chance at Gotch.

Since his arrival in this country some time ago John Lemm, the Swiss wrestler, has made a splendid showing. In fact, he has proved that he is about the best foreign mat artist that has visited this country in the past two years. Lemm recently tackled Gotch and gave the champion more than he bargained for. Gotch agreed to throw Lemm twice within an hour, but failed. The Swiss is after another match and is willing to back his chances with cash. Lemm is slightly under the average height, but very stocky. He strips at 196 pounds and is tremendously muscled. He made a great record for himself in Europe the past two years.

AUTOMOBILE SLEIGH RACING.

Competition to Be Held In France Feb. 13—One Class For Air Propellers.

In connection with the winter fetes to be held by the Touring Club of France at Gerardmer, in the Vosges, it has been decided to hold a competition for automobile sleighs. The tests will be made Feb. 13 under the regulations and with the aid of the commission des concours of the Automobile Club of France.

One of the interesting features of the competition will be a class reserved to sleighs propelled by a motor driving an aerial propeller. Special encouragement is being given to this type of sleigh in the belief that it will prove the most practical.

Great Runners to Meet.

Melvin Sheppard, the world's fastest middle distance runner, and Harry Gissing, his worthiest rival, will meet in a special race in Boston, Jan. 22. The pair will compete in a half mile special race. In preparation for the event both athletes have begun training, and each is confident that the winner will hang up a new record.

Hayes-Dorando Again.

Johnny Hayes and Dorando Pietri, the heroes of the London Olympic Marathon in 1908, will renew their struggle for supremacy Jan. 16 in San Francisco. Dorando has accepted a challenge from Hayes, and the men will run over the full Marathon distance.

FUTURE SPORT PLANS

The University of Washington, Seattle, plans a $100,000 stadium and athletic field.

The Monaco (France) motorboat carnival, April 1 to 4, will distribute $240,000 in prizes.

The Oregon Agricultural college of Portland will take up barge rowing preparatory to going actively into aquatics.

The English Football association has agreed provisionally to send a mixed eleven to South Africa next May to play a series of socker games.

The Brooklyn Chess club will play against a team of Great Britain experts by cable for the Sir George Nownce trophy on March 11 and 12.

Al Kaufmann and Jack O'Brien will box six rounds at the National Athletic club of Philadelphia, Jan. 19. They will meet at catchweights and will divide 70 per cent of the receipts.

BASKETBALL POINTERS.

Information For Amateurs on Great Indoor Game.

PLAYS BUILT AROUND CENTER

If Man Who Holds Down Pivotal Position Is a Jumper He Can Direct Ball to Any Member—Hints to Guards and Forwards.

Basketball is unique in that it is a product of necessity, having been invented about twenty years ago in the Young Men's Christian Association Training school, Springfield, Mass., to supply a definite need for competitive indoor winter work. The game requires speed, skill, aggressiveness, endurance and team work.

The picking of a team depends upon the available material. Every team needs a good center, who should be rangy and a good jumper, for upon him more than any other player depends the success of the game. The plays are built around the leaping ability of the center. If he is a good jumper he can direct the ball to any member of his team on the jump off, an essential factor in the development of team play by signal. This is an advantage, because it puts the opposition on the defensive.

On the center falls the brunt of "chasing" the ball—now helping out the forwards and now the guards. This necessitates of the ideal center accurate throwing and good guard qualities as well as jumping ability. These qualities are seldom found in one man, so plans are made to overcome the weakness. If the center is a good jumper and good guard, but not aggressive in following the ball, he changes position immediately after the jump off with a guard who possesses running and goal throwing abilities, or if he is a good goal thrower the center may change with one of the forwards who excels him in running the floor. The change must be made smoothly and quickly, so as not to leave men unguarded. Practice will develop this shift, which may be used to trick the opposition.

Forwards must be quick starters and fast on their feet, so as to escape from their guards and get the ball on the jump off. When the center in response to signal bats the ball in a certain direction a forward must be there to get the sphere, and he must be able to pass accurately from any position necessary to assume to escape his guard. At least one forward must be an accurate basket thrower. The other, if the center can throw baskets, may be used as a "feeder," or, in other words, take the center's place in running the floor, thus keeping the goal throwers supplied with the ball. In general, the best basket throwers should be chosen as forwards. They must be fast, as speed and the endurance to maintain it for forty minutes without a stop is what wins games.

KIEFABER, PENNSYLVANIA'S STAR BASKET BALL GUARD.

[In Kiefaber Pennsylvania has one of the best guards the Eastern Intercollegiate league ever produced. His work this and last season stands out prominently.]

Guards should be rangy and good jumpers. This makes them valuable in intercepting passes. Height is desirable, provided it does not interfere with speed, because the forward has a harder time breaking away from a tall guard for a try at goal. It is difficult to make a successful pass over a tall guard's head. Of all men on a team a guard must not fumble the ball, for if he be weak in this department his errors may lose games. He is in the opponents' territory most of the time, and fumbles mean chances for baskets by the other fellows. A fast guard is desirable for his ability to break up plays by quick rushing and intercepting passes, but a slow, careful guard who uses his thinker often shows up well. A combination of a fast guard to break up plays and one who stays back and works defensively most of the time is ideal.

In choosing men their ability for team work must be considered. Often a star is found who cannot master team play.

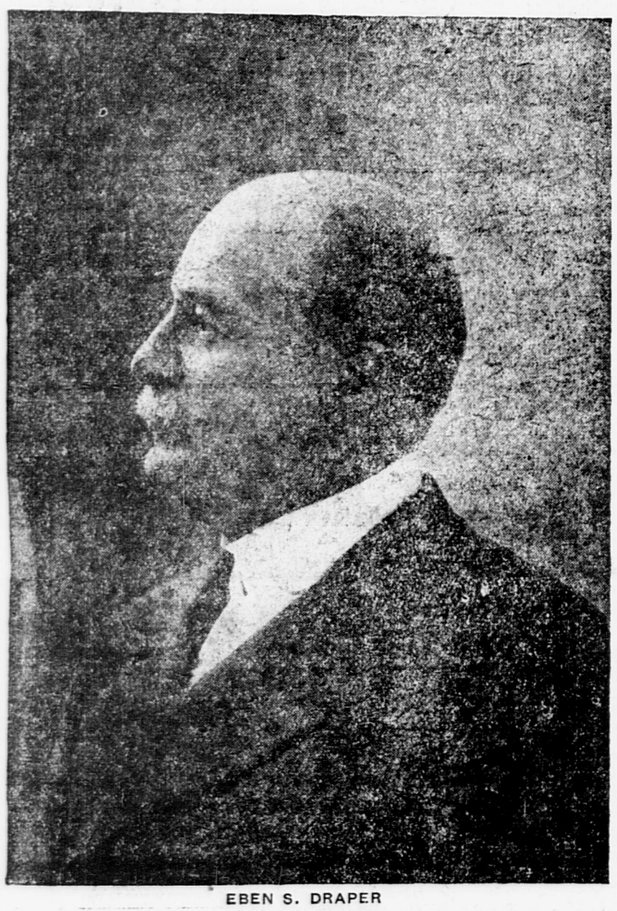
ORGANIZATION OF THE GENERAL COURT

Quincy Senator and Representatives Appointed on Important Committees.

Senator Hultman May Become Leader of the Massachusetts Senate.



EBEN S. DRAPER

The Massachusetts Legislature convened at 11 A. M. today. The Senate organized with Hon. Allen T. Treadway of Stockbridge as president, and Henry D. Coolidge as clerk. The House organized with Joseph Walker of Brookline as speaker and James W. Kimball as clerk.

In both branches the standing committees of the year were announced, which has never been done before on the opening date. All three of the Quincy men are pleased with their appointments, and well they may be, for they have prominent places.

Senator Hultman is second on the Committee on Rulers regarded most important of the Legislature. The chairman of this committee is Thorndike Spaulding of Cambridge who is at present seriously ill and may be unable to attend to any of the duties.

Senator Hultman is also chairman of the Committee on Public Lighting, second on the Committee on Taxation, and third on the Committee on Ways and Means.

Representative Louis F. R. Langelier is House chairman of the Committee on Harbors and Public Lands, and also a member of the Committee on Banks and Banking.

Representative William R. Thomas retains his place on the important Committee on Metropolitan Affairs, to which are referred many bills which affect the city of Quincy.

QUINCY MEN IN A WRECK

Express Crashes into Train Bound for Dedham

Several Quincy men were on the 9.18 train from Boston to Dedham which was wrecked at West Roxbury this morning about 9.30. Just after the train left the station at West Roxbury, a train from the Needham branch crashed into the rear car which was a combination baggage and passenger and ploughed its way through the car.

At the time the Needham train was running with the engine reversed, that is the tender first and it was the baggage end of the Dedham car that was hit.

On the train were the judge and several of the jury, witnesses, lawyers and others. Deputy Sheriff George H. Field and Lawyer J. J. McAnarney were among those who received a toss, but escaped with a shaking up. Others on the train were John H. Gillis, William P. Chase, James Joss, Robert Beattie, John J. Chisholm and James F. Desmond.

The fireman on the Needham train was seriously injured and possibly others.

Y. M. C. A. MASS MEETING.

A new feature of the boys' department of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. is to take place Saturday at 9 A. M. in Quincy Music hall in the form of a boys' mass meeting. Big plans are being carried out and it is expected that this will be the largest gathering of boys under these conditions ever held in Quincy. The doors will be open at 8.30 and admission will be by ticket only. Special music and good singing will be a part of the program. The committee have been more than fortunate in securing as the speaker for the meeting, Thomas F. Elgar of London, England, and New York city.

Mr. Elgar will talk from an experience of twenty-five years among the state prisons, reformatories, jails and asylums of twenty-four states. He will talk to the boys Saturday morning on "Giants and Stones" and will tell of his many exciting and interesting experiences among the boys of the jails of our country. Every boy twelve years of age and over is invited to attend this meeting and help make it the biggest and best ever.

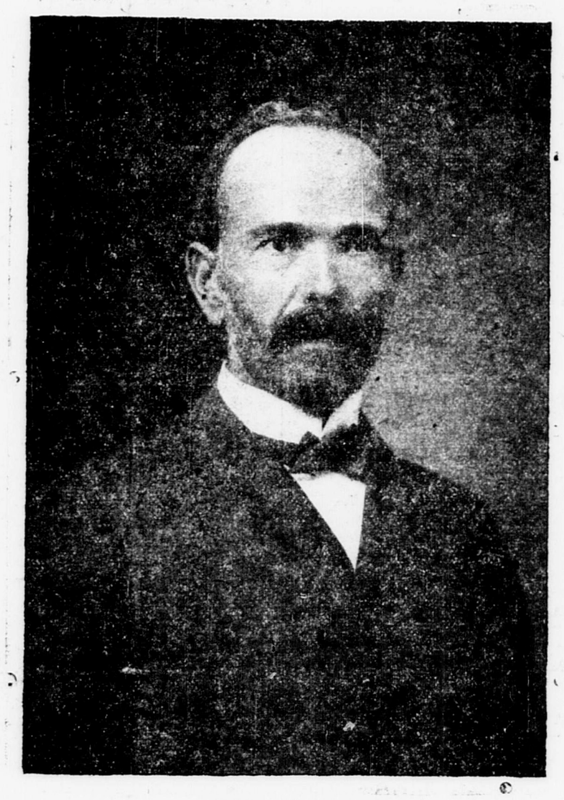
NEW CHAIRMAN SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Former Teacher at High School Elected Headmaster to Fill Vacancy.

School Calendar for the Year 1910 Adopted---First Term to be Shorter Than Last Year.



JOHN L. MILLER.

Two important meetings of the School Committee were held Tuesday evening. The first was an adjournment of the School Committee of 1909 at 7.30, when Dr. Curtis read the annual report of the board which was accepted and ordered printed.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

The resignation of Leslie L. Cleveland, head master at the High school, to take effect February 1, was received and accepted.

NEW HEADMASTER.

James D. Howlett master of the Plymouth High school was elected as head master of the High school at a salary of $2,100.

Mr. Howlett was a former teacher at the High school, having been submaster under Charles F. Harper. He is a graduate of Colgate college, class of 1900. He taught at the college and took a post graduates course at the same college in 1900 and 1901. In 1901 and 1902 he taught in the Colgate academy, and in 1902 and 1903 at the Coburn Classical Institute. In 1903 and 1904 he was a sub-master at the Quincy High school. While in Quincy he made many warm friends and it was with considerable regret when he left Quincy to become principal of the Farmington, N. H., High school, where he taught during the year 1904 and 1905. In the latter year he was elected as principal of the Plymouth High school, where he has since been located at a salary of $1,800. He will assume his position at the Quincy High school the first of February.

NEW SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

The second meeting was that of the School Committee of 1910, and was for organization, and was held at 8 o'clock.

Dr. N. S. Hunting who has been chairman of the School Committee for several years declined reelection, and John L. Miller of Ward Three was elected as chairman.

Mr. Miller needs no introduction, for he has been one of Quincy's wide awake granite manufacturers for several years. He was also for a number of years president of the Granite Manufacturers Association.

TWO RE-ELECTIONS.

Albert L. Barbour was reelected as Superintendent of Schools and secretary of the School Committee.

Charles H. Johnson was reelected truant officer and census taker.

It was voted that hereafter all labor certificates shall be issued by the truant officer.

A rising vote of thanks was given Dr. Hunting the retiring chairman.

SCHOOL CALENDAR.

The following calendar for 1910 was adopted:

First term:—Monday, January 3, to Friday, March 18.

The elementary schools close Wednesday, June 15.

Grammar schools graduation:—Thursday, June 16.

High School graduation:—Wednesday, June 22.

Third term:—Tuesday, September 6 to Wednesday, December 21.

The New Year:—Monday, January 2, 1911.

Holidays:—February 22, April 19, May 30, June 17, and the remainder of the week from Wednesday noon next preceeding Thanksgiving.

It will be noticed by the calender that the first term is somewhat shorter than last year. In 1909 the term closed April 2, while this year it closes March 18. The second term which in 1909 began April 12 and ran to June 25, this year begins March 28 and runs to June 24, so that while the first term of the year is shorter than last year the second term is longer.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

Their lordships are having rather a hard time in the stump in England. The rabble seems to have only jeers for the peers.

Do not imagine that party over there with the pained expression the one wearing the home-made necktie of strenuous persuasion is seeking to set a new style. He is merely afraid of hurting his dear wife's feeling.

It looks as if the Police department had a valuable auxiliary when the Mayor appoints over 100 men as constables. Only eighteen of these are limited in their territory, but it is safe to say that they will make very few arrests.

Lynn was under no-license last year and the chief of police reports the smallest number of arrests since 1900. The number of arrests for drunkenness was 1803 as compared with 4464 arrests for drunkenness in 1907 under license. These figures speak for themselves, and show plainly that there is less drunkenness under no-license.

With only $11,750 of the Municipal debt falling due this month it is hard to understand why there is such a rush to obtain legislation to authorize temporary loans to the amount of $500,000 and to rush through a loan of $30,000 for water extension. Large payments of taxes are being made by citizens this month and $50,000 or more will be paid into the city treasury by water takers before Feb. 15. Is it a fact that the money is needed to pay maturing temporary loans of 1909? If so, the temporary debt has really become a permanent debt.

Many are looking to Mayor Shea to repudiate over his signature the interview attributed to him by a Boston Sunday paper. He owes it to himself; he owes it to the city, to do this. Had the alleged interview appeared just before the City election, instead of the present time, it might have compassed the Mayor's defeat at the polls. Unless it is emphatically repudiated at the earliest possible date it will work great injury to the Executive and the city. The local papers are always ready to publish any letter the Mayor may write.

Quincy should rejoice that the Boston Gear Works have been almost rebuilt and will soon be in full blast again. There was a rumor at one time that Mr. Burgess would not rebuild, but the encouragement given by the city government, the Board of Trade, the local press, and others, evidently had a good effect. It is an industry which Quincy could ill afford to lose, and we hope now that it may once more flourish and grow. Few people realized before the fire came what a valuable plant it was.

The Mayor told us in his inaugural address that the law now permits the city to raise by taxation $375,695.00 for current expenses. To this may be added receipts. It is a large increase over the limit of last year because of the increase in assessed valuation, and should provide all that is needed for current expenses. It should take care of small street rebuilding, as well as general repairs. There should be no necessity of loans like many of those of last year, for example:—$150 for cinder track at Ward Two playground, $350 for Kincaide claim, $600 for Billings street $900 for Arlington street, $500 for scarifier machine $1,500 for Board of Health, $12,830 for various streets, $2,500 for Bates avenue, etc. etc., The general appropriations should take care of all these items. It is only in this way that the debt of Quincy may be reduced.

—An effort is being made to organize a Y. M. C. A. at Randolph.

—In the city of Lynn in 1909 there were granted 458 permits for new buildings and 344 for alterations. Three decker apartment houses have been springing up like muchrooms.

EXTENSION CLUBS TO MEET

Grand Assembly for Boys at the Y. M. C. A.

Tonight at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. is the "Grand Assembly" for South Quincy, Wollaston and Atlantic Extension clubs, and also the members of the boys' department of the association. The program for the evening is one of the strongest this season. "Gil" Browne, right end on Harvard Varsity football team, is the speaker and will tell of his football experiences during the past three years. The entertainer for the evening is Warren G. Richards of Boston, considered one of the best character men in this section of the country. Refreshments will be served and every boy who has the privilege of attending this gathering should make the best of it and enjoy the best time of his life.

MUSICALE.

The musicale of the Elliot club of Wollaston, given last week at home of Mrs. Charles B. Young was a great success and much enjoyed by the members. Although the artists contributing to the program were local they were also professionals and the evening was a musical treat.

Mrs. Charles Roach of Fayette street gave piano selections; Miss Winifred White of Winthrop avenue soprano solos; Miss Violet McConnell of Beach street two readings with piano accompaniment and a monologue; J. Barraja-Frauenfelder, baritone solos and Mrs. George Fleming read a chapter on music from The Choir Invisible. The encores were hearty and appreciative.

The meeting of Jan. 12 will be with Mrs. Charles E. Goodspeed of Prospect avenue. The subject "Soldiers and Sailors" will be given the first part by Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rowe and the second part by Mrs. Alfred W. Thompson and Mrs. Nathan G. Nickerson.

It has been decided to observe the thirty-fifth anniversary of the club by a theatre party at the Hollis Street theatre on Jan. 15 to see John Drew.

A PADEREWSKI STORY.

The Great Musician's First Important Engagement In Paris.

Paderewski's first really important engagement as a pianist was in Paris. He was engaged to play in the drawing room of a lady famous for her musicales, and his fee, which seemed to him enormous, was $20. He managed to persuade the humane agent to pay him in advance, and when Paderewski had redeemed his dress suit from pawn and paid for shoes, gloves, tie and other essentials he had no money left for cab hire, so he was forced to walk to the scene of his engagement.

The music loving audience inspired him. He played with feeling, passion and mastery of his instrument as never before. His success was instant and unmistakable. The poor player had suddenly become the lion of the hour, his dream had become a reality, and fame and fortune were assured him.

At last after disengaging himself from his admirers he turned to leave, when his hostess, remembering with regret the smallness of the fee for so marvelous a performance, offered him her carriage for his return home. But Paderewski's pride came to the rescue. In his courteous yet reserved way he made a formal bow, and, saying, "No, thank you, madame; my own is waiting," he stepped out for his long walk homeward.—Pearson's Weekly.

Ingratitude.

Lycurgus, being asked why in his laws he had set down no punishment for ingratitude, answered, "I have left it to the gods to punish."

Buy Hurled to Death

Millbury, Mass., Jan. 5.—Caught in the belt of a mixing picker which he tended in the Ramshorn mills, William A. Washburn, aged 15, was thrown against the bonnet of the machine and there jammed, his skull split, as a score of millhands sought to stop the moving belt.

Chicopee's First Mayor Dead

Chicopee, Mass., Jan. 5.—George S. Taylor, 87 years old, the only man who ever received a unanimous election as mayor of this city, died at his home on the twentieth anniversary of his inauguration. He leaves one son and one daughter.

DISPLAYS GREAT COURAGE

Man Crushed by Elevator Directs Those Working to Aid Him

Boston, Jan. 5.—Jammed between the elevator and the second floor of the board of trade building, 131 State street, Harry J. Bennett, 44 years old, displayed wonderful courage. He is now at the relief hospital and his name is on the dangerous list. It is said there he will not live.

Bennett, who is employed as an elevator man, was carrying passengers down to the ground floor when he was suddenly drawn from the elevator cage into space between the cage and the walls of the elevator well.

Retaining consciousness, though suffering from broken bones, he directed his rescuers, who frantically worked for fully a half-hour before they were able to get him out.

As they lifted him from the elevator well and laid him on the floor, pending the arrival of the relief hospital ambulance, he lapsed into unconsciousness.

RELATIVES ARE WORRYING

Anxious to Hear News From Crews of Several Overdue Schooners

Boston, Jan. 5.—Anxiety is felt for the safety of a number of big coasting schooners, among them the new six-master Wyoming, in command of Captain McLeod, on her maiden trip from Bath to Newport News, over a week late; five-masted schooners Henry W. Cramp and Magnus Manson, from this port to Newport News.

Relatives of the crews here are anxiously awaiting word from them. The vessels have undoubtedly been driven off their courses by the furious weather of the past two weeks and are endeavoring to work back.

TWO INDICTMENTS IN GLOVER MURDER

Rumor In Connection With Report of Grand Jury

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 5.—Mrs. Lillian M. Glover of Waltham, widow of Clarence F. Glover, the murdered laundryman, was a witness before the Middlesex grand jury for over two hours yesterday.

In all, the members of the grand jury heard nine witnesses in connection with the case of Hattie Le Blanc, who was employed in the Glover household.

It is expected that the jury will report Friday should an indictment in the case be found. At the courthouse it was rumored that more than one indictment might be found, and that another person other than Hattie Le Blanc would be held for trial. District Attorney Higgins declined to make any statement.

SUSPENDED FOR A YEAR

Action Against a Lawyer Concerned In Boston Book Scandal

Boston, Jan. 5.—Lawyer James T. Cassidy was suspended until Jan. 1, 1911, from practice at the bar by Judge Hardy in the superior criminal court upon motion of the Massachusetts Bar association. Cassidy was convicted in connection with the larceny of $200 from the city of Boston jointly with President McCullough of the common council, and has been on parole since last November.

Cassidy had been sentenced to one year, but was paroled after six months. The money had been appropriated to buy books for the office of the president of the common council.

WEIGHING OF SUGAR

Government to Extend Probe to Boston and San Francisco

Washington, Jan. 5.—Following the results obtained in the discovery of underweighing of sugar at the port of New York, inquiries are to be made at other ports where sugar is brought in.

Large quantities of sugar come into the United States at San Francisco and at Boston, and smaller amounts at various other ports.

The effort to determine whether there has been underweighing at other places than New York will be begun as soon as arrangements can be made.

ADMIRAL BURWELL DEAD

Officer Passes Away In Wales While on a Pleasure Journey

Llandudno, Wales, Jan. 5.—Rear Admiral William T. Burwell, United States navy, retired, died at a hotel here.

Admiral Burwell was on leave of absence, dating from Jan. 23 of last year. He had decided to make a trip through Europe before settling down in his home in the United States.

Sequel to Suffragette Riot

Leeds, Eng., Jan. 5.—The first fatality in England to result from a suffragette disturbance occurred last night, when Alfred Hudson, a policeman, died from injuries received during a riot on Aug. 10 last.

Judge Relieved of Pocketbook

Boston, Jan. 5.—Judge Frederick Ely of the municipal court reported to the police that his pocketbook, containing $50, a railroad ticket and two checks, were stolen while he was riding in a subway car.

A. O. H. INSTALLATION.

County Secretary Dennis J. Slattery, assisted by Past President Michael T. Walsh and James F. Burke, installed the following officers of Division 5, A. O. H., Monday evening:

President—Patrick J. Ferguson.
Vice President—Daniel Mannix.
Corresponding Secretary—James M. Cantfill.
Financial Secretary—Dennis Crimins.
Treasurer—Walter Barry.
Sentinel—Thomas Cotter.
Standing Committee — Timothy Coughlin.

A banquet followed the installation ceremonies. Among those present were: National President, Matthew Cummings; State President, John J. Rogers; County President, Edward Long. County Secretary, Dennis J. Slattery; Mayor William T. Shea and members from several of the divisions in the vicinity.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

The Sunday afternoon rehearsals of last year were so popular with Quincy Choral members that one has been arranged for next Sunday at four o'clock and will take the place of the regular Tuesday evening rehearsal. These evening meetings have continued for twelve weeks without interruption and the attendance has been excellent.

A particularly pleasing feature of the Messiah study has been the unaccompanied singing of these difficult choruses which Conductor Wonson calls the best test of a thorough knowledge of the music. That Quincy singers have a finely balanced sense of pitch is attested by the fact that they sing many of these difficult fugue choruses through and come out in perfect tune, the accompanist striking the last chord in unison with the singers. This means much when one considers that, in many of our large and well-trained societies it is necessary to accompany choruses which were really meant, by the composers, to be sung unaccompanied, as it is rare indeed that a large chorus can sing on the pitch without the support of some instrument. As it happens, there is no chorus in the Messiah which was written to be sung unaccompanied the orchestration being a beautifully interwoven part of the whole score, but the friends of the Quincy Choral, who know what thorough training the singers are getting, are among those who confidently expect to hear an unusually fine rendering of the oratorio at the annual concert.

Good sleighing continues and this is the eleventh day.

Zero temperature at sunrise, but it was lower during the night. It was the coldest night of the winter, some glasses reporting six below.

People whose telephones are still out of commission hope the promised blizzard will hold off until their line is fixed.

The Committee on Water Supply of the City Council meet tonight. This is the first committee of the new Council to meet.

Calendars seem to be rather scarce this year, although J. F. Sheppard & Son and L. A. Chapin have issued some handsome ones.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Greene (Edith Noyes) were among the guests attending the at home of Mrs. Lilla Viles Wyman of Boston on Sunday evening.

None of the Quincy built battleships will compose the squadron of five to take part in the centennial of the Argentine Republic on May 20. In the fleet will be the Tennessee, Washington, Montana, North Carolina and Chester.

Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander well known to Episcopalians in this city has declined a call to become vicar of Trinity chapel in New York city and will continue as professor of history of religion at the Cambridge Episcopal theological school.

John W. McAnarney, Esq., of this city will be one of the speakers Jan. 12 at the Ladies' night of the Framingham Board of Trade, which will also be the occasion of the dedication of the new R. H. Long shoe factory. The factory will be opened and guides furnished from 5.30 to 7 P. M.; reception 7 to 8; addresses and dedication 8 to 9 followed by dancing until twelve o'clock.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Rev. Joseph H. Crooker of Roslindale took for his subject this afternoon at the meeting of the Wollaston Alliance "Feeding the Roots of Life." The meeting was largely attended.

The Art and Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club is giving a gentlemen's night this evening at the club house, which members and escorts are invited to attend. Mr. Thomas A. Watson of Braintree, is to read "The Winter's Tale" and an evening of pleasure is anticipated. It is complimentary to the club from the Art and Literature committee.

Although not so largely attended as usual a very pleasant meeting of the Junior Friday club was held Monday afternoon with Mrs. Arthur W. Hall of Upland road. Mrs. Walter E. Burke arranged the program which continued the study of France. Refreshments and a social hour completed the afternoon's entertainment.

Hyde Park Current Events club has appointed a committee with Mrs. George W. Pfeiffer as chairman, to investigate and plan a campaign for bettering the conditions at the railroad stations.

For the meeting of the Quincy Alliance in First Church parlor on Monday afternoon, Prof. Charles Bickford of Quincy will speak on John Townsend Trowbridge and give a group of his poems. This will be in place of the program as scheduled on the season's program Prof. Bickford kindly consenting to fill the vacancy caused by Rev. C. W. Carson being unable to be present.

Dr. Richard Burton of Minneapolis one of the most enjoyable lecturers at the Quincy Women's club last year is giving a series of lectures this winter before Massachusetts clubs. He lectured at Braintree Tuesday for the Philergians. For the Quinshipang club of Milford Dr. Burton is giving a series of three lectures, also for the Newtonville Woman's Alliance.

Miss Ella Packard is the speaker for the Junior Alliance meeting on Monday evening in the parlor of First church.

The holiday meeting of the Friday club last week with Mrs. John L. Gow was a very pleasant occasion. Mrs. Emery L. Crane was in charge of the program. Next week's meeting will be with Mrs. George W. Morton of Spear street.

Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy is proposed for honorary membership in the New England Woman's Press association, the name to come up at today's meeting in Boston. Other names proposed for active membership are: Mrs. Leslie Moore of the Boston Post; Mrs. Annie M. Knott of the Christian Science Monitor; Miss Anne Hathaway of the Lynn News; Miss M. Louise Baum and Miss Agnes E. Ryan of the Boston American; all well endorsed and recommended for membership by the executive board.

Club women will be pleased to know that Mrs. Mary L. Wade has returned from the west much improved in health and will continue the series of demonstration lectures at the clubhouse on Friday afternoons at half past two. The lecture this week will be on Luncheon Dishes and promises to be of special interest to housekeepers. Those holding season tickets can use them for these meetings and there are single admissions for those wishing to attend the remaining lectures.

The New England Wheaton Seminary club holds its monthly meeting at the Vendome, Boston, Jan. 8, at 1.30, to be followed by a lecture on "Character Building Behind Prison Bars," by the Rev. Herbert W. Stebbins. There will be songs by Mr. Henry Chequer, and later, tea, and a social hour from 3.30 to 5. This club is made up of graduates of Wheaton Seminary and is most thriving. It was founded in 1888 by the late Estelle M. Hatch Merrill, who was president for several years. At present it is headed by Miss Frances V. Emerson, class of '72 of Cambridge, and the corresponding secretary is Mrs. Addie E. R. Winsor, of Auburn court, Brookline. A new year-book is issued showing the calendar for the year 1910, and among coming events are, February 12, lecture by Prof. Charles Upson Clark on "The Artists of Venice;" March 12, stereopticon lecture on "Labrador "by William D. Cabot.

The current events lectures by Mrs. May Alden Ward on the second Thursdays of each month at the club house under the auspices of the Art and Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club are among the most popular entertainments of the season and each lecture brings out larger attendance. The next one will be on Jan. 13.

Next week Friday evening will be given at First church chapel the closing entertainment of the Alliance course and it will doubtless be the most popular one also for it is to be a musicale by the well known Westland quartet.

The program of the Mothers' meeting this afternoon was changed somewhat and the speaker was Miss Annie K. Dyer of South Braintree who spoke on "Egyptians and the Holy Land."

The Quincy Catholic club held a social Tuesday evening in the rooms of the Knights of Columbus. There was an entertainment, music, games and an auction of mystery packages which created much amusement. Refreshments were served. It was an unusually happy affair.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe president of the New England Women's club, presided at the meeting of the club on Monday afternoon at the rooms on Boylston street, Boston. At the close of Mrs. May Alden Ward's current events lecture Mrs. Howe asked her to explain Plan 1 and of 2 Boston's mayoralty contest. Mrs. Ward said one candidate represents the spirit of "Plan 2," and though a Democrat, many Republicans were supporting him because it was believed that his administration would eliminate the machine from municipal affairs. Mrs. Ward also said that the eyes of the world were upon Boston to see if it is possible to elect a mayor who is outside of machine politics.

Somerville women were successful in causing to be elected on the school board at the recent municipal election two well known club women of that city who met with the school board Monday evening for organization.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

A meeting of the executive board will be held in the committee room at the club house Thursday morning at ten o'clock. It is the regular monthly meeting with routine business.

Club members will have to hunt up their membership tickets ready for the meeting next Tuesday afternoon. It has been a long vacation and such a busy time that many tickets have doubtless got misplaced. The program committee has the meeting in charge, Mrs. Robert E. Park, chairman and the speaker will be Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, who will give "Personal Reminiscences of Distinguished People."

As the proposed changes in the bylaws will be read again at this meeting members are asked to bring their last year's book so that they may follow the reading and act intelligently on proposed alterations and additions.

Work of the various committees and classes make the club house a busy place all through the season.

The Exchange committee will have its usual display of edibles and useful articles in the committee room which members should inspect after the meeting.

ADAMS CHAPTER.

Members of Adams Chapter Daughters of the Revolution always look forward with much pleasure to going to Randolph for a meeting and the storm of Monday did not keep them at home. The meeting was at the home of Mrs. Patience C. H. Braley, who was assisted by Mrs. Frank C. Granger in doing the honors.

A short business session was held, the regent presiding and Mrs. Francis F. Brewer acting as secretary pro tem.

It was voted to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. William Porter expressing the sympathy of the Chapter in her bereavement, in the passing away of her mother Mrs. Alden.

It was voted that the Regent appoint a nominating committee of three to prepare the ballot for the annual election in March.

Mrs. Granger gave an interesting account of the work of the Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution and bespoke the hearty cooperation of members in helping the Quincy Juniors. Interest was asked especially at this time because Mrs. Chas. Belcher, director, could not be with the Juniors for a few months. Mrs. Granger also expected to be away in Florida until early spring.

The paper of the afternoon was on the dedication of Bunker Hill monument June 19, 1843, and was read by Mrs. Charles Twist of New York who was visiting in Randolph.

Following the custom of previous years the program closed with a march about the Christmas box in which each member had deposited an inexpensive gift earlier in the afternoon. A happy time was had opening the packages and seeing what each drew from the box.

During the social hour the hostesses served hot cocoa, sandwiches and cake after which farewells were said in time to catch the return car at quarter of five.

GOOD FOOD FOR PUPILS.

At the December meeting of the Milton Woman's club a committee, to be known as the Lunch Counter committee, was appointed to conduct, under the auspices of the club, a lunch counter in the high school building. An appropriation for the purpose was also made. The committee had everything in readiness for the opening of the winter term of the schools, January 4.

Miss Jean A. Yerxa of Roxbury, a competent manager, has been employed to carry on the work under its direction.

The club is undertaking this work wholly for the purpose of furnishing a nutritious lunch every school day, to pupils of the high and consolidated schools at the lowest price possible for the best food. The club neither expects nor desires any revenue from the lunch counter. Good patronage will mean larger orders or lower prices without sacrificing the quality of the food.

The prices for the different articles of food will be two, three and five cents each. Statistics show that pupils who have had a nutritious lunch every school day are more able, mentally and physically, to do efficient work during the last term of the school year than those who have had unwholesome, cold lunches.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB.

The Young Women's club met at the Women's club house, Saturday evening, with a very large attendance. The usual reports were read and the dates for the classes for this month were announced as follows: Saturday, January 8 and 15 the dressmaking class Monday, Jan. 3, the millinery class on Monday, Jan. 10 the embroidery and stencilling class. A play to be given by the members is also being arranged, for the last Saturday in the month. After the business had been transacted, an entertainment was given, the first number being a cello solo by Miss Marion Moorhouse of Wollaston, accompanied by her mother, which was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis then gave "Uncle Alec's Bad Folks," and was so enthusiastically encored that she gave in response Longfellow's "The maid and the weathercock."

After the entertainment, informal dancing and a social time were enjoyed until time for adjournment.

SCARED THE OLD SAVAGE.

Ruse That Saved Dr. Felkin From King Mtesa of Uganda.

When the well known African traveler Dr. Robert Felkin was staying with the bloodthirsty King Mtesa of Uganda many years ago the king, out of gratitude for his visitor's medical treatment, wished to cut off his head. On Dr. Felkin representing that the treatment was not finished and that if interrupted it would cause Mtesa's death the latter granted him a reprieve until he was quite recovered. Then, however, nothing availed, and the execution was determined upon.

Emin Pasha, who was a friend of Dr. Felkin, had instructed him most accurately about the state of affairs in Uganda and the court of King Mtesa and had revealed to him an important state secret—namely, where Mtesa's powder store was hidden. Dr. Felkin remembered this at the right moment and as a last resort threatened that if Mtesa killed him he would bring down a flash of lightning upon his powder store. Mtesa replied incredulously, "Tell me where it is," whereupon Dr. Felkin whispered in his ear, "It is concealed under your harem."

Mtesa turned pale and allowed Felkin and his companions to live. The "lightning maker's" authority increased when next day a flash of lightning happened to strike near the harem.

A Duke at Church.

There was a certain old duke who used to sit up in the left hand gallery with his duchess, believing himself to be incog. One Sunday a too officious steward, on seeing the old nobleman take a back seat, hurried up to him and said, "Will not your grace have a better seat?"

"Come along, Maria!" said the old duke. "We're discovered!" And he immediately walked out with the duchess and never showed his face inside the church again.—London Tatler.

EASTERN STAR OFFICERS

Jewels Presented at the Installation.

The newly elected officers of Quincy Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, were publicly installed Monday evening by Mrs. Iva E. Brown, assisted by Flora S. Mathewson, Albert W. Fay, and Mrs. Sarah Clark. The decorations of the hall were in charge of William Patterson, and were very beautiful, transferring the hall into a floral bower.

The installation ceremony was beautifully rendered. After the installation jewels were presented to the retiring worthy matron Mrs. Clara E. Catarius and the worthy patron, George H. Field, the officers installed were:

Worthy Matron—Alice W. Ralph.
Worthy Patron—George A. Smith.

Why He Could Beat McGregor.

Alexander Ure, the lord advocate of Scotland, is a keen golfer, and he has a good store of golfing tales. These he is always ready to relate, even if they tell against himself.

Playing on a certain course in Scotland, he remarked incidentally to his caddie: "By the way, I played a round with Todd McGregor the last time I was here. Grand player, McGregor!"

"Aye," said the caddie, "but ye could bate McGregor the noo."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed the gratified lord advocate, being well aware of McGregor's prowess.

"Aye," drawled the caddie. "McGregor's deid."—Golfing.

How Customs Vary.

She—In some parts of Australia when a man marries each of the bride's relatives strikes him with a stick by way of welcome into the family. He—Yes, and in many parts of America when a man marries each of the bride's relatives strikes him with a loan by way of welcoming him into the family.—New York Times.

The Glad Hand.

"What do you mean by the glad hand?"

"Anything," answered Mr. Bloochips, "that will beat three of a kind."—Washington Star.

A Dull Point.

Blobbs—Saphedde is always talking about his point of view. Slobbs—Yes, but unfortunately it isn't sharp enough to penetrate anything.—Philadelphia Record.

BOYCOTT ON TRUSTS.

League Organized to Curb Advances In Cost of Foodstuffs.

To curb the exactions of the trusts which deal in foodstuffs and if necessary to institute a national boycott on articles of food which the public believes are too high in price preliminary steps were recently taken at the residence of Dr. E. L. Scharf in Washington to organize the National Anti-trust league. Prominent citizens of Washington and members of congress were present, and enough was done toward the formation of an organization national in scope to insure its progress.

The idea of organzling a league to fight high prices in the necessaries of life, which have been increasing yearly until now they are out of all proportion to their true cost, originated from the recent publication on the high cost of various articles of food, particularly meat and potatoes, two of the staple foodstuffs. Dr. Scharf, formerly a member of the faculty of the Catholic university and a well known economist and student of social conditions, suggested the league.

A preliminary organization was effected, and it was decided to have as officers a president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

It was agreed that the organization should be nonpolitical and that its movements be directed by an advisory council of seven.

Women will be taken into membership on equal terms with the men and will have equal voice in the campaign. The women being the housekeepers of the country, the pioneers of the plan recognized at once that their assistance was vital to success.

MAGNETIC SURVEY OF EARTH.

Dr. L. A. Bauer Tells Scientists What Yacht Carnegie Has Accomplished.

Dr. L. A. Bauer of the Carnegie institute at Washington, under whose direction a general magnetic survey of the earth has been begun, spoke of the project the other day during the convention at Boston of the American Association For the Advancement of Science. The Carnegie, a vessel of 600 tons from which all iron has been excluded and having no metals to affect the compass and other magnetic instruments, is now on her first trip and is expected to reach New York early in 1910.

"The work accomplished so far has been most gratifying," said Dr. Bauer. "The principal result of value during the cruise to England was to reveal a systematic error in the navigator's compass charts amounting on the average to about one degree. The general effect of these errors would be to throw the track of an Atlantic liner, when her course must be shaped wholly by the compass and log, always to the northward from ten to twenty miles from the track she aims to follow.

"A peculiarity of the errors discovered is that they turn the head of the vessel always toward the Newfoundland coast, whether she comes from the east or the west. Errors of importance have also been found in the existing charts of the dip of the magnetic needle and of the strength of the earth's magnetic force."

OVERSHOES FOR HORSES.

How Mrs. George Westinghouse Helps Pittsburg Steeds In Icy Weather.

Mrs. George Westinghouse has given the Pittsburg horse a Christmas gift, according to a recent statement by Superintendent James Bell of the Western Pennsylvania Humane society. It is an overshoe which helps the animal to get a good grip on icy or wet streets. Mrs. Westinghouse while driving recently in her carriage noticed two horses fall in the street.

She sent for Superintendent Bell and instructed him to wire at her expense for a great number of horse overshoes which she had at her Massachusetts home and have his assistants patrol the streets of Pittsburg during the icy season and place the overshoes on any horse found in distress on the streets. The instructions of Mrs. Westinghouse were that the Humane society agency should lend the overshoes to all horses in distress with heavy loads and that all additional expense be sent to her in the shape of a bill.

Plans For a Harvard Memorial.

If the plans of Mayor Hibbard and City Engineer Jackson of Boston materialize the old Soldiers' field bridge, near the Harvard stadium, in Cambridge, Mass., will be torn down, and in its place will be erected one of the finest and most unique bridges in the world. It is proposed to construct the columns and entrances of the bridge as memorials of various Harvard classes, the expense to be defrayed by them. It is planned to model the structure after the famous Alexander III. bridge that spans the Seine in Paris. Some years ago Boston appropriated $125,000 for its share of the new bridge and proposed a draw structure. Cambridge and Harvard officials insisted on a drawless bridge.

THE GEORGIA, LARGEST VESSEL EVER BUILT IN MAINE.

The Georgia was launched from the Bath Iron works Oct. 11, 1904. The ship was launched with steam up, something unusual in this country. Both military masts were in position, as well as the conning tower and three smoke funnels. That gave her the appearance of a finished vessel. The Georgia was the scene of the disastrous turret explosion in 1907, by which nine men lost their lives and several others were badly injured. In spite of the recent advance in battleship construction she is still one of the most formidable fighting machines afloat. The Georgia's armor weighs 3,690 tons, and it consists of a complete steel water line belt eight feet in depth. Her armament contains the usual four twelve-inch guns of her class and also the submerged torpedo tubes.

No Cough

Have not coughed once all day? Yet you may cough tomorrow! Better be prepared for it when it comes. Ask your doctor about keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Then when the hard cold or cough first appears you have a doctor's medicine right at hand.

Your doctor's approval of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will certainly set all doubt at rest. Do as he says. He knows. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

PROGRESSIVE LEGISLATION

Large Volume Anticipated During Session of Congress

TAFT IS ASSURED OF SUPPORT

Due to His Policy of Consulting Leaders Before Making Recommendations—More Glory Than Results Will Come to Insurgents—Flurry Over Judges of Customs Court Is Very Quickly "Smoothed Over"

Washington, Jan. 5.—Congress has decided to support President Taft during the remainder of the session, in as far as general action can be influenced by the leaders of that body. This is the important development of the week. It must modify all prophesies of what is likely to happen in Washington this winter.

The president's policy of consulting with the leaders in advance of making his recommendations has had a marked influence upon the members. It comes, too, at the moment when the Republicans are anxious as to the future of their party and have been deliberating among themselves what best course to pursue to continue its strength with the country.

Recent events, including the retreat of the railway managers before the president's recommendations for a new railroad bill and the cheerful acquiescence of the senate leaders, illustrate early in the session what may be expected throughout unless unexpected complications arise.

Chairman Mann of the committee on interstate commerce has boldly stepped into the insurgent column with a rival railroad bill, thus forestalling that of the president, which will not be ready until next week.

The Mann defection would be important and very significant any time up to the present, but it is the opinion at the capitol that Mann, usually representing the "powers" in legislation, will get more glory than results from his insurgency.

If all the prophets on whom one is accustomed to rely are not wrong the coming session of congress, while made lively by insurgent tactics, will result in a large volume of progressive legislation.

A fresh example of the desire to "get along" with the president was given when it became noised about the senate chamber that President Taft would send in at once the names of five judges of the customs court. The insurgents, who led the fight against the court last summer, bristled at once and charged that the president had broken faith. He had agreed, they said, not to name the judges until congress had fixed the salaries.

The senate last summer stubbornly refused to fix the salaries at less than $10,000, and the bill became law at the higher rates, but it carried no appropriation. When the insurgency broke loose yesterday the situation was threatening, but conferences were quickly called, and it was announced soon after by a member of the finance committee that the matter would be "smoothed over" and the salaries fixed at $7500, or not more than is paid some of the existing courts.

No change in the Panama bond situation has taken place, but this is a matter between Secretary MacVeagh and congress rather than the president. It is a fairly safe prediction that no legislation will be reported at present, and that the bonds will ultimately be issued at 2½ percent, thus doing away with the necessity for legislation.

Mr. MacVeagh is understood to believe that the bonds cannot be readily marketed at that rate, but some members of the senate think they know as much about marketing government bonds as the new secretary of the treasury, and are not inclined to permit him to dictate legislation.

CALL FOR AN INQUIRY

Labor Men Want to Know If Peanut Shells Are In Breakfast Food

Chicago, Jan. 5.—The Chicago Federation of Labor adopted resolutions calling upon the national pure food commission to investigate if peanut shells constitute the basic element in the manufacture of breakfast foods.

"In a recent freight train wreck it was discovered that several cars consigned to breakfast food concerns were loaded with peanut shells from the peanut butter factories in the south," said President Fitzpatrick.

Typhoid Epidemic In State School

Concord, N. H., Jan. 5.—An epidemic of typhoid fever has broken out at the state industrial school here, and two deaths have already resulted. The cause of the contagion is not known.

MORGAN IN GREAT MERGERS

Will Give Him Control of $210,000,000 If Plans Go Through

New York, Jan. 5.—J. P. Morgan and associates may control, through further trust company mergers in New York now under consideration, the enormous sum of $210,000,000 in deposits alone.

Reports of additional trust company consolidation are given credence in view of the announcement of the merger by J. P. Morgan & Co. of the Guaranty Trust, Morton Trust and Fifth Avenue Trust companies, with combined deposits of about $150,000,000.

This brought a revival in the financial district of rumors embracing the Bankers' Trust and the Manhattan Trust companies in the same combination. There are definite rumors that the Mercantile Trust company and the Equitable Trust company eventually will be taken into some sort of a powerful alliance.

BLIZZARD IS PROMISED

Little Encouragement For Those Who Dislike Cold Weather

Boston, Jan. 5.—On top of a cold wave unequalled for intensity in this vicinity for years, Boston and New England are today promised a genuine blizzard, which is sweeping east and is due here this afternoon.

With the thermometer falling to 4 degrees below zero at midnight, yesterday was by long odds the coldest day so far this winter.

With the advent of the blizzard today, the weather bureau believes the temperature may rise somewhat, but no encouragement is held out that the rise will be enough to mitigate the severity of the storm to any great extent.

From the west reports come that the storm which is approaching is accompanied by a 40-mile-an-hour gale.

SIX THOUSAND MEN IDLE IN VERMONT

Granite Workers Are Already $1,000,000 Out of Pocket

Quincy, Mass., Jan. 5.—James Duncan, first vice president of the American Federation of Labor and secretary-treasurer of the Granite Cutters' International Association of America, states that the present labor controversy between his organization and the Barre Granite Manufacturers' association of Barre, Vt., has cost the Granite Cutters' association $1,000,000 in wages lost to the men and money paid out of the association treasury for the support of their impoverished members.

The loss to the manufacturers cannot be exactly estimated, but it is believed to have very nearly reached a like sum.

The dispute has resulted in the lockout of all granite cutters employed within the entire Washington county, Vermont, about 3000 in number, and the consequent idleness of unattached quarrymen, numbering in all fully 3000 more men. The granite industry in Washington county is at a complete standstill.

CHINATOWN IS STIRRED

Trial of Alleged Slayers of the "Plum Blossom" Is Begun

New York, Jan. 5.—Chinese tong rivalry, which every now and then develops into gun play, is excited to a high pitch again by a murder trial which begun in New York Tuesday.

Two men of the Four Brothers clan are charged with the murder of Bow Kum, a pretty Chinese slave girl, known to her admirers as "the plum blossom."

She was stabbed to death in a Chinatown room last August, shortly after she had been brought here from San Francisco by Chin Lem, a member of the On Leongs.

MURPHY CALLS ON GAYNOR

May Have Talked of Tammany's Slim Patronage From Mayor

New York, Jan. 5.—Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, called on New York's new Democratic mayor and spent an hour in conference with him. When he left Mayor Gaynor's office he posed for his photograph on the city hall steps.

Tammany has got pretty slim patronage at Gaynor's hands, although without Tammany behind him he probably would never have been mayor of New York.

Young Farmer Shoots Himself

Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 5.—Hjalmar Mattson, a Finlander, aged 24, a young farmer, attempted suicide while temporarily crazed by drink and despondency by shooting himself. His attempt is likely to prove fatal.

Had $1000, but Died From Hunger

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 5.—Mrs. Johanna Freeman, 79 years old, died here from actual starvation and exposure, though investigation since her death showed that she had over $1000 in local savings banks.

Auto Officers Kept Busy

Boston, Jan. 5.—During 1909 Officers Underhill and Haslett made 646 arrests on Columbus avenue for alleged violation of the automobile laws. Fines aggregating $6500 were imposed.

MILLS LEAVES MANY MILLIONS

British Nobles to Share American Banker's Fortune

DEATH FROM HEART FAILURE

Widely Known Philanthropist and Father-In-Law of Ambassador Reid Passes Away Suddenly at His Winter Home—Founder of Famous Hotels Heeded Call of the West and Rose to Heights of Finance

San Francisco, Jan. 5.—Another great American fortune will pass to England with the death here of Darius Ogden Mills, whose estate is variously estimated at between $25,000,000 and $100,000,000.

Mrs. John H. Ward, daughter of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, and the Countess Granard, daughter of Ogden Mills, are the granddaughters of the dead financier who will bring millions to their English husbands.

Darius O. Mills had but two children, Ogden Mills and Mrs. Reid. Both his granddaughters were recently married and the international weddings attracted columns of space in the papers. Miss Jean Reid, daughter of Mrs. Reid, married the brother of the Earl of Dudley, and the marriage of Miss Beatrice Mills to the Earl of Granard was the society event of a season.

Another American girl who will inherit millions from the Mills estate is the twin sister of the countess, Miss Gladys Mills, whose engagement to titled Englishmen has often been rumored.

While it is believed that the bulk of the Mills estate will probably be inherited directly by Ogden Mills and Mrs. Reid, Mrs. Ward, the Countess of Granard and Miss Gladys Mills will probably receive considerably more than $1,000,000 each.

Both the Earl of Granard and the Hon. John Hubert Ward were wealthy when they married, so that the added fortunes will make them among the wealthiest members of the titled classes of Great Britain.

Mills died here at his winter home at the age of 84. Death, caused by heart disease, came so suddenly that no physician was at the bedside when the financier passed away. Mrs. Reid, however, was by his side when the end came.

Mills, although born within the shadow of New York city, went to California when gold was discovered there in 1847. He made $40,000 the first year in a store at Sacramento and put all his profits into shipments from New York, which made him a wealthy man within a short time.

His luck in California was proverbial; everything he touched seemed to turn to gold. He did not confine his operations to any one line, but invested heavily in mines, railroads, timber and ranches. He founded the Bank of California when he was 40 years old, retired ten years later, and two years afterward, when the cashier had involved the bank in losses of millions and committed suicide, Mills stepped in again, subscribed $1,000,000 himself, raised $7,000,000 more, served as president for three years without pay and left the bank as solvent as when he had first turned it over.

His most famous investment was the Mills hotels, three in number, in New York city, which were innovations to the world, places where a poor man could obtain clean lodgings and good food at small prices, yet which paid a profit to the builder.

A short time ago Mills deeded the three hotels to three trustees, himself, his son Ogden and his his daughter, Mrs. Reid.

Besides his financial interests in New York, Mr. Mills was trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and of the Carnegie Institute of Washington. He was president of the Bank of New York, of the Morton Trust company and the United States Trust company.

In California Mills was for some time regent of the University of California. In 1901 he donated an observatory to the university which was established near Santiago, Chili, and paid all expenses of the expedition to establish it for three years.

Unlike many of the newer school of millionaires, Mills was of retiring disposition and spent most of his leisure time in his home. He was a member of several clubs, but seldom visited them. For the past few years he had withdrawn almost entirely from business and social life owing to failing health, but it was not believed that his end was so near.

CHAPTER XII.

MIDNIGHT in the rooms of a leading daily paper in a big city is not a time when peaceful slumber is in order for those who are concerned in the business of producing the paper. It is the time when trained brains and trained hands are exerted to the extreme limit of their capacity to get the very latest news into shape, into type, into the press, into the mail wagons and "on the street."

And it is in the composing room where the brunt of the battle is borne in the final hours in which is completed the record of a world's doings and undoings for a day. Masses of "copy" swirl upward in the tubes or are carried in by boys from the city editorial room. The typesetting machines click, click, click, in unceasing monotony, and the proofreaders scan columns of "green proofs" with a rapidity, when under pressure, that would amaze the uninitiated observer. The "makeup" men cluster around the cumbersome tables or "stones" on which the forms are made up, lifting in the metal lines of type here, making corrections or shifting cuts there and locking the forms to be shunted into the stereotype room, where the paper matrices will be made. When the matrix is placed in the casting box the molten stereotype metal is poured in, and within a very few minutes the cylindrical plates, hardened quickly in the casting box by the pouring of cold water into the jacket, are locked on the cylinders of the gigantic duodecuple press and ready to whirl off over 100 copies of a paper per second, all printed, pasted, folded and counted.

Midnight in the offices of the Advance on the night that Judge Bartelmy's photograph was taken with $10,000 of bribe money in his hands found the staff of the paper in all departments working as probably they had never worked before, except on election night. The story required considerable time for preparation. The notes of Howard and Jeff, the two reporters who recorded the conversation of Brand and Bartelmy, had to be translated from shorthand into English. Then an introduction and a head had to be written, and the art department had to break all previous records in turning out a cut made from the photograph resulting from the flashlight.

In the composing room men were working like galley slaves to get the great Bartelmy exposure story into type and into the forms. The composing room in the Advance building was a "double decker"—i. e., a second story had been built in the rear part of the room to accommodate the proofreaders. This second story was really but a half story, extending out over a portion of the composing room, and the walls were partitions, the lower half of wood and the upper half of glass windows.

On the lower floor the linotype machines were set in rows. A steam table loomed on one side. On another table, an ironbound one, rested the galleys containing matter for the night's edition of the paper. At the extreme left of the room a wooden partition shut off the small office that the managing editor used at night when he superintended the makeup proceedings. A door opened into this small room from the outer hall, close to a door opening from the hall into the composing room itself. At the opposite end of the compartment a door opened into the composing room. In his small inclosure Brand, the managing editor, had a desk and a telephone. Adjoining the partition, which shut him off from the composing room and on the outside of it, was a desk used by the copy cutters, who cut the pages of manuscript—after they had been pasted together—into "takes." A take is one of the sections into which a story is cut, so that several compositors can work on different parts of the same story simultaneously, resulting in the saving of considerable time in setting it up.

The typesetting machines clicked off rapidly the words, sentences and paragraphs of the Bartelmy "beat" and the other stories which had to be crowded into the "mail edition." Brand was in his little room at the right, reading the proof of the introduction of the account of the accusation of the United States judge which introduction he had chosen to write himself. McHenry, the deposed managing editor and now Brand's assistant, was at the forms with the makeup men.

A boy rushed in with a cut for McHenry. The busy editor squinted at it and waved the boy to one side.

"Why do they send us this baled hay when we've got a live one?" he said disgustedly.

Downs came in from the city room.

"That Clinton street fire is getting better every minute," he said to McHenry. "We ought to have at least four columns on it."

McHenry glared at the speaker.

"Are you crazy, man?" he exclaimed. "Do you think we use rubber type? You'll have to keep it in three."

Downs was dissatisfied.

"All right. This shop is going to the d—l," he answered, shaking his head negatively. He went out of the composing room.

McHenry went over to one of the makeup stones.

"Where are the cuts for the Chicago and Bryan jump heads? I can't find them anywhere," he asked.

"Here they are," answered one of the makeup men.

"All right. They go there." He pointed to a space in one of the forms as a boy handed him another cut. McHenry held it up to the light and hurried into Brand's office with it. He laid it proudly on the managing editor's desk.

"That's a wonder, Mac!" pronounced Brand.

McHenry agreed.

"Yes; you can almost count the money in old Bartelmy's hand!" he exclaimed, and he peered closely once more at the metal slab.

Brand meditated a moment.

"I'm going to change the makeup on that page," he decided. "Put this cut at the top of the page, so that when the papers are folded on the newsstands every one that passes by will see Bartelmy offering a bribe of $10,000 to suppress the truth about himself. Is your story all up yet?"

"Yes. It's in the form."

"Then go finish it off and send it down to the stereotyping room."

McHenry turned away.

"Won't this make the Patriot sick?" he said as he left. "They'd give the shirts off their backs to beat us on a story like this or to keep us from doing it to them."

As McHenry went out of the door into the composing room Sylvester Nolan dashed into Brand's room from the hall through the other door. The lad was plainly excited, his face showing an amount of animation that, for him, was a decided novelty. His eyes flashed and his breath came in short gasps, indicating that he had been hurrying.

"Where's my father, Mr. Brand? Where is he?" he gasped.

Brand suspected something of the Nolan son's errand.

"I'm afraid you'll have to find him," was the only information he chose to impart.

Young Nolan drew close to the desk at which the managing editor was working.

"Judge Bartelmy wants him," he exclaimed. "The judge, the judge! Don't you understand?"

"Does he?" asked Brand with utmost unconcern.

Sylvester grew impatient at his father's employee who dared assume indifference toward his father's only son.

"I want to know where he is," he demanded.

"Well, I can't tell you." Brand rose and stepped away, with Sylvester following him.

"I understand that you are going to publish something about the judge that's beyond the limit," said the son.

"Possibly."

"Well, this thing's gone far enough,"

"That cut is a wonder, Mac!"

snapped Sylvester. "In the absence of my father I forbid it. Do you hear?"

Brand took up a bundle of proofs and moved to the door.

"I'm afraid I can't take orders from you," he said, and he stepped calmly out into the composing room.

Sylvester, nonplused, looked about uncertainly for a moment. Then, with a sudden thought, he went to the telephone.

He placed the receiver at his ear.

"Hello! Hello! I'm Mr. Sylvester Nolan. Get me the house on the wire, please." An office boy entered. "What do you mean by trying to prevent me from coming up here?" asked young Nolan.

"My orders."

"You're discharged." The boy grinned amusedly and hurried out.

"Hello! Hello!" continued Sylvester at the telephone. "Is this you, mother? I want to speak to father. I'm at the Advance office. Hell's breaking loose here, and I want him to come down quick. Isn't he there? Where is he? Expecting him any minute? Oh! Jump in a taxi and come down, will you? All right. Good!"

"Jump in a taxi and come down."

He hung up the receiver and walked swiftly into the hall to leave the building.

Downs and Brand entered the little room.

"There is a big fire in Clinton street," the former said. "McHenry won't give me room, but I've got to have it."

"That's it. The good stuff always comes in bunches," said Brand, showing his disgust. "What else you got?"

"Your cub, Powell, just came in with a prose poem on a dance hall suicide."

"Let's see it." The managing editor looked at the story, smiling broadly as he did so. "Send him in."

The voice of Edward Dupuy was heard outside.

"Is Mr. Brand in there?"

"Here; you can't go in there," a voice was heard in warning, and Brand looked up.

"Oh, yes, I can," was the cool response, and Dupuy walked in. "Brand, you print that picture of Judge Bartelmy and your paper's as good as dead," he threatened.

"Get out or I'll throw you out!"

Brand smiled.

"Oh, we'll try to struggle on."

"The whole thing was a dirty piece of trickery, and we can prove it."

"Go ahead and prove it."

"We'll prove it was a faked picture," snarled the lawyer.

"What are you going to do?"

"Never mind what we'll do."

Dupuy now delivered the prize threat that he had saved for use in the last extremity, should it arise, and he was justified in assuming that it had arisen.

"A temporary injunction would certainly issue in a case like this," he said sternly. "I'll get one and close your shop."

"Sure! That's the thing! Get Barmy to issue one," suggested the managing editor sarcastically.

"I will and put a stop to your game! This muck raking mania is sweeping the country like a disease, breeding madmen everywhere. Brand, this is your finish!" He shook his fist violently.

Brand jumped up in anger and strode toward the lawyer lobbyist.

"Now, you get out of here or I'll throw you out!" he announced hotly.

"You will, will you? You just wait!" Dupuy backed slowly out of the doorway.

Brand hastened out into the composing room.

"Mac, they're beginning to squirm already!" he cried.

"We'll make them squirm more in the morning," responded the night editor significantly.

FIFTH VICTIM OF AVIATION

Delagrange Is Instantly Killed In Fall of His Aeroplane

SKULL IS CRUSHED BY MOTOR

Frenchman Had Been One of Foremost and Most Daring of Man-Birds Since Aerial Flight First Came to the Front and Had Established Many Records—Had Almost Met Death on Several Occasions

Bordeaux, Jan. 5.—Leon Delagrange, the noted French aeronaut, was killed while making a flight here.

Delagrange fell with his machine from a height of sixty-five feet and was crushed under the weight of the wreckage. He had been flying in a wind that was gusty and which frequently blew at the rate of twenty miles an hour.

LEON DELAGRANGE

In spite of this disadvantage Delagrange continued and had circled the aeroplane three times when suddenly as he was turning a high speed against the wind the left wing of the monoplane broke and the other wing collapsed.

The machine toppled and plunged to the ground. Delagrange was caught under the weight of the motor, which crushed his skull. Death was instantaneous.

Delagrange had been one of the foremost of the world's aviators since the sport first came to the front. In the beginning he piloted a Voison aeroplane, but last spring he abandoned that type and bought a Wright machine. It was in that machine that the tragedy occurred.

From the time he first took up aviation in Italy in the spring of 1906, till yesterday's tragedy, he established several records and proved himself one of the most daring of the whole flock of man-birds. He had no delusions over the risk of his sport. In September, 1908, after an accident, he said: "I confess that I am nervous every time I fly when I think that my propeller may break when in full motion."

Last September, in the Malchamps aerodrome at Spa, Delagrange narrowly escaped death when his plane turned a somersault before a vast crowd. In swerving low, Delagrange's plane scraped a wing on the ground and was wrecked.

On Nov. 5, 1907, he fell with his aeroplane while giving an exhibition at Issy. The machine was smashed, but the aviator escaped with a few cuts and bruises. It was also at Issy that Delagrange narrowly escaped crushing a crowd of spectators who had taken possession of one end of the field during his exhibition. This accident happened in May, 1908. Delagrange was traveling at a high speed close to the ground when his machine swerved towards the crowd. The aviator promptly shut off the power and in descending collided with an automobile. During the aviation week at Rheims the propeller of Delagrange's machine broke from its shaft and the aeronaut fell heavily to the ground. He was badly bruised, but no bones were broken.

With the death of Delagrange, a total of five lives has been claimed by aviation under power. The first fatality occurred at Fort Myer in September, 1908, when Lieutenant Selfridge was killed during a flight with Orville Wright. A year afterward two French aviators were killed within a short time of each other, the first being Lefebvre, who lost his life when his machine, a Wright biplane, turned turtle, and Captain Ferber, who was operating a Voisin craft. On Dec. 6 last, Antonio Fernandez, a novice, was killed in an attempt to fly in his own machine at Marseilles.

Switchman Blamed For Wreck

Boston, Jan. 5.—General Manager Barr of the Boston and Maine railroad says that a switchman was responsible for the collision between a freight train and a freight locomotive at Prison Point last Sunday which resulted in the death of Colby D. Harmon, a fireman, and serious injury to Phineas P. Currier.

MADE BISHOP OF VERMONT

Dr. Rice, Who Stands High In Scholarship, Honored by the Pope

Rome, Jan. 5.—Upon the recommendation of the consistorial congregation, the pope appointed Rev. J. J. Rice, D. D., to be bishop of Burlington, Vt., as successor to Bishop Michaud, who died in December, 1908.

Rev. Dr. Rice was born in Leicester, Mass., in 1869. He attended Leicester academy and afterwards Holy Cross college, where he was graduated in 1891. He then went to Montreal seminary, and after a theological course there proceeded to Rome, where he was a student of the American college. He was ordained at Rome in 1897. Because of his high standing in scholarship he was also given the degree of doctor of divinity.

Dr. Rice returned to the United States in 1898. He spent the following year at St. John's seminary, Bridgton, Mass., as instructor in modern languages. Since 1900 he has been pastor of St. Peter's, Northbridge, a small town ten miles from Worcester.

REFRESHMENTS SERVED

Diplomats Entertained by the Tafts at a Brilliant Reception

Washington, Jan. 5.—The first and probably the most brilliant of the formal state receptions planned for the present White House season, was given last night by President and Mrs. Taft in honor of the diplomatic corps. Some 1500 guests in all were invited.

For the first time in many administrations, refreshments were served and the "blue room circle," which flourished during the Roosevelt administration, when a select coterie of social friends were invited "behind the line," was entirely done away with.

The refreshments, served in the state dining room, consisted of creamed oysters, salads, ices and champagne punch.

FORMER CURATOR PUBLICLY ACCUSED

Mrs. Scott Names Alleged Culprit In D. A. R. Thefts

Washington, Jan. 5.—The mystery surrounding the defalcations recently discovered in the Washington office of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is explained in a letter sent out by Mrs. Julia G. Scott, president-general of the society, to the regents of every chapter in the United States.

Miss Sarah B. Maclay, the society's former curator, is accused by Mrs. Scott as responsible for the thefts, and the president-general says she makes the name public in order to clear all other employes of suspicion. Miss Maclay has disappeared and will not be prosecuted.

RARE SURGICAL OPERATION

Bone Removed From Vertabrae of Man Whose Back Was Broken

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 5.—An alamanectomy operation, which is considered one of the rarest, was performed on the vertabrae of Thor Gustafson of Millbury at the city hospital by Dr. Wheeler.

The operation on Gustafson, whose back was broken by a 1300-pound press falling on him, involved opening his back and removing a small section of the vertabrae, so it would not oppose the spinal cord, and occupied nearly two hours.

Surgeons at the hospital state that the Millbury man is resting easy and will probably recover.

MOORE TO DROP OUT

Does Not Desire to Continue as Head of National Geographic Society

Washington, Jan. 5.—Professor Willis L. Moore, for five years president of the National Geographic society, which organization passed favorably on Commander Peary's North Polar records, has addressed a letter to each of the board of managers, declaring that he does not wish the board again to consider his name in connection with the presidency.

Professor Moore denies that polar politics or dissension in the board of management or any similar cause is responsible for his decision.

BRIEFS

A blizzard is predicted, due here tonight.

Officer James W. Murray is still confined to his home with rheumatism.

A meeting of the committee having in charge the annual ball of Quincy lodge of Elks will meet Sunday.

Mrs. Thomas Armstrong of Warren avenue is ill with inflammatory rheumatism.

Everett Rhodes of Old Colony avenue is convalescing from his recent illness and is able to sit up in his room each day.

Tuesday was the day for the annual meeting of the Managers of the Woodward Institute. Lack of a quorum, however, prevented the meeting from being held. A new call will be issued for a future date.

The officers of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, will be installed at Greenleaf hall Thursday evening.

The monthly meeting of the Granite City club will be held Saturday evening.

The Sans Souci dramatic club will hold its first meeting of the new year on Thursday evening. They will be entertained at the home of one of the members, Irving I. Kemp of South Quincy, where plans for 1910 will be discussed.

Although the air was bitter cold Tuesday night sleigh parties were numerous. Quite a few parties passed through City Square during the evening and their shouts and cheers did not indicate that they suffered much from the cold. Several of the parties stopped at Thompson's restaurant for lunch.

Quincy people will be interested in the concert in Cochato hall, Braintree, Tuesday evening, Jan. 11, by the Philergians. Walter E. Loud of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, is to be the violinist and Mrs. Ruth Burnham Thayer, contralto, has a remarkable voice of rare sweetness and rich culture. Tickets are on sale in Quincy by C. C. Hearn the durggist.

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church were entertained Tuesday evening by Miss Mary W. Blake at her home on Cottage street. Owing to the unfavorable weather but few were present. The election of officers was postponed to the next regular meeting which will be held in the vestry of the church, when Mrs. Thomas W. Addison an honorary member of the society will entertain.

Week of prayer services will be held at the Wollaston Baptist church, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings at 7.45. The pastor will conduct the services and the public is invited. Subjects for the three evenings will be: Wednesday evening, "Just ourselves"; Thursday evening, "Our church and the community"; and Friday evening, "The wide, wide world."

Notwithstanding the extreme cold the service at the Wollaston M. E. church was held Tuesday evening as announced. J. A. Sedgwick took charge of the praise service and Miss Ada Stone was the pianist. Rev. Herbert Cassidy preached a thoughtful sermon from the text found in I Cor. 9:24—"So run that ye may obtain." Rev. W. J. Kelley of East Dedham will preach tonight. Services will be held every evening except Saturday, with different speakers each evening and special music.

BRIEFS

A dispatch from Amherst, Ohio, reports that 1,200 quarrymen are on a strike because of a reduction of 10 to 60 cents per day during the winter.

Rt. Wor. Hartley L. White, D. D. G. M., of the 24th Masonic district, delievered the charge at Delta lodge of Braintree on Tuesday evening.

The funeral of William P. Barker, for many years one of Quincy's well known granite manufacturers, was held Tuesday afternoon from his home on Greenleaf street. Services which were very simple were conducted by Rev. Ellery C. Butler, assisted by Rev. Charles B. Ames, both of the First church. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

BRIDGE TRUSTEES.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Fore River bridge was held this morning at City Hall. Mayor Shea was elected chairman, and Walter W. Hersey of Hingham as treasurer. Routine business only was transacted. Immediately following this meeting there was a meeting of the trustees of the Hingham bridge. Walter W. Hersey of Hingham was elected as chairman and Gorden Willis of Weymouth as treasurer.

LAW LIBRARY ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Norfolk County Law Library Association was held at Dedham Monday morning and old boats of officers were reelected: Clerk, Edwin C. Jenney of Hyde Park; librarian and treasurer, Louis A. Cook of South Weymouth; executive committee, Thomas E. Grover of Canton, James E. Cotter of Hyde Park and Elbridge J. Whitaker of Wrentham. The report of Treasurer Cook showed that the treasury contains a balance of $3,800. The library is now one of the largest in the State and contains 11,000 volumes. For the first time in several years Judge Thomas E. Grover of Canton was unable to preside at the meeting, because of illness. His place was taken by Edgar F. Leonard of Stoughton.

NEW SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

The Boston Herald publishes a dispatch from its Washington correspondent of local interest:

The ship subsidy bill, which Representative Humphrey of Washington state introduced in the House on Tuesday promises to crystalize sentiment in the House speedily for or against legislation. It proposes to increase tonnage dues on vessels in the transoceanic trade to admit ships of foreign build to American register for the foreign trade, and to make the subsidy of American vessels carrying mails on an outward voyage of 4 000 miles or more $4 a mile.

The measure will be antagonized by some subsidy advocates in New England, especially by Senator Frye of Maine, who for many years has been the leading champion of subsidy bills at that end of the Capitol.

"I will never consent to free ships for the foreign trade," said Senator Frye Tuesday.

The Seat of Punctuation.

At the time Colonel Roosevelt was carrying on his simplified spelling movement in Washington there was a meeting of educators at Battle Creek, Mich., and they visited the great sanitariums there. They were shown through, and particular stress was laid by the guide on the success that attended operations there on enlarged and diseased colons, it being claimed that here was the seat of most disease. There was a banquet that night, and one of the visitors opened his speech like this:

"Washington, as we all know, is the seat of spelling reform; but, I take it, Battle Creek is bound to be the seat of punctuation reform, for, as we were told today, you come here with a colon and you depart with a semicolon."—Saturday Evening Post.

If Quincy people appreciate the Summer street store of the Andrew J. Lloyd Co., of Boston, when needing eyeglasses it is so convenient of access. Having a Quincy man, Horace E. Spear, in charge also is a special inducement to drop in when the eyes need attention.

CHICAGO'S BIG ATHLETIC MEET

Three Day Carnival of Sports Is Planned to Be Held.

MANY EVENTS ON PROGRAM.

Nearly Every Kind of Sport Is Promised by Promoters — Crack Athletes Are Expected to Enter—To Be Held Late In February or Early In March.

What promises to be one of the greatest athletic carnivals ever held in the middle west is planned to take place in Chicago the latter part of February or early in March. The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Illinois A. C. and will, according to the present understanding, last three days. At first the preliminary arrangements provided for only track contests, but now the promoters hope to put it on a more pretentious plan.

Cycle races, socker matches, football matches and a basketball tournament are now included. The adding of these branches of sport, it is thought, will give the meet widespread attention. Invitations have been sent to managers of athletic clubs throughout the middle west, and a number of eastern clubs have been invited to take part in the contests.

Chairman Edward C. Racey of the athletic committee declares that indoor track meets are a dead issue as far as Chicagoans are concerned. So it is arranged to have the field events contested during the early part of the carnival. These include the pole vault, shot put, discus throw and probably the high jump events. He said that the public is not interested in these events and that there even was a possibility of having them thrown out altogether.

With all the gossip football has produced this year it appears as if Chicagoans have not as yet got enough of football. During the carnival it is planned to hold a number of indoor matches, to be played between amateur and professional elevens.

EGAN ERICKSEN, SENSATIONAL HIGH JUMPER.

[For some time past Egan Ericksen, the sensational high jumper of New York, has been steadily getting closer to Harry Porter, the world's champion, in ability to clear the bar, but on only one occasion has he defeated Porter, and that was last June. Every time they have met Ericksen has forced Porter to jump close to the record to beat him. He will have another chance at Champion Porter Jan. 28, when the Pastime A. C. games are held in New York, and many believe that he will at that time succeed in beating Porter. It is said that the promoters of the Chicago athletic carnival are after Ericksen to compete at their meet.]

The national basketball championship will be held in Chicago this year, and it is hoped to hold the carnival within a week of that event, so as to draw the best American basketball talent available for a tourney. It is also planned to have two crack indoor baseball teams meet on the board floor.

The program as arranged for them is of a very interesting character. On the second night of the big meet a ten mile run, to be known as the indoor Marathon run, will be held. The Illinois A. C. has already issued strict rules regarding the Marathon run, and every entrant will have to undergo a rigid physical examination before he is allowed to compete. Other distance runs will be provided, such as the one, two and five mile runs. The sprint races will be numerous.

What the Aviators Are Doing

WHILE the aviators in this country have been doing little work of importance of late, they are now to be much in the limelight again, and some exciting flights are promised for the near future. The first of the big aviation meets scheduled to take place in the year 1910 opens in Los Angeles on Jan. 10 and continues until the 20th. The grand total of prizes is $80,600. The prizes have been apportioned by the merchants and manufacturers' committee as follows: For aeronauts, including aeroplanes, $45,000; for spherical balloons, $22,500, and for dirigible airships, $13,100. There will be prizes for speed, for duration of time in the air, for highest altitude attained and for longest flights. These will apply particularly to aeroplanes.

LOUIS PAULHAN.

In the balloon division prizes will be awarded on the basis of distance. This contest is likely to be most interesting, for most of the balloons entered should be able to clear the California state line and might go as far as the Rocky mountains.

Most of the famous American aviators will attend the Los Angeles meet, and a number of crack foreign fliers, including Louis Paulhan of France, who has just arrived in this country, accompanied by his wife; the two pilots, Masson and Miscarol, who recently distinguished themselves at Pau; a woman aeronaut and four mechanicians, with two Bleriot cross channel machines and two of the latest type of Farman machines. After participating in this meet the combination intends to give exhibitions at San Antonio, Galveston, New Orleans, Birmingham, Atlanta and a few northern cities. A tour of Japan, China and India will then be made.

There has been no abatement of the enthusiasm of the fliers abroad, and much good work has been done in the past few months. One of the most remarkable flights made was that of Farman, who remained in the air more than four hours and covered a distance of 144 miles. Hubert Latham has also done some wonderful flying. On one occasion, battling against a gale of nearly forty miles an hour, this daring aeronaut attained a height of about 1,600 feet, beating the official world's record. At another time he created no end of talk over the sensational manner in which he attended a hunting party. He started for the place of meeting in his airship, landed at the shooting box quickly and safely, took part in the hunt and returned four hours later carrying on the monoplane not only his shotgun, but also his bag of game. Women in France have also taken up flying, one, the Baronne de Laroche, going up alone and splendidly managing her machine. She is the first lady to make a flight alone in an aeroplane in France.

And now the Wrights have incorporated themselves. The Wright company will deliver Wright aeroplanes by May 1, 1910. Behind it are Cornelius Vanderbilt, Theodore P. Shonts, Allan A. Ryan, Morton F. Plant, Howard Gould, Andrew Freedman, Robert J. Collier, August Belmont, Edward J. Berwind and Russell A. Alger. The company is capitalized at a million. The factories will be situated near Dayton, O.

BARONNE DE LAROCHE.

Several new flying machines are soon to be given tryouts in this country, and their inventors claim much for them. One of these, the Compton aerocar, has been built for commercial transportation, and Mr. Compton claims that his machine is capable of safely transporting from five to ten passengers long distances.

NORFOLK DOWNS LEAGUE

Team Four Takes Four from Team One

Teams 1 and 4 in the Norfolk Downs bowling league bowled Tuesday night at Poland's alleys, team 4 winning with a total of 1312 to 1258 for team 1. Bain of Team 4 was the high man on single strings with 98, and team 4 on string totals with 443. The highest three string total was made by C. Bugbee of team 4 and Lyons of team 1, each scoring 278. A RUSSIAN PRISONER.

Experience of a Man Who Was Chained to a Wheelbarrow.

In writting of the Schluesselburg prison in McClure's Magazine David Soskice tells of a prisoner who was chained to a wheelbarrow:

"Schedrin had been condemned to hard labor in the convict mines of Siberia and for an attempt to escape from there had been sentenced to be chained to a heavy wheelbarrow. When the order came for his transfer from Siberia to St. Petersburg no conveyance could be found large enough to contain him, the wheelbarrow and the convoy of gendarmes. Yet, as the wheelbarrow had become a part of the prisoner, the gendarmes were afraid to leave it behind. It was therefore decided to place Schedrin with his convoy in one cart and the wheelbarrow behind in another. For several months, day and night, Schedrin and the gendarmes galloped through Siberia upon a troika (a three horsed cart or sledge), while another sped behind them upon which the wheelbarrow reposed, causing the deepest amazement among the peasants in the villages through which they passed. Upon the arrival of the prisoner in SS. Peter and Paul he was once again chained to the barrow, and only after he had been six weeks in the Schluesselburg was he finally detached from it and given freedom of movement within the narrow confines of his cell.

"'When they unchained me,' said Schedrin subsequently, 'I could not get enough movement. I wanted to run and run, and it seemed to me that I could never stop. How strange it is that men who can enjoy perfect freedom of movement never realize the wonderful happiness that is theirs.'"

Sporting Notes.

Rochester's (N. Y.) Aero club will be limited to fifty members.

The Eel, 2:02¼, gray wonder, has been barred from the Ottawa free for all contest and will not race on the ice circuit as a result.

Purdue university will introduce wrestling classes as a means of developing athletic candidates. All applicants for places on the teams will be asked to take part.

GOVERNOR DRAPER'S ADDRESS TO LEGISLATURE

Industrial School Problem Considered, Also Meat Inspection and Milk Producing

GOVERNAR DRAPER.

LIEUT. GOV. FROTHINGHAM.

Gentlemen of the General Court of Massachusetts:

In presenting my second message for your consideration, I desire first to thank the people of Massachusetts for their renewed expression of confidence in me.

Finances

The net direct debt of the commonwealth of Masachusetts on Dec. 1, 1909, was $18,980,755.42. This debt on Dec. 1, 1908, was $17,669,372.69. During the past year, therefore, the net direct state debt increased $1,311,382.73. The net metropolitan debt, or contingent debt, as it is called in the auditor's report, was, on Dec. 1, 1909, $60,676,311.03. On Dec. 1, 1908, this debt was $60,428,223.14—so that this debt has increased during the past year $248,087.89. There have been issued during the year, charged to the net state debt for permanent improvements, new bonds amounting to $2,326,309, while bonds have been paid amounting to $2,552,500. The metropolitan debt was increased by bonds issued for permanent improvements amounting to $1,643,000, and was decreased by payment of bonds to the amount of $8,900 and a contribution to the sinking fund of $1,368,912.11.

The receipts from miscellaneous sources of revenue during the year ending Dec. 1, 1909, were $7,694,776.10. The state tax was $4,500,000, so that the total revenues for the year, exclusive of cash on hand, amounted to $12,194,776.10. There was paid out for expenses during the year $12,822,559.24, so that the cash on hand was quite substantially reduced from Dec. 1, 1908, to Dec. 1, 1909.

We have in the last year, in both classes of debt, issued bonds for permanent improvements, but we have not increased either class of debt as much as the amount of such bonds. The net debt was, however, in each case greater on the first day of December, 1909, than it was on the first day of December, 1908.

The annual charge for interest on the net direct debt in 1909, reckoned at 3½ percent, would be something more than $650,000 a year; while on the metropolitan debt the annual interest charge, which has to be paid by the metropolitan district, at the same rate of 3½ percent, would be more than $2,100,000 a year.

I call these matters to your attention, and ask you to seriously consider whether it is not time, in making your appropriations, to provide for a substantial payment each year on the principal of the net direct debt. It also seems to me that it is time that the principal of the metropolitan debt should begin to be decreased, as the annual interest charges are constantly growing larger and becoming a heavier barden.

The expenses of the commonwealth were materially enlarged during the past year because of the greatly increased number of unfortunate people who had to be cared for in our various institutions, and we must expect this to be larger in the future. This fact should be taken into consideration in making your appropriations for the current year. It is obviously necessary, with the finances of the commonwealth in their present condition, to practice economy in every expenditure, and certainly no large new undertakings should be started which are not absolutely necessary, except those which are for the proper care of our sick and unfortunate.

Municipal Accounting and Registration of Municipal Loans

The bureau of statistics is doing a large amount of work in connection with municipal accounting reform. It is a legitimate function of the commonwealth to assist its municipalities, and especially the towns, in devising methods by which their affairs can be better administered to their own advantage, and it is highly desirable that it should do so in the interest of all our citizens and of investors in municipal securities.

The very unfortunate occurrences which came to light during the past year in connection with the finances of the town of Framingham have brought forcibly to the attention of the people the necessity for some reform in the method of issuing municipal loans.

I suggest that some plan be adopted requiring the registration and certification in the office of the bureau of statistics, of all town and city loans.

There are many people interested in this subject who have suggested various methods by which this can be done, and I submit the general subject to your attention, with an earnest request for prompt and wise action.

Interest on War Loans

It has been called to my attention that there are certain equitable claims for reimbursement of gold premium and interest charges paid by the commonwealth on its war loans, which the federal government may properly be asked to pay, after enabling legislation has been enacted at Washington. The sum at issue is a large one, amounting to more than a million dollars.

At the present time there is no authority in law which would allow the governor and council to make proper contracts and arrangements for the presentation of these claims. Under section 79 of chapter 6 of the revised laws, the governor, with the advice and consent of the council, is given authority to make contracts to collect moneys due the commonwealth of Massachusetts, "except any claim for reimbursement of interest paid by the commonwealth on its war loans." These claims to which I have referred are in part for "interest paid by the

HORSE ELECTROCUTED

Fell Over Dead While Crossing Railroad

A valuable horse owned by William Westland, the hardware dealer, was instantly killed at 11.40 this morning, by coming in contact with a rail heavily charged with electricity. Mr. Westland was driving up to Crane's elevator on Liberty street, and in doing so had to cross a spur track of the railroad. The rails were covered with snow and ice, and as the horse stepped upon them he received a severe shock of electricity and fell over dead.

Snow and ice are practically non conductors of electricity, and it is somewhat of a mystery just how the horse received the shock. It is possible that during the storm some of the wires in that vicinity became buried in the snow, and that the horse stepped upon one of these wires which was charged with electricity.

VICTIM OF THE STORM

Street Railway Conductor Dies of Pneumonia

It was with feelings of sorrow that the street railway employees learned Wednesday night of the death of Edward Kenney, one of the conductors. Mr. Kenney had been in the employ of the road for nearly seven years, and was universally popular, not only with his fellow workers, but with the patrons as well.

During the severe storm that began Christmas night and continued through the next day, he was employed on one of the snow ploughs, keeping the road open. While thus employed he got his feet wet and upon his return to the car barn neglected to take the care he should to ward off a cold but laid down for a little rest. He thus took a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. Everything possible was done for him, but without avail and he passed away at his home at Norfolk Downs at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. He was a young man about 25 years of age and previous to moving to Norfolk Downs he resided at South Quincy. He had also been employed as a sub-carrier at the Quincy post office.

RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions of sympathy have been adopted by the Ward Four Improvement Association:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst our fellow citizen James A. White,

Be it resolved that by his death we have lost a well tried and faithful friend. One who has occupied a prominent place among us and who has been an honor to the different associations with which he was affiliated. Our hearts are saddened by the loss of him who in all relations with his fellowman was impelled by feelings of kindness and justice.

Resolved, that we bow reverently before the Creator of all things, and hope we may be inspired with those principles of honor, integrity of purpose, and kindness of heart which were so manifest in our deceased friend's life.

Resolved, we, the members of the Ward Four Improvement Association, extend to the afflicted family our sincere sympathy in their sorrowful hours.

Board of Trade Elect New President and Listen to Reports

The annual meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Wednesday evening and was well attended. In opening the meeting, President Richards said it was the custom generally for the new officers to tell what they proposed to do. He, however, would change that, and admit how little he had accomplished, and at the same time thank the members for their faithfull service, so that some good had been accomplished. Today the Board of Trade is a live working force in the community, and on a good financial basis. There are many things to be desired in our city at this time. One is the suggestion for all night street lighting, another a waiting room in City Square, and he hoped the Board of Trade would assist in these matters. The New Haven railroad should be required to furnish reasonable train service to all stations. The service today is not all that could be desired. We should by example and precept encourage home industries. He would suggest that the matter of the abolishing of grade crossings be considered from time to time, that the time and money spent by the Board of Trade might not be wasted, and that when the time arrives the people of Quincy exercise their prerogative.

PRESIDENT STONE.

He was sorry to say that there had been some criticism during the past year at the expense of the Board of Trade. If his position had caused it, he would much prefer to have it righted. In this connection he would say that the Board of Trade was entirely free from all political discussion, and he trusted it would continue along these lines. There is plenty to accomplish in Quincy, and he would say to the critics that they were all welcome here, provided political influences are not worked in.

We do not claim great accomplishments. It was however a source of pleasure to know there was one body of men in our city who were willing to give their time and means in trying to accomplish something for the general welfare without the desire for reward. The Board of Trade has done that. One of the first committees he served on was in regard to five-cent fares from all parts of the city on the street cars to Houghs Neck, to help build up that section, and be to the mutual benefit of the whole city. The railway was convinced by our argument, and the result has been the building up of that section.

Another matter was the reduction of fares on the steam railroad, by getting the coupon books within reach of all. Also in providing suitable loading facilities at our granite terminals and the development of our water front. In this connection he desired to say, that at our first introduction in the water ways convention by our present water front commissioner, part of the expense was born by the Board of Trade.

All organizations, even churches, or some of its members, may be open to honest criticism, but we have no right to overlook the good service done through the possible shortcomings of a few. It behooves those who know how things should be done to get into the harness.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

Will ex-Candidate Nichols be president of the Board of Trade in 1911? Ex-Candidate Stone has succeeded ex-Candidate Piper for 1910.

The concluding chapter of "The Fourth Estate" will appear in the Daily Ledger on Saturday. Many have watched the career of the young newspaper hero with interest, and are wondering if he will stand the final test.

John McAnarney, Esq., who will be one of the speakers next week at the dedication of a new factory in Framingham, the exercises being under the auspices of the Board of Trade of that town, should be invited to tell Quincy people how they do it in Framingham that we may go and do likewise. There is plenty of vacant land in Quincy with good railroad facilities just right for factories.

Do you realize that the few birds that spend the winter with us are having a hard time to find something to eat? Why not throw a few crumbs or seeds where they can reach them this afternoon. It will do your heart good to see the little things gobble them up and at the same time try to show you their appreciation by a continual chatter. Pass this along to your friends and do your share towards relieving the suffering of live creatures even if they are only little birds.

Congratulations to Senator Hultman and Representatives Thomas and Langelier upon their appointments in the Legislature. While many men are looking for easy jobs, it is different when a man is elected to the Legislature. Most of the legislators want to become members of the hardest worked committees, and in this the Quincy men have been successful. It is doubtful if any committees will have a larger budget of bills to consider than the four upon which senator Hultman has been appointed, the two upon which Representative Langelier has been appointed, and the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs upon which Representative Thomas will serve.

Some of the churches of Quincy are slow in availing themselves of the free offer of the local press. A press agent for every church and constant advertising in newspapers as a means of creating interest in religious affairs, were parts of a plan advocated in a lecture at the Doremus Congregational church, Chicago, this week, by E. G. Packard of Boston, who calls himself a "publicity evangelist." The lecture was illustrated by lantern slides showing just how the advertisements should be worded and the illustrations used. It is a fact which many ministers are beginning to understand, that commercial methods can be applied to religious work he said.

A few years ago there was a clamor for more business men on the School Committee, which at that time was made up largely of physicians. Some of the physicians remain, but the board now includes several local business men in the list of nine. This week a business man has been elected chairman. We do not recall a year when a granite manufacturer was elected to this important position. Chairman John L. Miller is a practical man and has been successful in his business. He knows the value of education, and also the shortcomings of grammar school graduates and High school graduates when it comes to the practical test of life. Many doubtless have found it difficult to obtain the cubic contents of a piece of granite, and more difficult to estimate the weight. Perhaps we will hear more in Quincy about industrial education, which is being investigated at Brockton and elsewhere, and is proving a success where introduced. Mr. Miller is always an enthusiast in whatever he undertakes, and we shall look for some of his progressive ideas in schools and schoolbuildings.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Fifty-one lawyers in the legislature ought to be able to hold down 13 newspaper men.—North Adams Transcript.

Portland Express: A Christmas wedding is all right from a sentimental standpoint, but the young bride should carefully consider that she will in the future years be cheating herself out of an extra set of presents.—Portland Express.

Newspaper men in these days of lost wires and interrupted communication get an idea of what it meant to get out a daily paper in the days of no telephones and a restricted telegraph service. The veterans had their troubles, and did mighty well considering the conditions that surrounded them.—Brockton Enterprise.

Representative Lovering pays his respects to Speaker Cannon by saying it is the latter's own fault that he finds himself in an uncomfortable position with the members of his own party. He also ventures the prediction that "Cannonism "is doomed, and that the time is not very remote when every member of Congress can resume his self-respect as a representative of his district in Congress. There are a good many others who will agree with the Congressman in this matter.—Old Colony Memorial.

DAY NURSERY FESTIVAL.

The Day Nursery was not forgotten at the holiday time. The Elks generously provided a real Christmas dinner on Monday, Dec. 27. Turkey, vegetables, cranberry sauce, nuts and even plum-pudding were the good things sent. On New Year's day came the Christmas festival. It was arranged by Mrs. Dasha, Mrs. Wrisley, Mrs. Addison and Mrs. Wadsworth and was a great delight to the children of the Nursery and their mothers.

A beautifully decorated tree given by the Universalist Sunday school was the center of attraction and a real live Santa Claus with all the fascinating accompaniments of bells and brilliant costume was on hand to talk to the children and give out the presents.

There were warm mittens and stockings a toy and bag of candy for each child, a gift for each mother and Santa found on the tree a box of handkerchiefs for the much loved matron, Mrs. Loring.

A short entertainment was given consisting of singing and recitations by the Nursery children and carols by Misses Esther Dasha, Esther Beckford, Elsie Burrell and Dorothy Lowe.

Ice cream, oranges and cake were served, some of the neighbors came in to enjoy the good time and a number of friends and officers of the Nursery availed themselves of the privilege of joining in this Christmas festivity.

Many kind friends made the festival possible. Two little children, Richard Tappenden and his sister gave the toys and were honored guests at the Christmas party.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Mothers' Association met in Bethany chapel Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. W. H. Doble presided and gave some very helpful thoughts for the New Year.

The secretary's report was read and also the names of the children of the association, whose birthdays occur in January. Dr. E. N. Hardy led the devotional exercises, and took for his subject, "The Fullness of Life." Dr. Hardy's talk was much appreciated by all.

Miss Grace M. Isaac of West Newton, was the soloist, and sang two songs during the afternoon. Miss Isaac is by no means a stranger here and her numbers were received with much enthusiasm.

Miss Annie Kendall Dyer of Braintree, gave a most interesting paper on "Egypt and the Holy Land." Mrs. J. F. Hunt and Mrs. E. E. Miller served refreshments during the social hour.

—The third death among people insured under the Massachusetts plan of saving bank life insurance has just been reported to the State Actuary from Whitman. It is the first death claim to be settled by the Whitman bank, the two earlier ones having occurred among the insured at the People's Saving Bank of Brockton. Emma C. Edson, of West street, East Bridgewater, 58 years old died, Sunday, Jan. 2. She was one of the earliest policy holders, holding policy No. 123. She was bookkeeper for her brother who is attorney for the Whitman savings bank. The policy was an endowment policy which would have matured at age 65. It was issued Oct. 5, 1908. The beneficiaries are two sisters. The small number of deaths among the "risks "of the two savings and insurance banks has been favorably commented upon by some insurance men as evidence of the conservatism of the medical examiners and others connected with the plan.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

Fish Were Here Before the Pilgrims Landed

(Historical Paper No. 4.)

Thomas Morton came to Mount Wollaston, as Quincy was originally called in 1622, two years after the Landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. He relates that the brooks, rivulet and coast shore abounded with the most delicious fish and writes as follows, his capitalization and spelling being followed:

"Among Fishes, First I will begin with the Codd, because it is the most commodious of all fish, as may appeare, by the use which is made of them in foraigne parts.

"The Codd fishing is much used in America, (whereof New England is a part) in so much as 300 Sayle of shipps, from divers parts, have used to be imployed yearely in that trade.

"I have seene in one Harboure next Richmond Island, 15 Sayle of shipps at one time, that have taken in them dryed Codds for Spaine, and the Straights, and it has bin found that the Saylers have made 15, 18, 20, 22, p. share for a common man.

"The Coast aboundeth with such multitudes of Codd, that the inhabitants of New England doe dunge their grounds with Codd; and it is a commodity better than the golden mines of the Spanish Indies; for without dried Codd the Spaniards, Portigal and Italian would not be able to vittle of a shipp for the Sea; and I am sure at the Canaries it is the principall commodity, which place lyeth neere New England very convenient, for the vending of this commodity, one hundred of these being at the price of 300 of New Found Land Codds, greate store of traine oyle, is mayd of the livers of the Codd, and is a commodity that without question will enrich the inhabitants of New England quickly; and is therefore a principal commodity.

"The Bass is an excellent Fish both fresh and salte, one hundred whereof salted (at a market) have yielded 5 p. They are so large, the head of one will give a good eater a dinner, and for daintinesse of diet, they excell the Mary bones of Beefe. There are such multitudes, that I have seene stopped into the river (this river was probably Black's Creek, as Morton's house was near this stream of water in Quincy) close adjoyning to my house with a sand at one tide, so many as will loade a ship of a 100 Tonnes.

"Other places have greater quantities in so much as wagers have bin layed, that one should not throw a stone in the water but that he should hit a fish. I my selfe, at the turning of the tyde have seen such multitudes passe out of a pound, that it seemed to mee, that one might goe over there backs drishod. These follow the bayte up the rivers, and sometimes are followed for bayte and chased into the bayes and shallow waters, by the grand pise; and these may have also a prime place in the Catalogue of Commodities.

"The Mackarels are the baite for the Basse, and these have bin chased into the shallow waters, where so many thousands have shott themselves a shore with the surfe of the sea, that whole hoggesheads have bin taken up on the sands; and for length they excell any of other parts, they have bin measured 18 and 19 inches in length, and seaven in breadth, and are taken with a drayle, (as boats use to passe to and froe at sea on business) in very greate quantities all along the Coaste. The Fish is good salted, for store against the winter, as well as fresh, and to be accounted a good Commodity.

"This Sturgeon in England is regalis piscis, every man in New England may catch what he will, there are multitudes of them, and they are much fatter then those that are brought into England from other parts, in so much as by reason of their fatnesse, they doe not looke white but yellow, which made a cooke presume they were not so good as them of Roushea; silly fellow that could not understand that it is the nature of fish salted or pickelled, the fatter, the yellower being best to preserve.

"For the taste, I have warrant of Ladies of worth, with choice pallats for the commendations, who like the taste so well, that they esteemed it beyond the Sturgeon of other parts, and sayd they were deceaved in the looks, therefore let the Sturgeon passe for a commodity.

"Of Salmons there is greate abundance, and these may be allowed for a Commodity, and placed in the Catallogue.

"Of Herrings there is greate store, fat and faire, and (to my mind) as good as any I have seene, and these may be preserved and made a good commodity at the Canaries.

"Of Eeles there is abundance, both in the saltwaters, and in the fresh; and the fresh water Eele there, (if I may take the judgement of a London Fishmonger) is the best that hee hath found in his life time, I have with jieele potts found my howsehold, (being nine persons, besides doggs) with them, taking them every tide (for 4 moneths space) and preserving of them for winter store; and these may prove a good commodity.

"Of Smelts there is such abundance, that the Salvages doe take them up the rivers with baskets, like sives.

"There is a Fish, (by some called shadds, by some alewives) that at the spring of the yeare passe up the rivers to spaune in the ponds, and are taken in such multitudes in every river that hath a pond at the end, that the inhabitants doung their ground with them. You may see in one township a hundred acres together, set with these Fish, every acre taking 1000 of them, and an acre thus dressed will produce and yeald so much corne as 3 acres without fish, and (least any Virginea man would inferre hereupon, that the ground of New England is barren, because they use no fish in setting their corne, I desire them to be remembered, the cause is plaine in Virginea) they have it not to sette. But this practice is onely for the Indian Maize (which must be set by hands) not for English graine, and this is therefore a commodity there.

"There is a large sized called Halliput, or Turbut; some are taken so bigg that two men have much adoe to hale them into the boate; but there is such plenty, that the fisher men only eate the heads and finnes, and throw away the bodies; such in Paris would yeeld 5 or 6 crownes a peece; and this is no discommodity.

"There are excellent Plaice and easily taken. They (at flowing water) do almost come ashore, so that one may stepp but halfe a foote deepe, and pick them up on the sands; and this may passe with some allowance.

"Hake is a dainty white fish, and excellent vittell fish, and may passe with other commodities, because there are mulitudes.

"There are greate store of Pilchers at Michelmas, in many places, I have seene Cormorants in length 3 miles feedinge upon the Sent.

"Lobsters are there infinite in store in all the parts of the land, and very excellent. The most use that I made of them, in 5 years after I came there was but to baite my Hooke for to catch Basse, I had bin so cloyed with them the first day I went a shore. This being knowne, they shall pass for a commodity to the inhabitnats, for the Salvages will meete 500 or 1000 at a place where Lobsters come in with the tyde, to eate, and save dried for store, abiding in that place, feasting and sporting a month or 6 weekes together.

"There are greate store of the Oysters in the entrances of all Rivers; they are not rounde as those of England, but excellent fat, and all good, I have seen an Oyster banke a mile at length.

"Mustles there are infinite store. I have often gon to Wassaguscus, where were excellent Mustles to eate (for variety) the fish is so fat and large.

"Clames is a shellfish, which I have seene sold in Westminster for 12 pe. the skore. These our swine feede upon, and of them there is no want, every shore is full, it makes the swine proove exceedingly, they will not faile at low water to be with them. The Salvages are much taken with the delight of this fishe, and are not cloyed (notwithstanding the plenty) for our swine we finde it a good commodity.

"Raser fishes there are. Freeles there are. Cockles and Scallops, and divers other sorts of Shelfish very good foode."

The fishing industry of a later date will be written up in some future paper. Another historical article will appear next week.

BOARD OF TRADE.

APOLOGY DEMANDED.

Following the address of President Richards the article in a recent issue of a Boston Sunday paper was taken up and discussed. In that article, parties who it was alleged were interviewed gave the Board of Trade a black eye.

Henry L. Kincaide who was given credit for one of the interviews sent a letter to the Board of Trade which was read denying the interview published.

A motion was made that the paper in question be interviewed in regard to the article, and that a public apology be demanded. This motion was later amended, and a committee of three, consisting of Walter E. Piper, Albert T. Whitman and W. P. Thompson, was appointed to interview the publishers of the paper.

The annual report of the auditor was read and accepted, and one new member admitted to membership.

NEW PRESIDENT.

The board then proceeded to the election of officers and the following were elected:

President—Eugene R. Stone.
Vice President—William P. Thompson.
Secretary—Arthur W. Stetson.
Treasurer—Charles H. Johnson.
Directors—Albert L. Whitman, G. B. Bates and Albert Nelson.

In taking the chair President Stone said he had been a member of the Board of Trade for a number of years, and had taken great pleasure in attending the meetings. The Board of Trade stood for a great deal, and he hoped much good would be accomplished during the coming year. He would do his part toward making the Board of Trade a success.

Rising votes of thanks were given to the retiring officers.

ANNUAL BANQUET.

The subject of the annual banquet was then taken up and discussed, after which it was voted to hold a banquet. The following were appointed as the committee with full power to secure speakers and arrange the date: Charles C. Foster, John R. Richards, Edward J. Sandberg, T. L. Williams, W. H. Teasdale, Walter E. Piper and A. L. Whitman.

At this point the President announced that the local correspondent of the Boston paper, which published the article that had caused much discussion, was present and was ready and willing to answer any questions.

For half an hour the members asked questions, during which he said that he was present with the man who wrote the article when he interviewed the Mayor and that the Mayor did not say what he was given credit for saying.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

Changes seen to be the order of the day at the High school. Recently Superintendent of Schools Parlin was succeeded by Albert L. Barbour. Now Dr. N. S. Hunting the chairman of the School Committee has resigned and John L. Miller has been elected. Then Leslie L. Cleveland has resigned as head master, and will retire about Feb. 1.

A pipe burst in Room 10 on Wednesday, causing considerable bother and confusion.

Most all of the college students have gone back to resume their studies for the hardest part of the year between now and Easter.

The first game of basket ball will be played tomorrow when Abington will journey to Quincy. The team should by their showing thus far, be able to defeat the bunch from up country although they always pull out a huskey squad. The probable line-up will consist of Bates, rf., Manning, lf., Prout, rb., Chapman, lb, Marceau, or Arthur, c.

William Nolan, Yale '12, returned to college Thursday after a two weeks rest at home.

A select assembly is being planned by a few former High school fellows to be held in Alpha hall in February.

Those who attended the Quincy High school in 1903 and 1904 will be pleased to welcome back to Quincy as the headmaster of the High school James D. Howlett. Mr. Howlett made good as sub-master while here, and has made a success since as master at Farmington, N. H., and Plymouth, Mass. He was in Quincy while Chas. F. Harper was head master and helped to make the latter's administration popular.

* * *

Dr. Hunting the retiring chairman of the School Committee was chairman of the sub- committee for the High school and has in recent years presented the diplomas to the graduates.

Mr. Hart, janitor at the High school, is very sick with erysipelas.

THE Y. M. C. A. ASSEMBLY

Boys' Addrdess by a Harvard Football Player

The assembly for the extension club and members of the Y. M. C. A. held at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening was a great success. About 150 boys were present and enjoyed the evening. Gil Browne of Harvard was unable to be present, but Paul Withington, center on Harvard varsity for two years, and also a member of the varsity crew was the speaker. He told at length of football experiences and of the season at Harvard in a most interesting manner. Warren G. Richards of Boston entertained in a delightful way and was applauded most heartily. Refreshments were served after which the boys were divided into groups and organized for Saturday, mass meeting in Music hall. Announcements were made for all outside clubs and the program for the coming weeks is most interesting and helpful. The committee in charge were Wesley Brown, Sturgis Hunt, Ralph Briggs and Henry Prescott.

WOLLASTON M. E.

Rev. W. J. Kelley of East Dedham preached to an attentive audience at the Wollaston M. E. church Wednesday evening. He took for his text Matt. 5:14—"Ye are the light of the world." He spoke of christians as the lights of the world shining from the reflected light of Christ who is the great light. He spoke of the responsibilities of the christian, and how the christian needed to be true so that he could be trusted. Miss Edith M. Sisson sang "Sweet will of God, "and "It is just like His great Son." Herbert Cassidy had charge of the praise service. Rev. F. H. Knight, D. D., of Melrose, a former pastor, will preach this evening at 7.45 o'clock.

FULL INQUIRY DEMANDED

Resolution Concerning Forestry Row Introduced In the Senate

Washington, Jan. 6.—The long strife between Secretary Ballinger of the irterior department and Gifford Pinchot, chief forester, came to a head when Senator Jones of Washington introduced a resolution providing for the investigation of the department and the forest service.

The resolution calls for a committee of six senators appointed by the vice president and six members of the house named by the speaker. The committee is given full power, and all hearings will be public. Jones, in presenting the resolution, spoke in praise of Ballinger.

The committee is empowered to subpoena witnesses and require the production of all papers and information necessary. The resolution provides that the committee shall report to congress all its findings.

KNOX'S NOTE IGNORED

Powers Make No Response to International Arbitration Proposition

Washington, Jan. 6.—With a view of making international arbitration judicial in fact as well as in theory, Secretary Knox has addressed a circular note to the powers, proposing that the jurisdiction of the international prize court, authorized in 1907, by The Hague peace conference, be extended so as to make it a court of arbitral justice. This note was dated Oct. 19, 1909. No responses have been received.

The international prize court was to be composed of fifteen judges, eight of whom were to be chosen from the larger maritime countries, and they were to serve six years. The other judges were to be chosen from the remaining nations, and were to sit for a longer or shorted period, as determined by the maritime standing of their respective countries.

A JOINT INSTALLATION

New Officers of Bay View Lodge and Daughters

A joint installation of the officers of Bay View lodge, L. O. L. and the Daughters of John Adams was held in Electa hall Tuesday evening.

MATHEMATICIANS ARE ASTOUNDED

Lecture on Fourth Dimension by Eleven-Year-Old Boy

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 6.—William J. Sidis, Harvard's 11-year-old mathematical prodigy, astounded an audience of seventy-five of the best mathematicians in the university at the meeting of the Harvard Mathematical club last night by his masterly elucidation of the mysteries of the fourth dimension, a subject which the ordinary mortal cannot even imagine, much less describe.

For more than two hours Sidis expounded his theories, illustrating with diagrams drawn on the blackboard.

Sidis is now taking a course at Harvard in vector analysis, an extremely difficult and very advanced branch of higher mathematics. His instructors are unable to account for his precocity, which is manifested particularly in mathematics, though his education has covered subjects beyond the reach of most men twice his age. He has written a text book of astronomy.

POWERS ARE CENTRALIZED

House Passes Bill Making Taft Chief of Whole Canal Zone

Washington, Jan. 6.—The Mann bill providing for the administration of the Panama canal zone passed the house by a vote of 119 to 102.

The measure abolishes the Isthmian canal commission and invests the legislative, executive and judicial power on the isthmus in the President of the United States.

The vote was along strict party lines and the Democrats put up a hard fight against the measure.

Protection For Immigrants

Washington, Jan. 6.—Ill-treatment of women immigrants during their occupancy of steerage accommodations led to the introduction by Senator Dillingham of a bill providing for the presence of United States surgeons, immigrant inspectors and matrons on all vessels carrying immigrants or emigrant passengers between United States and foreign ports.

Five Horses Cremated

Boston, Jan. 6.—A blaze in the stable of the Gilbert Coal company late last night cremated five horses and drove nearly fifty scantily attired people from the surrounding tenement houses into the streets. The loss is about $4000.

ROW IN STATE COLLEGE

Head of Experiment Station Is Asked by Some Trustees to Get Out

Durham, N. H., Jan. 6.—Professor E. D. Sangerson has been asked to resign by certain trustees of the New Hampshire state college as head of the experiment station, by reason of claims made to the effect that the station has been mismanaged.

The report reached here that the board of agriculture at Washington has refused to send on the $7000 quarterly payment for the expenses of the station on account of the existing disagreement, and that the money will not be forwarded until some settlement of the present difficulty is reached.

It is understood that President Gill of the college sustains Professor Sangerson. The latter states that he is being made the victim of personal spite, but refuses to state just what course he will pursue.

RIOT OVER MILL STRIKE

Night Men Clash With Day Men When Latter Try to Go to Work

North Attleboro, Mass., Jan. 6.—Riot calls for all the police of the Attleboros and all the surrounding towns were sent in to put down a riot started in the town of Norton by a gang of 250 strikers from the mills of the Talbot company. Scores of officers were rushed there.

The night men went on strike yesterday and the company issued an ultimatum that they must return before this noon or be evicted. This angered the men and the trouble followed.

The day men tried to go to work and a general fight between the night and day crews followed. Clubs were swung and heads broken. Scores were hurt.

BUCKET BRIGADE IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Finally Compelled to Call Out the City Apparatus

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 6.—A hundred patients in St. Vincent's hospital last night were terrified when wisps of smoke crept under doors and filled almost every room in the hospital.

In another part of the building, nurses acting as a bucket brigade and doctors as firemen fought for half an hour to quench the flames that were creeping through partitions, but the fire gained such headway that finally the fire department was called on, and after a stubborn fight of nearly an hour more the blaze was extinguished. The loss is set at between $1500 and $2500.

The fire was caused by crossed electric wires in a room above the operating room. Fortunately no patients were in the room or in those nearby, so that none of them had to be removed.

ANOTHER TRIP TO BERMUDA

Return of Ailment From Which Mark Twain Has Been Suffering

New York, Jan. 6.—In far from good health and grief-stricken at the recent sudden death of his daughter, Jean, Samuel L. Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, the author, has sailed back to Bermuda. It was only a little over two weeks ago that Clemens returned from Bermuda to spend the Christmas holidays at his home in West Redding Conn.

Mr. Clemens said that the ailment of which he complained on his arrival had returned. He attributed the pain in his left breast, however, to indigestion, "and that is not the sort of ailment that causes people to die," added the humorist, with a faint touch of his old-time levity.

STRIKE PICKETS FINED

Kept Court Clerks Busy Counting 2500 Pennies With Which They Settled

New York, Jan. 6.—Four striking shirt waist makers, who were fined $25 collectively for their activities as pickets, paid their fines in pennies. It took the entire clerical force of the court nearly half an hour to count the 2500 pennies, while the girls looked on in sardonic amusement.

Miss Anne Morgan is still active in behalf of the girls in the face of criticism from within the ranks because of her attacks on Socialism. The strike goes on without compromise.

Four Perish In Fire

Peoria, Ills., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Linton Davidson and her two children, and Joseph Pacey, who roomed with them, were burned to death in a fire here. Davidson jumped from a two-story window and suffered injuries which may result in his death.

Postoffice In a Barroom

Colebrook, River, Conn., Jan. 6.—Because no one wanted the job the local postoffice was abolished and the mail is left in a barroom in the village hotel. The bartender hands out the mail to families living in the vicinity.

Rapid Transit Trains Collide

New York, Jan. 6.—One man was killed, another was seriously injured and two others were less seriously hurt when two Brooklyn Rapid Transit trains, both "running light," collided on the Williamsburg bridge. Icy rails caused the accident.

ENCOURAGING YOUNG BLOOD

New Men to Handle Important Legislation In Congress

WILL HEAD OFF INSURGENTS

President Is Also Assured of Support of Aldrich and Other Big Men of the Senate In Carrying Out His Program—Hitchcock Will Not Recognize Insurgents In the Distribution of Postoffice Department Patronage

Washington, Jan. 6.—One brand new move is now added to others by which the Republican organization in congress is determined to iron out all wrinkles in the party and insist upon a business-like session. This is the decision of the house leaders to place younger and hitherto unrecognized men in charge of bills of more or less importance.

The object of thus encouraging the younger blood is, of course, to weaken the insurgent force, or at least to prevent it from gaining desirable recruits. Heretofore the old guard has clung tenaciously to its privilege of handling all legislation. Chairmen have been selected from among the strongest machine men and they have never let go of the reins. The result has been to keep some of the ablest members of the house sitting about doing nothing and chafing at their enforced idlenes.

The leaders will now go down the line in the committees and select certain bills which are to be reported and place upon some member other than a chairman the responsibility of carrying them through the house. The lower branch abounds with men who are not chairmen and yet in the home fields have made at least state reputations for ability and force. They may or may not be insurgents, but they are the equal in ability of most of the chairmen of the house.

They have their own circle of influence, they have legislation of their own in which they are interested. The result of such a policy at least cannot injure the house organization and is expected to strengthen it materially.

Confirmation of stories is found in the conferences held with the president by Senators Aldrich and Root and Attorney General Wickersham. It is posible to say openly what could only be hinted before, that Aldrich and his influential following have definitely decided to stand with the president in most of his recommendations. That is to say, they will do their utmost to back him up rather than to hamper him to show their own power, as sometimes has been done in the past.

Even Senator Hale of Maine, supposed to be the bitterest opponent of the tariff board and the work President Taft has cut out for it, is being quoted as repudiating wholly his own warnings to the president uttered in debate last summer and assuring inquirers that the tariff board will find him its best friend.

This comfortable line-up is not intended to guarantee that all the adminstration bills—the railroad bill, for example—will go through exactly as the president would like to see them. The point is that the effort will be in that direction. When the old guard of the senate have the courage to ignore the opposition of railroad managers and to tell them virtually that the railroads must take what congress gives them, the significance of the general change of attitude can be appreciated.

Postmaster General Hitchcock contributes a third element of supposed strength to the anti-insurgent campaign by giving his insurgent callers to understand that they re not to be recognized in distributing patronage until it is known what their course will be. The Republican congressional committee also has taken a hand and caused it to be known that it will aid anti-insurgent candidates in anti-machine districts. Newspaper letters attacking the insurgents have been sent to the editors in their districts, notably in Iowa, accompanied with a notice that the congressional committee would supply more of the same sort if wanted.

Altogether the stiffest kind of organization is being perfected all along the line for the purpose of carrying through the Taft policies. The obvious purpose is of course to unite the party for the congressional campaigns of next summer and fall. All the members desire to get away early, to look after their fences, but they know they cannot do this unless the insurgent obstacles to rapid legislation are removed.

Morse Pardon Plea Circulated

Portland, Me., Jan. 6.—A campaign to save Charles W. Morse, now in the Atlanta federal prison, has started here. Petitions to President Taft asking an unconditional pardon are being circulated. The petitions declare that imprisonment while contesting the case was penalty enough.

Fined $1000 For Conspiracy

Boston, Jan. 6.—Julius Wolfman, a money-lender, who was convicted with three others of conspiracy to conceal assets in bankruptcy, was fined $1000 by Judge Dodge in the United States district court.

BRIEFS

A patent has been issued to James E. Geary of this city.

Ex Mayor Charles Francis Adams has been elected a director of the Boston & Lowell Railroad.

Sleighing continues but the rain today may give it a black-eye. This is the twelfth consecutive day.

George L. Gill Rebekah Lodge 146 install officers for the ensuing year at I. O. O. F. hall tonight.

The ice men welcome the rain, as they were in a quandary what to do with the snow ice. They expect more cold weather to follow.

Early Wednesday morning the temperature was 5 below zero; early this morning it was 45 degrees above; a difference of 50 degrees in 24 hours.

The annual midwinter reunion, chowder party and smoke talk of the W. M. French Hose Association will be held Saturday evening at Union hall. The festivities will commence at 8 o'clock and from then on good cheer will prevail.

Gentlemen's night of the Art and Literature committee of the Quincy Women's club is to be held next week Wednesday, Jan. 12 instead of last evening as announced in yesterday's paper. Thomas A. Watson, Esq., of East Braintree will read "The Winter's Tale." Further announcement will be made at the club meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

The series of demonstration lectures at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club under the auspices of the Home Economics committee which were interrupted because the lecturer Mrs. Mary L. Wade went west, are to be resumed. The next one on Luncheon Dishes will be given Friday of this week and the last one next week which will end the course.

HOME ENDORSEMENT

Hundreds of Quincy Citizens Can Tell You All About It.

Home endorsement the public expression of Quincy people, should be evidence beyond dispute for every Quincy reader. Surely the experience of friends and neighbors, cheerfully given by them, will carry more weight than the utterances of strangers residing in faraway places. Read the following:

W. Charlesworth, 33 Cranch street, Quincy, Mass., says: "About five years ago I began to suffer from kidney trouble. I had pains in my back which were very severe at times and cold or damp weather aggravated my suffering. I knew that my kidneys were at fault and used everything I could think of in an effort to obtain relief but to no avail. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly advertised, I finally decided to give them a trial and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before I had taken the contents of two boxes, the backache was a thing of the past and I felt better in every way. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

STAGE BARRED TO CHILDREN

Long Controversy Ended as Result of a Test Case

MASSACHUSETTS FACTORY LAW

Supreme Court Holds That It Is Broad Enough to Include Theatrical Exhibitions Which Require Constant Attention, Regular Effort and Physical or Mental Strain—Way Cleared For Petition For New Legislation

Boston, Jan. 6.—Boston theatre managers lose their contention in regard to the employment of children on the stage, and Massachusetts now takes its place with some of the states in the west where Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" has to be a maiden of maturity, even if she does wear short skirts, and where Little Lord Fauntleroy has to shave before he takes his place behind the footlights in the play of that name.

For several years the managers and the authorities have had a bit of uncertainty in regard to the matter, for it was held by some that the employment of children under the age of 14 years in theatrical exhibitions after 7 o'clock was prohibited by law. Attempts had been made through the legislature to have the doubt ended by an amendment to the factory law under which objection had always been raised, but the lawmakers have refused to take the action desired, after giving hearings on the matter.

Finally it was decided that there should be a test case carried through the courts so as to find out definitely and once for all the opinion of the highest authorities in the matter. With this modus vivendi in operation no more prosecutions were made by the authorities.

The question was finally settled Wednesday when the full bench of the supreme court decided against Frank C. Griffith, who was business manager for Mrs. Fiske during an engagement at the Majestic theatre.

Griffith was fined $50 in the superior criminal court a few weeks ago for having employed two children, Antrim Short, aged 9, and Grace Shanley, aged 13, in the play, "Salvation Nell." The children had speaking parts in the drama, but one parent of each was employed by the company, so that they had constant care from relatives at all times at the theatre. Like the Boston managers, the defendant claimed that the law applied only to employment in some factory, workshop or mercantile establishment, and was not applicable to theatrical exhibitions.

The supreme court holds that the word "work" in the statute should be given a broader meaning than that claimed by the defendant. The statute was intended to protect children from employment calling for constant attention, regular effort, and physical or mental strain, to accomplish the desired result.

Now that the bench has passed officially upon the merits of the case those directly interested know exactly where they stand, and it is very probably that the present legislature will receive a petition bearing on the employment of minors on the stage. This is practically the only step for the managers, as there is no appeal from the decision of the court.

Negro Census Enumerators Will Attend to People of Their Own Race

Washington, Jan. 6.—The appointment of negro census enumerators in the south was discussed with President Taft by Representatives Bartlett and Hardwick of Georgia, owing to the announcement of Census Director Durand that negro enumerators would be so employed.

President Taft assured his callers that so far as he controlled the situation no negro census enumerator would attempt to take a census of white people in the south.

New York, Jan. 6.—While it was generally thought that the late "Little Tim" Sullivan, Tammany aldermanic leader, had died a millionaire, it is now understood that he left practically nothing.

Only $2000 on deposit in a bank is all the cash said to be available for his widow and son. The report that he held stocks and bonds or deeds for large parcels of real estate in this city is said to be unfounded.

Roosevelt After White Rhinoceros

Butiab, Jan. 6.—Colonel Roosevelt and the others of the American expedition arrived Wednesday from Holma. From this point the party will make a hunting trip on the Lado Enclave in search of the white rhinoceros.

Great Cargo of Oil

Boston, Jan. 6.—Some 3,774,000 gallons of oil reached here yesterday from New York in a single tow. This enormous amount was brought in by the Standard Oil steamer City of Everett and the big barges Nos. 53 and 94.

CUSTOMS COURT JUDGES

Five Appointed by the President, With Coxe as Chief Justice

Washington, Jan. 6.—President Taft sent to the senate the following nominations for the newly created court of customs appeal:

ALBERT C. COXE

To be presiding judge, Albert C. Coxe, now United States circuit judge for the second circuit; associate judges, William H. Hunt, now United States judge for the district of Montana; James F. Smith of California, judge of the supreme court of the Philippines and collector of customs in the Philippines; O. M. Barber of Vermont, and Marion DeVries of California, now chairman of the board of general appraisers of New York.

The president sent to the senate a long list of other appointments.

The customs court judges will receive a salary of $10,000 each, unless congress refuses to appropriate the necessary money.

STATE OFFICIALS SWORN INTO OFFICE

Massachusetts Legislature Is Now Ready For Business

Boston, Jan. 6.—Amid the splendor of gold epaulettes and brilliant uniforms, Governor Draper and the entire state ticket took the oath of office today and the governor read his inaugural address.

Until the third Saturday in January there will be a flood of measures presented to the general court. After that measures can be introduced only by a suspension of the rules.

Allen T. Treadway was chosen president of the senate, and Joseph Walker speaker of the house. The only change in the personnel of the state house is in the office of sergeant-at-arms. Thomas F. Pedrick succeeds David T. Remington.

GREAT TRUST MERGER

Guaranty Company Will Have About $152,000,000 Under Its Control

New York, Jan. 6.—Details of the Guaranty-Morgan-Fifth Avenue Trust company merger were made public last night after a meeting of the boards of directors of the three companies. Among other things a further increase was authorized in the capital stock of the Guaranty Trust company, as titular head, from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. The capital stock had been previously increased from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Upon the completion of the merger, the Guaranty Trust company will have a capital stock of $5,000,000 with surplus, including all undivided profits, of approximately $21,000,000 and combined deposits of $126,000,000.

NO FIGHT IN UTAH

Governor Spry Puts a Veto on Plans For the Jeffries-Johnson Contest

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 6.—"It is not possible for that fight to take place here and come within the law. I will uphold the law if it becomes necessary."

With these words Governor Spry swept aside all doubts as to his attitude towards the Jeffries-Johnson championship contest and disposed of the plan to stage the fight here.

Mill Girls on Strike

Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 6.—Fifty-five girl weavers for the Star Worsted company quit their machines because Treasurer Smith refused to pay them the same wages for fifty-six hours' work that they received under the former schedule of fifty-eight.

Revolt Against King Menelik

Rome, Jan. 6.—Abyssinia is in revolt against the rule of Menelik, the dying king. The situation of all foreign residents is so critical that they have appealed to their native countries for protection and combined intervention may result.

Train Wrecker Convicted

Washington, Jan. 6.—Dominico Falasco, a track walker, was found guilty of attempting to wreck trains in the Union station tunnel on two occasions. Sentence was not pronounced.

Population of Canada

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 6.—The Canadian bureau of census estimates the population of Canada at the close of the year at 7,350,000. The province of Ontario leads with 2,619,025.

FISHERMEN GO DOWN IN STORM

Death Toll Off Nova Scotia Is Estimated at Forty-Two

MEN WERE TAKEN UNAWARES

Started In Fine Weather For Haddock Fishing Grounds, but Mild Wind Was Suddenly Transformed Into Gale, While Blizzard Raged—Skilled Boatmanship Enables Canso Boats to Reach Shore In Safety

Canso, N. S., Jan. 6.—Forty-two fishermen are believed to have perished in the blizzard that suddenly swept down on this coast and has been raging for more than twenty-four hours. Fourteen men are almost certainly known to have been lost, and the remaining twenty-eight who are missing are already being mourned, their chance for escape being regarded as so small as to be negligible. Thirty of the men involved in this tragedy of the sea are married.

Twenty-three of the fishermen were from Dover, four miles from here, and nineteen from White Head, ten miles to the south.

The greatness of the disaster has cast a pall of gloom over this storm-beaten coast, accustomed though it is to the toll of lives annually exacted by the sea.

The fleet from Canso and all the boats from Petit de Grat, about nine miles away, were caught in the storm, but escaped by feats of skilled boatmanship that have seldom been surpassed in these waters.

The storm caught the fishermen all unawares. Lured by a fine morning that promised good fishing, and by high prices for their catches, the men ventured to the outermost edge of the haddock fishing grounds Tuesday. At noon the storm came up with great rapidity. In a period measured by minutes the ten-miles-an-hour wind was transformed into a gale, the temperature fell many degrees and thick snow obscured the view. By 1 o'clock in the afternoon the storm was raging furiously.

During the course of the afternoon, anxious watchers here were rewarded by the sight of five of the Canso boats, one after another, emerging from the storm and beating their way against wind and into the harbor. Ice-coated were all the boats, most of which had lost dory lines, fish and sails, but each of which had its full complement of men. Eight more boats, all that went out from Canso, came in yesterday.

At the entrance to White Head harbor, a boat from Port Felix settlement, a mile or two from White Head, struck on Dogfish Rocks. Her crew of seven was lost. Yesterday another boat, her sails in tatters, was sighted off shore at Canso. Preparations were made to go to the assistance of the small craft, which appeared to be leaking badly, but before a boat could put out from the shore, the distressed boat was lost from sight in the blinding snow. Her crew must have perished.

CHAPTER XIII.

BRAND, busily engaged in writing the caption for the cut that was to reveal Bartelmy in his true light, was interrupted once more—this time by the entrance of the greenish hued face of the poet reporter, Powell.

"You sent for me, sir?" asked the new scribe.

"So you've covered a suicide?" said Brand.

"Powow's" eyes rolled wildly. He clasped his hands and his knees shook in his horror at what he had learned.

"Oh, yessir—a terrible sight! I shall dre-e-e-a-m of it, sir! It would take a Dante to write of it. Oh, I"—

"What was this girl's name?" asked Brand in matter of fact tones.

"Madeline."

"Madeline what?"

"Her last name," the poet asked dazedly. "I guess I don't remember. Oh, yes, it was Jenks—Madeline Jenks!" He spoke feverishly.

Brand picked up the poet's first newspaper story and began to read it. In spite of the high pressure of events that night in the Advance office, in spite of his ever present fear that Bartelmy and Dupuy might in some way persuade Nolan to order the sensational bribery story killed, this many sided young man found the time to bother with the fantastic young poet reporter and his fantastic first article.

"Madeline Jenks, eh?" commented Brand, turning over the pages. "Well, the first place you mention her name is on page 3."

He plucked off the first two pages and threw them on the floor. Powell winced painfully at the massacre of his first reportorial offspring. "Begin there," said Brand. Powell lunged downward to rescue his first two pages, but Brand kicked them away from him. "Where'd she live?" he next asked.

Powell clasped his hands and gazed plaintively at the ceiling.

"Over a chop suey cafe, sir."

"Number and street?"

"Two forty-three and a half West Pearl street."

Brand threw away two more pages, Powell watching him anxiously the while.

"Put that next. Here. Madeline Jenks," Brand began to write, "an inmate of 243½ West Pearl street. What did she do?"

"She destroyed herself utterly!" the new reporter wailed.

Brand went on writing.

"Is she dead?"

"Yes, sir."

"Shot and killed herself—when?"

"Tonight at 9 o'clock."

Brand wrote on.

"Last night at 9 o'clock. Why?"

Powell answered very intensely:

"Oh, she could no longer face the ghastliness of her existence. She knew she"—

"She was weary of life in the streets."

"I don't blame her," Brand commented to himself. He turned to Powell. "There's your story. Thirty words—you had 3,000. And remember the story of the creation was told in 600 words."

Powell picked up the pages of his story which Brand had discarded and walked dejectedly away.

"Mac," Brand ordered, "here's a dance hall suicide. Put it with local brevities, will you?"

Had Brand at this moment been able to see through the wall that separated the composing room from the hall he would have witnessed a sight that would have deprived him of some of the self possession that marked his present demeanor. A figure clad in an elaborate evening gown crept softly up the stairway, stood irresolutely at the landing and then turned into the managing editor's office. Judith Bartelmy probably never looked more beautiful in her life than she did that night. A flush of excitement enhanced the soft allurement of her exquisite features, and the low cut neck of her sleeveless gown completed a picture of feminine loveliness that, innocently enough on her part, was admirably adapted to the purpose Judge Bartelmy had in his unprincipled mind when he sent her to the Advance office. "You are my only hope," he had told her after Dupuy had at first failed to locate Nolan. "You must go and plead with Wheeler Brand or else I am ruined. Your father will be ruined absolutely." At the sight of her father's emotion and yielding to the fervent pleadings of her only living parent she had willingly consented to undertake the mission. Unpleasant though she knew it would be, she believed it her duty to stand by in his hour of dire need the father whom she loved, the father whom she did not know.

As she entered the office and paused in conjecture as to just how she would proceed she heard footsteps hurriedly ascending the stairs, and, withdrawing into a shadow in a corner, she saw Michael Nolan and Mrs. Nolan cross the hall and disappear into the composing room.

"Thank heaven!" she murmured fervently. "They will stop this story, which father says is a horrible lie."

Wheeler Brand will never forget—he has since said so from the depths of his soul—the shock that went through him when he saw Nolan, accompanied by his wife, making their way toward him on that memorable night.

"Remember the story of the creation was told in 600 words."

McHenry was speaking when they entered.

"There is your first page, Brand," he was saying, "and it sends Bartelmy to state prison."

The managing editor gazed approvingly at the appearance of the page of type and the cut in the form as it lay exposed on one of the stones under a shaded electric light. He looked up to congratulate McHenry on the manner in which he had completed the makeup of the page when his jaw suddenly fell. His eyes took on an amazed stare. He was looking straight over the night editor's shoulder. McHenry caught Brand's expression and whirled about. Then he, too, saw the owner of the Advance and his wife draw near. The triumphant air with which the wife and mother sailed along by his side boded no good to Brand and his story.

Nolan paused in front of the form without looking at the contents at first.

"Wheeler," he said kindly, "I've been notified about this story, and I think

"He thinks he's a great reformer and knows it all."

it best that I read it carefully myself, analyze it and learn all the circumstances under which it was procured before I allow it to go to press. That is a task which cannot be done in the short time that remains before press time, so we had best let it go over until tomorrow—delay it one day. That won't hurt the story any."

Mrs. Nolan clutched at the ex-miner's arm and cried shrilly:

"Now, now, Michael, that's not your usual way to explain things to one of your employees. Order him to destroy all this miserable stuff about the judge at once. Don't hesitate like this. Think what it means to me, to the children, to us," she pleaded.

"There, there, mother; you keep out of this," said Nolan kindly, yet firmly. "I'm trying to do the best I can for you. It's because of you that I'm here now. But you see"—

Ed Dupuy burst excitedly in upon them, and as the typesetters were beginning to become distracted from their work owing to the unusual situation Brand began to fear that this new intruder would prove the final demoralizer of the entire night shift.

"Mr. Nolan," cried Dupuy, "we haven't a minute to lose! They are almost ready to go to press." He looked intently at the newspaper owner.

GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS.

commonwealth on its war loans," and it is necessary for the legislature to take action, in order to give the governor and council authority to make proper arrangements to prosecute these claims. I therefore recommend that such action be taken.

Education

The reorganized board of education was appointed on the thirtieth day of June, 1909, to take office on the the first day of July. The members have necessarily had little chance to do anything up to the present time except to familiarize themselves with present conditions and engage a commissioner of education. As the old commission on industrial education and its officials went out of office when the new board came in, the members of the new board were themselves obliged to devote a great deal of time and attention to the ordinary routine work which was required until they could decide on a commissioner of education and get the new board thoroughly organized. They have now engaged their commissioner, and are carefully studying the questions which come within their province, especially the matter of industrial education, and how best to adapt it to our present school system.

They find that the statutes under which industrial schools may be and have been established are not clear; and, because of this lack of clearness, many questions have arisen in the past, under the commission on industrial education, in regard to so-called independent industrial schools, which need to be settled and which can be cleared up only by new legislation. The board of education will ask for such action as it deems necessary, and will explain in detail the reasons therefor and what it desires to accomplish.

This question of industrial education and how it shall be worked in harmony with, and very likely become a part of, our public school system, is a great one. The board has not had time as yet to properly study out and formulate a definite policy. It is not desirable that the commonwealth should rush into this matter haphazard, and without careful consideration and a definite plan.

We have an able board of education, which is earnestly devoted to its duties, and during the present year it will have time to, and will, formulate definite plans as to what should be done for the real advancement of this important work. In the meantime, it would be an unwise policy and bad judgment to create separate and individual schools for industrial education which would not be integral parts of our whole school system.

Much can be done this year by the board, and legislation will be requested which will permit such work as is deemed proper; but it will, after the passage of new legislation, require some time to study out a system before the board will be able to go ahead with a completed plan of education which shall include industrial education as one of its principal and component parts.

State Library

More room has been given to the state library, and the trustees and the librarian are planning to use this space for legislative reference work. This will necessitate the employment of an assistant in this department, and I recommend an appropriation sufficient to meet this extra expense, and also a reasonable increase in the salary of the state librarian.

Free Public Library Commission

This commission has done excellent work for many years, and the people of every town in the commonwealth now have the opportunity to obtain books from a free public library. It is not desirable that the towns should have too much state assistance in this direction, but it is essential that the commission should be given more assistance. The appropriation of the commission should be somewhat increased, so that it may have additional help for performing its clerical work and visiting the various libraries throughout the commonwealth.

Meat Inspection

During the last year much interest was taken in and attention given to the improving of conditions under which meat, to be sold for food to the people, should be slaughtered and prepared for sale. There was a feeling that meat infected with the germs of disease might be sold as food; and the fear that such conditions existed caused the legislature to pass laws intended to prevent the sale of infected meat, and also to order an inquiry by the state board of health into the methods of slaughtering, in Massachusetts, of animals to be used for food.

Of all the animal food products consumed in this commonwealth, a very large percentage is brought in from other states. In these cases, it being interstate business, the food products must be inspected by officers of the United States stationed in the slaughter-houses where the animals are killed, and these animals and carcasses are examined thoroughly, by trained men, before and after being slaughtered. If there is anything which renders meat unfit for food, it is seen by these inspectors and the carcass is destroyed; and only meat which is fit for food is permitted to be shipped from one state to another or to other countries. I have personally looked into this examination in various slaughter-houses, and I am satisfied that the government inspection is scientific and adequate. This applies to the great bulk of the animal food products, consumed by the people of this commonwealth.

The local conditions which are permitted to exist in this state are not, in my opinion, good. The slaughter-houses are not properly kept, and many inspectors in the different sections of the commonwealth do not properly understand their duties; the inspection is not sufficiently careful, and it is inadequate.

A reorganization of this system should be effected, so that the commonwealth may be divided into districts, having expert inspectors who shall superintend all the conditions under which animals for food are slaughtered, and who shall also examine the carcasses to see that they are in proper healthful condition to be sold for food.

The appointment by the commonwealth of a given number of such inspectors to look after these conditions would cost considerable; but when the fact is considered that the people would be better protected from disease than they now are in the meat which they use for food, the extra expense, although quite an item, should not be controlling. While the expense would be quite large to the state, much of it would be saved directly to the towns and cities, as they would be relieved of that which they now have to incur for inspection.

I recommend that careful consideration of this subject be given, and that action be taken so that all these conditions may be improved and a new system of local slaughtering established; and I suggest that the standard of inspection be made the same as that now required by the United States government. I do not think our conditions in this respect are worse than in many of the other states, but we cannot afford to be below the United States standard, which is the best; and I urge prompt and wise action in dealing with this most important question.

Milk Conditions

The production of milk and the way it shall be sold is a problem which seems very difficult to solve satisfactorily to both the producers and consumers. There has been much discussion as to whether the standard now required by law, of 12.15 percent of milk solids and 3.35 percent of fat, is right. I do not pretend to express an opinion based on knowledge in this respect, but I have not been able to see any way in which the consumer and the honest producer of milk can be properly protected, unless a standard of quality shall be established and maintained by law.

While I thoroughly believe in a proper standard, established and maintained by law, some conditions existent today seem to cause a hardship to the Massachusetts milk producers, because milk from other states can be sold in Massachusetts under many less restrictions than is the case with the product of Massachusetts farmers.

It is further a fact that for some reason the number of neat cattle in the commonwealth of Massachusetts is decreasing. In the year 1908 there were 3300 head less of neat cattle than in 1907, and on Nov. 30, 1907, the record showed a decrease of nearly 10,000 from the previous year, so that there were 13,000 head of neat cattle less in Massachusetts at the beginning of 1909 than there were at the end of 1906. This proves conclusively that the keeping of cattle for milk in Massachusetts is not an industry that is growing, but one that is declining. This is unquestionably bad for the commonwealth. As the consumption of milk seems to be constantly increasing, it must be brought in from other states. Our farming industry in this respect is not flourishing. It is not profitable for the farmer to raise and sell milk under existing conditions.

I believe that the legislature should pass laws, if necessary, so that the farmers of this commonwealth can ship their milk through the direct agency of the railroads, rather than be obliged to deal through contractors who practically handle the shipping of milk for the railroads. Whether or not this would result in cheaper milk to the consumer, I do not know; but I do not believe it wise for the great carrying agencies operating in the commonwealth of Massachusetts to sublet these privileges to any one.

Every man who desires to ship milk to the cities of this commonwealth over the railroads of the state should have the right to deal with them directly, under proper regulations and conditions. The railroad should receive proper pay for the service rendered, and should not be obliged to take milk at every station; but proper provisions should be made so that milk delivered in reasonable quantities at particular points should be carried by the railroads at reasonable rates to the large centers of population where it is to be consumed. I believe if this were done many of the complaints which now exist concerning the milk question would disappear.

Military Matters

The militia is in excellent condition. The maneuvers which were held during the past summer were most beneficial and advantageous. All the conditions of actual service in war time were present except the terrible carnage which results from actual conflict. Our troops were ordered to mobilize on a given day at given points, ready for service. This proved a severe test of the commissary and quartermaster departments, which were admirably met. The troops of all arms, infantry, artillery and cavalry, arrived at the designated points on time and in good condition. They were well fed and cared for during a week of most active service, during which time there was some very severe and disagreeable weather. Arrangements were made to prevent fires, and the damage done to the property of our citizens by the officers and men was almost negligible.

Under the Dick bill, which was passed by the national congress and approved on Jan. 21, 1903, it was provided that troops serving from a state in connection with national troops under special conditions should receive certain pay. This did not contemplate that the state troops so serving should be paid both by the national and state governments; but some confusion in regard to the matter has arisen, and certain of our organizations which have done special military work in the past have received pay from both state and nation, while the great bulk of the militia has been paid only the amount specified by the commonwealth.

It does not seem to me that this is wise or just, and I believe provision should be made so that the pay of all the state troops should be the same, and that any money which would under certain circumstances be paid by the national government to such troops, either for service or subsistence, should be turned into the treasury of the commonwealth to assist in the general payment of military expenses. I would suggest to you that a proper law be passed to bring about this result.

Institutions

The various state institutions are in good condition and doing their usual good work. The Lyman school for boys and the state industrial school for girls have both been somewhat crowded, but new buildings which were authorized by the last legislature will be completed early in 1910, which will relieve the situation. This also applies to the Massachusetts hospital school at Canton, which is a new school, doing well a very important work.

The nurses' home at Rutland is nearly ready for acceptance, and the sanatorium is full. The new accommodations which were provided for at the state hospital at Tewksbury have not been completed as yet, but they are badly needed. The industrial school for boys at Shirley has been opened during the year. There are now ninety inmates.

The North Reading sanatorium for consumptives was opened on Sept. 22, 1909, and is substantially full at present; the Lakeville sanatorium will be opened in January, 1910, accommodating 150 more people; and the Westfield sanatorium is expected to be opened either in February or March, 1910, to accommodate the same number.

At the Masaschusetts hospital for epileptics at Monson a building was provided for last year which will accommodate enough patients to relieve the crowding which exists there at present, and this building will be ready in July, 1910. The new Wrentham state school which has been established for the feeble-minded has about fifty patients at present, and new buildings to accommodate about 200 patients will be ready in about three months. At the Massachusetts school for the feeble-minded at Waverley there are at present 1261 patients.

The prison commission reports that there is no immediate need for increased accommodations in our prisons.

The insane in our state institutions numbered, Oct. 1, 1909, 11,490—an increase of 499 this year, against 789 last year, 402 being the average annual increase for the last five years. It is safe to assume that the number of insane will increase in the immediate future at the average rate of 500 per year. The hospitals are now crowded, and there are more than 1300 beds set up in the day rooms and corridors, half of which have to be removed and stored every day.

Under these conditions, it will be necessary for you to make appropriations which will provide for something like 800 patients for the coming year.

While economy should be constantly in our minds this year, we ought to provide well for the care of our unfortunate insane, and erect whatever additions to our institutions as are necessary for this purpose.

The trustees of the Foxborough state hospital for inebriates have arrived at the point where they desire to make a beginning for a new institution. They feel that they should eventually have a location much larger than their present one, where they can have a large amount of land on which many of their inmates could work, and where arrangements could be made for a greater sub-division of their patients.

I understand that if this should be done, the board of insanity would utilize entirely the Foxborough institution, and that they could use it to most excellent advantage in caring for the insane, the number of which unfortunately increases from year to year. I think that the trustees of the Foxborough hospital are obtaining good results, and that your honorable bodies should take such action as will enable them to make a start in the direction indicated.

In this connection it has been called to my attention that where land is bought by various boards of trustees, it often happens that they procure land which is mortgaged. The mortgagee will not discharge his mortgage until he is paid. On the other hand, the state officers will not pay over the money to the owner until he can show a clear title and the deed is received for record. Under these circumstances, some member of the purchasing board has acted as an attorney for the owner of the land, while at the same time he is acting officially as one of the purchasers of the land for the commonwealth. This ought to be changed, and it might be wise to provide that the attorney general should be given further power to act in such transactions, and any member of the purchasing board be relieved from acting in a double capacity. This suggestion is made as a general proposition which might be carried out in the purchase of any lands which the commonwealth might wish to obtain.

State Highways

The automobile law which was passed by the last legislature is working well. It is expected that it will produce a net revenue of $175,000 during the next year, for use on the state highways; and, with the authority given the highway commission to check the reckless driving of these vehicles, it is, in the opinion of the commissioners, the most effective automobile law of any state.

The highway commissioners should be allowed to have sufficient money on hand to enable them to make advances to laborers and others for repair work. Where this work is done at present—there not being money on hand to deal directly with such men—the repairs are unnecessarily expensive.

They should be given authority to buy small sections of land in different parts of the commonwealth, to be used for the storage of their machinery; and, when opportunity offers, should have the right to purchase land in various sections which furnishes good material for road building.

All these purchases of land, either for the storage of machinery or for the deposits of material for repairs on roads, should not be completed without the approval of the governor and council.

I recommend that authority be given the highway commission in both these directions, because I feel certain that it will save money for the commonwealth and permit the commission to render better service.

Boston Railroad Holding Company

The Boston Railroad Holding company, which was established by an act of the last legislature, chapter 519, has issued certain bonds based on its holdings of Boston and Maine railroad stock. These bonds are guaranteed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, and are, in my opinion, a safe investment.

As the holding company needs more money to expend for improvements on the Boston and Maine railroad, it will be necessary for it to issue more bonds, and as the money for these bonds is advanced it is necessary that the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company should be able to dispose of these bonds rather than hold them in its treasury and so tie up a very large amount of money.

These bonds bear 4 percent interest, and, being based on the stock of the Boston and Maine railroad and guaranteed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, would be, I believe, a most excellent investment for our savings banks.

The Boston Railroad Holding company, in my opinion, will be a great benefit to the railroad situation in Massachusetts and New England. I believe the individuals who control the stock of this company intend to very greatly improve the physical condition of the Boston and Maine railroad. If this is done it will be a great benefit to Masaschusetts and New England, and these owners should be encouraged by proper legislation.

Massachusetts cannot expect great improvements in railroad properties unless she is willing to help in proper ways those who are willing to put money into such developments. I understand and believe that important and extensive improvements are very soon to be undertaken on these properties, and I think it is in the interest of all our citizens that those making these large expenditures for such improvements should be encouraged to do so. I therefore recommend that these bonds be made a legal investment for Massachusetts savings banks.

Savings Banks and Trust Companies

Prior to the passage of the business law of corporations, savings banks and trust companies were organized by special law and their charters made subject to the laws regulating the business of such corporations. There was no authority to organize such corporations under general laws. The general law of business corporations enacted in 1903 contains provisions excluding from its operation certain classes of corporations, among others savings banks, trust companies and co-operative banks, but also enacts that "such provisions should not be construed to prohibit the organization of a corporation under the provisions of this act for the purpose of carrying on any lawful business, outside of this commonwealth."

It is thus possible for savings banks, trust companies and co-operative banks to be organized under our general laws, subject to no supervision or control, to carry on business outside the state.

The result is that there are two classes of trust companies, savings banks and co-operative banks which may be organized in this commonwealth—one to do business within the commonwealth under restriction and supervision, the other to do business outside the commonwealth with no such supervision and subject to no restriction.

This condition seems anomalous, and I recommend the subject to your consideration for correction.

Civil Service

The work of the civil service commission has become much greater in the last few years because of the very large increase in the number of people who are employed in the classified service. By the action of the last legislature very important work has been added to this department, in connection with the certification of fitness of important appointees of the mayor of Boston. The commissioners need a deputy examiner, and they themselves should be paid larger salaries, and be required to give more of their time to the work. I trust that action will be taken by you to bring about these results.

Forestry

Careful attention is being given to our standing forests, and our non-productive or waste lands should not remain idle, as large possibilities for the future are to be found here and great results will come from a well-directed forest policy. Our moth work would be more effective in the saving of our trees if the local moth superintendents in towns and cities should receive their appointments subject to the approval of the state forester.

I believe much better results in all our towns and cities could also be obtained were the state forester given authority to advise and assist the local tree wardens.

Publicity

I recommend the enactment of a law which shall require the issuance annually of a public document containing correct information in regard to the salaries or pay of the employes and members of each department, board or commission, so that such salary or pay, and also the date of election or appointment and residence of each officer or employe of the commonwealth, may be easily ascertained.

Senators and Representatives:—I am glad to say that the material conditions in the commonwealth and the nation have been very much better during the past year than they were in 1908. The great crops of the west have been bountiful, and the prices of which they have sold have been high. The cotton crop of the south is probably less than usual, but the farmers who raised it have received such good prices for their product that they are prosperous. The manufacturing industries in all lines are busy, and the people are employed at good wages. The whole nation is prosperous.

As a people, however, we are not economical; we are unnecessarily wasting our natural resources, and extravagance has become a habit. The price of everything is high, and this ought to put a premium on economy. This is not a proper time or place to discuss the reasons for these high prices, but it is well known that the enormous increase in the production of gold and the higher wages paid in every vocation of life must be two of the great contributory causes.

In spite of these high prices, Massachusetts has been extremely prosperous and our savings banks have shown the largest increase in deposits of any year in our history, the total increase being $33,581,751, making the total amount of deposits now on hand in our savings banks $743,101,481. The dividends declared to the depositors in our savings banks during the past year have amounted to $27,110,047. The deposits put in these banks in 1909 were about $16,000,000 more than in 1908, while the withdrawals of deposits in 1909 were $15,000,000 less than in 1908.

The above shows in a most graphic manner the tremendous change in conditions which has taken place in the last year. Notwithstanding the prevailing high prices, our people have saved money, and this means prosperity.

You, as the representatives of the people, have a sacred trust imposed upon you. It is your duty to see that the resources of the commonwealth shall not be wasted, and that the money of its citizens shall be wisely and properly expended. The legislatures of the past in Massachusetts have established a great record for the enactment of laws which have been in the true interest of the people. Your immediate predecessors maintained the high standard which had been set for them. I have no doubt that you will do equally well, and I promise to use my best endeavors to co-operate with you in accomplishing good results.

BRIEFS

Rainy today.

The West Quincy Improvement Association will meet this evening.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Union chapel at Houghs Neck will meet Monday evening with Mrs. William Hudson of Bird street.

The Holy Name Society of St. Johns church is making a special effort to largely increase its membership.

James Malone, the driver of the combination wagon at Houghs Neck, is off duty, having injured his back by a fall.

Rev. Mr. McMeeken, the new pastor at the Union chapel at Houghs Neck, has a suite of rooms at the Midland hotel.

H. M. Levinson who has been connected with Sarkin the ladies' tailor on Hancock street has gone into business for himself in the Johnson building, Maple street.

Rev. and Mrs. Sherrard Billings, nee Stockton of Boston, are receiving the condolences of their friends their little daughter Mary passing away this week at their Commonwealth avenue home. Burial at Groton.

Mrs. Thompson B. Crane entertained the Billiken whist club at her home Wednesday evening. Souvenirs were received by Mrs. Edward Blanchard, Mr. Chester Nolan, Mrs. G. Ripley Mellen and Mr. E. R. Blanchard.

The Telephone Co. intends as far as possible hereafter to get its wires underground. There is an underground conduit the whole length of Hancock street and workmen have been busy this week putting in stations at short intervals.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of 1812 was held at hotel Lenox, Boston on Tuesday and Mrs. Nelson V. Titus of Squantum was re-elected president. The society is planning to assist in the work of the Y. M. C. A. at the Charlestown Navy yard.

The Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of the Revolution will be at home Friday afternoon from half-past two to five at their rooms in the Colonial building, Boston. Mrs. Geo. E. Smith state regent will receive, and a cup of tea will be enjoyed while discussing the welfare of the various chapters.

Christmas gifts contributed by chapters of the Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution were given for distribution to Rev. D. W. Waldron, city missionary of Boston, thereby carrying happiness to many desolate homes. Besides patriotism these chapters of young people are also working along the line of "Brotherhood of Man."

Prof. H. Helm Clayton, the aeronautical expert recently of Blue Hill observatory who has charge of the course in aviation now being given at the Boston Y. M. C. A., has announced that next Tuesday's lecture will be open to the public. This will prove interesting as the professor will exhibit a number of working models of the latest aeroplanes.

NORFOLK PROMINENT

Hold Leading Places in New Legislature

As noted in the Daily Ledger, yesterday, the Quincy men at the State House have important committees,—Senator Hultman on Rules, Public Lighting, Taxation and Ways and Means; Representative Thomas on Metropolitan Affairs; and Representative Langelier on Harbors and Public Lands, and Banks and Banking.

It looks as of Norfolk County was to take an unusually prominent part in the Legislature this year.

Speaker Joseph H. Walker is from Brookline in this county is chairman ex-officio of the Committee on Rules of the House.

Representative White also of Brookline, is chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means.

Representative C. C. Mellen of Braintree is a member of the House Committee on Judiciary, also the House Committee on Elections and the joint Committee on Libraries.

Representative Roger Wolcott of Milton is House chairman of the Committee on Street Railways.

Representative Dwyer of Weymouth is on the Committee on Towns.

Representative Campbell of Hyde Park is House chairman of the Committee on Drainage.

Representative Holbrook of Stoughton is a member of the Committee on Insurance.

Senator Rockwood is chairman of the Committee on Mercantile Affairs, a member of the Committee on Federal Relations and Committee on Water Supply.

Representatives Chapman of Franklin and Moseley of Needham are both on the Committee on Railroads.

Representative Guild of Walpole is on the Committee on Water Supply.

BRIEFS

Joint installation of Paul Revere Post, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps tonight.

The no-school signal was sounded at 12.45. Some took it for the militia call 4-4-4.

There was a difference of 30 degrees between the temperature at noon today and the same hour Wednesday.

The sidewalks in City Square were very slippery this morning, and a little sand would have helped out considerable.

The officers of the Foresters of America were installed Wednesday evening. The list of officers has already been published in the Ledger.

The sleighing party which was to have been held Wednesday evening by a crowd of young people from West Quincy was postponed on account of the severe cold. Doubtless they did not care to repeat their cold experience of last year.

The cottage prayer meetings which are being held by the Hall Place M. E. church in different parts of the ward, while not being very largely attended are very helpful. This evening meetings will be be held at William Scott's, Ballou street and Joseph Francis, Centre street. On Friday the meeting will be in the church.

The Eastern Star friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Swingle gave them a surprise Wednesday evening. They thought the time had come for a house warming at the new residence on Hancock street, and assembled in large numbers. The remodelled house was greatly admired by all. Mr. Swingle certainly did a thorough job for he now has one of the most attractive homes in the city. H. P. Furnald was caterer.

TODAY'S COURT.

Robert Stewart was sent to the State farm for being a tramp at Milton.

Peary Places No Credence In Stories Regarding Andree's Balloon

Bangor, Me., Jan. 6.—Commander Peary took occasion last night to discredit the reports of the discovery of the remains of Andree's ballon, 900 miles north of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, in the Arctic circle, which have been sent out by missionaries in that region.

He is confident that the Andree expedition never reached he Pole.

"In my opinion Andree's party came to grief and their balloon dropped into the polar ocean shortly after the start," said Peary. "The chances are they starved miserably to death upon an ice floe. I doubt if their exact fate will ever be known."

SODALITY WHIST PARTY

Special Prize Awarded to Mrs. W. H. Callahan

A very largely attended, and likewise very enjoyable whist party and dance was held at St. Mary's hall Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Sodality of St. Mary's church. The affair was under the management of Mrs. Phillip Garrity and Mrs. Ronald McDonald, the preceptors of the society, and they had the assistance of a large corps of aids.

Whist was a feature during the first two hours, between forty and forty-five tables being in play. Following this there was dancing until midnight music being furnished by Joyce's orchestra.

For the best scores at whist, three were three ladies' and three gentlemen's prizes, and a special prize. These were awarded as follows: Special prize, to Mrs. W. H. Callahan.

Ladies' prizes were awarded to Miss Eva Morrissett, Miss Louise M. Devine and Miss Bessie McCarthy; gentlemen's prizes were awarded to Frank Canavan, James T. Leary and Walter Ogle.

BASE BALL TRAINER.

John Rudderham, the well known baseball trainer of the Philadelphia National league club for several years, has been succeeded in that position by Mike Dee, assistant trainer at the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Rudderham is well known to all lovers of clean sports in this city, being a Braintree boy but now a resident of Randolph. Many remember him in his younger days when he was a ball tosser, but more know him as an umpire, for it is but a few years since he umpired games for the Dorchesters, going from there to the New England league. For the past three years he has trained the University of Illinois football team with fine results. It is rumored he will be appointed trainer for the Chicago White Sox by the new manager, Hugh Duffy, who is a warm friend of Mr. Rudderham. "Coon" Rudderham the speedy outfielder of the Deweys, the champions of the Old Colony league of 1909 is a son of the well known trainer, who is proud to think he has a son following in his footsteps.

SPORTING NOTES.

The annual meeting of the South Boston Yacht club was held Wednesday evening. Wilbert Soule was elected commodore, John J. Tobin, vice commodore and Dr. Charles J. Ferguson fleet surgeon.

The Columbia Yacht club elected R. J. Huntly commodore and Joseph Spry vice commodore at the annual meeting on Wednesday evening.

At Milton on Wednesday the Milton High hockey team was defeated by Arlington High 6 to 0.

On Friday afternoon Milton High will meet Dorchester High at ice hockey.

The new officers of the Adams Athletic Association are: Richard Tinney, president; Peter Dackers, treasurer; David Johnson, secretary; Geoge Milne, inside guard and Herbert J. Dickey base ball manager.

NOTED CIVIL ENGINEER

Death of Colonel Church, Who Had Charge of Hoosac Tunnel Work

London, Jan. 6.—Colonel George E. Church died here. He was born at New Bedford, Mass., in 1835.

Colonel Church was resident engineer of the Hoosac tunnel and a member of the scientific exploring expedition in South America in 1858.

He was colonel of volunteers in the army of the Potomac in 1852-65, and served in Mexico the two following years, acting also as a war correspondent. At various periods he was engaged in the construction abroad of large public works.

Navy Band Joins Union

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 6.—After a struggle of several years, the crack United States navy band, stationed at the Portsmouth navy yard, has been admitted to the Musicians' union. The affiliation of the navy band with the union will enable the musicians to give concerts throughout New Hampshire, where only union bands were employed.

ROLLER BASKETBALL REVIVED

Four League Circuit Formed In Chicago.

Roller basketball in Chicago is to have a big revival after a period of three years' inactivity. Teams have been formed among the skaters of the Edgewater, Riverview, Sans Souci and Madison Gardens rinks, and a league of four rinks has been launched with a schedule tentatively arranged.

With the exception of ice hockey, roller basketball is the fastest game played. It calls for such speed and grace on the roller skates that none but the most expert can expect to play the game. The rules practically are the same as those that govern ordinary basketball.

KLING AFTER HUESTON,

Former Pool Champion Wants Another Crack at Title.

Even though Tommy Hueston defeated him decisively for the pool championship of the world recently in Kansas City, Johnny Kling is anxious to have another try at the title. Kling says he will shortly issue a challenge, backed up with cash, to Hueston. In the recent match Kling claims that luck deserted him and caused him to make many misses. At present he is playing in improved form. It is more than likely that Hueston will accept the challenge and give him another crack at the title.

PLANS NEW FOOTBALL GAME.

Gridiron Star Proposes Contest Combining Rugby and Present Codes.

New American football which combines all the advantages of Rugby and intercollegiate games now played in this country is the idea of Pat Higgins, the well known Los Angeles football star.

Higgins expects to invent a number of plays and by trying out all combinations and plays which have been devised would evolve a set of rules superior to anything heretofore adopted. By demonstrations of actual play he expects to obtain an entirely new game which will solve the present football problem.

To bring the plan to the attention of the intercollegiate rules committee Higgins recently sent an invitation to Walter Camp inviting a delegation to visit Los Angeles and investigate the new game and co-operate in its development.

Nelson to Battle With Wolgast.

Battling Nelson, the world's lightweight champion, and Ad Wolgast of Milwaukee are to battle forty-five rounds in Los Angeles Feb. 22. Nelson is to be given $10,000 win, lose or draw, and the men will post a side bet of $5,000.

Jones to Coach Ohio.

Howard Jones, head coach of the Yale university unbeaten eleven during last season, was elected to coach the Ohio State university eleven for next year.

SPORTING BRIEFS

The Ontario (Canada) Curling association has 4,167 members enrolled in 167 clubs.

A tri-city motorcyclists' union has been formed by Rochester, Buffalo and Syracuse cycle clubs.

Jay-Eye-See in 1884 was the first horse to trot a mile in 2:10. Now exactly 400 horses have covered the distance in that time.

Southern California colleges and preparatory schools which cling to old style Rugby football have organizezd to boost the game.

The German emperor has again presented a silver cup and other prizes for competition at the English Royal Yacht squadron regatta at Cowes next season.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

LAND COURT

To Margaret A. Burns and James H. Penniman of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and the Old Colony Railroad Company, duly existing corporations having usual places of business in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Walter M. Hadley of Somerville, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land situate in said Quincy, being lots No. twenty-seven to thirty-five, inclusive, as shown on a Plan of Land of the Quincy Land Company, Wollaston Heights, recorded with Norfolk County Deeds, at the end of Book 1010, bounded: Northeasterly by Old Colony Avenue, five hundred sixty-one and 5-10 feet; Southeasterly by land of James H. Penniman and land of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company one hundred fourteen and 7-10 feet; Southwesterly by said Railroad Company six hundred seventeen and 69-100 feet; Northwesterly by land of Margaret A. Burns one hundred feet, containing fifty-eight thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine (58959) square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirty-first day of January A. D., 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifth day of January in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

GRAND ARMY AND WOMEN'S RELIEF CORPS

Have a Joint Installation of Officers and Several Presentations

Quartermaster of the Post Enters His 24th Year of Service

A joint installation of the officers of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., and of Paul Revere W. R. C., 103, was held Thursday evening at Alpha hall. Although walking after the day's rain was rather bad, there was a large attendance at the ceremonies. In addition to the two organizations, the members of Col. Abner B. Packard camp, S. of V.; John A. Boyd camp, S. W. V., the Ladies Aid to the Sons of Veterans and the Ladies Auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans were present as special guests.

The Grand Army met at headquarters at the usual hour, and after the transaction of routine business marched to Alpha hall. Preparations for the installation were immediately commenced, and a few minutes past 8 o'clock Past Commander James H. Webb was introduced as the installing officer. He was assisted by Past Commander John D. Williams as officer of the day.

There were one or two little things during the installation not down in the ritual. One of these was during the installation of Andrew W. Gardner as quartermaster. Commander Webb said it was not perhaps generally known, that this was the twenty-fourth year that Comrade Gardner had been installed into this same office. During all these years all the money of the post had passed through his hands, and not a cent had gone astray. It was a record one might well be proud of, and he congratulated Comrade Gardner and the post upon having such an efficient officer.

Again in installing Franklin Curtis as adjutant, he said, while not as long in service as Comrade Gardner it was a fact that the records as kept by Past Commander Curtis were unparalleled in this state. Comrade Curtis was also the oldest active member of Post 88.

On the platform during the installation were: Past Commander C. M. Marstin of Post 87 of Braintree, Past Department President Dorcas H. Lyman of Brighton; the commanders of the Sons of Veterans and Spanish War Veterans, and presidents of the ladies organizations and Women's Relief corps and chairman of the executive committee.

The officers of the Post installed are:

Commander—George L. Phillips.
Senior Vice Commander—Thomas Ring.
Junior Vice Commander—Francis P. Loud.
Surgeon—James W. Pierce.
Chaplain—Henry Chubbuck.
Quartermaster—Andrew W. Gardner.
Officer of Day—Warren Dunbar.
Officer of Guard—William M. Bird.
Adjutant—Franklin Curtis.
Sergeant Major—James H. Webb.
Quartermaster Sergeant, Calvin T. Dyer.
Patriotic Instructor—Henry Chubbuck.

At the conclusion of the post installation, the hall was surrendered to the Women's Relief Corps. Their officers were installed by Mrs. Dorcas H. Lyman, Past Department President, assisted by Mrs. Adelaide McGrath as conductress. The officers installed are:

President—Mrs. Cora Carmen.
Senior Vice President—Mrs. Emma Marnock.
Junior Vice President—Mrs. Mary V. Power.
Secretary—Mrs. Isabelle Souther.
Treasurer—Mrs. Laura E. Holt.
Chaplain—Mrs. E. Jennie Holton.
Conductor—Mrs. Idella Savage.
Guard—Mrs. Annie T. Morrissey.
Patriotic Instructor—Mrs. Edith B. Wolf.
Press Correspondent—Mrs. Maria Minor.
Musician—Mrs. Ella A. Hayden.
Assistant Conductor—Mrs. Mary E. Spooner.
Assistant Guard—Mrs. Lizzie McNeil.

Color Bearers—Mrs. Mary P. Tilley, Mrs. Levina Dorley, Mrs. Mary A. Oxford and Mrs. Susan Hewson.

As with the Grand Army installation, there were also one of two things at the Women's Relief Corps installation not down in the ritual. One of these was when Mrs. Agnes Fletcher, the retiring president of the corps, presented Commander Phillips of the post with a gavel in behalf of the retiring officers, and presented Mrs. Alberta Hewson, the retiring Chairman of the executive committee, with a cut glass spoon tray. At the close of the ceremonies there was dancing.

ST. AMBROSE COURT.

The installation of officers of St. Ambrose court M. C. O. F., was held Thursday evening in Hibernian hall. D. H. C. R. Mrs. Mary A. Costello of Boston installed the officers.

After the ceremony a social hour was enjoyed, during which remarks concerning the order were made by his honor, Mayor William T. Shea, Dr. John H. Ash, physician of the court; William H. Callahan and C. A. Arthur Murphy of St. Francis court and Mr. McGann of St. Peter and Paul Court South Boston. Refreshments were served by Burleigh and Martin.

The officers installed are:

C. R.—Mrs. Mary D. Mahoney.
V. C. R.—Miss J. L. Callahan.
R. S.—Mrs. Annie G. Watson.
F. S.—Miss Mary F. Pickering.
S. C.—Miss Elizabeth McNeil.
J. C.—Mrs. Katherine Martin.
J. S.—Mrs. Georgiana O'Brien.
O. S.—Miss B. Mary Small.
Trustees—Mrs. Hannah Fitzgerald, Mrs. G. Bizzozero and Mrs. Mary A. Daly.

THEATRE PARTY.

The Country club enjoyed their annual dinner at the United States hotel Thursday evening. Owing to the disagreeable weather taxicabs were taken to the Colonial Theatre and the party enjoyed Margaret Anglin's production of the "Awakening of Helena Ritchie." The club is composed of the following members: Mrs. G. A. Bolster, president; Mrs. Nelson Spenser, secretary; Mrs. Albert Willis, Miss A. Gordon, Mrs. George Gauthier, Mrs. William Westland, Mrs. Alexander Hall and Mrs. Richard Gordon. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Bolster, Verchild street. The following week there will be a gentleman's night.

AN HONORARY MEMBER.

Honorary membership has been conferred on Mrs. M. B. G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, by the New England Woman's Press Association which met Wednesday at the Vendome, Boston, to transact the regular monthly business. The letter of notification sent Mrs. Eddy reads in part: "By a vote of the New England Woman's Press Association, we, its members, proffer to you, a sister journalist, one who has climbed to the topmost rung in the ladder, our highest tribute—an honorary membership."

—In a few more months it may be possible to telegraph photographs across the Atlantic from New York to London by processes now being perfected.

L. W. LYONS GRAND KNIGHT

Installed by Quincy Council, K. of C.

Lawrence W. Lyons, assistant clerk of the District court, was installed Thursday evening as grand knight of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus. The installation of the new officers was held at Greenleaf hall and was attended by a large number of the knights of Quincy council as well as by many visitors. The installing officer was Deputy Grand Supreme Knight Charles J. Brady of Boston, who was accompanied by a full suite of grand officers.

After the installation a banquet was served, during which there were addresses by the deputy, and members of his suite, Mayor Shea, City Solicitor McAnarney, Edward J. Murphy, the retiring grand knight, and Lawrence W. Lyons, the new grand knight.

During the installation ceremonies there was some fine music under the direction of George Powers and John Mahon, the vocal selections being by a quartet composed of Dr. D. B. Reardon, Edward Sullivan, John A. Duggan and Dennis Sweeney.

Grand Knight Lyons is a Quincy boy, having been born in 1881. He received his early education in the public schools of the city and at the Adams Academy. He then entered Harvard college, graduating in the class of 1902. He then took a course at the Harvard law school and was admitted to the bar in 1904. For a year he was in the law office of Putnam & Putnam in Boston, and then came to Quincy and opened an office in this city, in 1905. In May 1909 he was appointed assistant clerk at the district court.

The officers installed follow:

Grand Knight—Lawrence W. Lyons.
Deputy Grand Knight—Charles J. McGilvray.
Chanceller—Michael T. Walsh.
Warden—William A. Carey.
Financial Secretary—Richard Cole.
Recording Secretary—Thomas J. Shortle.
Treasurer—Michael T. Sullivan.
Advocate—George Berry.
Inside Guard—John Lynch.
Outside Guard—John Tierney.
Trustee—Harry McGrath.
Delegate to Boston Chapter—Timothy J. Carey.
Delegates to State Convention—Lawrence W. Lyons and Edward J. Murphy.
Alternate—Michael T. Sullivan, Peter J. Cahill.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN.

Samuel G. Curtis, an old resident of Quincy, passed away at his home on Granite street this morning, aged 74 years. Mr. Curtis was employed for some years at Hall's stable, but of late years has had charge of the stable of Dr. N. S. Hunting. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having served his country in Co. G of the 43d Mass. infantry. He was a member of Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., and leaves a family.

THREE INQUESTS.

Three inquests were held before Judge Avery at the district court this morning. The first was on the death of Fred Jones who met his death by being electrocuted on Beal street, Wollaston, Dec. 3. The second on the death of Charles Olsen of Norfolk Downs, the young man killed at the Quincy depot Dec. 10 and the last on the death of James A. White who was killed by the cars near the West Quincy depot Dec. 16. The court did not give out its findings on either of the cases.

—"The New York American has been convicted and fined $500 for publishing a libel on John D. Rockefeller, Jr. It never published anything half so bad about the young man as the things he says about himself when he gets ready to address a Sunday school."—Willmington, N. C., Star.

TRADE AT HOME WILL BE SLOGAN

New Merchants' Association Is Now Permanently Organized

Large Membership and All the Members Enthusiastic

The new Merchants Association is now well organized with permanent officers, and the half a hundred members are very enthusiastic over the effort to encourage home trade. The membership is limited to those who are in the retail business in this city, excluding even the professional men like lawyers, physicians teachers, etc.

The association met at Union hall shortly after 6 P. M., and about 6.30 gathered about the dining table. A good menu was served by Thompson.

Eben W. Sheppard, the temporary chairman, presided, and after refreshments the nominating committee report candidates for offices. It was no cut and dried affair, as in some cases a triple list was presented. The marking list was used and these officers were elected:

President—Eben W. Sheppard.
Vice President—W. G. Shaw.
Secretary—Robert E. Foy.
Treasurer—Dexter E. Wadsworth.
Directors—George W. Jones, H. Everett Crane, A. L. Whitman, T. L. Williams, R. J. Barry, A. L. Remick and Fred L. Zoller.

A constitution and by laws was reported and taken up article by article, amended in some cases, and then adopted as a whole.

Most of those present took part in the business and discussion of the evening, and it was nearly 10 o'clock when the association adjourned.

WARD FOUR IMPROVEMENTS

Informally Discussed at Association Meeting

Although there were many events scheduled for Thursday evening there was a large attendance at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association. No definite action was taken on any matter but thre was a general discussion for improvement in that section of the city that have been taken up at past meetings.

The committee in charge of these matters reported informally. These reports showed that the committees had not been idle, and while the definite ends desired had not been fully accomplished, good progress was being made along all lines. There seemed to be no lack of enthusiasm on the part of the members, and there is no question but some of the things desired will be accomplished. Among the matters discussed were the railroad service, and reduction of fares, street improvements, the future development of land and inducing new industries to locate in West Quincy.

At the meeting to be held next Thursday evening it is expected that Senator Hultman and Representatives Thomas and Langelier will be present, and every member of the association will be notified of the meeting so that a large attendance is anticipated.

DESCENDANT OF ADAMSES

Founder of the D. R.'s Passes Away

Mrs. Flora Adams Darling a direct descendant of the Adams family of Quincy died on Tuesday of apoplexy at the home of her brother John Quincy Adams in New York City. She was one of the best known women in the country, being the founder of the society of the Daughters of the Revolution and also the U. S. Daughters of 1812.

Mrs. Darling was a member of Adams Chapter, D. R., of Quincy, and was active and interested in anything pertaining to the chapter or to the birthplace of John Adams used by the chapter as headquarters. At the time of her death she was collecting Adams relics to be put into a chamber at the old house, and had already sent several boxes of historical papers, pictures and books.

Last fall, in appreciation of Mrs. Darlings' membership and interest, the chapter gave her a reception at the birthplace which was a very pleasant occasion. Besides being especially interested in patriotic work Mrs. Darling was an author and a musician.

When taken ill she was preparing to return to her winter home in Washington. The burial will be at Lancaster, N. H., where she was born.

HOSPITAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Corporators of the City Hospital of Quincy, will be held at Colonial Hall, on MONDAY EVENING, January 17th, 1910, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing trustees for the ensuing year, and the transaction of any other business that may come before them.

No wonder New Hampshire people are growling. Just think of it doughnuts gone up to twelve cents a dozen and that is not all either for it is said the holes are much larger than they used to be in the good old kind.

Quincy, a name dear to all of us. It occupies a prominent place on pages of famous historical events of the United States. It gave to the world its first railroad, to the country two great men who ruled it and whose homes we point to with pride to visitors, friends and relations. And today we are also famed throughout the world for our so-called Quincy granite and the shipyard which turns out immense warships, preparing the government for war in time of peace.

All of these things have kept Quincy in the limelight and they should, for no other city or town in the country can produce a like record.

But looking at all of these things in every way, there is an opportunity offered to better tthe surroundings in one or two places. Take for instance the Adams houses, the birthplaces and homes of our presidents. They draw thousands of tourists from all parts of the world, annually, and remember it is said first impression is best.

If a tourist from California should come to Boston and have a few days to spend looking at historical homes he would undoubtedly visit this city and view the Adams houses. If he came by way of steam cars he would leave at the Quincy Adams station. What does he see as he leaves the train? A small dirty looking station. He crosses the tracks and his eyes fall upon an unsightly group of billboards. Is this historical Quincy, he asks himself? Why! the residents must be careless. He continues on his way and it is anything but neatness that meets his eyes. He decides to walk around and see the place where Adams as a boy, played. He walks towards Braintree and less than a stone's throw is a corner lot piled high with debris, wrecked sleepers and other refuse. Is this beautiful Quincy?

What we need and need at once is an improvement society. If such a society was in vogue and had official stationery all that need be done would he to write to the corporation or individual offenders and ask them to assist in clearing the eyesore. It is safe to say that it would be done

Will some live citizen or groups of citizens start the ball rolling? If so, it will not be long before the first impression of Quincy will be much better.

If the Legislature will adopt the suggestion of Gov. Draper in his Inaugural Address, to practice economy in every expenditure, the State will set a good example to the municipalities. The Governor sums it up well when he says: "The whole nation is prosperous. As a people, however, we are not economical; we are unnecessarily wasting our natural resources, and extravagance has become a habit. The price of everything is high, and this ought to put a premium on economy."

As the Governor suggests an attempt should be made to reduce the State debt and the Metropolitan debt.

It was with considerable surprise to the people that Gov. Draper recommended the bonds of the Boston Railroad Holding Company as a good investment for Savings Bank.

The Governor's ideas as to industrial education, the inspection of meat and milk conditions are good. He notes that the number of meat cattle in Massachusetts decreased 3,300 in one year, and says: "This proves conclusively that the keeping of cattle for milk in Massachusetts is not an industry that is growing, but one that is declining. This is unquestionably bad for the commonwealth. As the consumption of milk seems to be constantly increasing, it must be brought in from other states. Our farming industry in this respect is not flourishing. It is not profitable for the farmer to raise and sell milk under existing conditions. I believe that the legislature should pass laws, if necessary, so that the farmers of this commonwealth can ship their milk through the direct agency of the railroads, rather than be obliged to deal through contractors who practically handle the shipping of milk for the railroads."

The State is very strict with the farmer about cleanliness in handling milk, and it should help out on the other end and make milk producing profitable. In Quincy the Mt. Wollaston farm and others with plenty of pasture land have gone out of the business.

That there are 11,490 inmates in the insane institutions of the State will surprise many, and the Governor says there is an increase of nearly 500 each year. These unfortunates should be properly housed.

On the whole it was an excellent business address which should be carefully digested by members of the Legislature and citizens generally.

HADLOCK OUT OF JAIL

One-Time Candidate For Mayor of Boston Has Bail Reduced

Boston, Jan. 7.—John C. Hadlock, who was arrested in Milford, N. H., brought here, arraigned and held in $2500 bail on Dec. 17 last, and who has since been in jail in default of sureties, was released on $1000, the sureties having been reduced upon request by Judge Wait in the superior criminal court.

Hadlock is charged, in forty counts, with fraudulently making certain nomination papers purporting to nominate himself for the office of mayor of Boston and for fraudulently filing the same with the election commissioners.

FISHERMEN ARE SAFE

Most of Those Thought to Have Been Lost Reach the Shore

Halifax, Jan. 7.—Several of the fishing boats, manned by fishermen from Canso, White Head and Dover, made shore Thursday, after a terrible experience in the blizzard which blew them off shore on Tuesday.

It is believed that there will be little, if any, loss of life among the fishermen. Those who reached shore reported sighting other fishermen safe, while it is said that the crews of two boats have been picked up at sea by a steamer bound for Halifax.

WAS WITHOUT PILOT

Accident to Battleship Georgia Is Likely to Be Investigated

Norfolk, Jan. 7.—It is evident that an investigation will follow the grounding of the battleship Georgia here while she was steaming for Hampton Roads.

She has just received repairs after collisions, first with the battleship Nebraska and later with the coaler Vestal, when the Vestal's propeller blades punctured the Georgia's plates below the water line. It has become known there was no Virginia pilot on the Georgia Wednesday, but one had been asked for.

SICA IS RELEASED

Was Held as Pal of Mrs. Wilhelm, Who Murdered Her Husband

Newark, N. J., Jan. 7.—Nicholas S. Sica, who was jointly indicted with Mrs. Mary J. Wilhelm for the murder of the woman's husband, Frank Wilhelm, the wealthy contractor, was released on nominal bail from the jail here last evening.

Mrs. Wilhelm was recently convicted of the crime and sentenced to twenty years in prison. She has since filed an appeal.

City Water Plant Crippled

Waltham, Mass., Jan. 7.—A connecting rod on the pump at the city's new pumping station broke and as a result the entire plant is out of commission. It will take nearly two months to make repairs, and during that time the city will depend on its old plant.

Arctic Club Expels Cook

New York, Jan. 7.—The Arctic Club of America, founded by Dr. Frederick A. Cook, and his strong supporter in the North Pole controversy, has droppel the name of Cook from the rolls of the club. The action of the directors was unanimous.

Boy Burglar Goes to Prison

Bath, Me., Jan. 7.—Roy Boucher, aged 16, was sentenced to four years in the state prison for breaking and entering and for assault upon Mrs. Emily Rollins, aged 70, last fall. His companion. Fred Wentworth, was given one year in jail.

Ice Blocks Battleships

New York, Jan. 7.—Because of the fog and the ice packs in the Hudson, the third division of the Atlantic fleet, after getting under way, was forced to anchor again last night and postpone its departure for Hampton Roads.

Vreeland Named For Admiral

Washington, Jan. 7.—President Taft sent to the senate the nomination of Captain Charles E. Vreeland of the navy to be a rear admiral.

Why Tramps Avoid Wilkesbarre.

Mayor Lewis P. Kniffen of Wilkesbarre, Pa., recently said that he believes he has solved the tramp problem. When he took office the city was the resort of numerous tramps. A few months ago he adopted the system of making every one of them caught by the police work at street cleaning from one to ten days. This was so distasteful and the news was so widely spread they now avoid the city.

ANOTHER LAUNCHING

The Yacht Aloha Nearly Completed at Fore River

The Kansas City Star says:

"A big party of members of the New York Yacht Club will go to Boston the last of this month or the first of February for the launching at the Fore River Works of the auxiliary bark-rigged yacht Aloha, owned by Commodore Arthur C. James of the New York Yacht Club, and which will be the flagship of that organization. It had been intended to launch the vessel the middle of this month, but the date has been delayed and the yacht will be practically completed when she goes down the ways.

"Aloha will be a notable addition to the pleasure fleet in Atlantic waters. She is 206 feet over all, 167 feet waterline, 35 feet 6 inches beam, 22 feet depth of hold, and 16 feet draught. She is bark-rigged. She spreads, including her light sails, over 20,000 square feet of canvas. Aloha's auxiliary propelling machinery consists of two Almy water tube boilers and a 400-horsepower triple expansion engine, built by the Fore River company. This engine drives a feathering propeller of manganeze bronze especially designed. Her speed under natural draught will be a little less than ten knots an hour, with a trifle over eleven knots under forced draught.

"The hull is built of Bessemer steel, having a tensile strength of 60,000 pounds to the square inch. Aloha will be fitted with the most modern plumbing, with running hot and cold fresh and salt water throughout, with evaporators and with a large electric light plant. Her decks will be of teak, and all her deck fittings will likewise be of teak. Sails, anchors and boats will be hoisted by steam.

Aloha will have two large deckhouses, the forward portion of the forward house carrying the wings of the flying bridge. In this house are located the galley, chartroom, stairways for officers and stores, also the engine and boiler hatches. The after-house contains the main companion and furnishes a commodious room for the owner and guests.

"Below are six good-sized staterooms, four of which have communicating bathrooms. In addition there are rooms for the surgeons, maids, etc. The owner's stateroom, extends the full width of the ship, and there is a separate companionway running to it from the deck. Amidships is a large hall, which leads to the main saloon, a room 32x17 feet.

"In addition to the regular officers' staterooms, Aloha will have a laundry. The engineers' and firemen's rooms communicate directly with their departments. The forecastle is roomy and has berths for eighteen men.

"The hold has over seven feet headroom and is arranged with separate divisions for the different departments. The steward's hold is forward, containing the main refrigerators and storerooms for wet and dry stores. This is entered by a trunk hatch extending to the upper deck. The ship's stores are stored in the after hold, with a separate entrance from the deck. Aloha's outfit of boats will consist of a thirty-foot steam launch burning liquid fuel; twenty-one foot ship's launch, three lifeboats, and a dinghy. All of these were built by Lawley."

SUSANNAH TUFTS CHAPTER.

Susannah Tufts Chapter, D. A. R., of Weymouth, held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Alden Bowditch, 28 Quincy avenue, East Braintree. In spite of the unfavorable conditions of travel there were fifteen members and one guest present. The speaker of the afternoon was Rev. Frederick G. Libby, of Magnolia, who in an informal and pleasing way told the ladies of a visit to Hindman, Kentucky, which he made last October. The members of this chapter are particularly interested in a W. C. T. U. settlement school in that place, as they are supporting a young boy there. The business meeting followed and adjourned at five o'clock until Jan. 31.

—A motion for equal pay for men and women teachers is being considered by the New York city board of education. The proposition seems rather simple: If women teachers are not as good as men they should not be employed at any price. If they are as good they should receive the pay that men would get for doing the same work.—C. S. Monitor.

INSTALLATION OF OFFICERS.

District Deputy Edward B. Prouty and suite of Rockland installed the following officers of John Hancock lodge, I. O. O. F., Wednesday evening:

N. G.—L. W. Frost.
V. G.—James Thomas.
R. S.—George C. Ela.
F. S.—George H. Stebbins.
Treas.—J. L. Smith.
Warden—Joseph Pickering.
Con.—A. N. Birse.
Chaplain—S. A. Kay.
R. S. S.—Joseph Mitchell.
L. S. S.—F. E. Sadlier.
R. S. N. G.—C. M. Houghton.
L. S. N. G.—A. S. Kennedy.
R. S. V. G.—F. L. Bent.
L. S. V. G.—C. M. Cummings.
I. G.—V. J. Beede.
O. G.—Herbert Thomas.

F. C. Schomburg was elected pianist, S. A. Kay, trustee; A. N. Birse, James Thomas and John Houghton on the finance committee.

After the installation coffee and sandwiches were served.

FRANK ALTON WRISLEY.

The sudden death of F. A. Wrisley occurred at the home of his sister, the wife of Dr. W. E. Reid of Brookline, on Monday, Dec. 27, from blood poisoning, caused by a slight injury to his right arm, so very slight at first that no notice was taken of it until his hand became badly swollen, when he called upon his brother-in-law for treatment. All possible aid was given him, although not the slightest hope was held out for his recovery. Sunday evening a slight turn for the better was seen, and such was 'phoned his anxious sisters and brother at his home on Edison street, but later word was received that he had passed away.

Impressive services were held at his sister's home in Brookline, conducted by Rev. Edward M. Cummings, pastor of the South Congregational church of Boston. As one looked upon the remains lying among so many beautiful roses, his favorite flower, it seemed as if it might be said, "He was young to die." Burial was private at Mt. Wollaston, Quincy.

PILGRIM DESCENDANTS.

As a result of efforts of Lysander S. Richards of Marshfield Hills, a Colonial descendant, to start a society of Plymouth Pilgrim Colony Descendants, to have its headquarters on the grounds where the Pilgrims landed, a meeting was held in Plymouth New Year's day, to effect organization. Mr. Richards, who had brought about the meeting, was made chairman. Former President Nutter, of the Brockton Trust Company, who lives in East Bridgewater, was made secretary.

Mr. Richards had carried on extensive correspondence with many such descendants, who have signified their desire to become members of such a body, including Judge Robert O. Harris of the Superior Court; Hon. John D. Long, Willard Howland, Walter H. Faunce, Jere B. Howard, E. E. Hobart, Rev. E. B. Meglathlin, Miss Floretta Vining of Hull, and many others.

On motion of Judge Harris, it was voted to give the society the name of "The Society of Pilgrim Descendants," having for its object to include all Pilgrim descendants who came to Plymouth Colony any time up to 1640, but no later, which includes all the Mayflower Descendants and those who came over in the Ann and later to the above time limit, which comprised the Old Plymouth Colony.

There will be another meeting to make a permanent organization and form a constitution. No one will be eligible to membership other than those who can prove their line of descent from the Pilgrim ancestor. There is already deep interest manifested in the formation of the society and a large membership is expected.

Several Quincy people are interested in the new society and will probably become members.

—New York's latest sky-scraper will tower thirty-one stories above the Battery, and will have 555,000 square feet of rentable area. Ten miles of plumbing and twenty miles of steam pipe will be a part of the building equipment.

CONSERVATISM A MORAL ISSUE

Pinchot Submits a Vigorous Defense of Shaw and Rice

Washington, Jan. 7.—Gifford Pinchot sent to the senate Thursday a stronger utterance than his recent New York speech, which the country instantly recognized as establishing conservation as a moral issue. It was a letter to Senator Dolliver of Iowa, chairman of the committee on agriculture.

The senate was astonished Wednesday when Senator Jones of Washington, who introduced the resolution authorizing an investigation of the interior department and the forest service, accompanied it with a long eulogy of Secretary Ballinger.

So elaborate a defense of Ballinger, prefacing what is intended to be an impartial investigation, shocked the senate and dazed the conservationists. They recognized it as a subtle attempt to prejudice the public that favor one side.

The reply came quickly Thursday when in answer to a question of Dolliver, Forester Pinchot submitted an equally elaborate defense of the action of Messrs. Price and Shaw of the forest service, in forcing the publicity of the Glavis charges that the Cunningham coal lands in Alaska were apparently about to be secured by fraud, with the knowledge of the interior department.

Characterizing his two assistants as "vigorous defenders of the people's interests," Pinchot stated that they had deliberately proposed to risk their official positions rather than to risk the loss of land by the government. They had violated a rule of propriety as between departments, said Pinchot, and for this deserved reprimand, and have received one, but he would recommend that no further action be taken.

In view of the circumstances, their breach of "propriety" sinks into insignificance. The success of the forest service depends almost wholly upon enlightened public approval and while public servants were bound to act wholly within the law, they were bound also at whatever personal risk to do everything the law would permit them to do for the public good.

Price and Shaw, Pinchot went on, were properly in possession of the information they gave out, and Shaw "properly" was sent to Chicago to assist Glavis in the preparation of his public statement.

This straight acceptance of the gauntlet thrown down by Ballinger through the Washington senator, made a sensation throughout the Capitol, and the galleries began to fill with excited men.

Attorney General Wickersham's report to the president on the statement of Glavis and replies thereto relating to the conduct of the interior department in reference to the so-called Cunningham group of coal land claims in Alaska was made public yesterday. Wickersham includes many letters, telegrams and statements which indicate that Ballinger had no part in Cunningham transactions.

"Glavis' actions," says Wickersham, "appear to have been founded upon a wholly exaggerated sense of his own importance rather than on any genuine desire to protect the interests of the government, and this species of megalomania has finally led him to submit to you charges of improper motives and conduct against his official superiors, which, in my opinion, are so unjust and unfounded as to merit his immediate separation from the service."

SCHOOLHOUSE CAMPAIGN AT WOLLASTON

The Women As Well As the Men Are Aroused and at Work

Meetings Held by the Child Nurture Club and Men's Clubs

On Thursday evening an enthusiastic meeting was held at the residence of Rev. Rufus B. Tobey, 75 Lincoln avenue, Wollaston, for the purpose of formally beginning a campaign for a new school house in Wollaston. This meeting was the result of two movements which started in Wollaston almost at the same time.

Last summer the Child Nurture club appointed a committee on schools. This committee arranged for a public meeting which was held at the school house in November, and they urged all parents to come early and go over the school building before the meeting. What they saw then proved to them that Wollaston ought to have a new schoolhouse at once, and the committee on schools dedicated itself to the task of agitating the subject until they got one.

Shortly after that, two of the committee, Mrs. Charles H. Bedell and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham, inspected the Wollaston school building with Dr. N. S. Hunting and Dr. W. G. Curtis of the School Committee. They next sent a letter signed by the committee on schools and the president of the Child Nurture club, Mrs. Robert E. Park, to the State Board of Police asking them to inspect the building. The State Board of Police replied that they could not do this unless at the request of some of the municipal authorities.

About this time the Men's club of the Congregational church, without knowing what the Child Nurture club had been doing, discussed the subject of a new schoolhouse for Wollaston at their December meeting, and appointed a committee with Rufus B. Tobey chairman to investigate the matter and report as to the need of a new building. This committee first inspected the schoolhouse themselves and then wrote to the State Board of Health asking them to do so. In reply they received a letter which corroborated their own opinion of the school building and made them feel that they were warranted in taking steps to replace it by a new one.

Thinking that they could increase their strength by getting the other men's clubs of Wollaston to unite with them, Mr. Tobey invited two representatives from each club to the meeting which was held Thursday evening. As he had become acquainted with the work which had been done by the committee on schools of the Child Nurture club, he also invited two representatives from that committee.

The following were present at the meeting:—Rufus B. Tobey, Chester N. Godfrey and Amos T. Leavitt from the Congregational Men's club; John L. Miller and Dr. Wellington Record from the Walther Class of the Baptist church; J. E. Walter and Percy L. Davidson from the Episcopal Men's club; E. H. Ewertz and A. N. Murray from the Methodist Men's club; and Mrs. Charles H. Bedell and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham from the Child Nurture club. A letter was read from the Unitarian Men's club saying that they would choose representatives from their club at their next meeting.

These representatives of the various clubs formally organized themselves into a committee which they named the "Ward Five School House Committee," and chose Rufus B. Tobey as chairman and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham as secretary.

It was voted that an executive committee be appointed by the chair consisting of one member from each club the chairman and secretary being members ex officiis. It was voted that this executive committee should draw up two identical petitions, one to be circulated among the women of Wollaston, and the other among the men, asking the School committee for a new Wollaston school house.

Mrs. Bedell invited the committee to a meeting of the Child Nurture club at her house on Thursday evening, January 20, when Prof. William Burnham of Clark University Worcester, will speak on "The Ideal School House." As Mr. Tobey thought this lecture would aid greatly in showing the people the need of a new school house here, he asked if it could not be turned over to the Ward Five School House Committee, and made a public meeting in one of the church vestries. It was left with Mrs. Bedell to ascertain if the Child Nurture club would consent to this.

After discussing their undertaking from all points of view, the committee adjourned fully aroused for the work, till called again by the chairman.

REMINGTON THE ARTIST.

Story of Himself Told by Famous Delineator of Western Life.

Frederic Remington, the artist, writer and sculptor, who died at his home in Ridgefield, Conn., the other day, used to tell his friends that he wanted his epitaph to be "He Knew the Horse." One admirer wrote of him, "He knows a horse from the prick of his ears to the frogs of his feet." Another wrote, "He knows every hair on a pony, and you need only to put Remington the writer and Remington the artist together to make the greatest pony that ever galloped up and down the pages of a book with a cowboy on his back."

Remington, who wrote the history of the great west—wrote it in its raw coloring—was born in Canton, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1861. His first start in life after receiving a common school education was as clerk in an express office. Hearing many stories of the far west, he earned and saved his money and soon was on a ranch, taking his turn as cowboy in rounding up the cattle. Indians were a menace to life as well as property, and Remington made a study of their habits. In addition to many hours passed in the saddle, he found time to perfect himself in drawing and painting, a course of which he had taken in the Yale Art school and Art Students' league, and pictured the redskins as they lived. He first made drawings with pencil and later took up painting. He also was interested in military and treated of scenes of the Spanish-American war.

Remington once told a story of himself that will bear retelling. One of his cowboy acquaintances in the west was known as "Hollering Smith" because of his favorite way of enjoying himself. Remington made a number of studies of him both in repose and at his favorite pursuit, and on returning to New York one time he utilized these in a series of illustrations in a magazine article. The next time he went west and got to Smith's neighborhood Smith came over to see him on the very day of his arrival and, hauling from his pocket a page torn from a magazine with one of Remington's studies of him as the central figure of a group in a state of eruption, inquired, "Say, is that me?"

Fred was cautious, as he said, not being exactly sure of what was next on the program, and replied, "Well, I got the idea from you, of course, but"—

"Oh, it's all right," said Smith—"no offense. If it's me, just say so."

"Well, yes; it's a fairly close portrait of you," said Remington.

"That's what the boys at the ranch said," Smith came back. "I look like that when I holler, do I?"

"I think you do."

"Well," said Smith, tucking the page away in his pocket, "if that's the state of the case then all I've got to say is that Hollerin' Smith has hollered the last holler that he'll ever holler. Hereafter when I celebrate I'll blow a tin horn, you bet. I don't consider that no man has a right to look like that—not around among white folks at least."

Mr. Remington made fifteen bronzes, painted a large number of pictures and wrote several books.

Alfonso Returns to Madrid

Madrid, Jan. 7.—King Alfonso has returned to Madrid from Andalusia, where he went ostensibly to hunt, though it was reported at the time of his departure from here that he was about to undergo an operation for the relief of a trouble of the ear and nose.

RIOTERS HEAVILY FINED

Judge Threatens to Call Soldiers If Further Lawlessness Occurs

Norton, Mass., Jan. 7.—Fines of $325 for five rioters and plain talk by Judge Byram in the Attleboro police court evidently had a dampening effect on the 135 men who quit work at the Talbot Woolen company's mills for a large number returned to their employment last night.

In commenting on the outbreaks which resulted in the arrests, the court told the prisoners that such lawlessness would not be tolerated, and troops would be called in if necessary.

The trouble resulted from the night workers in the building devoted to the combing process asking more pay.

In addition to being fined, the men were placed under bonds of $200 each to keep the peace for six months. H. W. Talbot, a member of the mill firm, sprang a surprise by furnishing the peace bond for each man.

WHEN CONGRESS ADJOURNS

President Taft Is Figuring Upon a Trip to the Far Northwest

Washington, Jan. 7.—President Taft is still looking forward to a trip to Alaska in the coming spring. He plans to go to the far northwest territory immediately after the adjournment of congress, and before going to Beverly for the late summer and fall.

In announcing to a committee of New York congressmen that he could not definitely accept their invitation to visit New York on May 30 next, the president said he might be on his way to Alaska at that time, or that congress might be in its closing days, in which latter event he would not care to leave Washington.

WAS LONG SOUGHT BY BOSTON POLICE

Woman Broker Voluntarily Returns and Surrenders

Boston, Jan. 7.—After being a fugitive from justice since Aug. 21, Mrs. Annie McKenzie came to Boston and gave herself up at police headquarters. She was charged with running a bucketshop at 8 Exchange place, and in indictment warrant has been out for her ever since the sitting of the September grand jury.

Mrs. McKenzie is reputed to be the only woman who has kept a bucketshop, and it is believed that most of her business was done with women. When she closed up her business last summer there was some excitement, and the police made an investigation.

Mrs. McKenzie for several months has been in Maine.

Mrs. McKenzie was arraigned before Judge Wait and allowed to go on her own recognizance in the sum of $300, after pleading not guilty.

COMPULSORY RETIREMENT

Embodied In Proposed Pension Law For Federal Employes

Washington, Jan. 7.—Efforts are to be made at the present session of congress to have that body pass a law, permitting the compulsory retirement of superannuated government employes and providing for pensions for such employes. Secretary MacVeagh has instructed Herbert D. Brown of his department to draw up a plan. The secretary is understood to have the support of President Taft.

Brown's tentative plan, it is said, contemplates the creation of a pension fund which will be maintained entirely by the working clerks themselves as soon as the scheme gets into full swing. There is a provision also for the retirement of the ordinary clerks in the classified service at the age of 70, the mail carriers at 65 and the railway mail clerks at 60.

RELATIVES ARE RETICENT

Will Not Say Whether Missing $10,000,000 Heiress Has Been Found

Philadelphia, Jan. 7.—Representatives of the family of Roberta de Janon, the $10,000,000 heiress, who eloped with a waiter, refuse to either confirm or deny the report that the girl has been found.

Henry F. Walton, counsel for Robert Buist, the girl's millionaire grandfather, and active in representing him in the prosecution of the search, refuses to make an comment on the reported finding of the girl.

The local police authorities are equally reticent.

BANK CLOSES DOORS

Was One of the Strongest of Cleveland's Suburban Institutions

Cleveland, Jan. 7.—The South Cleveland Banking company, one of the strongest of Cleveland's suburban banks, has filed a deed of assignment to Attorney Thomas H. Marlatt.

U. G. Walker, president of the bank, is also a director in the Werner company, a large Akron publishing house, for which a receiver was appointed in the federal courts.

ANECDOTES OF COUNT TOLSTOY

Russia's Great Novelist, Philosopher and Reformer.

HIS CRITICISM OF BIG SLEEVES

Thought Lady Visitor Had Wasted Enough Cloth to Clothe a Little Girl. Sample of His Humor—Instance When the Great Philosopher Had No Answer Ready.

Several years ago it was written of Count Leo Tolstoy, the Russian novelist, philosopher and reformer, that while he was in no sense a popular author his books had a wider circulation than those of any other writer living at that time. His books have been translated into no less than forty-five different languages and dialects.

The man whose views were thus disseminated throughout the civilized world succeeded in achieving his aim to make his life an open book to be read of all mankind. Born to wealth, he renounced the world when he realized its vanities and retired to his estate to live the life of a farmer and to preach in his writings the doctrines of humanity. In the quiet of Yasnaya Polyana, his estate in southern Russia, Tolstoy, working side by side with the benighted and ignorant Russian peasants, became a philosopher, an expounder of Biblical teachings and an exponent of the creed that every man should earn his bread by the sweat of his brow.

Once a lady philanthropist crossed the Russian frontier to visit Tolstoy. Ushered into the presence of the philosopher, she uttered the usual conventional greetings and explanations of her visit, while he eyed her silently and in abstraction, "as if," she said afterward, "he were quietly turning back the top of my head and looking at the thoughts inside." When she had finished speaking he touched her arm, which was covered, as was the fashion at that time, with a large sleeve, and said: "Why do you wrap so much cloth on your arms? If you ripped it off it would make a good frock for a little girl."

Decried All Wars.

Some years ago Count Tolstoy decried all revolutions and wars, declaring that there never was a good war. His address to his dear brother the emperor, written at the time of the Russo-Japanese war, was all in sorrow, not in anger; a warning, not a threat. Epitomized, the statements of Tolstoy were:

First.—The working people desire to be delivered from special laws that place them in the position of a pariah, deprived of all the rights of other citizens.

Second.—They desire freedom of removal from place to place, freedom of education, freedom of conscience and, above all, freedom in the use of the land, the abolition of the right of landed property.

Proof of His Humor.

Despite the general seriousness of his views of life and its obligations, the following incident is a proof of Tolstoy's sense of humor: Once an American millionaire and his companions wanted very much to see the great author, and eventually this was arranged, the stipulation being that no one should speak to Tolstoy.

Tolstoy took his seat on the balcony of his home, and the Americans filed past in solemn procession. Everything went well until the last lady arrived. She, however, did not keep her part of the bargain, for, bending forward, she called out: "Leo Toystoy! Leo Tolstoy! All your great works have deeply influenced my life, but especially"— And here she stopped short, having forgotten the name of the book. The great author leaned over the edge of the balcony and said smilingly, "'Dead Souls,' perhaps." "Yes, yes," answered the lady. "Ah, indeed!" said Tolstoy. "That book is by Gogol and not by me."

Experience With a Policeman.

Once in Moscow Count Tolstoy saw a persistent beggar asking alms, who exclaimed, "A little penny, brother, in the name of Christ!"

A police officer approached. He was young, martial and wrapped in the regulation sheepskin. At sight of him the beggar fled, hobbling away in fright and haste.

"Is it possible," said Tolstoy to himself, "that people are forbidden to ask charity in Christ's name in a Christian land?"

"Brother," he said to the policeman, "can you read?"

"Yes," said the officer politely.

"Have you read the Bible?"

"Yes."

"And do you remember Christ's orders to feed the hungry?" And he cited the words. The policeman was evidently troubled. He turned to his questioner and asked:

"And you, sir—you can read?"

"Yes, brother."

"And have you read the police regulations?"

"Yes, brother."

"And do you remember that begging in the main streets is forbidden?"

The philosopher found no answer ready.

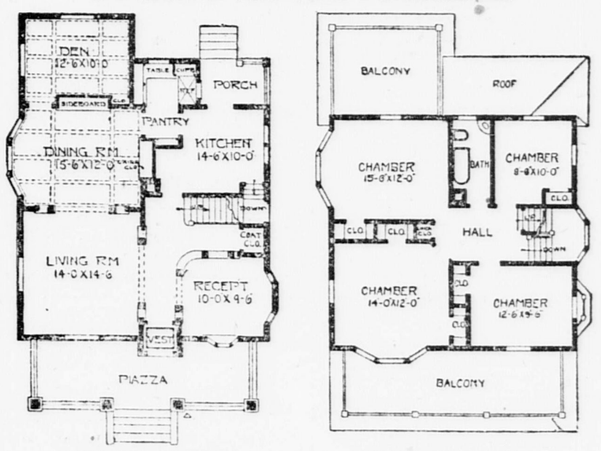
A Modern Two Story Colonial.

Design 886, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

Here is a very popular design for a modern two story colonial residence. The house is thirty feet wide and twenty-eight feet deep over the main part and has a basement under the entire house; first story ceilings nine feet high, second story eight feet. Cost to build, exclusive of heating and plumbing, $3,750.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 886 for $25.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Thomas F. Burke of Willard street, who has been spending the holidays in Washington, arrived home Tuesday evening.

Ernest Williams who has been spending the holidays at his home on Barry street, returned to Wolfsville, Nova Scotia, on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Moyle of Nightingale avenue, who spent the holidays with Mrs. Moyle's parents at Westerly, R. I. returned Monday.

Word has been received by the pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church that the District Superintendent, Rev. John Galbraith of Boston, will not hold the fourth quarterly conference until January 23. The announcement was made last Sunday that he would be here Jan. 16.

PERSONAL.

It is with regret that the many friends of Miss Annie May Williams of Barry street, learn that she has left West Quincy. Miss Williams has been the faithful third vice president of the Epworth League of the Hall Place M. E. church, having had charge of the mercy and help work for the past year. Not only has she endeared herself to the many whom she has visited and helped in this work but has also been very helpful in the work of the Junior League, of which she has been assistant superintendent for some time. She was a member of the class of 1908 at the Quincy High and graduated with the class of 1909 at the Woodward Institute. She has always been faithful and willing to help in whatever way she could, and she will be missed not only by her family but by her pastor and Junior and Epworth League friends, as well as all those who knew her, and those whose privilege it was to work with so loyal a friend.

WOULD EXTEND CIVIL SERVICE

Recommendations by the Boston Finance Commission

MATTER OF APPOINTMENTS

Those In Collecting, Treasury, Penal Institutions and County Courts Should Generally Be Subject to State Law—Wants Boston Relieved of Suffolk County Expenses—Legislature Asked to Consider Plans

Boston, Jan. 7.—The Boston finance commission has submitted to the general court a summary of its recommendations for legislation affecting the city of Boston. They are as follows:

1. That hereafter in the collecting, treasury and penal institutions departments of the city of Boston all appointments, except the heads of departments, and the penal institutions departments, physicians and nurses, be made under and subject to the laws of the commonwealth relating to the civil service.

2. That all appointments hereafter made in Suffolk county by the clerks of the several courts, the register of deeds, the register of probate, the custodian of the Suffolk county courthouse, the master of the jail, and by the clerks of the police district and municipal courts of the city of Boston, be made under and subject to the laws of the commonwealth relating to the civil service.

3. That the heads of the various departments of the city of Boston be authorized to establish, subject to the approval of the mayor, reasonable fees for the issuance of permits, licenses and other privileges, including the making of openings in streets and sidewalks, and for the making of inspections required by law.

4. That the superintendent of streets be authorized to require persons, or corporations, who desire permits to make openings in streets or sidewalks to deposit with the treasurer of the city of Boston a sum fixed by said superintendent, subject to the approval of the mayor, which shall be sufficient to indemnify the city from loss.

5. That the fees for recording deeds and other instruments in the registry of deeds for Suffolk county be increased so as to make said registry self-supporting.

6. That the city of Boston be relieved of maintaining at its sole expense the various Suffolk county institutions, and that the expense of maintaining Suffolk county courts, jails, houses of correction, other county offices and necessary public buildings for the use of Suffolk county be apportioned between the cities of Boston and Chelsea and the towns of Revere and Winthrop, on the basis of population, or valuation, or in some other equitable manner.

7. That money paid into Suffolk courts be placed at interest.

8. That all officers of Suffolk county shall transmit to the mayor of Boston a written statement annually of the amount of their receipts and expenditures for the year ending Feb. 1.

9. That the law requiring the appointment of assistant assessors be repealed; that the police department submit annually a list of polls which shall be the basis for the assessment of polls.

10. That the schoolhouse commission shall consist of three persons, of whom one shall be chairman and receive a salary of not less than $5000; the other members shall serve without compensation.

11. That payments of state aid, military aid and soldiers' relief shall not be required to be submitted to the board of aldermen, and that a board of trustees of three members shall be appointed by the mayor to have general supervision over the soldiers' relief department.

12. That the auditor of the commonwealth be hereafter required to publish in his annual report a statement showing the amount of each class of the metropolitan debt.

PEDAL AFFLICTIONS

Poor People In New York City Are to Receive Treatment Free

New York, Jan. 7.—The newest thing in charities is soon to be established in this city. It is a clinic where the poor can have their corns, bunions, ingrowing nails and other afflictions of the feet cured free of charge. It is to be called the People's Clinic.

Several prominent clergymen are behind the plan. Dr. Joseph P. Solomon is to be surgeon-in-charge, and he will have a number of assistants.

Long In Government Service

Washington, Jan. 7.—After thirty-five years in the government service, Mrs. Anna E. Philpott, aged 94, died at her home here. Up to a week ago, when she was taken sick, she had performed her duties as an employe of the bureau of engraving and printing.

Mrs. Pankhurst's Son Dead

London, Jan. 7.—Harry Pankhurst, the only son of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the suffragette leader, is dead. Mrs. Pankhurst recently returned from a tour of the United States.

NOTED MEN PASS ON

Army Officer, Bishop and Yale Professor Answer Death's Summons

Washington, Jan. 7.—General Daniel H. Rucker, the oldest retired officer of the United States army that ever lived, died at his home here, aged 98 years. He was born in New Jersey and appointed to the army from Michigan.

Boston, Jan. 7.—Right Rev. John Brady, D. D., for many years the auxiliary bishop to the late Archbishop John J. Williams, and who had also assisted in the episcopal work of the diocese under Archbishop O'Connell, is dead. He had been ill for the past two months from paralysis. He was born in Ireland in 1844.

New York, Jan. 7.—Professor Samuel S. Sanford, a multi-millionaire and for many years head of the music department of Yale university, died at his home in this city. He had been in ill health for a long time.

OVERDUE SCHOONERS SAFE

Big Coasters Blown Far Out of Their Course During Recent Storm

Boston, Jan. 7.—Following the news that the four-masted schooner Henry W. Cramp, from this port for Norfolk, had reached San Juan, P. R., all safe came news of the overdue six-masted schooner Wyoming, which left Bath. Me., on her maiden trip on Dec. 21 for Newport News.

A wireless message from steamer City of Macon, which left here Tuesday for Savannah, reported the big schooner fourteen miles south of Winter Quarter lightship. This position would indicate that she was seventy-four miles south of Cape Henry, apparently working north again after being blown down the coast.

SOLDIERS ACTED AS BARTENDERS

Also Gambled and Borrowed Money on a Large Scale

Washington, Jan. 7.—Soldiers tending bar in the uniform of the United States army and playing monte and poker for comparatively heavy stakes, even the non-commissioned officers, in the reading room of their barracks was described to the military court of inquiry investigating the shooting up of Brownsville, Tex., as the state of affairs just preceding that event.

This account was given by former Private John Holloman, the banker, capitalist, speculator, money lender, school teacher, saloonist, hack operator and othewise powerful man among the negro troops before their discharge as a result of the shooting affray. He has been charged with organizing the party of soldiers which is said to have shot up the town. He denies it.

Twenty-five percent per month, said Holloman, was his charge, and it was just the same whether they kept it the full month or paid it back in an hour. At times 75 percent of the battalion, including non-commissioned officers, were his debtors.

LEAVES DOLLAR TO SISTER

Balance of Malden Man's Estate Goes to Old-Time Sweetheart

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 7.—A romance uncrowned by marriage which extended over a period of more than twenty-five years was brought to light when the will of William H. Harlow of Malden was filed in the probate court here.

In the will he bequeaths to his sister, Sadie H. Harlow, the sum of $1. "But to my financee, Addie Track, all the rest and residue of my property of every character and description, to be her absolute property."

EFFORTS ABANDONED

Mediators Give Up the Attempt to Settle Switchmen's Strike

Washington, Jan. 7.—Efforts to secure an adjustment of the strike of switchmen on the railroads of the northwest have been abandoned.

Chairman Knapp of the interstate commerce commission and Commissioner of Labor Neill, the mediators under the Erdman act, had a final conference with H. B. Perham here. It was determined that nothing further could be done to effect a settlement.

BRIDGE OVER A MILE LONG

Imposing Baltimore and Ohio Structure Is Opened For Traffic

Baltimore, Jan. 7.—The new double track steel bridge across the Susquehanna river at Havre De Grace, built by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company, was opened for traffic.

It cost more than $2,000,000 and is one of the most imposing structures of its kind in the western hemisphere. It is slightly more than a mile in length.

Three Bullets In Her Head

Norfolk, Jan. 7.—Margaret Marshall, the newspaper writer who attempted suicide at Virginia Beach, has so far recovered with three bullets still in her head, that she has assumed temporarily the duties of matron of a Virginia Beach sanitarium.

HAND IN HAND WITH CANNON

Insurgents Think Taft In Combination Against Them

THE PRESIDENT IS CRITICIZED

Declared to Be Making Grave Mistake by Aiding Speaker In Efforts to Punish Those Who Oppose Him—No Fight Against Taft Policies and Republican Doctrine, but Against House Rules

Washington, Jan. 7.—"The insurgent Republicans of the house are not intimidated by the action of the administration in withholding patronage from them and are not scared into silence by any apparent combination of President Taft and Speaker Cannon."

This was the declaration of Representative Norris of Nebraska, one of the leading "insurgents" of the house.

Mr. Norris resented stories appearing in one or two Washington and New York papers to the effect that the "insurgents" were "lying down," owing to the attitude of the administration. On the contrary, Norris criticized President Taf himself and the administration for singling out "insurgent" representatives for punishment.

"President Taft is making a grave mistake by aiding Cannon in this way, and I want to say so unhesitatingly," continued Norris. "I do not object, nor do any of the 'insurgents' object, as far as I know, to the withholding patronage from us. But I denounce this singling out of the men who have opposed Cannon and the house organization for an infliction of punishment.

"How can the president say that we are opposed to his policies and declare that we are to be punished for it when we have not opposed his policies in any way? We do not, in fact, know yet what President Taft's policies are to be. We have not even received his messages upon several important subjects; still, we have been punished. Postmaster General Hitchcock has admitted that we are being discriminated against right now, although we have done absolutely nothing to merit it excepting to oppose Cannon and the house machine.

"The president is aiding Cannon. There is no other construction that can be placed upon this move of the administration.

"I want to say that this effort to defeat us by starting fights against us at home is open to very vigorous criticism. I have no objection to Speaker Cannon or any of his supporters coming to Nebraska and making any kind of a fight upon me they wish to make; but I do deny that the Republican congressional committee has any honorable right to attack me. It is unjust and unfair.

"The fight of the insurgents in the house will continue against Speaker Cannon and the house rules, which he personifies. We shall not, however, oppose any policy of the president as long as it is Republican doctrine."

"Yes, quite right. We do go to press very soon," cried Brand confidently, "and I know Michael Nolan is the man who will order it done."

"Michael," cried Mrs. Nolan at the top of her voice, which rose sharply over the din of the typesetting machines, "are you going to stand for this? Mr. Brand acts as if he owned the Advance and treats you as if you were the office boy. He thinks he's a great reformer and knows it all. We other people have a right to our opinions, too, and I don't see why you and your family should be made to suffer on account of him as we have had to ever since you took him up."

Judith Bartelmy heard the stormy scene, lived a part of it herself huddled in the managing editor's office. She felt that Nolan would not let the story be used from what she had heard, and she could not suppress a pang of pain that pierced her heart at what she believed to be the fanatical vindictiveness of Wheeler Brand against her father. Yet she was a true woman, and she could not, in spite of her loyalty to her parent, avoid feeling a touch of pride at his strength of character, his determination, at the sacrifices he had made, to accomplish what he believed, even if foolishly, to be his duty.

"They don't need me," she finally muttered, and, gathering up her costly skirts, she tripped daintily across the paper strewn floor, out into the hall and down to her carriage.

Nolan dropped his head in thought when his wife had finished her tirade. He paced up and down nervously. He looked at the clock, then at the form with its accusing contents, then at Brand, then at his wife.

"I'll go and telephone Judge Bartelmy," put in Dupuy. "He'll be anxious."

The lawyer took himself off.

Brand saw the danger of delay. He doubted if any man would be able to successfully withstand the pressure that Bartelmy and Nolan's family would be able to bring to bear on the owner in another twenty-four hours.

"No, no!" he exclaimed to Nolan. "You would fail me again. I have tried to prove this judge's guilt to the people, but I fear I have only succeeded in proving it to his daughter. A day's delay would be fatal, I know. At least Bartelmy could get another judge to issue an injunction against us even if he would not dare to do it himself. And there are other steps he might take."

His voice rose higher, and he worked himself into a frenzy of earnestness.

He stood before the little group gathered around the ink black form and continued his impassioned words:

"You know I thought we were going to be absolutely unmuzzled here. You were a free man. Poverty couldn't frighten you, and you had seen both sides of life. You promised to back me up, no matter what it cost, so long as we printed the truth, but at the first big test you fail me."

Mrs. Nolan was on the point of becoming hysterical in her agitation.

"Michael, Michael"— she began.

"There, mother, you go home with Sylvester. He's waiting outside for you. After all, this is a man's job we've got here. I am the head of the family, and I will settle this matter in my own way," he said sternly. "You must not attempt further to interfere."

He led her out of the room.

Brand spoke to McHenry.

"Did you hear, Mac?" he asked. "He won't decide to run it."

"It's tough, old man—it's tough!"

"This is such a live thing I don't see how I can kill it," the managing editor said, rubbing his hand over the face of the form.

"That's the best first page ever made up in America," said McHenry, with justifiable professional pride.

Brand was inconsolable.

"I've been working ten years for just this thing," he said, "something so plain that even children would see what the big thieves are doing."

"You go home!" Brand suddenly ordered McHenry.

"What?" was the surprised exclamation.

"I said go home!"

Brand's face was beginning to twitch nervously. He stood in the middle of the composing room, under the flooding white glare from a sixty-four candle power electric light, and clinched and unclinched his hands, not daring to look McHenry squarely in the face. The night editor began to guess what was passing through Brand's mind.

"Yes, but," he began to protest—"but"—

Brand cut him short, saying agitatedly:

"I am still managing editor."

McHenry now realized plainly that the intensely earnest Brand had decided to run the story that very night regardless of Nolan's attitude. It would be an easy matter, as Nolan, of course, would not remain at the office much longer. And McHenry well knew that such an act would not only bring about Brand's discharge from the Advance, but that it would as well injure his reputation in other newspaper offices, where obedience to one's superior, as in any well regulated organization, is a man's first duty under all circumstances.

"Why, man," he exclaimed questioningly, "you're surely not going to run this story?"

Before Brand could give an answer to this last question, even if he had intended to do so, Nolan broke in on the pair.

"Mr. Nolan," began Brand, "you have heard the whole story of this miserable affair, both sides of it—Bartelmy's and my own, from our own lips. Whatever defense or explanation Bartelmy gave you I don't know. But, so far as I am concerned, I told you the facts and the truth. You must know that by this time. You must believe it. Therefore why do you or how in heaven's name can you hesitate?"

Michael Nolan's face shone with the light of determination.

"Wheeler, my boy," he said, "I have learned much from you. I have needed contact with such a man as you. I have led a rough life for most of my career. When I rose to be chairman of the Street Railway Workers' union I did so simply through my ruggedness of character, my ability to master men. Then I was driven out into the world, an outcast, and became a day laborer in the mines. When the day came that I owned my own mine it was again a case of fight, fight, FIGHT, for the lawless claim jumpers threatened me above ground, and the lawless floods assailed me below ground. So in the life I led I did not get the opportunity to study or even become familiar with the important questions and the problems that confront the men that guide the policy of newspapers."

Nolan drew close to Brand and placed his hand affectionately on the young editor's shoulder.

"But you, Wheeler—you have taught me much about those big issues that I did not know, and you have shown to me the high ideals that should guide the newspaper writer, the newspaper editor and the newspaper owner as well. You are right in this case." His voice rose to majestic heights. "Wheeler Brand, I have learned from you that the Advance is more than a newspaper. It is a great, throbbing, potential force. It is the strong arm of the Right standing against the evil arm of the Wrong. So we must not falter. We must not delay. Show the big thieves up, Wheeler. Let the story go to press."

Nolan turned quickly away and hastened out and down into the street.

A warm glow of enthusiasm spread over the face of Wheeler Brand as he picked up a bundle of proofs.

"We'll show them up!" he cried exultantly. "We'll show them up, and we'll put them down!"

CHAPTER XIV.

BRAND and McHenry began eagerly to inspect the final proofs of the Bartelmy story. Two figures suddenly stood in the doorway of the composing room. Ed Dupuy's telephone call was beginning to show results. Judge Bartelmy and Judith, ready for a last effort to prevent the publication of the condemnatory article, quite unobserved, glanced to where Brand and his associate editor were at work. "Don't come in yet. Wait a few moments," whispered the judge. The girl slipped down the hall into the managing editor's little office, the coign of vantage from which she had previously been able to hear all that took place in the composing room. Bartelmy proceeded directly to the form before which the two editors were working, and Brand saw that he must undergo another unpleasant encounter before the presses began to whirl off his story. He glanced impatiently at the clock and raised his brows questioningly to the judge.

"Mr. Brand, has Mr. Nolan been here tonight?" asked Bartelmy.

"Yes."

"Have you received instructions about this story?"

"Yes."

"What were those instructions? Is the story to be printed?"

"I am not at liberty to discuss with any outside person the communications I receive from the owner, but I will add for your information that the story will be on the press in a very few minutes."

At this latest declaration of Brand's Judith could restrain herself no longer. She rushed through the doorway, across the grimy floor, regardless of the flowing train of her silk gown.

Brand rubbed the back of his hand across his eyes as though they were deceiving him.

"Good God, it is Judith!" he exclaimed. Then he turned to his assistant. "Here, Mac, hurry—take this form away."

The girl's face and eyes were aglow with the effects of the nervous strain under which she labored on that epoch making and epoch breaking night before the startled night shift of the Advance.

"Wheeler, you're not going to use that picture?" she pleaded.

"Take the form away," again ordered Brand, his voice almost failing him.

"No, no; don't send it! Wait, wait!" She threw herself over the inky form, her arms outstretched.

Brand tried to draw her away.

"Judith, please!" he protested.

"They can't have"— She was hysterical.

SHE THREW HERSELF OVER THE INKY FORM.

"Go to lunch, boys," ordered Brand to the typesetters.

"We'll miss the mail," protested McHenry.

"I don't care. Go to lunch."

The compositors ceased work at the linotypes and, wondering and whispering, slowly filed out.

"Judith," Brand besought her, "won't you"—

"Listen to me, Wheeler," she broke in. "I know everything. Father has told me everything about—his—guilt. You understand what it means to me—what he is to me. You must spare him for me!"

"Judith, it's impossible."

"But it is the human thing to do. Oh, forget these ideals. Be just a man—a man who loves a woman and protects her. You do love me, I know, in spite of everything that you've done."

"Yes, I love you!" he cried fervently.

"And Wheeler, dear, I've not changed," she told him fondly. "I can see how right you mean to be in what you are trying to do, but in this you are wrong. Whatever my father may have done, his intentions were honest. He had been involved by others and when he tried to extricate himself it was too late. They, not he, were guilty. It was for their sakes, not his own, that he offered you that money, so you see you are wrong. Why, Wheeler, if you belonged to me and committed a crime I would die to shield you from the penalty."

Brand answered her quickly.

"That is wrong reasoning."

"No, no; it is right. That must always be," she cried. "It is like—like a law of life. Can't you see that too? I belong to you. Yes, I belong to you, and you should shield me. You must feel toward my father as he were your own because he is mine. It's not possible that you would do this thing to your own father. Think of him that way—your own father! You'll not regret it. I'll make it up to you with all my love for all the rest of life! Wheeler, say you will do what I ask." She broke down completely and sobbed brokenly, leaning across the form. "Oh, say you will do what I ask!"

Brand tried to raise her, but she clung to him frenziedly.

"Judith, for God's sake, don't!" he said.

"Yes, yes; you must, you shall!" She was losing all control of herself in her desperation.

"You're dragging her down to your own level."

"Judith, listen to me," he said inspiredly. "I'm not the man who loves you or is loved by you. I've no right to think of you or of myself. I'm an instrument to an end in the history of a great God. Can't you see this thing as I do?"

"I can't reason. I can't argue. I can only feel."

DIVORCE GRANTED MARY MANNERING

Actress Is Awarded Custody of Her Little Daughter

New York, Jan. 7.—An interlocutory decree of absolute divorce was granted to Mary Mannering from James K. Hackett in the supreme court by Justice Blanchard.

The decree which separates these two stage favorites was based upon a report by Maurice Deiches, as referee, recommending that the plaintiff's prayer be granted.

Elsie, the 5-year-old child of the couple, is awarded to the custody of her mother. The decree contains no provision for alimony, although it is said this may be added later.

Hackett and Miss Mannering were married secretly in 1897. They starred together for several seasons, then separated, each heading a different company. In June, 1908, Miss Mannering began proceedings for divorce. In August of last year the friends of the Hacketts heard that the divorce suit had been withdrawn. Little Elsie was said to have brought about the reconciliation. Shortly afterward, however, the divorce suit was revived, and prosecuted vigorously.

AWAITING CONFERENCE

Craftsmen of the New Haven Road Ask For an Increase In Wages

Boston, Jan. 7.—Fifteen thousand skilled craftsmen, employed in the mechanical shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, have, through the Federated Trades Council of that system, petitioned the management for a wage increase of 6 cents an hour for all craftsmen and the continuance of the eight-hour work day.

The crafts involved are boilermakers, blacksmiths, machinists, machinists' helpers, carmen, car workers, steamfitters and car and locomotive painters.

The committee in charge of the schedule is waiting to be called into conference with the management of the road and expect that within a week it will be summoned to New Haven.

KING'S RESIDENCE BURNS

Greek Royal Family Flee In a Hurry as Flames Rapidly Spread

Athens, Jan. 7.—The royal palace at Tatoi caught fire at 10 o'clock last evening, while the royal family were gathered around a Christmas tree. The flames spread rapidly and soon the right wing of the palace was destroyed.

The fire is believed to have been due to illuminations on the tree, and the efforts of the attendants in the palace to extinguish the flames were fruitless. The royal family made a hasty escape, and so far as is known no one was injured.

A large force of firemen were soon on the scene, and they were assisted by sailors from the English and Russian warships. The Tatoi palace was the king's summer residence.

AT THE PARK THEATRE, BOSTON.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Park Theatre.

"The Man From Home" is absorbingly interesting and the great success that it has had during its two years' run in New York can be readily understood because of its scintillating humor, its tender note of sincerity and its good sound melodramatic undercurrent. The lines are brilliant and succinct and the wit is keenly original. Indeed the intelligent laughs come so swiftly one upon the other that occasionally an uproarious point is lost in the anticipating of prolonged laugh of another line. William Hodge, one of the best actors the country has ever produced plays Daniel Voorhees Pike, the young man from Kokomo who smashes into Burke's Peerage right where the blasted coronte nerve center most troubles America. For the first time the national joke of buying a lord has been turned to dramatic account and made the most exquisitely wholesome lesson. Mr. Hodge plays the kind of quite brainy who would certainly do exactly what Mr. Pike from Kokomo does without losing one jot of his dignified honor or sense of humor. A more eloquent picture of the American at his best has never been given us. Mr. Hodge is such a fine actor and has such a unique and attractive personality that half the absorbing enticements of the play are due to his delightful acting. The cast supporting him is flawless and the scenic accessories complete to the most minute detail are triumphs of the painters art. It is to be hoped that crowds will pack the Park theatre for the sensation of being terribly proud of America via Kokomo, Ind.

American Music Hall.

Those marvellous vaudeville entertainers, Felix & Caire will head the big bill at the American Music hall next week in hodge-podge boyhood and girlhood pranks that will make the old timers sit up and take notice. In the past both these youngsters have confined themselves strictly to imitations in which line they were absolutely unexcelled. Their ability, however, was too great to be devoted continuously to imitating others. As a result they are doing a great deal of original work which stamps them as performers of the first order. Another big feature of the bill will be Nellie Wallace, England's undisputed premiere character comedienne. Miss Wallace has a fund of humorous material and an eccentric method of delivering it which never fails to hit the right spot. Lovers of art will find much to interest them in Brengk's Bare Bronze Beauties who created such a sensation on their last visit to the Hub. This troupe is composed of three beautifully formed young ladies and two Grecian youths. All five pose absolutely nude with only a heavy covering of bronze paint on their bodies. The poses are most artistic and the reproductions of famous classic sculpture is remarkably true.

Castle Square Theatre.

Another week bids fair not to be enough to satisfy the demand for "1915" at the Castle Square. Record breaking houses have been the rule ever since the opening performances of Mr. Friebus's musical comedy on Christmas eve, and Mr. Craig intends to allow the public to see "1915" as long as they demand it. The third week therefore begins on Monday, and every afternoon and evening the Castle Square will be resounding to the merriment of thousands of playgoers who cannot resist the humor and the spectacular display of "1915." With its scenes laid in Boston with an air ship in full view as it journeys through the clouds, and with the fairy like mystery of a South Sea island in tropical climes, there is plenty of diversity and variety in this new musical comedy. There are more than seventy-five people in the cast of "1915." A large chorus is one of the finest ever heard on the Castle Square stage, and Mary Young heads the players as the heroine and the daughter of the mayor of Boston.

Keith's Theatre.

The suggestion has been made that Denman Thompson construct a play that would give his many admirers an opportunity to see "Joshua Whitcomb" in all those incidents in which this famous character has been seen by the public during the past 30 years. For instance, in "The Old Homestead" with which everybody is familiar, his experiences are both amusing and at the same time have that touch of pathos that appeals to everybody. The same may be said to be true of the sketch "Joshua Whitcomb" which Mr. Thompson is now playing at Keith's and which has brought back memories of 25 years ago to thousands of theatregoers, while many others who became attached to "Joshua" in "The Old Homestead" welcome this incident in his career which is entirely new to them. Mr. Thompson in his last week will be surrounded by an excellent bill, including Gracie Emmett in her sketch called "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband;" Elizabeth Murray, an old Boston favorite; the 8 Palace Girls from London; McIntyre and Groves; and "The Mermaids," in an unusually interesting swimming act.

Boston Theatre.

Those in search of a light, merry clean, melodic and fascinatingly spectacular entertainment will find it at the Boston Theatre, where "Bright Eyes" has already scored one of the biggest kinds of a popular hit. Large as is the auditorium of this playhouse audiences have been almost of a "capacity" character since the first performance and enthusiasm and delight have been universal. The show is a veritable riot of life, melody color and merriment; not a jumbled mass but consistent, constant jollity and pictures; movement which captivates the eye and music which charms the ear. Joseph H. Gaites has made a splendid production and supplied a fine company headed by Cecil Lean and Florence Holbrook. Wednesday and Saturday matinees will be given during the whole of the limited engagement. There will be a special matinee performance on election day in Boston, Tuesday the 11th instant, beginning at 2 o'clock.

WHY GAS IS THE BEST LIGHT FOR YOU

QUALITY—The soft, mellow steady light of the modern mantle burner is absolutely the best artificial light to work or read by.

DOES NOT TIRE THE EYES.

CONVENIENCE—By using the Chain Pull attachment on the burners, the use of matches is abolished.

We will put in a light on trial; if you don't like it we will take it out without expense to you.

BRIEFS

A few sleighs are out today.

The hard rain during the night carried off considerable snow.

W. C. Hammond and family of Egypt have moved into Herbert Barker's house on Hollis avenue.

City Treasurer Curtis has sold the $20,000 Houghs Neck school bonds to William A. Reed & Co. of Boston.

The National House Committee on Elections has set Jan. 27 for the Galvin-O'Connell contested election case.

The meeting of the Atlantic Study club which was to have been held Tuesday night was postponed because of the extremely cold weather.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the National Granite bank will be held Tuesday afternoon Jan. 11 at four o'clock.

Rev. F. H. Knight was unable to be at the Wollaston M. E. church on Thursday evening and the sermon was preached by the pastor.

Ellsworth E. Morgan, who has been running a slate quarry in New Hampshire for the past few months, is home on a short visit.

A meeting of the Finance Committee has been called for Monday evening before the meeting of the City Council.

The Old Colony Street Railway company has declared a semi-annual dividend of three per cent on preferred stock on record Jan. 15.

Carl Christiansen and John Christiansen, doing business under the firm name of the Quincy paper box works, Quincy, has been petitioned into involuntary bankruptcy at the instance of three creditors whose claims amount to $1,095. Last Wednesday they made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors to Henry E. Teasdale.

The two leading parties have not decided whether there will be a caucus before the special election to be held in Ward Two, March 1 or whether the candidates will be nominated by nomination papers as independent candidates. There is sure to be three candidates as Messrs. Histen and Studley who were tied for third place at the election will run as will also D. J. Seward McCurdy.

Mr. George Geekie of Atlantic street, who is employed by the International Commerce Commission passed the holidays at home with his parents. Mr. Geekie has been travelling quite extensively throughout the west and south. While he was in Texas, by rather a rare coincidence, he met Walter Nichols another young Atlantic man who is travelling.

ENGLISH DINNER

Served by Prof. Wrigley to Choir

About twenty-five members and friends of Christ church choir were the guests at an old-fashioned English dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wrigley, 24 Coddington street, Thursday evening.

The dinner gong at 7.30 P. M. announced that everyone was to prepare for the feast of their life and it was all this and more. The menu was as follows:

Soup Bisque
Salad Prawn Mayonnaise Roast Turkey
Bread Sauce Roast Beef
Yorkshire Pudding
Potatoes Carrotts
Turnips Spinach
Desert
English Plum Pudding
Mince Tarts Tipsy Cake
Beer Cherry Lemonade
Coffee Fruit

After cigars were lighted, Henry W. French presented Prof. Wrigley, on behalf of the choir, a fine walrus hide travelling bag. The professor feelingly responded with a short speech of thanks, and then called on Messrs. Stedman, Bemis, Smith and Tarbox for a few words.

Music was then in order and Mr. Stedman rendered "My Cousin Caruse" and Mr. Smith and old English roundelay. Solos by Messrs. Vanner, Haslett and Forrest followed, and also a piano selection by Walter Henry Cyril Wrigley.

At a late hour all joined hands in singing "Auld Lang Syne" and with good wishes to the Professor and Mrs. Wrigley, left for their homes.

The ladies helping Mrs. Wrigley to serve were Miss Parker, Miss Randall, Mrs. Page, Miss Antill, Mrs. Walter Randall.

The guests present were Messrs. H. M. Bemis, J. H. Stedman, Thomas E. Furnald, James Smith, Henry W. French, Charles M. Chase, James Forrest, Stephen Wilson, William H. HENRY CAVENDISH.

A Recluse, He Lived Far From the Madding Crowd.

Henry Cavendish, the famous natural philosopher and chemist, was a recluse who astonished England.

A son of Lord Charles Cavendish and a nephew of the third Duke of Devonshire, possessed of enormous wealth, the subject of universal admiration because of his scientific attainments, he preferred the solitude of his study and the company of his books to the pleasures society could offer him.

For many years he lived at Hampstead in a large, roomy house, attended by a number of female servants, who, however, were strictly enjoined to keep out of his sight. If a domestic by the merest chance came into the presence of Cavendish she was instantly dismissed.

Every morning the philosopher would leave a note on the hall table naming what he wanted for dinner. No one saw him place the note there; but, accustomed to the strange customs of the establishment, the meal would be prepared, and only the remains of the repast signified the presence of the master of the house.

When Cavendish died in 1810 he left behind him nearly a million pounds sterling, besides a lasting reputation as a scientist and writer on natural philosophy.—London Telegraph.

MARRIED MEN WERE WEAK

Defeated by Upland Road Team by Big Score

The Married Men's team in the Makaria league thought that they could bowl. But after having their choice and choosing to roll big pins they were handely trimmed by Eggleton's Upland Road recruits in all three strings at the Y. M. C. A., Thursday evening. The totals were 1772 to 1518. R. Ganzel was high man getting a total of 371. S. Bates had the highest single, knocking down 154 in his last string.

When the Married Men bowled their last match they were much dissatisfied saying that they could not hit the little pins with the small pills, and so for their convenience big pins were tried. But as before the older boys saw too many gutters and subways and received a worse beating than previously. Now they will probably revert to the little sticks and small pills.

SPORTING NOTES.

Preliminary work for spring rowing at Harvard commenced Wednesday, Coach Wray was present to give individual coaching to all the candidates, also Elliott Bacon '10, who is in charge of the freshman rowing until the captain is elected. From the work done by the freshman squad last fall the crew of this year should equal if not surpass last year's crew. Several men of the football team will be available, the most promising of whom are Cutler, Parmenter and Goodale.

GOOD HEARTED FINANCIER.

Hamilton McK. Twombly, the distinguished lawyer and railroad financier of New York and son-in-law of the late William H. Vanderbilt, has been known among his friends in the highest circles of New York society for a remarkable tenderness of heart. Those whom he loved he loved deeply.

The following story is told of his devotion to his charming wife:

A few years ago, when he had just purchased a wonderful high powered automobile, Mr. Twombly decided to engage a Swiss chauffeur. Before hiring the most likely applicant he had the career of the man investigated from the record of his baptism to the time of his application for the job. He made sure that the man was not only blameless morally, but that he had never been in any sort of accident. A friend who heard of this said to Mr. Twombly, "Why, I never knew that you were such a timid man as all that."

"I am not," replied the financier gravely, "but this chauffeur is to drive my wife in that automobile."

This shows the tender heart of the man, who then turned back to the hard grind of directing the fortunes of the Vanderbilt railroads.

William Ewart Gladstone.

[Born Dec. 29, 1809. Died 1898.]

England, mother of heroes and great men,
Unnumbered names thou hast upon thy roll
Of souls illustrious, known from pole to pole
And from Suez to distant Darien.
But yet amongst them all what time or when
Has one more worthy fallen to well earned rest
Whose days have made thy millioned empire blest
Than Gladstone, commoner and citizen?

He felt the century's pulse, the trend of time,
Stern duty as it shaped from year to year;
Justice and right he held supremely dear.
While mere consistency he counted crime
We, too, his many sided worth discern
And beg to place one wreath above his urn.

YOUNG SCULPTOR'S HONOR.

Miss Belle Kinney to Model Confederate Women's Memorial Statue.

Miss Belle Kinney of Nashville, Tenn., recently signed a contract with the committee of Confederate Veterans appointed at the last re-union, held in Birmingham, for supplying the memorial statue to the women of the Confederacy, a replica of which, it is contemplated, shall be placed upon the capitol grounds of each of the original Confederate states. The price agreed to be paid Miss Kinney for her design is $5,000, this to cover the cost of the first and each subsequent statue purchased, and the committee agrees to take no fewer than ten.

In the concluding competition which resulted in the selection of Miss Kinney's design there were only two models submitted, that of Miss Kinney and one by Louis Potter, a New York sculptor. The committee of veterans, headed by General Julian S. Carr of Durham, N. C., as chairman, spent some time in inspecting the two models and weighing the various points of each.

The statue is to be of bronze, eight feet in height, and represents the Goddess of Fame as the central figure, placing a wreath upon the head of the Confederate woman, who is pictured as reclining, exquisitely featured, with an expression of sadness, typifying the self sacrificing southern women of wartime. This woman's figure is on the right of the central figure, Fame, which is represented as supporting on her left the figure of a dying Confederate soldier, to whom the southern woman is extending even in death the palm of victory.

Miss Kinney is one of the most successful of the young sculptors in the United States. She is the daughter of the late Daniel Kinney of Nashville and, although only twenty-two years old, already has received marked recognition in the art world. She received her art education at the Art institute of Chicago, where she taught sculpture in the summer of 1908. She received the contract for the designing of the Jere Baxter statue at Nashville before she was of legal age to sign the contract. Among her class works at the Chicago institute which received special praise from her instructors was the modeling of one of the figures for "The Spirit of the Mines."

THE SCOUT.

Grizzled and toughened and leather tanned,
Eagle of eye and of rigid hand;
Keenly alert, gazing o'er the ridge,
All of our progress doth he bridge,
Bringing us back to the blood writ page
Of the untamed west, that stronger age
Ere we had yielded to ease its charms,
When men were men by the force of arms.

THE BLEACHED SKULL.

Telling the story of blood and strife,
Careless of death and yet of life;
Telling to ages yet unborn
The tale of those who, with godlike scorn,
Laughed at the terrors of the trail,
Opening mountain, hill and vale,
That the generations yet to come
By their nameless bones might find a home.

THE LAST STAND.

Death looms before them, death behind,
His messengers speeding on every wind,
Yet doth his presence bring a laugh,
And his icy draft with a jeer they quaff.
Hopelessly doomed, yet they scorn to yield,
With each man's bosom his heart's sole shield;
Telling of men ere our souls grew faint—
A wordless play by a brush and paint.

WOULD IMPROVE WATER POLO

Experts Want More Open Play In Strenuous Game.

CHANGES IN THE RULES.

Goals Now Can Be Scored by Throwing as Well as Touching—Interesting Experiments to Make Sport Less Exacting Upon Participants.

Introducing new rules into water polo which allow the scoring of goals by throwing as well as by touching has not proved easy. C. M. Richards, captain of the Yale swimmers, was saddled with the formulating of these rules by the Intercollegiate Swimming association and immediately asked the assistance of prominent teams in experimenting and then suggesting means.

Several teams have given the matter close attention, and it is rather interesting to note the variety of reports on results. One captain says that his squad found it absolutely impossible to score from outside the fifteen foot line by throwing, while others claim that two points is too much for a thrown goal because one is generally secured the minute the goal tender moves from directly under the board.

Of course this difference of opinion was to be anticipated. The viewpoint depends entirely on the playing of the back field. If the goal tender guards his post faithfully he should not find it difficult to stop a badly inflated rubber ball thrown from a distance of more than fifteen feet, but let him go swimming around, following the play, as is often done under the present rules, and the opportunities for scoring are frequent and excellent.

It has been shown that if the goal tender can be lured from his post the halfback, who has been swimming up in anticipation of it, can be passed the ball and before the goal tender can get back the goal is thrown and generally made. It takes some accuracy to hit it, but a good player is not likely to miss a target four feet by two, the size to which the board has been increased, even from a thirty foot throw, which brings one practically to the center of most water polo pools.

Without attempting to predict what the new rules will do for the game one can estimate at a glance the influence they are bound to have upon it, which is to open up the play and oblige the abandonment of continued massing in favor of faster swimming and more passing.

There is no doubt that only in extreme cases will the goal tender dare to move from his place, and this will take at least one man from the scrimmage. As the forwards will always be looking for an easy score by throwing, there will be less tendency to form a shoulder to shoulder attack, and especially after the repulse of a charge by hard tackles there will probably be far more effort to secure a score by throwing than by touching.

The abandoning of persistent massing will do a lot toward making the game clean and free from objectionable tactics and toward preventing accidents and hurts. It is in the vicious tackles long held that tempers are lost and retaliation sought, and it is when a man is exhausted by a terrible underwater struggle that a subsequent tackle results in an accident, mainly because the player has not the necessary strength to resist.

Convince a man that when he is tired he can do just as well by keeping out of a tackle and either trying to throw a goal or passing to a teammate that is well situated for it and an ideal game embodying the best points of both socker and American water polo will be the result. Results of the collegiate experiment will be watched anxiously by all. If satisfactory the rules will probably be adopted by the Amateur Athletic union.

The changes in the rules are as follows: Goals can be scored by throwing as well as touching. Goals to count must be thrown from outside the fifteen foot line and give a team 2 points (the old style goal by touching counts 5 points). The goal board has been increased from twelve inches by three feet to eighteen inches by four feet. It is expected that these changes will open up the play.

The old rules were not very strict when it came to punishing men for rough work. New changes, many revisionists claim, will do much to eliminate this faulty part of the game.

What the revisionists are really after is to make the game more open. The mass plays and close formations have done much to hurt its popularity, it is claimed, and by making it of an open nature it is thought that the game will become higher in favor than it heretofore has been. As the game stands now water polo ists claim it has many objectionable points and that there is much room for improvement. The English game of water polo is considered by many to be a far better and more interesting game than that played here. By amalgamating the two styles much improvement in the game will be obtained.

Chrysanthemums.

Chrysanthemums stand fourth in commercial importance among flowers. Only the rose, the violet and the carnation surpass them, and that chiefly because the chrysanthemum season is so short, while the others can be had from the florist nearly the whole year round. Greece gave us the name. Chrysanthemum means "golden flower." But the name was invented long before the big butter yellow globes were known in the occident. It referred to the prevailing gold in the small varieties that were known. Strangely enough, the first chrysanthemum brought into Europe was not gold, but purple. It was a small flower about two inches across, shaped like an aster. Somebody took it to Europe from China in 1790—and, presto, the modern history of chrysanthemums was begun.—Argonaut.

COMMODORE BRYANT REELECTED.

Ex-Mayor Charles M. Bryant was on Thursday night re-elected commodore of the Squantum Yacht Club for 1910. The past year he succeeded in piloting the club so successfully that it was able to pay off $800 of its indebtedness, and to report at the meeting that every current bill to the first of the year was paid.

The following officers were elected without opposition:

Commodore—Charles M. Bryant.

Vice-Commodore—George W. Hinkley.

Rear Commodore—Eleazer F. Drew.

Treasurer—Richard R. Freeman.

Secretary—Alex F. Tobin.

Measurer—Archie H. Briggs.

Trustee for three years—Frederick J. Stewart.

Regatta Committee—Howard Gannett, Jr., James McCarthy, George L. Bean, Walter E. Kimball and Harry Hinkley.

SPECIAL INDUCEMENTS.

The town of Freeport, Me., at a special town meeting on Wednesday evening voted unanimously to exempt from taxation for a period of ten years the business of Long & Saunders of Quincy, who own and operate a large granite quarry and cutting plant in Freeport. Messrs. Long & Saunders have been operating the plant at Freeport in addition to their Quincy plant for some time and the Board of Trade of that town has been urging the firm to enlarge their plant. Mr. Saunders was present at the town meeting and in answer to questions said that if the town would exempt them from taxation they would enlarge and fully equip their plant and would give employment to 75 or more men.

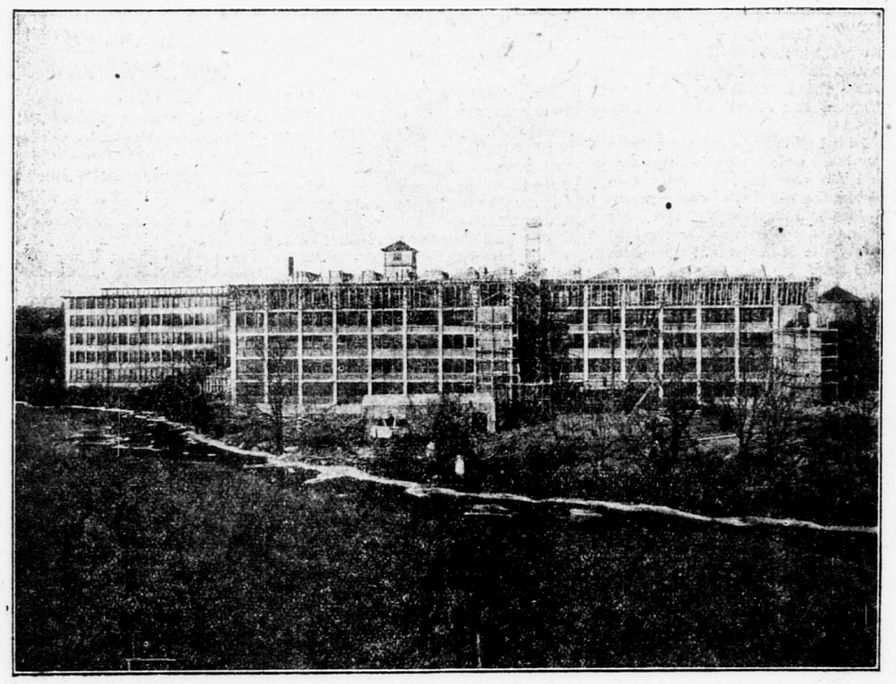
The town then voted to exempt from taxation for a period of ten years, beginning Jan. 10, 1910, all the personal property and real estate now held, or that may be held by the Long & Saunders Granite Co.

The granite produced at the Freeport quarry is very similar to the white Westerly granite. Messrs. Long & Saunders say that while they will transfer much of their business to their new plant at Freeport, they will still continue to operate their plant at South Quincy.

SPECIAL SERVICE.

The special service for all the working clubs and guilds of Christ church parish which was appointed for Sunday, Dec. 26 and was postponed on account of the severe storm, will be held Sunday evening at seven o'clock. The service will be conducted as at first arranged with festival procession and recession by the united choirs of Emmanuel church, Braintree, and Christ church. The preacher will be the Rev. S. S. Drury of St. Stephen's church, Boston. Pews in sections will be reserved allowing each organization to sit in a body. The following organizations will sit together: Women's Guild and Reaper's Circle; Men's club and Galahad Brotherhood; St. Margaret's Guild and older members of the Junior Auxiliary.

New Shoe Manufactory at Braintree Well Along.



Here is a half tone of the new factory being built for the Rice & Hutchins Company. The picture which gives a fine idea of the details of the structure was taken from the east side and is a rear view. Beyond can be seen the tower and the newer portion of the old factory. The shell of the building, as it were, is about completed although there is considerable work to be done yet on the upper story. Work is being rushed as fast as possible and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy by the middle of February or first of March.

The recent storm has delayed matters a little as to work on the engine room which is to be an addition to the one now in use. Here will be installed a five hunderd horse power HarrissCorliss engine which will drive a direct connected generator. This will furnish power for the motors which are to run the machinery. There are to be at least six motors on each floor and they can be operated separately or in conjunction with each other. This does away with all large belts and unsightly belt holes through the floors. This plan also makes it possible to operate any part of the machinery at will without the necessity of running the whole factory for the accommodation of one room.

The floors will be of wood laid in cinder concrete. This material is plastic to a certain degree so that machines may be bolted or screwed into it. At present some of the steam pipes and shaft hangers are in place and most of the windows in the east side of the building. A monster steam pipe, asbestos covered will convey exhaust steam from the boiler room through the old factory into the new one and thence into the smaller pipes to heat the various rooms. All machinery will be electrically operated. There is to be a large elevator and also a smaller electric lift. This is of the selective type and by pressing a button at the starting point can be made to stop automatically at any desired floor. This lift will be used for small articles and the elevator for heavy freight.

The rooms will be equipped with fire proof doors and in the passage ways leading from one factory to the othere these doors will be double. The utmost care is being taken to guard against fire. The west side of the factory which is very close to the old one will be equipped with wire glass set into steel frames and all electric wires will be enclosed in iron conduits. The stairways and fire escapes are of iron. These last are enclosed in brick wells at the corners of the structure and all toilet rooms and closets are in a wing at the rear thus leaving the interior of the rooms a perfect rectangle, thereby giving the greatest possible space for all machinery.

A massive tower on the west side will add to the beauty of the building and also contain stairways, while in the upper portion will be installed a water tank having a capacity of twenty thousand gallons. The roof of the tower will be of copper while the main shop will have a concrete roof covered with plastic slate. This material is very durable and also has the property of resisting the wear and tear of the weather.

In the smaller part of the building between the two factories will be located the business offices and also the receiving and stock rooms. These latter will be fitted with appliances for the expeditious handling of goods and will be connected by a chute so that supplies may be quickly transferred from teams to the store room.

A low, massive concrete building is located at the rear of the old factory as a storehouse for oil, gasolene, wax and all the inflammable substances that the law requires to be stored in a special separate structure. This is constructed entirely of concrete and will be absolutely fire proof.

It is intended to make the new factory strictly up to date in every way and one that will be a credit to both builders and owners.

WILKINS PRESIDENT

New Head for Central Labor Union

At the semi-annual meeting of the Central Labor Union on Thursday evening Robert McVitie, after a service of three years declined to serve longer as president. These officers were elected:

President—Charles H. Wilkins, delegate from the Amalgamated Carpenters and Joiners Union.

Vice President—George S. Johnson, delegate from Local 79, Steam Engineers Union.

Secretary—James Watson of the Granite Cutter Union.

Treasurer—David G. Smith, of the Tool Sharpeners Union.

Sergeant of Arms—James Conway of the Quincy Quarrymen's Union.

Guide—Daniel Shea, of the Granite Cutters' Union.

Trustees—Alexander Russell of the Granite Cutters' Union, Fred Curtis of the Quarrymen's Union; and Charles W. Hanscom, of the Electrical Workers Union.

Mr. Wilkins, the newly elected president is a resident of Old Colony avenue, Wollaston, and has taken an interest in labor unions for several years.

SALVATION ARMY CONCERT

Several Novelties Were Introduced.

The Salvation Army concert Thursday evening was a real success. At 7.15 P. M., the brass band rode in a sleigh up Granite street to Hancock street, where an open air meeting was given. Adjt. Englestad of Providence was in charge and several selections were given by the band. After which announcement was made that everybody was welcome to the hall to enjoy the evening.

The hall was filled with an interested public. Major C. Christophersen of Boston gave out as the opening song, "Ask the Saviour to help you," in which everybody joined in the singing. Capt. J. Franklin, one of the members of the brigade, led in prayer. During the evening Professor Edward Reitz of Boston gave a number of solos on flute and zither, and the string band gave several numbers. Mrs. G. Annis sang a beautiful solo. Solos were given by Adjt. M. Englestad, Capt. J. Franklin and Cadet Mabel Poole; bible reading by Major Christophersen; selection "Silver Tones" by the brass band; testimonies by the Sergeant Major and Lieut. Larson, Professor du Reitz rendered splendid class music, after which Adjt. Englestad closed with prayer. The concert was enjoyed by all.

PLANS FOR ELKS BALL.

The ball committee of Quincy lodge of Elks met at the club house Friday evening to organize and outline plans for the annual ball to be held at Music hall on Monday evening, Feb. 7. The committee organized with Exalted Ruler William J. Coleman as chairman, and Leo J. McMaster as secretary. The general committee was divided into sub committees with these chairmen.

Music, Leo J. McMaster.
Caterer William J. Coleman.
Printing, G. Emery Green.
Badges and decorations, Elmer E. Paine.
Novelties, Leo J. McMaster.
Transportation, John R. S. Ross.
Matrons, Edmund W. Courtney.
Officers, Alfred W. Goodhue.

Tickets this year will be the same as last year. In order to keep track of the tickets, however, it was decided to use a check list. Tickets will be sent to members who must make returns to the committee not later than the night of the ball of the numbers of tickets sold that they may be checked off at the door.

Several novelties will be introduced this year and it is proposed to make the ball more of a social success than ever.

MUSICAL SERVICE.

A pleasing musical service has been arranged to be given Sunday evening at 7.30 at St. Chrysostoms church, as follows:

Voluntary, Andante in F.
Processional Hymn 66, "Brightest and best of the son of the morning"
Gloria 6 — J. Jones
Magnificat — Simper
Nunc Dimittis — Simper
Anthem Hymn 30, "To thy temple I repair"
Solo, "O Lord, be merciful" — Homer N. Bartlett
Hymn 22, "Sweet Saviour bless us ere we go"
Offertory, "Angels from the realms of glory"
Presentation 408, "Praise God from whom, etc."
Solo, "Sun of my soul" — Bruno Huhn
Seven-fold Amen — J. Stainer
Recessional Hymn 65, "As with gladness men of old"
Postlude — Alex. Guilman

Soloist, Mrs. W. H. Spooner.
Organist, Miss Louisa Allison Ross.

—That gift to Bryn Mawr of seven thousand dollars from Miss Cynthia M. Wesson of Springfield, Mass., a recent graduate of the college, for the purpose of improving the college swimming pool, calls attention to the more important fact that all undergraduate girls of this noted institution must qualify as swimmers. Few if any men's colleges make such a demand, but the wisdom of it can scarcely be questioned. Swimming is an invigorating exercise and it may be a means of preserving one's own life and saving that of others.—Providence Bulletin.

CONDUCTOR KENNEY

Street Railway Men Attend His Funeral

The funeral of Edward Kenney, the street car conductor who died Wednesday night from pneumonia, was held this morning from the Sacred Heart church, Atlantic, and was largely attended. A delegation from the employees of the street railway escorted the body from his late home to the church, and delegations were also present from Quincy council, Knights of Columbus and the South Quincy Social club.

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers which included a standing cross, anchor and heart, from the street railway employes; a standing cross from the Knights of Columbus, and a broken column from the South Quincy Social club.

Mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Cuffe. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

BOYS' MASS MEETING.

The meeting held at Quincy Music hall this morning for boys was well attended and will mean much in the lives of the boys who were present. The meeting was opened by the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers" followed by "Stand up, stand up for Jesus." Secretary E. G. Gay read the Scriptures and led in prayer. Trust and Obey was then sung, and it was indeed inspiring to hear the boys sing these good old songs. Mr. Elgar was introduced and gave one of the best talks of the season for boys.

Evidently President Taft knows how to reach and control the large corporations, and Congress should stand by him. The special message meets with approval.

If one cannot secure an election to the City Council he should not get discouraged as Quincy has societies almost without number, and in the aggregate require hundreds to fill the offices. The installation ceremonies of the week show this.

Quincy should pass a by-law requiring the clearing of sidewalks by abutters on business and main thoroughfares within a reasonable time after snow storms. Most large towns and cities make this a requirement and the law is generally enforced.

It looks as though Wollaston was aroused for a new schoolhouse. It is not surprising, for on all sides are modern brick buildings; the Massachusetts Fields at Wollaston Park, the Quincy at Atlantic, the Coddington and Cranch in Ward One; and the Gridley Bryant and Willard in West Quincy. The Wollaston and Adams buildings are now the only ones of wood in the city, and the former is probably as good as the latter. The important question before the city this year, however, seems to be this: Does Quincy need additional school accommodation more than Wollaston needs a new building? Can Wards Five and Six get along a few years without a schoolhouse at Montclair? Can Wards One, Two and Three get along without a schoolhouse in the Bigelow Park district? Quincy can hardly afford to build four schoolhouses in one year, but money has already been appropriated for one at Houghs Neck to be started in the early spring.

COUNCILLOR CUSHING.

J. Stearns Cushing of Norwood, who represents this district in the Governor's Council will serve on the committee on finance account and warrants; also on military and naval affairs.

—The United States is not in the mail business for revenue, and so the deficit of sixty-four million dollars a year does not greatly worry the public. Indeed, they would be willing to have the deficit increased a few millions, if necessary, to secure postal savings banks and a parcels post. But there would probably be no necessity for any greater loss than must now be met if these two needed improvements were made in the service. With better business methods and greater efficiency among the employees, together with a readjustment of rates in the interest of greater fairness, the department ought to be able to increase its revenues and decrease its expenses to a point where it could afford to be as enterprising as similar branches of Government service are abroad.—Providence Bulletin.

REPUBLICAN CLUB STARTED

Officers Will Be Elected Next Thursday

A meeting of a number of gentlemen interested in forming a Republican club in Quincy was held Friday evening. The proposed club is the outcome of a committee of thirty Ward One Republicans organized last fall to further the candidacy of Dr. Bowker for county commissioner. The committee then formed have been meeting every week since last September and sometimes twice a week.

The idea of these gentlemen is that there is plenty of material in Quincy to form an active Republican club. With this in view invitations were sent to five well known Republicans in each ward to meet Friday evening as a nucleus of the club.

Quite a few of the Republicans to whom these invitations were sent signified their approval of such an organization and some were present Friday evening, although no definite action was taken.

Henry W. French presided, and the meeting was opened for an informal discussion of the aims and objects of such a club as proposed, and the benefits to be derived from an organized Republican club who would work in a systematic manner for the furtherance of Republican candidates at National, State and Municipal elections.

It seemed to be the idea of the gentlemen present that when formed the club should become incorporated, which will probably be done as soon as the organization is perfected. As there were several gentlemen invited, who were unable to be present at this meeting on account of business engagements it was decided to defer the election of officers until the next meeting.

A meeting will be held next Thursday evening, and it is proposed at that time to adopt by-laws, elect officers and take action toward becoming incorporated as well as looking toward securing suitable rooms for club headquarters.

RUNAWAY.

There was a lively runaway in City Square Friday afternoon and it is a wonder that it did not result seriously. In the sleigh was an East Weymouth woman and a little girl. The harness was an old one and a piece of rope was used for the breeching. The woman had been to East Milton and was on her way home. When near the Quincy line the rope broke and being unable to control the horse he ran away. The woman did not lose her head, however, and managed to guide the animal although she was unable to stop him. The horse ran all the way to City Square. As they passed through the square an electric car was just turning the corner of Hancock street into Temple street. The horse was headed directly for this car, and it looked for a minute as though he would run into it, as the woman was unable to guide the horse at that time. Just as the horse reached the car, however, he turned and passed safely between the car and the stone post on the corner. On Temple street a man ran out and succeeded in grabbing the horse by the head and stopping him.

STORE BURGLARY.

The Brockton shoe store in the Plimer block was entered by burglars sometime last night. The parties gained entrance by a rear window and before they left they overhauled the stock and selected what they wanted. As far as can be learned, however, they took only two pair of shoes and two pair of rubber boots.

VERDICT AGAINST BROKERS

Result of Suit Growing Out of Defalcation by City Treasurer

Boston, Jan. 8.—A verdict of $5259.91 against Guy M. Spear, and another for $3160.73 against Wilson W. Fay, both brokers with offices in this city, in favor of the city of Newburyport, were held by the supreme judicial court to have been rightly ordered by Judge Fox of the superior court, who heard the cases in the first instance.

The case grew out of the embezzlement of about $86,800 by James V. Felker, who had been city treasurer from 1883 to 1906.

The evidence showed that Felker purchased stock of Spear and Fay and paid them with checks made payable to himself, indorsed by him and drawn upon the funds belonging to the city of Newburyport.

Spear and Fay claimed that the bank should have known that the checks were not legally drawn by Felker for city purposes, but were for his own use and to pay his personal debts.

Police Are Hunting For $10,000,000 Eloping Heiress and Her Lover

Boston, Jan. 8.—That Roberta de Janon and Walter F. Cohen, the Philadelphia elopers, are either in Boston or on their way to Boston is the positive word received by Chief Watts.

This city is being searched by the entire plain clothes and detective staffs for the 16-year-old girl, who is heir to the $10,000,000 of her grandfather, Robert Buist.

Chief Watts heard from New York that the elopers had left that city on the Fall River liner Providence Sunday night. The Rhode Island capital is also being searched.

Millionaire Gets Loose and Elopes With Edna Loftus

Cincinnati, Jan. 8.—After many vicissitudes, including lunacy charges preferred by his mother, Harry A. Rheinstrom, son of the late Abraham Rheinstrom, millionaire distiller, was married to Edna Loftus of New York, divorced wife of "Winnie" O'Connor, a jockey.

Young Rheinstrom and Miss Loftus came to Cincinnati a week ago with the intention of marrying. When the young man's mother learned of the affair she immediately had her son arrested and committed to a sanitarium.

Miss Loftus procured the release of her lover on a writ of habeas corpus and the pair fled in an automobile across the Ohio river and procured a license at Independence, Ky. A few hours later they were married by a magistrate in Covington, after a long, cold ride.

WITH ONE EXCEPTION

Prices of Hogs the Highest Since the Civil War, Selling at $9

Chicago, Jan. 8.—The $9 hog has arrived at the Union stock yards here, and his coming marks an epoch in high prices for hogs. Except for a short period in 1882, when the price reached $9.35 per hundredweight, the $9 hog has not been seen here since the Civil war.

Continued intense cold impeding transportation and apparent hesitation of producers to market their hogs are the primal causes of the advance in prices, which involves all pork products.

Other hog markets report unusually high prices. At St. Louis the price has reached $9. At Kansas City one carload sold for $8.75. At Columbus, O., the price reached $9.10. Louisville reports sales at $8.90, which breaks the record there.

ARE REAPING BIG PROFITS

Many People Engaged in Traffic in "White Slaves"

New York, Jan. 8.—Following a conference of George K. Turner, the magazine writer, District Attorney Whitman and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., foreman of the grand jury investigating the traffic in women in this city, James B. Reynolds left town on an extensive investigation.

It is said that Reynolds has a definite line on individuals engaged in the trade in Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago and other cities, and that the authorities of those cities will be asked to co-operate with the New York district attorney in stamping out the trade.

Whitman has admitted that Reynolds was engaged in an investigation of the traffic. "What his specific lines are, of course, I cannot divulge, but no stone will be left unturned to find how extensive this traffic is and who is behind it," said Whitman.

Mr. Reynolds has been engaged in the investigation for weeks, it is learned, and is familiar with the facts, as is Turner. He is a member of the executive committee of the National Vigilance association, which is also engaged in unearthing the extent of the white slave trade.

The association has investigators at work in this city, Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco and elsewhere.

"I told Mr. Whitman and Mr. Rockefeller all I know about the trade," said Turner at his home in Hastings. "As I have said before, my investigation was not as a prosecuting attorney, but as a newspaper man and a writer, I had specific lines that I did not follow up in the course of my investigation. I gave these to the district attorney as accurately as I could recall them.

"There is no question whatever that the trade exists in this country and that many people engaged in it are reaping large profits. There is no doubt of the fact either that it was encouraged and fostered by the backing of politicians in this city and elsewhere throughout the country. It would never have grown to the proportions that it has if this were not so."

Mr. Turner's investigation was more extensive than is generally supposed. He spent months corroborating the testimony of witnesses to the various investigating committees, and when he wrote his magazine article he was morally certain that every word of it was true.

After listening to the revelations of Turner, Rockefeller said he would be willing to continue the inquiry to the end, even if he had to sit during the February term, and would do everything in his power to get at the facts concerning the evil.

It is understood that if there should be any shortage in the contingent fund in the district attorney's office for the proper investigation of these charges that Rockefeller would not be averse to financing the inquiries if the investigation warrants the belief that the suggested evils exist and the promoters can legally be connected therewith.

Joseph Kalinski, a restaurant keeper, was arraigned before Magistrate Harris in the Tombs charged with running a chain of illegal resorts in the neighborhood of Cathedral Heights.

The complainant in this case is Probation Officer Graveur, who alleges that Samuel Rogoff and Wolf Katz, serving prison sentences on their conviction of running illegal resorts, confessed to him that the financial promoter of these and other places was Kalinski.

The defendant was held in $1000 bail for examination and Graveur said he will have the two convicts in court to tell what they know of Kalinski.

Samuel Buckle of Philadelphia, who is living at No. 73 Riverton street, was held by Magistrate Harris as a fugitive. A charge was made in Philadelphia that he abducted Elizabeth Lepsinge from the home of her parents, 1032 Olive street, and brought her to this city. Buckle was held in $5000 bail for examination.

LUNCHEON DISHES

Fourth Demonstration by Mrs. Wade.

The fourth of a series of five demonstration lectures by Mrs. Mary L. Wade, chairman of the Home Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club, was given at the clubhouse on Friday afternoon. "Luncheon Dishes" was Mrs. Wade's subject and it proved a profitable afternoon to those attending.

Hungarian chicken was first prepared and during the process Mrs. Wade gave many valuable hints; she used fowl, simply allowing a longer time for cooking. She had also prepared veal with the same seasonings, and it made a good dish. The chicken was served with potato klosse and gravey, making a most palatable dish.

It is said that Americans have not learned the art of seasoning their foods as other nations. Paprika is much used abroad and here many cooks ask what it is when their attention is called to it. Pepper has a finer and much nicer flavor when ground over the food at the table in little grinders that can now be bought; like coffee it deteriorates a short time after grinding.

Caviare canapes was apparently new to all. They could be made of anchovy, lobster, oyster or sardines. Caviare is highly esteemed by Russians and classed among the hors-d'aeuvres served on fried toast and served after the soup or fish. The canapes garnished with sifted yolks of hard boiled eggs were attractive and most appetizing.

Marshall Field salad was made of cabbage, carrots and bell peppers, served on lettuce leaves with a cream dressing. Mrs. Wade explained the value of carrots and told why they should be more often served on our tables.

Creole clams in which several different vegetables, including, onion, celery, carrot, green pepper and parsley were used made an appetizing dish.

Bananas a la West proved delicious. After peeling carefully remove the fine bitter strings. Halve each crosswise, dip into sweetened lemon juice, then in melted butter, then roll in finely chopped nuts. Bake in a hot oven until soft about twelve minutes. Mrs. Wade spoke especially of the food value of cooked bananas and if they are eaten raw the seeds should be brown otherwise they are as unwholesome as a green apple.

The next lecture Friday, January 15, will be "Dishes made of cheese and nuts."

EAST BRAINTREE.

Sheppard's wharf is lined daily with men and boys fishing for tom cod and some of them make excellent catches. A large number of eels are also being taken from the river daily. They spear for these through the ice.

C. B. Edwards superintendent at the Fore River shipyard is in Philadelphia where he went Thursday to deliver an address on "Turbines," before the Philadelphia Society of Engineers.

John W. Dolan a former well known citizen of this place died in Boston, New Year's day. Mr. Dolan for a number of years conducted a pool and billiard room in this place.

J. F. Sheppard & Sons are getting ready to get in their supply of ice at Pond meadows. They have built two immense additions to the ice house erected last year and can now accommodate six thousand tons of ice. They have also built a nice road from Liberty street to the pond.

New Year's Sunday was observed at the Union Congregational church last Sunday with a sermon appropriate to the day by the pastor, Rev. R. H. Cochrane. There was special music. After the preaching service the communion service and sacrament of the Lord's Supper was celebrated.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert F. Stackhouse late of East Braintree, will regret to hear of the death of their only child Helen May aged six years, which occurred on December 17th inst on Steamer Memphis, which left Boston harbor December 14th inst. for Savannah, Ga.

MEMORIAL TO IDA LEWIS' DEEDS

Lifeboat Named In Honor of the Life Saving Heroine.

SELF BAILING, VERY BUOYANT

Crew of Motor Driven Craft Claim She Can Breast Any Storm That Can Be Breasted by an Ocean Liner—Built Out of Mahogany.

Ida Lewis, the farfamed heroine of the Lime Rock light at Newport, R. I., has again been honored by being made the sponser for a new motor lifeboat which, it is declared, will inaugurate an entirely new epoch in the heroic work of the life saving crews throughout the world.

For years those men in Washington who are at the head of the life saving service have been searching for a boat which could brave and live through any storm on the worst coast in the United States. For fifty-three years Ida Lewis has been saving lives single handed in storms before which the strongest men would quail. Finally the perfect lifeboat has been discovered and built, and the men who were responsible for it have insisted that it bear the name of the Grace Darling of America.

Brenton's Point life saving station, on the southern end of the island of Rhode Island, is the proud possessor of this new lifeboat, and in the Ida Lewis the Brenton's Point crew predict that they will make rescues which have never been equaled since 1870.

Built of Mahogany.

The Ida Lewis is constructed, throughout her entire length of thirty-six feet, of mahogany. With her extra space she will be able to do much better and more effective work. Her six cylinder engines develop thirty-eight horsepower. So great is her buoyancy that she could be cut into seven pieces and each one of the seven pieces would remain afloat.

She is self righting and self bailing. Along her keel she carries 1,480 pounds of gun metal, while to her bottom are attached seventy copper tanks. Seven air tight compartments make it impossible for her to be sunk, even though her skin be punctured below the self bailing scuppers.

The adoption of motor power by life saving crews means a great saving of human strength at a time when it is sorely needed. The statistics of the Washington office show that on an average the life of a human being is saved from shipwreck every ninety minutes along the shores of the United States. In 1907 5,300 lives were imperiled, but only twenty-nine persons were drowned out of forty-nine vessels which were completely destroyed. With motor life saving boats the remarkably small percentage of lives lost at sea will be materially reduced, say the life saving experts.

Can Be Put Out In Worst Storms.

The Atlantic coast, and especially the section around Cape Cod, is the most dangerous part of the seaboard of the United States.

When a storm is raging and the angry white tops of immense waves are driven before the gale with all the speed of bullets the work of the life saving crews is perilous in the extreme. When the red glare of the Coston signals lights up the beaches and the riot of surf, telling the surrounding stations that a boat is doomed, the crew which goes out to the rescue throws itself into the very jaws of death.

Often the lifeboat is lifted like a cork when the crew attempt to launch it and tossed back on the beach again. Sometimes the boat is successfully launched through the breakers only to find that the onshore wind is so strong that it is impossible to make headway against it.

Such an experience as this is impossible for a boat like the Ida Lewis. It is true that she is too large and heavy to be taken out of the water when she is not in use. She must be anchored in a sheltered spot. Under the lee of Brenton's Point is an ideal anchorage, and here the Ida Lewis will lie at all times. When the occasion calls, her crew will tumble out from their quarters and put out to her. Then there is no gale strong enough and no waves high enough to prevent her from going straight out to sea. Trips that would be utterly impossible for the ordinary lifeboat will be quite possible for the Ida Lewis. And in addition to being able to put out in the worst storms she will do so without exhausting her crew for the supreme struggle of life saving.

Monument to the Real Ida Lewis.

The Brenton's Point life savers are forced to cover a large territory, and the Ida Lewis will be particularly welcome to them on that account. The Ida Lewis will shove up into the teeth of any gale without any hesitation, automatically freeing herself from the tons of water which crash down upon her by means of her self bailing scuppers. Any storm which can be breasted by an ocean liner can be breasted by the Ida Lewis, say the members of her crew.

The Ida Lewis will stand as a monument to the real Ida Lewis, the heroine of the Lime Rock light, and nowhere is her name more venerated than at Brenton's Point, the only life saving station to build a lifeboat memorial to her deeds.

BRIEFS

John Morgan of Standish avenue has returned from a trip to North Carolina.

An entertainment, social and sale is to be given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Presbyterian church, Friday evening.

The Boys' club of Christ church meets Wednesday evening at seven o'clock for business which will be followed by games and a peanut race.

Whatsoever Circle King's Daughters will meet Monday evening, Jan. 10, at eight o'clock with Mrs. David Whiton of Arlington street.

Reapers circle of Christ church hold its annual meeting on Friday evening at quarter of eight with Mrs. Armstrong at the rectory.

Regular monthly meetings of the Quincy Merchants Association will be held the first Thursday of each month at Union hall.

Carl Stocker of Botolph street who has displayed great interest in organizing the Signal Corps has become a member of the State Militia.

Debate night of the Men's club of Christ church will be on Monday evening and the subject: "No license, whether or not condusive to the best interests of Quincy. The annual banquet will be Tuesday Jan. 18.

The Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church holds its annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon at half past two in the Parish house. There will be reports and an election of officers.

C. T. Schaeffer, one of Dr. Chapman's Evangelists, will begin a series of meetings in the First Presbyterian church on Sunday, Jan. 23. A fuller notice of the meetings will be given later.

It is most unfortunate that in addition to the wretched walking, pedestrians are obliged to find their way home in the dark. The Atlantic residents will greatly appreciate the street lights when they are again restored.

WW. G. Shaw has offered the Home Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club the use of one of his large show windows on Saturday afternoons for a woman's exchange, similar to that held each club afternoon at the clubhouse. This will be found a great convenience and the offer was quickly accepted.

At the Wollaston M. E. chu ch services will be held next week as follows: Monday 7.45 P. M. preaching by Rev. F. G. Potter, Allston; Tuesday 7.45 P. M. preaching by Rev. W. W. Bowers of Baker Memorial church, Dorchester; Wednesday 7.45 P. M. preaching by Rev. E. C. Bridgham of Medford; Thursday 7.45 P. M. preaching by Rev. B. L. Jennings of Somerville; Friday and Saturday at 7.45 P. M. and all day Sunday the services will be in charge of the Gospel Team of Boston University, a company of five young men banded together for gospel work with Rev. T. C. Owen as leader.

TAFT REMOVES CHIEF FORESTER

Finds That Pinchot Has Been Insubordinate In Office

HIS LETTER TO THE SENATE

It Thoroughly Arouses Indignation of President, Who Fully Realizes What Dismissal of Roosevelt's Friend Means In Political Way—Decidedly Tense Situation Created—House Insurgents Deal a Blow at Cannon

Washington, Jan. 8.—Gifford Pinchot, chief forester and intimate friend of Theodore Roosevelt, was dismissed from the service of the United States last night by President Taft for insubordination.

Associate Forester Overton W. Price and Assistant Law Officer Alexander C. Shaw, Pinchot's immediate assistant in the forestry bureau, followed their chief out of the government's employ.

This action came on top of Cannon's defeat by the house "insurgents," who, combining with the Democrats, forced the adoption of an amendment to the Ballinger-Pinchot inquiry resolution taking from the speaker the power to appoint the house members of the joint special committee of investigation. The margin of victory was only three votes.

Thoroughly indignant over the action of Pinchot in inducing Senator Dolliver of Iowa to read a letter from him in the senate, President Taft would listen to no advice that the forester's violation of executive orders be overlooked pending the inquiry soon to be undertaken by congress. He declared the dignity of the office he was chosen by the people to fill was being attacked and he would be unfaithful to his trust if he submitted longer.

Mr. Taft realizes fully what the dismissal of Forester Pinchot means in a political way. He had been convinced for some time that the so-called "insurgents" and other critics of his administration enlisted the services of Pinchot and practically were defying him to relieve Pinchot of his office.

The latter's letter of Thursday, few here doubt, was written with the direct purpose of "putting it squarely up to the president."

The president sought to avoid the threatened war as long as he could, but declared that patience has ceased to be a virtue. He picked up the gage of battle thrown down by Pinchot by the hand of Dolliver in the senate, and with the administration supporters is ready for the fray which is certain to ensue.

Political observers in Washington declare that the situation created by yesterday's developments is the most tense of many years. What the outcome will be no one is willing to prophesy.

As for a possible breach between Mr. Taft and ex-President Roosevelt, that subject is much debated, but any discussion of it obviously is entirely speculative. On the subject of a split in the party, all Republicans here regard the situation as exceedingly serious.

Party leaders in the senate declare that the controversy and the summary action of the president are sure to lead to many harsh words in congress and to much bitterness of feeling throughout the country. They say, however, that the president could not, with dignity, have taken any other course.

A PLUM FOR TAMMANY

Gaynor Appoints One of Murphy's Henchmen to a Fat Position

New York, Jan. 8.—Charles F. Murphy of Tammany Hall got his first big plum openly from the Gaynor administration in the appointment of Frank J. Goodwin, leader of the seventh assembly district, to the office of assistant commissioner of charities, which pays $5000 annually.

Murphy, who has not entered the sacred precincts of the city hall in eight years, was in the mayor's office when the appointment was announced. Goodwin is one of the "strong" Murphy men in Tammany Hall.

GREAT NITRATE TRUST

It Will Extend All Over the World and Have a Capital of $200,000,000

Christiania, Jan. 8.—It is reported that J. P. Morgan of New York and the Deutsche Bank of Berlin are planning a worldwide trust in the nitrate industry with a capital of $200,000,000.

It is understood that the syndicate intends to purchase all the saltpetre mines in Chili as well as the nitrate works in Norway, in which $20,000,000 are invested.

Battle In Indo-China

Hong Kong, Jan. 8.—A pitched battle occurred between a French force and deserting Chinese regulars in the northern part of French Indo-China. The French lost a captain and many were wounded on each side.

Bomb Insurance In Illinois

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Insurance against bomb explosions in Chicago is the newest feature in the insurance business in Illinois.

LATHAM'S GREAT FEAT

Altitude of Four Thousand Feet Attained by French Aviator

Mourmelon, France, Jan. 8.—During a forty-five-minute spectacular flight here Hubert Latham, the French aviator, attained an altitude unofficially estimated at 4000 feet.

The official record for altitude attained in an aeroplane is held by Latham, although owing to the difficulty in measuring flights there is a discrepancy as to the exact height reached by him. Latham is variously accredited with an elevation of 1000 feet, and 1800 feet.

Orville Wright in an unofficial flight at Potsdam, Germany, Oct. 2, 1909, reached an unprecedented height which was estimated at 1600 feet. In the following month Louis Paulhan attained a height which he believed to be nearly 2000 feet, but the flight was not officially recorded. Latham's record was recognized by the Aero Club of France.

BOOMED FOR CONGRESS

Ballplayer Honus Wagner May Quit Diamonds at Friends' Behest

Pittsburg, Jan. 8.—After corralling just about all the baseball laurels and as much of the filthy lucre as he average ball player does in a decade and a half of service, greater honors still may be destined for Honus Wagner, the Flying Dutchman.

A movement is now on foot to boom Honus for congress, and the residents of Carnegie are eager to send the man who has long upheld Pittsburg's prestige on the diamond, to congress.

Honus is a Republican, but he would have a solid Democratic vote. The fact that Wagner is neither a politician nor an orator makes no difference seemingly. Pittsburgers feel that the bow-legged wonder would be able to cut a big swath among the nation's statesmen.

PAPER COMBINATION RESTRAINS TRADE

Jury So Declares In Returning an Indictment

New York, Jan. 8.—Another paper association, formed by John H. Parks, who pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $4000 for his connection with the so-called fibre and manila pool, was indicted by the federal grand jury in New York, charged with being an illegal combination in restraint of trade. The federation is the Paper Board association, comprising 140 prominent paper manufacturers who are indicted individually, aside from the indictment returned against the association as such. A fine or imprisonment may be imposed on conviction.

The defendants named include manufacturers and concerns not only in this state but in New Jersey, Indiana, Illinois, Connecticut, Delaware, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio.

AS FROM THE DEAD

Last but One of Nova Scotia's Missing Fishing Boats Reaches Port

Halifax, Jan. 8.—Shorn of her sails, coated with ice, with all the food on board exhausted and every bit of spare woodwork chopped away and used to supplement the scanty stock of fuel, the schooner Hazel Maude of Dover, which was blown off shore in the gale of Tuesday, and had not been spoken since, crept into her home port just as all hope for her safety had been abandoned. It was as if the crew came from the dead.

Her arrival leaves but one of the twenty-five boats which were caught in the northerly blizzard unaccounted for, the Juanita of Whitehead.

OWNERS HELD LIABLE

Must Settle When Their Automobiles Do Injury to Others

Boston, Jan. 8.—A decision interesting to owners and those hiring automobiles was handed down by the supreme judicial court.

The automobile of Charles S. Shepard was run into by another owned in part by Volney Jacobs, but hired and occupied by Simeon H. Baker. The machine was in charge of Jacobs' chauffeur.

The point at issue was whether Baker or Jacobs, the owner, was liable for the negligence of the chauffeur, and the court held that the owners were responsible.

TOUCHED OFF THE ALARM

Man Sweeping Out Waltham Bank Puts Police on the Jump

Waltham, Mass., Jan. 8.—Several police officers were rushed to the Waltham Savings bank last evening following the ringing of the burglar alarm connected with that institution.

They found Lowell Wellington sweeping out the offices at the bank and examination showed that during this operation he had inadvertedly touched off the alarm.

Wilhelmina Banquets Woodford

The Hague, Jan. 8.—Queen Wilhelmina gave a banquet in honor of General Stewart L. Woodford, president of the Hudson-Fulton celebration commission, who came here to express the thanks of the commission for Holland's participation in the historic festivities in New York.

DIVIDES MONEY OF ITS VICTIMS

Secrets of Order Pledged to Rob and Kill Are Revealed

TESTIMONY OF A DETECTIVE

Traps Man Who Is a Member of Branch of Black Hand Society Into Confession of Murder by Occupying Same Cell With Suspects In Disguise of Fellow Convict—Victim Calmly Lured to His Death

Albany, Jan. 8.—What is regarded as one of the most remarkable criminal stories ever told in the courts here was related on the witness stand by Michael Bernabie, a New York detective, who tells of the existence of an organization known as "The Family of the Dead Bodies," that does not confine its activities to blackmailing and killing Italians, but preys also on Americans.

To gain the secrets of the band, Bernabie, by arrangement with the authorities, had himself arrested, put in the same cell with two men accused of the murder of George E. Phelps, a rent collector, and gleaned from them, he testifies, the secrets of the gang and of the murder of the American.

Dominick Ferrar is on trial on the charge of murdering Phelps and the detective is the chief witness for the prosecution. He says "The Family of the Dead Bodies" is a branch of the Black Hand society.

Bernabie told the jury that Ferrer had confessed to having been elected to co-operate with Leonardo in taking the life of the rent collector. The victim was suposed to be an "American with much money."

"If any member of the society kills any one, or robs any one, or writes a threatening letter or even robs a child, the society will look after him. A member of the society is forced to give all his money, even the last cent he has, to the society to help those who are arrested.

"If $5000 or $10,000 is made by the society and no one is arrested, the money is divided among the members. The members are divided into three classes. First, the picecitte; second, the caporesti, and third, the leaders, and the money is divided among them at the ratio of $5 to the picecitte, $10 to the caporesti and $15 to the leaders."

Touching the Phelps murder, Ferrer, according to Bernabie, said that when the victim entered Vincent Leonardo's place to collect the rent the latter asked him to step into the rear room and be seated at the table. Ferrer stood behind Phelps, armed with a cane which belonged to Leonardo's father. At a sign from Leonardo, Frerar struck Phelps on the head with the cane, but instead of becoming unconscious, as the assailant had intended he should, Phelps jumped to his feet and began to fight. Bernabie said that Ferrar told him Leonardo then stabbed Phelps, and he (Ferrar) ran home because he was frightened.

OPPOSED BY SOCIETY BUDS

Suffragists Will Find Strong Opposition When Albany Fight Begins

Albany, Jan. 8.—The advance agent of the "votes for women" army that is expected to swoop down on the state capitol struck town yesterday. It is proposed to start off the campaign here with a lecture to the women of Albany.

The Albany association opposed to woman suffrage is doing all it can to discourage votes for women. A junior branch has been organized with twenty-eight young society girls who are pledged to fight their militant sisters. They may appear at the capitol when the army of suffragists try to persuade legislators of their right to the ballot.

The judge had drawn a few steps away from the pair during the scene between them. He viewed with calculating satisfaction the battle that his daughter was waging so valiantly in his behalf, and he had felt that not even the young stoic Brand could resist this powerful and final appeal of the girl he loved. At his daughter's last outcry he drew near to the editor.

"Brand, are you human?" he demanded strongly, pointing to the prostrated girl with his walking stick.

"Human, human, Judge Bartelmy!" he exclaimed. "You are true to yourself to the end. You bring your daughter here so that by torturing me with the sight of her suffering you may escape the penalty of your thievery. I was willing she should think me heartless to spare her the greater pain of knowing you as you are. But now you bring her here in her innocence to repeat to me your lies. You're degrading her, dragging her down to your own level, just as you did her mother before her. If she lets you go on using her it will be with her eyes open."

Judith raised her head amazedly.

"What are you saying?" she asked.

Brand turned to her and then to the judge.

"Why, he's lied to you just as he's lied all his life. He told you he was trying to shield others. He lied. He never shielded any one but himself. Judge Bartelmy, the power of men like you must be destroyed. When justice is corrupted the nation rots. If I keep silent about you and your methods I become your accomplice; I betray my trust just as you have betrayed yours."

Bartelmy raised his hand deprecatingly. Brand, however, drew a deep breath and went resolutely on. He spoke to both the girl and the judge.

"Judith, if at the cost of my life I could spare you this grief I would do it gladly. But even that would do no good. You would always despise me for failing when my test came and always despise yourself for having caused me to fail. Can't you see you and I are nothing in all this? The individual does not exist, only the cause. Judge Bartelmy, that story goes to press," he cried, raising his eyes to meet those of Judith's father.

Bartelmy saw that he had played his last card. It was his highest trump, but it had failed to win. What Judith could not do he surely, under the existing circumstances, could not do. Nolan, the only man who could save him if he would, had gone, he knew not where.

And it was now press time. All was over. Bartelmy took a single step toward his daughter.

"Brand, that story is my obituary," he said in low tones.

"Oh, no," was the response in saddened voice. "Men like you don't finish that way. You'll have about six hours, judge, before that story is read by the public."

Judith, too, was ready to admit that her last and culminating effort had been in vain. Wearied and unstrung, she raised herself from the fatal form that was to besmirch the name and the father that had been her source of pride. She crossed over toward her father, who stood silent and despairingly in the shadow of one of the linotype machines.

"Goodby, Wheeler. I am going out of your life forever. I am sorry it had to end like this—all our plans, all our hopes"—

The thought of the happy moments that she had spent with Wheeler, building air castles for their future when they would be man and wife, came over her. It swept down the wall of reserve and determination with which she had deemed it necessary to surround herself. She halted and gazed steadfastly into her father's face. Slowly she raised her hands and pressed them against her cheeks as though horror stricken. Then she turned, rushed impulsively back to Wheeler Brand, and, bending tensely toward him, she searched his strong young face as best her tear dimmed eyes would let her. He returned her gaze unflinchingly.

Judge Bartelmy saw the girl's struggle to decide between the father who had dishonored her name and the lover who meant a life of happiness, purity, success and inspiration. He was wise enough in the ways of the world to know that again was Brand to prove a victor over him.

The girl stood immovable a moment. Then she extended her arm toward her lover. Judith Bartelmy had made her choice.

The judge's features showed but little of the storm into which his emotions had been plunged. His years of practiced self control had come to his aid and enabled him to face the ruin of his career and his life and his name without the frenzied demonstration in which most men in his position would have indulged. To the last he was the cool, polished, suave hypocrite that he had been in the beginning, when those who sought to loot the public for private gain found him a willing tool.

"He is right," Bartelmy said to Judith. "He has told you the truth tonight—the absolute truth." He looked at his watch. "Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?" he asked.

Brand had gathered Judith in his arms. She sighed contentedly as she laid her head upon his shoulder. "Yes," he answered the judge.

Judge Bartelmy stood watching the united couple for a moment before he turned and walked away, muttering as he went: "Six hours. One may travel far in these days in that time."

* * * * * * * *

The great ship heaved and lunged through the giant seas that swept over her bows, out of the freezing night, out of the cold northeast. The captain and the first officer, lashed to opposite ends of the lofty bridge, choked in the flying spume of wind riven midocean.

Somewhere a deep toned bell told of the hour in the sailors' accustomed fashion. From somewhere out of the depths of the vast groaning fabric tumbled the men of the watch who were now to go on duty to relieve their storm beaten fellows.

And somewhere down in the shivering, rearing hull a gaunt faced, hollow eyed man lay on the saffron hued velvet cushions of a narrow couch at the side of a luxurious stateroom. He was fully dressed in spite of the lateness of the hour and of the fact that he was sleeping—just as he had been the night before. He tossed uneasily. Sometimes he thrust his hands out convulsively as though to ward off a threatening danger. He began to talk incoherently. The ship rolled, and a tray containing dishes and an evening meal that had gone untouched crashed to the floor. "The press—the printing press—has started," he muttered disjointedly as the sound of the breaking dishes penetrated into his wearied brain. His hand instinctively crept under one of the cushions. It grasped and for a moment fumbled with a blue steel object, which it drew weakly forth—a revolver. The shock of the cold steel roused the sleeper. He opened his eyes and gazed fascinatedly at the instrument of death. With a cry of terror he relaxed his fingers, and the object dropped to the floor. He groaned the groan of a lost soul in the anguish of its never ceasing torture. He turned his face to the wall and tried in vain to close his eyes in sleep.

"Six hours, did you say, Mr. Brand?"

Judgment had been pronounced in the case of "JUDGE BARTELMY VERSUS THE PEOPLE, WHEELER BRAND AND THE ADVANCE."

THE END.

"JUDGE BARTELMY, THAT STORY GOES TO PRESS," HE CRIED, RAISING HIS EYES TO THOSE OF JUDITH'S FATHER.

TRIED TO TUNNEL TO BANK VAULTS

Dream of Would-Be Robber Collapses With His Death

New York, Jan. 8.—Isaac Finkelstein, the burrower of Ludlow street, was found trapped in his tunnel last night like a rabbit in its warren. Workmen had been digging thirty-six hours to find him.

Nothing more miserably futile was ever seen in New York. There he lay, under the middle of the street, a crushed, miry semblance of a man, his face in the dirt, his two hands stretched out before him, pointing toward the unattainable millions in the valuts of the East Side branch of the Fourteenth Street bank and the diamonds in the window of the jewelry shop next door.

Finkelstein was a house painter. He knew nothing about driving tunnels. He had only the rudest tools, no timber to shore up the roof and walls of his burrow, no burglar's kit to bore through the concrete and steel walls of the bank vaults, no adequate idea of the elaborate precautions constantly on watch inside these walls against him, no revolver for the ever-possible crisis—nothing but his guilty dream. And the dream collapsed.

NO FIGHTING IN GREYTOWN

Nicaraguans Receive Fair Warning From Commander of British Ship

Washington, Jan. 8.—"The majority of houses in Greytown being owned by British subjects there must be no fighting within that town. If any does take place there I shall consider myself at liberty to land a strong armed party and guns and stop it."

This is the substance of a note, reported by Consul Moffat, at Bluefields, to have been sent by the commander of the British ship Scylla, now at Greytown, Nicaragua, to the generals commanding the revolutionary and government forces, respectively, now in that vicinity.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Let Women Vote by Mail, Suggests Loie Fuller—Sometimes Chaperones Are de Trop, according to Radcliffe's President—No Wonder Lads from the Farm Like to Get Jobs as Conductors and Motormen in Boston—A Great Tree Pageant Will Attract Hubbites.

Boston, Jan. 7, 1910.

To be "Johnny on the spot" is the business of every newspaper reporter This was amusingly evidenced one evening this week. A young woman who has been commissioned to make a verbatim report of Captain Robert Bartlett's stereopticon lecture on the occasion of his first public address made her way to the reporter's row and with book and pencil ready awaited the Captain's appearance. He appeared in due course, but preliminary to his address the lights were extinguished. Two young men nearby started in to "jolly" the girl for thinking she could get the report in the dark, when she electrified them by flashing a pocket light in their faces before focusing it upon her notebook, after which she calmly made her notes without any further remarks from the young men.

Good for President Briggs! As head of Radcliffe college and Dean of Harvard, he believes that "the amount of attention a co-ed should receive from a young man, the time of his arrival and departure, and just whether a chaperone is necessary, depends entirely upon conditions." He explains this decision at some length, defending the right of the college girl to her company and social life, with the stipulation, of course, that her work be properly attended to first. Dean Briggs smiles at the idea of having a chaperone always watching with eagle eye for the incipient signs of approaching courtship. He approves of clubs and theatricals for the fair students and believes that the young women are quite capable of conducting themselves in a sensible manner without the espionage of hired chaperones.

"I love you," the only English expression of which she is yet mistress, rippled musically from the lips of Mme. Lydia Lipkowska to the delight of the assembled crowds at the South Station Saturday night as the members of Boston's own opera company started on their five weeks tour of the west. In their absence will be presented at the Opera House, on January 28 and 29, a great Tree Pageant, for the benefit of the Child Welfare work of the Fathers' and Mothers' clubs. Many well known people are to take part in this pageant, which will show some of the history and legends of tree worship, and the history of the Christmas tree, developed in rites, dances and marches. Members of the dramatic departments of Harvard, the New England Conservatory, the Curry School of Expression, the Copley Society and the Field and Forest Club are assisting Mrs. Lucia Gale Barber, the creator and director of the pageant, and James Gilbert, the stage manager, to make the undertaking a huge success.

No wonder the very pick of young men from all points of New England and the Canadian provinces come to Boston and apply for positions as conductors and motormen with the local traction company. The New Year's distribution by the Boston Elevated Railway Company of $75,000 in cash presents to employees who have made records for efficient faithful work is typical of the attitude of the better sort of public service corporations toward the men who help to make its operation what it is. Until this year the Elevated Company's men who sufficiently escaped black marks and reprimands received fifteen dollars each as a little token of the management's appreciation. On Jan. 1, 1910, a new scale was adopted by which some of the veterans of the service were presented with twenty-five dollars; others, who have not been on the platform so long, twenty dollars. To give such rewards of merit is undoubtedly good business the prospect of getting the award in the holiday season keeps a large number of men on the alert all the year through to avoid the infractions of discipline that may cause it to be forfeited. Philanthropy of such sort pays. Yet one fancies that it is not altogether self interest which actuates the management of this corporation. In such great enterprises there is a very human side. One who recently rode over the Boston Elevated's system with General William A. Bancroft was struck with the large and pleasant personal acquaintance the head of the company has with employees of the road. Again, an occasional notice in the papers of his attendance at the funeral of a veteran of the street railroading business tells the same story. Because a human regard for their welfare exists, because they have old age pensions, free legal advice, special awards for faithfulness and many other marks of consideration, the body of employees of Boston's model street railway system is intensely loyal. These and many other advantages naturally attract to the service a superior lot of men, among whom the lads from the farms of northern New England are especially conspicuous.

A good suffragist is "La Loie." Miss Fuller, who is in Boston, busily engaged with her performances at the Opera House, has advanced the unique proposal that women should be permitted to vote by mail. There one has a practical answer to the familiar catch phrase, "Woman's place is in the home." Miss Fuller would doubtless seat her feminine voter at a dainty mahogany writing desk where she will place the requisite crosses against the names of candidates, fold the ballot into an Irish bond or French cream envelope, heat the brittle green sealing stick at a wax or parafine candle and a little later drop into the post box a missive inscribed in an angular hand,————————, Esq're, Chairman Election Committee, Town." That will be swell voting for you. It will effectively forestall that dreadful contamination of woman which is sometimes feared if she visits a polling place for fifteen minutes once a year. The proposal is thoroughly original, as one would expect from Loie Fuller, whose whole life has been passed in doing wonderfully different, yet perfectly logical things. As a proposition it is far more original than the recent action of the anti suffragists in publishing a mildly formidable list of estimable and distinguished gentlemen of this state who for one reason or another have never caught the real force of the equal suffrage arguments. The publication of this list looks like a palpable imitation of the booklet "Eminent Opinions on Woman Suffrage," a glance at which shows that the said prominent citizens of Massachusetts have stacked up against Plato, Ralph Waldo Emerson, William Howard Taft, Theodore Roosevelt, Israel Zangwill and so many more celebrities that to make an appropriate selection of names would be difficult.

BRIEFS

The annual parish meeting of St. Chrysostom's church is to be held Monday evening at eight o'clock. Annual reports will be given and routine business transacted.

Dr. Van Allen rector of the Church of the Advent, Boston, gave a talk on "History of Sacrifice from the very beginning as seen in the books of the Bible" before St. Chrysostom's Altar Guild Thursday evening at the rectory.

A special musical service will be held Sunday evening at St. Chrysostom's church, Mrs. W. H. Spooner, soprano, of Hampden circle, recently moved from West Virginia will be the soloist.

Norfolk county probate court was held at Dedham this week. The will of Helen V. Josselyn late of Quincy was allowed and Maria C. Josselyn appointed executrix, $1,200. An account of George H. Brown in the estate of the late Joseph F. Berry of Quincy was allowed for $96,157.79.

L. A. Chapin carries off the honors in calendars and has issued the handsomest one of the season. It has a fine view of Mt. Moran in Yellow Stone park and the large figures on the pad make it useful as well as ornamental in business places.

The date of the monthly supper given by the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Memorial Congregational church is January 18. A most delightful menu is being planned by the committee.

Massachusetts Society of the Daughters of the Revolution hold a business meeting, Jan. 14, at Hotel Vendome, Boston, which is to be followed by an entertainment and social tea. This is only one of the many activities of this society planned for this month.

Hon. Thorndike Spalding of Cambridge, state senator from the Second Middlesex district, who has been seriously ill at his home 75 Sparks street is now reported as having more than an even chance of recovery. This will be good news to his large circle of friends in this town.

Among the pleasant features of the W. R. C., installation Thursday evening were several presentations: Mrs. Dorcas Lyman, installing officer of W. R. C. 103 receiving a silver cream ladle from the incoming officers; Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, a cut glass dish; Mrs. Agnes Fletcher, the retiring president an elegant diamond ring, a given in comparison with the years berry dish.

Last night the largest audience of the week assembled at the Wollaston M. E. Church. Rev. L. H. Morgan of Melrose preached a thoughtful sermon from the subject "Readiness." Mrs. Mabel Wilbur sang "Peace of God" Mr. F. A. Sutermeister led the praise service. The special meetings are to be continued another week with services every night, including Saturday, at 7.45 o'clock.

☞ To accommodate a growing attendance at First church of Christ, Scientist, which holds its services in Post Office block, opposite the Braintree railroad station, a substantial addition has recently been made to its seating capacity.

DEATHS.

CURTIS—In Quincy, Jan. 7, Mr. Samuel G. Curtis, aged 75 years, 5 months and 27 days. Funeral services from First Presbyterian church, corner Water and Quincy street, Sunday, Jan. 9, at 2 P. M. Relatives and friends invited. 7-2t

BRIEFS

Many are looking forward to the annual ball of the Quincy Police Relief association on Jan. 28.

The bid of W. A. Read & Co. for the $20,000 four per cent Houghs Neck school house bonds was $101.835.

The fourteenth day of sleighing, but most of the snow has disappeared leaving only ice.

The Eaton Ice Company has commenced cutting ice at their plant on Adams street and have good ice fourteen inches thick.

A daughter and two sons were born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Loretto Antonili of South Quincy, which have been named Josedra, Jerry and Joseph. All are thriving.

Stanley C. Sherman, a sophomore at Amherst college, was unable to return to his studies after the Christmas recess, owing to a severe attack of catarrhal fever from which he is convalescing.

A vesper service is to be held in First church Sunday afternoon at four o'clock when a special music will be rendered by the church quartet and William E. Weston, organist. The sermonette will be by the assistant pastor Rev. Charles B. Ames.

At the meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club on Tuesday next George G. Crocker, chairman of the Boston Transit commission will speak on "Sacrifices to rapid transit."

The Citizens' Gas Light Company of Quincy has asked the gas commission for authority to issue $175,000 additional capital stock at par, to pay floating debt.

Bernard Fiedler of the Symphony Orchestra was soloist at Bethany church last Sunday morning and those who braved the inclement weather and bad walking enjoyed a rare musical treat. His tone is full and resonant and his technique supert, while his interpretation is that of an accomplished artist.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary H. Mullaney, one of Quincy's oldest residents, was held Monday morning from the home of her son, Thomas Mullaney of Quarry street. Services were held later from St. John's church, and were largely attended. Burial was at the family lot, St. Mary's cemetery. The pall bearers were her six grandsons, Charles, Harold, Thomas and William Mullaney, and Joseph and Daniel Keniley.

THAYER GIRLS WIN.

The Thayer Academy girls' team defeated the Cambridge English high school quintet yesterday afternoon 15 to 7. Miss E. Kimball scored eleven points for Thayer.

EXCITING GAME.

In one of the most exciting games ever seen in High school hall the Alumni went down to defeat last night by a score of 22 to 21. Ness was injured and had to retire. Scollard was shifted to cover Cuff and Hickey took Scollard's place. This move was beneficial to the winners for Hickey scored the backet that won.

—Few editors get as many facts into a brief item as the editor of the Marquette (Missouri) Times does in the following: "Miss Jennie Jones and Rob Henry was married at the Jones mansion last night. The bride is a daughter of our Constable Jones, who has made a good officer and will undoubtedly be re-elected next year. He offers a fine horse for sale in another column. The groom runs a store on Main street."

BASKET BALL SEASON

Opened at High School With Victory

Quincy High won its initial game of 1910 yesterday when it took Abington into camp by the good margin of 31 to 15. The local boys, after the first five minutes, were never in danger, and steadily forged ahead of their heavier opponents.

The score at first was in Abington's favor and then stood 4 to 4. Again Abington took the lead, but Billy Manning retaliated, not only with one basket, but enough to put the score 10 to 6 in Quincy's favor.

The half ended with Quincy leading 14 to 9. The second half Russ Bates got busy with his shooting eye, and the ball seemed to come from all parts of the floor for a few minutes and when the smoke cleared Quincy had scored ten more points and had the South Shore lads 24 to 9. After this it was easy until the whistle blew, and the score stood 31 to 15.

Russ Bates gave a great exhibition of all round work, both his passing, blocking and shooting being of fine order. Mel Chapman played a fine defensive game at right back. Billy Manning as usual was everywhere, and to his clever eye the team owed 7 baskets and one foul. He was especially strong on the recovery of a miss for the basket going several feet into the air, time and time again, and getting the ball. Marceau at center was up against a much heavier and taller opponents, but did good work for his first game as pivot.

Harmon at left back was the other new man and but for a too strenuous use of his arms which necessitated some fouls on Quincy, he played a good covering game, following his man well. H. Chapman was substituted at forward the latter part of the game and showed that Quincy has one man who can be called on who will not be found wanting, as he possesses a good eye and can make his man follow him.

Altogether the Quincy team did great work, and with some good hard practice they will turn out as fast a team as the school has had.

The summary follows:

QUINCY	ABINGTON
Bates, rf	lb, Mylott
H. Chapman, rf	lf, McKeon
Manning, lf	rb, Bishop
Marceau, c	c, Wheatley
Harmon, rb	lf, Cook
M. Chapman, lb	rf, Green

Score, Quincy 31, Abington 15. Goals from floor, Bates 4, Manning 7, H. Chapman, M. Chapman, Marceau, Bishop, Wheatley 3, Green 2. Goals from fouls, Bates 2, Manning, Cook, Green 2. Referee, Gourlie. Umpire, Newton. Scorer, Miller. Timer, Currier. Time 20 and 15th periods.

An interesting side contest was witnessed between the halves when the Senior and Junior teams met. The Seniors won 9 to 6. It was as much fun as a three ring circus to the spectators, and resembled a football match about as much as anything. It is understood that the Seniors sprang a great surprise as the Juniors were mighty confident of annexing a scalp.

Y. M. C. A. MEET.

The Y. M. C. A. meet was run off this morning at the gymnasium. There were about 15 boys who entered for the events which included spring board jump, pull ups, potato race and 15 yd. dash. The winners were:

15 yd. dash—R. Prout.
Potato race—S. Prout.
Spring board high jump—S. Hunt.
Pull ups—Kennedy.

HOT WATER HEATER.

Homemade Arrangement That Proved Entirely Satisfactory.

As we desired to put in a hot water heating system in our house and as the estimates seemed too high for us, we decided to put in the system and to make our own heater, which, when completed, proved very satisfactory and was much cheaper to install, says a New Jersey correspondent of Popular Mechanics. A fire box, grates, ash pan and door from an old hot air heater were used. Then a pipe boiler was constructed from two manifolds, A, which we purchased, each having four outlets for one inch pipe openings and in both ends for one and one-half inch pipe. Twelve one-inch return bends, four one-inch ells and four one-inch nipples, six inches long, were purchased. The center lengths of pipe were cut so as to bring the return bends inside the casing and the manifolds outside.

The pipe had to be bent a little so as to give it a drop and not allow the water to trap. The burr was reamed out of the pipe ends to allow free circulation. There were four sections made this way, one for each opening in the manifolds. The casing was built of brick covered with cement after all the piping and fire box fixtures were in place. The top is one piece of cast iron, made from a pattern of our own construction.

Connections were made to the system from the ends of the manifolds, which were one and one-half inch pipe. The hot water was taken from the top manifold and the return connected to the bottom. This boiler has been in use for some time and has given entire satisfaction.

THE MYSTERY OF LIFE.

Science Finds Little Real Life In a Healthy Body.

That a great part of the body besides the bones is really dead in a healthy, living man is the verdict of science. Even the blood, which has always been called "the life," is only alive as to its corpuscles. These swim in the liquid known as the plasma, which is not alive, and can be replaced by a serum that may have been standing in a druggist's bottle for six months. With the hair, teeth, bones and blood plasma are to be classed the lymph, the chyle, the fluids in the pleura, pericardium, peritoneum and even the cerebro-spinal fluid—the fluid part of the brain and spinal column.

None of the gases and fluids in the body are more alive than the lime of the bones. This leaves us the cells as the only living part, and these are dying and being replaced by the million every hour.

From all of which facts it is argued by certain scientists that life is no more real than death and that the only difference between life and death is a state of the protoplasm or contents of the cell. As long as the cell is alive it retains and controls the chemical substances which constitute protoplasm, but as soon as it is really dead the control is lacking and the cell breaks up.

This still leaves us much in the dark as to what is life.

Soft Pneumatic Tires.

The pneumatic tire is the best for runabouts and touring cars because of its resiliency, ease of operation and its quick and simple method of repair. Pneumatic tires are susceptible to punctures and other injuries which, if not given the proper attention, result in a soft or deflated tire. The user, quite often through an ignorance of the technical construction or probably from an indifference to the result, will ride the tire a considerable distance deflated, which will injure a tire so it will require quite an expenditure for repairs or render it unfit for further service. Although it is not always convenient to make repairs or replacements with an emergency tire carried for that purpose, it is beyond doubt advisable in view of the injuries that will probably otherwise occur.

New Uses of Cement.

European engineers are appreciative of the value of cement grouting for repairing defective masonry, lining wells and for making tunnel roofs water tight. In Germany a well polluted by infiltrations was put into satisfactory condition by lowering into it a sheet iron drum, filling the space between the drum and the walls of the well with portland cement and withdrawing the drum after the cement had set. The damaged masonry of the tunnel was repaired by injecting liquid cement under pressure. Air at a pressure of seventy-eight pounds per square inch sufficed to force the cement into place.

—In Lapland, garments made of reindeer hair are famous for their moisture-resisting property, as well as for their warmth. The hair, unlike that of many animals, is not hollow throughout its length, but is divided into many watertight cells filled with air, which appears to be under compression, so that when the garments are placed in water the hair or wool, swells without breaking and the wearer is buoyed up and does not readily sink if he falls overboard. Such garments are in common use among the Swedes, Norwegians and Russians.—Harper's Weekly.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Boston, January 6th, 1910

On the petition of the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company for the approval of an issue of additional capital stock of the par value of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.) for the purpose of paying a portion of the floating debt now outstanding, the Board will give a hearing to the parties interested at its office, 603 Ford building, at 15 Ashburton Place, Boston, on Wednesday, the twelfth day of January current, at ten-thirty o'clock in the forenoon.

And the petitioner is required to give notice of said hearing by publication hereof in the "Quincy Ledger" a newspaper published in the city of Quincy, three times at least prior to said time of hearing.

What The Croakers Said

Saturday a gentleman came into our store, travelled to the 5th floor in the elevator and after making a few purchases walked down through the various other floors and through the great aisles of beautiful furniture Before going away he said, "How do you make such a wonderful store as this pay in Quincy. 11 years ago when you put the building up the Croakers said you couldn't live 6 months, but you have—now how do you do it?" Our answer was simply this—"We have confidence in Quincy and in Quincy People. We treat the people right and they like to trade here. They try Boston and then come back better satisfied than before that Quincy can and does have stores to be proud of.

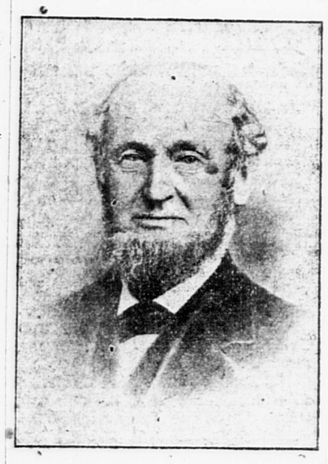
REUNION OF QUINCY'S OLD FIRE FIGHTERS

Clam Chowder Party of Washington M. French Hose Company

James T. Penniman and Other Veterans Recall Old Times in Quincy.

"Should auld acquaintance be forgot" read the invitations to the mid-winter reunion and chowder party of the Washington M. French Hose Association, an organization composed of veterans of Quincy's old days who ran with the machine. This year's gathering was held at Union hall in the Kincaide block and proved to be one of the most enjoyable of the association. Nearly all of the old vets were present, and many of the fires of years ago were fought over again.



WASHINGTON M. FRENCH.

President Fred H. French was on early to welcome the guests, and to wish them many happy returns and a prosperous New Year as they took their departure. Then there was his right man Jesse F. Curtis, the genial secretary and treasurer of the association; ex-Engineer James T. Penniman, who although over ninety years of age never misses an opportunity to be with the boys; Ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter, the first Mayor the city ever had; Mayor Shea, the present chief executive and also an old fireman; ex-Engineer James H. Elcock, of Granite engine fame; Peter J. Williams, the present chief who received his first instructions in fighting fires from the late Washington M. French; ex-Chief Amos L. Litchfield; ex-Chief John Whitney Hall; Benjamin King, an old Boston fireman; ex-Chief Frank C. Packard; ex-Assistant Engineer Robert J. Hayes; District Chief Daniel J. Nyhan; Senator E. C. Hultman, and Assessor W. W. Adams.

Others present were G. M. Anderson, Galen Vinton Bowditch, William Coffin, Philip Cook, Edward Desmond, A. G. Dolliver, Edward Dunn, George H. Ford, W. V. Hayward, Martin L. Hersey, Edwin Kittredge, Arthur C. Merritt, Joseph C. Morse, Richards Newcomb, James Nicol, Walter M. Packard, Walter L. Randall, Henry P. Miller, William Robb, Gilbert M. Rhodes, Henry Souther, Joseph Shafer, ex-Councilman Eugene R. Stone, City Clerk H. A. Keith, Samuel Tutton, George Tirrell, Capt. C. P. Costa, George H. Foss, Thomas Butler, George H. Wilson, Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker, Councilman Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Albert Taber, Frank Carlton, D. J. Crowley, James W. Pierce, J. H. Dinegan, James E. Maxim, T. J. Collins, A. N LaBreacque, W. H. Cobb, George T. Magee, Quincy Torrey, and last but not least, Capt. Asa A. Pope, the steward of the old hose company, who on this occasion made one of his old-time clam chowders.

It was shortly before 9 o'clock when President French said that the steward was ready to serve the chowder, and no time was lost in getting seated about the two long tables. Then the chowder came on piping hot and it was fine. Most everybody had two bowls and some had three. Then there was hot coffee, and ham sandwiches, and last but not least Pittsburg stogies.

The dinner over President French briefly welcomed those present saying that he was glad to extend the greeting of the association to the friends and honorary members of the association. The chowder was one of the old time ones the same as we used to have in the old hose company days. He introduced as the first speaker Mayor Shea.

The Mayor said that he had left his speech at home, yet he could not but express his pleasure at being present. That great question of the time made by the Granite in its famous run of 31 minutes from West Quincy to So. Boston had long ago been settled, and he would not say any more about it. There was one thing however that he desired to say and that was in regard to the article accredited to him published in a Sunday paper a few weeks ago.

He was too loyal to Quincy to say such things, and he wanted to deny the statement. This was the first public gathering he had attended since the publication of the article, and he hoped that those present would pardon him for touching on the matter. He had said at one time that while Quincy may have had some incompetent Mayors it never had a dishonest one.

James T. Penniman followed. He said he was no speech maker, but he wanted to express his pleasure at being present. He was also glad to hear the statement the Mayor had made for he could not believe that he had made such a statement as the paper stated he did. He closed by wishing all a Happy New Year.

Ex-Mayor Porter was glad to be present and he did not believe that the Mayor had said that all the Mayors of Quincy were notorious for their graft. He knew it could not be so, and he knew it to be a lie. Col. Porter then referred to the storm of Dec. 26, when the tide came over Canal street and contrasted it with other years, saying that it was the highest tide since the memorable tide of 1851. He then referred to the first fire engine that Quincy had ever had, which followed the old bucket brigade of 1800. That engine had to be filled by buckets then hauled to the fire to play on it. He said it was something remarkable, when one stopped to think, that Quincy furnished 900 men in the Civil War, one sixth of its entire population at that time. Quincy now had an estimated population of 33,000. Referring to the old Town brook, he said that he hoped the Commissioner would fix the retaining walls that had fallen in, and that he would have the water analyzed to see that it was not contaminated. In closing he hoped all would be alive another year when it came time for Asa Pope to make another chowder.

Chief Williams spoke of Quincy's old fire fighting days, and the old Hose Co., and told of some of the incidents of those days. Then the Washington M. French Hose company was rated one of the best of the state. His first experience as a fire fighter was a driver for Washington M. French, and he told of a remarkable run the company made from Quincy to South Braintree in 18 minutes.

This statement was a surprise to many and rather placed the famous record run of the old Granite on the shelf.

Councilman Whiton did not know much about the Washington M. French Hose Co., but he did know about the old Vulture. He could show a record made by that tub that would put the other records in the shade, and he could show be records that she could throw more water then any engine. Now that had a steamer, which he was the father of, that could throw more water than any other steamer in the state.

EXCHIEF LITCHFIELD.

Ex-Engineer James H. Elcock said that it was always a pleasure for him to be present at these gatherings and meet the men whom he used to know in the old days. We then had many a hard battle with fires, and as he met these men today he could recall

OLD TIMES RECALLED

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Justin K. Hardwick

Mr. and Mrs. Justin K. Hardwick celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Saturday evening by entertaining a number of their relatives, neighbors and friends at their home on Granite street. The affair was somewhat of a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Hardwick who had thought but little of celebrating. Their friends, however, thought differently and the informality of the gathering made it all the more enjoyable. They were pleasantly remembered with gifts, including several pieces of gold, and there was also a profusion of beautiful flowers. The evening was passed in social intercourse, a dainty lunch being served.

Mr. Hardwick is a Quincy boy, being a son of the late John Hardwick, one of the first, if not the first insurance men in Quincy. He was born July 13, 1836, and received his early education in the public schools. Soon after leaving school he entered the insurance business with his father and brother, under the name of John Hardwick & Sons, which firm is still in existence.

In 1862 when the old horse railroad was started between South Quincy and the Neponset bridge he became one of the drivers and had the distinction of driving the first horse car in Quincy. In 1863 the cars were run through to State street, Boston, and he drove on this line until the railroad went out of business in January 1868. In addition to driving the first car in Quincy, he also drove the last car run on the road.

In those days, hourly trips were made between Quincy and Boston, the running time being an hour and a half, and the fare between Quincy and Boston was thirty cents. The first car for Boston left Quincy at 7 A. M. and the last car from Boston left State street at 11.20. At the start, drivers received $30 per month and the conductors $33. Later the pay was raised so that the drivers and conductors received $45 per month, and about seventeen hours was considered a day's work.

When the railroad went out of business, Mr. Hardwick went to Cohasset, where he remained for a time. He returned to Quincy and drove a stone team for C. H. Hardwick & Co., for a time, and then entered the employ of the late George F. Wilson, by whom he was employed for eight years as driver of his Boston team. During all of these years he still retained his interest in the insurance business of his father and brothers, although he was not actively engaged in it.

Jan. 8, 1860, he married Esther A. Stoddard a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stoddard of Cohasset, the marriage ceremony being performed at Hingham by Rev. E. Porter Dyer. Mrs. Hardwick was born June 21, 1836, so that they are both about the same age. Both enjoy remarkably good health and reside with their two daughters on Granite street, and their many friends unite in wishing them a happy New Year and many more years of wedded bliss.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL

Inspection by the State Board of Health

An official inspection of the Wollaston grammar school building has been made for the State Board of Health by Dr. H. Lilienthal, the State inspector of the fifth district, owing to the illness of the State inspector of the fourth district in which the school is situated.

The report says that the building is rather old and somewhat neglected. There is moderate overcrowding in several of the rooms. In one room the cubic feet of air space per capita is 185, while 300 is generally regarded as the minimum. Ventilation varies, satisfactory in some rooms and inadequate in others. The furnace to heat the ventilating stacks has not been in operation for several years. In several rooms the light is not as good as it should be, the light coming from the right, instead of from the left and some portions being poorly lighted.

The toilets are in the basement where there is no heat. Their construction is old fashioned, and all the bowls empty into a common trough which is automatically flushed. The boys' urinals have to be flushed with a hose. There are no doors to the individual closets and thus no privacy. The fire escapes are old and of no practical use, especially for the younger pupils.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Boston is on the eve of an election under the new city charter. It is not easy to predict the winner, or make an estimate of the vote. With Messrs. Fitzgerald and Storrow in the field, Mr. Storrow should win, but Messrs. Hibbard and Taylor complicate the situation. Less than 40,000 votes will be required to win.

The Quincy members of the Legislature, who were all reelected this year, were prominent in committing the State to the new policy of expending $100,000 each year for river and harbor improvements, under the direction of the Harbor and Land Commissioners. The State now has an opportunity to do something for the big shipbuilding interests located on the Fore river.

Already the Committee on Banks and Banking of the Legislature, of which Representative Langelier of this city is a member, has come into prominence. It is proposed by President Treadway to refer to this committee the suggestion of Gov. Draper in his address, that the bonds of the Railroad Holding Co. be made a legal investment for Savings Banks. This seems the only proper committee to which the suggestion should be referred, but there may be a contest as some desire that it shall be referred to the Committee on Railroads. The latter committee should have nothing whatever to do with the investments of Savings Banks.

The hospitalities of the city should be extended by the Mayor and the local yacht clubs to the members of the New York Yacht club when they visit Quincy about February 1 to witness the launching of the palatial auxiliary yacht Aloha at the Fore River shipyard. Only the very best material and construction have been used on this craft which is being built for Commodore Arthur C. James. Her designers were Tams, Lemoine & Crane of New York, with A. Cary Smith, the noted naval architect, as consulting architect. It has been arranged to have moving pictures taken of the Aloha as she goes into the water, which will later be reproduced at the New York home of the club on various occasions during the winter and at the club's stations during the spring and summer. The Aloha will start on a long cruise through the Mediterranean early in March. As soon as the launching takes place the finishing touches will be rushed, and when completed the craft will be one of the finest of its kind in the world.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The uses of adversity are sweet. You can wear out your old clothes. You are not troubled with visitors. Your are not persecuted to stand sponsor. Begging letter writers will let you alone. Impostors know it is useless to try and bleed you. You can practice temperance. You are not foolishly flattered. You save many a debt and many a headache. Finally, if you have a true friend you'll find it out.—Life.

There are people in this tired old world who feel a sickening sense of mental nausea because of the vapid literature being turned out by the "Keep Smiling School" of near thinkers. Devotees of this sort of thing have the saving grace of meaning well, which protects them from hostile molestation at the hands of self-satisfied grouches who want to be let alone. There was once a well-meaning mother who administered a dose of castor oil to one of her children and then gave a similar dose to the others of her flock because, as she explained, she had the bottle out and the children were handy. The trouble of the uplift movement of this kind is that it passes its taffy mottoes among those who haven't the least need or desire for taffy.—Haverhill Gazette.

MONDAY CLUB.

Monday club of Weymouth held its regular meeting last week and it was of more than ordinary interest being the annual reciprocity meeting. Mrs. Jennie B. Worcester, president made a short address of welcome and introduced Mrs. Susan Avery president of the Philergians of Braintree. Mrs. Avery gave a very interesting talk on the Women's Exchange of her club and was followed by Mrs. H. J. Gurney, president of the Women's club of Quincy, who spoke of the work being done by her club along different lines, especially among the young women. Mrs. Jane Mulligan of Natick, member of the State board of federation gave much valuable information in regard to federation work. Mrs. Ella Sheppard Gallagher of South Braintree read an interesting paper on "Real Home Life." A social hour and refreshments followed the above entertainment."

NEW ENGLAND ALLIANCE.

The New England Associate Alliance will meet Thursday, Jan. 27 in the Channing church at Newton. Rev. Adelbert L. Hudson will extend the greeting at the session at 10.30 A. M. and "Personal responsibility" will be the subject for the conference. At the afternoon session at 2 o'clock there will be addresses by Rev Theodore D. Bacon of Salem and Rev. Robert F. Lavers of Fitchburg. Mrs. Alma Faunce Smith of Quincy is president, and Mrs. Alice D. Sandborn of Quincy, secretary.

A. O. U. W. INSTALLATION.

This evening the following officers elect of Norfolk lodge, 178, Ancient Order of United Workmen of Massachusetts, will be installed by District Deputy Harry E. Milliken of Everett lodge, Dorchester.

M. W.—Cornelius O'Connell.
P. M. W.—Artemas W. Dingwell.
Foreman—James M. Cahill.
Overseer—James E. Hoyt.
Recorder—John C. Ward.
Financier—Charles Kolstad.
Treasurer—James H. Flanagan.
Inside Watch—John Golden.
Outside Watch—Beniak Corkum.
Guide—James C. Morrison.
Trustee for three years—Almon C. Brown.

Mr. O'Connell will represent the lodge at the Grand lodge session with A. W. Dingwell as alternate.

The Grand lodge will be represented on this occasion by Grand Guide Clark, Grand Watch Jameson and Joseph M. Kelly of the committee on laws.

QUINCY MEN APPRECIATED.

Councilman Edward J. Sandberg will be one of the special guests of the Framingham Board of Trade Jan. 12, at the opening of the new machinery manufacturing plant in that town. Mr. Sandberg was a member of the Legislature at the time the famous bill against the United Shoe Machinery Co. was before the Legislature for enactment, and was a strenuous supporter of the bill.

It was the enactment of this bill that made the new factory for Framingham possible. It is in appreciation of what Mr. Sandberg did for the bill that he has been invited to be a guest on the occasion of the opening of the new plant. City Solicitor John W. McAnarney, who was one of the counsel for the bill will be the principal speaker.

NORFOLK CLUB.

Senator E. C. Hultman and ex-Mayor John O. Hall were on Saturday elected on the executive committee of the Norfolk Club at the annual meeting at Hotel Bellevue, Boston. The new president is C. H. Pearson of Brookline, and there are nine vice presidents, James T. Stevens of Braintree, W. E. Locke of Norwood, Albion F. Bemis of Brookline, H. A. Crossman of Needham, Samuel R. Moseley of Hyde Park, J. L. Burdakin of Dedham, F. G. Katzmann of Hyde Park, J. H. Soliday of Dedham and Goldman Edwards of Wellesley.

The secretary is George L. Barnes of Weymouth, and the treasurer H. D. Humphrey of Dedham.

The club now has 473 members, a gain of 34 during the year, and has a balance in the treasury of $534.23.

THE MAYOR'S INAUGURAL

Retrenchment More Necessary Says Critic

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

His Honor the Mayor's recommendations of silk dresses and diamond rings for our city sound well, but when other cities are crying out economy as a relief for burdensome taxes, in our present financial condition would not retrenchment rather than expansion sound better?

Surely nature has favored us above all other cities in greater Boston. City country, and seashore combined. We ought to be in matter of finance, business and residential, far in advance of sister cities. If not, why not?

He also recommends largely metering our unmetered water services, thus saving waste and placing the department on a paying basis. I wonder if it will be done?

How about our new City Council, will they vote appropriations to improve or accept streets that can be found only on the map? North Arlington street and Quarry street extension improved last year at large expense, would have needed a pretty strong magnifying glass to find either. The former had not a cent's worth of improved property on it to assess, and the latter but little better. Haven't we plenty improved streets that need all the money we can spare? Perhaps it would be well for our City Council to study our City ordinance relative to acceptance of streets.

I wonder how our new law assessing taxes dating April 1st instead of May 1st will work out? Property last year was assessed to owners of record May 1st to May 1st 1910. If we assess April 1st does not the same property pay tax for April twice? To large estates this is quite an item.

Critic.

Quincy, Jan. 7, 1910.

UP TO THE MAYOR.

Editor Daily Ledger:

Many voters have looked the Ledger over each day to see a letter from Mayor Shea repudiating the interview attributed to him in a Sunday newspaper. Henry L. Kincaide has come out with a letter to the Board of Trade denying the interview published and attributed to him and its now up to our Mayor to deny over his signature the slander upon the city of Quincy which has been attributed to him. Guilty or not guilty is the question, or does silence give consent?

TALK ON SNAKES ILLUSTRATED.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. at 7.30 Alben S. Williams of New York city will give his famous lecture for boys on snakes. Mr. Williams has given this lecture in almost all of the New England Associations and as the boys say "Was the hit of the season." Also at Camps Becket and Durrell last summer. Mr. Williams comes to us with his funny stories, stereopticon and live specimens. Every fellow in Quincy is invited, and it will prove to be one of the big features of the year.

Former Preacher Faces Sentence on Two Charges of Abduction

Ottawa, Kan., Jan. 10.—M. W. Stuckey, the ex-minister of Williamsburg, who had been on trial here charged with abducting Lorena Sutherland, 16 years old, was found guilty by a jury.

Stuckey was found guilty on both charges, those of abducting the girl for immoral purposes and for abducting her for "white slave" purposes.

Stuckey, besides being pastor of a church at Williamsburg, was also editor of a newspaper. Lorena Sutherland was a member of his congregation and worked on his newspaper. They were arrested at Waukegan, Ills., where they were found living together.

Norfolk, Neb., Jan. 10.—F. B. Quible, county treasurer of Cherry county, has refused to turn over the office to Miss Gertrude Jordan, who was elected to be treasurer in last fall's election, on the ground that a woman is not eligible to hold a county office.

The case will be carried to the supreme court to determine whether or not a woman is eligible to hold office under the constitution of the state of Nebraska.

FLAMES WORKED QUICKLY

Two Buildings Destroyed In Central Part of New Hampshire Town

Farmington, N. H., Jan. 10.—The central portion of this town was threatened with destruction by a fire that destroyed two buildings and damaged several others at a loss of $75,000.

The flames spread so rapidly that help was summoned from Rochester, which sent a special engine and a squad of fire fighters by special train.

Two persons nearly lost their lives and were forced to flee from their beds in their night clothes. The cause of the fire is not known.

The flames started in the Wilson building on Main street and destroyed the structure. The flames quickly made their way into the Barker building adjoining. This building was also levelled. Thence the fire jumped across the street to the Thayer building, where the damage was caused chiefly by water.

Woman Puts Bullet Through Her Heart With a Show Revolver

Medford, Mass., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Sarah E. Partridge, aged 52, wife of Eugene C. Partridge, committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart. Her husband, who discovered the body, after hastily summoning neighbors, became prostrated and is now in a hospital.

Both were expert rifle and revolver shots and for a number of years had traveled through this country giving exhibitions of their remarkable shooting. They won hundreds of medals, trophies and prizes.

The revolver that Mrs. Partridge killed herself with was an ugly looking 38 calibre Colt, and is the one which she formerly used when she was champion woman pistol shot of the world.

SEGNA TO SUCCEED SATOLLI AT ROME

Masses For Repose of Soul of Departed Red Pope

Rome, Jan. 10.—Masses for the repose of the soul of Cardinal Satolli were said in the churches throughout Italy Sunday. It is rumored that Cardinal Segna will be the next prefect of studies, succeeding Satolli.

Cardinal Satolli died Saturday after a long illness. The news of the cardinal's death was carried to Pope Pius X, who at once went into his private chapel and prayed for the soul of the departed prince of the church.

Cardinal Satoli was born in July, 1839, and was an intimate friend of Pope Leo XIII, who in his early years was his instructor.

In 1892 he was made the first apostolic delegate to the United States, and his work was largely responsible for his appointment as cardinal in 1895.

Two years after he became cardinal he was designated by Pope Leo XIII as prefect of the propoganda, or chief of the department to the control of which the Catholic episcopacy and clergy of the United States is subjected, and was familiarly known as the red pope.

HATTIE LE BLANC INDICTED

Reindictment Also of Mrs. Kelleher on Charges of Murder

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 10.—The Middlesex grand jury reported to Judge Bond of the superior court the indictment of Hattie Le Blanc, 16 years old, on the charge of murder in the first degree in killing Clarence F. Glover at Waltham Nov. 20, 1909.

The grand jury also reindicted Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville, charged with the murder of her sister, Bridget Knowles, and also of the accused husband, Stephen Kelleher. The indictments make six on the charge of murder by poisoning found against Mrs. Kelleher, the other alleged victims having been her three children, Mary, 2 years old; William, 9 years old, and Katherine, 12 years old, and Mrs. Kelleher's sister, Annie T. Kelleher.

PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

Admiral Kimball Has Served Forty-Four Years In the Navy

Washington, 10.—Rear Admiral William W. Kimball, U. S. N., who two months ago was sent to Nicaragua, where he was to head the naval forces in case of war with that Central American republic, has been placed on the retired list, having reached the retiring age of 62 years. The assignment to Nicaragua was given to Kimball in honor of his career of forty-four years' service.

Admiral Kimball's retirement causes the usual large number of promotions and changes in the service. The most important promotion is that of Captain Milton, who is advanced to flag rank.

Death of General Curtis

New York, Jan. 10.—General Newton M. Curtis, U. S. A., retired, distinguished soldier, postmaster of New York, formerly collector of customs, former special treasury agent, legislator, ex-congressman and president of the agricultural college of this city, was stricken with apoplexy and died almost instantly. He was 75 years old.

POSTAL CARD POLL AT HUB

It Gives Storrow Slight Plurality Over Fitzgerald

Boston, Jan. 10.—The greatest mayoralty campaign that Boston has ever seen is virtually over. Today the various candidates and their managers will devote their time in efforts to keep up the enthusiasm that the vote may come out tomorrow, but so far as has to do with gaining new supporters the battle is past.

The real campaign really closed Saturday night, although ex-Mayor Fitzgerald addressed more than twenty gatherings yesterday, and both he and Mr. Storrow have planned whirlwind tours of the city tonight.

Mayor Hibbard enlivened the Sunday by giving out a statement to the effect that as soon as the campaign was over he proposed to overturn the present Republican city committee and establish a new one. Storrow remained quietly at home Sunday.

Political prophets were heard in every street car yesterday. It was their great day.

Probably the most discussed political prognostication, however, was that furnished by the postcard canvass which was published in The Post. The result of this canvass was as follows:

Nathaniel H. Taylor	1,182
James J. Storrow	46,669
John F. Fitzgerald	41,855
George F. Hibbard	3,549
Total estimate vote	93,255
Plurality for Storrow	4,814

Mr. Fitzgerald attacked these findings in his speeches yesterday and declared them without value. His own canvass, he says, shows that he will have 52,000.

Managers for Storrow were also displeased. They said that their figures made it certain that Storrow would be elected by a much greater plurality than estimated by The Post.

A certain number of postal cards were sent to each ward, not more than one card to any street unless an especially long one.

One of the most remarkable things about the canvass was that the percentage of gains and losses indicated by the first twenty-five cards returned to The Post was kept up until the last card was received.

The final tabulation showed plurality for Storrow, but more than anything else, the whole canvass told of the closeness of the final result. It showed that not until the votes are counted tomorrow, can anyone with assurance declare who Boston's next mayor will be.

This, too, is the attitude of the gamblers. Probably more money has been wagered on this election than on any in years. Thousands of dollars have been wagered during the last few days, and despite much talk of odds, the big bets have been made at even money.

The managers of Storrow and Fitzgerald agree that Hibbard's vote will be small. At Fitzgerald's headquarters, it is reckoned that the mayor will get 8000, while Storrow men say 4000.

QUINCY CHURCHES

Resignation of Rev. A. E. Clattenburg

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOMS.

The vestry of St. Chrysostoms church received last week the resignation of the rector, Rev. A. E. Clattenburg, who has decided to enter upon mission work in North Dakota. The parish will act upon the resignation at the annual meeting to be held this evening. During the pastorate of Rev. Mr. Clattenburg, the church has flourished and has been freed from debt. He desired to be released March 28.

At St. Chrysostoms church Sunday morning, the rector, Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, took for his text: St. John 3:3: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again he shall not see the kingdom of God." He said in part:"Nicodemus asked our Blessed Lord how a man could be born again. The answer was sure and certain. "He must be born of water and of the Spirit," It was not another physical birth to be gone thru when a man was old.

"When human beings are born into the world the soul of the human beings is not born. The soul is created by God for each body that comes into the world. Now the soul of a human being does not work does not control the body in which it resides until it is born. How shall it be born? By being born of water and of the spirit. Then it comes into life, then it is ready to perform its functions, to direct, as it should, all the actions of its bearer.

"Did the Blessed Master have to go thru this? No. His soul was a living active thing before it dwelt in human flesh. Jesus, the Christ, assumed flesh and came among us as a man. His soul was alive to its work among men from the very beginning. When He was twelve years of age did He not say to the Virgin Mary, "Knew ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" Now the Father's business is the soul's business, because every soul is a part of God. When therefore men take up the Master's work, are seen doing it daily, you may feel satisfied that those men have been born again, their souls have been brought into life in Holy Baptism."

Sunday evening the third monthly musical service was held. The choir rendered an inspiring program and were assisted by Mrs. W. H. Spooner, who sang, "O Lord be merciful" and "Sun of my Soul."

CHRIST CHURCH.

All the organizations of Christ church attended in large numbers on Sunday evening the special service of the church. Seats were reserved for each organization, including the wardens and vestry, the Women's Guild, the Reapers Circle, St. Margarets Guild, the Junior Auxiliary the Galahad Brotherhood and the Men's Club. The regular choir was assisted by the vested choir of Emmanuel church of Braintree, so that there were about sixty in all in the choir. The processional and recessional around the church were pleasing parts of the services.

Rev. R. E. Armstrong, the rector, was assisted by Rev. S. S. Drury of St. Stephen's church of Boston, who preached the sermon from the text—"Christ loved the church and gave himself for it." A fine intellectual address on parish work; the duty of the parish to the community; of the parish to the individual, and of the individual to the parish.

QUICNY POINT CHURCH.

Rev. Charles P. Marshall of Westford, who have accepted the call of the Washington Street Congregational church at Quincy Point, has held pastorates at Frankfort and Deering, Maine, and Lawrence and Westford in this state, and during all this time has pursued his theological studies. He was born in Campin, Scotland, but when eight years of age his parents came to America and settled at Dover, N. H. He attended the public schools at Dover, and later learned the trade of an engraver. He reentered school and was graduated from the Bangor Theological Seminary. While a student he held a pastorate at Frankfort and later at Deering, Maine, and Lawrence, Mass. While at Lawrence, in 1903 and 1904 he took special work in Boston University. He resigned at Lawrence to enter the Andover Theological Seminary for further study. After graduating he accepted the call to Westford, which he resigned to come to Quincy. He has a wife and one child, and will live on Farnum street in the house recently occupied by the former pastor.

BETHANY CHURCH.

"Life Sculptors" was the subject of the able Sunday morning discourse of Rev. Dr. Hardy.

A very interesting service was held Sunday evening, when twenty or more in one-minute talks told of their New Year aspirations.

Among the speakers were Theophilus King, Dea. R. D. Chase, John Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Kribs, Carl Hayward, Harry Bates, Alden Blanchard, Mrs. Charles Hayden, Mrs. William Sidelinger, Edward Hayden and others. Several sent inspiring messages.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The Earnest Workers Lend-a-Hand Society will hold its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Page, 107 Winthrop avenue at 4 P. M. Tuesday.

The Wollaston Unitarian Club will hold its monthly meeting at 6.30 o'clock on Tuesday, in the vestry. Speaker: George G. Crocker, chairman Boston Transit Commission; subject: "Sacrifices to rapid transit."

A social whist party will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles T. Baker, 215 Safford street, at 2 P. M. Wednesday. The proceeds will be used to replenish the flower fund.

The mid-week service at noon at King's Chapel, Boston, will be conducted by the Rev. Thomas Van Ness, minister of the Second church.

The members of the Y. P. R. U., are invited to attend a Neighborhood meeting in the Chapel of the Stone Temple in Quincy next Sunday.

Rev. Carl G. Horst yesterday morning preached from the text: "For God saith to the snow, fall thou on the earth," drawing from the beauty, purity and variety of the snowflakes helpful lessons for daily living.

Our former pastor the Rev. Frank Wright Pratt, now field secretary for the Northwestern Provinces, writes: "The work is one of intense interest and anyone who doubts the worth and polity of our message ought to get out into the open and talk to men face to face. It gives one an enthusiasm nothing else can.' My audiences are practically all men—never more than a tenth women. I only wish I could be in several places at once. At this moment I wish I might be in Calgary, Vancoover, Victoria, Edmonton, Lethbridge, Saskatoon, besides being on the road all the time."

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther, preached Sunday morning and evening. Morning text, James 4-3—"Ye ask and ye receive not because," showing that prayer is answered under certain conditions. God has the answer and waits for us to do our part. Mr. Walther emphasizes the fact that if we regard uniquity in our heart and set at naught God's counsel we need not expect Him to hear us when we pray. Neither can we expect to be forgiven if we do not forgive one another, but if we live in accordance with God's will and have faith in Him, He will honor that faith and give us what we ask.

The evening text was taken from II Samuel 9:1; subject, "David and Mephibosheth." The noble character of David was set forth. His love for Jonathan was mentioned and his promise to the house of Saul was fulfilled. After referring to the wisdom of Solomon in asking for an understanding heart, Mr. Walther emphasized very strongly that there is no actual peace to the man who knows not God.

The Sunday school was well attended and the Walther class for men had a very interesting session. All men over twenty-one years of age are urged to join this class.

The meeting of the Young People's society was very interesting and helpful, it being conducted by Robert Pinkham.

The regular cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of H. J. Grass, 52 Ardell St. Montclair, Tuesday evening 7.45. Mr. Seldon H. Nickerson will have charge.

The annual business meeting of the Sunday school will be held in vestry Tuesday evening at 7.45.

The church department will be continued on Tuesday.

—The evidence in the Brokaw separation suit is a disclosure of jealousy, of family bickerings, of suspicion, of espionage and of cocktails. It's a story of high life and of unhappy lives. The picture, as painted on the witness stand, is dark and repellent—and the trail of the dollar is over it all. The mechanic who has a steady job at a fair wage and who occupies a modest and contented home with his family, gets a thousand times more pleasure and satisfaction out of life than the Brokaw outfit does, and is of more use in the world. Money can buy fine houses and fine raiment, expensive equipages, rich gravies, champagne, liveried servants, and other luxuries, but it can't buy happiness.—Hartford Times.

REUNION OF FIREMEN

how these men had made good and had held many positions of trust in the town and city. He also referred to those men who went to war. He spoke of the old time method of fighting fires, where one tub was at the reservoir and other tubs placed in a line to a fire. How these men worked on the brakes for hours without giving up. We had great firemen and we had a great leader known all over the town in the fire departments, in the police and other departments. A man elected as many times as he desired to be. He was glad of an opportunity to pay tribute to Washington M. French, one of the best engineers, one of the best constables, one of the best sheriffs, and one of the best citizens, and he was glad that this organization had remembered that noble hearted man, Washington M. French.

Assessor Adams added his word to what Councilman Whiton had said about the old Vulture. When he was in the fire Marshal's office, Quincy was considered to have one of the best fire departments in the state and this reputation it retained.

Senator Hultman knew little about fighting fires, but he was glad to find out where Peter Williams had learned how to drive to fires the way he did. If his teacher was any faster driver than his pupil he must have been a corker. He was glad to be here and meet some of the old fire fighters.

Ex-Councilman Stone was the last speaker, and he said that he never missed one of these gatherings, and the more he attended the better pleased he was. It was a great pleasure to him to hear about these old days.

Before the party left the table, a rising vote of thanks was extended to William H. North, an old Quincy boy, now with the Oriental Tea Company, for donating the excellent coffee that had been served at the dinner.

Dinner over the party gathered about the hall in little groups and talked over old times until the hour arrived when they must separate, which was with wishes for a Happy New Year for all and that all should meet again at the annual reunion in September.

FUNERAL OF VETERAN.

The funeral of Samuel G. Curtis was held Sunday afternoon from the Water Street Presbyterian church and was largely attended. Paul Revere Post, 88, G. A. R., attending in a body Services were conducted by Rev. James Matheson, pastor of the church and was followed by the burial service of the Grand Army. The interment was at Mt. Wolaston cemetery with three volleys by the firing squad of the Grand Army. There were a number of beautiful floral pieces.

IRISH NATIONAL LEAGUE.

At the semi-annual meeting of Quincy branch, Irish National League, the following officers were elected:

President—Peter McConarty.

Vice President—Richard Gray.

Recording and Financial Secretary—John J. Byron.

Treasurer—Francis Clinton.

Executive Committee—Timothy F. Ford, Michael Burns, Enos Costa, James D. Kelly, Peter McConarty.

Sergeant-at-Arms—George D. Cahill.

The branch at the present time is in a flourishing condition and the members are eagerly awaiting the result of the election in England next week. They have forwarded $100 to the Irish Parliamentary fund, subscribed by the members and friends of the Irish cause.

MILTON

The Milton firemen will hold their ball on Wednesday evening Feb. 2. The committee in charge includes: Captain O. F. Bates of hose 2, M. Joseph Manning, Jr., of the engine company, Frank Splaine of the combination and B. F. Murray of the ladder company.

CAR MEN GET A RAISE

Rapid Transit Company Voluntarily Adds $200,000 to Its Payroll

New York, Jan. 10.—The Brooklyn Rapid Transit company announces a voluntary increase in the pay of the 8000 motormen, conductors and other trainmen employed on its lines. The increase in pay the ensuing year will cost the company about $200,000.

Surface line conductors and motormen will receive from 21 cents to 24 cents an hour this year and a half-cent more for the same grades next year.

On the elevated lines motormen will receive this year 26 to 31 cents an hour; conductors 21 to 23 cents, and guards 18½ cents. Each grade will be advanced a half-cent next year.

FOUR OFFICIALS DROPPED

Result of Investigation Into the Indian School Scandal

Washington, Jan. 10.—Secretary Ballinger of the interior department has suspended from office Superintendent John D. Benedict of the five civilized tribes of Oklahoma and three supervisors as the result of an investigation which has disclosed "a disgraceful condition" affecting the material and moral welfare of the schools.

The investigation which resulted in yesterday's action was entered into because of various reports reaching the department here, charging the officials already suspended, as well as others, with activities which it was thought were improper for government employes.

The suspended supervisors are Calvin Ballard of the Choctaw schools at McAlester, Frederick H. Umholtz of the Chickasaw schools, Ardmore and Walter Falwell of the Creek schools at Muskogee.

BOSTON BAKER MISSING

Four Stores Which He Conducted Are Attached by Creditors

Boston, Jan. 10.—Samuel D. Lockwood, a baker, with four stores located in various parts of Roxbury and Dorchester, has been mysteriously missing since Dec. 27, and several attachments have been placed on his property.

When Lockwood left it is said that he had $3200 in his possession. A score of employes in his various stores say that two weeks' pay is due them.

Down in New Jersey, Lockwood's wife of a little over a year is said to be on the verge of nervous prostration at the news that her husband had disappeared.

ARE NOT PREPARED FOR RESPONSIBILITY

Four Tribes of Indians Refuse to Become Citizens

Washington, Jan. 10.—Fifteen thousand full-blooded members of the Creek, Chicasaw, Choctaw and Cherokee Indian tribes have joined in a petition to congress and the president asking that citizenship be withheld from them on the ground that they are not prepared to exercise such responsibility and that the United States continue as their guardian.

Eaufaula Harjo, head man of the "Four Mothers," as the joint council of the four tribes is called, is here to present the petition he brings with him. He says his fellow-tribesmen are unfitted by education and training to be citizens of the United States.

They are less fitted for such responsibility, he says, than the negroes, who had the advantage of association with white people before they were admitted to citizenship.

DAM TO COST $15,000,000

Mississippi River Will Be Harnessed to Give 200,000 Horse Power

Keokuk, Ia., Jan. 10.—A syndicate of New York and Boston capitalists has undertaken to finance the erection of the second largest dam in the world, to span the Mississippi river at this point.

The estimated cost of the dam is $15,000,000. One thousand men are to begin work on the structure of reinforced concrete 5800 feet long, which will harness the Mississippi. It is to be thirty-seven feet high and will be built seven feet deep into the solid rock of the river bottom.

The power plant to be erected on the Iowa side of the river will generate 200,000 horse power, and the dam will create a lake extending for thirty miles up the Mississippi.

NO GOOD IN WHITE FLOUR

Its Chief Advocates Declared to Be the Machinery Men

Washington, Jan. 10.—"It is just to please the eye. No good can come from making flour white," declares Chemist Wiley of the department of agriculture.

"Several cases are pending against millers now and I do not betray any confidence of the millers when I say that the fight in this case is made chiefly by the men who are selling the machinery. The bakers of the United States were always opposed to bleached flour.

"This wheat flour case will be fought by the best talent in this country, and the most celebrated lawyers. A fund of $100,000, I understand, has been raised to defeat the government's contentions."

Charged With Killing Daughter

Rockport, Me., Jan. 10.—Fred James, who was indicted by the Knox county grand jury at Rockland, on the charge of the murder of his 6-year-old daughter Agnes, at Thomaston, by poisoning, was arrested here by Deputy Sheriff Bucklin.

Young Coaster Killed

Boston, Jan. 10.—Coasting in and about Boston caused one death, that of Vincenzo Spolatti, a 5-year-old Somerville boy, and three serious accidents yesterday. Each accident was caused by heavier sleds overtaking the victims.

UNSATISFACTORY CONFERENCE.

A representative of the Boston paper which two Sundays ago published a libelous article about Quincy, was in town Saturday night for a conference with the committee of the Board of Trade.

At the meeting of the Board of Trade last week the article in question was the subject of considerable discussion. As the outcome of the meeting, a special committee was appointed to wait on the management of the paper, and request a public contradiction. The committee visited the management and had a conference, the outcome of which was that they would investigate and send a man to Quincy to report. The man in question came out Saturday night and met the committee of the Board of Trade and others.

This meeting was a private one, but from what can be learned, was not entirely satisfactory. It was given out that the conference was not completed, and that there would be another meeting between the committee and the newspaper representative.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

Residents of Quincy and surrounding towns will have a chance this week to view at Music hall, in moving pictures, the making of the farfamed Walk-Over shoes.

This film which is about one thousand feet in length, should prove doubly interesting to a Quincy audience for there are many here who have worked, or who are at present working at the bench in shoe factories, but who never had the opportunity to visit other rooms to see the work.

This picture starts at the beginning, bringing the audience right up to the factory doors with the employes.

The scene shifts to the cutting department and here we are when the whistle blows.

The pictures go right along with the shoes showing the faces of individual workers so plainly that many recognized themselves in the pictures when they were shown at Keith's theatre, Boston, a short time ago.

These shoes are carried in Quincy at the Granite Shoe Store, a place that needs no introduction to Quincy buyers.

BRIEFS

It is reported that there is to be a new grocery store in the vicinity of Montclair.

Mrs. Olin A. Holbrook of Holbrook road is ill with a very severe attack of bronchitis.

Mrs. Frank F. Prescott of Bigelow street has been confined to the house a week with rheumatism.

The battleship Vermont, New Jersey and Rhode Island, all built at Quincy, have sailed from New York for Guantanamo.

Mrs. William J. Heath wife of the pastor of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church, is dangerously ill with pneumonia at her home at No. 8 Atherstone street, Dorchester.

Saturday night dancing parties are becoming a regular feature of late. Last Saturday night there were dancing parties in Electa, Alpha, and other halls.

The newly elected officers of the Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church will be publicly installed Wednesday evening, Jan. 19, Roger L. Etes being the installing officer.

An adjourned meeting of the City Council will be held tonight. The meeting is largely to hurry along the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow money in anticipation of taxes. Any business will be in order however.

John P. S. Churchill, the clerk of the Quincy court, was on Saturday reelected secretary and treasurer at the annual meeting of the Association of Clerks of the Police, District and Municipal courts of Massachusetts, Fred C. Ingalls of Boston is president.

By request of the several societies in which Mrs. Flora Adams Darling was prominent, the interment of her body was at Washington, D. C., instead of New Hampshire. Funeral services were held in All Souls church New York, on Saturday. Mrs. Darling was a member and benefactor of Adams chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, of Quincy.

The class of 1910 which will be graduated from the Boston Y. M. C. A., Evening Law school in June, held a banquet at the New American House on Saturday evening. The two Quincy members, William E. Howe, Jr., of Bigelow street, and J. W. Sweeney of South Quincy, were present. George P. Hitchcock, the principal of the Brookline High school is class president.

LEADING TOPIC IN WASHINGTON

Crisis In Ballinger-Pinchot Controversy Is Reached

QUESTION OF PARTY HARMONY

To Be Considered In Deciding Whether Inquiry Shall Be Restricted—Senate Paves the Way For Cannon to Name Investigators, but Speaker Feels That It Would Be Impolitic For Him to Do So

Washington, Jan. 10.—The present week will probably decide whether there will be a prolonged conflict, involving President Taft, within the ranks of the Republican party in congress.

There is no deyning the fact that Pinchot has a large number of personal friends and admirers in both houses of congress who would be inclined to take up his cause if favorable opportunity should present itself, and if they could do so without endangering the peace of the party and their own political welfare.

On the other hand, many are saying that the personal fortunes of Ballinger and Pinchot are of little importance compared to the great question of party harmony, and those who take this view are urging the necessity of preventing any sharp conflict in congress on the lines of difference between the secretary of the interior and the former chief of the forest service.

Whether or not the conservative counsel of this element will prevail will depend upon the course of events in congress during the next few days.

The question will receive its next attention on the floor of the senate. The present situation is this:

The house has adopted the resolution providing for the appointment of its members of the committee by the house itself, rather than by the speaker, as was originally provided. Without awaiting the official notification as to the action of the house, the senate committee on public lands has decided to report the resolution in such a form as to authorize the selection of the house members by the speaker. Unquestionably this action was taken with the intention of complimenting the speaker, and it will be reported to the senate.

Speaker Cannon, it is said, feels that it would be impolitic for him to take advantage of this condition and override the expressed order of a majority of the house, and it is probable, therefore, that the senate will take such action as will steer clear of a controversy with the house. It is now said that the speaker himself would prefer that the house should select the committee. In case this course prevails, the Republican members probably will designate their representatives in caucus, and it is said that in that event the "insurgents" will participate in the caucus proceedings.

No matter how the general situation may shape itself, the controversy between the secretary of the interior and his antagonist is expected to be the principal topic in congressional circles during the week. Officially, the question will not again come up in the house until after the senate has acted.

With the resolution adopted by the senate and a final agreement arrived at as to exact terms between the house and senate, the investigation will proceed. In the meantime every effort will be made to prevent it involving the administration in too general a way.

FIRE LOSS OF $225,000

Guests Flee In a Hurry as Hotel In Vermont Is Destroyed

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 10.—A fire loss of about $225,000 was suffered when the hotel Burlington and the Walker block in the heart of the city were destroyed with their contents.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It was discovered in the bathroom of the hotel Burlington and before the fire department could be summoned it had communicated by an airshaft to the roof, the upper story being a mass of flames almost instantly.

The guests and hotel attaches were warned just in time to escape, but only with the clothes on their backs. The house employes were heavy losers.

Maybray Must Stand Trial

Council Bluffs, Ia., Jan. 10.—Judge McPherson overruled the demurrer to the indictment against J. C. Maybray and his alleged associates charged with wholesale swindling by means of fake races and wrestling matches. The case was set for trial March 10.

Prairie Dogs Are Great Eaters

Washington, Jan. 10.—The prairie dogs in the Pan Handle of Texas eat enough grass in a year to support over 800,000 head of cattle and over 4,000,000 sheep, according to a report of Chief Biologist Merriam, of the department of agriculture.

Woman Burned to Death

Concord, N. H., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Annie E. Churchill, an aged resident of this city, was burned to death at her home, her clothing catching fire from a stove. She was a widow.

EXPOSED TO SMALLPOX

Fifty Persons Who Attended Funeral May Spread the Disease

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 10.—The discovery that hundreds of persons here have been exposed to possible contagion from smallpox has thrown this city into excitement. Most of these people are employed in the factories and mills, and have been engaged in their usual labor since their exposure to the germs.

The first victim found to have the disease was a 7-day-old baby, Ambrose Le Blanc, whose illness was diagnosed as smallpox. Two days after his birth his mother died. At her funeral fifty persons were present. It is believed that they are the ones mose endangered.

The second victim, Miss Mary White, a sister of the dead mother, is suffering from the same disease as the baby. She was present at the funeral.

JAIL WITH GLASS ROOF

Designer Declares That Sunshine Will Kill Germs of Crime

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Chicago is to have a new city jail that will be a model for all jails, according to plans of Assistant Chief of Police Schuettler, who has planned and built eleven police stations in Chicago.

Instead of being in the damp and unsanitary basement, all cells, 150 in number, will be on the top floor of the building. Instead of the regulation dark roof Schuettler has provided a heavy glass roof, so that every cell constantly will be bathed in sunlight, making the cells cheerful and sanitary instead of breeding places for disease.

"Sunshine kills crime germs," declares the chief.

LEOPARD ATTACKS WOMAN TRAINER

Assistant Saves Her by Tying Beast's Tail to Cage

New York, Jan. 10.—The sharp teeth and claws of Clayton, a trained leopard, nearly cost the life of Mrs. Pauline Russelle, his trainer, but the length and strength of his tail saved her.

Clayton was ugly and would not perform. Mrs. Russelle prodded him with an iron bar and called to her assistant for aid. The instant of turning her head to call, the leopard leaped. He bore his mistress to the ground and stood over her growling and lashing his tail.

It was then the quick-witted assistant, reaching into the cage, grabbed Clayton's tail, took a double hitch around the bars of the cage with it, and rescued Mrs. Russelle. The woman was badly torn.

SCRAPES AT CUT RATES

Operations of Fake Board of Health Man Stopped by Police

New York, Jan. 10.—Harry Brown was arrested, charged with being a fake board of health inspector. Brown, the police say, has been industriously at work for weeks "vaccinating" the Long Island City folks.

He had a taking way about him, the police assert, and when he knocked at a front door and put on a professional air he generally succeeded in "vaccinating" everybody in the family.

Brown's regular charge was 50 cents, but the police say he would scrape the arms of the whole family for that price rather than pass on to the next house empty handed.

What it was he put into persons' arms, or whether it was anything at all, cannot be told, the police say, without a bacteriological examination.

PUT UP STRONG FIGHT

Woman Keeps Four Deputy Sheriffs Busy When They Take Her to Jail

East Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 10.—Mrs. Ida M. Fletcher, convicted of being disorderly, gave the four deputy sheriffs of this town a tussle such as they have not had for years when the train pulled along that was to take her to Worcester, where she was to start her jail sentence.

From the town lockup where she had been confined, she went peacefully to the station, but when the train arrived she sat upon the station floor and refused to move farther.

The train, however, would not wait, so the sheriffs picked the belligerent up, and after a battle finally landed her in the baggage car, where the doors were shut.

SUGAR TRUST CASE PAPERS

Stolen From Office of United States District Attorney Wise

ONE IS FROM WICKERSHAM

Investigator Reilly of Interstate Commerce Commission Is Locked Up—Publication In Magazine Caused Return of Indictment—Business Manager and Editor Testify Before Grand Jury as to Price They Paid

New York, Jan. 10.—Thomas P. Reilly, a special investigator for the interstate commerce commission, was arrested here charged with the theft of a letter from George B. Wickersham, United States attorney general, to Henry A. Wise, United States district attorney, from Mr. Wise's office in the New York federal building.

The letter subsequently appeared in a magazine and its having appeared in print had resulted in the return of an indictment by the federal grand jury. Other indictments are expected.

In addition to the Wickersham letter there were also abstracted from the office of the district attorney's office two letters from C. B. Heike, secretary of the American Sugar Refining company, to John E. Parsons, counsel for the company, and the minutes of the directors of the company for the meeting at the house of the late Theodore Havemeyer.

A copy of the Wickersham letter had been taken for publication. Other letters had also been copied, for the originals were recovered in the office file, but the minutes of the sugar company's directorate have apparently disappeared.

Reilly lives in Nutley, N. J. He was arrested as he stepped from a ferryboat upon New York soil.

Reilly was a protege of Henry L. Stimson, now special counsel for the government in its prosecution of the sugar cases. It was on information furnished by Reilly to Stimson that the government prosecuted with success several railroad and transit companies for giving rebates on sugar shipments in violation of the Hepburn law. The railroads were all heavily fined.

George von Utassey, business manager of the magazine, and Perrigon Maxwelll, managing editor, have both testified before the grand jury as to the price they paid, but this information has not yet been made public.

Attorney General Wickerham's letter, which was dated June 27, 1909, as it appeared in the magazine, follows:

"My Dear Wise: Senator Root has sent the proof of a petition signed by Bowers, Milburn & Guthrie in support of their contention that the statute of limitations has run in favor of Messrs. Parsons, Kissel and Harned. If the only overt acts done to carry out the objects of the unlawful conspiracy were those referred to in the brief, I should think they were insufficient to save the bar of the statute.

"A strong effort will be made tomorrow to persuade the president to interfere in some way to prevent the indictments, but aside from that no indictments should be returned against any one if there is no reasonable grounds to believe they can be sustained—if, for instance, the offenses charged are clearly barred by the statute. I need hardly say this to you.

"What I want to impress upon you is that if you have any reasonable doubt in the matter you either have the grand jury ask the court for instruction, or, if that is not feasible, that you advise the department of the specific charges on which you rely to save the statute before actually having the indictments brought in. You may telephone either to me or to Mr. Ellis, if I should be out of the department when you call, on this point."

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

NEW YORK FASHIONS.

THE SLENDER SILHOUETTE STILL THE MODE: FRILLED FRONT WAISTS: RUSSIAN COATS: FURS AND FUR TRIMMED FROCKS.

The slender silhouette is still maintained but most artistic draperies are seen while the natural curves at the waist are beginning to appear again on the fashionable figure after being suppressed for so long. The one piece frock reigns supreme for all elaborate occasions but with tailor gowns a good many pretty blouses of silk, chiffon cloth, net or flannel are worn.

THE NEW SILK WAISTS.

Silk shirt waists have not been used very much for the last year or two but this winter the designers have brought out some lovely models. Silk cashmere, silk crepes of various kinds, chiffon cloth or dyed nets are the most employed for the purpose. The newest waists have a pleated frill of lace, net or the material running down the side front and usually falling to a point to a little below the bust though some of these frills run quite down to the waist line. The majority of the new blouses are relieved by white at the neck. The fancy for the one-tone waist is out of date, which is a great relief as it was frightfully unbecoming.

BELTED COATS.

The very latest thing at present is the Russian blouse coat and it is whispered that when spring comes the Russian effect will carry everything before it. The belt is the prominent feature on these coats and it is the belt that is being used in a most effective manner on some of the very newest and smartest garments. A handsome suit of brown cloth has a coat reaching nearly to the knees. The body part is bloused by a wide girdle effect of velvet. Another novel suit has a Russian jacket of brown corduroy and a skirt of brown and black plaid woolen.

FUR COATS ECONOMICAL.

One of the most economical garments that the average woman can purchase is a good pony skin or caracul coat. They are very reasonable in price this season, they always look stylish and they can be worn for several years. Coats of dyed muskrat are lovely too, but rather more expensive than the first mentioned furs.

Neck pieces are all made up with animal heads and tails. Some especially handsome sets of white fox made in single skin effects with head on one end and tail on the other, are on view at the annual January sale at the well known fur house of C. C. Shayne & Co. More as the result of a long established precedent than from any other cause this reliable firm is now making extensive reductions in all their furs.

FUR TRIMMED DRESSES.

Fur trimmed costumes with neck pieces, muff and hat or toque to match are the very height of fashion. Often the separate neck-piece is done away with and a big fur collar is placed on the coat of the costume. Cuffs of the fur are added and sometimes also there is a band of fur edging the skirt. The muff and hat are of the same sort of fur.

THE TURBAN COIFFURE.

A great change has taken place in the fashionable coiffure. The hair is now flattened a good deal at the sides and dressed rather low in the front. The lattest mode is the turban effect in which the hair, usually supplemented by a long switch, is coiled flatly around the head leaving the crown of the head exposed. A wide braid very loosely plaited is often substituted for the coil of hair but this, to be really modish, must be spread out considerably and caught down here and there by the big shell pins with square heads that are now so stylish.

How the Trick Was Done

Showing the Ingenuity of an Able Emissary.

By HELEN INGLEHART.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"Mme. Chapellier?"

"Yes."

"His excellency has directed me to admit you as soon as you called."

The attendant led the way to the private office of the minister of foreign affairs, opened the door and announced:

"Mme. Chapellier!"

"The government," said the minister, "appreciating your past services, is desirous of adding to the amounts already paid you another 50,000 francs."

"And I doubt not the government expects me to add to my past services a corresponding amount."

"Can you leave for London tonight?"

"I can go anywhere at any time."

"Very well. I will explain."

The minister cast a look about the room, habitual with him before entering upon a matter involving secrecy, leaned forward in his chair and spoke in a low tone.

"The British government has made a treaty with the ambassador of the sublime porte at London by which the sultan grants valuable concessions to Great Britain. We have been negotiating with the sultan's ambassador here in Paris for these same privileges, but we are too late.

"Sir Bradford Chichester, one of the younger members of the British diplomatic corps, has engaged passage by sea for Constantinople in a ship sailing on the 14th. He will carry with him the British-Turkish treaty for signature at the Turkish foreign office. It is our purpose to delay him either at starting or on the way."

Mme. Chapellier reached London the next morning and reported in person to Baron la Brun, the French minister.

"In order to assist you," he said, "I give a dinner this evening at which Sir Bradford Chichester will be present. Have you costumes?"

"Everything except appropriate jewels. I shall personate a wealthy American widow—Mrs. Worthington Wood."

"Where shall I send them?"

"No. — Portman square."

"Very well. I shall expect you at 8."

At the dinner given at the French embassy Mrs. Worthington Wood, who, though born of French parents, had lived the first fifteen years of her life in America, was taken in to dinner by Sir Bradford Chichester. She knew that his family, though ancient, were not rich and that he would gladly take a wealthy wife. She manifested so much interest in seeing his country seat, the Dunes, on the Irish channel and some 200 miles from London, that he, thinking to benefit in the matter of a courtship—should he deem such desirable—arranged a house party to go there to remain till the 13th, when he must return to the city to be ready to sail on the 14th. Of course Mrs. Wood was invited.

The next day a small number of guests assembled at the Dunes. It was winter, but the house was cheerfully lighted and logs blazed on every hearth. Sir Bradford devoted himself to the young widow. There are women who possess the knack of carrying an impressible man quickly off his feet. Such was Mrs. Worthington Wood. She administered, so to speak, a love potion. There was in it a reason—to cause her victim to feel that he could never aspire to possess her. Eyes that shot a spark to kindle passion, feigned innocence to excite reverence.

Sir Bradford, Mrs. Wood and several others of the house party had gone up from London on the same train and in the same compartment. Mrs. Wood noticed that her host carried a leather hand bag that he never lost sight of. If he left the train for a moment at a station he took the bag with him; if he went into the smoking compartment to enjoy a cigar the hand bag went with him.

Mrs. Wood also noticed that when he entered the family equipage to be driven to his home, while he gave up his rugs, umbrella and other such belongings to the servants, he held on to the satchel. She deemed it necessary to her plans to know where the hand bag would be deposited. But as soon as the host entered the house, leaving his guests to be shown to their rooms by the housekeeper, he disappeared. When Mrs. Wood next saw him the satchel was not with him.

"I have brought with me," she said to him, "a few of my finest jewels, not daring to leave them in London. Have you a safe in the house?"

"Certainly," he said. "One moment. I will call the housekeeper. The safe is in my bedroom. She will go with us."

"Us? Is it necessary for you to go?"

"I never allow my safe to be opened except by myself."

"On second thought, I will keep my valuables locked in my trunk."

There was a faint reproach in the glance she gave him and her tone.

"Pardon me," he said. "I would trust you, but my housekeeper"—

"You would not trust?"

"Certainly, I would trust you both, but there is property in that safe that doesn't belong to me. Would I be justified in permitting any one, however trustworthy, to go in there?"

His tone was growing more decided.

Interests of state were asserting themselves.

"You would be a fool to do so. Here is my box. I intrust it to your care."

A temptation came to him not to be outdone in a matter of confidence, but he resisted it. Taking the box, in which there were only a few gems for informal occasions, he went away and placed it in his safe.

The next evening at dinner the young widow was entrancing. She seemed to be in a light, happy mood. She told the story of how the host had refused to permit her to visit his safe without his being present and set all the guests laughing by its humorous telling. The host laughed with the rest, and had he not been coming under a spell that would have ended the matter. As it was he winced. There was underneath Mrs. Wood's humor a faint suspicion of ridicule. He tried to excuse himself, but only got tangled in his own excuses.

"Don't you think," said the lady to the others, "that Sir Bradford owes me some reparation?"

All banteringly agreed that he did.

"Well, this is the last night of our visit here. Let him intrust me with the key of his safe till tomorrow morning."

All declared that such an act would not necessarily be showing any confidence whatever. But the widow insisted that it would satisfy her, and she smilingly held out her hand for the key.

The thought flashed through Sir Bradford's head that the safe, being in his own room, would be under his control through the night. There was a pretty woman smiling at him, daring him—a woman with whom he was fascinated and whom he thought it advantageous to marry. Nevertheless he did not consent. Then suddenly there came a flash from the woman's eyes, a haughty look as if she deemed such a denial of confidence insulting. Sir Bradford put his hand in his pocket and tossed the key on the table before her.

Amid a burst of laughter she seized it and placed it in her corsage.

The diplomat had no sooner yielded to an impulse than he regretted his act. A man under a woman's spell is liable to rush from one extreme to another. One moment he trusts her implicitly; the next he fears that he has fallen into the toils of a devil. At any rate, such was the fear of Sir Bradford. Never for a moment during the evening did he leave the side of the woman who possessed the key of his safe—the safe where was deposited that which if it passed into the possession of another would ruin him. If he turned away from her for a moment it was that she should not see the expression on his face when he cursed himself for a fool.

The widow rallied him continually. "Aren't you going to give me one moment alone?" "Be comforted! I am not in the habit of visiting any but my own room when I visit." "Will you sleep with a revolver under your pillow tonight?' These were some of the banterings she gave him, much to the amusement of the guests. At midnight, when the party broke up, she had made no move. She rose with the others and went up to her room.

The moment Sir Bradford heard her door close he went up to his own apartment. With his eyes fixed on his safe he gave himself up to tumultuous musing. It contained his possible ruin, and the key was in the possession of a woman he had known but a few days.

"Pooh, pooh! What an ass! She only did it to bedevil me. Nonsense! I have a revolver under my pillow, and if any one should come in here tonight— More nonsense! Who's to come?" Thus he tried to dismiss the matter from his mind. But, oh, if he only had the key!

He went to bed and tried to sleep. Slumber would not come. Fancying he heard a movement in his room, he arose and struck a light. He was ashamed of himself for doing so, but left it burning. This made him feel a trifle more comfortable, and toward morning he went to sleep.

He was awakened by his valet bringing hot water. After a glance at the safe, which showed no evidence of having been tampered with, he arose, dressed and went down to breakfast. A maid approached him and said:

"I took the hot water to Mrs. Wood, room 6. She didn't answer when I knocked, and I went in. She isn't there."

Sir Bradford blanched. Like lightning the thought flashed through his brain that the key of his safe had gone with her. Then he saw that he was ruined. He was to sail that afternoon for Constantinople. The only way to get the treaty was to break into his safe. But it was a new and perfect one, put in since he had entered the diplomatic service. Only in London could men be found of sufficient skill to do the work, and London was 200 miles away. He put his hand to his head, staggered up to his room and locked himself in.

* * * * * * *

Twenty-four hours later the minister of foreign affairs in Paris received the card of Mme. Chapellier. He directed that she be at once admitted.

"Well?" he said.

"I left the diplomat at his home far from London with the treaty locked in his safe. There is the key."

"And how much time do you think we will gain?"

She handed him an item cut from a newspaper stating that Sir Bradford Chichester had sent to London for men to open his safe; that they had failed and others more skillful had gone up. He had offered the latter £1,000 if they would do the job in three hours."

"That will do," said the minister. "Our treaty is on the way."

He drew her a check for 50,000 francs.

All churches of the city are invited to contribute to the Church department of the Monday Daily Ledger.

Ladies' night of the Brotherhood of the First Presbyterian church will be observed this evening.

Isaac M. Holt was able to go to Boston on Saturday, the first time for several weeks.

Miss M. Franze has returned from a visit of two weeks with friends in Barre, Vt.

Ralph M. Marden has resigned from the reportorial staff of the Daily Ledger.

Mr. James Dodds and Alden A. Sherwin both of West Townsend, were week end guests of Quincy friends.

The Old Colony Association of Universalist churches will meet with the East Weymouth parish on Wednesday, Jan. 19.

At the service of the Christian Science church at Braintree, Sunday, the additional seating accommodations were none too many.

Mrs. William B. Rice of Adams street is receiving the condolences of friends, her brother, Levi O. Cunningham of Marlboro, passing away on Jan. 9.

Phillips Hardy, a senior at the Quincy High school, has accepted a position as editor of the High school department which appears every Thursday in the Daily Ledger.

Ralph Merritt, having recently passed the civil service examination, has accepted a position in Milbury, Vermont, leaving for that place last week.

Mayor Shea has accepted an invitation from Brockton council, Knights of Columbus, to be present at a Mayor's night meeting of the Council Jan. 17. Mayors from several cities will attend.

There was quite a crowd of skaters on Butler's pond all day Sunday. There were also skaters on the meadows on Newport avenue, on Hancock street near Beale street, and on the meadows near the Quincy freight depot.

Benjamin Hobart, an old and respected resident of Penns hill enjoyed his eightieth anniversary on Sunday, entertaining his children, Mrs. James L. Bates, Miss Georgie Hobart and Frank W. Hobart. Neighbors and friends called during the day and offered their congratulations.

Among the pleasant features of the W. R. C. installation Thursday evening were several presentations: Mrs. Dorcas Lyman, installing officer of W. R.C. 103 receiving a silver cream ladle from the incoming officers; Mrs. Adelaide McGrath, a cut glass dish; Mrs. Agnes Fletcher, the retiring president an elegant diamond ring, a silver cold meat fork and a cut glass berry dish.

REGISTRY STATISTICS

A Record Year Reported in Norfolk County

Real estate was active in Norfolk county during 1909, showing an increase of nearly ten per cent over 1908. John H. Burdakin, the register of deeds reports 15, 317 deeds and other papers filed and recorded for the year 1909, against 13,993 for the year 1908. In each month save November the record of 1908 was beaten by 1909. It would be interesting to know just what percentage of the business was from the city of Quincy. Here is the figures for the two years:

Month	1909	1908
January	1211	1015
February	928	850
March	1087	1074
April	1518	1294
May	1352	234
June	1395	1280
July	1401	1187
August	1176	1044
September	1365	1251
October	1467	1447
November	1242	1267
December	1175	1050
Totals	15,317	13,993

In addition to the above business there were received, recorded and filed 570 attachments.

BRIEFS

Miss Bessie J. Cannon of Barre is a guest of Quincy friends.

A letter of public interest on a timely topic has been received from G. B. Bates, and will appear in the Daily Ledger tomorrow.

The annual supper and meeting of the Wollaston Congregational church will be held in the vestry on Wednesday evening.

The Nearer and Farther Lights society holds its next meeting with Miss Florence Barbour of Prospect avenue on Tuesday evening.

Selden H. Nickerson will have charge of the cottage prayer meeting to be held at the home of H. J. Grass, Ardell street, Montclair, on Tuesday evening.

A well attended sleighing party was enjoyed by many of the young people of West Quincy on Saturday night. It was originally planned for Tuesday evening but the intense cold made it impossible. The young people did not care to run the risk of being frozen and it was postponed. The weather on Saturday was ideal, but unfortunately for the poor horses the recent rain had cleared some parts of the road.

DECEMBER WAS COLD.

L. A. Wells of the Blue Hills observatory reviews the December weather as follows:

Colder weather than usual prevailed during December, with an abundance of sunshine and the average precipitation. The mean temperature of the month was 25.7 degrees which is 3.5 degrees below the normal and the lowest for December since 1906. The highest temperature reached was 50 degrees on the 6th and the minimum of the month was one below zero on the 31st.

More than one-half of the precipitation was in the form of snow, 20 inches falling, 18 inches coming during the storm of the 25th-26th. The total snowfall was nine inches more than the average amount and the greatest in December since 1904. 1.66 inches of rain fell during the month, the most in one day being 1.29 inches on the 14th.

There was about the usual amount of relative humidity and there was less cloudiness than is customary. The total amount of sunshine was 15 per cent. greater than the average. There was more than the normal amount of wind, the mean velocity being the highest for December since 1903. The maximum velocity was 75 miles per hour from the northeast on the 26th. The prevailing wind direction was west and there was a marked absence of south and east winds.

The year 1909 was notable for its warm winter, high wind velocities throughout the year and an excess of sunshine during most of the months. The mean temperature for the year was 47.6 degrees, 0.8 degrees warmer than the normal and the highest since 1906. The total precipitation of the year was 43.29 inches which is 3.71 inches less than the average amount. This, however, is much more than fell in 1908 when only 37.28 inches were recorded. 1909 was the windiest year since 1897, January, September and October being the only months with mean velocities below normal, and the only months in which the maximum velocity was under 50 miles per hour were June and September.

A CHALLENGE.

The Washington Social Club stands ready to hear from all clubs, wishing to play cribbage, fortyfive or pool. They have public cribbage parties for men only every Tuesday evening at 8. Whist parties on Friday evenings at 8. For matches address W. C. Caldwell, 114 Woodward avenue, Quincy.

BASKET BALL.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. basket ball five were not at home on Saturday evening at the Cunningham gymnasium at Milton, and were defeated by the Gym five 38 to 11. In the Quincy team were Bates, Mundie, Tupper Morris and McKenzie. The Milton team included Bent or Craig, Archer, Powell, Forbes and Hathaway. Goals from floor were made as follows: Powell 10, Archer 3, Tupper 3. Craig 3. Bent, Forbes, Mundie, McKenzie., Goals from fouls. Powell 2, Tupper. Referee, Eaton. Scorer, Esau. Timer Jones. Time 20 m halves.

At Rockland the Milton High five defeated Rockland High 18 to 16.

The Thayer Academy five went to Wellesley and won from the Rock Ridge five 30 to 9. Alden of Thayer scored 7 goals from the floor.

CATBOAT CONFERENCE.

The Massachusetts Catboat Association will send Commodore H. H. Robbins and ex-Commodore F. F. Crane of Quincy to the Atlantic catboat conference to be held on Saturday, Jan. 15, at Providence, R. I., at the clubhouse of the Rhode Island Yacht club.

Delegates have been invited to attend this conference from Barnegat bay, Massachusetts bay, Great South bay and Buzzards bay. Among the invited guests will be Thomas Fleming Day, who is especially interested in the old-style catboat racing.

The purpose of the conference says the Globe, is to adopt regular rules governing future races for the perpetual challenge cup. The rules, it is expected, will cover completely all details of the races, from the elimination trials to the measurement of the contestants, including time allowances, crews and all restrictions.

It is hoped also that at this conference steps will be taken toward the formation of a permanent organization for the interbay conference, whereby all catboat racing on the Atlantic coast will be under one set of rules.

Last season the local association did not send a team to the interbay match at Barnegat bay, but it is hoped that the appointing of two delegates to the meeting at Providence is the first step toward a team for 1910 races.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Reading High five will be here tomorrow for a basket ball game with Quincy High.

Bowling tomorrow night in the Norfolk Downs league.

CENSUS APPLICANTS.

Now Supervisor Gettemy of the National census says he has 3,000 applicants for 2,000 places in Massachusetts, and Quincy is not one of the places where there is a scarcity of candidates.

All persons wishing to serve as enumerators are asked to send in their application in writing before Jan. 25. All applicants will be required to submit to a simple test calculated to determine their ability. The tests will be held simultaneously on Saturday, Feb. 5, at about 100 places in different parts of the state. For Boston and vicinity they will probably be held at the federal building, the state house and in several schoolhouses.

TODAY'S COURT.

Arthur McCormick was fined $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

—To give young people of the crowded city districts opportunities for rational employment of their leisure time, keeping them off the streets and out of bad company, and under unlifting influences is a thing worth while. It is true that where no safe outlet for the surplus energy of young people is available some of them are sure to drift into downward careers through force of circumstances. Viewed merely from the standpoint of dollars and cents, it is better for the community to spend money—not extravagantly—in ways that will give young people a chance to keep out of mischief than to ignore the necessities of their natures at the expense o fhaving to deal with many of them eventually as recruits of the army of Ishmael.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

MANY TOURNEYS OPEN TO BOWLERS

Two National and One Big Western Event to Start Shortly.

PLANS FOR DETROIT GAMES.

American Bowling Congress to Open In City of the Straits Feb. 26—Western Contest to Begin in Frisco March 26—National In Baltimore April 9 to 30

If the efforts of the promoters do not fail it surely looks as if the bowling game will experience its greatest season. Three national tournaments are to be held, and several interstate and intercity meets have been arranged, besides the many local tourneys on the program. There is also considerable talk of forming a professional league. The first big event on the calendar is the tenth annual blowout of the American Bowling congress tournament, to be held in Wayne Gardens, Detroit, Feb. 26 to March 15, inclusive. New high marks for entries, prize money and attendance are expected.

There will be fourteen tournament alleys, with six additional alleys, in every respect the same, laid upon the ground floor of the Gardens for practice.

Although not the intention of the operating company to permit women to roll upon the tournament alleys, it has been suggested that they roll upon the alleys downstairs, and a tournament for them may be put on.

The Western Bowling congress tournament will be held in San Francisco, March 26 to April 2.

The bowling tournaments on the Pacific coast hereafter are to be on a different and stronger basis than ever before. After the recent fiasco at Seattle, in which the greater part of the prize money was not forthcoming after it had been won, President Harry Leap proposed that the congress conduct the tournament itself hereafter. It was submitted to the directors and adopted unanimously.

Under the new method the whole of the associations will conduct them, and the prizes will be guaranteed in cash.

Added interest has been given to the fourth annual tenpin tournament of the National Bowling association, which will be held in Baltimore April 9 to April 30, by the announcement that the committee in charge of arrangements has extended an invitation to President Taft to attend the opening ceremonies and address the bowling enthusiasts, who will assemble in Baltimore from all over the United States and Canada.

JIMMY SMITH, CHAMPION BOWLER OF GREATER NEW YORK.

Professional bowling is to be given a trial by New York, provided plans now being worked out by P. J. Riddell are adopted. The class is to be limited to some five individual bowlers of the class of Alex Dunbar, Jimmy Smith and Johnny Voorheis, and if the scheme is worked out these men, together with two others, will be absolutely barred from league competition as well as the big national, state and city meets.

Riddell's suggestion is to form a five man team of the recognized cracks of Greater New York and have them bowl exhibition games six nights in a week. The men would be supported by an association of some fifty alley keepers, who would pay from $3 to $5 a week, making a gross amount of $150 to $250 a week. This money would be divided among the "pros," each man getting at least $30 a week.

Their opponents would be chosen from the stars of the various alleys, and Riddell figures that there would be keen competition.

Other cities are urged by Riddell to adopt a similar system, picking out five cracks, and then at the end of the year the teams representing the two big towns could meet on some neutral alleys for the professional championship.

WHEN TO OWN UP.

An Old Theory That Should Be Exploded.

A teacher said to me the other day: "You must never own up that you are wrong. If you do the children will lose faith in you. If I make a mistake I bluff it out," says Ruth Cameron in one of her talks.

Many fathers and mothers have the same theory. But I think both in the schoolroom and around the fireside it is totally wrong.

You are far more apt to lose a child's faith by bluffing a thing out than by honestly owning up when you make an error either in judgment or in the statement of fact.

By honestly owning up you admit to your child that you are human and therefore liable to mistakes, but you show your injustice of intention. By bluffing you not only risk his faith in your infallibility, but also in your justice.

I was visiting at a house the other day whose master is noted for his square dealings with his fellow men and who, unlike many men, carries his love of the square deal into his own home.

I had a very good illustration of this fact.

At the breakfast table one day he had rather sternly reproved his son for being late. At dinner that night he called the boy to him and said without any of the patronage of a superior, but with a man to man manner that boys so love to have their father use to them:

"Phillip, I made a mistake this morning. Your mother says that it was something for which you were not at all to blame and which you could not very well explain to me this morning that made you late. I reproved you in front of our guests, and I want to ask your pardon in the same way. Please excuse me, son."

I had always admired the man, but never so much as at that moment.

I recently had the pleasure of being at the same little inn where Woods Hutchinson, the well known physician and writer, spends his summers. He has a son nine or ten years old, who is very old for his age. At the table one day Dr. Hutchinson reproved him for taking too large mouthfuls of steak and eating too fast.

"Father," said the youngster, who, by the way, always reads everything his father writes—"father, in your last book you said that meat was so digestible that if a person with average digestion should cut his meat in inch pieces and swallow it whole it would not hurt him. Now, I think I have an average digestion, and I am cutting this much smaller than that, and I'm not swallowing it whole, so I think I'll get along all right."

It would have been hard to find a chance to "bluff it out" in the face of that quotation, but if Dr. Hutchinson had been like some parents I know he might have said, "That will do; I don't want to hear any more about it," or something similar.

But I am happy to say that he is enough unlike some parents to acknowledge the justice of his son's remark.

Nothing rankles in a child's mind more than a sense of injustice.

It may be hard for some fathers and mothers to own to their children that they are always right, but I think they will be apt to find that justice pays in the end.

Minerva's Maxims.

We seldom think, said Goethe, how much we owe our first love.

Tom Moore compared love to a potato "because it shoots from the eyes."

Devotion is the last of our loves. Through it the soul, thinking that it aspires only to felicity in another life, unconsciously seeks to procure some fresh sweetness in this.

"I would not be a woman," said Montaigne, "for then I could not love her." Lady Montaigne said, "The only objection I have to being a man is that I should have to marry a woman."

Marry into a different blood and temperament from your own.

Every woman needs annually two chastisements—the bad woman in order to make her good and the good one in order to keep her good.

"Marriage is a burden so heavy," said Mme. de Stael, "that it requires two to carry it and sometimes three."

A woman may be as true as steel, but, then, you know, some steel is too highly tempered.

The whisper of a beautiful woman can be heard farther than the loudest call of duty.

Before marriage it takes a woman a long time to make up her mind. After marriage she can make it up more quickly than her husband.

Mrs. Noel Helps Conservation.

The conservation schemes set on foot by former President Roosevelt have found strong supporters among women in all parts of the country, and the wives of the governors of the southern states have made themselves particularly active in this connection. Mrs. Noel, wife of the governor of Mississippi, has formed several women's organizations, and almost the entire state has been divided into sections, in each one of which is a body of women pledged to some particular effort aiming at the conservation of the national resources. Above all else, however, Mrs. Noel has interested herself in the conservation of the human race, and she has devoted untold labor to the establishment of classes for the teaching of the elementary principles involved in caring for children and ill persons. Her organization of trained nurses is growing fast and already has achieved notable results.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

PUBLISHED IN THE CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Vol. 24 No. 9 QUINCY, MASS., TUESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 11, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

MUNICIPAL FINANCE SUBJECT OF DISCUSSION

Amount of Temporary Loans Increasing Rapidly Year by Year.

Amount Outstanding Largely in Excess Unpaid Taxes of 1909.

If Monday night's meeting of the City Council is a sample of what is to follow this year, every meeting of the Council will be a strenuous one. The debate was on financial matters. That is on the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow money in anticipation of taxes. The discussion over this order started in the committee room. The Finance Committee met at 7 o'clock to consider the order, and at 7.35 the hour for the council to be called to order it was still in session. A roll call showed but 11 members present and a recess was taken until 7.50. Things went swimmingly along until the report of the committee on the order mentioned above was made, and then a hot debate started. President Hobbs took the floor to enter the debate and at various times during the next two hours Councilman Whiton, Cherrington and Flynn were in the chair and the honor of presiding temporarily had been declined by Councilmen Mair, Sanberg, and Cantfill.

Councilman McDevitt who was not present on inauguration day was sworn in by the City Clerk.

The absent members were Councilmen Loud, Nowland and Woodward.

APPOINTMENTS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Duncan J. McLennan, William W. Cushing, Murdock Laumont, Frank S. Patch, Charles W. Nightingale and Francis M. Curtis as weighers of coal. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing J. J. Connelley and Arthur B. Hultman as constables. Confirmed.

A communication was received from the Mayor forwarding a notice from the Harbor and Land Commissioners of a hearing Jan. 12, on the petition to build a pile wharf at Squantum. Referred to Executive.

NEWSBOYS ORDINANCE.

The Mayor forwarded a communication from the Chief of Police relative to an ordinance governing the sale of newspapers by boys. Laid on the table until later when Councilman Gunn offered an order establishing an ordinance governing the sale of newspapers. Read and referred to the Committee on Ordinances.

The new ordinance provides that no hawker or peddler shall expose or sell newspapers without having a license issued from the Chief of Police; that no license shall be issued to a minor except on written application from parents or guardian; no license shall be issued to a minor under twelve years of age and that every minor under the age of fifteen years so licensed shall annually attend some day school for at least 20 weeks, and that he shall furnish a certificate from the superintendent of schools that he has complied with this requirement; that all persons licensed shall wear a badge issued by the Chief of Police with the word "Licensed" and the number in a conspicuous place, for which a deposit of fifty cents shall be made which will be returned when the same is surrendered; that persons so licensed shall not congregate together or make any unnecessary noise, cry their newspapers in a loud voice, or in any way disturb the peace or comfort of the inhabitants, and that they shall not cry their newspapers on Sundays; that the license may be revoked for cause at any time by the Chief of Police with the approval of the Mayor.

HOUGHS NECK CARS.

Councilman Whiton presented a petition from Daniel J. Maloney and William P. Taylor and others of Houghs Neck setting forth that the street railway has neglected to make certain improvements and changes in the car services which are reasonable, viz. to furnish adequate and reasonable car service between Quincy and Houghs Neck by running cars at least as often as every thirty minutes in winter, and as often as every ten minutes in summer; by neglecting to run cars to the extreme limit of the line, and by refusing to furnish sufficient feed wire for the proper operation and lighting of its cars; and the petitioners further pray that the Council make application to the Railroad Commissioners to examine the conditions existing at Quincy and Houghs Neck and recommend such improvements and changes as are reasonable. Referred to special committee on Street railways.

PETITIONS.

A petition was received for the extension of the Beale street sewer from its present termination at North Central avenue to the city line. Referred to Committee on Sewers.

The Electric Light Co. petitioned for a location for poles on Woodward avenue and Rock Island road. Referred to Committee on Streets.

WATER EXTENSIONS.

The Committee on Water Supply reported a substitute order appropriating $30,000 for the extension of the water system of the city. Read and referred to the Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order authorizing the Mayor to have his inaugural address printed. Passed.

TEMPORARY LOANS.

The Finance Committee reported ought to pass on the order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $500,00 in anticipation of taxes.

The report was accepted and the rules suspended.

Councilman Richards—It has been stated that it was absolutely necessary to pass this order. It is a well established fact that the people are not satisfied with the condition of affairs in our city. Before the order was passed it would be a good idea to see what condition the city is in financially.

Councilman Whiton was called to the chair.

Councilman McDevitt— It is just as well not to be hasty in raising money.

EXPRESS PERMITS

Should Be Limited to One Says Men's Club

The Men's club of Christ church not only had a spirited debate on the License question on Monday evening, but after the debate went on record in favor of limiting the express permits in Quincy to one, and authorized the executive committee to present this vote to the City Council.

In the absence of the president, H. J. Dickey was in the chair. The question for debate was: "Resolved, that No-License is conducive to the best interests of the City of Quincy."

By assignment, the affirmative was taken by Walter E. Burke and N. M. Spencer; and the negative by Joseph Grossman and Archibald McLeod.

Each was allowed ten minutes, and Mr. Burke opened. eH was fortified with the figures of the Massachusetts No-License League which were favorable to No-License. In No-License cities, the debt was smaller, the tax rate lower, more was available for education and more for streets, smaller appropriations were required for police and charities.

Mr. Grossman also had figures. He cited the large revenue the city would receive if licenses were issued. He maintained that people would not have to go out of town for liquor, and therefore would buy supplies in Quincy, leaving more money in town. License money would help out on taxes. Believed minors should be excluded from saloons. Only a few more police would be required. License would bring trade to Quincy. Consumption of whiskey was increasing while beer was decreasing, yet whiskey was the more harmful.

Mr. Spencer opened by asking what the expressmen would do if Quincy voted license. He spoke of conditions in his native town, in New York city, and in Brockton, arguing that saloons created bums, and that license money went to grafters.

Mr. McLeod replied that expressmen under license might eb busy carting drunkards home from the saloons. Seriously Quincy was shirking responsibility by placing saloons just outside the city. Would have licenses controlled by City Council, that is, two or three municipal saloons, as in Sweden. Quincy did not need 30.

Messrs. Burke and Grossman spoke in rebuttal and then the discussion was opened to the club members. It was not all one-sided either, as Arthur L. Thomas and George Holden took the negative, while Arthur B. Hultman, W. H. Haslett, William Walker, Mr. Read, C. M. Chase, and the rector argued against saloons.

At the close of the debate, Arthur B. Hultman offered a motion that the club cooperate with the No-License League in its efforts to have the City Council limit the express permits to one.

This provoked argument pro and con, and the motion was amended some, but the club finally instructed its executive committee to convey to the City Council its vote, that it is the sense of the club that only one express permit be issued in 1910.

COURT ADJOURNED.

On account of illness of Judge Cresby there will be no session of the Norfolk Superior civil court until next Monday.

There were placed on the January docket of the court 42 suits. Of these there are 10 against public service corporations amounting to $79,000. The Boston Elevated has five suits amounting to $27,009, the Blue Hill Street Railway Company three suits amounting to $38,000 and the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad two suits amounting to $14,000. The remaining 32 suits are of various sorts by individuals against individuals.

TODAY'S COURT.

Dominico Dorando and Rosso Galaiti were arraigned for violation of the liquor law at Quincy. Cases continued until Saturday.

GENERAL REGRETS OVER RESIGNATION

St. Chrysostom's Church Expresses Appreciation in Many Ways

Rev. A. E. Clattenburg the Rector to Enter Mission Field.

The annual parish meeting of St. Chrysostoms church was held Monday evening in the parish rooms. Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg, the rector was in the chair.

Reports of the different organizations were given. Letters of commendation and congratulation on the completion of the payment of all debt on the property were read from Bishop Lawrence and Archdeacon Babcock by the rector.

After Mr. Atkins had read the treasurer's reports Mr. Clattenburg announced that a parishioner would give $50.00 if the balance $58.00 to meet all unpaid bills could be raised. In a few minutes sums of $1. to $5. were pledged, making a total of $135.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Senior warden—Frank E. Cleveland.

Junior warden—Percy L. Davidson.

Treasurer—John W. Atkins.

Clerk—Theodore Parker.

Vestrymen—William J. Leslie, Vernon S. Brokaw, Archibald Briggs, Woodford Ketchum, Henry B. Barham, Herbert H. Albee.

Delegates to Diocesan convention—Frank E. Cleveland, David L. Jewell and J. Albert Severance.

Delegates to Archdeacony Convention—Henry B. Barham, T. L. A. Musgrave and Theodore Parker.

John E. Hamilton, secretary and treasurer of Men's club, made a special appeal that every single man in the parish join that club.

It was voted to sanction the action of the vestry and place all church property in the hands of the "Trustees of Donations."

A rising vote of thanks was given Rev. and Mrs. Clattenburg for their donation of 12,800 feet of land in the rear of the rectory, the installation of a hot water heating plant in the rectory, and connection with the sewer.

The rector responded in a few words in appreciation of the love and loyalty of the people of the parish. The past year the church has been put in thorough repair, inside walls tinted, etc., the lighting system has been improved, and a beautiful weathered oak litany desk has been given by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon S. Brokaw in memory of Mr. Brokaw's grandmother.

Universal regret at the resignation of Mr. Clattenburg to take effect March 28, which had to be accepted, was expressed by the parishioners. As stated in Monday's Ledger, Mr. Clattenburg has decided to enter upon mission work in North Dakota, having placed himself under Bishop Mann, who has asked him to take charge of the parish at Devils Lake, North Dakota.

David L. Jewell, Mrs. George W. Hight and Mrs. Herbert L. Packard were named to draw up resolutions on the resignation of the rector, which will be read at a reception to be given Mr. and Mrs. Clattenburg after Easter.

Due to the enthusiastic zeal and inspired ability of Mr. Clattenburg, the parish can show Bishop Lawrence a clean record of no indebtedness on the church property when he comes to consecrate the church Feb. 22. It is simply marvelous the way in which the mortgage debt of $3,000 has been reduced each year since Mr. Clattenburg came to the parish in 1905, $1,732.50 having been raised since January 1909.

The spirit at the meeting was the best ever manifested during the present rectorship, but was saddened by the feeling of the great loss sustained by the parish in the resignation of Mr. Clattenburg who has always worked for the best interests of the parish in every way. His going is regretted by the whole parish.

Refreshments were served by the Woman's Guild, Mrs. Daniel C. Miller president, after which a social hour was enjoyed.

EMPHATIC DENIAL

Mayor Puts City and Daily Ledger All Right

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:

In view of the fact that an article in a Boston Sunday newspaper of recent date which claimed to be an interview with me, wherein I was charged with making certain statements which reflected on the honor of our city and also that of a local paper, I wish to state, that on the morning following the publication of said article I went to the office of the Quincy Daily Ledger and emphatically denied the statements contained in the aforesaid interview, and have since on several occasions made public denials, and have reiterated as emphatically as I could the denial as was published in the Ledger of January 3.

I had deemed such public denial a sufficient answer to the article as published in the Boston newspaper, as above mentioned, but lest there be any misunderstanding, I want to say to my fellow citizens of Quincy, I did not either by implication, insinuation or direct statement, say anything of the nature accredited to me in the said newspaper article.

Yours truly,

Wm. T. Shea.

Quincy, Jan. 11, 1910.

—The demand for the abolition of foot ball as too dangerous a sport to be tolerated has been complied with in numerous schools and colleges, throughout the country, but as yet no demand has been made to stop hunting, in spite of the fact that this sport is much more dangerous that football as is shown by the reported hunting fatalities.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

ABOUT KITCHEN RANGES

There are dozens of different kinds of ranges manufactured—each maker claiming his to be the best. Now for 15 years we have been selling Glenwood Ranges—and our conservative statement is this. In buying a Glenwood Range you buy a range that is made as good as skilled mechanics and scientific ideas can put together. There is nothing better made. The improved features installed in the latest Glenwood models are without comparison. You'll make no mistake if you buy a Glenwood. We are exclusive Quincy agents. Your old range taken in exchange.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The City Council did well to hold up the $500,00 loan in anticipation of taxes. A little more light on the situation is desirable. The financial situation is getting more and more serious.

It is well during these progressive days of Quincy to recall old times occasionally. The reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Association and the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Justin K. Hardwick of Granite street, both reported in the Daily Ledger of Monday show marvelous changes in Quincy in the lifetime of some of our citizens. The Daily Ledger will touch upon some of the reminiscences brought to light in its series of "Historical papers," now a weekly feature.

Mayor Gaynor has made a good start in his new office. The New York newspapers are united in saying that his appointments are satisfactory and that he has chosen men who are competent to fill the offices and whose records are such as to commend their selection to the taxpayers of the metropolis. Mr. Gaynor said some pleasant words about Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, but gave no offices to the Tammany organization. Tammany does not thrive on words and cares little about promises. What it strives for is results. Without patronage, and plenty of it, Tammany is powerless to "deliver the goods" at election time. Judge Gaynor has a great opportunity before him to demonstrate to the country that he is not in the control of the political system which has plundered New York. It is said that he wants to be President. It is extremely doubtful if this wish will ever be gratified, but he has a chance to make for himself a name that will be a credit to his children and that will be remembered as a synonym for civic virtue. And that's worth more than being President.

Representative Hardwick of Georgia tried to make a mountain out of a mole hole and like other architects of his kind worked out a failure. Apparently, he thought he saw an opportunity to embarrass the administration by making it appear that the government was willing to pour out its treasure to find John Jacob Astor. To this end he introduced a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Navy for information as to what action was taken by the Navy Department to discover the whereabouts of the sea-going yacht of Mr. Astor when that craft was thought to have been wrecked in a recent storm. The resolution also called for a report on the expenditure made by the Navy Department on that account. Of course, the Navy Department took no part in the search for Mr. Astor's yacht. The Revenue Cutter Service, which is under the Treasury Department, did furnish assistance. It is the duty of that branch of the government service to respond promptly to calls for help by those in distress at sea. A revenue cutter will go out in the fiercest storm to rescue a rowboat containing a couple of tramps quite as promptly as it will render assistance to the sea-going yacht of a millionaire.

SUCCESSFUL LIQUOR RAIDS

Two Arrests for Violation of the Laws

When the night officers reported for duty at 7 o'clock Monday night they were informed by Chief Burrell that their services were required to assist in making raids. Headed by the Chief and Inspector Goodhue the squad went to Canal and Brackett streets, and before a return to the station was made, eight places had been visited, liquor seized at each place and two persons arrested.

The places visited were Mark Rossi, 61 Canal street; Donato Dicuse, 53 Canal street; Giovani Chello, 57 Canal street; John Angelo, 52 Brackett street; Charles Vechiola, 55 Brackett street; Dominico Dorando, 118 Washington street; Rosso Galarti, 4 Baxter place, and Mrs. Paniotta, 2 Baxter place.

Dorando and Galarti were arrested for violation of the law and later bailed out. The police station looked like a wholesale liquor house when the wagon returned.

WHIST PARTY.

Monday evening the Jolly Sixteen gave one of their popular surprise parties on Mr. and Mrs. Walter Howes, it being the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Howes, although disturbed from a quiet evening with his paper, welcomed the Sixteen in his usual hearty manner. Whist was enjoyed for two hours, souvenirs being given Mr. and Mrs. Dexheimer and Mr. and Mrs. Merritt. Mrs. Merritt in behalf of the club members, presented Mr. and Mrs. Howes with a handsome chair. A dainty lunch was served, and at a late hour all bade Mr. and Mrs. Howes adieu, hoping for the opportunity of enjoying many more such pleasant gatherings.

Senatorial Repartee.

Once in the senate chamber John J. Ingalls was directing some remarks to Senator Hoar of Massachusetts. The other senator from that state, Mr. Dawes, having come in while Mr. Ingalls was speaking, thought the words were meant for his ear, and so, interrupting, he asked Ingalls if he was directing the remarks at him. The Kansas senator turned slowly around, for Mr. Dawes sat behind him, and then, with delicious intonation, but an instant wit, he said, "I was directing my remarks to the successor of Charles Sumner and not to the successor of Daniel Webster."

The repartee has become traditional, and the utterance was at once placed alongside of that reply of Conkling to Senator Thurman, which is also traditional in the senate chamber.

Conkling was speaking, and Thurman had said, interrupting him, "Does the senator aim his remarks at me; he constantly turns to me?" when Mr. Conkling, with delicious gravity, bowing to Thurman, with whom he was very friendly, said: "When I turn to the senator I turn as the Mussulman turns to Mecca; I turn as I would turn to the common law of England—the world's most copious fount of jurisprudence."

CITY COUNCIL

On every appropriation made he was going to see where the money was going.

Councilman Bryant——This is nothing to do with city appropriations. The charter provides that all departments may expend one-third of last year's appropriation until the budget is passed. The budget goes to the Assessors and they see where they can raise the money. Very few tax bills are paid until November. Every dollar up to that time for notes and current expenses must come from somewhere and therefore it is necessary to borrow money in anticipation of taxes. Similar loan orders are passed every year. There was nothing to do except to borrow money to pay the bills until the taxes come in. It was better to pass in one order the amount needed rather than make two bites at it.

Councilman Hobbs—The Council of last year was very much criticised on account of appropriations made. He wanted the Council to fully understand every order before it was voted on. He would like to ask the City Treasurer if he drafted the order?

City Treasurer Curtis said it was drafted by the City Trust Co., at my suggestion. In reply to further questions the Treasurer said that the outstanding temporary loans amounted to $425,000. The city would require the amount stated in the order. He did not know how much money was due from uncollected taxes. The cash on hand Jan. 1, amounted to $85,000.

Councilman Hobbs—Assuming all of the 1909 taxes are collected, what is to take care of the balance of $125,000?

City Treasurer—I presume there are taxes enough to cover the whole amount. Understand that all taxes outstanding stood against the $425,000. Temporary loans should be borrowed against taxes.

In reply to a question by Councilman Hobbs, Tax Collector Carey said that the uncollected tax of 1909 on Jan. 1, was $287,084.48. The total tax uncollected was $405,743.56.

Councilman Hobbs—Of the money authorized against the tax of 1909 the balance to be collected is not sufficient to take care of the temporary loans of 1909?

City Treasurer—No.

Councilman Hobbs—The city is really running behind then?

City Treasurer—Yes.

Councilman Hobbs—Do you not think the Council had better take up the matter and meet the situation in a proper manner?

City Treasuer—Something should be done.

Councilman Cherrington was called to the chair.

Councilman Whiton—The fact is, that to get out of a hole the Council has put the administration in a hole. Thus money is to be borrowed against taxes, as the Treasurer needs money. Why did he not look into the matter last year? If the Treasurer has no money how can he pay the teachers and others? Every city starts in the first of the year without a cent. This order is to provide funds for bills we must pay, whether we want to or not.

Councilman Bryant was sorry that it had been stated the city was $100,000 in the hole. The city every year has to borrow in anticipation of taxes the full amount of the tax levy. The Council has got to do something toward borrowing money, or any one, who has a note against the city, can seize your property. We have $115,000 in temporary loans and $60,000 for current expenses to pay in January. He did not think the city had gone so far behind when there was but $25,000 between taxes and temporary loans, which condition would be found when a trial balance was struck. He did not believe any other city stood as well as Quincy. He did not want to see the notes of the city go to protest.

Councilman Snow asked of the Finance Committee if the $500,000 was absolutely necessary to cover the expenses.

Councilman Bryant—There are $420,000 in temporary loans coming due in the next three months. It would therefore be foolish to borrow $300,000 now and more in a few weeks.

President Hobbs—All I wanted was a little information. The City Council of last year was criticised for extravangance. He wanted to find out if a loan of $500,000 was needed. The City Treasurer says the amount of temporary loans outstanding have increased $200,000 in two years. The only way to meet the situation was to borrow on a short term note and put it in the tax rate. It would do no harm to put an expert on the books and see where we do stand. Our outstanding notes amount to $425,000, and taxes uncollected of 1909 amount to $287,000, so we have a deficit of over $100,000.

Councilmen Moir, Sandberg and Cantfill were called to the chair but declined.

Councilman Flynn said that he was glad that he had been present for it had been a very instructive lesson to him. Previously he had not been able to fathom these things. We have got to have money to meet these bills. It would be better to borrow the sum needed at one time.

Councilman Flynn was called to the chair.

Councilman Richards—What has been said was a repetition of what he had heard in the Finance Committee. We have got to consider who is to pay these bills. When it is stated that the taxes are collected better today than ever before, we want to look at the condition of affairs. He had heard it said that the assets of the city were good. He would like to know what any business man would do if he found himself in the same condition the city is in. It has been worth while to go into the matter. He proposed to vote against it. It is time we got a deadlock until there was some improvement. He had seen no decrease in the amount of assessment of taxes or in valuation. There had been no great things done as to cleaning up streets in his ward. I had a pay $600 to have stone chips cleared from my yard. He failed to see anything to show the city is in as good a financial condition as in 1907.

Councilman Whiton—There are none so blind that will not see, or so deaf that have ears and will not hear, which will apply to my colleague on my left (Richards.) He says his stone yard was not cleaned out. Let him clean it out himself. He has a lot to say about the taxpayer. Why don't they pay their taxes. That has nothing to do with the $500,000 loan.

Councilman Richards—That is a personal attack on me. The matter of stone chips was thoroughly thrashed out. It was helping the taxpayers and helping the granite men. At the present time he was not at all interested in it.

Councilman Gardner—All agree that we must have $500,000. By being careful in the future we may be able to do the taxpayers some good.

Councilman Cherrington asked the Tax Collector about taxes due Jan. 1, 1907, but that gentleman could not tell without consulting the books in the vault.

Mayor Shea said the outstanding temporary loans had been growing less every year. Two years ago it was $112,000 the next year $96,000 and last year $37,000. We are not going at the rate stated.

Councilman Hobbs—To go back two years. The people were dissatisfied with the Republican administration and wanted a change and they elected the present Mayor to stamp out the extravagance and wipe out the debt. It did not seem to him that the Republican administration could be held for it. He had no fault to find with the people. He simply wanted to find out the financial standing.

Councilman Hobbs moved to amend by making the amount $300,000.

Motion lost. Vote doubted. On a rising vote the motion was lost 6 voting yes and 11 no.

The order was then put on its final passage, but failed to pass 12 voting yes and 6 no as follows:

YES—Bolster, Boyd, Branch, Bryant, Cantfill, Carey, Cherrington, Ericson, Gardner, Smith, Snow, Whiton—12.

NO—Clark, Hobbs, McDevitt, Moir, Richards, Sandberg—6.

NOT VOTING—Acting President Flynn.

ABSENT—Loud, Nowland and Woodward.

The vote was reconsidered, and the order laid on the table.

HALF HOLIDAY.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order that the Mayor be requested to make an allowance in his budget to give laborers a half holiday during the months of June, July and August.

After some discussion the order was rejected.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order, requesting the City Solicitor to draw up a petition for the Mayor to present to the Legislature, for an amendment to the City Charter that city laborers be paid not less than $2 per day, and be allowed a half holiday on Saturdays during June, July and August, and that the amendment be submitted to the voters at the next State election.

After some discussion the order was rejected on roll call, 6 voting yes and 9 no, as follows:

YES—Boyd, Cantfill, Flynn, McDevitt, Richards and Smith—6.

No—Branch, Bryant, Clark, Ericson, Gardner, Moir, Sandberg, Snow and Whiton—9.

NOT VOTING—President Hobbs.

ABSENT—Bolster, Carey, Cherrington, Loud, Nowland and Woodward—6.

NEW TAX ORDER.

Councilman Richards offered an order for the City Treasurer to borrow $325,000 in anticipation of taxes. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councilman Moir offered an order for lights on Madison and Billings streets. Referred to the Executive.

Councilman Bryant raised the point of order that the order for $325,000 was not in order. The chair ruled that it was.

The reference was withdrawn and the order laid on the table.

Councilman Cantfill offered an order for a light on the corner of Hammond place and Water street. Referred to the Executive.

Councilman Cherrington offered an order for a public hearing Feb. 21, on the taking of a lot of land at Montclair by right of eminent domain for a schoolhouse. Adopted.

Adjourned at 11,10 until Jan. 17.

—If Massachusetts expects to have to spend $1,000,000 more than usual, this year, largely for charitable and educational purposes, there must be great economy used in other directions not to have the state tax run so high as to be alarming. A high standard of conducting our state institutions must necessarily call for large expenditures.

BOSTON VOTE WILL BE CLOSE

Odds on Storrow Pulled Down to Even Money

Boston, Jan. 11.—Never has a city campaign closed with so much earnestness, so much enthusiasm, so much confidence by the friends of the leading consestants as has the present one.

The entire city was alive with political excitement. A conservative estimate places the number of citizens who attended the rallies last night at over 50,000. This attendance, too, is a record breaker in the city's history.

Men waited in packed halls or club rooms from 7 o'clock to greet Mr. Storrow or Mr. Fitzgerald with cheers and assurances of their support. Citizens cheered, threw their hats in the air or capered like madmen to show their loyalty to their special favorite.

Both the leading candidates made new whirlwind records also. Storrow visited thirty-six places and Fitzgerald visited forty. Storrow closed his tour of a continuous ovation through the twenty-five wards of the city with a big and enthusiastic welcome in East Boston shortly before midnight. Fitzgerald closed his night's tour with a big meeting in Faneuil hall.

Both candidates speak confidently of the result today. At both the Storrow and Fitzgerald headquarters there is cheerfulness, bespeaking without words what they expect election day to show.

The betting on the result has been tremendous, and thousands of dollars await the decision. Early yesterday the odds were on Storrow, but so much Fitzgerald money appeared that the betting became even, and toward midnight there were bets taken at the rate of ten to nine on Fitzgerald.

The managers for both Mr. Taylor and Mayor Hibbard are active, and although the general impression is that both will poll a total of not over 12,000, still their political representatives are working just as hard as if success was assured their efforts.

Bands paraded the districts last night, boys carrying banners and flags awoke the streets, crowded halls kept their neighborhoods from sleep with their cheers, hotels held clusters of citizens joined in partisan arguments, and bet holders were kept busy recording wagers.

There has never been such a night for political excitement as the night that closed this, the greatest of mayoralty campaigns in this city.

Armed with long torch sticks, red fire torches and lumps of ice, a mob of over 200 men and boys made an attack upon the automobiles bearing Storrow and his followers, at the corner of Dorchester avenue and Fourth street, South Boston, last night. Storrow was struck across the arm, which he raised to protect his head from a vicious swing of a stick. Robert L. Norton, Storrow's press representative, was hit on the head, and Herman Hormel, secretary of the Republican city committee, was hit on the nose with a stick. Several reporters in the following car and the two chauffeurs of both cars were hit.

Great Jump In Valuation of Real Estate in New York

New York, Jan. 11.—The little island of Manhattan, which the Dutch traders took over from the Indians for $24 in beads and trinkets, shows a real estate valuation of $4,430,855,061, according to the tax asssessment books.

The real estate valuation of New York city is given as $6,333,177,809, an increase of $267,009,518 over last year. The personal assessments for the year have not been fully made up.

Andrew Carnegie will head the list with an assessment for personal property of $5,000,000.

SUNDAY SERVICES

HALL PLACE M. E. CHURCH.

"As thy day is, so shall thy strength be," was the text of the Sunday morning sermon by the pastor of the Hall Place M. E. church, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, who took as his subject "A New Year's promise."

The Sunday School was held at 11.45 at the close of which officers were elected for the coming year. Junior League was held at 3.30. The Epworth League devotional service was lead by Miss Ada Williams, first vice president of the league.

At the 7 o'clock service the pastor spoke on the great revival in Wales a few years ago, the life of its leader, the beginning of the revival and the wonderful work done through the workings of the spirit and the great results accomplished, also giving many incidents which happened during the revival.

During this week special services will be held each night excepting Saturday in the church at 7.30. The pastor will be assisted by visiting ministers from other Methodist churches and Conferences.

WOLLASTON METHODIST.

Large audiences were present at all of the services on Sunday. At 10.45 the pastor preached from the text Rom. 5:20: "But Sin abounded, grace did much more abound." He spoke of the tremendous power of sin, and of the abounding grace of God. He said that sin is a fact in the world's history. It needs no argument to prove this. We need but to scan the daily papers or visit our jails, and prisons and police courts, to be reminded of the fact that sin is a strong force in the life of man. On every side we read the "The wage of sin is death."

At the close of the sermon Mr. J. A. Sedgwick, the newly elected superintendent took charge of the Sunday school with Mrs. George Crothers in charge of the primary department; 105 were present. At 4 o'clock Miss Rena M. Chamberlain led the Junior League; she took for her subject: "The Life of Samuel.' She said that Samuel early in life was given to the Lord by his parents, and that he grew up to obey and serve the Lord. In every little act we may serve God.

At 6 o'clock A. R. Blades led the Epworth League meeting taking for his subject "Doers of the word." J. A. Sedgwick led the praise service and Mrs. Estes rendered a solo which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Rev. G. F. Durgin of Bromfield street, Boston preached from the text Rom. 2:13-16;—subject: "My Gospel." He said sufficient for men because it has a God in it; because it has assurance; because it has encouragement. Miss Edith M. Given the gospel singer from the Deaconess Training School sang touchingly and tenderly "Does Jesus care," and "Give me thine heart."

The special services will be continued another week with preaching every evening at 7.45 o'clock by different preachers.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The average daily attendance at the public schools for the four weeks ending Dec. 22 was 5702. The Massachusetts Fields and High schools led in percentage. The John Hancock had the fewest tardinesses, and the High the largest. Here is the report of Supt. Barbour:

THE INSURGENTS OF CONGRESS

Who and What They Are and Why This Body of Progressive Republicans Was Formed

Causes For Which They Are Fighting and Side Lights on the Leaders of the Movement

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

THERE are several questions, pertinent and impertinent, that arise concerning the insurgent movement. The political student asks, "What is an insurgent?" The general public, always interested in personalities, inquires, "Who is an insurgent?" Uncle Joe Cannon, in more or less bewhiskered and unsterilized language, rises to the question, "Why is an insurgent?" To answer all three queries adequately would require several books. But as I have not time to write the books and nobody else would have time to read them we will have to boil it down.

To begin in the good old ordinal and ordained way: Firstly, what is an insurgent? It depends on who is giving the answer. If it were Robert Marion La Follette he would doubtless reply, "An insurgent is the noblest work of God," having in mind, perhaps, one particular insurrecto. If it were Cannon who was giving the opinion— But wait! There are postal laws in the United States against printing and disseminating certain kinds of words, and I have no desire to get either myself or the editor into jail. Either the La Follette or Cannon idea would probably be biased. To take a perfectly dispassionate view, an insurgent is one who wants to change the rules of the house in which he is serving; also the rulers. He has a passion for ripping it into Cannon and Aldrich. He wants to revise the tariff downward—emphasis on the "down"—or at least he wants to do it to all the tariff that does not affect his district. Finally and foremostly, and this is the immediate object of his being, he wants to chase Cannon and Aldrich off the political map. If he is in the house of representatives—what an irony there is in that word "representatives!"—he objects to the speaker being the whole works. He now regards the house as consisting of a number so large that there is not a type case in existence with figures enough to set it up, Cannon being represented by the figure "1" and the other 390 members by a long string of ciphers trailing after. That would be something like one million billion trillion quadrillion quintillion—oh, figure it out yourself!

My own view of an insurgent is that he is an honest man who by some mistake broke into congress. The other members do not know what to make of him. He knows what he would like to make of himself, but the speaker won't let him. That is the whole story. The insurgent wants to save the country and cover himself with glory, and here is this white whiskered tyrant with the gavel, this old man with the artillery name, who bars the way. It is enough to make a saint insurge.

A Growing Army.

As to the question, "Who is an insurgent?" his name is legion. The political woods are full of him. Nobody is certain of his neighbor. He does not know who will insurge next. Maybe it will be himself. There are those who think that every time Speaker Cannon biffs the table with his gavel a new insurgent springs into being. If this is true there will soon be millions of him. For a man of his years Uncle Joe certainly does maltreat that innocent wooden hammer. He could give points in the tattoo line to a snare drummer or to the active and incessant woodpecker.

To be accurate, there are thirty insurgents in the house and something like eleven in the senate. Yet I can remember the day when Robert Marion La Follette was insurging alone. First he had to convert the state of Wisconsin, and when that job was done to his satisfaction he started in to convert the entire nation. This work is still in process. At about the time La Follette was making the Wolverene railroads and regulars jump sideways Albert Baird Cummins was causing the stand patters to see red with his Iowa idea. The careers of these two progressive leaders have many features in common. Both had to fight the machine in their own states, both were elected to the governorship for three terms, and both while serving as governor were elevated to the United States senate. Both are effective speakers, and both deal with facts rather than figures of speech. The difference in their personal appearance and manners, however, is as striking as the resemblance in their careers. Both are fighters, but Cummins is courtly and has gained the sobriquet of "Handsome Albert," while La Follete is pugnacious, with bristling mane.

Other senators that have broken out of the reservation are Jonathan P. Dolliver, who did not always insurge, but was once tame enough to eat out of one's hand, then grew excited and restive when Cummins built a back fire behind him; Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana, who has always been an orator and is becoming a statesman; Joseph L. Bristow of Kansas, who drove the crooks out of the postoffice department and is ready to perform the same service for any other crooked bunch that gets in his way; Knute Nelson and Moses Edwin Clapp of Minnesota, who have put over a brand of insurrection that makes Aldrich shiver as though from a January blast out of the northwest; Elmer J. Burkett and Norris Brown of Nebraska, who, coming so soon after Bryan, make us wonder if the Platte country turns out nothing but smooth faced young orators who yearn to do things to the corporations; William Edgar Borah of Idaho, who is such a handsome and mild looking man that no one would dream of his going up against the fierce and crafty Aldrich, the lowering Hale and the astute and high browed Lodge, and Coe I. Crawford of South Dakota, who, it is said, is going back into camp. This is the list of senate insurrectos up to date, but no one knows when it will be enlarged. The powers that be are not always sure of putting a finger on Senator Burton of Ohio, while the elections to fill the vacancies occurring on March 4, 1911, may bring in several new progressives.

Cannon In Front of Them!

If there are mutterings in the senate, however, there is actual hideous rebellion, complicated by ghost dancing and several different kinds of war medicine, in the house. Senatorial courtesy has a way of smoothing war's wrinkled front until a fierce political contest looks like a perfectly decorous ministers' meeting. A struggle in the upper house that may involve millions of dollars and decide the political complexion of whole states looks about as exciting as a pink tea. But in the house it is different. There is perhaps a species of courtesy in the lower chamber, or what passes for such, but it is not so elaborate, oppressive and ponderous as that in the senate. In fact, the house courtesy is like that of the prize ring—the shake-hands-and-go-at-it kind. If we consider Senator La Follette the leader of the senate insurrectos and Victor Murdock the chief of those in the house it is almost uncanny the way the two typify the character of the movement in their respective bodies. It recalls Swedenborg's doctrine of correspondences, for the resemblance extends even to their top pieces, inside and outside. Thus La Follette wears a pompadour and Murdock a halo the color of a brick. Carrying out the correspondence, the senate insurrection bristles, while that in the house is red headed.

The Red Badge of Courage.

Murdock himself is worth a newspaper story and probably will get whole pages of such before he is done with the game. He is himself an editor and was one time a Chicago reporter. In those days he was a friend of President McKinley, who referred to him as "the brightest man in Kansas." When he went to Chicago young Murdock was working for $9 a week on his father's paper. Asking for a raise, he was turned down. Even though the old gentleman was then a celebrity in the Sunflower State, that fact did not prevent the cub from telling him that some day he would be "known as the father of Victor Murdock," in which he proved a better prophet than most politicians.

As an insurgent Murdock is good natured and usually succeeds in getting a laugh on his opponents. Beware the cheerful reformer! In puncturing a sham the pin point of humor may be a better weapon than the big stick of argument. Perhaps the greatest service Murdock has rendered the American people was in exposing the railway mail graft. Of old time the mails were weighed seven days a week, but to get the daily average the total of seven days was divided by six, which resulted in a clear gift to railroads of about $5,000,000 a year. Murdock exposed the fraud, and, although the house machine refused to correct it, President Roosevelt afterward did so.

The Valiant Thirty.

According to the list of house progressives furnished by Mr. Murdock himself, there are thirty in all—seven from Wisconsin, four from Minnesota, six from Iowa, three from Nebraska, two from Kansas, two from Ohio, two from Massachusetts and one each from New Jersey, North Dakota, California and Washington. A most important member of the group is Henry A. Cooper of Wisconsin, who presented the La Follette resolutions to the last Republican national convention and who received more votes for speaker of the house than any other insurgent. Another striking figure is Irvine L. Lenroot, a new member, who was speaker of the Wisconsin assembly before going to Washington. A third Wisconsin man of national note is John J. Esch, one of the authors of the present railroad rate law. William J. Cary, Arthur W. Copp, E. A. Morse and John M. Nelson make up the rest of the fighting seven from La Follette's state. One of the progressives from Iowa, the land of Cummins and Dolliver, is Elbert H. Hubbard, who has the name but nothing else belonging to the famous Philistine. Other Iowa insurrestos are James W. Good, Gilbert N. Haugan, N. E. Kendall, Charles E. Pickett and Frank P. Woods. From Minnesota, where Senators Nelson and Clapp uphold the insurgent standard, a quartet of house members have followed them—Charles R. Davis, Charles A. Lindbergh, Halvor Steenerson and Andrew J. Volstead. Nebraska has one of the leaders of the house progressives in George W. Norris, formerly a district judge in that state, and two able members in E. H. Hinshaw and M. P. Kinkaid. New Jersey furnishes Charles N. Fowler, the former chairman of the house banking committee, who has written open letters to Cannon until Danville was filled with flying expletives.

From Massachusetts hails Augustus P. Gardner, son-in-law of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who (Gardner—not Lodge) swears that the house rules shall be amended whether the machine consents or not; also from the same state William C. Lovering. Ohio, home of the president, has two of the house insurrectos in the persons of David A. Hollingsworth, a noted lawyer, and Adna R. Johnson. From Kansas Victor Murdock's companion in arms is E. H. Madison; from North Dakota comes Asle J. Gronna; from California E. A. Hayes, one of the wealthiest members of the house, and from Washington state Miles Poindexter.

The Cannonesque inquiry, "Why is an insurgent?" finds its answer in the supposed propounder of the question. Cannon himself is the reason, or, rather, one reason. The progressives say they came into being because they want to make the house a deliberative body and carry out platform promises. I suspect that their real cause is deeper yet, being nothing less than the old fight between equal rights and special privileges.

"Cowcatchers" For Taxicabs.

The foreman of the jury at a city inquest in London the other day made an interesting suggestion regarding motor vehicles. "A bar should be placed in front of the radiator," he said, "so that a person run into could clutch it. The radiator is always hot, and a person on endeavoring to save himself cannot cling to it."

Domestic Economy.

Those breakfast chops away.
We'll grind up fragrant branches green
For savory hash today.

No need of sweetbreads for the lunch.
These tender twigs will do.
You'll vote them best you ever ate

SUNDAY SCHOOL OFFICERS.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Hall Place M. E. Sunday School was held at the close of the Sunday morning session of the school. The report of the superintendent on the work of the year and the treasurer's report were approved and accepted. The report of the committee who provided for the Christmas tree was accepted. The nominating committee appointed a week ago, Miss Beryle Hannant, Mrs. Carl R. Raupach and Miss Hilda Francis, presented the following nominations for officers for the ensuing year:

Superintendent—Joseph M. Francis.
Assistant Superintendent— Richard H. Moyle.
Treasurer—Miss Hilda Francis.
Secretary—Miss Ada Williams.
Librarian—Julius Fuller.
Missionary Superintendent — H. Johnson.

The report of the committee was accepted and the officers nominated were unanimously elected. The teachers of last year were re-appointed by the superintendent. The meeting adjourned at 1.15.

—American show window lighting is being introduced in London. It is customary in the English capital for shop keepers to barricade every window with heavy iron shutters just as soon as the day's business is over. This is a relic of those ancient days when it was not safe to leave the shop unprotected, but the American plan of window display and well lighted store fronts is being successfully introduced.

BRIEFS

A new moon this evening.

High course tides on Thursday.

The Wollaston Boys' club will meet in the vestry of the Baptist church on Thursday evening.

A mothers meeting was held at the Wollaston M. E. church Monday afternoon led by Mrs. George Crothers.

The mornings are one minute longer and the afternoons twenty minutes longer.

The January meeting of the Current Events class at the clubhouse of the Quincy Women's club will be on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Commissioner of Public Works reports that 311 buildings were connected with the sewer in 1909. A larger number of houses were erected during the year.

Mrs. Horace M. Willard of the Quincy Mansion school has invited friends of the school to enjoy with the school this evening the lecture on Robert Louis Stevenson by Dr. Richard Burton.

On some date in March to be announced later there will be held in the city of Brockton, a Laymen's Convention with three delegates from each of the Evangelical churches and Y. M. C. A's in the counties of Plymouth, Norfolk and Bristol.

Members of the Quincy Women's club are looking forward to the gentlemen's night Wednesday evening given complimentary to the club by the Art and Literature committee. Members tickets will admit member and escort. Thomas A. Watson, Esq., of East Braintree will read "A Winters Tale."

—The boy of today has no use for mush or slush or gush. He wants to get interested in boys of his own stripe, who study hard and play harder; whose fathers are affectionate enough to feed and clothe them well and give them a fair allowance, but who are also wise enough to make them work for their luxuries so they will appreciate them. This is the character which interests the youth of today and which influences him, as demonstrated by the books one finds selling on the shop counters. He wishes no ideal hero, for such a boy is unnatural and in the clouds. He can't model himself on a fellow with a pen-and-ink halo. All he cares for is a book-boy who is human, like himself, sometimes lucky, sometimes unfortunate; who has grit and good nature; who does the every day deeds of life a little bit better than himself, so he may profit by the book-boy's methods.—Norwood Messenger.

AGRICULTURE TO INTERIOR

Anti-Conservationists Want Forest Service Transferred

PINCHOT WILL FIGHT PLANS

Entire Forest Service Will Also Advise That Change Be Not Made—Interior Department Never Satisfied With Legislation of 1905—Indian Reservation Forests Already Under Control of Balinger

Washington, Jan. 11.—The next move of the anti-conservationists will be to try to have the forest service taken from the department of agriculture and transferred back to the department of the interior. This would take the service away from Secretary Wilson and give it to Secretary Ballinger.

In certain sections of the far west there has always been opposition to the agricultural department administering the national forests. The assertion has been made from time to time that this opposition came directly from the opponents of the Pinchot forest policy. Whether any progress can be made with this movement to have congress transfer the service to the department of the interior remains to be seen.

Former Forester Pinchot as a private citizen will oppose the proposed change strenuously. The entire forest service, if consulted by congress, will advise that the change be not made. The interior department originally administered the forests. On the theory that the management of land, not of forests, was the chief thing, the law of June 4, 1897, gave over the forests and provided that their surveying, mapping and general classification should be done by the United States geological survey and the execution of administrative work by the general land office.

In a little while the necessity of consolidating the various branches of government forest work became apparent, and finally, the act of Feb. 1, 1905, transferred to the secretary of agriculture entire jurisdiction over the national forests, except in matters of surveying the passage of the title.

The interior department officials have never been quite satisfied with this transfer. They have insisted from time to time that the administration of the forests on the public domain was so intimately associated with the administration of the public land, that the whole business should be under the interior department.

About three years ago the forests in Indian reservations were transferred from the bureau of Indian affairs, which is under the interior department, to the forest service. One of the first acts of Ballinger after he became secretary of the interior was to declare that this transfer was illegal. He insisted that the forests on Indian reservations be transferred back to the interior department, and this was done.

Up to this time Ballinger has not indicated in any public manner that he hopes to get the entire forest service back into the interior department, but the insistent stand he took with reference to the forests on Indian reservations leads to the belief that he would like to have the forest service as a whole put back into the interior department.

Boston, Jan. 11.—Domonico Bennetto, charged with the murder of Luigi Calonico in a North End eating house, was arraigned in the municipal court. He waived examination and was held without bail for the grand jury.

Marine Corps Captain on Trial

New York, Jan. 11.—On charges of having failed to liquidate some old debts, Captain Franklin S. Wiltse of the marine corps was placed on trial by court-martial at the Brooklyn navy yard today.

WHITE SLAVERY INQUIRY

Men Who Have Investigated Traffic Are Summoned by Rockefeller

New York, Jan. 11.—It is believed that the searching investigation undertaken by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., as foreman of the special grand jury, has already proceeded for enough to show not only that an organized white slave traffic really exists, but that there are close relations between traffickers in women in the principal cities of the country.

Ownership of many illicit resorts in this city is being traced through title companies, and it is currently reported that one man or syndicate has been found to own several such places here. Outside investigation is under way to trace the affiliations of the reputed syndicate in other large centres of population, east and west.

Professor Jeremiah W. Jenks of Cornell university and other men who have investigated phases of the traffic were summoned by Rockefeller and his associates to give their testimony yesterday.

FORTUNE OF $1,005.000

It Will Soon Fall Into the Lap of a Rhode Island Mill Hand

Povidence, Jan. 11.—A fortune of $1,050,000 has fallen out of a clear sky, almost, upon Mrs. Alice May Pickup, 24 years old, a mill operative in the Royal mill at Riverpoint, and on Nov. 3, 1910, she will receive that amount under the will of her father, who died apparently poor. The case was settled in a New York court yesterday, Mrs. Pickup stated at her home here.

The inheritance of the vast fortune will not affect the present condition of Mr. and Mrs. Pickup, and they will continue in their work at the mill until next November, when they take possession of the money. They will then go to New York to live in the home of her late father.

INSANITY CURED BY SURGICAL WORK

Bullet Had Wrecked Mind of Man Who Tried Suicide

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 11.—Success has attended the efforts of the physicians in a remarkable operation upon Ernest Tibbetts of Amesbury, a would-be suicide, the failure of which would undoubtedly have left him insane for perhaps the remainder of his life.

Tibbetts in despondency attempted to end his life several weeks ago. He was rushed to a hospital here, where slight hopes were entertained for his recovery.

Eventually the bullet affected his brain and he went insane. He was put in a strait-jacket. Physicians examined him and decided that an operation would save his life. This has resulted in the restoration of his senses and his discharge as a cured man, although the bullet still remains in his head.

The results of the outcome were watched with interest by the medical fraternity of Essex county.

KEPT IN ATHLETIC TRIM

Burglar Prides Himself on Leading Detectives a Merry Chase

New York, Jan. 11.—George Maddox, said by the police to be the leader of the "rope ladder band," who worked daily in a gymnasium to keep in proper physical trim, was arrested at his flat in Harlem.

The police took $3000 in valuables from trunks and closets, three revolvers, a crucible and several ingots of gold and silver. Maddox was held for the grand jury in $10,000 bail.

"Well," he said to the detectives while waiting to be arraigned, "I led you fellows a merry chase, anyway."

DEFALCATION OF $3000

Senate Passes Bill Allowing Sub-Treasury to Make Up For It

Washington, Jan. 11.—On motion of Senator Lodge the senate passed the bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to credit to the accounts $3000, representing a shortage of that amount caused by the defalcation of an official in the Boston sub-treasury some years ago.

This action when ratified by the house will relieve Assistant Treasurer Curtis of personal responsibility for the money.

Two Acused of Murder

Rockland, Me., Jan. 11.—Pleas of "not guilty" were entered by Fred James and Mrs. Sadie Newbert, each of whom has been indicted on charges of murder. James is charged with poisoning his 6-year-old daughter and Mrs. Newbert is accused of posioning her husband.

English Miners to Strike

Newcastle, Eng., Jan. 11.—The colliery miners resolved to stop work throughout the Newcastle district to resist the employers' proposal to enforce the extra time allowed under the eight-hour law.

POLICE BEATEN BY YEGGMEN

They Are Then Locked Up In Cells In Their Station

POSTOFFICE SAFE BLOWN UP

Five Armed and Masked Bandits Flee to Woods In Spencer After Posse Is Formed by Sounding of Fire Alarm Through Agency of Woman Awakened by Explosion—Whole Town Routed Out of Bed

Spencer, Mass., Jan. 11.—Five robbers, armed and masked, held up two town policemen at the point of revolvers, and after beating them into insensibility and locking them in cells in the police station, blew open the postoffice safe.

The yeggmen escaped to the South Spencer woods, taking with them about $30 in stamps and money. They ovelooked a large sum of money in one of the strong boxes.

The raid on the postoffice was one of the most sensational acts of desperadoes in the history of the state. That it was carefully planned is the opinion of the town officials and Postmaster Tripp.

Town Officers Morton and Collette were standing in front of town hall about 2:30 o'clock in the morning when five men, armed and masked, suddenly jumped out of a doorway and commanded them to throw up their hands.

Although five revolvers were levelled at their heads, the officers attempted to draw their own guns. Before they had an opportunity of doing this, however, the five men leaped at them and pummeled them with the butts of their revolvers. As a result the officers were stretched on the snow unconscious.

Then the robbers, who had previously obtained a key to the main door of the town hall, carried the policemen into the station and put them in separate cells, locking the steel doors as they departed.

From the town hall the yeggmen went directly to the postoffice a few blocks away. Entrance was gained to the building by forcing open the front door with a chisel.

Three holes were then bored in the safe and the doors blown open by a charge of nitro-glycerine. The manner in which the men went about drilling the safe leaves no doubt but that they were experienced safeblowers.

The roar made by the explosion awoke Mrs. Walter Haynes, who lives in the rear of the postoffice. She telephoned an alarm to the central office of the telephone company, and from there a general fire alarm was turned in.

The pealing of the fire bells and the tooting of whistles alarmed the robbers, who fled hastily from the building. They took with them $30 in money and stamps which they found in a small cash box in the safe.

From Spencer the robbers made their way toward South Spencer, taking the main highway. Several farmers along the route heard the men as they dashed by and fired at them.

At South Spencer the robbers made a short cut toward the woods by crossing the land of Harry L. Lyford, a town constable. Lyford was awakened to see the men running across his land. He got his revolver, and dashing from the house, fired at the fugitives. Owing to the darkness none of the five shots reached their marks.

When fired upon, the robbers dropped to the snow, and from a crouching position returned the fire. Lyford escaped being hit by the fusillade of shots.

In the meantime the fire alarm had called out scores of citizens. A posse was quickly formed, and the fugitives were trailed by the tracks in the snow to the South Spencer woods.

The imprisoned officers were not found until an hour and a quarter after they had been held up. Two men, passing by the town hall, noticed the main door open. They communicated their information to one of the selectmen, who found the officers locked in cells.

Both officers were very weak from the terrific beating they had received, but nevertheless were able to give much valuable information as to the general appearances of the men.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

THE MICHIGAN, FIRST ALL BIG GUN AMERICAN WARSHIP.

The Michigan comes nearer to the Dreadnought class of fighting machines than any other ship below that class in the American navy. She was built at Camden, N. J., and was launched May 26, 1908. She is known as an all big gun battleship and carries eight twelve-inch guns and two submerged torpedo tubes in her main battery. By the terms of her contract the Michigan was required to show a speed of 18½ knots, and at her trial she exceeded it. Her crew consists of 51 officers and 758 men. She is 450 feet in length. The Michigan has a displacement of 10,000 tons and an indicated horsepower of 16,000. She is furnished with special protection against torpedoes. She is encircled by a complete armor belt eight feet in width.

The Girl From the Effete East

By ARTHUR DENSMORE

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

BARRINGTON was completing his first year of practice when Theodore Tuppenheim arrived in Knuckleville. Mr. Tuppenheim was selling stock in the Charitable Gold Mining company at 5 cents per share, price to advance to 10 cents at the end of thirty days. Incidentally he found time to foster in Barrington's bosom the spirit of discontent which ten months' fruitless waiting for clients had engendered. If he were a clever, clean cut young man like Barrington, did Barrington know what he'd do? Move west. He wouldn't fritter away his time in a mossbacked New England hamlet where people looked down on a fellow just because they'd known him all his life and could remember when he was a little shaver and went with patches on his trousers. No, sir. He'd just gather together his earthly possessions and take the first train for Gilt Gulch, Nev. There was the coming town; there lay the opportunity for an able young man to rise. No reason in the world why he should not be in the United States senate within five years. That would be coming some? Well, everybody and everything came some in that country. Why, sir, where the thriving city of Gilt Gulch now stood there had been less than two years since naught but sagebrush and alkali. And now look at it—just look at it! Six thousand inhabitants and more coming by every train! Simply couldn't get houses up fast enough for 'em. Had to camp out in tents. And every blamed one of 'em making money. Why, sir, you couldn't find a bootblack in Gilt Gulch who was worth less than fifty thousand!

This vision of wealth and political prominence was quite too much for Barrington. He adjusted his affairs in Knuckleville, which was no very difficult matter, took tearful leave of numerous relatives and of a certain pretty damsel, who was not yet a relative, but had rashly promised to become one whenever Barrington's income should suffice for the support of two persons, and hied himself to Gilt Gulch, promising to send souvenir postcards from every municipality he passed through on the way.

Now, underneath the lurid exaggeration with which Mr. Theodore Tuppenheim had clothed his narrative of the rise of Gilt Gulch there lay a respectable substratum of truth, and the combination of Barrington's ingenious appearance with certain letters of introduction to persons financially prominent in Gilt Gulch, which Mr. Tuppenheim procured for him, resulted in his speedily establishing a thriving practice. For the most part it was work in connection with the location of mining claims, and, besides numerous fees in cash, Barrington acquired several claims of his own, which he disposed of profitably.

In brief, at the end of a year Barrington had waxed so prosperous as to feel himself warranted in marrying. The Knuckleville Weekly Times announced editorially that it understood that young Mr. Barrington, for whom, its readers would remember, the Times had predicted a brilliant career when he hung out his shingle in Knuckleville, was now one of the leading men in the west, and the other village maidens were openly jealous of Susie Cutler, whose good fortune it was to be to marry a millionaire.

But Susie herself had no illusions. She even refused to permit Barrington to come east for the marriage. Her childhood lessons of thrift and economy had taken deep root in her mind, and she would not, she said, have the price of a round trip railroad ticket thrown away. If Barrington felt that he must spend the money, let him buy a cabinet organ or a secondhand piano for the front parlor. They would be married in their own house at Gilt Gulch and after that take a little wedding trip to Colorado Springs or maybe Denver. Perhaps, being a prudent damsel, Susie desired to have a glance at Gilt Gulch before she committed herself irrevocably. At any rate, matters had been thus arranged, and, the date set for the wedding being but two days away and Susie due to arrive that afternoon, Barrington was in the state of ecstasy appropriate to such circumstances. It was in this moment of supreme happiness that misfortune befell him.

The work Barrington had been doing requires to be performed with great accuracy; otherwise it is not only valueless, but may be the occasion of great loss to the client. Now, it is possible that Barrington possessed genius. People who have that, you know, are apt to be careless as to details. Perhaps it was merely that, being deeply in love, he could not concentrate his mind upon his work. However that may be, Hartford, the attorney whose office was next to Barrington's, had discovered in the course of an investigation of the records that Barrington had filed documents containing serious errors. He spoke to Barrington about it in a perfectly friendly way. Barrington received his kindly admonitions with a contempt which he was at no pains to disguise. Why should he pay heed to the remarks of a man who wore baggy trousers and long hair and played faro to say nothing of becoming intoxicated now and then? He knew well enough what inspired these critical observations. Hartford was jealous of the prosperity which Barrington had so rapidly achieved. Let him stop cavilling, said the virtuous Barrington to himself, and seek success by leading a sober life, as he did.

Feeling that he had been insulted, Barrington thereafter confined his communications with Hartford to a curt "How are you?" accompanied by a barely perceptible nod when they chanced to meet. It was with a good deal of surprise, therefore, that Hartford, glancing up from his rather dilapidated desk as he heard the door open, perceived Barrington entering his office. One had not to look at Barrington twice to be convinced that he was badly frightened. His eyes, which ordinarily regarded those about him with an air of easy toleration, were wide with terror, and his well chiseled features, customarily wearing an air of placid conceit, were now white and drawn. His manner toward Hartford was no longer supercilious. All his carefully constructed attitude of dignity had vanished.

"You've been in this part of the country longer than I have, Hartford," said he. "I want your advice as a—a friend, you know."

Hartford nodded and withdrew his pipe from his lips.

"Sure," said he succinctly. "What's the row?"

"Why, you see," said Barrington, "it seems that in filing the papers for Jim Busby on that last mining claim of his I made a slight error. I have been doing a large business, you know, Hartford—a very large business—and it was inevitable that I should make a mistake occasionally. It seems that some unscrupulous persons have taken advantage of this purely technical slip and have jumped Busby's claim, and he is very much exercised about it."

"I should think he might be," Hartford observed.

"Yes," repeated Barrington, "he is much exercised and quite unreasonable about it. He came into my office a few moments ago and demanded an explanation. Of course I couldn't tell him anything except that it was just a mistake such as any man might make, and he said I was lying to him. He said I was too smart to make a fool break like that and that I was in with the gang that were trying to do him out of a claim that would have made him rich. I argued with him the best I could, but it didn't budge him. He said he didn't see that it made much difference, anyhow, whether I was a fool or a knave, because either way I hadn't any right to live, and he wound up by saying that he'd just go down to the Jolly Dog and get a few drinks to put him in the right frame of mind and then he'd come back and reduce the membership of the Gilt Gulch bar by one."

It is significant of Hartford's broad and tolerant temperament that he did not remind Barrington that he had previously predicted such a catastrophe as had now befallen. Nevertheless a slight glimmer of amusement stole across his face.

"So you want my advice, do you?" he asked.

"I should appreciate it very much," said Barrington.

"Well, you shall have it," said Hartford laconically, rapping the bowl of his pipe against the heel of his shoe. "If Jim Busby were out gunning for me and I couldn't shoot any better than you can, and I had a comfortable little sum saved, as you have, and there were a pretty girl in New England who didn't know any better than to love me, as she does you, I'd go east on the half past 2 train, and I wouldn't hurry back."

"But the trouble is," Barrington explained, "Susie—Miss Cutler, that is—will be here on the train that gets in at 2:50. The trains pass on the first siding out, you know. The fact is we are to be married day after tomorrow at noon. You'll pardon my omitting to send you an invitation, won't you? It was quite unintentional. I've been so busy"—

"Oh," Hartford broke in, with a deprecatory wave of his arm, "you need not apologize. It's just one of those little mistakes a busy man is bound to make every now and then. I haven't Busby's disposition. I'll forgive you."

Then Hartford looked at his watch and found that it was twenty minutes past 2.

"You'll have to move lively, my boy," he said. "Keep an eye open for Jim, and if the coast is clear take the 2:30. If it isn't, walk over to Sand City and take the next one there."

"But about Susie," Barrington remonstrated.

"Pshaw!" growled Hartford. "That's easy enough. Leave a note for her with the station master, telling her to go back to Colorado Springs and you'll meet her there. If you don't have time to write a note, have the station master tell her you've been called away on a life and death matter and that she's to go to the hotel and wait until you send her word. Don't you worry about the girl. She'll prefer a slightly delayed wedding to an expedited funeral. Hurry up now. You've just about time to make it."

As he slipped down the main street of Gilt Gulch on his way to the station Barrington caught a glimpse of Jim Busby's gaunt profile as he stood at the bar of the Jolly Dog, his back toward the entrance. Barrington's indolent heart rejoiced as he reflected that the ten mile walk to Sand City would now be unnecessary. It was just twenty-eight minutes past 2 when he reached the station. He gave the necessary instructions concerning Susie to the station master and rushed out upon the platform. But the train which made up at Gilt Gulch was not yet ready to depart. A freight car had left the rails, blocking the track. Five, ten, fifteen minutes passed, and still the obstruction remained. Barrington grew uneasy. Jim Busby might at any moment deem that he had imbibed a quantity of liquor commensurate with his contemplated task and begin to search for him. But at the end of twenty minutes, to his great relief, the perspiring train crew succeeded in replacing the derailed car, and the freight train pulled slowly out upon a siding. Even as it did so Barrington caught sight of the 2:50 train as it rounded the curve just beyond the station.

A moment later Susie Cutler, her trim little figure set off by a skillfully tailored gray traveling suit and her face wearing the look of determination befitting a girl who had just completed a journey nearly across the continent alone, descended to the platform of Gilt Gulch station. Barrington rushed toward her joyfully. Within three steps of her he encountered an obstacle—a very serious obstacle. This was nothing less than the muzzle of a revolver. Behind the revolver stood Mr. James Busby.

"Now, young man," said Mr. Busby, "we'll attend to your little matter, and we won't be long doing it."

Then Busby became suddenly conscious of a voice, evidently feminine, proceeding from some point in his rear and of the light pressure of a hand upon his arm.

"Do you know," said the voice, "it's dreadfully careless of you pointing that thing at anybody so. Why, it might go off."

Turning about, Busby looked into the piquant features of Susie Cutler. He decided unhesitatingly that, notwithstanding some freckles and the tendency of the nose to turn up, it was a rather pleasing face to view.

"So it might," said Busby slowly. "So it might."

"Well, then, stop aiming it at Har—Mr. Barrington," she commanded. "You make me nervous."

"Fact is," said Busby, "I was sort of planning to shoot Mr. Barrington."

He had lowered his weapon and spoke very calmly and deliberately.

"What!" shrieked the girl. "You have the audacity to stand there and tell me you mean to commit a cold blooded murder? Where are the police? A splendid place this must be to live in, where a man goes out to kill another as coolly as he'd eat his breakfast!"

"That's the way with all you folks from out Boston way," grumbled Busby. "You're always getting murder and the administration of justice mixed. I ain't going to murder him. I'm going to execute him. He's done me dirt, and if he ain't killed he'll do somebody else dirt. So for the good of everybody he'd ought to be shot. What do you care anyway? Ain't no relative of yourn, is he?"

"Why, no," she answered in some confusion, "he isn't a relative exactly—that is, he"—

A gleam of comprehension shone in Busby's eyes.

"Come to think of it," said he, "I heard something about his being going to get married. Be you the girl?"

She nodded.

"Yes," she answered simply, "I'm the girl."

"Then," said Busby, "it's clear enough to my mind that in interfering with this execution you're preventing me from doing you a great favor. Howsomever, if you stick to it that you don't want him shot and if you'll take him out of Nevada and keep him out"—

The girl did not wait for him to finish. She transferred her grasp from Busby's arm to that of Barrington, who during the preceding conversation had stood silent, his face white, his limbs trembling, cold sweat beading his forehead.

"Come, Harry," she said imperiously.

Meekly, with bowed head and downcast eyes, Barrington suffered her to lead him aboard the train, which was now, the track being clear, about to move eastward.

Jim Busby sat down upon the edge of the platform and burst into a roar of laughter. Long after the train had disappeared around the curve below the station the station master found him there, his broad shoulders still shaking with merriment.

"Well, you doddering idiot," said the station master, "what's the joke?"

"Oh, ain't he going to get his all right, though?" queried the mirthful Busby. "Did you hear her 'Come, Harry,' him and snake him aboard the train like he'd been a puppy hitched to a string? He got out of being executed, but he's getting a life sentence, and that's a whole lot worse."

Mysterious Explosions Continue

Chicago, Jan. 11.—A mysterious explosion, which was credited in some quarters as being another outbreak in the gamblers' war, damaged the building at 323 State street, and jeopardized the lives of five soldiers, who were asleep in the army recruiting station on the third floor. The same building was wrecked last summer in the explosion of bomb No. 30.

Newly Elected State Treasurer Dead

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 11.—State Treasurer-elect J. A. Stober was found dead in bed at his home at Schoeneck. He was elected state treasurer last November and was to have taken office in May. He was 67 years old.

RUNAWAY HEIRESS CAUGHT IN CHICAGO

Roberta De Janon and Cohen Reduced to "Hard Pan"

Chicago, Jan. 11.—Miss Roberta De Janon, the granddaughter of Robert Buist, the millionaire seed merchant of Philadelphia, and Frederick Cohen, who eloped with her from Philadelphia Dec. 29, were arrested by the police in a North Side boarding house.

The 17-year-old girl and her companion, who have successfully eluded the police of every large city in the country and scores of private detectives sent in search of them by the young woman's relatives, were found in a $4 a week room, where they had been since last Thursday night.

Both the girl and Cohen said that the elopement was the result of the young woman's desire to get away from her grandfather and be freed from the necessity of attending school. They went to New York city on Dec. 29, according to Cohen's statement, remaining there only a few hours. Thence they went to Montreal, where they took train for St. John. There they boarded a steamer for England. At Halifax they abandoned the sea voyage and went to Boston by rail. From Boston they came to Chicago.

The girl said that she and Cohen reached Chicago with only $1.60 and that she gave Cohen a bracelet and a necklace which he pawned to procure money to live on.

SPECTACULAR AIR TRIPS

Paulhan Thrills Twenty Thousand Spectators at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 11.—Making a sudden and dramatic appearance while 20,000 spectators were watching the slow flight of two dirigible balloons at Aviation park, Louis Paulhan threw the great throng into a frenzy of enthusiasm by a spectacular flight of twenty-nine minutes in a Farman bi-plane and added to the feat two other flights of ten minutes and twenty-nine minutes.

"We cannot do anything with that Fenchman," said Richard Ferris, master of ceremonies, when people began to inquire for Paulhan. "He pays no attention to regulations or to the course laid out for the flights. I would not be surprised to see him appear suddenly on his machine through the top of his tent." That was almost what Paulhan did.

MILITARY SCHOOL BURNED

Students March Out In Nightclothes at Call of the Bugler

Newburg, N. Y., Jan. 11.—The New York Military academy at Cornwall was destroyed by fire. The main building, the observatory, the laboratory and the manual training buildings were all burned to the ground. Bard hall, used by the younger students, escaped. Nobody was hurt in the fire.

When the fire was discovered near the kitchen the bugle was sounded and the cadets, with military precision, marched out, most of them in pajamas and bathrobes. They lost all their personal effects. There was about 150 students in the academy.

The buildings destroyed were worth about $125,000. The academy had educated young men for West Point for forty years.

BIG BATCH OF CASTAWAYS

Seven Captains and Twenty-Seven Seamen Victims of Great Gales

New York, Jan. 11.—There were seven skippers and twenty-seven shipwrecked mariners on the steamer Bermudian, when she made her berth. For the past month or more Bermuda has been a clearing house for sailors picked up from wrecks strewn all the length of the Atlantic coast.

Four of the captains had lost their commands because of disaster to their vessels and one is suffering with a broken leg after having been knocked down on the bridge of his vessel by a big comber. All the seamen were castaways.

FEUD OVER A WOMAN

Results In Fitchburg Man Being Held For Death of His Brother

Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 11.—Adolpho Mattacchioni, aged 38, was held for the grand jury without bail on the charge of murdering his brother, Alfonso.

A feud between the brothers, which started over Alfonso's refusal to allow Adolpho to pay attention to the former's sister-in-law, Messia Calli, some years his junior, ended in Adolpho forcing an entrance into his brother's house at midnight, and, the police say, shooting Alfonso.

Express Train Lops Off Foot

Malden, Mass., Jan. 11.—Frank J. Crane, Jr., after alighting from a train at the Oak Grove station, stepped directly in front of an express. He was struck by the engine, and the wheels ran over his left leg, severing the foot at the ankle.

Wages of 1907 Restored

Pittsburg, Jan. 11.—Notices were posted at the plants of the H. C. Frick Coke company announcing the restoration of wages in effect in 1907, prior to the panic, effective Jan. 16.

DECREE ON MARRIAGES

Bishops May Settle Questions Without Reference to Pope

Rome, Jan. 11.—The pope has issued a decree granting important powers to Roman Catholic bishops throughout the world. The main feature of the decree gives bishops the right to settle questions relating to the marriage of Catholics without reference to the pope.

A year ago the pope forbade the marriage of Catholics and non-Catholics except by Catholic priests. When the pope took his firm stand on the marriage question, which made all mixed marriages not performed by a priest unrecognized by the church, many American bishops demanded special consideration for America in view of the situation there.

Many of the American bishops petitioned for the restoration of the old legislation, but the pope declined to make any special provision, in spite of the many thousands of mixed unions in the United States.

ASQUITH CABINET OUT

Engiand Will Be Without a Ministry Until After the Election

London, Jan. 11.—In meeting with his privy council, King Edward signed the proclamation dissolving parliament and at the same time the issuance of writs for the general election was begun. This action left the empire without a ministry, the Asquith cabinet retiring according to custom. Not until after election will its successor be chosen.

The commons will complete their campaign this week, the peers now being barred by precedent from further electioneering. The wind-up will be the hottest seen in England since 1832.

The first balloting will be held on Jan. 15, when sixty-eight constituencies go to the polls and the voting will not be over for two weeks. The new parliament will meet Feb. 2.

SPENT HIS MONEY WITH LAVISH HAND

Son of Financier Dies From Effects of Intoxication

Chicago, Jan. 11.—A post-mortem examination of the body of Nathaniel F. Moore, son of James H. Moore, the Rock Island financier, showed that death was due to heart disease, superinduced by intoxication. Young Moore was found dead in the resort of Victoria Shaw.

New York, Jan. 11.—The death of Nathaniel F. Moore in Chicago ends the career of one of New York's best known spenders and bon vivants. His marriage to Miss Helen Page in 1905 followed a romantic courtship and a motor trip through the south of France.

Young Moore caused Broadway to gasp in the winter of 1907 by giving a $20,000 dinner to a select few. Gold and diamond sleeve buttons were given away to the guests. At a dinner given on his 21st birthday Moore gave away pearl necklaces. When Broadway palled on him Moore went west and began to hustle freight for the Rock Island to learn the railroad business. He got $40 a month.

AGAIN WITH RADICALS

Gardner Dissatisfied With Course of Events In the House

Washington, Jan. 11.—Among the significant developments of the insurgent situation in the house is the return to the insurgent camp of Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, son-in-law of Senator Lodge. Gardner gave out an interview early in the session, in which he was quoted as favoring a cessation of hostilities. He says that he is now in favor of a radical program of action. He said:

"As there is to be no truce, I expect to act with the insurgents on all matters relating to the rules and management of the house of representatives. I had hoped that things would take a different turn and there would be no split in the party, but I do not at all blame the house insurgents for resenting the attacks upon them."

ONLY ONE "BEST"

Quincy People Give Credit Where Credit is Due.

People of Quincy who suffer with sick kidneys and bad backs want a kidney remedy that can be depended upon. The best is Doan's Kidney Pills, a medicine for the kidneys only, made from pure roots and herbs, and the only one that is backed by cures in Quincy. Here's Quincy testimony:

Charles Somers, 17 Newcombe Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "It is a pleasure for me to make known to other kidney sufferers, the benefit I received from Doan's Kidney Pills. I had lame back as the result of weak kidneys, for about ten years. I could get no relief from the many remedies I tried and when Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. Before long this remedy completely cured me. I shall always praise Doan's Kidney Pills.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIEFS

Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Kibbey of Marshalltown, Iowa, are guests of Mrs. F. S. Barry.

F. W. Bent of Barry street has gone out of the furniture business and now will take up automobile repairing.

Miss Jessie Hannaway of Copeland street is spending a few weeks 'vacation with friends in Hartford, Conn.

Miss Beatrice Joyce of Bates avenue has left for Pinehurst, N. C., where she will spend the winter with friends.

Ex-Representative Robert Luce will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Men's club of Christ church on Feb. 7.

Mrs. Hamilton Lyons of Philadelphia is spending a few weeks' vacation with her mother, Mrs. John McKenna of Crescent street.

The Country club was entertained Monday evening by Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Bolster of Verchild street. Whist was enjoyed the early part of the evening, after which a buffet lunch was served.

For the past week the cutting of ice has been in progress at the Eaton pond and also at Dobles. They are getting fourteen inch ice and it is expected work will be completed by the middle of the week.

Daniel McDougal of Grove street has been taken suddenly ill and is under the special care of Dr. John H. Ash who states that Mr. McDougal is very ill. He was attacked with pneumonia, pleurisy and the grip.

Willis Wright of Bryant avenue, East Milton, was cut about the hand recently. While working around a machine which Mr. Wright operates, his hand was cut by one of the knives. No notice of it until Monday when he found he could not use his hand, and he immediately went to Dr. Reynolds, who stated that he had blood poison and that he is in a very serious condition.

The many friends of John Joyce of Bates avenue will be surprised to learn that he has suddenly been taken ill and has been removed to the City Hospital, where he has been operated on. Mr. Joyce is well known in this city having served in the fire department as call man for many years and also is president of the St. Mary's C. T. A. and M. B. society. He is a member of the K. of C., A. C. H., West End club and Copeland club.

One of the most enjoyable social evenings of the Brotherhood of the Water Street Presbyterian church was the ladies' night that was held Monday evening at the church. The affair was attended by upwards of fifty. During the first part of the evening there was a short entertainment which included songs by J. Ernest Collins and recitations by Arthur Germain. The balance of the evening was given up to playing various games. Refreshments were served.

☞Overheard on the street—"This kind of weather wears out the rubbers doesn't it? I just got a new pair. The last ones cost me a dollar in Boston and these are just as good and only cost 90 cents at George W. Jones' store and I got a cash rebate check also. Looks as though it paid to trade at home."

WANTS ARE NUMEROUS

Street Railway Grievances at Houghs Neck

Superintendents Conway and Gammons of the street railway were present Monday evening at a special meeting of the Houghs Neck Association to consider street railway service. Practically every member present had something to say and all had something he wanted changed.

The wants were therefore numerous. Some of the things desired, as expressed by the meeting, were late cars from City Square every night in the week; that the cars leave terminals on advertised time; that cars run to the end of the line at Houghs Neck; that additional feed wires be run to the beach to furnish more power and better light for the cars; that cars be run at least every half hour during the winter months; and every ten minutes in summer.

These were some of the main things desired, although the street railway officials claimed that during the day time in winter cars often went both ways with but one passenger and sometimes empty.

Supt. Conway was asked numerous questions. He took note of some of the most important matters, and promised to look into them and report later.

BASKET BALL.

Saturday night the Bryant A. C. basket ball five will meet the Fore River juniors at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and Manager Cronin will have O'Rouke, Belanger, Donovan, Flaherty and Ford with him. This is the Bryants first game.

It looks as though the St. Mary's basket ball would not be on the floor for some time, owing to the fact that Dan Duggan has the grip and an accident happened to Joe Buckley a short time ago, much to the regret of the many fans who turned out in a large body at the first home game

Manager McLaughlin hopes to fill the positions but thinks it will be a tough proposition.

INCREASED COST OF LIVING.

Secretary Wilson Making Extended Inquiry Through Field Employees.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who helped the country to find out "what is whisky," is now directing his attention to the question, "Why is the cost of living greater?"

Mr. Wilson, through the hundreds of field employees of his department, is attempting to ascertain what the difference is between retail and wholesale prices for foodstuffs. He desires to know, it was declared, why the cost of foods to the consumer is greater and whether the farmer, the middleman or the retail merchant is to blame. The inquiry is directed toward the increased prices of butter, eggs, milk, apples, potatoes and other common or garden fruits and vegetables.

Secretary Wilson began this inquiry because he did not believe that the farmers of the country were receiving higher prices than they should get for their products, as had been said by many so called authorities who wished to explain the higher cost of living. It was asserted that he believes the middlemen are responsible for the higher prices.

Recently Mr. Wilson made an investigation into the reported higher cost of meat. He found, according to his annual report, that the mean gross profits in selling meats to the ultimate consumer were 38 per cent and that in some cities this percentage was as high as 68. This meant, the report said, that the cost to consumers was 38 to 68 per cent above the price the retailer paid to the wholesale merchant.

The same sources of information which were relied on to gather the data on meat were directed to the investigation into the prices of other foodstuffs. This investigation the secretary regarded as most important, and it was pointed out that he expected to find whether there is a combination to raise retail prices or the distribution of foodstuffs is done in a way that is too expensive. It was said that congressional action may be necessary later.

Had to Do It.

Champ Clark was showing a constituent about the capitol one day when he invited attention to a solemn faced individual just entering a committee room.

"See that chap?" asked Clark. "He reads every one of the speeches delivered in the house."

"What!" gasped the constituent.

"Fact," said Clark. "Reads every word of 'em too!"

"Who is he?" queried the visitor, regarding the phenomenon closely.

"A proofreader at the government printing office," explained Champ.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

WHO WAS FATHER?

G. B. Bates Wants More Light

Editors of Daily Ledger:

Like thousands of our people I read with humiliation and shame, a most scandalous and pernicious article captioned, "Quincy, with Shea at the helm" in the Sunday American of Jan. 2, 1910. Certainly not in harmony with the Glad Greetings for the New Year. Castigating and dragging in disgrace, before the world, our city, and it institutions.

Like an electric flash, this inflamatory, vicious, and derogatory attack, was heralded before one million five hundred thousand readers of that newspaper, the effect of which can never be overtaken, overcome, or effaced. What could be the motive for this sensational, extravagant, hysterical, mythical, and slanderous brainstorm.

The question is, who is the father of this damnatory article? Who is guilty? Are the parties implicated innocent? If so, let us (openly and publicly) gladly exonerate them as a party to any dastardly conspiracy of this awful calumny. But let no guilty one escape. The controversy of who discovered the North Pole, to us, is infinitesimal compared with the welfare of our city and its institutions, which is now laboring in darkness and doubt as to who is responsible for this uncalled for and cowardly calumny. Let us hope there are no Dr. Cooks in our community.

The public, particularly the citizens of our community, have been waiting patiently for this great wrong to be righted, with a public retraction and apology, by the culminators, of our city and its institutions. The people are wondering why the parties implicated, if innocent, have been so dilatory in displaying their courage, sincerity, and honesty in demanding forthwith, over their signatures, a retraction and apology as public as the original article of the instigators and culminators, and likewise denying their being a party to the stigma, branding previous Republican city officials with high cost of graft and misgovernment.

I was glad to learn that the Board of Trade are not practically dead and useless as alleged, but as usual, are alive to the situation, by taking steps to thoroughly investigate who is responsible for violating "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor" or thy city.

Yours for the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

WU'S GIFT TO EDISON.

Inventor's Phonograph Records Chinese Diplomat's Estimate of the Wizard.

Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, had a distinguished visitor the other day in the person of Wu Ting Fang, the former Chinese minister to the United States, who left with him as a Christmas present what the inventor will prize among his choice possessions, a record of his own voice on the private phonograph of Mr. Edison.

The record, of which Mr. Edison says he does not think any manifolds will ever be made, will not only preserve the voice of the great oriental, but will keep for the heirs of Edison the truth of what he thinks of the wizard. This is what Wu said:

"Mr. Edison has just shown me a great many wonderful things. He is a great man. I have heard about him for many years and have always wanted to meet him. He has also heard of me, he says, and I think we are both glad that we met. He is a remarkable inventor, typifying this twentieth century, the age of great things. Mr. Edison is still a young man and will do yet more wonderful things."

Plan to Aid Mine Workers.

With the assistance of mine operators the Young Men's Christian association in eastern Pennsylvania has begun a campaign to establish mining institutes throughout the anthracite region. Bases of operation are being established at several points. One of the principal objects of this movement is to afford opportunities to the foreigners in large numbers who, for the most part, are untrained in mining and ignorant of the English language. C. L. Fay, the organization's mining work secretary, says that meetings held at Carbondale, Scranton, Wilkesbarre and other cities and towns have been unusually successful. In the southern district the Philadelphia and Reading company runs special trains for employees to attend the meetings.

WESTON'S NEW HIKE.

Veteran Pedestrian Will Make Effort to Cross Continent In 100 Days.

Not satisfied with having accomplished the remarkable feat of walking from New York to San Francisco in 105 days last year, Edward P. Weston, the veteran pedestrian, has announced that he will make one more transcontinental walk and that he will get from ocean to ocean in within a hundred days. According to Weston's present program, the start will be made at Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 1, at 4 p. m.

The actual start from Los Angeles will be westward, so that Santa Monica, a California coast city, can first be reached. In this way the ocean to ocean circuit will be literally covered. With the Pacific ocean rolling at his feet, Weston will then turn eastward for his transcontinental dash.

When the walk ends on the steps of the city hall in New York city May 28

EDWARD P. WESTON, WHO WILL ATTEMPT TO WALK FROM CALIFORNIA TO NEW YORK

Weston will thus both technically and actually have walked across the continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

One interesting feature of the walk is that when it begins Weston will be in his seventy-first year and that it will end in his seventy-second year. He will celebrate his seventy-second birthday on March 15 en route.

At this season the extreme southern route is the only available course to insure success. As there are no recognized post roads between Los Angeles and Chicago, Weston will be compelled to follow the track of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad, having secured the permission of the railway officials. This will enable him to gratify a long cherished desire to visit the famous Grand Canyon of the Arizona and the petrified forests in that vicinity.

Weston's previous performance, when he covered the continent between March 15 and July 14 of last year in 105 days, was generally considered a marvelous success by the public.

During the latter part of the journey, however, Weston encountered almost insurmountable obstacles in the shape of a series of unlooked for storms and intense heat. He was greatly handicapped, moreover, by having frequently to "double" on his trail; hence his record was 105 days.

ENGLAND'S BIG EVENT.

Oxford and Cambridge Have Decided Upon Rowing Earlier Than Usual.

The rowing authorities at Oxford and Cambridge universities have practically decided upon rowing the annual Oxford-Cambridge boat race, easily England's biggest aquatic event of the season, considerably earlier than usual next spring. In fact, the two universities are about agreed upon March 12 for the race, this being fully a month in advance of last year's contest. The reason why an earlier date is considered desirable this year is owing to the fact that Easter comes unusually earlier. On Saturday, March 12, it will be high water at Putney at 3:20, which would give the crews their race about 2:30 o'clock. Both the Oxford and Cambridge candidates have, of course, been in training for the race for several weeks already.

HELP FOR GIRLS TO BE GOOD WIVES

Institution Founded to Fit Them For Domestic Cares.

PUPILS TO BE WORKING GIRLS

Philanthropic Women of New York and Pittsburg Organized "Wifehood Guild" With the Object of Reducing Number of Unhappy Marriages—To Establish Home at Huntington, N. Y.

Believing that "fully 50 per cent of unhappy marriages among young people of the working classes are due to the wife's ignorance of the simplest duties of domestic life," philanthropic women of New York city and Pittsburg are organizing a "wifehood guild," in which, just as business is taught in the Pratt institute, instruction in the duties of the household will be given for a nominal fee.

In a suburban home the guild will teach cooking, housekeeping and nursing to a school of 100 young working girls who will live in the institution during the six months' course. The fee will merely cover expenses.

Lectures on Physiology and Medicine.

Women doctors will lecture on physiology and medicine, so that the students may have some knowledge of the cares of motherhood.

Headquarters of the guild will be at Huntington Manor, N. Y. Three acres of land have been purchased there by the incorporators. Architects are now employed in making plans for a permanent guild house. George Doan Russell, formerly professor of corporation law at the Brooklyn Law school and one of the incorporators, said the other day that a house would be rented temporarily at Huntington Manor, in which headquarters will be opened in the spring.

"Women of New York city and Pittsburg have considered the plan," said Mr. Russell. "One of the founders is Mrs. J. Elsworth Tappan, the wife of a Pittsburg merchant, who is a patron of many Pittsburg philanthropies. Another is Mrs. J. W. Clark of 142 West Eighty-second street, New York city. Both women are prominent socially. They have interested a number of their friends in the project and have already raised the funds to finance it. The Wifehood guild will be conducted on the principle of the Pratt institute, young people who couldn't otherwise afford it receiving education for a nominal fee."

"The organization is the outcome of a good many years of inquiry and observation on the part of its promoters," said Mrs. Tappan.

Full Course In Domestic Economy.

"Thousands of girls upon leaving the public schools immediately go to work in an office or store. These girls get false notions and are no help to the men they marry. Independence is a good thing, but it sometimes unfits girls as good wives and mothers. When a shop or office girl marries the young husband too often finds that his wife, though pretty, doesn't know the rudiments of housekeeping. Then children come, and again the girl has many things to learn.

"When we are ready for work at Huntington Manor we shall receive applicants who can furnish references, and we will give them a residential course in everything pertaining to domestic economy. Our building will accommodate a hundred pupils at a time. Payments may be made at the students' convenience."

Mr. Russell is now drawing up articles of incorporation and will apply for a state charter after getting the authority of a justice of the supreme court.

AGNES BOOTH'S KIND ACT.

How a Little Comedy of the Actress Succeeded Where Tragedy Failed.

Mrs. Agnes Booth Schoeffel, the actress known as Agnes Booth on the stage, who recently died at her home in Brookline, Mass., once acted a part which was appreciated by one person at least. It was not on the stage, so there was no applause, but she had an object in view, and as she accomplished that object her success was what it frequently is in the theater, immediate and overwhelming.

A ragged old harper played to the guests seated on a hotel veranda at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., after breakfast and then held his hat, hoping to hear the coins rattle into it. Most of those present tried to look unconscious, while some of the ladies giggled nervously. Nobody offered any money. Pity and indignation were aroused in Mrs. Booth-Schoeffel (Agnes Booth). She called her small trick dog to her and tossed him a fifty cent piece. The pretty creature caught the coin between his teeth, flipped it up on his nose and, walking on his hind legs, demurely offered the money to the old man.

The comic succeeded where the tragic had failed. Every one laughed, and every one tossed a coin at the dog. Whether he caught all the coins or not, they all found their way into the beggar's pocket.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

PUBLISHED IN THE CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Vol. 24 No. 10 | QUINCY, MASS., WEDNESDAY EVENING, JANUARY 12, 1910 | PRICE TWO CENTS

TEMPORARY LOANS EXCEED UNPAID TAXES

Loans of $425,000.00 Outstanding and Only $405,743.56 Taxes Unpaid

Maturing Debt Will Require All Raised in Anticipation of Taxes

What is the city going to do for money in anticipation of taxes after April 1, even if the $500,000 temporary loan order is passed immediately?

City Treasurer Curtis has kindly furnished the Daily Ledger with the following summary of all the "temporary loans" issued during the year 1909, showing date of issue, amount, and date of maturity of each vote:

Issued.	Due.
Jan. 16, $50,000	Nov. 15, 1909
Feb. 4, $25,000	Feb. 3, 1910
Feb. 13, $50,000	Feb. 12, 1910
Feb. 20, $25,000	Oct. 19, 1909
Feb. 26, $100,000	Feb. 2, 1910
Mar. 31, $100,000	Mar. 30, 1910
Apr. 23, $50,000	Jan. 23, 1910
April 30, $20,000	Jan. 3, 1910
July 1, $20,000	Jan. 30, 1910
July 30, $25,000	Jan. 30, 1910
Sept. 29, $25,000	Mar. 1, 1910
Oct. 22, $10,000	Mar. 22, 1910

Total, $500,000.

Matured in 1909, $75,000.

Mature in 1910, $425,000.

The Daily Ledger finds from the above that $115,000 of this balance of $425,000 matures this month (January 1910); that $175,000 more will mature in February 1910, and the balance of $135,000 in March 1910. This really leaves only $75,000 to raise in anticipation of the taxes of 1910, and all of that is necessary this month for current expenses of 1910, aside from maturing debt.

In addition to the maturing temporary loans there are also maturing loans for municipal debt, maturing loans for water debt, maturing loans for sewer debt, maturing loans for park debt, maturing loans for street improvement debt, and a big item for interest.

Of course there are the uncollected taxes of past years to help out, but this money may not come in fast enough to meet the demands of the city treasury during the early months of the year. The Tax Collector told the City Council on Monday evening that the unpaid taxes of 1909 amounted on Jan. 1 1910, to $287,084.48, and that the total amount of unpaid taxes was $405,743.56. If all taxes were paid they would not cancel the temporary loans outstanding Dec. 31, 1909.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN CLUB

Address on Sacrifices to Rapid Transit

At the meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian club on Tuesday evening, Hon. George G. Crocker, chairman of the Boston Transit commission, delivered an address on "Human sacrifices to rapid transit." Owing to his long experience as president of the State senate, and chairman of the railroad commission, he was well equipped to speak on the subject. Mr. Crocker backed his statements by many convincing statistics.

"Although," said Mr. Crocker, "we may not realize the number of people killed and injured each year in the operation of steam railroads and electric railways in this country, when the statement is made that this number exceeds the number of those killed, wounded and missing at the battles of Gettysburg and Waterloo we may arrive at some conclusion.

"Rapid transit is a serious proposition, and yet it is a necessity of civilization. The more general the intercourse with each other, and the greater the facilities and rapidity in force, so much greater is the degree of civilization. In that city or country in which we find the greatest number traveling in proportion to the population, we find the highest degree of civilization."

"Non-intercourse," said Mr. Crocker, "means stagnation and other attendant evils, while intercourse means knowledge liberality, friendship, peace, activity and life." Mr. Crocker continued by giving statistics relating to the deaths caused by railroads each year in this country. He made the statement that of the 10,000 killed each year, one half were trespassers on the tracks of the railroad.

"Wollaston," he said, "is one example where passengers cross the tracks, and if the method of crossing over head is too roundabout they should see that steps are taken for a means of going under the tracks." This statement was greeted by a burst of applause.

Mr. Crocker compared the record here regarding trespassing with that abroad, where he said it is much better, owing to different conditions which are better. An exhaustive history of the methods of coupling trains was gone into, and the dangers of the old method of the link and pin coupler were shown. He also mentioned the automatic couplers, which, when first put in use, owing to the many different types instead of improving conditions resulted in a deadly diversity.

In closing, Mr. Crockers demonstrated the possibilities of accidents in this state. He said that, according to statistics, if a person should take up his residence on a train in Massachusetts traveling 28 miles an hour, in a month he would travel 25,000 miles, a distance equal to the earth's circumference. At this rate he said one could travel 2000 years without being killed on the railroad.

Mr. Crocker interspersed his address with several interesting and amusing stories which were appreciated by the audience.

The usual roast beef supper was served, the blessing being asked by the Rev. Carl G. Horst.

DR. BURTON'S LECTURE.

Dr. Richard Burton of Minneapolis who is east on a lecture tour, was at the Quincy Mansion school Tuesday evening, where he was greeted by a good-sized audience made up of the faculty, students and friends of the school.

Owing to a delay in getting to Boston from Milford where he lectured in the afternoon before the Women's club, Dr. Burton was a few minutes late in arriving, but the wait was short and was passed in singing and conversation. He was given a cordial greeting and the audience prepared to enjoy the literary feast and wit which makes Dr. Burton so popular as a lecturer.

His subject was Robert Louis Stevenson and proved an interesting one. Although tired from his recent journeyings Dr. Burton's pleasing personality asserted itself and the audience was with him as he told of the life of Stevenson and gave selections from his works. The lecture was scholarly instructive and entertaining.

SLOW WORK BY BOSTON.

Work building the new draw on the Neponset bridge does not progress very rapidly and at the present rate it will be some time yet before cars can run over it. When work was commenced nearly a month ago building the new draw, it was to be all completed in three weeks. Up to the present time, however, the westerly side only is completed and attention is being given to the easterly side. The planking on this side has been torn up, but the old timbers have not been taken out. These timbers are to be replaced by steel beams so that when completed the draw will be flat instead of being bulged up in the centre like a tent.

BANK OFFICERS.

The annual meeting of the National Granite bank was held Tuesday, and these directors elected: Theophilus King, Rupert F. Claflin, Joseph H. Vogel, James Thompson, Clarence Burgin, Delcevare King, Russell A. Sears, Henry L. Kincaide, Henry G. Smith and Thomas F. Mannex.

The National Mt. Wollaston banks has elected these officers: Charles A. Howland, Herbert F. Doble, George H. Field, Henry M. Faxon, George W. Morton, Frank S. Patch, H. Everett Crane and C. Theodore Hardwick. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Henry M. Faxon was elected president.

PROSPEROUS SUNDAY SCHOOL

Some Good Records for Regular Attendance.

The annual meeting of the Wollaston Baptist Sunday school was held in the chapel of the church on Tuesday evening.

The following officers were elected:

Superintendent—E. L. Durgin.

Assistant Superintendent — Harry Burgess.

Secretary and Treasurer—O. A. Blaisdell.

Assistant Secretary and Treasurer—Miss Isabel L. Albee.

Auditor—Charles B. Hall.

Superintendent Primary Department—Mrs. Charles B. Hall.

Superintendent Home Department—Miss Grace Shermerhorn.

Librarian—Francis Corey.

Musical Director—Amos D. Albee.

Pianist—Mrs. C. M. Roach, Mrs. Charles Young, Mrs. J. P. Perry, Mrs. Joseph Walther, Miss May Critchley.

Various questions pertaining to the accommodations of scholars were acted upon and reports of various committees received. The school is in a most prosperous condition and during the past year has made a net gain of 113 members bringing the present enrollment of active members to 330. Besides this other departments of the Sunday school have 59 members bringing the total still higher. The school has had an average attendance of 201 the past year. Special mention should be made of two young ladies, Miss Edna Rhodes and Miss May Critchley, the former having been present every Sunday for the past seven years, and the latter for five years.

Those present every Sunday the past year were: Rev. Joseph Walther, James Mitchell, George McDonald, and Miss Evelyn McFarland. During the year the Sunday school has contributed $300 to various benevolences including the Quincy Y. M. C. A., Boston Floating Hospital and others, and at present has a handsome balance on the right side.

PUBLIC BEQUESTS.

The will of Henry A. Johnson of Braintree, which was admitted to probate at Quincy this morning, makes the following public bequests: $500 each to American Board of Commissioners of Foreign Missions, the City Missionary Society, the Instructive District Nursing Association and the Salvation Army, all of Boston.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The "Of Public Interest" column seems to be in almost daily use, and the editor is glad of it and hopes the people will use it as their own, and every day bring before Ledger readers matters of importance to the welfare of the city. The column is open to every one for a fair discussion of city affairs civic improvements and topics of the day.

There may be some who would not vote "No" on the License question if they thought it would be difficult to obtain liquor from outside, but a large majority of the No-License voters are conscientious and would not only banish saloons, but liquor itself, They would like to have the City Council refuse to grant any express permits. If one must be granted under the law, let it be to the Albott & Miller Express Company or some other reliable express that will not abuse it or consolidate with other expresses. It is said the City Council will be asked to limit the express permits to one.

It is not surprising that no one could predict with any degree of certainty the result of the Boston election. Ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald is elected by a plurality of about 1400. Perhaps the greatest surprises were the small votes of Mayor Hibbard and Mr. Taylor. Fitzgerald carried 15 of the 25 wards. Only the Back Bay, Dorchester and West Roxbury wards were for Storrow. The vote for license was about two to one. Mr. Ellis was handsomely reelected on the school board.

Is it really necessary for the City Council to adopt a newsboys ordinance to abate the nuisance created of late in City Square by a Boston newspaper? There is an ordinance now which prevents the hawking of goods on the streets. Then the proposed ordinance may not accomplish what it is designed to do. The writer was a newsboy before he was twelve years of age, and sees no objection to boys under 12, or even under 10 years selling newspapers for an hour after school each afternoon, without a license. There would be more sense in forbidding boys over 18 or 20 years old selling papers on the streets. Or prohibiting sales by newsboys during school hours. With a license would probably go a fee, and newsboys could not afford to pay it, or would hesitate to get a license. At election time boys who wish to sell for one night only would be prevented. People in general might find it difficult to get their favorite paper or might have to pay extra to have it delivered.

The conference which is to be held in Washington this month to promote legislation ought to have the support of every citizen in the land. Back of this movement stands the Civic Federation whose activities were never devoted to a more worthy cause. Seth Low, former mayor of New York, will preside at the Washington conference and the speakers will include President Taft. Governor Charles E. Hughes, Judge Alton B. Parker, Andrew Carnegie and other distinguished students of political and social problems.

The need of uniform legislation is manifestly desirable. Improved facilities of transportation ,the investment of capital, the development of corporations and the multiplicity of subjects which were not thought of half a century ago have brought problems which, under our form of government, are most difficult to solve. Uniform legislation by the States themselves, where uniformity is desirable, will remove one of the greatest difficulties and answer the strongest argument in favor of extending the power of the Federal Government.

It is inevitable that the forthcoming conference will have to thrash out a contest over the question of the rights of the states. It is sincerely to be hoped that this will not involve a clash which will result in a division of the forces of the Federation. There is plenty of work at hand for such an organization to promote without treading on the toes of those who look with dread on the growing power of the central government.

In the first place there are a number of bills which the National Association of Uniform State Law Commissioners ,a body formed some eighteen years ago on the initiative of the American Bar Association, has unanimously endorsed. These measures include the negotiable instruments act, which has been adopted by thirty-eight states; the warehouse receipts act, adopted by eighteen states and territories; the sales of goods act, adopted by six states and territories and the divorce act adopted by three states. Uniform state legislation upon pure food, child labor, the liability of employers, the incorporation of companies, the regulation of automobiles, the issue of securities, road building, control of mines, etc., are most desirable. The work of the Washington conference will be available for a dozen or more state legislatures which meet this winter.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

Barre is worrying lest the strike destroy her chance of passing Rutland in the population race of the present census. The census of 1900 gave Barre 8,488 population and Rutland 11,499. Barre has made great strides in 10 years, but her vaulting ambition may need an excuse when the figures are in. The strike will do as well as any.—Rutland Herald.

The spectacle of the mayor of a city taking position as chief of police is something novel. The mayor of Salem has assumed command of the police force of his city, and his course will be watched with interest. He has notified all persons known to be engaged in illegal business to close up their places within the next ten days. He possesses one advantage over the average mayor, for he cannot transfer his responsibility and he can always count upon his orders being obeyed. That is if he is sure of his subordinates. Chiefs of police have been known to fail because the patrolmen were so sure of being kept in place by influential friends that they would defy their superior officer. Mayor Howard can remove a policeman who is not satisfactory to him in the performance of his duty, for the civil service law does not protect the man who is unfaithful to his oath of office. The situation is novel, and so is the mayor of Salem. He has promised well, but how will he perform?—Lynn Item.

WATER TWENTY FEET HIGH

Flood Sweeping Through Canyon Destroys Arizona Indian Village

Washington, Jan. 12.—An official report of the destruction of the Indian village of Supai, Ariz., by a wall of water twenty feet high, which rushed down the canyon, has been received at the bureau of Indian affairs from Charles E. Coe, superintendent of the Havasupai Indian schools there, who writes that the flood was caused by a sudden melting of heavy snow.

This flood broke out reservoirs in the cataract, draining the basin, sweeping through the village at daylight. All buildings were swept away, and the employes of the school escaped after being in the icy waters four hours. Only one death has been reported, as a great majority of the Indians were in the hills.

Coe wrote his superior officer that he is still too exhausted to give a detailed report of the catastrophe.

ASKED FOR PENSION

Former Camp-Follower Arrested For Making False Affidavit

New York, Jan. 12.—Edward Volckmer, aged 65, was arrested by federal officers in Brooklyn, charged with making a false affidavit to procure a pension from the government under the name of a veteran now dead.

The prisoner, it is said, has confessed that he attempted to represent himself as Edward O'Brien of the Sixteenth Massachusetts infantry volunteers, who was honorably discharged and drew a pension up to the time of his death in 1894.

Volckmer was never an enlisted soldier, but was a camp-follower with the army of the Potomac.

After he had finished his friend turned to him with a sigh. "I wish to goodness you had remembered the name and not the tune," he said.—Lippincott's.

WOLLASTON AROUSED

Defects Of Old Schoolhouse Pointed Out

The movement in favor of a new schoolhouse for Wollaston is now well underway, and since the organization of a committee last week the work has advanced in rapid strides.

Petitions, in charge of Herbert Albee, are to be circulated among the voters of the ward, and others will be circulated among the ladies.

Under the auspices of the committee, Dr. William H. Burnham of Clark University will lecture on "The ideal schoolhouse" in the Wollaston Baptist church on Thursday evening, January 20. It is expected that the Mayor and other city officials will attend this meeting, to which the public are invited, and where it is proposed to discuss the question.

Admission will be by tickets, which may be obtained free of charge from the following persons comprising the Wollaston schoolhouse committee: Rufus B. Tobey, chairman, Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham, secretary; Mrs. Chas. H. Bedell, Chester N. Godfrey, Amos T. Leavitt, John L. Miller, Dr. Wellington Record, J. E. Walter, Percy L. Davidson, E. H. Ewertz, A. N. Murray and two members of the Wollaston Unitarian club to be selected.

The need of a new schoolhouse has been present in the minds of a great many people in Wollaston for some time but it was not until the matter was brought to public attention at the last meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club that it was discovered that any organized effort was being made. Then it was found that several interests were already working toward this end. These interests have now been combined in the above committee, and it is thought that the project, which has the hearty endorsement of all residents and public officials approached, will go steadily on to the desired result.

A visit to the school discloses conditions, which although not alarming to any great extent from a sanitary standpoint, are not in line with the modern conditions in force in other localities. The building, which is a wooden affair, was built some 30 years ago and consisted of the front portion of the present building, the school occupying the westerly wing and the easterly wing being used as a place of worship by the Methodist church. Increased enrollment soon enforced the use of the entire building for school purposes, and later an addition was constructed in the rear.

At present the school has an enrollment of about 425, distributed in the nine rooms of the building. This number is increasing at the approximate rate of about 25 each year.

As some of the rooms are not of standard size the arrangement of double rows of seats is necessitated, which works to the disadvantage of both teacher and scholar. The desks are of the old non-adjustable type, which causes some misfits ,the scholars in each room unfortunately, not being all of the same height.

On the lower floor are situated the first, second, sixth and eighth grades with a combination sixth and eighth. On the upper floor are the third, fourth, fifth and seventh grades.

Should a serious fire break out, conditions in the school might be appalling, and the second floor where over 200 children are situated, in event of a panic, could easily become a death trap. This is especially true owing to the location of some of the younger children on the upper floor. There are two exits to the ground floor, but both are dark and narrow staircases. At the top these are so near each other that should a rush be made for the stairs a congestion would be liable to ensure. The only remaining means of exit is by an antiquated fire escape, recently condemned, which necessitates a drop of 7 or 8 feet.

As might be supposed in a building of this kind, to which an addition has been made, the matters of heat, light and ventilation are not as well arranged as in a more modern building. The heating, for instance, is provided by five furnaces in different parts of the basement ,and in extremely cold weather cannot be said to be wholly satisfactory. Lighting conditions in some of the rooms might be improved, as the windows are grouped in such a manner that while the adjacent seats receive plenty of light some of the others are not as well favored.

The ventilation in the school is of what is known as the gravity type. This, according to weather conditions, works very well at times. The present toilet arrangements, which have been more or less referred to, are of the old-fashioned plumbing and are not of the style which should be found in any schoolhouse of a city the size of Quincy. These with a few minor disadvantages, such as the situation of the principal's room whose only means of egress is through a class room, and the present drinking system in force, constitute the principal objections to the present building.

Rufus B. Tobey, chairman of the new committee, when approached on the subject gave it as his opinion that Wollaston had waited long enough for this improvement which they should have had sooner, and although in the past they had yielded to the needs of other parts of the city, the time had now come when it should no longer be put off.

Mr. Goodspeed, principal of the school, is thoroughly in sypmathy with the movement and said that while, with some repairs, the present building might be made to do for a few years more, eventually some definite action would have to be taken.

In the opinion of the majority of those conversant with the coinditions at the Wollaston school, the idea of satisfactorily repairing and remodeling the present structure the entirely out of the question, and the only practicable step is the erection of a new building, which will embody the modern conditions by which school life should be surrounded and provide for the increasing population of Wollaston.

SPANISH MINISTER IS TRANSFERRED

De Villalobar Says He Is Much Surprised at the News

Madrid, Jan. 12.—Marquis de Villalobar, Spanish minister to Washington, has been transferred to Lisbon.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Marquis de Villalobar, when informed that he had been transferred, said: "You greatly surprise me. I do not understand it at all, and there must be some mistake. Don't you think it likely that your correspondent at Madrid is in error?"

After being assured that the news was apparently authentic, the minister was asked if anything had occurred here which might have led to his transfer. In reply the marquis denounced as absolutely untrue the story to the effect that he had been the leading figure in an unpleasant episode at the recent diplomatic reception at the White House. On the occasion, the story ran, the Spanish minister was separated with the other ministers from the foreign ambassadors and that he resented this classification.

ABSENT TWO DAYS

Husband Has No Good Excuse and Wife Is Granted Divorce

Pittsburg, Jan. 21.—When a husband absents himself from his home forty-eight hours without legitimate excuse, and refuses to tell his wife where he has spent his time, he is legally supposed to be at fault, and his wife entitled to a divorce.

That is the opinion of Judge Cohen of the divorce court in this city, who rendered the decision in granting a divorce in the case of Mrs. Rosini Pasetti against her recreant spouse. The jurist decided that a wife is entitled to know what her husband has been doing and where he has been during a term of absence.

MAY LOSE STEAMERS

Canada Must Pay Subsidy to Keep Big White Star Boats

Ottawa, Jan. 12.—The big White Star steamers Laurentic and Megantic, the largest vessels running to Canada, will be withdrawn from the St. Lawrence route and will run to New York unless the Canadian government gives a subsidy to hold the boats in the Canadian trade.

The company claims to have run to Montreal last year at a loss. The dominion government is now considering the question of subsidizing them.

BOSTON CASTS RECORD VOTE

More Than 95,000 Citizens Express Preference For Mayor

Boston, Jan. 12.—John F. Fitzgerald was yesterday elected mayor of Boston by a plurality of 1415 in the largest vote polled at any Boston city election, and by a margin which both he and his campaign managers say is absolutely safe against the recount which his leading opponent, James J. Storrow, will ask for. The vote for mayor was:

Total vote	95,358
Fitzgerald	47,172
Storrow	45,757
Hibbard	1,816
Taylor	613
Fitzgerald's plurality	1,415

The city was carried for license by 27,122.

The "stay-at-home" vote, about 15,000 strong, came out, and, instead of voting solidly, divided between Fitzgerald and Storrow.

An analysis of the figures indicates that the Fitzgerald vote came mainly from the regular Democratic strongholds. In addition he got a good share of the silent vote, which included several thousands of Republicans. These Republican votes came from every quarter of the city to swell the Democratic numbers, and they deserted Mayor Hibbard. Had the Republicans who cast their votes for Fitzgerald remained loyal to Hibbard Storrow would probably have won, and it seems that the mayor can justly claim that he defeated Storrow by remaining in the field.

Complete returns show that the Citizens' Municipal league and Good Government association will control the new single chamber council. Eight of the nine league candidates are apparently elected, and of these six have the good government indorsement. The only regular Democrat to win is Curley.

Chairman David A. Ellis of the school board was elected by about 13,105 majority over Mrs. Julia E. Duff.

A more exhausted gathering of ward leaders has never been seen than those gathered at the various headquarters and at city hall after the polls had closed. The most seasoned campaigners admitted that they had gone through the most terrific struggle of their lives.

Hundreds of automobiles whirled through the streets all day, and thousands of ward workers struggled to get out the very few voters who did not themselves come to the polls.

The spectacle of the crowd rushing to vote, in great contrast to some elections, where men could not be dragged to the polls, was so amazing that the politicians who were on the scene looked on in wonder. It is now estimated that practically every voter who was in the city, and who was well enough to get out of doors, registered his decision as to who should govern the city of Boston for the next four years. In one precinct every man on the voting list was registered as having voted except three who were dead, four who were not in Boston and four who were sick in bed.

The meagreness of the Hibbard and Taylor vote was the cause of much comment during the entire evening comment among the politicians. The voters had decided that the contest was between Storrow and Fitzgerald, and that they did not wish to vote for candidates who seemed to have no chance of winning.

The explanation of the Hibbard vote was that it consisted of those who believed that the mayor's administration deserved an indorsement, regardless of whether he could win or not. It is widely conceded that, had Hibbard not been a candidate, many, if not all, of these votes would naturally have been cast for Storrow.

John F. Fitzgerald was born in the North End of Boston Feb. 11, 1865; graduate of the Eliot grammar and Boston Latin schools; attended Harvard medical school in 1885; clerical position in Boston custom house 1886 to 1891; common council from ward 6, 1892; senate 1893 and 1894; congressman from ninth district 1895 to 1901; editor and publisher of The Republic, a Catholic weekly newspaper, from 1901 to date; mayor of Boston 1906 and 1907; defeated for re-election two years ago by Mayor Hibbard; elected to all the above offices as a Democrat; is married and has six children, and since 1900 has resided in ward 24, Dorchester.

Government Officials "on Probation"

Washington, Jan. 12.—The senate committee on finance has decided to postpone indefinitely the question of the confirmation of Commissioner of Internal Revenue Cabell and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Curtis. This action is taken here as intended to put those men on their good behavior, as it were.

ART OF DANCING.

The newest craze in dancing this season is the Long Boston, which is essentially an American dance. It differs from the Boston, which was the favored dance last season, in the fact that it is an absolute glide, while the latter is more of a hop.

"It will be observed," said Oscar Duryea, one of the leading dancing masters of this city and author of "Dance Poems," that we are gradually attaining perfection in the art of dancing. We are taking up the study of aesthetics and forming our dances along those lines. In the perfect dance the feet are nearer together than in the dances which we have adopted heretofore. The Long Boston is as near perfection, as we can make it, and still have the right step.

"As for the steps in the new dance, like the waltz the right foot forward and left back takes you to the right, and left forward and right back is the reverse. All three counts are taken with the weight on one foot, only transferring for the next three counts, and the foot on which there is no weight should be pointed gracefully, barely touching the floor. On counts two and three the motion is upward on the toes and down again.

"The barn dance is still being used, but is superseded by the Spanish Boston, which admits of great display of picturesque grace. The lancers are the only square dance left. The cotillion, of course, is always popular.

"The greatest progress along lines of dancing is in the way of aesthetics, which is a sort of calisthenics and dancing combined, to the accompaniment of musical selections.

"It has been said you can never teach an old dog new tricks, yet one can never be too old to learn to dance. We have people of all ages in our classes—even bald-headed men. We never say die. There is never a hopeless case. It is just as essential that one should learn to dance correctly as to perform any other social function properly. It cannot be picked up, it must be taught and practiced.

"Yet the art of dancing is neglected to a shocking degree. We have talked waltz in our meetings, and we have taught it in our classes, yet go to a fashionable dance at present, and just as soon as the orchestra begins to play a waltz you will see people get out on the floor and go through the evolution of a two-step absolutely wrong in time, balance, rhythm, and, of course, wholly lacking in grace and charm.

"There are four associations of dancing masters in the United States, and we have been of one voice in declaring that the dance of the great mass of people is absolutely wrong—that they cannot dance a two-step to waltz time.

"Good dancing means a good idea of rhythm. With a sense of time the battle is more than half won.

"People regard the art of dancing with not sufficient seriousness. They believe any one can teach dancing, they are mistaken; it is as much of a study as any other art. Out of seventy-one appliactns who are studying to teach dancing only thirty-one obtained diplomas last summer. The teacher who is qualified must not only understand how a dance should be done but be able to execute the steps absolutely correctly.

"There are as many incompetent people going about teaching dancing and as much money wasted thereby as in music, which is saying a good deal. They do incalculable harm, because incorrect methods are taught beginners, frequently in childhood, and they are difficult to overcome. It takes quite as much time and pains to correct them as to teach them to dance correctly in the beginning."—New York Times.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

After several weeks' vacation during the holiday season, the Quincy Women's club resumed meetings on Tuesday afternoon, a large number being present to greet Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, the speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney, president, called the club to order promptly for the business session. Following reports by the secretary and treasurer, reports were given of the works of the committees.

The Arts and Crafts committee announced an exhibition for the next meeting and that further arrangements would be made for classes.

Civic committee gave an interesting account of money saving in the grammar schools, showing 3532 depositors and a balance of $5,105.53 on hand.

Music committee announced that the next meeting would be the annual musicale and a fine program would be given by the Caroline Belcher String Quartet and Elsie Leighton Livermore, who would give original monologues. The committee would like a few more singers for the chorus in the operetta to be given soon.

Visiting Nurse committee reported good work being done by the Nurse and asked for contributions from club members to help pay the Nurse's salary during the summer months.

Home Economics committee reported an extension of the exchange department, for besides the sales on club afternoons, W. G. Shaw had offered the use of his large show window for the use of the exchange on Saturday afternoons. The exchange was for the mutual benefit of women and it was necessary that there should be consigners as well as buyers. Fuller details could be had of Mrs. John T. Conway or Miss Carrie Hatch.

Mrs. Park spoke of the Massachusetts child labor laws and the need of shorter hours and a physical inspection. Massachusetts is by no means at the head, many streets having better laws. She asked that the secretary be instructed to send the approval of the club for the passage of bill for better laws.

Mrs. Gurney announced a recital at First Church chapel on Friday evening by the Westland quartet under the auspices of Quincy Alliance. Two of the quartet, Miss Coe and Mrs. Moore, were members of the club, whose singing always gave pleasure. Announcement was made of a concert at Braintree under the auspices of the Philergians next Tuesday evening for the benefit of tuberculosis work. Also for the Art and Literature Committee Mrs. Gurney spoke of the gentlemen's night on Wednesday evening. Club members and escorts were invited to attend and enjoy the reading of "A Winter's Tale," by Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree. No admission was asked it being complimentary to the club.

As announced at the last meeting, the By-laws were taken up article by article and section by section and read and approved by the club. At a future meeting they will be given a final consideration and also the proposed new rules and regulations for governing the club.

This closed the business for the afternoon and Mrs. Gurney introduced Mrs. Robert E. Park of the Program committee. The music was in charge of Mrs. Doble and Mrs. Faxon and consisted of solos by Miss Bernice E. Wright, accompanied at the piano by her sister Miss Josephine M. Wright. Miss Wright gave a group of songs, "Beloved, it is morn" by Florence Aylward; "Bowl of Roses" by Robert Clarke and "Rosy Morn" by Landon Ronald, all of which admirably suited her rich contralto voice.

Mrs. Park introduced very happily Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, who for an hour or more gave some of her personal reminiscences of distinguished people. The brief sketches and glimpses into the home and every day life of well known authors and men who have passed from this life, brightly told by Mrs. Hall in word pictures and by old letters was most interesting. Henry W. Longfellow, Horace Mann, Dr. Agassiz, Dr. Holmes, Dr. Samuel G. Howe, Prof. Felton Charles Sumner, Whipple, Clough, Emerson, familiar through history and readings all have an added interest because of the personal glimpse into their lives as given by Mrs. Hall.

After the meeting the Exchange was well patronized, the tables being unusually attractive with home made cake, pastry, bread, rolls and the like.

Tomorrow afternoon the Current Events class meets at the club house at three o'clock, Mrs. May Alden Ward, lecturer.

Friday afternoon at half past two at the club house will be given the last of the demonstration lectures by Mrs. Mary L. Wade, her subject being Cheese and Nut Dishes.

The musicale will be at the club house on Jan. 25.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

The Alliance met in the chapel Monday afternoon at three o'clock for their regular meeting. The president, Mrs. E. B. Marsh opened the meeting and after the usual devotional exercises Mrs. Christiansen, the corresponding secretary read the recording secretary's report, the latter, Mrs. E. B. Nichols, being unable to attend because of illness. Mrs. Christiansen also read several communications among them being an invitation to an all day meeting of the Alliance of Unity church, Brockton, in their church, Tuesday, Jan. 11, and an invitation to attend a meeting of the Branch Alliance of Milton, to be held Tuesday, Feb. 15. Announcement was also made of the meeting of the New England Associate Alliance in Channing church, Newton, Jan. 27.

A letter was read from Potter Place, N. H., thanking the Alliance for the three articles sent them for their fair and telling of the success of this fair.

Mrs. Saville then read a letter from Calhoun thanking the Alliance for a barrel of clothing recently sent there, and appealing for old linen, cotton or bandages as there was an epidemic of smallpox in that place and therefore great and urgent need for these articles. Mrs. Saville said she would receive the articles at her home and as soon as there was a sufficient amount would send them.

Mrs. Marsh then called upon Mrs. A. I. Davis, who read of another way to dispose of cast off garments, namely to send them into Boston for the poor immigrants landing here. The article Mrs. Davis read was from the Transcript.

Mrs. Saville next read from Word and Work, of the great good work of Rev. F. W. Pratt and an appeal from Winnipeg for $.50 to buy one square foot of land for a site for a church in that place. Rev. Mr. Pratt is engaged in his work in and about Winnipeg. Mrs. Charles A. Spear read an interesting article on Calhoun.

Mrs. Butler next gave a very good report of the Christmas party, saying ten mothers and over forty children had been invited. She said the first party was held in 1896 and with two exceptions ,one had been given every year since and she heartily hoped they never would again be abolished .

The afternoons' program opened with a very much enjoyed piano solo by Miss Flora Underwood. Prof. Charles Bickford was then introduced who spoke on John Townsend Trowbridge and a group of his poems. Prof. Bickford said this man was "A man after his own heart, "as was said of King David, and when the speaker closed, everyone present was of the same opinion, so clearly and interestingly did Prof. Bickford bring out his struggles and characteristics and so feelingly did he give his poems. The three poems given were, "Author's Night," "One Day's Solitary" and "The Vagabonds."

Before the meeting closed, Mrs. Marsh made two announcements, one of the concert to be given Wednesday, Jan. 19, by Mr. C. Pol Plancon and Mrs. A. I. Davis and second of the third Alliance entertainment to be held Friday evening in the chapel.

Hot cocoa and fancy crackers were then served, the pourers being Mrs. Edward Russell and Mrs. John O. Holden and a social time enjoyed.

JUNIOR ALLIANCE.

The Junior Alliance met in the ladies' parlor of First church, Monday evening with a very small number present. The president, Miss Elsie Turner, was in the chair and after the usual opening exercises, conducted the business session. It was unanimously voted to take one membership in the Consumer's league, which would mean the receipt of all the literature issued, concerning the league's work and would thus give the Alliance an opening for good work along this line. Mrs. Butler made an appeal for linen, cotton, bandages, etc., for the poor small pox sufferers in Calhoun, and said Mrs. Saville would receive all contributions of this kind at her home. The question of the immediate need of raising funds was then brought forward, and after some discussion, it was left to the Dramatic committee to arrange for some sort of an entertainment.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith was the first speaker of the evening. Mrs. Smith was to have spoken at the last meeting, but on account of the absence of electric lights, and the few members present, her talk was necessarily postponed. Mrs. Smith's subject was one of paramount interest to the Alliance at the present time, namely, the way other Junior Alliances are progressing; their methods of raising money; their social times; their efforts along philanthropic lines; and the way they assist their church. Mrs. Smith was given a rising vote of thanks at the conclusion of the talk which was delightfully informal.

Miss Ella Packard was the second speaker, and she read a well written and carefully prepared paper on James Freeman Clarke.

BRIEFS

John Stephen has returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Eastham at Barre, Vt.

Huntington R. Hardwick returned to Groton, Tuesday after spending the holidays at his home on Chestnut street.

Cochato club of Braintree is getting to be quite an old club. This week Friday evening it gives its tenth annual ball. Music will be by Mullaily's orchestra and the affair promises to be a brilliant success.

It is expected that Senator Hultman and Representative Thomas and Langelier will be present Thursday night at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association. The matter of improved street and steam railroad service will be considered.

"Spain, present day conditions," will be the subject of the meeting of the Pickwick club at its meeting next week at the home of Miss Hattie E. Sargent. The arrangement of the program is in the hands of J. O. Hall and H. J. Gurney.

The Meadow Brook Ice Co. have about 12 inches of ice on the South Quincy pond part of which is snow ice. They have not commenced to cut yet as they want the weather to moderate a little so that they can cut off the snow ice on top. They have, however, cut some good ice at their pond at Quincy Neck.

That the Westland Quartet has won many friends and ardent admirers of their work, in the two summers they have been at Ferry Beach, Maine, was shown by the enthusiasm with which they were received at the reunion of the Ferry Beach Park Association, in Beacon hall Brookline, Monday evening, making their singing a feature of the evening.

The Young People's Religious Union of First church hold a Neighborhood meeting, Sunday evening in the chapel. Miss Minnie Packard has charge of the meeting and has secured a very interesting speaker, as well as having arranged for an informal reception to be held directly after the regular meeting. There will be special music by J. Barraja,Frauenfelder and the Y. P. R. U. choir.

Pension For Mrs. Cleveland

Washington, Jan. 12.—A pension of $5000 a year is due Mrs. Grover Cleveland, according to precedents, and Senator Root presented to the Senate a bill making the grant. The amount is the same as was allowed to widows of former presidents.

Explosion Kills Three Men

Bloomington, Ills., Jan. 12.—An explosion wrecked the water gas plant of the Union Gas and Electric company, hurling portions of the building far away, killing three men and seriously injuring four others.

AN OVERTURN AT THE POLLS

Congressional Leaders Privately Expect It Next Fall

CONFERENCES OF INSURGENTS

Steadied by Gardner's Return to Leadership—Doubt About Their Position In Land Investigation—Hardest Kind of Game Will Be Played Against Them by Regulars—Cannon Says He Will Sit Tight

Washington, Jan. 12.—The house insurgents are testing their strength by personal conferences and trying to decide whether enough Republicans will stand against the regular organization to warrant them in keeping up a running fight. They met in secret conference and delegated Representative Gardner of Massachusetts to represent them in the future. The return to leadership of Gardner has had a steadying effect on the insurgent band. Whatever course they finally decide upon will be carefully planned.

The immediate question at issue is whether to take part in the forthcoming caucus to select a committee to conduct the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation. Representative Currier of New Hampshire will be chairman of this caucus.

The caucus to name an investigating committee will be made the test of Republicanism. The leaders have made it clear that the man elected as a Republican who fails to attend the caucus or to abide by its decision will by that action be considered as doffing his Republicanism, and be treated accordingly. Some of the insurgents hesitate to take such a step, in view of the loss of prestige and influence it will entail.

The regulars in the house are more determined than ever to play the hardest kind of a game against the rebel Republicans. The discrimination systematically practiced against the insurgents grew out of the action of Representative Nelson of Wisconsin during the tariff session, in arranging a pair through the Democratic leader, Champ Clark. Since then the regulars have been on the watch for party irregularities of this kind. A failure to caucus with the Republicans would rule out the insurgents in a bunch instead of individually. The senate will adopt the same method.

The first proposition there was to deprive the seven irreconcilables of the committee places, the next to ignore them in the making of future committee appointments. Both were abandoned as impractical, partly on the ground that no one had authority to define exactly what constitutes a Republican. The caucus system answers the question, for all practical purposes, and by all the rules of party precedent justifies any punishment the majority may decide to inflict upon a "renegade."

Statesmen outside the immediate house squabble are saying that the Ballinger-Pinchot row and the house row already guarantee a Democratic house next fall.

They blame the Cannon organization for its ruthless tactics and Cannon for his position stated last fall ruling out of the party the men who had opposed him. Gardner probably had these grave consequences in mind when he abandoned his insurgency a few weeks ago, on the assurance of the speaker's friends that Cannon would announce his intention to retire during the Christmas holidays. Cannon came back to Washington and the situation looked promising, when the trouble precipitated by the Pinchot resolution broke out in the house and now the speaker announces that he must be thrown out bodily if he is to leave the chair.

His followers, with the blind zeal borne of long-used power, are playing his game as relentlessly as if the fate of their party were not involved in the result.

The "leaders" are saying that they expect to put most of the president's program through, but they are hurting the president with the country by assuming that Taft approves Cannon. The truth is that the leaders do not dare stand against the essentials of the president's program, for they know that its execution is a political necessity. Privately they are of the opinion that not all the progressive legislation in the world can prevent an overturn at the polls next fall if the cost of living remains as high as at present.

Granite Cutters Anxious to Work

Barre, Vt., Jan. 12.—Without connection with the general situation, about 1500 granite cutters of this city adopted resolutions favoring the resumption of work in the sheds of this city.

British Steamer Sunk

Grimsby, Eng., Jan. 12.—The German mail steamer Mecklenburg struck the British steamer Hadrian near here and sank her. The Hadrian sank immediately. Many are missing.

Bank Cashier a Fugitive

Kennesaw, Ga., Jan. 12.—The Kennesaw bank is closed and Cashier Whitaker is missing. A big shortage is reported.

HURLS CLUBS AMID DINERS

Starving Man Unable to Resist Committing a Rash Act

New York, Jan. 12.—Henry Westerburg, a carpenter long out of a job and emaciated for want of food, hurled two big Indian clubs through a plate glass window of the dining room at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel last night. The crash of glass threw the diners into confusion, but nobody was hurt.

In the police court Westerburg said he had been out of work for four months. He had been trying to pick up a few pennies swinging Indian clubs, but had been unsuccessful.

"I was hungry," he added, "and as I stood and looked at everybody eating and drinking my arm came up and I threw the clubs. I just couldn't help it."

When Westerburg went to his cell in default of bail a steaming meal was sent in with the "compliments of the court."

BANKER'S DAUGHTER ELOPES

Heiress Succumbs to Charms of Her "Candy Kid" Chauffeur

New York, Jan. 12.—Defying her parents, Miss Margaret H. Leavitt, 25 years old, daughter of Banker and Mrs. G. H. Leavitt of Bayside, L. I., worth $1,000,000 in her own right and member of one of the most prominent families of Long Island, slipped away to Jersey City and married Joseph F. Smollen, her chauffeur, who is four years her junior and is known as "the Candy Kid" because of his good looks.

Today the couple are on their way south to spend their honeymoon, because her parents were unwilling to receive the former chauffeur into their home as a son-in-law.

TRADE OF NATIONS IS JEOPARDIZED

America and Germany In Bitter Struggle Over Tariffs

Washington, Jan. 12.—Nearly half a million dollars' worth of trade is the stake in the game of diplomacy now in progress between America and Germany, and the issue will be known within a month.

On Feb. 7, in accordance with the notice given to Germany last April by the state department, the reciprocity arrangement made under the terms of the Dingley act with Germany will expire, and simultaneously the general tariff rates of that country will apply to all imports from America, unless in the short period of time intervening Secretary Knox and the German ambassador shall be able to reach a mutually satisfactory understanding.

At this moment the indications are that this understanding is beyond attainment and that it will be only under the stress of a bitter and costly struggle that the two nations can compose their differences and restore their trade to normal conditions.

STALLED IN SNOWDRIFT

Virginia Couple Made Man and Wife Under Unique Circumstances

Winchester, Va., Jan. 12.—The unique experience of being married in a snowdrift belongs to Thomas Stickley, a young farmer, and Miss Florence Merkley of New Market.

Stickley and his bride-to-be started to drive to a minister's in Mount Jackson. Snowdrift after snowdrift was encountered. The horses became exhausted and the vehicle finally came to a stop in a five-foot drift.

Leaving Miss Merkley, Stickley made his way on foot to the home of Rev. Henry Ditzer, who returned and married the couple in the drift on the road.

AWARDED $500 DAMAGES

Strikebreaker Claimed That Man Tried to Throw Her Into River

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 12.—Nellie Anderson, a hat trimmer in the employ of Crofut & Knapp of Norwalk, was awarded $500 damages in the superior court in her suit against John Higgins for an assault committed upon her by the latter during a strike at the factory.

The Anderson girl was employed as a strikebreaker and was attacked by Higgins, who attempted to throw her into the river as she was leaving the factory. Higgins could not pay and was locked up.

For Shorter Senate Session

Washington, Jan. 12.—Senator Bailey announces that he has received so many comments approving his plan for beginning the daily sessions at 2 p. m. instead of noon that he proposes to call the measure up for consideration.

Army Bill Passes House

Washington, Jan. 12.—Carrying an appropriation of $95,200,000 for the maintenance of the army for the fiscal year of 1911, the army appropriation bill passed the house by a vote of 183 to 106.

Trapper Kills a Trapper

Hartford, Jan. 12.—Fred Messenger, a trapper of North Granby, was held for the grand jury on a charge of murder, on his confession that he had slain Al Filley, another trapper, by choking him. He pleaded self-defense.

THE DROPPING OF BALLINGER

Advocated by Leading Members of Republican Party

NECESSARY FOR PROTECTION

Plans Not Yet In Hands of President, but Desperate Step May Be Taken to Relieve Embarrassment Caused by Presence of Combative Westerner In Cabinet—Report That Seth Bullock May Be Chief Forester

Washington, Jan. 12.—Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, will be asked to resign from the Taft cabinet. This decision has been reached by leading Republicans within a few days. President Taft is not a party to it at present, but this desperate step is believed to be necessary to relieve the president and the Republican party of the embarrassment caused by the unfortunate presence of the combative westerner in the president's official family.

Now that Pinchot is dethroned, it is thought that Ballinger can be asked to step down and out without reflection on his integrity and simply as a measure of party protection.

It is the old-fashioned theory that all the credit for good work done by a department is due the president, not the cabinet officer, and that as soon as a member of the cabinet becomes an embarrassment to his chief, it is his plain duty to resign.

Many old-fashioned statesmen, some of them very near President Taft, recalled this theory when the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy broke forth, but it never appealed to Ballinger, and President Taft chose not to recur to it in his own interests. Others now have taken the matter up, believing the party situation to be too serious to permit of further temporizing.

In casting about for a successor to Gifford Pinchot to head the forestry service, it is reported that President Taft may offer the place to Seth Bullock, United States marshal for South Dakota. At the present time Albert F. Potter, designated as the acting head of the service, seems to be the leading candidate, but there are persistent rumors that the president may decide that an entirely new man might better reorganize the service.

Bullock is in many respects as close a friend of former President Roosevelt as is Pinchot. He was once the chief of the forest rangers in the Black Hills and is thoroughly familiar with the whole subject of forestry. The political situation in South Dakota has been giving the president some concern of late, and Senators Crawford and Gamble have been frequent callers at the White House.

Bullock has been designated for reappointment as marshal for South Dakota. His term expires this month.

APRON OVER MOUTHS

Pittsburgers Told That It Will Save Them From "White Death"

Pittsburg, Jan. 12.—Henry Pennywitt, the weather forecaster here, has come out with a new and rather startling health hint to the effect that Pittsburg air is supercharged with "Pogonip," and he urges that people out doors should hang over their mouths and nostrils a little apron of cheesecloth.

"Pogonip," he explains, is Indian for "White Death" and is caused by inhaling fog which has congealed into spicula of ice. He first learned of the disease when stationed on the Utah and Nevada plateaus, where the Indians dread it fearfullly. It develops a form of pneumonia which is usually fatal. This is the first announcement of the new plague in Pittsburg.

TWO SCHOOLS ARE CLOSED

Another Case of Smallpox Stirs Wakefield Authorities to Action

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 12.—A second case of smallpox has been discovered here. Annie Halloran, 13 years old, is the victim.

The board of health is taking every precaution to prevent further spread of the disease, and a special hospital will be opened for the patients. Free vaccination also is to be established. Two schools were closed yesterday by the school committee.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

LOVERS' LEAP.

A Lesson In Matchmaking That Brought Double Results.

By NELLIE CRAVEY GILLMORE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Miss Drusilla looked shrewdly across the reading table at Colonel Weyman. He gave no outward indication of having foolishly lost his passage, and the ominous clattering of scissors on the bare mahogany opposite caused him to glance up with an ostentatious display of surprise.

Miss Drusilla proceeded to divest herself of needle, thimble and yarn before framing her opening words with cool deliberation. "It appears to me, John, that the time for clinching matters between these young people is just about ripe."

Colonel Weyman received this announcement with a beaming face. "Exactly, Drusilla. I was thinking about putting a bug in the young scamp's ear no later than this very morning. You do the same in regard to Penelope. We'll just drop them a hint or two concerning our wishes in the matter; give them to understand that their union is a thing that was planned in their cradles; point out the various advantages that will accrue"—

Miss Drusilla broke in with a disdainful sniff and a quick toss of her silvering curls. "Good gracious, John Weyman! Do you want to ruin everything? Listen to me. There's but one course to pursue if we expect to succeed in our pet scheme."

"IT ISN'T ALWAYS SAFE TO BE SURE OF ANYTHING."

"Well?" The colonel glanced up bewilderingly and with a sort of meek deference into the animated face of his companion.

Miss Drusilla lifted her dainty, porcelain-like fingers and marked off her sentences upon them in a clear, fluty voice. "Just this, you stupid man: They must be warned against each other. Every obstacle we can think of must be placed in their way. Sentiment must be tabooed. Cool down all their advances with cold water and plenty of it. There's nothing like it at this stage, mark my word. And failure after all these years would be a horrible disappointment to us both, John."

The colonel listened to his old friend's admonitions with unconcealed admiration. What a diplomat was Miss Drusilla! What an excellent life partner she would have made for a man! He heaved an involuntary sigh of regret for his squandered youth and reached across the table to press the porcelain fingers. There was a tacit smile, a hand pressure, and the colonel took his departure.

Half an hour later a fresh, sparkling face was framed in the doorway, and a musical voice addressed Miss Drusilla in tremulous accents. "May I come in, aunty, dear?" The question was finished upon a hassock at Miss Drusilla's little slippered feet.

"Where in the world have you been, Penelope?" she questioned very sternly, with a deprecatory glance at the young girl's vivid cheeks and the tumbled straw gold hair above them.

"Where haven't I been, rather? Oh, aunty, it was just the dearest, jolliest time in the world! We, Jack and I, rode—yes, actually rode—up that steep crag to Lovers' leap!"

"Lovers' leap!" echoed Miss Drusilla, with very grave brows. "And you not yet eighteen, Penelope!"

Penelope's blue eyes flashed a swift challenge to Miss Drusilla.

"And you went alone with young Mr. Weyman to the very top of a mountain, my child?" She paused in her stitching and looked seriously into the young face at her knee. "It was most indiscreet. Don't think of repeating it. And, by the way, Penelope, don't you think you are rather too familiar with this young man, calling him by his given name on a fortnight's acquaintance and scampering through the woods with him on all occasions? What do you know of"—

"Know! Why, why, I know that he's just splendid—that he—that I—that we—oh, aunty, you can never guess what a dear he is—that's all!"

Miss Drusilla's lips settled perceptibly. "Very well, my little one; he may be all that you say—and think. Naturally I am in no position to judge. However, I prefer to have my niece a little more circumspect and dignified. It is not always well to allow oneself too much intimacy with any—stranger. Remember, girls of your station are expected to submit with all grace and dutifulness to the arrangements which have been made for them by their guardians—matrimonial particularly. Let there be no foolishness, Penelope."

* * * * * * *

"But, father, am I not twenty-one years of age?"

"Twenty-two, to be more exact, young fellow. But remember also that I am forty-four and you are still in college. Penelope is a mere baby. She ought to be in school herself in short frocks. Recollect that you have a reputation to make in your profession; that you cannot afford to throw away your opportunities in any such absurd fashion, so don't fritter away your time over sentimental nonsense."

Young Weyman was silent a moment trying to down the vehement words that struggled to his lips. His face was flushed, and his eyes belied the calmness of the tone in which he replied:

"I have always respected your opinion, father, in everything, but in this case I fear that I cannot abide by it. There is one thing which is every man's privilege—the choice of his wife; consequently I mean to offer myself to Penelope this very evening."

"And if she refuses—if she is already betrothed to some one else?"

"Impossible! That is"—

The colonel smiled broadly. But his head was turned away. When he looked back again his face was decidedly stern. "It isn't always safe to be too sure of anything, my boy, especially anything of the feminine gender. Give her half a chance—say a couple of years—to change her mind in, and I'm certain you'll not regret it."

Jack bridled. "Obviously we need not discuss the question further, sir. Good morning." With an angry jerk of his head he stalked out of the room, and a second later Colonel Weyman was edified by hearing the front gate slam to with considerable force. He laughed heartily for a minute or two; then his face relapsed into sudden seriousness. "Upon my word," he mused, "a fellow ought to be proud to call a woman like Drusilla his wife. By Jove, I'll write a note and ask her to walk with me to Lovers' leap this afternoon. I've been a blind man for twenty years, but I'm blamed if I don't believe I see light!"

* * * * * * *

Dearest Penelope—You must marry me immediately, and we can take the 5 o'clock train for New York. It is only rushing things about twelve months, but certain events have occurred which make it essential for us to take this step at once. If you love me enough and think you can trust me to this extent write back by messenger and don't fail to say "Yes." Devotedly, JACK.

Dear, Dear Jack—It shall be just as you say. I will marry you whenever and wherever you wish. I have been worried to death all day. Aunt Drusilla has been hinting about some sort of matrimonial arrangement for me and saying just dreadful things all around. Of course I love you, Jack, and am willing to trust you to the ends of all creation. Your own PENELOPE.

At breakfast the following morning Miss Drusilla opened a flabby yellow envelope and read:

We were married last night at my cousin's. A message of forgiveness and your blessing will reach us at the Guests, New York city. J. W.

A similar dispatch found Colonel Weyman over his coffee and chops. He chuckled as he thrust the envelope into his pocket, and his thoughts harked back to Lovers' leap.

That afternoon another telegram flashed over the wires between Plainfield and New York city:

You are forgiven since people must be fools. I know two more who are soon to turn one. Accept our blessing.

AUNT DRUSILLA.

The Noble Pike.

In size, in courage and in strength the pike rivals, in historic claim to nobility it exceeds, even the royal salmon itself. King Edward I., who fixed the price of fish then brought to market, rated the pike above the salmon and more than ten times higher than that of the best cod or turbot. In the reign of Henry VIII. a large one was sold for double the price of a house lamb in February and a small pickerel for more than a fat capon. Its greater reputation is probably to be explained by the old custom in the great houses and abbeys of England of having their private stew ponds, so that fresh water fish were the luxury of the rich, while the salmon could be caught in the sea and so never attained the rank and dignity of fashionable food. Today his artificial value is gone, and the salmon has taken the place upon the tables of the rich as much for the beauty of its pink flesh as for the superior flavor of the meat.—London Globe.

A Brave Answer.

There was sharp fighting between the English and French in the Windward islands in 1778 when General Meadows conquered St. Lucia not, however, without himself being severely wounded at the very beginning of the engagement. The general, though wounded, would not leave the field for a moment, and when the action was over he visited every wounded officer and man before he would receive the surgeon's attention himself. His heart was greatly cheered by an answer given to him by a young subaltern, Lieutenant Gomm of the Forty-sixth regiment, who in the heat of action was wounded in the eye.

"I hope you have not lost your eye, lieutenant," said the general.

"I believe I have sir," replied Gomm, "but with the other I shall see you victorious this day."

The brave young fellow had his wish.—London Scraps.

PRISON LIFE OF C. W. MORSE.

How Convicted Banker Will Fare In Atlanta Jail.

ENTITLED TO SOME PRIVILEGES

Placed In First Class Prisoners, but Must Undergo a Rigid Routine—Still Game and Determined to Fight on In Courts—He Takes Much Pleasure In a Poem.

When the big steel door of the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., recently swung shut behind Charles W. Morse of New York, but yesterday a man of millions, he had ceased to exist socially. The quondam ice king, banker and master of great fleets, who was intrusted with the care of many millions and convicted of being faithless to the trust, had begun his fifteen year sentence. He had become convict No. 2814, and after all the formalities had been concluded, clad in an ill fitting suit of rough blue clothes, he was marched into the big dining hall and with negroes, Indians, Chinamen and whites of every condition took his first meal under the roof that is to shut out his liberty for fifteen years.

No. 2814 henceforth supplants Morse's name. He has been put in the first grade of prisoners, which entitles him to all the privileges that the best behaved may enjoy. As such he need not wear the stripes save when he is on the outside of the building, the warden, William H. Moyer, having discarded this mark in favor of the blue uniform.

Morse must abide by rules that govern the employment of every moment of his day. Speech is denied him except at stated times, even at his meals.

Still to Fight For Freedom.

He is still full of fight and said to a reporter shortly before the prison doors closed on him:

My last words as a free man are to reiterate that I am an innocent man. I am the victim largely of circumstances and unscrupulous methods, but the battle is not yet over, although I have suffered a heavy defeat.

I shall protest against imprisonment on the ground that by commitment is illegal. But this is more or less a formal motion. There are other steps to be taken, and on these I am raising high hopes. Martin Littleton, my counsel, will be here in a day or two, and then we shall discuss in detail the plans to be pursued.

I detest whining, but in justice to myself I must say, what every man who is conversant with affairs in New York must know, that I was the victim of a clique who feared me. I incurred their enmity, and they set about to encompass my destruction. How they did it is a matter of history. But I have suffered reverses before and have survived them. I shall, I hope, survive this too. But it is hard, hard to make myself think this way at my time of life. I am an old man now, and fifteen years out of my life—oh, I cannot believe that it will have to be!

One of his companions recalled the lines from Oscar Wilde's beautiful "Ballad of Reading Gaol" running:

"His step seemed light and gay, but I never saw a man who looked so wistfully at the day."

Takes Pleasure In Poem.

Morse mused for a moment.

"I can feel those things now," he said. "They come straight home. While I was in the Tombs a friend sent me the verses called 'Invictus,' by W. E. Henley. I wish I had brought them with me."

He was glad when he learned that one of the party recalled them and wrote them out for him. The lines of the poem "Invictus" are as follows:

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods there be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced or cried aloud.
Under the bludgeonings of fate
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishment the scroll,
I am the master of my fate.
I am the captain of my soul.

He read the lines and as he put them in his pocket remarked that he hoped he would be permitted to keep them.

"Did I feel myself guilty my outlook would be black indeed," he said, "but I do not think my life a failure, at least not yet. No matter what they do to me, they can't kill my spirit. It is because of this sentiment that I love Henley's lines. Every man's voice, raised for me or against me, is of avail, and so I ask the aid of every man who may believe that a wrong has been done me. That is all I want to say. Goodby."

That was his valedictory.

Allowed Two Visitors a Month.

Morse is permitted two visitors each month, besides special calls of urgent nature, so long as he is in the first grade. He may receive letters and books and may write one letter every two weeks, but all of his communications are subject to the warden's scrutiny.

He can purchase out of the money he left with the warden, something like $200, a black tie and tooth paste and hairbrush and a looking glass, but he is not permitted to buy any additions to the menus. Here is the daily bill of fare:

Breakfast—Potatoes, bread, butter and coffee.

Dinner—Roast beef, sweet potatoes, bread and water.

Supper—Pie, bread, butter and tea.

A sample of the daily routine for convict No. 2814 is: 6:30 a. m., rising gong; 7:15, a. m., roll call; 7:20; a. m., sick report; 7:30 a. m., breakfast; 8 a. m., work; 11:45 a. m., recall; 12:15 p. m., dinner; 12:45 p. m., work; 4:15 p. m., recall; 4:35 p. m., supper; 6 p. m., musical hour; 7 to 9, quiet and reading, smoking permitted; 9 p. m., lights out, sleep.

At meals different motions of the hand indicate different wants. The hand upraised means water, extended to the right means something else, and then to the left it has another meaning.

It is likely Morse will be put to clerical work, as he is not strong enough to do outside work.

NEED OF MORE FARMERS.

Secretary Wilson Discusses Cause of Increased Cost of Living.

Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture at Washington says that what the United States needs are more farmers. Discussing the increased cost of living today, Mr. Wilson said that he was organizing his forces to make a thorough inquiry into the reasons underlying the difference between wholesale and retail prices of food products.

"Too many people are engaged in the business of distribution," Mr. Wilson said. "What we need is more farming. Too many people are rushing to the town and city and trying to make a living there, and not enough are staying in the country. Too many people are trying to get along without work, and not enough of them are in the business of producing something.

"One man could do the business of distribution where twenty are now engaged in it. That is the reason why the cost of living is high and people are complaining. People must learn that they cannot get along without work, and the best place for them is on the farm, where they can raise something."

THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE

New Southern Pacific Locomotives a Novelty In Motive Power.

The new locomotives of the Mallet articulated compound type for the Southern Pacific railroad are so long that if used in the ordinary way the engineer would have difficulty getting a good view of the track in front of him. So to obviate the difficulty the builders have placed the cart before the horse, as it were, and are building the locomotives to run backward with the tender attached to the pilot. The fifteen locomotives thus constructed are oil burners, as this arrangement would not be possible with coal burning engines of that type.

A bumper supporting a stub pilot and pilot coupler is secured to the main frame brace just under the cab. The cab, which is entirely inclosed, is fitted with sliding windows and is entered through side doors reached by suitable ladders. The cab fixtures are located within easy reach of the engineman, who occupies the right side of the cab, looking ahead.

Laymen's Great Mission Movement.

Men of Protestant churches in New York and within a radius of fifty miles of that city are taking keen and active interest in meetings recently begun which will continue until Sunday, Jan. 16. These meetings are arranged by the laymen's missionary movement, and the activity they arouse is significant, since they aim at world evangelization. Protestants of all denominations are working in unity to make the campaign one of tremendous success, showing that creed differences are being forgotten. The laymen's missionary movement was organized for the purpose of showing the men of America their duty to non-Christian lands and how to discharge that duty. It is hoped by the missionary movement that volunteers will be found who will go into the foreign fields to spread the work of evangelization. Pledges of large financial support to the movement have been made, and all through the United States the keenest interest is said to prevail in the work ahead. After the campaign in New York there will be rallies in many other cities, and a general convention will be held in Chicago next May, at which reports of the work will be made.

Wisconsin Seeks National Rifle Shoot.

Wisconsin, with the support of General Grant, will try to get the national army rifle shoots for Sparta, Wis., it was recently announced. The shoots have been held in Seagirt, N. J., and Camp Perry, Ohio.

"Soo" to Have Largest Lock.

Representative Alexander, chairman of the house rivers and harbors committee, announced the other day that another large canal lock, the largest in the world, will be constructed at Sault Ste. Marie.

SHORTAGE IN BEEF NOT TO BE FEARED

Stock Owners Say $200,000,000 Worth Is Exported Yearly

Denver, Jan. 12.—President Jastro of the National Live Stock association and Murdo Mackenzie, vice president, in speeches here denied that there is any danger of a shortage of beef in the United States. They declare that so long as $200,000,000 worth of beef is exported from America each year there is no danger of a shortage.

"The price of beef in Chicago is regulated by the price received for our surplus cattle shipped abroad," said Mackenzie. "The howl that present prices are putting beef beyond the reach of the poor man is unwarranted. It is true that if the consumer demands the choice cuts he must pay for them, but good beef is within the reach of all."

TO MAKE SHIRTWAISTS

Report That Miss Morgan Will Form Million Dollar Corporation

New York, Jan. 12.—The 6000 members of the Ladies' Shirtwaist Makers' union who are out on strike are excited over a report that Miss Anna Morgan, daughter of J. P. Morgan, is heading a movement to form a $1,000,000 corporation to manufacture shirtwaists and employ union labor only in shops to be established.

The report started when several fashionably dressed women appeared among the strikers, announced that they were "special investigators," and began asking questions about the condition of the girls, the wages they would expect if they were hired as union workers, and how they would want agreements drawn up if so hired.

THIEVES ON FUNERAL TRAIN

They Flee When Discovered and Police Fail to Find Them

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 12.—Three pickpockets entered a train at Boston, filled with friends and parishioners of the late Bishop Brady, who were en route to Amesbury to attend his burial, and fleeced many Boston and local parties before being discovered.

Timothy O'Connell, a real estate dealer, was robbed of $75, while three Boston men, who refused to give their names, lost good-sized rolls in a card game.

The men were discovered soon after picking the pocket of O'Connell, and one left the train in the local depot, while the two others jumped while it was still in motion between this city and Amesbury. Police Officers scoured the woods, but could find no trace of the thieves.

MANUEL'S LIFE MENACED

Police Discover Conspiracy to Assassinate King of Portugal

Lisbon, Jan. 12.—In connection with the firing upon by sentries of a group of men who were prowling around the Necesidades palace and the arrest of a number of Republicans, the police announce that they have discovered a wide-spread revolutionary conspiracy and plot to kill the king.

Additional arrests have been made of the men supposed to be the ringleaders, and the police have seized large quantities of explosives, arms, masks and complete disguises.

Several persons in the hands of the authorities have confessed that they are members of secret societies banded together in a plot to overturn the government.

ESCAPE OVER ICE

Two Convicts Take French Leave of Sing Sing and Cross the Hudson

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 12.—Eluding the guards, two convicts in Sing Sing escaped by jumping the east wall and making their way by means of the ice along the Hudson river to the opposite shore.

The police of all the cities along the Hudson have been asked to watch for them. The men who escaped are Francis Frank and Frederick A. Kedwid, "short term" convicts.

Automobilist Held In $3000

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 12.—Charged with manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Myra L. Swift of Medford, Lester D. Cushman, an automobilist, was arraigned in the Middlesex superior court and held in $3000 bonds. Cushman pleaded "not guilty," and furnished sureties for the amount of the bond.

BRIEFS

Gentlemen's night this evening at the Quincy Women's clubhouse is given under the auspices of the Art and Literature committee of the club.

The young people are making the most of the good skating and coasting, both of which are exceptionally good just at the present time.

Mrs. J. Leary of O'Connells avenue broke her leg Tuesday by falling on the stairs at her home. She is attended by Dr Reynolds.

The U. S. cruiser Des Moines which has been at Nicaragua several weeks, has sailed from Bluefields for Bocas del Torro.

Ex-Mayor C. M. Bryant is one of the patrons of the Boston Poultry Association show, and will be judge of the Rhode Island Reds.

It has been decided to shorten the spring vacation at Wellesley college to one week and close the college earlier in June. The commencement date will be June 21.

The many friends of John McGilvary of Crescent street will be glad to learn that he has recovered from his recent illness and is now able to be about.

Walter E. Burke, treasurer of the "circle of eight" parties given for worthy charities would appreciate it if those interested would continue the parties as soon as possible and send the funds to him.

An appreciative audience gathered at the Wollaston Methodist church last evening to listen to a sermon by Rev. W. W. Bowers of Baker Memorial church Dorchester. He spoke on the parable of the wise and foolish virgins as found in Matt. 25:1-13.

The committee on tuberculosis work in Quincy is fortunate in not only interesting our citizens, but in also receiving aid from outside places ladies of the Hingham Episcopal church contributing and also Brockton ladies sending bed linen etc.

NEW TRACK AND POOL

Being Built at the Quincy Y. M. C. A.

Things are now booming in the line of new construction at the Y. M. C. A. The running track which is being built by George E. Thomas is progressing finely. The track when finished will be the finest and fastest indoor track anywhere about Boston. It is built of wood so that the runners can use spiked shoes as in out-of-door running. The banks are 18 inches high on the ends, permitting the runner to take the turn safely and easily. The size of the track is thirty-two laps to the mile. It will be finished this week and will be a big stimulation in athlete lines.

The contracts for the swimming pool are now practically let, the main contract including masonry, waterproofing, tile work and finish, goes to the Eastern Concrete Construction Co. of Boston of which George Taylor of Winthrop avenue, this city, is vice president and general manager, and C. J. Hogue of Lincoln avenue, is constructing engineer. The heating and plumbing contract goes to English & Flett of Boston. The work has commenced and will go forward as rapidly as possible. It should be a big factor in securing new members in the membership campaign which is to open next week Saturday.

BRIEFS

Miss Elizabeth Fay of Bates avenue is spending two weeks' vacation with friends in New York.

Rev. E. C. Bridgham of Medford preaches this evening at the Wollaston M. E. church.

Albert Morrissett of Crescent street who was employed in Whitman has accepted a position with the Douglas shoe factory of Brockton.

The renomination of Hon. Asa P. French of Randolph as United States district attorney was confirmed on Tuesday by the Senate.

Edward Donovan of Rail street has returned to Yale college where he is a student after spending the Christmas vacation with his parents.

A civil service examination for janitors will be held in Quincy in February. Also examinations for positions in the city engineering department. The examinations for the police and fire service will be held in April.

The funeral of Mrs. Bridget, wife of Mr. John Tighe of 91 Summer street, who died Monday, was held this morning from St. John's church Mass was celebrated by Rev. John J. Casey. The burial was at Holy Cross cemetery at Malden.

Two of the nine newly elected members of the Boston City Council are graduates of the Boston Y. M. C. A. evening law school.

White Slave Man Pleads Guilty

Pittsburg, Jan. 12.—James Lubrane, an Italian, charged with being engaged in the white slave traffic, was arraigned, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment, all in five minutes, upon the testimony of a young Italian girl.

SECOND VICTORY FOR HIGH

Defeat Both the Reading High Teams

Quincy High continued its winning streak on Tuesday when Reading High was beaten to the tune of 18 to 10. This game although safe for Quincy practically all the time, was much faster than the one with Abington.

The score was close in the first half and while the home team was always ahead at least one goal, it seemed that if Reading rallied a little it might have a slight chance of winning. Superior skill by Quincy stopped all such hopes. Each member of both teams was a "Johnny on the spot." So much so that no time was given to aim, hence many baskets were missed by wild shooting. At the end of the twenty minute half the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of the home team.

Quincy got down to business in the second half so there was no trouble in picking the winner. They scored ten goals to four for Reading.

Billy Maning was there all the time and frequently sent the ball back when it got too near Reading's basket. Russ Bates kept near the ball and seemed to find little trouble in showing the basket to it. Marceau did fine service in keeping the ball on Quincy's side and his man from getting a goal. Frank Harmon showed that no mistakes had been made in putting him on the first team. Mel Chapman kept up his reputation of being a man on whom dependence might be placed.

The summary follows:

QUINCY		READING
Bates	rf	lb Abbott
Manning	lf	rb Stratton
Marceau	c	c Stembridge
M. Chapman	rb	lf Trenholm
Harmon	lb	rf D. Michelini

Score, Quincy H. S. 18, Reading H. S. 10. Goals from floor—Bates 2, Manning 5, Harmon 2, Abbott, Trenholm 2, D. Michelini. Goals from fouls—Trenholm 2. Referee—Gourlie. Umpire—Michelini. Scorer—Miller, Timer—Currier. Time 20 minute halves.

The Quincy second team showed its superiority to Reading's second team by winning 17 to 11. Bishop and Arthur showed up best of the quintet. Reading attributed its defeat to the sickness of five of the regular men on the two teams.

SPORTING NOTES.

Old Colony league bowling this evening.

At ice hockey on Tuesday, Milton High was defeated by Newton High 7 to 0.

The Boston National base ball team will go South for practice Mar. 14.

Robert Hunter of Common street has been made an honorary member of the Bryant A. C. in appreciation for the work he has done for the club.

Post cards have been received from Daniel Nelson of Hall place, and member of the Bryant A. C., who is now a member of the U. S. navy at Newport, stating that he won a three-round boxing match and was given one week off duty in appreciation of his skill.

James Collins of Hall place, formerly a member of the St. Mary's basket ball five, is now playing with Randolph. He played his first game last Saturday night when they met at the West End House of Boston.

TODAY'S COURT.

Mauriel O'Grady was arraigned for breaking and entering at Milton. Held in $500 for the grand jury.

Edward H. O'Neal and James A. Cassidy were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases continued on probation.

Michael Rossi pleaded guilty to keeping a liquor nuisance at Quincy, and paid a fine of $75.

Giovanni Chillo, Giovanni Vicchilli, Donato Dicroce, John Angelo and Charles Panitotta were arraigned for keeping liquor nuisances at Quincy. Cases continued until Saturday.

GYROSCOPE CAR'S FUTURE.

Richard Scherl Thinks Monorail Will Soon Rival Standard Gauge Roads.

Richard Scherl, son of August Scherl, proprietor of the Lokal Anzieger of Berlin, who arrived at New York recently to interest capital and the public in the Scherl monorail gyroscope car, believes it is only a question of time before the monorail train will be competing with standard gauge trains everywhere. The car which he will use in his demonstrations in the United States is capable of carrying ten persons, and in it is fitted a gyroscope which, driven by a motor, makes 8,000 revolutions a minute. The sudden stopping of the gyroscope and the consequent overturning of the car, he declared, is an impossibility, for the gyroscope is driven at such a high rate of speed that it would revolve for hours after the driving power had ceased and thus keep the car upright.

The claim that Mr. Scherl makes for his gyroscope car is that passengers can travel in greater safety, comfort and at a much greater speed than on railroads of the present day. From a business standpoint, he said, the monorail system would be of advantage, as the construction work can be done at a low figure.

QUARRY STREET EXTENSION

Councilman Defends Attack on Appropriation

Editor of the Daily Ledger:

I noticed in your paper of Jan. 10 a rather amusing effusion signed "Critic," relative to certain streets accepted by the city during the past year, in consequence of a vote of the City Council. I regret that the gentleman did not sign his name to his allegations, showing that he really meant what he said, so that it would not be necessary to enter into a newspaper controversy to make the facts of the case clear.

I feel that I must take exception to certain statements made regarding the acceptance of Quarry street extension. When he says that artificial means would be necessary to find the street, he shows a dense ignorance of the locality wherein the street is located. The condition of the street was so bad, previous to its being placed in repair by the city, that every resident of West Quincy could not help but knowing where it was, and just what a condition it was in. This street has been used by the people of the "Commons" section of the city for twenty years to my personal knowledge, and probably many years previous to my time. If the gentleman has ever taken the opportunity of visiting this section his vision must be seriously impaired if he felt the necessity of using "a pretty strong magnifying glass."

He states that there was very little of the property improved on the street. Let me tell him that the buildings assessed on this street are valued at $14,700, and a large portion of the land has been built on. I can state, on good authority, that in consequence of the repairing of the street several people have signified their intention of erecting dwelling-houses on this street.

The city will expend on this street, approximately $950, owing to the fact that the street was accepted under the betterment proposition, and in view of the return that the city will receive in the new buildings which will come, and the improved appearance of the locality on account of the work done on the street I believe that this is one of the best appropriations ever passed by the City Council.

A FEW FIGURES.

Editors Ledger:

I would like to call the attention of the Board of Trade, the Citizens' Association and a few other hustling kindred organizations to a few figures which it seems to me do more to retard the growth of this city than any factor which I can recall off hand.

Dorchester is our strongest competitor both as a place of residence and as a manufacturing place.

	Quincy	Dorchester
Taxes	$20.40	$16.50
Gas per M.	1.50	.80
Electric Lights, K-w	.17	.11
Ice per 100	.60	.25
R. R. Fares to Boston	.09	.05
St. R. R. Fares to Boston	.10	.05

Quincy is apparently one of the most expensive of Boston's suburbs to live in. If our business organizations would concentrate their efforts to cutting down the six items tabulated above our own city would soon show a vigorous growth. John R. Marshall.

MR. CHASE RE-ELECTED

Chairman of Republican City Committee

The Republican City Committee of 1910 met Wednesday evening at headquarters in the Adams building for organization. A temporary organization was had with William M. Chase as president and Louis F. R. Langelier as secretary. The committee then elected the following officers:

President—William M. Chase.
Vice President—John O. Hall.
Secretary—Louis F. R. Langelier.
Treasurer—Henry P. Kittredge.

The executive committee under the rules of the committee of 1909, which were adopted as the rules of 1910, is composed of the above officers and the chairman of the several ward committees.

The executive committee was instructed to have the rules printed for distribution among the members.

The matter of holding a caucus for the special election in Ward Two was taken up and discussed. The general sentiment seemed to be that if the Democratic party would agree to waive a caucus the eRpublican would. The matter was left in the hands of the president and secretary with full powers.

Rules 8 which prohibits the committee supporting any candidate but regular nominees was suspended for the special election, in order that the Republican candidate who would have taken on nomination papers might receive the support of the committee.

The financial condition of the committee was reported to be excellent.

An informal discussion took place as to the advisability of the committee securing permanent quarters that should be open the entire year. It was pointed out that usually the committee was in a dormant state after the annual meeting until September, but if permanent headquarters were opened the interest could be kept alive, and that it would thus be of great benefit to the party. The question of securing permanent headquarters was left to the executive committee.

The personnel of the committee follows:

Ward One—George W. Abele, George T. Westland, Charles H. Johnson, Harry S. Crane, Frederick E. Tupper, Henry P. Furnald, Henry P. Kittredge, John O. Hall and Theodore H. Hermanson.

Ward Two—Arthur W. Newcomb, Rollin H. Newcomb, Edgar F. Hayden, Daniel Scouler, Jr., Albert L. Whitman, Harry G. Studley, Percy H. Holman, Herbert F. Tucker, Eugene C. Hultman.

Ward Three—John R. Richards, Alexander Clark, Edward D. Marnock, Robert B. Craig, Daniel F. Tinney, Murdock A. Campbell, George Gauthier, John R. Bissett, John Capaccioli, Jr.

Ward Four—Edward J. Sandberg, Louis K. Badger, Merton A. Turner, William H. Teasdale, John W. Thompson, Victor E. Seiberg, August Williams, J. Leonard Ferguson, Charles H. Owens.

Ward Five—William M. Chase Richard R. Freeman, Herbert Y. Follett, Walter S. Pinkham, William J. Leslie, Walter G. Field, Felix Favorite, Frederick G. Thayer and William J. Jones.

Ward Six—Frank E. Badger, Herbert S. Barker, Lyndon D. Gurney, Horace T. Jenkins, Robert E. Jones, Louis F. R. Langelier, Edward F. Parlee, Ernest E. Soderqren, Washington G. Woodward.

NEW CHURCH.

A meeting was held by the parishioners of the Memorial Congregational church to further discuss the subject of a new building on Monday evening. It was a representative meeting and great enthusiasm was displayed over the offer of the Congregational Union. That society will duplicate every dollar raised by the parish to the amount of $5,000. Committees were formed to conduct a campaign similar to the one held by the Y. M. C. A.

—Seven hundred and twenty model tenements are to be erected at Long Island City by the Pennsylvania railroad for its employes, which is believed to be the largest undertaking of the kind in the world.

GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT

Thomas A. Watson Reads at Women's Clubhouse

As anticipated, the reading of Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale" by Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree, on Wednesday evening at the Women's clubhouse, was a great treat for those attending. About a hundred club members and friends availed themselves of the courtesies extended by the Art and Literature committee who provided the entertainment complimentary to the club also extending the invitation to men, so that the occasion was somewhat in the nature of a gentlemen's night.

Mr. Watson's interpretation was convincing, and showed not only that he knew his Shakespeare but he loved it. He has an unusually pleasing voice and his interpretation of the various characters in "Winter's Tale" was finely marked the women's paris being especially pleasing. The audience almost saw the changing scenes and characters in the absorbing interest in Mr. Watson's reading; the loveable and sweet Queen Hermione, her faithfull lady Paulina, and the beautiful Princess Perdita; the jealous nervous King Leontes, the Cicilian lords Polixenes king of Bohemia, his son Florizel, the faithful and true Antigonus, the old shepherd and his son the clown.

That the audience enjoyed Mr. Watson's reading was shown by the close attention accorded him; the long and hearty applause as he closed his book on the final lines and the surprise at finding the minutes had slipped by and that it was after ten o'clock.

The hope that Mr. Watson will feel neighborly again in the near future, and favor the club with more readings, expressed the sentiment of those who had the pleasure of listening to a "Winter's Tale."

—Some idea of the enormous increase in the use of cement as a building material may be gained from the fact that thirty-five years ago the annual product in this country amounted to 17,000 barrels, while the output for the past year has exceeded 51,000,000 barrels, and the demand still growing.—Milford Gazette.

—Everybody knew that New York had plenty of clean and able men. The new thing is that they are available for public office and are going in.

HOSPITAL MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Corporators of the City Hospital of Quincy, will be held at Colonial Hall, on MONDAY EVENING, January 17th, 1910, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of electing trustees for the ensuing year, and the transaction of any other business that may come before them.

SUDDEN DEATH OF CLERGYMAN

Rev. Alfred A. Ellsworth Passes Away

The personal friends and former parishioners of Rev. Alfred A. Ellsworth were shocked Wednesday evening to learn that he had passed away that afternoon at his home on Russell park. Mr. Ellsworth had not been in good health for several days, and Wednesday afternoon he had a sudden attack of heart trouble, and died soon after.

Rev. Mr. Ellsworth came to Quincy ten years ago from Braintree, where for 16 yeas s he had been the pastor of the First Congregational church, the old Dr. Storrs church. Since coming to Quincy he has had no settled parish but has frequently occupied the pulpits of Quincy and other churches. He was a man of very broad views, and was universally admired by all who knew him. He leaves a widow three sons and two daughters. His sons are James D. Ellsworth, well known in Boston newspaper circles, and Dr. Samuel W. Ellsworth, one of the leading physicians of the city.

Rev. Mr. Ellsworth was born in Bath, Me., 76 years ago, and after graduating from the public schools came to Boston and entered a dry goods house where he remained a short time. He returned to Maine and entered Bridgton and Lewiston academies and then Amherst college, from which he was graduated in 1858.

He taught school in Colerain in a private institution for a year and then began his studies in the Union Theological seminary in New York, and a year later entered the Andover Theological school.

His first pastorate was in Milford, Mass, where he was stationed from 1862 to 1865. In the latter year he went to Newbern, N. C., where he had many exciting experiences on account of the hostility to northern men during the reconstruction period following the Civil war. While in that city he was appointed cashier of the Freedman's national bank by Gen. O. O. Howard.

From Newbern he came to Weymouth Mass, as pastor of the Union church of that town and Braintree. He received a call to Chicago but the great fire in that city caused him to change his plans. He went to Galesburg, Ill., and in 1885 returned to Braintree.

Rev. Mr. Ellsworth was married to Miss A. G. Cook of Milford in 1862 and they had six children. He resigned his pastorate of the First Congregational church Braintree, in 1885, and was given a notable reception of the members of the congregation.

SURVEYS FOR CANAL

Best Possible Route Will be Selected

The citizens of Quincy and Braintree who have read the articles published in the Boston newspapers during the last few days have become alarmed over the fact that our historical city was not even mentioned in the proposed canal routes.

To the average person this canal topic is a puzzle and the reporters who have come out with the stories know no more of the plans and cost of the canal than a foreigner and the sooner Quincy residents realize this, the better it will be for all.

The sensational stories report that government engineers express satisfaction at the progress made in the surveys from Taunton to Bridgewater thence to the South Shore at either Plymouth Hingham or Scituate. The reporters even go as far as to estimate the cost of building it.

The Ledger realizing that Quincy is interested in this canal question, interviewed Frank Fessenden Crane and his views will prove valuable. Mr. Crane said, "The people of Quincy have no reason whatever to feel alarmed over these newspaper reports for they will surely read more instead of less for there are at least five different routes that are going to be surveyed and reported on before any definite plans can be made. The government orders call for a canal between Narragansett Bay and Boston harbor and this is practically all the instructions given. The engineers under the able leadership of Lieut. Edward H. Burr are hard at work on these different routes but I want to impress on the public that these surveys will be carried on until sometime next fall and when you consider this fact you find these stories ridiculous. No one knows at this time the exact route and you may make this as emphatic as you wish.

"That Quincy will benefit by this canal is almost certain for we have a 30-foot chanpel and dredging will not be necessary as in other rivers that will come under these surveys. If the public will only hold faith in Congressman Greene, Judge Chandler, Edward B. Mellen of Brockton and myself we feel sure that every town or city that has the interest of the State at heart will see that we act only for the best route, and not for one that will benefit an individual town or city.

"Lieut. Edward H. Burr whom I am personally acquainted with, is a man that we can all place confidence in, and I will again say in closing that your readers need not feel alarmed over any report they hear between now and next fall when the government will undoubtedly decide the exact route of this canal."

FLOURISHING CHURCH

Annual Meeting of the Wollaston Congregational

At the annual parish meeting of the Wollaston Congregational church held in the vestry on Wednesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Deacon (4 years)—Alfred W. Thompson.

Deacon (2 years)—Charles G. Farwell.

Clerk—Charles F. West.

Treasurer—Louis S. Bugbee.

Superintendent of Sabbath School—Charles A. Randall.

Moderator—Charles P. Hutchins.

Executive Committee—George H. Murray and Chester N. Godfrey.

Prudential Committee— Charles P. Hutchins for 2 years, Fred L. Eastman for 1 year.

Collector of Weekly Offerings—Alfred W. Thompson.

Music Committee—Dr. A. P. Thompson, Herbert C. Poore and Rev. Edward A. Chase.

The minutes were read by the clerk and with the reports of the treasurer and collector were accepted and placed on files. Charles P. Hutchins presided.

The Sunday school was represented by its secretary, Herbert Marshall, who in his report gave many interesting statistics of the past and present condition of this branch of the society.

Mrs. George H. Murray spoke for the Ladies Auxiliary, Little Lights Mission band, and the Cradle Roll, all of which are in a healthy condition.

In her report of the Mission Study club Mrs. Edward A. Chase told of the work it was doing and of the ends toward which it was striving.

Reporting for the music committee Rev. Edward A. Chase paid a well-deserved tribute to Miss Ida L. Poore for her efficient service in connection with the committee and for her efforts in charge of the Girls' choir club which has recently been formed, and has met with so great success.

Fred L. Eastman represented the Men's club, while Miss Idena Howarth read a most optimistic report of the Christian Endeavor.

The report of the auditing committee, composed of W. M. Wight and E. S. Tenney approved the reports of the treasurer and collector which were accepted and placed on file.

The recommendations of the prudential committee for the budget for the year were taken up. A discussion of ways and means followed during which the subject of church music received a large share of attention.

Following the swearing-in of Charles F. West as clerk of the church by Rev. Rufus B. Tobey the meeting adjourned.

The meeting was preceded by an oyster supper served by the following ladies in charge of Mrs. George H. Murray: Mrs. Rufus B. Tobey, Mrs. George Fleming, Mrs. Brady, Miss Ada Hinckley, Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. Herbert Marshall Miss Elsie Patterson, Miss Alice Thompson and Miss Ruth Taylor.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The more the temporary loans of the city are investigated the more apparent it is that the recent policy of the city is entirely wrong. The Daily Ledger is carefully compiling some statistics, which will probably be printed in the Friday issue.

A writer in the of "Public Interest" column yesterday showed by a few figures why the growth of Quincy is retarded and each of his reasons speak for themselves. When all six reasons are combined it is a pretty good proposition to run up against, and surely needs the consideration of our citizens as suggested by the writer. And there are a few more reasons that could be added to the list at any time.

Indications point to some lively and interesting meetings of the City Council the coming year. Although but twe meetings have been held thus far it is very evident that the Council will not railroad important matters through, but that every order calling for an expenditure of money will be carefully scrutinized before passed. It is also quite evident that the council of 1910 will be an economical one, and there will not be as many appropriations made as in some recent years particulary last year when the appropriations for new streets and street improvements amounted to many thousands of dollars.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The man who succeeds in any line of endeavor is he who has worked whole-heartedly, whole-souledly, whole-selfedly for success.

For this thing called success is simply the realization of ideals we have formed and striven to materialize.

Don't have a "grouch "against the firm that supplies your bread and butter. Better work for ten dollars a week and work than be employed at twenty-five dollars a week and shirk.

Coming down to the office in the morning with a desire to make the day pass as quickly as possible, and with the little real work performed is absolutely necessary, is a dead sure way to oblivion.

There's no exhilaration that can equal the feeling a man sensates after a particularly hard job has been got out of the way and got out of the way by being done right.

The difference between enthusiasm and half-heartedness is the difference between a big, fat envelop on payday and a salary that gets smaller in the eyes of the man who is always looking for, but never working for a raise.

Enthusiasm! That's the thing that builds bridges and tunnels through mountains. One enthusiastic employe in an organization is worth an army of wishers for six o'clock and Saturday afternoon.

And there can be no enthusiasm unless you are heart, head, and hand in league with your work.

The man who views his daily work as part of his daily self is the man who accomplishes things. The man who performs his duties in a spirit of let's-get-rid-of-these-pesky-matters is the man you never hear of as making progress.

Put your heart into your work.—Jerome Flieshman in Profitable Advertising.

FOREIGN SHIPBUILDING.

The following are the full returns of Clyde shipbuilding at Glascon, Scotland, the year 1909 says a dispatch to the Monitor. The vessels launched number 243 against 569 the previous year. but there is an increase in tonnage of 47,832. The total tonnage was 403,418 compared with 355,568 in 1908. The prospects of the trade are much more encouraging than they were 12 months ago and the Clyde shipbuilders have in hand a larger proportion than hitherto of admiralty work.

—Harvard Medical school has opened a free clinic afternoons for the treatment of needy patients.

—The National Association states that there are in the United States at least 300,000 consumptives who are so poor that they cannot pay for proper medical treatment in tuberculosis sanatoria and hospitals. Some of them can pay small amounts a week for their maintenance but the great majority of them cannot pay anything. For this large class of patients the entire country has provided only 10,000 beds for the free treatment of tuberculosis. In Alabama, Arkansas Idaho, Kansas, Mississippi, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Philippine Islands, South Dakota, Texas, Utah, West Virginia and Wyoming there is no place where the consumptive without means can be treated but in jails or insane asylums and in most cases he will get no treatment there. Sixteen other states provide less than 50 beds each for consumptives. In only two states, Massachusetts and New York have beds for needy tuberculosis patients been provided ,so that at least one in ten may find a place for treatment. In many of the other states not one in 50 of the destitute consumptives can find a bed in a hospital or sanatorium.

Will Gluttony Cause The Downfall of America?

By the Rev. Dr. MADISON C. PETERS of New York.

IS America becoming a land of sensualists and gluttonists whose ONLY JOYS LIE IN THE DELIGHTS OF THE TABLE and the appeasement of the animal cravings?

The present high rate of living, the riotous surfeiting in costly dishes, the waste that follows in the wake of partial consumption, the increase of drunkenness, as proved by statistics, especially among the wealthy classes and notably in the case of women—all go to give an affirmative answer to the question.

The gourmands of Rome with their epicurean tables tolled the deathknell of the mighty empire.

GLUTTONY IS SAPPING THE VITALITY OF AMERICANS. LUCULLIAN FEASTS ARE HOURLY SPREAD IN THE HOMES OF THE RICH, WHILE THE TABLES OF RESTAURANTS, CAFES AND HOTELS GROAN WITH DELICACIES, LUXURIES AND VINTAGES BROUGHT FROM THE FOUR CORNERS OF EARTH.

Is America eating and drinking itself to death as Rome did? Will gluttony ENERVATE AND SAP ITS VITAL ENERGIES AND DULL ITS BRAIN? Will it strip the brow of fair America of the diadem of nationhood? The men who placed that diadem there were men of abstemious habits and austere lives. They denied rather than indulged, they kept down the animal in them for the sake of the spiritual, they conquered the flesh, and as a consequence they were able to conquer their enemies. They were MEN OF MIND AND SOUL, NOT OF PALATE AND STOMACH.

Of all the dominant nations Americans are the shortest lived. They BURN THE CANDLE AT BOTH ENDS AND IN THE MIDDLE.

A MUTTON FED, BEEF FED, BEER DRINKING MESSENGER IN ONE OF OUR AMERICAN CITIES COULD NOT COVER A DISTANCE OF SIXTY BLOCKS WITHOUT PANTING AND PUFFING LIKE A SUPERANNUATED STEAM ENGINE BROUGHT INTO PLAY AGAIN.

The American will DENY HIS STOMACH NOTHING THAT MONEY CAN BUY. He sends to the remotest corners of the earth for delicacies to tickle his palate.

CHILD LABOR LAWS

Five Deficiences to be Regulated in This State

The Massachusetts Child Labor Committee has begun a campaign to restore Massachusetts to her former high position in child labor legislation. In the progress of states she has been in this respect left behind.

A SHORTER DAY'S WORK

Eleven states have a shorter day's work for children between fourteen and sixteen. The Child Labor bill to be presented to the legislature this month will give the child between fourteen and sixteen an eight-hour day. Five states already have such a day; the law in these states is enforced and the children are protected from the tremendous fatigue of monotonous machine work. The present law allows children to be worked ten and one-half hours a day and this is the usual time schedule in factories. There are about 14,000 children between fourteen and sixteen engaged in manufactures, and the welfare of these children is the welfare of a large portion of future generations.

NIGHT WORK.

The second bill which the Massachusetts State Child Labor Committee will introduce is one prohibiting night work between fourteen and sixteen.

Children of this age are obviously unfit for late working hours. Men alone should work at night. Seventeen states restrict night work more than Massachusetts does the general rule is to prohibit it between 7 P. M. and 6 A. M. In Massachusetts children may work in factories, except textile factories, until 10 P. M. and in other employments throughout the night.

GOOD HEALTH.

The third bill requires children, between fourteen and sixteen to be physically able to perform the work which they intend to do, before they may be granted certificates entitling them to work in factories, workshops or mercantile establishments. This is no theorists' measure ,this is a practical step which Massachusetts is now ready to take. New York already has taken it and provides for the physical inspection of children before going into the factory. There is at hand a system of school physicians who already inspect school children—it is only necesary to give them this additional duty of inspecting children who are to work, between fourteeen and sixteen, in factories, workshops and mercantile establishments.

Perhaps 7 000 inspections each year throughout the whole state will be necessary. The machinery is already in existence for making sure that no uninspected child works in avoidance of the law. At present the school departments issue age and schooling certificates for each child between fourteen and sixteen and it is only necessary to provide that these shall not be issued without the health certificate of the school physician. No more work will come upon the district police who enforce the law because they will only have to look as at present, to the age and schooling certificate of each child in the factory.

DANGEROUS TRADES.

The State Board of Health finds that certain trades and processes are dangerous to health even if the employees are in sound health when they enter upon the occupation. Children under eighteen should not be allowed to engage in these occupations, whether or not older people, in the exercise of their judgment are willing to engage in them. The state should protect the children if their parents are too greedy or thoughtless to prevent their engaging in these occupations. Eleven states already prohibit the employment of children in dangerous occupations. Massachusetts should follow their lead.

STREET TRADES.

The other child labor laws of Massachusetts, such as they are, apply to the employment of children—children in street trades are generally not employed—they work for themselves. They ought, however, to be prevented from working at too tender an age or too late at night as much as children who work for other people. For this reason the Massachusetts State Child Labor Committee proposes a bill requiring that children in cities of over 50,000 population who engage in street trades must be licensed by the School Committee and providing the proper penalties for infringement.

These five bills will bring Massachusetts nearer the standard set by other states in the protection of children.

OLD OCEAN MIXES IN DRINKING WATER

Epidemic of Sore Throats Is Thus Accounted For

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 13.—That the Merrimac river overflowed its banks in the recent blizzard and poured over a dam into the Artichoke river, the source of the city's water supply, increasing the depth by the addition of a foot of salt water, and that the people of this city have been drinking this salt water of a river previously condemned by the state board of health, is the startling announcement made here.

Now it is believed that the cause of a recent sore throat epidemic has been discovered. Complaints will be made to the health authorities, and unless something is immediately done citizens will present a petition to the state board.

A SMALLPOX SCARE

Employes In Wakefield Factories Must Submit to Vaccination

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 13.—Wakefield's board of health has ordered compulsory vaccination for all of the 2500 persons employed in the mills and factories of the town. This action was considered necessary because of the danger due to the possibility that many of them may have been exposed to the disease at the wake a week ago, from which the spread of the disease is traced.

At the rate at which the smallpox epidemic is spreading in Wakefield, the board of health of that town predicts that before another night there will be at least a dozen cases reported. Another victim has been added to the list of fifteen in Reading.

The Wakefield board of health is in conference with the Reading board, in an effort to secure the exhibition hall building on the Wakefield-Reading fair grounds as a pesthouse.

BOY KILLED BY MANIAC

Latter Escapes After Firing Pistol Into Crowd of Schoolchildren

New York, Jan. 13.—A black-bearded maniac, wearing a black slouch hat, drew an automatic pistol from his long coat and fired five shots into a crowd of Harlem schoolboys who had been taunting him.

Robert Lomas, 6 years old, was shot through the heart and died instantly. Arthur Shively, also 6 years years old, was shot through the left lung and was critically wounded.

The man in black shambled off into the bushes and rocks surrounding the boys' playground, and was soon lost to sight. One hundred and fifty policemen and a posse of citizens are hunting for him.

French Government Proposes Strong Action Against the Catholics

Paris, Jan. 13.—The government has decided upon measures to meet the war proclaimed by the episcopate against the public schools, and Minister of Education Doumergue will announce the following decisions during the forthcoming debate on the school question in the chamber of deputies.

First—A modification of the bill recently introduced to enable the government to clothe the public authorities with full power to meet the situation at every point.

Second—The submission of a bill introducing state control in Catholic or so-called private schools.

Third—The substitution of the state as the defendant for teachers in suits brought against them by Catholic parents' associations.

Voting In Spain.

Voting in Spain is held to be a duty to the community, not merely a privilege of the individual, and neglect of civic obligations carries its own penalty. Male adults of legal age and under seventy, with the exception of priests, notaries and judges, are required to vote in municipal elections. Failure to cast a ballot is punishable by having one's name published as censure for neglect, by having taxes increased 2 per cent, by suffering a deduction of 1 per cent in salary if employed in the public service and for the second offense the loss of right to hold elective or appointive office.

PAULHAN GOES UP 5000 FEET

All Records For Airship High Flights Are Smashed

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13.—In wide sweeping spirals, Louis Paulhan drove his biplane to an altitude of nearly one mile, breaking all official and unofficial records for high flight.

The judges' record of Paulhan's altitude, which is still to be sanctioned officially, was approximately 5000 feet.

LOUIS PAULHAN

The aneroid on Paulhan's biplane showed that he had reached a height of 4600 feet, thereby surpassing Hubert Latham's record, made at Mourlureton, France, Jan. 10, 1910, by 1000 feet.

It was 50 minutes 45 seconds from the time Paulhan left the ground until he returned from his voyage.

As the daring aviator sailed to the height of lofty mountains he was as nearly out of sight as he could be without disappearing entirely. The time of descent from the lofty height was 7 minutes 30 seconds.

It was a thrilling sight to the people of the Pacific coast. It would have been an inspiring spectacle even to the people of France, who are accustomed to marvelous performances in the air.

No event on the coast has ever brought such moments of excitement and suspense. As 50,000 men and women beheld the machine climbing higher and higher, bearing a man whose body looked no larger than an insect, they gazed in silence. They were too intensely absorbed to cheer. The applause came in a great storm that swept the crowd almost into a panic, when the machine came soaring safely back to earth.

On its way upward the biplane circled about three balloons for a moment and then passed them. For a few moments more it was silhouetted against the dark side of the distant mountains. Then it crept upward, circled high above the mountain peaks, grew smaller and smaller as it ascended, until at last it was a scarcely distinguishable speck wheeling steadily in the blue sky.

Paulhan made his record shortly after losing the speed record for the course to Glenn H. Curtiss. The Frenchman had been on the course all the afternoon. He had circled the course again and again, skidding and dipping and swinging corners in a daring fashion.

The sun was low toward the sea and the shadows had begun to gather when Paulhan went higher in the air than any man in a heavier-than-air machine had ever flown. The wind barely stirred.

As Paulhan rose in the air he pointed north, went up 1000 feet, passed over the center of the field again as though to take another last look at a human face, then turned north and up again.

The crowd grew breathlessly intent as the Frenchman and his air machine rapidly became a speck in the gathering twilight. At a height of 1300 feet Paulhan described a great circle to feel the currents. By this time he was mile and a half from camp. When word was spread that he had beaten Hubert Latham's record the throng became frantic.

He came down easily in front of the grandstand, after having risen to the plane of the mountain peaks. As he leaped from his machine, cheeks glowing and eyes flashing, he was grabbed by his friends and carried to the grandstand, where he bared his head amid a thunder of cheers.

FORE RIVER SAVINGS INSURANCE

Excellent results are still being reached at the Fore River Ship Building Company where the savings insurance system was introduced some time ago. In the week ending Jan. 8 applications for insurance aggregating $3,250 were recorded.

Comparative figures of premium receipts for December 1909 as against December 1908 have just been compiled at the office of the State Actuary. From these it appears that the People's Savings Bank of Brockton last month received $1,645.75 in premiums as against $93.31 the month before. The figures at the Whitman Savings Bank were $2,092.02 as against $377.19.

—Mayor Arthur Howard of Salem evidently has not forgotten his preelection promise to devote most of his salary of $1,500 as mayor to the playgrounds of the city for he has given orders to have an ice skating pond made on the Common and will pay for it out of his own pocket.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Quincy People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment,

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

At the Senior class meeting Wednesday at 1.20, presided over by Theodore H. Corey, Eilenn Fay was elected from Ward Four to serve on the nominating committee; then the matter of a reception to Mr. Cleveland was brought up and it was unanimously voted to have the Juniors, and the classes of '08 and '09 invited to participate.

A Junior class meeting was held this afternoon.

Brookline High has recently established a Girls' Debating Club in addition to the regular Boys' Club. It would seem that a debating club at Quincy would be a useful adjunct to the English department. Mr. Cleveland has frequently said he was heartily in favor of such an organization. Everyone appeared to enjoy it when a few debates were held last year in some of the Senior English classes.

The many friends of Stanley Sherman, '08, now a sophomore in Amherst college, regret that his illness prevents his returning for the present.

Subject to change, the basket-ball squad is:—Arthur, R. T. Bates, H. Chapman, M. Chapman, R. Cranshaw, W. Cranshaw, Harmon, Manning, Marcean, Miller, H. Prout, E. Prout, Scanlon, H. Sutermeister, and Trask.

Thus far it has been impossible to form a hockey team; but it is hoped that those working hard for one will be successful in the near future.

The ceiling in Room 2 where the plaster loosened by leaking water pipes fell has been repaired.

The second team did itself honor Tuesday afternoon, the more so because this was practically the first time the team had played together.

Aaron Gould, '10 is planning a sleigh ride.

Alfred Hanson was elected chairman of the nominating committee of the Senior class when the committee met a few days ago.

Richard Hussey visited school Monday.

Miss Minnie Packard, Q. H. S. '05, Wellesley '09, who substituted in the fall for Mr. Blazo, received a handsome travelling bag Christmas from her pupils in Southboro.

Elizabeth Torrey, '10 has returned from an extended visit in New York state.

Phillips Hardy, '10, is the new editor of the High school column in the Daily Ledger. Any assistance given him in making it a newsy and entertaining department will be appreciated by the publishers of the Ledger.

The girls seem to have become interested in basket-ball at last. Enough have shown up at practice to form two teams. Wednesday is their meeting day.

The next Golden-Rod promises to be the best yet. The editors are planning special features and the literary department has received much excellent material.

There are at present forty graduates of the Weymouth High school attending fourteen colleges and four normal schools: Amherst has 1, Dartmouth 2, Brown 1, Tufts 2, Boston College 1, Boston University 3, Radcliffe 1, Simmons 1, Mt. Holyoke 4, Massachusetts Agricultural 2, University of Wisconsin 1, Mass. Institute of Technology 5, Smith 1, Wellesley 1, Boston Normal 1, Bridgewater Normal 9, Salem Normal 1, Massachusetts Normal Art 3.

Thanks to Mr. Cleveland's vigilance in keeping the daring ones off Butlers pond when the ice is thin at recess, there have been no accidents thus far this year.

Prof. Charles McCarthy of the University of Wisconsin addressed the pupils of the Brockton High school on Tuesday. Mr. McCarthy was formerly a pupil in the Brockton High and has since been travelling in Japan. He said in part: "The world has no place for the young man without a vocation, and the only way a young man can rise is by hard labor and sacrifice. I have washed dishes to earn my way through school and many a night I have been to bed without a mouthful of supper. I've earned my way through college twice. I went four years and didn't learn enough to suit me, and I went four years more."

Billy Manning would prove an attraction at a circus if he could repeat some of his stunts like the somersault at Friday's game.

The Dedham High school has a very successful Alumni association, which will hold its 38th annual reunion next Tuesday evening. The programme follows: 7.30 reception and reunion; 8 business meeting and election of officers; 8.15 ,entertainment by Lotus Male Quartett and Charles T. Grilley; 10 P. M. to 1 A. M. dancing with music by Poole's Orchestra. That all graduates of the school may continue their interest the reception committee is divided into groups: A group of four representing the classes of 1855 to 1863, another the classes of 1864 to 1873, another 1874 to 1883, another 1884 to 1893, another 1894 to 1898, another 1899 to 1903 and one the classes of 1904 to 1908.

The Seniors of the Weymouth High school will have a dance Jan. 28, and have engaged Cuff's orchestra.

Four members of the orchestra Roger Bates, Theodore Corey, Harry Smith and Charles Sayward Jr., played Friday evening at the Woodward reception.

Friday, Jan. 14, there will be a basket ball game with Milton at 3.15.

The teaching corps at the Quincy High school now number 27, and the enrollment is over 700. There are nine men and 18 women teachers as follows:

Lester L. Cleveland head master.
Melvin T. Holbrook sub-master, latin.
John F. Roach history.
Isaac Goddard manual training.
Ralph P. Currier mathematics and history.
Max Weiss, physics and chemistry.
Harold B. Blazo, history.
P. J. Landers, commercial department.
J. Gardner Smith, physical training.
Miss Clara E. Thompson, mathematics.
Miss H. Anna Kennedy, botany.
Miss Norma C. Lowe, shorthand and typewriting.
Miss Ethelwyn A. Rea bookkeeping.
Miss Grace A. Howe, French and science.
Miss Alice A. Todd, shorthand and typewriting.
Miss Annie M. Cheever bookkeeping.
Miss Marie C. Bass, English.
Miss Flora M. Shackley, drawing.
Miss S. Marion Chadbourne, English.
Miss Lilla R. Birge, German.
Miss Sarah C. Ames, domestic science.
Miss Evaline A. Salsman, mathematics.
Miss Mary A. Brown, English.
Miss Katherine F. Garrity, English.
Miss Marjorie Fay, English.
Miss Louisa R. Holt, French.
Miss Margaret Lennon, secretary.

NEW INDUSTRY.

The George Steam Turbine Company of Boston has sent its financial agent, L. G. Grossman, to this city to look over the ground, and if proper arrangements can be made, will locate its plant here employing about 200 people.

WOMAN'S GUILD.

The Woman's Guild of St. Chrysostom's church held its annual meeting in the parish rooms Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. David L. Jewell, treasurer and secretary pro tem, read the reports. The past year has been in many ways a most successful one. Entertainments, suppers and a bazaar have been held for the one object, that of helping to reduce the church mortgage, payment of which was made last month. Loving tributes were paid to two faithful members who have passed beyond, Mrs. William J. Leslie and Mrs. Osborne. The election of officers was as follows: President, Mrs. Percy L. Davidson; first vice president, Mrs. David Fulton; second vice president, Miss Cook; treasurer and secretary, Mrs. Vernon S. B okaw.

—The owners of a St. Abbs fishing boat have made the important discovery that a net dyed as nearly as possible the hue of the sea, instead of the traditional brown, yields much larger results in the matter of fish catch. The discoverey was put to the test recently when, out of a fleet of sixty-five boats, the boat with its net dyed blue made far and away the largest catch. The dye used is bluestone. The discovery has aroused much interest among the fishermen.

Interesting Facts About Fire Fighting

(Historical Paper No. 5.)

The reunion of the Washington M. French Hose Association on Saturday last, Jan. 8, suggests a review of fire fighting in Quincy from earliest times. Fortunately Pattee's History of Old Braintree and Quincy contained just what was sought, as follows:

"The first action taken by the inhabitants of old Braintree for her protection from the ravages of fire was in 1641, 10th month, 19th day, when the following persons assembled in town meeting:—Samuel Bass, John Albee, Stephen Kinsley, Martin Sanders, Thomas Matson, Thomas Flatman, and Peter Brackett. At this meeting they passed an order that every householder in the town should, by the first day of March, have a ladder to stand up against the chimney of his house, to secure them and the town from fire. In neglect of this order they were to pay such a penalty as the town might impose on them.

"Immediately after the separation of the town from Braintree, its citizens formed a Fire Association, for the mutual protection of each other's property from the devastations of fire. They were provided with the primitive fire apparatus of the times; buckets, ladders and fire-hooks. This was the first organized voluntary fire department in Quincy.

"This association during the war of 1812 found their facilities for extinguishing fires rather limited, and behind the times. To improve their condition they, by voluntary subscription, purchased a hand engine of the most improved construction for that day.

"This engine was without suction, and to make it effectual it became necessary to form a bucket company, for the purpose of supplying it with water at fires, by forming a line to the source of supply. At times it was found impossible to form a line, owing to the distance of the fire from the supply of water; then the engine had to be taken to the water, filled, drawn back to the fire, and pumped out, this process being repeated until the fire was extinguished.

"This was the first fire-engine owned in town. It was called the Columbia and located on Hancock street, a short distance north of the Stone Temple.

"Not to be behind the Centre district, the South, some years after, formed a voluntary fire association and purchased a fire-engine, of similar construction to the Columbia, called the Adams; it was stationed as first on School, afterwards on Franklin street.

"About 1826, the State passed a law exempting all persons who belonged to the fire departments from doing military duty. This caused a great accession to the ranks of the fire companies, as many had become dissatisfied with military duty, preferring to achieve heroic honors by fighting the fiery element rather than by a bloody conflict.

"This method of extinguishing fires proved inefficient and unsatisfactory, which caused private fire associations, in 1840, to purchase a suction engine called the Niagara, built by S. & E. Thayer. It was the first engine of the kind ever owned in the town.

"In 1840, an effort was made by the inhabitants of the town to establish a fire department, to be under the control of a Board of Engineers. A committee was chosen for the purpose, who reported in its favor, and also recommended the following assessment to be made for the support of this organization: One new engine, $650.00; two hundred feet of leading hose,——;one hundred and twenty new buckets, $270.00, (buckets seem to have been of more account than hose;) fire hooks and ladders, $50.00; repairing two old engines, $50.00; also an additional sum of $650.00 to pay the expenses of the fire department the year ensuing; and to be under the control of a Chief Engineer.

"As unanimous as this report was by the committee the town did not think it expedient to establish a fire organization at this time, and the question as to the adoption of the report was voted in the negative.

"This matter was delayed but a few years. February 9th, 1844, the town voted to purchase the Columbia and Niagara engines of the volunteer fire association, by paying the debts of that organization. The amount paid for these two engines was $157.83. From 1844 can then be dated the first organization of a fire department under the control of the town.

"Later in 1844, an engine fever grew out of the Town House excitement, and three hand suction engines were voted to be purchased. All three were built this year, and came into town within a month or two of each other. The Vulture was stationed at the Point, the Tiger at South Quincy, and the Granite at West Quincy.

The cost of constructing the Tiger and the Granite, by Hunneman & Co., was $2,098.00. The town paid S. & E. Thayer, for the Vulture, $906.30. In 1845 they paid the balance due on the Vulture, of $150.00, making the total cost $1,056.30. The Tiger and Granite houses cost $1,018.30; the Vulture, $536.12. All three of these engines were in active service in 1878, but had their works somewhat remodeled and changed.

"The first Niagara was sold in 1857, and a more powerful one constructed by Hunneman & Co. was purchased to supply its place. This engine, with the house and apparatus, was burnt on the 22d of January, 1870. This was the first engine ever burnt in town.

"The first act to establish a Fire Department in Quincy, was passed by the Legislature, April 8th, 1853.

"In 1845, the Granite Hook and Ladder Company petitioned the town to have their State and town tax abated for services rendered, which was referred to the Board of Engineers. This appears to have been the first Hook and Ladder Company established under the regular organized fire department. The town Records appear to be wrong in reference to the Granite Hook and Ladder Company having been at Quincy, as it was located in Milton, although some of its members resided in West Quincy, which most probably caused the mistake, as it was the members in West Quincy who petitioned for abatement of taxes.

"In 1856 a Hook and Ladder Company was established, a truck procured, and located on Canal street, later Revere road.

"In 1870, the Washington M. French Hose Company was formed for the purpose of supplying the hand engines with a greater amount of hose, in case of fire, than they were able to take with them on their own carriages.

"In 1873, several of the citizens of the town made an attempt to purchase a steam pump by voluntary subscription. A pump was procured, but it was found that there were not funds enough subscribed to pay for it. An appeal was made to the town for a sufficient amount of money to pay the balance. The town responded by voting at a special town meeting held October 19th 1874, the sum of three hundred and fifty dollars to pay the outstanding bill, for which the town was to have absolute possession and control of the steam pump. This pump was located in Mr. Panton's currier shop, on Hancock street, beside the Town brook, where an ample supply of water can always be procured. This addition to the fire apparatus of the town proved to be a very efficient arm of the fire department, nearly equal to a first-class steam fire-engine within the range of two or three thousand feet from where she is located. She would be of still greater advantage in protecting the property of the town from fire, if the streets were piped and hydrants attached both as to efficiency and economy.

"In 1876, the town built a reservoir at Wollaston Heights, and also purchased a new chemical engine to protect this enterprising settlement from fires, which within a few years have occurred frequently. Large and ample reservoirs have been from time to time, constructed in various parts of the town, for its better security in case of extensive conflagrations.

"The fire department as organized in 1878, is as efficient and active as any can be under the old hand-engine system.

"For two or three years past, (1875 to 1875,) the progressive citizens of the town have been very active in trying to have the town procure a steam fire engine, for the better protection of the town in case of a severe conflagration, but as yet have been unable to accomplish this most desirable object.

"A radical change always meets with strong, and in most cases, unreasonable opposition; fire departments are not an exception, for no class of people are more tenacious of their organization than fire associations. So much so is this the case, that when Boston in 1825, endeavored to make some change in the system of extinguishing fires by utilizing and making more efficient the engines then in use, by placing them, in case of fire, in line, connecting one with the other, for the purpose of throwing a continuous stream of water upon the fire—this the department refused to do. When the city authorities insisted upon it the companies decided to disband, so strong were their prejudices against this change.

"At this time Boston had fourteen fire engines supplied with eight hundred feet of hose, being an allowance of about fifty feet to each engine. In 1825, the great fire on Doane, Central, Broad and State streets occurred, which clearly demonstrated to the citizens of Boston the inefficiency of the then existing system of extinguishing fires as the following statement, made at the time, will illustrate:

" 'The scene, on this occasion, was one of extreme embarrassment and confusion. The lines, formed by the firewards with great difficulty, were soon broken or deserted, and great depredations were committed on property brought forth indiscriminately, and left unprotected in the streets. The engines were dragged one thousand feet to the docks, and half the water obtained was lost before they could be dragged back again, and put in operation.'

"Out of this disaster, after a long and severe struggle, grew a more efficient system; for the city purchased two engines of approved power—one in New York and one in Philadelphia— and a Hydraulicon, which was a small engine with one chamber, used for forcing water through hose as a supply to the other engines. From this they passed to suction engines, and then to steam.

"Steam engines were first used, in London, in 1830, at the fire of the Argyle rooms.

"At this period an engine was manufactured for the King of Prussia, that threw about 61 3-4 tons of water per minute.

"The first seamless hose was woven in 1720 at Leipsic. After this they were made by Erka, a linen weaver of Weimar; and at a later period they were made of linen at Dresden.

"Hose or pipes of a primitive kind for conveying water, were, however, not entirely unknown to the ancients. At least the architect Appollodorus says: 'That to convey water to high places exposed to fiery darts the gut of an ox, having a bag filled with water affixed to it, might be employed, for on compressing the bag, water would be forced up through the gut to the place of destination.' "

LAND COURT

To Margaret A. Burns and James H. Penniman of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and the Old Colony Railroad Company, duly existing corporations having usual places of business in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Walter M. Hadley of Somerville, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land situate in said Quincy, being lots No. twenty-seven to thirty-five, inclusive, as shown on a Plan of Land of the Quincy Land Company, Wollaston Heights, recorded with Norfolk County Deeds, at the end of Book 1010, bounded: Northeasterly by Old Colony Avenue, five hundred sixty-one and 5-10 feet; Southeasterly by land of James H. Penniman and land of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company one hundred fourteen and 7-10 feet; Southwesterly by said Railroad Company six hundred seventeen and 69-100 feet; Northwesterly by land of Margaret A. Burns one hundred feet, containing fifty-eight thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine (58959) square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirty-first day of January A. D., 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifth day of January in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

BRIEFS

Alvin Pounty of Taylor street is seriously ill with pleuro-pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Small have moved from the home on Billings street to Magnolia street, Upham's corner.

The three year old daughter of Conductor Bernard Simmonds of Braintree was seriously scalded on the shoulder and arms by boiling water on Sunday.

The Ward Three Republican committee has organized with Alexander Clark as chairman, Edward Marnock as secretary and Murdock Lamont as treasurer.

The Ward Four Improvement Association expects an interesting meeting tonight. Matters pertaining to the welfare of that section of the city will be discussed.

The five electric light poles on Hancock street, Norfolk Downs, which were broken off during the storm, have been replaced by new ones, and it is expected that Atlantic will have street lights soon.

Mrs. Vernon S. Brokaw of South Central avenue who underwent an operation on Monday at a private hospital on Commonwealth avenue, Boston, is resting comfortably and friends hope for a continuation of these favorable reports.

Office Larkin stopped a lively runaway on Hancock street Norfolk Downs, on Wednesday. The horse was hitched to a pung and belongs to Silverman the junk dealer, and was going down the street at a lively clip when Mr. Larkin caught the reins.

The Boys' club of the Memorial church will hold a banquet in the church annex tonight. The boys worked hard and succeeded in soliciting funds for the supper the serving of which will be in charge of Mrs. Davison, Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Willey. A speaker from Quincy will be present to address the boys.

Members of the Civic Committee of the Quincy Women's club living in Atlantic report that twenty-five dollars worth of Red Cross Christmas and New Year stamps were sold in Atlantic. The Civic Committee are very grateful for the liberal patronage and take this opportunity to thank the many friends of the Quincy Tuberculosis Camp.

Escaped Convicts Lead Keepers and Citizens In Hot Chase

BOTH ARE FINALLY CAPTURED

Departed From Sing Sing by Way of Transom In Kitchen, In Which They Worked as Bakers—Night Keeper Had Both In Custody, but One Broke Away and the Other Assaulted Him and Fled

New York, Jan. 13.—All the privileges that Francis Frank and Frederick A. Nedwid enjoyed as short term prisoners in Sing Sing have been revoked because of their escape from the institution and the chase they led attendants and citizens over the estates of John D. Rockefeller and Miss Helen Gould.

Frank was captured while hiding on the estate of Miss Gould. He struggled to escape, but was knocked down and finally made captive. He bruised his captor with kicks and punches. By escaping from the institution the men must now serve to the very limit the sentence imposed on them. Their running away deprives them of the commutation of sentence that results from good behavior.

The convicts got away by climbing over the transom in the prison kitchen. Both worked in the bakery. They were called at 5 o'clock to begin their duties. No sooner had the men been left in the kitchen than they climbed over the transom, dropped into the snow and made their way to the river.

Alexander Meginley, a night keeper, told his wife and daughter of the escape and at noon Meginley's daughter saw two men in prison garb.

Meginley followed the men to Tarrytown and at Broadway and Sheldon avenue caught both. Frank broke away and ran. Meginley called to John Livingston and John Farrel, who were in the street in a sleigh, and to the jingling of sleigh bells they began the chase toward Miss Helen Gould's estate.

Meginley took Nedwid to Anton Lechner's saloon. Lechner left the saloon while Meginley was telephoning to the warden that he had the men, and Nedwid turned upon his captor, struck him a powerful blow in the chest and made his second escape while the night keeper lay on the floor. On to the ice in the river went the man.

Meginley followed, but the younger and more active convict won the race.

Livingston followed Frank into Miss Gould's property, where the man disappeared. As Livingston stumbled over a haystack his foot struck Frank's hidden head. In a moment the convict was a prisoner again, and his captor took him to Sing Sing.

Search for Nedwid, in which scores joined, went on over every one of the large estates in the section. Three keepers from the prison, Irving, McWilliams and Daly, found him hiding in a coal shed at Irvington. He was brought to the prison in time for the bed time check.

RECOUNT IS UNLIKELY

Storrow Willing to Abide by Official Returns of the Boston Election

Boston, Jan. 13.—The chances of James J. Storrow asking for a recount of the mayoralty vote is now believed to be exceedingly small. Storrow has sent out a statement saying that when he first announced his intention of asking for a recount he had understood that the difference between his vote and that of Mr. Fitzgerald was much smaller than the last press returns gave it. He made it plain that unless the official count made a material change he would abandon his recount plans.

The official count it is known tallies exactly with the press returns, which gave Fitzgerald a plurality of 1415 votes.

"ALDRICH AND HIS CREW"

Senator Brown, an Insurgent, Places Them In the Anarchist Class

Washington, Jan. 13.—Senator Brown of Nebraska, an "insurgent," was a caller at the White House Wednesday. On his way out, Brown said that he was with the president on his progressive legislative program. "But we are going to get these anarchists yet," he said.

"Who do you mean by anarchists?" Brown was asked.

"I mean Aldrich and his crew," he replied.

A Prosperity Barometer

Washington, Jan. 13.—As a barometer of business conditions throughout the country the receipts at the postoffices are regarded as of great value. During December forty-eight of the fifty largest offices in the United States showed a considerable increase over the corresponding month of a year ago.

Train Kills Two Turks

Saco, Me., Jan. 13.—Two Turks, whose names are yet to be learned, were instantly killed by a train on the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad within 100 feet of the station here last night.

FLAMES WORKED QUICKLY

World's Largest Valentine Factory Burned, With Loss of $300,000

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 13.—The plant of the George C. Whitney company, the largest valentine manufactory in the world, contained in a five-story brick structure, was entirely destroyed by fire last night.

The estimated loss is $300,000, and 550 persons are put out of employment through the destruction of the property.

Celluloid, forming part of the stock used in the making of valentines, caused an explosion that blew out windows and made the work of the fire fighters particularly hazardous.

Hundreds of thousands of valentines, all ready for shipment, whose estimated value was placed at $60,000, were consumed. The fire started out in the boiler room and worked with lightning-like rapidity.

WEDS DEAD WIFE'S SISTER

Young Girl Becomes Aunt and Stepmother of Three Children

Boston, Jan. 13.—An economy of family relationship was effected when Salvatore Oliverio of this city was married to his deceased wife's sister at the immigrant bureau on Long wharf.

The latter, Consiglia Tagliercio, arrived here as an immigrant girl aboard the Romanic, from Italy, on election day. Although she is only 16 years old, she is the combined stepmother and aunt to Oliverio's three children.

The wedding thus effected was the result of an old-fashioned "match," made by the girl's parents with their son-in-law, Oliverio. He provided the trousseau and all expenses of the trip to Boston.

NOT IMPLICATED IN SUGAR FRAUDS

Officials Defended In American Company's Annual Report

New York, Jan. 13.—"No attempt whatever has been made to shield any one and your board has no reason to believe and does not believe that any executive officer or director of this company had any knowledge of or participation in this fraudulent underweighing."

This was the emphatic answer made by the board of directors of the American Sugar Refining company to the charges that some one "higher up" in the so-called sugar trust was responsible for the use of doctored scales on the Williamsburg dock by which the United States was defrauded out of more than $2,000,000 in duties.

Stockholders of the American company met in Jersey City and the company's position with regard to the sugar underweighing was made known in a report of the board of directors.

The majority of the stock of the company, the report states, is held in New England. In answer to the charge that the company exercises a monopoly in the sugar trade, the directors say that not more than 43 percent of the sugar consumed in the country is refined by the American company.

CONSPIRACY IS WIDESPREAD

Small Army Guarding Palace of the King of Portugal

Lisbon, Jan. 13.—The plot to assassinate King Manuel and overthrow the government extended to the palace itself, involving more prominent persons than was at first believed.

Although the palace is guarded by a small army, the king's advisers are greatly agitated and Manuel has changed his sleeping apartment every night since the discovery of the plot. The plot has been shown by papers seized to be more far reaching than any of its kind uncovered in Europe in years.

The ultimate object of the conspiracy was the institution of a republican form of government and the driving from Portugal or the execution of all the monarchial leaders.

CLAIMED BY TWO WOMEN

Lynn Man Is Placed Under Arrest on Charge of Polygamy

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 13.—Charged with polygamy by a woman describing herself as Mrs. John T. Buzzell No. 1, of Providence, John T. Buzzell of this city was arrested last night. He has been living here with Mrs. Emma A. Buzzell, who declares herself his legal wife, and there are two children.

Mrs. Buzzell No. 1 claims she has evidence that Buzzell, who is 50 years old, also has another wife. Buzzell has lately worked in local shoe factories.

Statehood Bill Complete

Washington, Jan. 13.—The bill granting separate statehood to Arizona and New Mexico was considered in the house committee on territories and practically completed. It will be reported back to the house probably within a day or two.

Cotton Crisis In Belgium

Brussels, Jan. 13.—The Belgian Weavers' association, in view of the crisis in the cotton industry, has decided to suspend work one day in each week for three months.

INDICTMENTS COMING SOON

Grand Jury Working on Twelve Cases of Alleged White Slavery

SCOPE OF INQUIRY EXTENDED

Investigation of "Raines Law" Hotels and Tenderloin Resorts Now Planned—Two Syndicates Credited With Making Profitable Business of Nefarious Traffic—Many Men Dealing In Girls In Isolated Cases

New York, Jan. 13.—Results of the investigation that the grand jury of which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is foreman is conducting into the "white slave" traffic are already becoming evident, for two indictments have been handed up.

One of the men accused is out of the city, supposedly leaving when he learned that the investigators were close at his heels. When his absence was discovered a bench warrant was issued for his arrest. Detectives are now searching for him. He is reported to be either in Philadelphia or in a small town in Jersey.

It is rumored around the grand jury room that these indictments are only the forerunners of what are to come. Effort is being made to secure at least twelve other indictments of members of two syndicates that are credited with making an extremely profitable business of the traffic.

George K. Turner was called to tell the grand jurors what he knew about the white slave traffic. It is understood that while Turner imparted information of a general character he could tell nothing on which any one might be prosecuted for participation in the affairs of any such organization.

Every day's progress of the investigation draws the line a little closer about the inner coterie where control of the traffic is believed to lodge. While the two indictments found by the grand jury are of minor individuals, the official probers have renewed their investigation in the conviction that it will be possible soon to reach men much "higher up."

Outside the phase of the matter which involves an organization for the traffic the grand jurors will not be without information on which radical action may be taken in the next few days. In isolated cases there are many men whose business is to deal in girls.

This is said to be true particularly of owners of Raines law hotels in the Tenderloin and other districts of the city.

It is understood that the scope of the investigation is to be broadened so as to include the "Raines law" hotels and Tenderloin resorts, in an effort to pick up links in the chain believed to bind the interests of the illicit traffic together.

White Slave Bill Passed

Washington, Jan. 13.—By an overwhelming vote the house passed the bill drawn by the immigration commission of congress for the suppression of the "white slave" traffic. The bill provides for the exclusion from the country of all persons engaged in the white slave traffic and for deportation of those found engaged in this business after entry. The penalty for offenders is a fine of not more than $5000 and imprisonment for not more than ten years.

LIFETIME OF REMORSE

Sentence Imposed Upon Man Who Killed His Own Infant

Belleville, Ills., Jan. 13.—A lifetime of remorse, rather than death on the gallows, was the penalty imposed on James Pullman, who confessed that he had killed his month-old baby by crushing its head with his heel.

"I will not sentence Pullman to the gallows," said Judge Crow, "but to the penitentiary for life. It will be punishment more terrible than death for him to be haunted day after day by the cries of his murdered child."

Pullman killed the child after he and the infant's mother had failed to find a home for it.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.
The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of th's preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

A Shooting Match

At Which One of the Parties Was Sure to Win.

By AINSWORTH RHODES.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

The first time I saw Daisy she was coming over her father's broad acres on a horse whose lope was very like a rocking chair. She was riding straddle with divided skirts. No other woman on the ranches thereabout would ride in any other costume. Barker was riding beside her, and the two made a very handsome pair. The brim of his sombrero was flattened against his forehead by the wind, a lariat hung at his saddle bow, and his splendid figure was revealed by his costume—viz, flannel shirt and trousers, with boots to his knee.

Daisy had gone out from the east with her father, who became a sheep raiser, and she had become fascinated with ranch life. Unfortunately she had conceived a romantic idea of the genus cowboy, and, Barker being physically a perfect type, she had persuaded herself, or, rather, he had persuaded her, that he was just the man for her. I say "unfortunately" because he was not an educated man and in every way beneath her. There were other features about him to render him undesirable which will appear presently.

The couple passed me, all of us saluting, though they were unknown to me, and I rode on to the ranch house, where I had business with John Nolan with reference to a large purchase of wool. While dickering with him on his veranda up the roadway came the couple I had met and alighted at the foot of the steps. Throwing their bridle reins over a post, they walked up on to the veranda. Then I learned that Daisy was Nolan's daughter.

As the pair passed into the house I noticed a cloud flit over the face of the girl's father. I knew by Barker's bearing toward her that he was in love with her, and I judged that his attentions were not relished by Nolan. But he said nothing to me then, and we went on with our dickering. When I arose to go he said:

"There's no place about here in which you will be comfortable except my house. Send for you traps."

I accepted the invitation, especially as I was pleased at being under the same roof with Miss Daisy. I knew she had a lover, but my attraction for her did not then go so far as to intend to come between them. I merely liked the idea of being near her during my stay.

But I stayed a good while, and it was not very long before she and I each made a discovery. I discovered that I wanted her, and she discovered that she didn't want Barker. Meanwhile I found out something else—that he had become frightfully jealous of me, and if I took her away from him he would probably kill me. At first he and I spoke to each other when we met either on the ranch or elsewhere. Then he only noticed me at the Nolan house.

I thought it best after awhile to remove to the (so called) hotel, a mile from Nolan's. If anything happened between Barker and myself I preferred that it should not happen under Nolan's roof. So one day I removed my luggage to my new quarters.

One morning I was sitting on the porch of the hotel smoking a briers wood pipe. Barker came out of the barroom, where he had been drinking, and took a seat about thirty feet from me. I didn't know he was there till, turning my head, I saw him out of the corner of my eye sighting his revolver at me.

Naturally I started.

"Hold on there," said Barker. "Your pipe makes a fine target. We don't allow people to smoke such expensive pipes out here!"

The words were scarcely out of his mouth when I felt a faint tick on the bowl of the pipe, heard the crack of a gun and knew that a bullet had passed through the pipe.

"Wait up!" he growled as I was about to rise. "Your pipe won't draw with a hole in it, but it's still a mighty good target."

I snatched a look at him. He was evidently under the influence of liquor. I felt sure that if I didn't let him shoot at my pipe he would shoot at me and nerved myself to stand another shot. Indeed, this was all I could do, for I was unarmed. But a cold chill ran down my back and a cold sweat stood out all over me. Nevertheless I put up a pretty good front. I sat with comparative composure, occasionally letting a faint cloud of tobacco smoke escape from between my lips, but not daring to move a hairbreadth for fear of interfering with the man's aim.

Several persons from inside the hotel, having heard a shot, came out to discover who had been killed. They arrived just in time to see the second shot and the top of the bowl of my pipe cut off. They at once took in the situation, and, seeing me coolly puffing, not knowing my internal condition, they cried out, "Good pluck, stranger!" "Steady nerve!" "He ain't no tenderfoot!" and such like compliments.

Presently a third shot shattered what was left of the bowl of my pipe, and only the stem remained in my mouth. Whether my nerve made Barker half ashamed of himself or that he was headed off by the admiration of the others I don't know, but he desisted from further shooting. I fancy, however, he was satisfied with what he had doubtless intended for a warning that if I took Daisy Nolan away from him I would have to face sure death. The witnesses urged me to go in and have something, but I declined, saying that I was anxious for a smoke and would go upstairs for another pipe. The truth is I wanted a chance to go where I could, unobserved, give way to my feelings for a few moments, they having been controlled only by a most desperate effort.

When I was alone I staggered to the bed, fell on it and for a few minutes trembled like a leaf. But when I began to recover I started to get mad at the same time. Men will fight more desperately for a woman than for any other cause, and it occurred to me that, Daisy being the bone of contention, if she preferred me either Barker or I must die. I spent some time considering what to do, then went to the ranch, intending to offer myself to Daisy. If she refused me I would leave the field at once to all suitors. If she accepted me I would have it out with Barker.

I found Miss Daisy very much excited. She had heard of Barker's shooting escapade and had turned bitterly against him. I told her that I wanted her and if she wanted me I was willing to settle the matter between Barker and myself. Her reply was all I could have asked for, but she positively forbade my coming into collision with my rival. I told her frankly that I believed he would kill me if I married her and that the matter had better be settled before the wedding. Being a woman, she wished to get round the matter by subterfuge and for the time being would consent to nothing definite.

Daisy was very fond of an old rancher called Jake Huchins. To her he was "Uncle Jake." A day or two after Barker's shooting as I was riding over the country on horseback Huchins came up behind me and ambled alongside of me.

"I hearn about the shootin' o' your pipe onten yer mouth," he said. "Little Daisy was telling me about it."

"Oh, it was Miss Nolan who told you, was it?'

"Yes. And, what's more, she asked me to suggest some way o' settlin' the matter without blood spillin'."

"That's impossible," said I.

"So I thort at fust, but arter awhile I thort of a plan. Barker's mighty proud o' his shootin', and he's pretty much made up his mind that he's lost Daisy. I reckon he'd agree to settle the matter by a trial o' skill between him and you. He'd consider it his only chance."

"I'm no shot. Such a contest would give Miss Daisy to him, and she doesn't want him."

"Not so fast. You don't need to be much o' a shot. Could you hit a hen's egg at twenty feet?"

"I might in two or three shots."

"Well, I give Daisy my plan, and she's decided to try it. Here's a note for you, and here's a note for Barker. Whichever hits a hen's egg with a forty-two the most outen five shots she'll marry."

He handed me a note to that effect from Daisy and showed me another he was commissioned to deliver to Barker.

"Do you consent?" he added, drawing rein.

"Yes," I said; "I consent to anything Daisy desires."

Without waiting for more he turned about and rode back in the direction from whence he came.

The next day Uncle Jake informed me that Barker had gladly agreed to the terms.

On the appointed day I made my appearance at the barn, wondering what was to be the upshot of this singular contest. I found an egg suspended over a basket by a fine thread. I won the toss and with it the right to fire five consecutive shots at the egg. I missed the first and the fourth, but put a hole in the egg on the second, third and the fifth. For my life I could not see why I had not lost. It would be nothing for Barker to hit the egg every time.

A new egg was attached to the thread for him to shoot at, and, whipping out his revolver, he fired with apparent carelessness. He was surprised to see the egg oscillate violently, but the shell was not broken. The next time he fired he took careful aim, but with no better success. He was thunderstruck. Since I had hit the egg three times he could now only tie me.

"You must hit it in the center," said Uncle Jake. "If you don't you'll glance."

Barker aimed long and carefully at the center and sent the egg bobbing, but still the shell was unbroken. Flinging his revolver on the barn floor, he strode away.

I knew that Barker had been tricked, but could not conceive how. It appeared to me that nothing could be more fair than the trial. I asked Uncle Jake how he had managed to let me, a poor shot, beat the best shot in the territory. He would not tell me. Barker was never seen there again. Daisy had induced him to sign a promise that if I beat him he would leave the field clear for me.

I married Daisy and took her east with me. She said she had had enough of the wild west and had no further use for cowboys, not considering them the romantic creatures she had thought them when she first went to the country. She learned the secret of the shooting match from Uncle Jake the day we were married and told it to me on our wedding journey. The meat had been taken from the egg Barker shot at, and the featherweight shell had been moved aside each time by the wind of the ball. To hit it was impossible.

Uncle Jake had learned the trick from a prestidigitator who had passed through the locality with a circus.

CHINA'S DEMAND FOR RAILROADS

Wu Tells of Early Prejudice Now Changed to Enthusiasm.

NETWORK OF LINES PREDICTED

Former Chinese Minister and Li Hung Chang Dared Not Even Suggest Railways Once—Remarkable Revolution In Sentiment In Twenty Years.

Wu Ting Fang, the former Chinese minister, who was interviewed at New York a few days before he sailed for China, spoke on the question of railroad building in China and imparted some startling facts.

"China for the Chinese" is, according to Mr. Wu, the motto of the Chinese so far as railroads in their country are concerned, and the fault, he says, lies with Americans. To make this clear he gave a brief history of Chinese railroads.

Li Hung Chang's Strategy.

"Twenty years ago," he said, "Li Hung Chang, whose legal adviser and secretary I was, was the only Chinese statesman who favored the building of railroads in China. He knew that it was useless to try to persuade the Chinese by argument of the advisability of having railroads, but he felt that if they could once see a railroad in operation they would want them all over the empire, where traveling is so difficult that many persons live and die without stirring from their native villages. Li Hung Chang dared not ask the imperial sanction for building the first railroad.

"He got around the difficulty by having me construct a road from a mine to the bank of a river that passed through no towns or villages even, so that no sanction was necessary. This road was ten miles long. People flocked to see it and were so favorably impressed that when Li Hung Chang asked the emperor's permission to extend the road to the city of Tientsin it was granted. All opposition to the railroad among the Chinese died out.

Network of Roads Soon.

"The Chinese now are so strongly in favor of railroads that in a few years the whole country will be covered by a network of them, but they want to do it themselves. As they have neither the money nor the experience the work is progressing much more slowly than it should. But they persist in the 'China for the Chinese' policy.

"Now, I am as loyal and patriotic as any Chinaman, but I recognize the difference between a foreign capitalist like the late Calvin Brice and an exploiter, and I hope to make my countrymen see the difference, too, but it will take a lot of diplomacy.

"There is a great future for Chinamen with a knowledge of railroading. I continually advise young men who come from China to study in the United States to take it up, and more and more of them are taking my advice."

FEEDING THE WORLD

Commerce and Labor Statistics Show That Our Farmers Are Prospering

Washington, Jan. 13.—Figures which reflect the prosperity of the country, especially that of the farmer, occur in the statement of domestic exports for 1909, prepared by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor.

Corn at 70 cents a bushel, wheat at $1.04 a bushel and about 12 cents for every pound of cotton exported is the record for 1909.

More than $24,000,000 worth of corn and $48,000,000 of wheat went from American ports to feed the rest of the world last year, and more than $460,000,000 worth of cotton went to foreign looms.

SWING AROUND TO WET

Country's Daily Increase In Liquor Drinking Is 186,837 Gallons

Louisville, Jan. 13.—The National Model License league, by its president, T. M. Gilmore, issued a statement asserting that recent reports of the United States commissioner of internal revenue show that for every day of the first five months of the current fiscal year the average daily increase in the consumption of distilled and fermented liquors is 186,837 gallons.

"This does not include the liquor incident to Christmas festivities," said Gilmore.

Battleship Fleet Off Cuba

Washington, Jan. 13.—News of the arrival of the battleship fleet at Guantanamo, Cuba, was received at the navy department in a wireless dispatch. The fleet includes twelve battleships.

Taft of Pilgrim Descent

Washington, Jan. 13.—A committee which visited the White House to invite President Taft to join the Society of the Mayflower told the president that he had been found eligible as a lineal descendant of the Pilgrim forefathers.

Big Prizes For Aeronauts

Paris, Jan. 13.—The International Aeronautical Federation announces that the prizes for the carnivals of 1910 will range from $40,000 to $120,000 at the European contests, while $200,000 will be offered for the American events.

CARAVAN BREADMAKING.

Afghans Use Cobblestones, While Turcomans Like Sand.

The bread of the Afghan caravan was cooked by heating small round cobblestones in the fire and then poking them out and wrapping dough an inch thick about them. The balls thus formed were again thrown into the fire, to be poked out again when cooked. The bread tasted well there in the desert, although in civilized communities the grit and ashes would have seemed unendurable.

After good fellowship had been established the Afghans actually sold us some flour, says a writer in the National Geographical Magazine. The camp where we used it a little later happened to be beside the sandy bed of a trickling salt stream, which was drinkable in winter, but absolutely unusable in summer, when evaporation is at its height and the salt is concentrated.

"See," said one of our Turcomans as we dismounted; "here is some sand. Tonight we can have some good bread."

When some dry twigs had been gathered he proceeded to smooth off a bit of the cleanest sand and built upon it a hot fire. When the sand was thoroughly hot he raked off most of the coals and smoothed the sand very neatly. Meanwhile one of the other men had made two large sheets of dough about three-quarters of an inch thick and eighteen inches in diameter. Between these he placed a layer of lumps of sheep's tail fat, making a huge round sandwich. This was now spread on the hot sand, coals mixed with sand were placed completely over it, and it was left to bake. Now and then an edge was uncovered, and a Turcoman smelled it appreciatively and rapped on it to see if it was yet cooked. When the top was thoroughly baked the bread was turned over and covered up again. It tasted even better than the Afghan bread after it was cooled a little and the sand and ashes had been whisked off with a girdle. The Turcomans are so accustomed to life in the sandy desert that they think it impossible to make the best kind of bread without sand, while the Afghans, who live in the stony mountains, think that cobblestones are a requisite.

THE ZANZIBARIS.

Dense Stupidity and Amusing Blunders of the Natives.

In the "Autobiography of Sir Henry M. Stanley" the author says of the colored natives of central Africa:

"Good as the majority of Zanzibaris were, some of them were indescribably and for me most unfortunately dense. One man who from his personal appearance might have been judged to be among the most intelligent was after thirty months' experience with his musket unable to understand how it was to be loaded. He never could remember whether he ought to drop the powder or the bullet into the musket first. Another time he was sent with a man to transport a company of men over a river to camp. After waiting an hour I strode to the bank of the river and found them paddling in opposite directions, each blaming the other for his stupidity and, being in a passion of excitement, unable to hear the advice of men across the river, who were bawling out to them how to manage their canoe.

"Another man was so ludicrously stupid that he generally was saved from punishment because his mistakes were so absurd. We were one day floating down the Kougo, and, it being near camping time, I bade him, as he happened to be bowman on the occasion, to stand by and seize the grass on the bank to arrest the boat when I should call out. In a little while we came to a fit place, and I cried, 'Hold hard, Kirango!' 'Please God, master,' he replied and forthwith sprang on the shore and seized the grass with both hands, while we, of course, were rapidly swept down river, leaving him alone and solitary on the bank. The boat's crew roared at the ridiculous sight, but nevertheless his stupidity cost the tired men a hard pull to ascend again, for not every place was available for a camp.

"He it was also who on an occasion when we required the branch of a species of arbutus which overhung the river to be cut away to allow the canoes to be brought nearer to the bank for safety actually went astride of the branch and chopped away until he fell into the water with the branch and lost our ax. He had seated himself on the outer end of the branch."

A Bunch of Kicks.

"I'm in hard luck!" sighed the steel rail.

"Look at me! I get nothing from morning till night but hot air," groaned the pumping engine.

"I'm always in hot water," sighed the boiler.

"Consider my plight," cried the macadam road, "invariably walked over and trodden under foot."

"I'm used to it, for I'm always up against it," philosophically remarked the wall paper.

"You're none of you as badly off as I am," said the furnace, "for, no matter where I go, I'm generally fired."—Baltimore American.

The Editor Won.

A London paper described a children's excursion as a "long white scream of joy" and was called to account by a correspondent, who said that a scream could be long, but not white, whereupon the editor justified himself by urging that "a hue is often associated with a cry."

Every heart contains perfection's germ.—Shelley.

IN SYMPATHY WITH PINCHOT'S POLICIES

Graves of Yale Is Appointed Head of Forestry Service

Washington, Jan. 13.—President Taft has appointed Henry S. Graves, director of the Yale forest school, as forester of the United States to succeed Gifford Pinchot. He also appointed Albert F. Potter, at present acting forester, as associate forester.

The new forester and the associate are both known as Pinchot men. Both have served under Pinchot and both are in sympathy with his administrative policy.

It was largely through Pinchot's efforts that the Yale forest school was established, and Graves went from the post of assistant chief of the division of forestry under Pinchot to become director of the school in 1900. He had served in the forestry division for two years.

Mr. Potter, the new associate forester, who succeeds Overton W. Price, is a native of California, and became a member of the forestry staff nine years ago. He has had jurisdiction over all grazing privileges within the preserves. He is thoroughly informed of all the policies and practices of the forest service.

ARBITRATION IS REJECTED

Employers of Shirtwaist Girls Adhere to Open Shop Principles

New York, Jan. 13.—The Associated Waist and Dress Manufacturers decline to arbitrate the questions at issue between them and their employes, 18,000 of whom have been on strike for more than a month.

Counsel for the striking girls had notified Commissioner of Labor Williams that their union was willing to avail itself of his mediatory offices. Informed of this notification, the employers wrote Williams in part as follows:

"The proceeding proposed would be wholly futile. Wages and conditions of employment in the shops of our members are beyond criticism. The sole question at issue has been the right of the employers to maintain open shops. The principle involved in this issue we could under no circumstances consent to submit to arbitration."

PRISONER WINS PARDON

Guards Looked on While He Rescued Insane Man From Death

Boston, Jan. 13.—For his bravery in saving an insane prisoner from drowning in a highly sensational manner, Frank Crosby has been pardoned of the offense for which he was serving a term of three months at Deer Island.

Crosby plunged into the icy waters of Boston harbor, off Deer island, swam 100 feet from shore and saved J. H. Kearnes, who had tried to escape, just as he was about to sink.

His bravery, compared with the action of about thirty guards and officers who stood on the shore, was considered so meritorious that Penal Commissioner Emerson signed Crosby's release.

LOOKS LIKE PINK MARBLE

African Lake Has Deposits of Soda Twenty Square Miles In Extent

London, Jan. 13.—Engineer Shelford, who has been surveying the proposed railroad which will join the Uganda railway in Africa with Lake Magadi, describes the remarkable features of the lake.

It lies at the bottom of a valley 3000 feet deep and looks at a distance like an ordinary sheet of water, but the water is only a few inches deep above a hard surface like pink marble.

This is actually an immense deposit of soda covering twenty square miles.

Jobs Awaiting Male Typists

Washington, Jan. 13.—The government is in great need of male stenographers and typewriters, and while the compensation in most cases is a little less than $1000 the inducement is held out that those who are willing to begin at this salary will have opportunities for advancement.

Lawson After Tobacco Trust

Boston, Jan. 13.—Thomas W. Lawson has arrived in Boston from Louisville to raise funds for the People's Tobacco company, with which he proposes to fight the American Tobacco company. Lawson's attorney says he expects to raise money in the east without trouble.

BOSTON Y. M. C. A. FIRE

Building Destroyed About 5 A. M. Today

The Boston Y. M. C. A. building situated at the corner of Berkeley and Boylston streets was gutted by fire at 5 o'clock this morning, causing a loss of $350,000, partly covered by insurance. Three alarms were sounded bringing out sixteen engines, but the entire building was soon a mass of flames and only by the hardest kind of battle were the surrounding buildings saved.

The fire was discovered by the night watchman in the southeast corner of the gymnasium and Chief Mullen after an investigation expressed his belief that an overheated furnace in the basement and at the rear of the gymnasium was the cause of the fire.

The Academy of the Sisters of Notre Dame adjoining was in immediate danger but firemen aroused the 57 nuns who were cool headed and calm and they assisted the firemen in throwing lines of hose into the convent, and then kept the firemen supplied with hot coffee.

Occupants on the street floor suffered a loss of $6,600 in addition to the Y. M. C. A. loss.

BRIEFS

A. R. Baxter of Trenton N. J., is in Quincy for a few days on business and will return Friday night. His mother, Mrs. James S. Baxter of Pleasant street will accompany him home for a short visit.

The bill of 1909 for a new bridge over the Neponset river in place of the present Hancock street bridge, has been taken from the files of the General Court and referred to a committee of the new Legislature.

The out-of-town speakers this evening at the reunion of the Y. M. C. A. campaign committee will be Dr. E. M. Davenport of Beverly and A. V. Stone of Chelsea. A banquet will be served at 6.30 by a Boston caterer. The committee in charge are A. N. Murray, W. G. Shaw and J. A. Sedgwick.

The Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. will meet Friday at three o'clock with Mrs. Frank W. Crane 11 Avon way. Mrs. Nathan R. Wood, Arlington, will present "The heart of Browning" as was given so delightfully a short time ago at the Quincy Mansion school. This change of program is due to an accident which will confine Rev. George S. Butters to his home for a few days.

Rev. E. C. Bridgham of Medford preached a forceful sermon at the Wollaston Methodist church Wednesday from the text in Psalm 84:2. Mrs. Mabel Wilbur was the soloist and the male quartet rendered a selection. Rev. B. L. Jennings of Somerville preaches this evening at 7.45.

ATLANTIC GIRLS' CLUB.

Under the direction of Mrs. Chase Pope, the Girls' club of the Memorial Congregational church held a very successful entertainment. The little play entitled "His Old Sweethearts" was the main feature of the program, the parts being taken as follows:

Bachelor—Mr. David Moffatt.
School girl—Harriett Waterhouse.
Chum—Marion Newcomb.
Actress—Grace DeWolf.
College girl—Pearl Keay.
Summer girl—Annie Harding.
Riding girl—Jean Arthur.
Debutante—Mabel Pratt.
Widow—May Young.
Bride—Louise Wild.

This was followed by a Chinese lantern drill given by the other members of the club. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Adelaide Figenbaum and vocal duets by the Misses Annie Harding and Maud Read.

This entertainment proved such a success that it will be presented again at the church supper on Tuesday night.

☞Probably the sale on Friday at Remick Bros.' store in Music hall block is one of the largest of good up-to-date men's furnishings ever offered in our city. It is the complete stock of the F. D. Fellows Co., and all new goods. At the prices at which the goods are marked it only needs the doors of the store to open and the sale to begin to get out the buyers. Extra clerks have been put on to handle the crowd. Quincy people will not be slow to pick up the bargains offered at this sale.

DRAMA AT WEST QUINCY

"Mrs. Briggs of the Poultry Yard" Presented

One of the most successful dramatic entertainments ever given in West Quincy was the presentation on Wednesday evening of "Mrs. Briggs of the Poultry Yard," under the auspices of the St. Mary's C. T. A. society. Among those in attendance were Mayor William T. Shea and Rev. Fr. William Duffy.

It was given under the direction of Mrs. Gertrude Boyd Hanley, who was complimented on all sides. In the cast were:

Mrs. Briggs, a Cheerful Woman	Miss Catherine Spain
Ralph, her son	Joseph McGilvary
Jimmy, her son	A. F. Bizzozero
Alvira, her daughter	Miss B. G. Flaherty
Melissa, her daughter	Miss Ada E. DuTemple
Silas Green, a near relative	Richard Joyce
Mr. Lee, a wealthy neighbor	T. F. O'Brien
Virginia Lee, his daughter	Miss H. McNeil
Daisy Thornton, her friend	Miss F. E. Burke
Mrs. O'Connor, with no liking for goats	Miss Mary E. King
Mandy Bates, whose tongue will stumble	Miss Rita Lyons

Particularly good was the acting of Miss Spain and Mr. O'Brien, but all did well, and several received applause and bouquets.

Between the acts there were specialties including song and dance by Archie Shannon who received an ovation. He was recalled several times. The musical accompaniment during the evening was by Miss Fay and Thomas Joyce.

TODAY'S COURT.

Giovanni Vechiola pleaded guilty to keeping and exposing liquor for sale at Quincy and paid a fine of $75.

BIG AVIATION MEET.

Eighty Thousand Dollars In Prizes Offered to Contestants at Los Angeles.

According to the announcement of the promoters of the midwinter aviation meet to be held on the old Santa Anita race track, near Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 10 to 20, it will be the first international aviation meet ever held in the United States. Some of the men behind the meet are among the most prominent on the Pacific slope. Among them are Henry Huntington, son of the late Collis P. Huntington, the railroad magnate, who has given $50,000 to the prize fund; Franklin K. Lane, of the interstate commerce commission, and Dick Ferris, who is well known on Broadway, New York, and in aeronautical circles is familiar as the owner of the two spherical balloons, United States and America.

The park for the meeting of spherical balloons, many of which are expected, is near the center of the city for the convenience of obtaining cheap gas.

For the aeroplane contests the Lucky Baldwin ranch, an old race track at Santa Anita, within reach of the city by the street trolley service, has been selected. The spot is an ideal one. It is in the center of a great plain, thousands of acres in extent, is surrounded with orange and lemon groves, which in January are at their richest hues, with the intermingled colors of the fruit and foliage, and for background it has the sharp and beautiful contrast of the snow capped mountains, ten miles away.

So far as the difficulty of weather goes, there is little likelihood of interference. The records of thirty years show that the highest wind at Los Angeles has amounted to only 6.1 miles per hour.

In addition to Curtiss and Willard and two, if not four, other Curtiss machines, several distinguished foreign aviators are to be present with Bleriot and Farman aeroplanes. Among those who came from France are Culler, Masson, Miscarol and Paulhan, who is accompanied by his wife.

The prize list amounts to $80,000 and will be divided among aeroplanes, dirigible and spherical balloons.

PLANT EXPEDITION.

Agronomists to Search Palestine For Drought Resisting Species.

To investigate the agriculture of ancient Palestine with a view to finding plants that will resist drought in the United States an American company capitalized at $70,000 is being formed in Washington by Dr. Aaron Aaronsohn, a Turkish agronomist.

Dr. Aaronsohn, who has enlisted the co-operation of department of agriculture officers at Washington, recently announced the discovery of a wild wheat on the slopes of Mount Hebron. This he declares to be the prototype of the modern wheat and a hardy, drought resisting plant possible of development in the arid and semiarid regions of the world.

Turkey will share with the United States in carrying on the agricultural exploration through a Jewish experiment station at Haifa. Plant industry and meteorological data will be exchanged between Washington and Haifa.

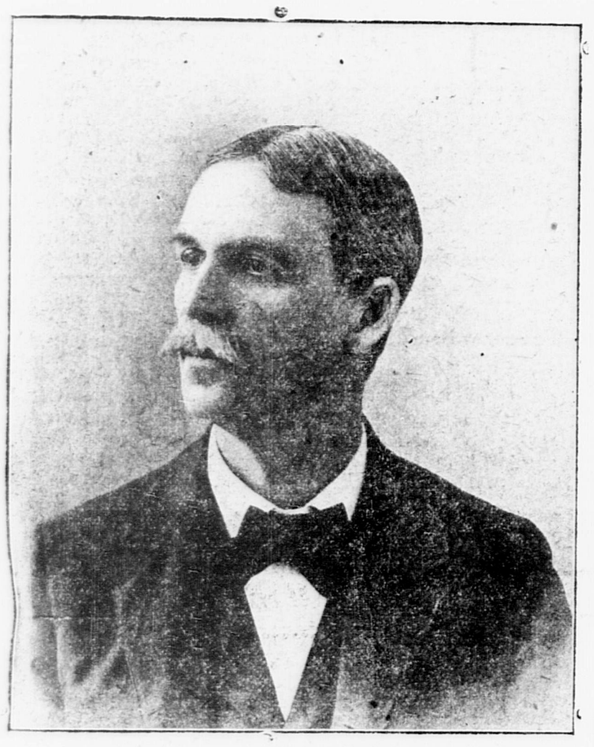
EX-MAYOR THOMPSON PASSES AWAY

Was in Executive Chair Three Years 1905, 1906 and 1907

Also a Member of Quincy's First City Council.



HON. JAMES THOMPSON.

Ex-Mayor James Thompson passed away at his home on Franklin street this morning, aged 62 years. Mr. Thompson had been in poor health for several years, but was able to be out and attend to business up to ten days ago, since which time he has been confined to his home. As soon as word of his death was received at City Hall, Mayor Shea ordered the flag raised at half mast.

Hon. James Thompson has been prominently before the public for many years. He has filled many positions in the gift of the people with scrupulous honesty, marked faithfulness and business sagacity. Weighed carefully in the balance, and not found wanting.

His first public office was in the first city government of the city, where he served as Councilman from Ward Three. He was returned to the City Council from the ward the two following years, and in 1892 as Councilman at large. During the last two years of his service he was president of that body.

His next public services was as Representative in the General Court, where he represented the Quincy district during the years 1896, 1897 and 1898. The first year he served on the unimportant committee on Fisheries and Game, but merit counted, and the next year Gov. Bates, then Speaker Bates, appointed him on the most important committee of the Legislature, that of Ways and Means. Upon his reelection for a third term, not the custom of Quincy in those years, he was reappointed by Speaker Bates on the same committee. Mr. Thompson always valued the experience he obtained in 1897 and 1898 on the Ways

LANGELIER AND THOMAS

Before West Quincy Improvement Association

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association was held Thursday evening, President S. B. Little in the chair. Representatives Langelier and Thomas were present and spoke at length on legislative matters pertaining to Quincy.

Councilman Smith for the committee on transportation, thought his committee would be able to report in detail at the next meeting.

REPRESENTATIVE LANGELIER.

James F. Burke, of the special committee to secure Willard school hall for the meetings, stated that he had brought the matter to the attention of the School Board, and the board thought as similar requests from other parts of the city had been refused, it would be establishing a precedent. He also stated that the hall was not furnished. Laid on the table.

President Little welcomed the two representatives, and informed them that the organization was in no sense a political one, but was to promote those things for the interest of this section of the city, and he hoped to have the cooperation of the representatives. He referred to the corporation tax and the question of discrimination in railroad affairs, as some of the matters for which their assistance was desired.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS

Representative Langelier, when introduced, said he wanted to assure the gentlemen present that after the election he considered that he was to represent all of the people whatever their political faith, and he would assist them in every possible way. He thought associations like this a good thing, for the only way to get anything was to agitate. He then explained in detail the corporation tax bill before the Legislature last year. The first bill provided that the towns where the corporation was situated should receive the whole tax of that corporation. The bill was later amended so that town should receive one-half. That bill passed the House, but was sent over to this year by the Senate. He understood a similar bill would be introduced this year

TEMPORARY LOANS BECOME PERMANENT DEBT

Smaller and Smaller Proportion Paid in Calendar Year of Issue

Rapid Increase in Tax Levy in Past Few Years.

The Daily Ledger has collected some official figures relative to tax levies of the city, and temporary loans in anticipation of taxes which will be of interest at this time. They cover a period of eleven years so that 1909 may be compared with 1899.

The figures relative to the tax levy, tax collected and tax uncollected, are from the annual reports of the Tax Collectors to be found in the City Books year by year. The figures relative to the temporary loans and cash balance at end of the year, are from the annual reports of the City Treasurers, also to be found in the City Books.

At the outset it will be noticed that the tax levies of 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902 and 1903 did not vary much, $386,000 being the lowest and $419,000 the highest; but in 1904 the levy jumped to $452,000; then in 1905 to $491,000; in 1906 to $520,000; in 1907 to $557,000; in 1908 to $609,000; and in 1909 to $665,484.83.

Only 55 to 62 per cent of the tax levy is usually paid in the year in which it is assessed.

From 1899 to 1902 inclusive the temporary loans amounted to $300,000 annually, and then there was an increase. Not until 1908, however, did they reach $400,000, and they did not stop there for the temporary loans that year were $500,000. In 1909 they were the same.

In 1899, 1900 and 1901, just one-half of the temporary loans of each year were paid in the calendar year of issue. In 1902, however, $125,000 out of $300,000; in 1903 but $150,000 out of $330,000. In the third year of Mayor Bryant's administration, 1904, a record was established, when only $64,000 was paid during the year of issue, and the aggregate was $389,000. The year 1905 under Mayor Thompson did a little better, when $100,000 was paid out of $360,000 issued. In 1906 it was the same, but in 1907 fell to $50,000 out of $363,000 issued.

In Mayor Shea's first year, 1908, the temporary loans amounted to $500,000, and only $150,000 were paid in 1908.

In 1909 the temporary loans again amounted to $500,000 but only half as much was paid off during the calendar year, $75,000. What will be the outcome?

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Several letters on timely local topics have been received for publication and will appear in the Daily Ledger at an early date.

Success to the "W-O-R-K Club." There are numerous organization in Quincy, but there is always room for one that has demonstrated it can do something.

Persons who think that when Mr. Roosevelt returns from Africa he will "raise a rumpus" because his friend, Gifford Pinchot, was dismissed as Chief Forester seem to forget that the former President was probably the most strict disciplinarian who ever sat in the White House. Mr. Roosevelt never permitted any of his subordinates to talk back. The big stick was not brought into play solely in the case of "male-factors of great wealth," but was used by the African hunter protem on any person whom he thought was taking advantage of him. He and Pinchot were great friends, it is true, but great as this friendship was the ex-forester never would have dared send a letter to Congress containing veiled charges against Mr. Roosevelt. His punishment would have been quick and certain. There is a story about an inventor who offered a magazine editor an appliance which was warranted to throw an obstreperous caller out of the office. The editor said he didn't want, it, adding that he could do the job himself without the aid of an appliance. "But this thing," said the inventor, "will bring him back and throw him out again." Thereupon the sale was consumated. That is the kind of an appliance that was popular in the Roosevelt administration. Mr. Pinchot may thank his lucky star that he wrote the Dolliver latter after March 4, 1909.

MOTOR BOAT SHOW.

Never in previous years have motor boat manufacturers planned for a coming show as they are for the Annual Motor Boat & Engine Show to be held in Mechanics building Boston, Jan. 22.29. They are combining their efforts to make it the largest marine display ever seen in this line. The boats of the most noted builders, the plans of celebrated marine architects, the engines that have made international reputations ,the fancy fittings of fancy boats, the attachments of engines that aid in making a perfect fitting machine all will be seen at this time and under one roof.

Such an opportunity to the motor lover enthusiasts whether user, buyer or looker on has never before been presented and Mechanics building should see the greatest throng of visitors that ever attended a similar show.

Everything in boats engines and accessories worth seeing will be there. Besides these several of the top-notchers champions in their class will be shown ,notably the Dixie II, which made the record run from Cincinnati to New Orleans. Music and beautiful decorations will add to the scene and all lovers of the grand sport will have a feast of enjoyment during the time the show is open.

SPECULATING ON MARGIN.

American and English Ways of Doing It Are Very Different.

In America a speculator's capital (with an exception to be noted below) is necessarily at least the size of his margin in his broker's hands, though it is to be feared that in only too many instances it is just this and nothing more.

On the London Stock Exchange another method prevails which, says Moody's Magazine, it is probable has done more in the long ago past to give stock speculation its bad name than all the episodes of an unsavory nature which have ever occurred on American exchanges. In London after the inevitable introduction to a broker the new customer gives his order, but makes no deposit at all.

The broker is supposed to learn something of his new client's means and how far he should be allowed to commit himself. Twice a month the English have what they call their settlement days. A customer long of a stock whose commitment has gone somewhat against him is then required to pay the differences, as they are called, between his purchase price and the current quotation.

He must also pay a charge called a contango for holding the settlement over into the next fortnightly period if he does not wish to close the commitment. As a consequence of this way of doing business a speculator may be trading on a few points margin in reality or, in fact, on no margin at all. He may be utterly penniless without the broker knowing it.

That this method works out with fewer losses in England than it would do here is due to the fact that the social and economic strata to which an Englishman belongs are much easier to determine than the corresponding facts among us, and also that an introduction means more there than here, as the introducer is regarded as to a certain extent responsible morally for the business deportment of his friend.

It is worth while observing (and this is the exception referred to above) that in certain instances the methods pursued in American stock exchange houses are the same as those obtaining in London. Little as the fact is known, it is not an unfrequent custom for very wealthy speculators to have no fixed margin or even no margin at all with their brokers.

If a man of this sort loses on a commitment he sends his broker a check for the loss. If he wins his brokers remit to him for his gains. The broker dislikes to offend a very powerful client by troubling him for funds, and hence takes risks with his account which he would not dream of taking with the account of smaller men. Instances of this sort sometimes become public in cases where the broker is forced into bankruptcy, whether owing to this cause or not.

Could Do For Herself.

She was a very delightful but a very aged lady—over ninety—and her friends and relatives and even chance acquaintances, drawn by her exquisite personality, all did her homage and, as the saying is, "waited on her hand and foot."

She accepted it all very graciously, but with some inward rebellion, for to a very old and close mouthed friend she once said, with a quaint pucker of lips and brows:

"I am reminded sometimes of the old lines:

"Twa were blowin' at her nose.
And three were bucklin' at her shoon."

NOT PAID FROM REVENUE

Temporary Loans Cancelled By New Loans

Editor of the Ledger:

The law of the State provides that cities may borrow money in anticipation of taxes for a period of one year, and that these loans must be paid out of revenue. Quincy does not respect this mandate. New loans are made to cancel these maturing, and each succeeding year these loans present a bigger total. In 1908 when Mr. Shea took office the liability on this score was $313,000 and the total amount borrowed during the last year of Mr. Thompson was $363,000. During 1908 the sum of $500,000 was borrowed, and a like sum during the past year. Of the amount borrowed in 1908, $150,000 was redeemed, leaving $350,00 to be paid in 1909, which was done by drawing from the new loans.

In one year the city has found it necessary to jump the temporary loans from $363,000 to $500,000 and the foregoing statement is a little different from the one made in the Council meeting Monday night. In the three years of Mayor Thompson, the temporary loans only aggregated $40,000 more than during the previous two years.

Whatever solution of the trouble now ahead of the city, the Council should oppose any further loans until the whole matter is cleared up, and nothing should be done to meet the obligation of these old notes by issuing new ones. It is right that the current expenses of the city should be met by sufficient loans, but the intent of a salutary law should not be so plainly ignored. Temporary loans should be paid out of revenue—not from new loans.

Much has been heard lately about the big interest charge. The amount appropriated in 1909 was $85,096, and this sum really represents one-eighth of the toll each taxpayer pays to the city. How much is being done to keep it down if money is borrowed three and six months before the time it is needed, as has been done in the past?

To the statement made by those in interest that the city of Quincy is in good financial condition, one may inquire as to the tape by which the measure is taken. There were no extraordinay bills to meet in 1909, and the collections were phenominally good, yet the city has only about $85,000 on hand to meet $425,000 of temporary loans before April 1, $20,000 of maturing debt, and the current expenses of three months.

Of the unpaid taxes of 1909, probably half may be collected this year, if past experience counts for anything, and if the taxes of other years are more or less phantom specks.

Coming back to the temporary loans they have under the present system become a permanent debt, and have been used to add practically half a million dollars to the revenue of the city, giving Quincy by this free interpretation of the statute an excess of income never intended. The small property owner, who is the very last—if he does at all—to share in lavish expenditure, is being denied the benefit of a proviso meant as his safeguard against recklessness. The amount of the budget appropriations is fixed, and in a measure, the limit is respected, and the other expenses go into the excess tax rate. If it is necessary for the life of the city to have this extra half million, why not put it into the tax rate where it rightly belongs, and the man on the outskirts can feel that he is not bearing his burden alone. As to the cost of the present method it may be stated that the interest charge alone would educate the nine hundred children in the Willard school for a year.

The best thing for Quincy to do is to renew these notes as they fall due, and by an equitable valuation of the property of the city and an honest tax rate make the revenue ample enough to meet the legitimate expenses. It is time to start right. We have been going at too rapid a pace, and have not been willing to pay for the pleasure. We have had too much of the you-scratch my back and I'll scratch yours policy, and too little of the fair face for all men policy.

INDIA'S PRECIOUS STONES.

Ruby and Jadeite the Most Valuable Stones Produced.

Diamonds, rubies, sapphires, spinels, tourmalines, garnets, rock crystals and various sorts of amber and jadeite are the precious stones found on India's coral strand, says the Chicago Tribune. The ruby and jadeite are the only stones of considerable value produced. Large quantities of turquoise come from Sikkim and Tibet, that from the latter country being harder, darker blue and therefore more valuable. The importation of precious stones into India amounts annually to about $4,900,000.

The diamond industry is limited and is carried on in southern India, the northern part of the Indian peninsula and in the central provinces. Ruby mining is carried on in upper Burma and, next to petroleum, is the most profitable of the mineral resources of the state, the value of the product being about $500,000 annually. One ruby of seventy-seven carats was taken out a few years ago and valued at $133,330. Sapphires used to be mined in Kashmir, but the mines are now said to be exhausted. The yellow, white, blue and green varieties of sapphire are found in the ruby bearing gravels in Burma. The spinel is found in considerable quantities in Burma.

Tourmaline stones of blue, green and black coloring are found in upper Burma. Garnets are mined in Jaipur. Rock crystal, cut for cheap jewelry, known as valeam diamonds, is found in Madras. Another quartz crystal, found in Kalabagh, is cheaper and used for necklaces. Chalcedonic silica is called happik and embraces many forms of agate mined in the Deccan. Agates and carnelians are cut and prepared for market in Bombay. They come mostly from Rajpipea. Large quantities are shipped to Europe and China. Jadeite of beautiful green veins is found in upper Burma, and an inferior jade is found in other parts of India. The stone sells for $50 to $100 a hundredweight.

LIQUID FUELS COMPARED.

Results of Tests of the Relative Values of Alcohol and Gasoline.

A gallon of denatured alcohol can be made to do the same amount of work in an engine as a gallon of gasoline. Moreover, the alcohol does not produce smoke and is less liable to yield obnoxious odors, but the lower price of gasoline makes it the cheaper fuel. These conclusions, based on the results of 2,000 comparative tests of the two substances as engine fuels, are given in bulletin 392 of the United States geological survey. R. M. Strong, the author of the bulletin, briefly describes the tests, but discusses the more important results at some length. The tests formed part of the investigation of fuels now being carried on by the survey. To determine the relative efficiency and economy of gasoline it was compared with denatured alcohol. In this comparison not only the heating values of the two fuels, but their adaptability to engine use and the effects of variations in fuel quality and in the principal operating conditions, such as load, fuel supply and time of ignition, were carefully studied. Tests were made with gasoline and alcohol in the same engine and repeated in other engines of approximately the same size (ten and fifteen horsepower) and the same piston speed, with different degrees of comparison, different methods of governing and different combustion.

The Oxygen Blowpipe.

A recent peculiar bit of engineering work at Netherton, England, was made possible by a new scientific appliance. At the Pearson furnaces the piston rod of a large vertical blowing engine was so bent in an accident that its removal from the cylinder seemed impossible. The director of an oxygen supply company was called, and by means of the oxyhydrogen cutting blowpipe the piston rod, seven inches in diameter, was cut off close to the gland of the cylinder, the operation occupying only thirty-five minutes. The task was a very difficult one, as the cut had to be made at considerable height overhead, with the burning metal dropping down and repeatedly setting fire to the wooden stage necessary.

How to Temper Springs.

Heat the spring to a hardening color, taking care not to burn the metal, and quench in oil. As soon as the metal has cooled so it does not "sizzle" put the spring back into the fire and keep it there just long enough for the oil to burn off. Then quench in water.

This method is applicable to all springs and especially small flat springs. This is a simple method and one to be depended upon and can be done anywhere with a stove fire and a little oil.—Popular Mechanics.

Heat From Rain.

Messrs. Muntz and Gaudechon have recently experimented in France on the heat imparted to the soil by rain, which they think may play a part hitherto unrecognized in the phenomena of vegetation. When the soil has reached a certain degree of dryness the application of moisture produces a rise in temperature, which is greater in proportion to the fineness of the materials. Coarse, sandy soil is not heated by contact with moisture, while soil composed mostly of humus is specially subject to such influence.

SENATE SEAT FOR BALLINGER

New Plan For Getting Him Out of the Cabinet

Washington, Jan. 14.—Ballinger for the senate. This is the latest suggestion by means of which some of the Washington politicians would like to relieve the Taft administration of the embarrassment which is caused by his continued presence in the cabinet.

The term of Senator Piles of Washington will expire March 4, 1911. Piles is not a candidate for re-election, having remarked that he is losing $100,000 a year by remaining in the senate, and that he owes it to himself and family to stay at home and practice law. His successor will be nominated in a primary election to be held probably next November, and will be elected by the legislature in the early part of 1911.

The woods are full of candidates for the position. One actively in the field is Robert L. McCormick, member of the Republican natfonal committee and the largest individual stockholder in the Weyerhauser Timber company. When he announced his candidacy from Tacoma, the local comment was that his election might be considered almost certain.

Judge Burke of Seattle is supposed to be the candidate favored by Piles and to represent the Hill railway interests. Judge Humphries, also of Seattle, is in the field. Former Senators Wilson of Seattle and Turner of Spokane are mentioned. Most of these men represent interests friendly to Ballinger.

A candidate of a wholly different type is Representative Poindexter of Spokane, a roaring house insurgent and leading member of the "Back from Elba club." Poindexter has incurred the wrath of his opponents in both Washingtons by coming out point blank for the renomination of Roosevelt. "I am for Roosevelt," says Poindexter, "and I hope to see him again President of the United States. He is a good Republican, nothwithstanding the so-called gang controlling the organization in congress is bitterly opposed to him."

This utterance, in connection with other developments of the last two days, has caused serious consideration to be given to a suggestion made by very important men that Ballinger might at the same time do honor to himself and his state and render a notable service to the Republican party by entering the senatorial lists.

It is believed that the plea of party exigency would be effective in removing from the field most of the men who otherwise would stand against Poindexter and at the same time ease up the artificial, but none the less serious, situation which confronts the administration through the retention of Ballinger in the cabinet.

President Taft will not under any circumstances "go back" on Ballinger and undoubtedly would oppose his unconditional retirement from the cabinet, at least until the congressional investigating committee has proved to the country that he is an honest man. The president is determined that the investigation shall go on and be thorough and would contenance no action that would stop the investigation or remove Ballinger as a subject of inquiry.

It is pointed out by leading politicians here, however, that if the secretary of the interior should retire and announce his candidacy for the senate, he could not under the circumstances then be accused of withdrawing under fire. He would remain a national figure almost as much as before, while congress would be under as much obligation to investigate a prospective United States senator against whom charges had been made as it is now to inquire into the official record of the secretary of the interior.

It would go without saying that if this change in the situation should be brought about, Ballinger would have the cordial backing of the administration, which could be given, should the investigation prove satisfactory, without provoking popular criticism.

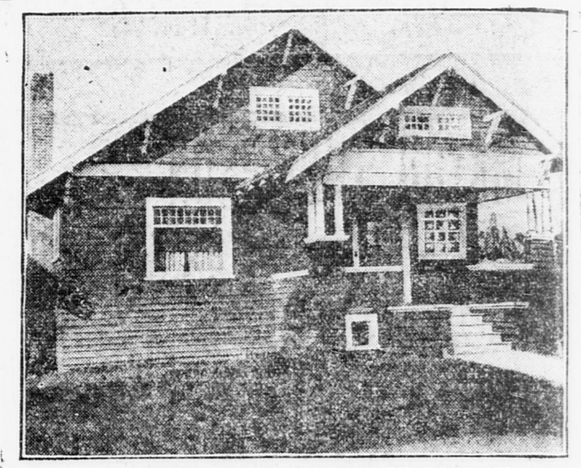
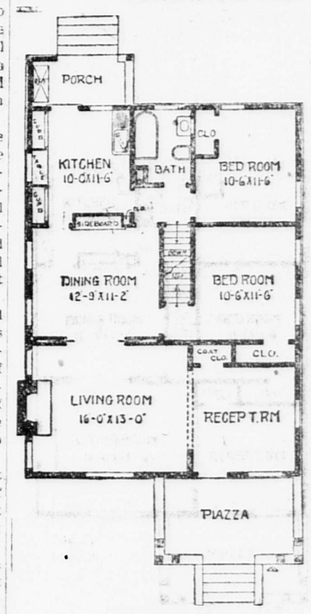
A Story and a Half Bungalow.

Design 860, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.



PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FLOOR PLAN.

This plan of a bungalow contains everything that the average family would desire in a complete and model home. All the rooms located on one floor. The piazza in front is of ample size and can be readily screened in. From this the entrance is into a small reception room, opening up with the living room, which is made unusually inviting by its large open fireplace. In case one desires the partition between the reception room and living room could be omitted, thus making this one large room. There are two bedrooms, and there is ample space in the second story so that two large rooms could be finished on this floor, if desired, and a stairway leading to the same between the dining room and bedroom. The size of this bungalow is twenty-eight feet wide and thirty-eight feet deep. Birch floors and birch finish throughout. The height of the first story is nine feet in the clear The basement is twenty-five by twenty-eight feet and seven feet deep. These plans can be blue printed reverse without any extra expense. Cost to build, exclusive of plumbing and heating, $1,880.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 860 for $16.

THE W-O-R-K CLUB PERMANENTLY ORGANIZED

A Bunch That Push Anything for the Good of the City

Enthused by Results of Recent Y. M. C. A. Campaign.

Quincy now has a Civic League or W-O-R-K Club which hopes by united efforts to accomplish much for the uplift of the city. The membership includes the gentlemen who composed the Citizens Committee and teams which recently raised $27,000 for the Quincy Y. M. C. A. A reunion of these men was held at the Association building on Thursday evening, when 66 were present.

A banquet was spread in the hall by a Boston caterer, and a good menu was enjoyed from 6.30 to 7.30, the blessing was asked by Theophilus King. During the banquet the Y. M. C. A. orchestra furnished music, nearly every selection being applauded.

When Chairman J. A. Sedgwick rose to open the post-prandial exercises, the old enthusiasm broke out and there was applause and cheers. He hoped the recent campaign was only forerunner of what can be done for Quincy.

Rufus B. Tobey was first introduced and responded to the toast, "The church in civic matters." In politics, he said, sneering references were often made to Sunday School men, but it should be remembered that the country came from the Sunday School and not from the saloon. The so-called infidelity of today was because the church has not always taken the proper stand. Slavery and labor were cited. The church should stand for righteousness and attack evil.

Chairman John L. Miller of the School Committee responded to the toast, "Church men and the schools." He said the church would not be much without the schools, nor the school much without the church. Quincy always stands for good schools but we sometimes think they are so good that they can be run without oiling. In Quincy the schools are run cheaper than in any other Massachusetts city, but they are handicapped for money, and it should not be expected that as much will be accomplished for $23 per capita as for $30 which is the average cost in the State. He showed the ways of politicians before and after election to the City Council. The churches should assert themselves and work unitedly.

Dr. M. E. Davenport one of the recent Y. M. C. A. committee at Beverly which raised $100,000, was the next speaker. He said that the 200 campaign committee in Beverly were so enthused over the work that they had formed a "Booster Club." Men who were not formerly interested in the Y. M. C. A. were now enthused. They found greatest pleasure in ministering to the other fellow. They propose to work unitedly for everything of benefit to Beverly. He urged the Quincy men to do the same. To make the Y. M. C. A. a centre for everything.

C. E. Goodspeed of Wollaston spoke of the value of team work, saying individual work was also necessary. We need education relative to the city government. We must do more than work. We must build up the moral tone. We should help Boston.

Theophilus King followed, speaking enthusiastically. He said the Y. M. C. A. campaign did more than was represented by the money raised ten times over. When we work as a unit we can get results.

George H. Brown suggested that a civic league be organized. We should take advantage of the enthusiasm awakened. Such an organization would do much to wipe out ward lines. There was much to be done in Quincy.

A. N. Murray asked that a vote be taken as to the feasibility of organizing a Civic League.

The vote was unanimous.

W. H. Hull moved that the chairman be authorized to appoint a nominating committee to suggest officers. Voted.

Chairman Sedgwick appointed Frank W. Crane, Rufus B. Tobey and C. W. Bailey.

While the committee were out A. D. Albee, Frank Burgess and others spoke. On motion of President R. D. Chase it was voted that the Quincy Y. M. C. A. express to the Boston Y. M. C. A. sympathy in the hour of their trouble because of fire.

The committee reported these officers, the list being adopted:

President—Charles P. Hutchins.

Vice Presidents—George H. Brown and William G. Shaw.

Secretary—A. N. Murray.

Treasurer—O. A. Blaisdell.

Executive Committee — Clarence Burgin of Ward One, EugeneR. Stone of Ward Two, John L. Miller of Ward Three, Clarence Fuller of Ward Four, A. T. Leavitt of Ward Five, and William F. Cummings of Ward Six.

W. H. Hull moved that the executive committee be requested to prepare by-laws. Voted.

All present and all who helped in the campaign will be considered as charter members.

KNIGHTS OF MALTA.

John Adams commandery, enjoyed one of the best convocations of this winter on Thursday evening. The reports from the delegates to Mount Herman commandery in Whitman, Jan. 4, were in themselves treats to those not fortunate enough to be among the delegates. All agreed that the lecture by Rev. H. C. Hatch, P. C., of St. John's commandery of Brockton was worth going further than Whitman to hear and of course everyone enjoyed the supper. Sir Orice M. Gracey, P. G. C., also addressed the commandery. Four applications for membership were received. At the next convocation, Jan. 27, the Malta degree will be worked on four novices by the crack Malta degree teams from Whitman and Brockton. There are to be present supreme and grand officers, and supper will be prepared for a hundred companions and a first class grand good time is anticipated.

SHOOTING AS FAT REDUCER

Specialist Recommends This Form of Exercise—Walking Often In the Open Air Helps to Take Off Surplus Flesh.

It is all very well to decry the absence of attractiveness in the lean and scrawny figure, with poorly covered and even protruding bones, but when it comes to the question of modish dressing robustness is even less desirable. All the styles in these modern days seem to be designed for slender figures, and the rolly poly species of femininity is really having a very trying time of it.

Aside from fashion, however, there are sufficient reasons why it is not well to be too stout. For one thing, it is not always an evidence of perfect health. Much of the vitality of the system which should go into the muscles is spent in augmenting the flesh, and it does not add anything to the strength of the body. This of itself is sufficient to inspire every woman to do everything in her power to overcome the tendency.

Now, it matters not how efficacious dieting may be, it is not an agreeable thing to contemplate. If made of actual service as a fat reducing agent it entails more or less sacrifice and not a little real discomfort. Of course it is altogether too valuable a means for one who is determined to "grow less" to neglect entirely. Living on half rations for a week only and abstaining from drinking with one's meals is sufficient in many instances to check the tendency to take on weight. Some women who have discovered their growing tendency to acquire fat wage a successful warfare against the insidious evil by abandoning sweets or starchy food without lessening the amount of food taken ordinarily.

Dieting, nevertheless, is only a form of starvation. As such it is not an altogether attractive remedy to adopt. Since there are other methods of achieving a satisfactory leanness it is little wonder that it is not especially popular. Exercise in some of its various forms is quite as certain to produce the desired result, but it requires intelligent application. It has been demonstrated in numberless cases that one may eat what one chooses in moderation and still combat successfully a disposition to become adipose.

The hard and fast rule of the exercise cure for impending or already acquired fat is to abandon the sedentary position and to get into the open air. If your condition in life keeps you confined indoors a greater part of the day do not neglect to devote all of your vacation periods, your mornings and evenings and even your briefest breathing spells in this out of door treatment. The surest way to develop fat is to remain inactive. If you can find some way to keep your muscles employed you will have little to fear from adipose.

THE SHOOTING CURE.

Walk at all times and be sure to walk correctly. Keep the body erect, the head well thrown back and take long, even strides, letting the arms swing loosely at the sides. Form the habit of walking and always walk in this manner. Do not stop walking when you become a little weary, but continue until you are actually tired out. There is nothing better than this kind of exercise to restore symmetry to the body. This treatment alone would be sufficient if employed in season. The trouble is that no treatment at all is usually undertaken until adiposity has become an established fact. If the trouble had been recognized in its early stages it would have been comparatively easy to meet it. Later it will demand a vigorous campaign, but let no one despair of coming off victorious.

Exercise is still the weapon, but it must be wielded with an energy which is practically relentless.

Do not rely on walking alone. If the surplus avoirdupois is well established it will be necessary to employ other forms of exercise, perhaps several of them.

Once again, do not neglect to live as much as possible in the open. Adopt some outdoor fad that will make this part of the treatment free from irksomeness. A physician of great eminence as a flesh reducer is enthusiastic over shooting. He declares that it will do the job admirably since it puts so many muscles into operation.

SPENCER TRASK, THE BANKER

Pretty Story About the Naming of Late Financier's Country Home.

Spencer Trask, recently killed in a railroad collision near Croton, N. Y., was the head of the wealthy banking house of Spencer Trask & Co., in New York, which for many years acted as the financial agent of the late Queen Victoria in America. He was an exponent of conservative financial methods and was born in Brooklyn on Sept. 18, 1844. When he and William E. Francis parted company in 1880 he founded the present firm of Spencer Trask & Co. with George Foster Peabody, now head of the Carnegie foundation.

Mr. Trask married in 1874 Miss Kate Nichols, who has won fame by her poems and novelettes. Their summer home at Saratoga, Yaddo, is one of the show places of the Empire State. He had been in poor health since the death of his two daughters six years ago and last summer lost an eye in an automobile accident.

Mr. Trask was graduated at Princeton in 1866 and was a member of the Metropolitan, Union League, City, Calumet, Automobile of America, Tuxedo, Lawyers' and National Arts club. He had been director in many railroads and was originally connected with Thomas Edison in the development of electric lighting. He was president of the Edison Light and Power system for many years.

Mr. Trask's tastes and habits were domestic. Yaddo is located near Saratoga on the avenue leading from Saratoga lake. In this handsome country seat he took great pride and spent a considerable portion of his time there in the enjoyment of his rural comforts and in the entertainment of his friends. The estate embraces about 500 acres, and the grounds are given especial distinction by their inclosure of a chain of small lakes.

In and out among these and through the surrounding woods are beautiful drives which Mr. Trask threw open to the public and helped to make Saratoga a delightful and fashionable summer resort.

A pretty story surrounds the naming of Yaddo. A little child visiting the estate before a name had been selected for it paused in front of a pool of water and gazed at its reflection there. Then the little one stretched out its hands toward the pool and exclaimed, "Yaddo, Yaddo!" It was the child's way of saying "shadow." Mr. Trask was so pleased with this that he named the estate Yaddo.

The original mansion on the estate was destroyed by fire in 1891, and its destruction entailed the loss of many valuable personal effects which could not be replaced. On the site of the destroyed building he erected a more modern and far more handsome edifice, which is today one of the finest country residences in the state of New York.

NO PRICE ON GORDON'S HEAD

War Department Denies Senator's Connection With Lincoln Conspiracy.

Specific denial is made at the war department in Washington after a careful examination of the records of the story published to the effect that in connection with the alleged participation in the conspiracy to kill President Lincoln a reward of $10,000 had ever been offered for the capture of Colonel James Gordon, recently appointed by the governor of Mississippi to succeed the late Senator McLaurin.

When the matter was brought to the attention of the officials of the war department a search of the records was instituted. The records contain all notices of rewards offered in connection with the assassination of Lincoln. Nowhere was the name of Colonel Gordon found. Therefore the officials declare that there was no basis for the story published concerning him.

AIRSHIPS TO ATTACK BOAT.

Feature of the Aviation Meet at Los Angeles, Cal.

The importance of an airship in time of war may be demonstrated by a night attack of dirigibles on a vessel off the harbor of Los Angeles, Cal., during the aviation meet this month, from the 10th to the 20th.

Aeronauts have volunteered to make the attack, and the revenue cutter Perry is said to be available as the object of the bomb hurling. The dirigibles will go out to sea for a concerted attack on the Perry, which will undertake to evade the air craft by the use of searchlights.

Rest Room For Street Car Men.

The Pittsburg Railways company has let a contract to D. T. Riffle to erect a second story addition to the present office building of the company at Frankstown avenue and Collier street, around which the Homewood car barns of the company are located. This addition will be 20 by 216 feet in size and is being erected for the use of the conductors and motormen who report for duty at the Homewood barns and will cost about $12,000. There will be dressing rooms, shower baths and a gymnasium provided by the Railways company for the use of its employees in the new space.

A Maharajah's Shorthorns.

To a maharajah in India have been shipped four of the largest cows bred in Great Britain. The order for these cows specified that they should stand five feet four inches at the shoulder and measure fourteen feet from the tip of the nose to the end of the bony part of the tail. The agents took sixteen months to find these cows. Inquiries in Italy and Switzerland were unsuccessful, and they were finally secured in the midlands and Yorkshire. They are all Shorthorns.

WALK-OVER SHOES

They Hold Their Shape

To many people an old shoe is nothing but an eye-sore.

This is due in most cases to experience with shoes that were not properly "dried out."

WALK-OVER Shoes are "dried on the last" for ten days allowing all the adhesives used on the inner parts to become perfectly dry, thus insuring shoes that will hold their shape long after the "brand newness" has worn off.

Wollaston will welcome Miss Lillian A. Dewing of Brookline and Christopher A. Wyatt of Roxbury who were married Wednesday evening at St. John's church, Tremont street, Roxbury. The rector, Rev. Frederic W. Fitts, officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father and attended by Miss Katherine Wyatt, sister of the bridegroom, and Frank E. Fitts, Jr., Harvard '03, was best man. Arthur W. Kennard and H. Bradlee Fenno, Harvard '97, of Boston, served as ushers, while the bridal music was played by Henry K. Fitts, organist of the church. Mr. Wyatt and his bride are to make their home in Wollaston.

REVIVAL SERVICES.

Mr. Seaboyer of the East Maine Conference, now pastor of the Parkman street church, preached from the text "Ye must be born again." On Wednesday the pastor of the Forest Hills M. E. church was to have been present but was unavoidably detained. In his absence Rev. Carl H. Raupach preached an exceptionally helpful and instructive sermon from the text "For to be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." On Thursday evening the Rev. Mr. Fellows preached, and tonight the pastor.

SALARY NOT HIGH ENOUGH

Gardeners Job at $2400 a Year Goes Begging In Washington

Washington, Jan. 14.—One job within the gift of the Taft administration is going begging because the salary is comparatively low for the requirements, and no one seems content to fill it for the glory of the service. It is the job of landscape gardener in the office of public buildings and grounds, paying $2400 per annum.

The landscape gardener since time immemorial has been a right bower to the first lady of the land. He it is who arranges the floral decorations of the White House for nearly all occasions, during the society season, and under whose direction the first flowers of spring peep through the fertile soil of the grounds about the presidents' home before they are to be seen anywhere else in Washington.

For years George R. Brown filled the position. Since Brown's death in November even the civil service commission has been unable to supply a man with the proper qualifications who would undertake the job for the salary available.

KILLED BY A BLOW

Boston Police Officer the Victim of a Mysterious Assault

Boston, Jan. 14.—Policeman Daniel J. F. Donovan of the Roxbury Crossing station was killed as the result of a blow in the face, delivered by an unknown assailant, at the corner of Beach and Hudson streets, yesterday afternoon. Donovan fell to the sidewalk, fracturing his skull.

The assailant made his escape from the scene, and although the police were furnished with a good description of the man, he has not been captured.

A pathetic feature connected with the patrolman's death was the fact that he was on a leave of absence because of the sudden death of his father, which occurred yesterday morning. No motive can be assigned for the crime. Donovan was in civilian's clothing at the time.

CREW OF THIRTY MEN SWALLOWED BY SEA

But One Survivor of Steamship Wreck Off Coast of Oregon

Marchfield, Ore., Jan. 14.—Harry Kentzell, first assistant engineer, is the sole survivor of the wreck of steamer Czarina, which drove on Coos Bay Bar with a loss of thirty lives.

Heroic but futile efforts were made by the United States life saving crew and citizens of Marshfield to help the doomed ship's company, several of whom clung to the rigging all night, hoping for help.

The Czarina left Marshfield in the face of a storm for San Francisco. Apparently the rudder broke, and she began to drift rapidly toward the bar on which she finally struck.

MRS. PFAFF LOSES SUIT

Divorced Woman Made Two Efforts to Secure Valuable Estate

Boston, Jan. 14.—For the second time, Christine L. Pfaff, who is the divorced wife of the late Henry Pfaff, a brewer, has been denied a wife's dower in the $300,000 estate of her late husband.

Judge Rugg of the supreme court, who heard Mrs. Pfaff's claim on appeal from the probate court in Cambridge, decided that Mrs. Pfaff had failed to show fraud or undue influence in the methods that had been used to secure her signature to the papers by which she quit all claim to the estate.

Pfaff died in 1906, leaving his entire estate to his second wife, Louise C. Pfaff, and their two children, who have been in Germany since the death of Pfaff.

BURGLARS KILL A NURSE

No Clue to Daring Murderers Who Ransacked a Mansion

Millbrook, N. Y., Jan. 14.—Sarah Breymer, aged 26, a nurse in the employ of Barnes and Mrs. Compton, was strangled to death by burglars in her bed in the Compton mansion in this place. The house was robbed of a quantity of silverware. The burglary and murder took place while Compton and his wife were in New York city and the house was in the care of servants.

Miss Breymer and a small daughter of the Comptons occupied a sleeping piazza on the upper floor. Other servants in another part of the house were awakened by the burglars, but were unable to oppose them as they ransacked the house.

The little Compton girl, who slept near the nurse, was not awakened by the struggle. None of the servants was able to say how many men took part in the burglary or murder. The county authorities are searching for them.

Denial From Shackleton

London, Jan. 14.—Lieutenant Shackleton denies the report that he is co-operating with a German scientist in preparation for another attempt to reach the South Pole. He says he merely discussed the possibilities of various routes and expressed the wish to try again some day.

LAMPHERE'S CONFESSION

Chloroformed Mrs. Gunness, Notorious Female Bluebeard

KILLED FOUR OTHERS ALSO

House of Death Farm Accidentally Burned and Bodies Cremated After He Had Committed Robbery—Accomplice of Slayer of Many Persons Unburdened Himself to Clergyman and Revealed Mystery

St. Louis, Jan. 14.—Ray Lamphere, who died in the Indiana penitentiary at Michigan City, while serving a term for setting fire to the home of Mrs. Belle Gunness, near LaPorte, Ind., left a confession that he had assisted the arch-murderess in disposing of the bodies of three men.

When he believed death was near, he confessed, and the confession is published under copyright by The Post Dispatch. Lamphere said he saw one of the men killed and that he aided in burying all three. These men were Andrew Helglein and probably Ole Budsberg and Toness P. Lien.

Lamphere said he thought he had not received as much money for his part in disposing of the bodies as he considered himself entitled to and that he went to the farm house at night with a woman, chloroformed Mrs. Gunness, her three children and Jennie Olsen and robbed the house of between $60 and $80. The light they used was a candle and they left the house without knowing that they had left behind a spark that soon burst into flames.

Mrs. Gunness' method of killing her victims, Lamphere said, was first to chloroform them as they slept, and then if the drug did not itself kill, to sever the heads with an axe.

Lamphere confessed to Rev. Dr. E. A. Schell, former pastor of the LaPorte Methodist church, now president of the Iowa Wesleyan university at Mount Pleasant, Ia., but Schell held it inviolate as a secret of the confessional. The Post Dispatch says Schell would verify, if he would consent to break the silence, the story it publishes. The paper says the confession it prints was made to a man of unassailable character.

It was in 1907, according to the confession, while Lamphere lived in the Gunness home, that he assisted Mrs. Gunness in disposing of the bodies of the three men. Each time a man was to be murdered, according to Lamphere, Mrs. Gunness sent him to purchase chloroform. Lien, one of the victims, was thought by Lamphere to be the third husband of Mrs. Gunness. At the time of the Lamphere trial it was though Jennie Olsen, whom Lamphere says he chloroformed, had been killed by Mrs. Gunness.

The confession details how Mrs. Gunness informed Lamphere of the coming of her victims. The first man killed was from Minnesota. He never woke from his sleep in the Gunness home. In the darkness, Lamphere was ordered by Mrs. Gunness to dump a gunnysack and its contents in a hole that had been made by another farmhand for rubbish. Mrs. Gunness never told him what became of the man, but Lamphere received money from Mrs. Gunness. Within a month another man arrived. He wanted to know his rights before paying off the mortgage on the Gunness farm, and Mrs. Gunness took him to St. Joseph, Mich., Lamphere thought, where they were married. A few night after they came back there was another burying. Lamphere received money once more from Mrs. Gunness, and he said he was the trusted ally of Mrs. Gunness.

THAW SAID TO BE SICK

Attorney Thinks That Slayer of White Will Die In Matteawan

Pittsburg, Jan. 14.—That Harry K. Thaw is ill and may die in Matteawan at any time, and that his family has practically abandoned hope of ever rescuing him from that asylum, was made plain in open court here when the project of selling the personal property of Thaw was brought up.

William A. Stone of Thaw's own counsel made it plain to the court that the Thaw family feared the "illness" with which Harry is suffering would terminate fatally, and Kahle asserted that Thaw would end his days, and most likely soon, at Matteawan.

Bank Treasurer Sent to Prison

New Haven, Jan. 14.—One to five years in state prison was the sentence given Robert D. Muir, late treasurer of the People's Bank and Trust company, upon his plea of guilty of having converted to his own use $106,000 worth of the bank's securities.

Yale's New Treasurer

New Haven, Jan. 14.—At a meeting of the Yale corporation George P. Day of New York was appointed treasurer of the university to succeed Lee McClung, who resigned to become United States treasurer.

A THREAT OF SUICIDE

Heiress De Janon Says She Will Carry It Out If Cohen Is Punished

Philadelphia, Jan. 14.—Frederick Cohen, ex-waiter, Miss Roberta De Janon, the 17-year-old granddaughter of Robert Buist, a millionaire, with whom she eloped on Dec. 29, and the gray fox terrier "Tootsie," was was the companion of the two on their escapade, got back to town last evening after their capture in Chicago.

The pair left Chicago in the care of Detectives Emmanuel and Scanlan. At the end of a twenty-six-hour journey that had been one continuous sweating process on the part of the two detectives, Miss De Janon was unshaken in her expressed determination to fight for Cohen in court if necessary, clinging insistently to her original assertion that the man had done her no harm, and threatening suicide if he was made to suffer.

Cohen possessed his soul in peace and seemed to have infinite faith in the ability of the girl to save him from punishment.

CELL BARS SEVERED

Two Men Make Their Escape From a Military Prison

New York, Jan. 14.—A remarkable double escape by means of sawed bars and severed chains was effected from Castle William on Governor's island. William McLaughlin, a former cowboy and known as "Wild Bill," a private awaiting courtmartial, is believed to have engineered the break from the military prison and took with him in his flight Charles R. Dale, who was serving a five-year term.

The case is the first on record on Governor's island where a prison inmate, after freeing himself, imperilled his chances of getting clear by sawing loose a prison "pal."

The army authorities have started an investigation to discover the accomplices it is believed McLaughlin must have had.

CEILING GIVES WAY IN 'PHONE EXCHANGE

Thirteen Operators Injured In Crash Which Follows

Boston, Jan. 14.—Thirteen girls, operators in the Brighton telephone exchange, were injured and had narrow escapes from death when over five tons of plaster, steel netting and iron girders, forming the ceiling of the room, collapsed yesterday afternoon, burying them at their positions at the switchboards.

Scenes of the wildest confusion followed. The young women filled the air with shrieks of pain and fright, crept through the dust-filled and wrecked room to windows and threw themselves into the street, a distance of ten feet.

For fifty-five minutes telephone service in the Brighton district was put out of commission and added to the confusion in the rush for physicians and ambulances to care for the injured.

BARNUM'S BENEFACTIONS

May Be Suiltably Commemorated In a Big Celebration In Bridgeport

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 14.—July 5 will mark the 100th anniversary of the birth of Phineas T. Barnum, Bridgeport's greatest benefactor. It is proposed that the city shall suitably celebrate this centennial of the birth of the great showman.

As the city will hold a big celebration late in the spring at the opening of the new $300,000 Congress street bridge, it is now proposed that the anniversary of Barnum's birth be celebrated in conjunction with the opening ot the bridge.

TWELVE YEARS IN ASYLUM

Browne Not Only Illegally Held, but Deprived of Share In Fortune

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 14.—After confinement in the Texas insane asylum for the last twelve years, and deprivation of his interest in a fortune of $350,000, W. J. Browne has been released after an examination in the county court.

The testimony shows that Browne was illegally restrained and ordered his release from the asylum. Browne testified that he was beguiled into the asylum by a promise that he would be taken to his wife, from whom he had been separated.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

PAST MISDEEDS OF INSURGENTS

Will Not Be Punished In Coming Caucus, Says Cannon

A SQUARE DEAL IS PROMISED

Evidence of Plans For Conciliation, but Those Who Are Fighting the Organization Are Chary of Approaching Something That "May Be Loaded"—Entire Subject Now Centers Around Ballinger-Pinchot Affair

Washington, Jan. 4.—Speaker Cannon declared Thursday that the "insurgents" in the house would have a square deal in the coming Republican caucus, if they came into it.

No effort was being made in advance by anybody, he said, to set a trap or pitfall for those of the majority who have been fighting the organization, but no one could properly be given any definite assurances or promise as to what the outcome of the caucus would be.

Every one of the 200 or more Republicans in the house would be bidden and they should attend, said the speaker.

The caucus will be held probably the beginning of next week, and it is understood that it is to be made the basis for conciliation between the house "insurgents" and the Republicans. How this will be brought about is not yet apparent.

The "insurgents" or a majority of them are chary of approaching something that might turn out "to be loaded," as one expressed it. Cannon said that no effort would be made in the caucus to punish anybody for what might be termed past misdeeds, but that every Republican representative should come to the caucus and take pot luck on the result. Whatever the majority finally determined upon should be accepted by those who disagreed.

The caucus is for naming the committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot affair. Upon this matter the regulars and the "insurgents" either will agree in some degree at least, or the breach between them will be irreparably widened.

The most vigorous efforts which have been made since congress convened to bring about peace between the antagonistic elements in the house took place yesterday. President Taft played an important part in the negotiations, but the mature and extent of them as well as the degree of success that has attended the attempt was not disclosed last night.

Representative Hayes of California, acting on his own initiative, it is said, called on the president and the "insurgent" situation was discussed at length. When Hayes returned to the he talked with twenty or more fellow house he talked with twenty or more fellow "insurgents" regarding his talk with the president. Hayes then returned to the White House and talked again with the president, presumably explaining the attitude of his colleagues regarding the president's views.

The entire subject now centers around the choice by the house of the committee to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot dispute and the Republican caucus which is in prospect for that purpose. The "insurgents" insist that all they desire is the selection of a fair committee which will go to the bottom of the whole business, and return an honest verdict.

SLUGGERS NOT WANTED

Gaynor Conducts Hearing In a Case of Alleged Police Brutality

New York, Jan. 14.—So determined is Mayor Gaynor to force out "sluggers" from the police department that he personally conducted a hearing in the case of Oscar Gregory of Brooklyn, who charges Policeman Deven with brutally beating him without provocation.

Gregory, accompanied by witnesses, appeared at the mayor's office with his face battered and both eyes blacked. The mayor was so impressed that he summoned a photographer so that Gregory's disfigurement might be permanently recorded for production when the policeman is put on trial.

A VOLUNTARY INCREASE

Boston Elevated Employes Will Benefit to Extent of $100,000 a Year

Boston, Jan. 14.—An increase in wages amounting in cold cash to $100,000 a year is announced by the Boston Elevated road. About 5000 motormen and guards of the elevated trains, conductors and motormen of surface lines, and inspectors, starters and carhouse masters will benefit.

This is the third increase of the kind in the past seven years. It was not requested and is entirely voluntary on the part of the company. The last previous increase was on Jan. 1, 1907.

Wire Men's Demand Refused

Cincinnati, Jan. 14.—The telegraphers of the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad and General Superintendent Brimson announced that they could reach no decision regarding the demand of the men for a new wage schedule, and negotiations have been severed.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

Hollis Street Theatre.

The young French dramatic author, Henry Bernstein, is a worthy follower of that distinguished line of French dramatists, Moliere, Balzac, Hugo, Dumas, and Sardou. "Israel" is his latest play. Bernstein's purpose is to tell a dramatic story of unflinching power, full of surprises and with its climax withheld until the end. As the first curtain goes up, the lounging room of the Rue Royal club is discovered and gathered together is a group of young Parisians who await the arrival of their leader, Thibault of Croucy. He is to force the resignation of a rich, Hebrew banker, Justin Gutlieb, from the club. Gutlieb refuses to resign and Thibault insults him so deeply that a duel becomes inevitable. Thibault's mother, the Duchess of Croucy learns of the impending meeting and in her last extremity sends for Gutlieb. Her appeal to him is in vain but as the banker is leaving the room, Thibault unexpectedly enters and upon the former's exit can scarcely control his anger and demands an explanation. The scene between mother and son is a tremendous outpouring of conflicting passions working up to one of the most thrilling of climaxes, for the young man finally forces his mother to confess—wrings from her unwilling lips the fact that he is himself a Jew and should he kill Gutlieb, he is murdering his own father and that he, Thibault of Croucy Prince of Clar, is himself of the race he so despises. The two men fight but Thibault barely scratches his adversary and fearing to face his friends seeks the asylum of his apartment. There seems to be no way out but death and that seems very welcome but fate intervening has other means for Thibault and a great undreamed of love from a girl comrade of childhood saves him from himself. Matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Keith's Theatre.

For the week of January 17th at Keith's there has been provided one of the best comedy bills that Mr. Keith has ever given his patrons. In fact it promises to be a riot of fun. One of the features of it will be Will H. Murphy and Blanche Nichols in their sketch called "The Rehearsal," in which Mr. Murphy as the instructor in a school of acting tells the tribulations of such a position with aspiring actors and budding soubrettes. This act is one roar of laughter and the finish of a marching regiment is what might be called a "scream." Another feature will be Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher in a comedy called "The Halfway House" which is also a big laughing feature. Then there are Jesse Lasky's Imperial Musicians, one of the biggest companies now in vaudeville which while not strictly comedy, has one long number entitled "The Farmer's Visit to the City," and furnishes an endless amount of fun by exposing the methods by which effects are produced on the stage. As a big extra feature the first vaudeville appearance of Charles Dooin, catcher of the Philadelphia National League team who was this week appointed as manager of the team to succeed William J. Murray. Mr. Dooin is appearing in a sketch with James McCool and all reports are ot effect that Mr. Dooin is as good an actor as he is ball player.

Boston Theatre.

"Bright Eyes" with undiminished popularity, begins its fourth week at the Boston theatre Monday night. "Bright Eyes" has come near establishing a record for business at the Boston theatre and already has a record only equalled by "Three Twins" its companion play. Half the people in Boston are already whistling the melodious numbers from Karl Hoschna's beautiful score and the other half will soon join the chorus. Mr. Cecil Le an's irresistible comedy and ingratiating smile and his singing of "The Lines in Molly's Hand," and "He's a Fan, Fan, Fan" have made him, in the short time he has been at the Boston theatre ,a place that will not soon be usurped. Miss Florence Holbrook's dainty manner and pretty comedy as well as her charming singing of "For You Bright Eyes," and "Mrs. Casey," are nightly captivating her audiences. Some of the ensemble numbers of the play which give an opportunity for the display of one of the prettiest choruses ever seen in Boston have become equally popular. These numbers are gorgeously costumed and unusually well staged.

Special Hollis Matinees.

For the third time since her coming to Boston Miss Ruth St. Denis, who is acclaimed by the press of Europe and America as the greatest of all modern dancers has had her engagement prolonged. Originally booked for the holiday week only, Miss St. Denis was first held over for special matinees at the Colonial theatre and then transferred to the Hollis Street theatre for another series of matinees. So triumphant has been her success and so great the demand for seats that her management has again extended her engagement and she will be seen at the Hollis Street theatre next week in Four matinees Monday Tuesday Thursday and Friday afternoons. The performances begin at 3 o'clock and end in ample time to allow out of town patrons to catch their usual trains. Miss St. Denis is presenting a repertoire of six dances illustrative of Hindu customs and religions. Each number on the program has its own scenic equipment and the color and opulent beauty of the Orient is transferred to the stage as in no previous production. The dancer is assisted by a company of twelve native Hindus, who are most effective in enriching the Oriental atmosphere of the performance. Next week's matinees will be positively Miss St. Denis' last appearance in Boston as she is to tour all the large cities of the United States.

American Music Hall.

Pantomime has already taken such a hold on American audiences that the engagement of the Great Severin at the American Music hall next week will be sincerely welcomed. Severin is positively the last word in the art of pantomime. He plays a four act drama without the use of a single word expressing all his emotions and feelings with his hands and face. What Bernhardt and Coquelin are to the legitimate drama Severin is to pantomime. He will be assisted by a dozen capable French Pantomimists who are all artists to their finger tips. Wilfred Clarke and Company will present the screaming farce "What Will Happen Next." Mr. Clarke has a sterling reputation as an actor and he will be surrounded by a capable company. Nellie Wallace the clever English character comedienne who scored so heavily this week will be held over for another week. She has opened the eyes of American audiences to the calibre of some of the European artists who have been seen here for the first time. Irving Jones and Grant conceded to be the funniest colored performers on the stage will furnish ample comedy. Jones has a peculiar style all his own while Grant is a regular Beau Brummell of the colored race.

Castle Square Theatre.

The fourth and last week of "1915" begins at the Castle Square on Monday., and a series of gala performances may be expected. Ever since its opening Christmas eve this new musical comedy has drawn crowds to laugh at its gayeties and applaud its melodies. Its Boston scenes have been especially appreciated, the romantic atmosphere of the South Sea island to which all the characters are transported for a single act add beauty and variety to it and the clever music is already being whistled within more than fifty miles of Boston. But all good things must come to an end and "1915" must give way to the other attractions which Mr. Craig has in store for his patrons at the Castle Square. Mr. Craig himself during the past week has been acting the character of Harry Bellmour, and he will continue in it for the farewell performances. Mary Young still heads the list of entertainers as Bessie Briggs the daughter of the mayor of Boston, and Gertrude Binley, has a breezy role as Fabiola, a beautiful maiden from tropical lands. Mr. Hassell and Mr. Meek are a lively pair of comedians as Dr. Watch and Dr. Ward, and there are seventy-five other people in the cast. The orchestra under the direction of Joseph Marr, is doing excellent work.

SHAKESPERE USED SLANG

College Professor Approves Its Use In the English Language

Columbia, Mo., Jan. 14.—Shakespere would be greatly pleased with the picturesque American slang of today, according to Dr. E. A. Allen of the English department of the university of Missouri.

"Hamlet, a university student, talked slang," he said in a lecture, and cited the passage where Rosencrans says to Hamlet: "My lord, you once did love me," and Hamlet replied: "So do I still, by these pickers and stealers."

"Pickers and stealers for hands," said Allen, "reminds one of the expression in use today, 'lunch-hooks.' Slang is a part of our language."

DR. CLARK'S DISTINCTION

Prominence In Christian Work Gains Him an Audience With Mikado

Tokio, Jan. 14.—The emperor gave an audience Thursday to Rev. Francis E. Clark of Boston, founder of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, who was presented by Ambassador O'Brien.

Dr. Clark has the distinction of being the first person to be received by the emperor because of his prominence in Christian work.

BANISH THOSE GRAY HAIRS!

Kill the Dandruff Germs—Stop Hair Falling

Thousands of mothers are looking younger.—Their gray hairs are gone. The natural color has come back, and with it a new growth of soft, glossy, luxuriant hair. Why should you look old before your time, when you can look years younger by using

WYETH'S SAGE & SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER

Dandruff Cured

Three applications removed all the dandruff and left my scalp clean, white and smooth.

It Is Positively Guaranteed to Restore Faded and Gray Hair to Natural Color

If other "so-called" Restorers have failed, don't give up hope, but give WYETH'S SAGE AND SULPHUR HAIR RESTORER a trial. You run no risk. If it is not exactly as represented, your money will be refunded.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

TAFT WILL ENFORCE THE SHERMAN ACT

President Does Not Relish Intimations to the Contrary

Washington, Jan. 14.—No further conferences have been arranged for discussing the hopes expressed to President Taft by President Lovett of the Harriman lines than the suit to annul the merger of the Union Pacific railroads would be discontinued by the administration.

While neither side will comment upon the result of the White House conference, men close to the president look for no abatement in his zeal to push to their conclusion all suits of this character and importance under the Sherman act. The uncertain element in the situation is the supreme court and the decision it may render as to the constitutionality of the law rather than in President Taft.

The president does not relish the broad hints which have reached the public ever since his election that the great corporations would find his administration much to their taste. Should the supreme court declare the constitutionality of the act, and thus leave the administration free to bring all violators of its provisions within the law, without fear of a judicial overturn later, it can be said that all corporations must obey the law or President Taft will know the reason why.

Conferring on Switchmen's Strike

Washington, Jan. 14.—Representatives of the Switchmen's union of North America and of the railroads operating out of Chicago are engaged again in threshing out their differences. It is stated that there is no immediate prospect of an adjustment of the difficulty.

BRIEFS

Wintry today.

The funeral of Rev. Alfred A. Ellsworth held this afternoon at 2.30 was private.

The Bible Study class of the Calvary Baptist church will meet next Tuesday evening with Mrs. Ellsworth Harding of Hancock court.

S. Agnes Parker sewing circle will meet in G. A. R. hall for its next meeting on Tuesday afternoon, January 25, for the election of officers.

There was a good attendance at the Current Events class Thursday afternoon at the Women's clubhouse. Mrs Mary Alden Ward, lecturer, was entertaining as usual in her telling of the happenings in the political, civic and social world.

The Westland Ladies quartet is the attraction tonight at First church chapel, it being the last entertainment in the Quincy Alliance series.

MEN'S CLUB LADIES' NIGHT.

The Men's club of Christ church will hold its annual banquet and ladies night at the parish house on Tuesday, Jan. 18th, at 6.30 P. M. This is one of the most anticipated events of the club year, and a large gathering of members and friends is expected. After the banquet toasts will be answered by the members, together with songs by the famous Men's Club quartette.

☞H. Sarkin, the ladies' tailor, announces in another column an important change in the methods of his business which will undoubtedly meet with the approval of women who are particular about the looks of their tailor-made garments. Mr. Sarkin, has arranged to get all new designs as soon as they appear and has secured an expert tailor and tailoress who guarantee to make a suit, coat or skirt in two fittings. That these changes are popular among the fashionable women is evident by the orders placed with Mr. Sarkin the past week.

WALTER S. HASTINGS.

Word was received in Quincy on Thursday of the death in New York that morning of Walter S. Hastings, a brother to Mrs. James H. Slade. Mr. Hastings resided in Quincy at one time and was a member of the choir of Christ church. He was born in Northfield, Mass., July 22, 1864, and previous to going to New York was in the employ of the Mallory Steamship company. He leaves a widow, mother, sister and two brothers. Mrs. Slade left Thursday evening for New York.

TODAY'S COURT.

and he would support it. Continuing, he said the association could count on his support for all improvements advocated. If the citizens would only inform their Representatives when bills were pending of their wishes he would appreciate it.

Representative Thomas said if there was any matter the association wished to advocate in the Legislature it was their duty to have a full discussion and then inform the representatives of their wishes, so that they may know the wishes of the people before the bill is passed. He also spoke of his work for the corporation corporations are, should receive the corporations are, should receive the tax bill last year. Towns where whole tax. As it is now, some of the towns where there are no corporations get more than we do. This was wrong. Take for instance a case in Quincy, the Fore River plant. Quincy had to stand the expense of new streets, lights, and sewer, yet the tax from that corporation goes to the state. He intended to make a fight for the bill this year, as he wiw last year. As to the matter of fares between West Quincy and Boston, particularly the twelve-ride books, he advised a petition to the City Council, requesting the Mayor to take the matter up with the railroad. If then refused the Railroad Commissioners could be approached. He doubted, however, if the legislature would enact any law for one local section. As to extension of the street railway line from East Milton to connect with the Elevated he would advise taking up the matter with the two railway companies.

Mr. Langelier stated that the Railroad Commissioners in their report had referred to the Elevated absorbing the various lines outside of Boston. He hoped citizens would attend hearings on bills in which they were interested.

Fred J. Kessler, president of the Montclair association, brought the greetings of that association, and congratulated the West Quincy association, on the good work they were doing. If at any time his association could help out in any project if mutual benefit they would be glad to do so.

Mr. Langelier said he was going to make a fight to have the two parkways connected, and he wanted the assistance of the association at the hearings.

W. F. Lakin thanked the representative for being preesnt, and said he had received much valuable information. If public school buildings are to be used for any purpose, meetings of associations of this kind might well be held there. It seemed as if some influence might be brought to the School Committee. Mr. Lakin also spoke of the discrimination in railroad fares. All sections should rise and kick until we have equitable railroad fares. Railroads should not be for a ride to Boston and another 10 cents.

Joseph Walker always felt better after attending a meeting of this kind. Much good can spring from such meetings. There was no reason why we should not get al lthe things we desire. There was no reason why the hall of the school should not be used for the meeting.

John Evans was glad there were so many present to meet the Representatives. They have given us much food for thought and discussion. He was in favor of the proposition of Mr. Casey to have a supper.

James H. Elcock felt much calnable information had been received from our Representatives. The explanation of the working of the corporation tax by Mr. Thomas was very clear. In addition to the things mentioned, there was still one other element, and that was the poor that must be taken care of. He favored the state educating the children of Massachusetts. The education of children is a big problem. We are interested in the whole city but we want so: things for West Quincy.

James F. Burke said the use of school building halls had not been settled as yet, and he would do all possible to get the use of them. We can aid Representatives by discussing the merger of the Elevated and other street railway lines, and letting them know our desires. We can ride from Neponset to Arlington for five cents. There was no question but what low fares built up a community. The merger question was an important one and should be thoroughly discussed. Another matter was the proposed new bridge at Neponset. It meant a great expense to Quincy. It was a question if it was advisable. He also believed that public sentiment should be aroused to have the boulevards connected. The present rules in regard to use of 12-ride books was an injustice.

Representative Thomas said the merger of the Elevated and other roads was an important one, and he urged the association to discuss the matter thoroughly.

Before the meeting adjourned a vote of thanks was extended to Representatives Langelier and Thomas.

Ex-Mayor Thompson

and Means Committee and he was a good man for the State.

In 1900 Mr. Thompson was appointed Principal Assessor by Mayor Hall, for three years, and in Feb. 1904, was reappointed by Mayor Bryant for three years. Upon his election to the office of Mayor in December, 1904, he tendered his resignation. Mr. Thompson's business was that of a granite manufacturer. He served an apprenticeship at the trade, and worked as a journeyman until 1872, when he went into business with his father. His relations with his employes were always most pleasant even while president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association. Aside from this he has been director in the National Granite bank and Quincy Co-operative bank, and has been interested in large real estate developments.

His experience thus gained in many ways admirably equipped him for the duties incumbent upon the office of Mayor of a rapidly growing city, and during the three years he held the office gave the city an honest, progressive and business-like administration.

Mr. Thompson was born in Scotland in 1848. He came to this country at the age of 5 years with his parents and settled in Quincy. He was educated in the public schools, graduating with high honors. He served an apprenticeship in the granite business afterwards working as a journeyman until 1872, when he went into business with his father under the name of John Thompson Son.

He was director of the National Granite bank, member of Mt. Wollaston lodge, I. O. O. F., Granite City club, and was a member of several real estate trust companies holding large tracts of land in Quincy.

REPUBLICAN CLUB.

Another meeting of those interested in the formation of a Republican club in Quincy was held Thursday evening in room 22, Johnson building. The meeting was attended by upwards of 25 and the desirability of forming such an organization was discussed informally.

It was decided to form a temporary organization, which was done with Henry French as president and Harry W. Matthews as secretary.

It was decided that the officers of the club should consist of a president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and an executive committee which shall be composed of one member from each ward with the president, vice president, secretary and treasurer members ex-officiis.

As there were a number who had signified their intention of becoming members of the club, who were unable to be present at this meeting, it was voted to adjourn until Wednesday, Feb. 2, at which time a permanent organization will be made.

Sense of Danger.

Dr. Waldo of London holds that people should develop a sixth sense to inform them of the approach of danger in the streets. Lafcadio Hearn once said: "While in a crowd I seldom look at faces. My intuition is almost infallible, like that blind faculty by which in absolute darkness one becomes aware of the proximity of bulky objects without touching them. If I hesitate to obey it a collision is the inevitable consequence. What pilots one quickly and safely through a thick press is not conscious observation at all, but unreasoning intuitive perception."

A Sight Worth Paying For.

The cab, drawn by a weary looking horse, came to a standstill opposite a public house. As the driver was preparing to descend a small boy ran up with, "'Old yer 'orse, guv'nor?"

"'Old my 'orse? Look 'ere, my lad. Ah'll give yer a bob if it runs away."—Manchester Guardian.

His Contribution.

"Have you ever done anything for the good of the community?" asked the solid citizen.

"Yes," replied the weary wayfarer; "I've just done thirty days."—Philadelphia Record.

The Very Latest.

"Nice car."

"Yes."

"Is it the latest thing in cars?"

"I guess so. It has never got me anywhere on time yet."—Houston Post.

SOCKER IN THE COLLEGES.

Illinois and Chicago Schedule Game For Next Fall.

The athletic heads of the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois have scheduled an association football game for next fall. Coaches A. A. Stagg and George Huff plan to introduce socker as a western intercollegiate sport on Nov. 19 at Marshall field. According to the coaches, the first intercollegiate socker contest will be intended as the formal introduction of the sport into the conference and probably the forerunner of annual association schedules between the "big eight" institutions.

against Tom Longboat, the proposed match to take place in Buffalo in the early part of February.

As an amateur Marathoner Crowley was in a class by himself. Time after time he demonstrated his ability to cover long distances of ground in fast time.

Although the Marathon distance is his forte, Crowley is also a fast middle distance runner. Time and again he has demonstrated that he can travel five miles with the best of them. In a recent race at Celtic park, New York, he hung up new American records from ten and a half miles to seventeen miles.

BOOM FOR SQUASH RACKETS.

National and Intercity Championship Scheduled to Be In Philadelphia.

That greater interest than ever is being taken in squash rackets was evidenced at the recent sixth annual meeting of the United States Squash Racket association in Philadelphia. All the clubs holding membership in the association were represented. The treasurer reported that the finances of the association were in a most flourishing condition, and the secretary reported that overtures had been received from New York, Pittsburg and Altoona, Pa., with a view to these cities becoming members of the organization, and it is more than probable that they will be enrolled as members in due course.

It was decided that the intercity championship between Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore shall be played this year at Baltimore on Feb. 11 and 12 and that the national championships shall be held at the Racket club from Feb. 28 to March 5, inclusive.

Harness Racing In Connecticut.

The trotters and pacers will be well provided for at the Connecticut fair next July. The $10,000 Charter Oak will be the feature of a splendid program.

FUTURE SPORT PLANS

Newark, N. J., is to have a six day bicycle race the week of Feb. 7.

The English track and field championships of 1910 will be held at Stamford Bridge, London.

Detroit expects 400 five man teams to bowl in the American tournament to be held in the City of the Straits in February.

The Los Angeles one mile bicycle track will be 1.68G½ feet in diameter. It will be forty-five feet wide and banked at a 20 per cent angle. It will be ready April 1.

Racket championships in singles and doubles will be decided in New York and Boston courts. The two man matches will be played at the New York Racket club Jan. 17 to 22 and the individual matches at the Boston club Feb. 14 to 19.

ANOTHER TOUCH OF WINTER WEATHER

Heavy Snowfall which Drifts Badly and Blocks Traffic.

Street Railway Having Hard Time to Keep Lines Open

The storm which begun Friday morning proved to be worse in many ways than the storm that began Christmas afternoon. While the storm of yesterday did not cripple the telephone and electric light service it drifted in the streets very badly so that travel was impeded on the street car lines.

The storm begun at 5A. M. and continued all day. The snow was fine and dry so that it did not make much during the day. Late in the afternoon, however, the snow became heavier and the wind increased in velocity, until at dark it was blowing quite a gale.

The street railway people got out their big plows early in the day, and kept them moving over the different lines so that nearly schedule time was made until early evening. Then cars began to be late as the snow drifted onto the tracks. With the increase in wind the job became more difficult, for as fast as the big plows would clear the track the wind would block them up again.

Then it was all night. Every man who could be obtained was put at work, so that this morning most of the lines were partially opened, but no attempt was made to keep to schedule. At the street railway office this morning it was said that some of the lines were still tied up, but that it was expected every line would be open before noon.

The Street department had its plows out early this morning but they did not accomplish much, for the wind filled the paths up as fast as they were plowed out, and the plows could not do effective work.

The steam trains kept near scheduled time until after 6 P. M. Then they began to be late and they became later and later as the evening progressed. The trains were practically on time this morning.

But little damage was done to the wires of either of the companies. The storm of Carismas carried away all the loose and old wires, so that there was little to break down, as most of the wires are new construction. Then the dryness of the air prevented the snow from accumulating on the wires.

No damage is reported at Houghs Neck by the storm, but the residents of the lower end of the beach are snow bound. Efforts were made Friday night to keep the street car line open, but it blew so hard that the snow drifted so badly that it had to be given up. This morning cars were running as far as the causeway, and it was hoped the entire line would be open by night.

PRIZE DANCE.

A number of people attended the first grand prize dance held by the Algonquin Social club last night. Those who participated in the prize dance were Frank Kelley and Miss Laura Shepard, James O'Brien and Miss Catherine McEacheran, J. Heinz and Miss Doyle of Boston. The last couple won. After the prizes $5 in gold was awarded to William Walsh. An exhibition dance was given by Mr. Brown of Boston and received a round of applause in appreciation of his skill as a fancy dancer. Music was furnished by Wilson's orchestra and refreshments by William Belanger. The floor director was William M. Walsh.

FOOT AMPUTATED.

Antonio Colletti of 17 California avenue was at work Wednesday afternoon trying to jack a stone with a crow bar. He had hold of the corner of the stone with the bar and proceeded to lift it. The chip broke off and the stone fell on his foot crushing it to a pulp. After some of his fellow workmen had removed the stone, Colletti was removed to the Massachusetts General hospital and every means to save the foot was taken but blood poison set in, and yesterday his leg was amputated just below the knee. He was employed at McGuires quarry, East Milton, and is the sole support of a wife and one child.

FOUR PLEAD GUILTY.

The treasury of the city was replenished by $200 this morning, when fines to that amount were imposed at the district upon four of the Italians whose places were raided by the police on Monday evening. This disposes of six of the eight cases, two of the other defendants having already pleaded guilty to keeping liquor nuisances at Quincy and paid fines of $75 and $50. The cases in court this morning were those of Domenico Dorando, Donatio Dicorse, Giovanni Chilli and one Paniotta. All pleaded guilty and paid their fines with the exception of Dicorse who was given a month in which to raise the money. There are two more cases in the bunch and they will be tried out next Saturday.

COMIC OPERA.

The presentation of the comic opera Chimes of Normandy under the auspices of Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, at Music hall, Jan. 25 and 26, will be well worth hearing. Parts have already been asigned and active rehearsals have been in progress for some weeks. In the cast are John McGowan who takes the part of Gasport; Edward J. Sullivan, as Henri; William Wilson, as Grenicheuenx; Miss Helen Galyin, as Serpeolette; Miss Mary R. Lyons as Germaine; Marcus Mahon, as the Baillie; Henry McGrath as the notary and Miss Gertrude Reardon, Miss Rena Bizzozero, Miss Josephine McCarthy and Miss Gertrude Crowley as the four maids. They will be supported by a chorus of forty voices.

JOHN S. WILLIAMS.

Word has been received of the death this morning at the Boothby hospital of John S. Williams, formerly of Quincy. Mr. Williams was born in Quincy and was the son of Francis and Mary A. Williams of Quincy. He attended the public schools and made his home in this city for many years, moving to Boston several years ago where he has since resided. He was for many years engaged in the harness business in Boston. He was twice married, his second wife being Florence Randall Boylston whom he married in Quincy Jan. 1, 1884. He was about 69 years of age.

BRAINTREE.

Mrs. Harry S. Bates of Sampson avenue, who was taken to the New Deaconness hospital in Brookline for an operation and treatment is resting comfortably. The operation which was performed Monday morning was most successful, and her many friends are hoping for a speedy recovery.

Carlisle Johnson of President road was given a surprise party party on Tuesday evening by a few of his friends, it being his eighteenth birthday. A thoroughly good time was enjoyed by all.

Mrs. George H. Lincoln of North Scituate was the guest of her niece Mrs. Walter McKean of Hollis avenue, Thursday.

Bert Pratt, clerk at J. Marcus Arnold's store, has resumed his duties once more, after suffering with a severe cold for about ten days.

Ruby V. Neale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelley A. Neale of Washington street, was operated on at her home Friday for diseased glands of the neck. The operation was successfully performed by Dr. George E. Emerson George Moore of Boston and Dr. G. W. of South Weymouth assisted by Dr. Pinkham, Weymouth.

Jan. 12th, St. Mary's Guild of Emmanuel Episcopal church met with Mrs. Frank McKenney, Monatiquot avenue. There was a good attendance of members. A social hour was enjoyed, refreshments served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Mary Mack and Miss Marion McKenney.

A meeting of the Village Improvement Association was held at the Monatiquot school building Thursday afternoon at quarter after four oclock at which the teachers of our schools, the school committee, the board of health, the Selectmen, town clerk and water commissioners were present The purpose of the meeting was to get in closer relation with the different departments of the town in order that we might be better able to work on lines toward our towns gateways and thoroughfares a neater appearance.

COCHATO CLUB BALL

Brilliant Party at Braintree Last Night.

The most brilliant society event of the season was held at the Cochato Club, Friday evening, Jan. 14th, being the tenth annual ball, and despite the severe storm there were over 100 couples on the floor. The hall was beautifully decorated being Japanese effect. One would surely think they were visiting far off Japan, and together with the beautiful gowns worn by the ladies, the scene was one never to be forgotten. The entire affair was under the direction of Mr. G. E. Williams, and the success of the event was due to his unfailing generosity, and excellent ideas, the scheme of decoration being entirely original.

The matrons were Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide, Mrs. Henry E. Reynolds, Mrs. James H. Stedman, Mrs. William C. Harrison, Mrs. Harold M. Gage, Mrs. Clifton D. Harlow, all magnificently gowned in Japancse costumes.

The ushers Walter K. Carson, Luther O. Crocker, Frank H. Dearing, Harold M. Gage, Harison A. Gordon, Dr. Chester H. Gould, Harry W. Hall, Geo. H. Hamblett, Walter J. Harrison, Franklin K. Patch, Moreton T. Swallow and Joseph H. Wilder.

Reception was held from 8 to 8.30, followed by the grand march, led by Mr. and Mrs. George E. Williams and Mr. and Mrs. George O. Wales. Dancing lasted until 11 o'clock, when there was an intermission in order to enjoy an elaborate supper served in the banquet hall, which was also handsomely decorated. After the banquet dancing was resumed until one o'clock. Music was furnished by Mullalley's orchestra and the numbers selected were in harmony with the surroundings. The souvenir dance orders surpassed anything ever seen in the town before.

TRIBUTE FROM MAYOR.

Mayor Shea when interviewed on the death of ex-Mayor Thompson said he deeply regretted to hear of the death of Mr. Thompson. He had known him for many years, and always knew him to be an honest, honorable and consciencious man, and a faithful public official. In his death Quincy has sustained a serious loss. Not only has the city lost an upright citizen but a man who has faithfully and honestly filled many positions of public trust.

QUINCY MAN PRESIDENT.

The annual meeting of the Court Officers' Association was held at Bovers in Boston on Wednesday evening and after dinner these officers were eelcted:

President—William M. Marden, District Court of East Norfolk, Quincy.

Vice President—Arthur R. Gledhill, Third District Court of Plymouth, Plymouth.

Secretary-Treasurer—William L. Drohan, Municipal Court, South Boston District, South Boston.

The executive committee has a representative from each county in the State.

HOW IS THIS!

"A Quincy paper makes the startling statement that the city is urgently in need of an improvement society and calls upon the public-spirited citizens to start the ball rolling. We are surprised that the only city in Norfolk county needs such an organization. We have always thought that the politicians of the city kept the place sufficently "improved "to invite inspection and invoke favorable judgment on the evidences of its civic pride by strangers within its gates. The city is all right, and the association called for would be no "improvement" on the conditions that now exist."—Hyde Park Gazette.

BRIEFS

Many who took part in the production of "The Chimes of Normandy" at Hyde Park are planning a sleigh party to Quincy to see the production here.

Rev. Charles P. Marshall will enter upon his duties as pastor of the Quincy Point church on Sunday Feb. 6.

The funeral of Hon. James Thompson, the ex-Mayor of the city, will be held Monday afternoon at 2.15.

Albert Williams has been elected president of the Pine Tree State Association to succeed Charles L. Bean who declined reelecetion. Mrs. Williams is secretary and treasurer.

A very interesting lecture was afforded the listeners who attended the Universalist church on Monday evening last, delivered by Mr. Charles H. Johnson, a former resident of Hingham, now prominent in Quincy affairs who discoursed upon "Historic Quincy." The latter was illustrated with about 200 sterepoticon views, taken expressly for this lecture. Mr. Johnson is very familiar with his subject, its many noted men in the Adams family ,and the early period of its municipal life. He was accorded a vigorous hand at the close.—Hingham Journal.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Newspaper offices as well as others are handicapped in many ways on a day like this, and cannot accomplish all they would have planned. Considerable news is omitted.

For the second time the list of Quincy Mayors has been invaded by death. The first was Hon. William A. Hodges and now Hon. James Thompson. Mr. Hodges was one of the earlier Mayors, but Mr. Thompson was the predecessor of Mayor Shea, the present executive. Both Mr. Hodges and Mr. Thompson filled many public positions of trust, and from experience in Quincy affairs were well qualified for the office of Mayor. Mr. Thompson served three consecutive years, being elected by large pluralities. His honesty and integrity were never questioned, and he was very faithful in the discharge of the duties of the office. So conscientious was Mayor Thompson that he was exceedingly sensitive as to criticism and a mayor has to stand for much for which he is not responsible, and some which is unwarranted The weak point in the administrations of Mayor Thompson were the selection of department officials, and he suffered therefor. But as a citizen and an official no one in Quincy was more respected than Hon. James Thompson.

It looks as though the Merchants' Association might accomplish much for the good of the city. It is certainly radically different from any other association or body of men in the city and will work along different lines. To become a member one must do a retail business in Quincy; not live here and do business elsewhere, but right here in the city selling goods over the counter. Think what that means, a hundred, five hundred, or more men banded together to work for the good of the business of the city. Business should grow and prosper under such conditions and where business propers the city is bound to. A mutual trading at home with each other, a pleasant relationship among all merchants even if they are rivals in business.

It is understood that the association intends to work for civic improvements, but will not try to accomplish too many things at once. They will unite on one thing that seems necessary and good for the city's growth and work until it is accomplished, and then turn their attention to another. With several hundred active merchants concentrating their attention on one thing, the result cannot be questioned. They are bound to accomplish whatever they undertake, be it a better lighted main business street, car service, good roads, etc. Concentration is the watchword.

The Merchants' Association has enrolled as charter members most of the merchants in City Square, also those in Atlantic, Wollaston, West Quincy South Quincy, Quincy Point and Houghs Neck, so that all merchants in the city are interested.

With all these men working fo rthe interests of Quincy, trading at home should be a pleasure as well as a duty. If you do not already do your shopping in your own city make up your mind to from today, and stand back of the merchants who are standing by you. Cooperation will mean a bigger and better city and attract new people.

Boom Quincy, its industries and its institution now and always.

—Talking about the high tax rates in New England, what is the reason for it? There is a reason of course. It is not laid against the working man who owns a $2,500 home; he is assessed all he should be. It is not the fault of the small merchant; he quite often pays his honest worth in taxes. The trouble is with the liars: the men who have considerable personal property and swear they have none. Men who are honest in every way else. Then there is the manufacturer who pays a very small tax; very likely though he pays all he is asked to. Make the liar give true statements, tax the manufacturer as the small owner and the small merchant are, and you will have two other ways to lower taxes.—Mansfield News.

BRIEFS

Among those attending school at the Boston Y. M. C. A. whose building was gutted by fire on Thursday morning, is Lester Rollins of Beale street.

Ray Jordan, a former resident of Wollaston, is now located in Worcester in which vicinity he is representing a Boston concern dealing in gasoline tanks for garages.

The seventh grade vacancy at the Quincy school, occasioned by the resignation of Miss Florence Cummings, is being filled by Miss Bertha Kermayer of Bridgewater.

Among those recently receiving double promotions in the Massachusetts Fields school were: Ralph Faulkner, Dorothy Stevens and Marie Poland.

On Tuesday, January 18, the first concert for the season of the Wollaston Glee club will be held in the Wollaston Congregational church in charge of their conductor John Crowley.

The pond on what is known as the Leigh estate on Beale street has become a favorite with skaters and a large number congregate there every night. Here and there a flash light or lantern illuminates the pond.

Miss Nina Bearse Wilbur who is to assist the Wollaston Glee club at its concert on Tuesday evening is to read "Studies in Character" by Mary Wilkins and "A Boy Story" by J. L. Harbour.

An enthusiastic group of youngsters attended the meeting and social of the Wollaston Boys club held in the chapel of the Baptist church on Thursday evening. Following a half hour of Bible study those present joined in a variety of games. Ice cream and cake were served. The committee in charge of the evening's entertainment consisted of Edward Bullock, Winslow Weston Fred Rollins and Leon Randall. A "gym" night is on the schedule for next Thursday's meeting.

Sleighing parties have been the rule of late in Wollaston, and hardly a night the past week has gone by without one or more. On Tuesday evening the sixth grade of the Massachusetts Fields school went to Mattapan accompanied by two teachers, Miss Shirley and Miss Gammons. On Wednesday evening, the eighth grade of the Wollaston school with Miss Fisher and Principal and Mrs. Goodspeed as guests, had a jolly sleigh ride. On Thursday evening one was held by the eighth grade of the Massachusetts Fields. Several private sleighing parties are planned for the near future by some of Wollaston's young people.

ARMY OFFICERS IN SPANISH PLOT

Eighty Will Have to Face Trial by Court Martial

PRINCE ALSO UNDER ARREST

Captain-General of Madrid Removed From Office—Plot to Overthrow Government Said to Have Its Root In Foreign Capitals—Carlist Uprising and Manifesto From Don Jaime Included In Alarming Rumors

Madrid, Jan. 15.—Prince Pignatelli was arrested for complicity in the plot of the Conservatives to overthrow the government. Later eighty army officers were taken. They were in the Military club when a cordon of police was thrown around the building and they were taken into custody.

Count DeVillar, captain general of Madrid, has been removed. There are rumors that Alfonso's life has been in grave danger.

Other startling arrests are expected. The plot to bring about the overthrow of the government is said to be far-reaching and to have its root in foreign capitals. Prince Pignatelli is an Italian and an enthusiastic supporter of the Clerical party.

The officers implicated have been sent to various provincial fortresses pending trial by courtmartial. The colonels of the prince's and queen's regiments have been relieved of their commands by royal decree. Count DeVillar, who was removed as captain-general of Madrid, has been succeeded by General Rios.

There are also grave rumors of a Carlist uprising, and it is understood that Don Jaime of Bourbon, the Spanish pretender, is preparing to issue a manifesto describing the ruin of fallen Spain since the dethronement of his great-grandfather, attacking the Free Thinkers, Protestants and other enemies of social order, and appealing for a revival of Catholic unity as the only means for Spanish regeneration.

The articles in The Correspondencia Militar, which revealed the plot of the Conservatives to embroil the army with the government, were written by Senor Llorens, a Carlist deputy and officer, who used a pseudonym. The issue of the paper was suppressed, whereupon a demonstration of army officers was made in front of the newspaper office.

This demonstration was followed by a cabinet meeting, attended by King Alfonso at which drastic measures were decided upon.

SHOWY INAUGURATIONS

Chief Reason For Wanting Inaugural Date Changed, Says Perkins

Washington, Jan. 15.—Declaring that the inauguration of the president, once a "quiet and decorous" event, has grown into an "enormous assemblage and show," Representative Perkins of New York addressed the house in opposition to a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States changing the inaugural date.

Mr. Perkins said all the clamor for the change in date had come from the city of Washington. He said satirically he was just as anxious to amend the constitution so as to have a pleasant day for inauguration as he was to insure a nice day for the three-ring circus.

WEIGHS NEARLY HALF A TON

Portland Fishermen Capture Giant Shark After a Pitched Battle

Portland, Me., Jan. 15.—The biggest shark ever brought to this port arrived here on the fisherman Carrie and Mildred. It weighed nearly half a ton and measured more than ten feet in length.

It was only after a pitched battle in which the crew used axes that the shark was captured. It was first caught in a net, which it nearly destroyed before it could be dragged up to the side of the boat and dispatched with blows from axes.

GETS WHITE RHINOCEROS

Roosevelt Accomplishes One of Chief Objects of His African Trip

Butiaba, Uganda, Jan. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt has shot the white rhinoceros, which was one of the objects of his African hunting trip, according to advices received here by runner and canoe service on the Bar-el-Jebel river.

The former president got the white rhinosceros at Camp Rhnio, where the party now is. Three members of the expedition recruited in Africa are ill with dysentery.

Missing Girl Found In Shed

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 15.—Annie Johnson, the Gloucester girl who caused a hue and cry to be started by her sudden disappearance, was found by the police in a shed in the rear of her own home. Where she had been she refused to say.

Directions for Colic in Horses.—Contents of small bottle Painkiller (Perry Davis') in quart bottle, add pint warm or cold water, sweeten with molasses, shake well until all mixed. MILTON

Although the annual town meeting is some weeks away the questions of appropriations and town officers is

The discussion at the meeting of the Thursday evening club this week was on "Personal damage suits."

Nightly skating parties on the Cunningham pond have been in style for several weeks. The toboggan chute also has many attractions for visitors.

The semi-monthly dance of the Cunningham gymnasium club was held Wednesday evening and was a great social success.

Mrs. Mary S. widow of Charles E. C. Breck, passed away at Neponset on Wednesday after an illness of several weeks. She was well known in Milton, the family being almost life long residents. They resided on Adams street, East Milton, later building a spacious home at Milton centre where they lived very happily until Mr. Breck was called to his heavenly home. Mrs. Breck is survived by three daughters who will miss the presence and devotion of a most kindly and loving mother.

Much interest is being taken in East Milton in the association recently formed, the object of which is to see that that section of the town is fairly represented in the town offices. Henry Sheldon is the president of the association; Joseph Walters secretary, and Thomas Bannin, treasurer. The organization was perfected at a meeting held Monday evening. The organization will further the candidacy of Percy Bates for selectman. They will also take a hand in the election of other town officers. An open meeting of the association to discuss town affairs will be held in Ellsworth hall next Monday evening.

EXPERT AT WINNING HEARTS OF WOMEN

Police Say Hoboken Man Wedded and Robbed Fifty

New York, Jan. 15.—With twelve wives in Hoboken, and a string of fifty all told from coast to coast, according to charges made by Chief of Police Hayes of Hoboken, Emile C. von Muller is to be brought from San Francisco, where he is under arrest, to face trial for bigamy in the New Jersey courts.

According to the investigations made by the Hoboken police von Muller married for the sole purpose of robbery. He would make ardent love to any unattached woman with a few dollars, marry her, get her money and move on in search of another victim.

Von Muller, the police say, did not confine himself to Hoboken entirely, but made excursions to Montclair, Jersey City, other Jersey towns and to Manhattan and Brooklyn. Wherever he went they charge he broke a heart and robbed a purse.

A Word For the Tightwad.

In France they have an expressive phrase, "liquid money." It means that part of the family income which is used for the necessities and luxuries of life. It is quite apart from and kept apart from the more serious, substantial part of the income, which is the saved part. In America the entire income is "liquid, and the man who attempts to make part of it solid is called a "tightwad." A "tightwad" is really a man who creates a principal—a capital, in other words—and he is the living example of what every private business must be and of how the country's resources should be handled.—Argonaut.

"1892" Pure Aluminum Ware
Will Not Rust, Crack, Break, Scorch or Burn
Cheapest Because Best
Will Last a Lifetime

HERE, at last, is the ideal kitchen and cooking utensil—"THE WARE THAT WEARS"—made from Pure Spun Aluminum, and guaranteed by the makers to last 25 years with average usage. "Spun" Aluminum, mind you, not cast Aluminum, which will sometimes crack and scale. Spun Aluminum Ware will never crack, peel, scale or break.

Costs a trifle more than ordinary enamel ware, but is many times cheaper in the long run, because of its wonderful durability and fuel saving. Enamel ware is iron coated with colored glass. Iron expands with heat. Colored glass does not, but chips off into the food with dangerous results to those who eat it.

That the use of enamel kitchen ware causes cancer is a view held by some eminent medical authorities. Dr. William H. Diefanbach of New York, in a paper entitled "Observations on the Etiology of Cancer," read before the Bureau of Sanitary Science and Public Health during the session of the International Homeopathic Congress at Atlantic City, discussed this subject.

According to a special dispatch to the Philadelphia North American, Dr. Diefanbach advanced the argument that chipping of the hard-coated dishes used in preparation of meals allowed minute but dangerous particles of foreign matter to become mixed with the food, these being taken into the stomach, where the cancerous growth is caused by abrasions which they make in the walls of the organ.

"1892" Pure Aluminum Ware saves doctors' bills. It enables you to bake bread, pies, pan cakes, etc., without grease, which is the great cause of dyspepsia and indigestion. Aluminum griddles require no grease; hence are smokeless and odorless.

"1892" Pure Aluminum Ware will not scorch or burn, is easily cleaned, will not rust, or corrode. Handsome in appearance. Looks like silver, but weighs only about one-fourth as much, and is light and convenient to handle.

The original and only genuine Spun Aluminum Ware is made by the Illinois Pure Aluminum Co. at Lemont, Ill. Every piece bearing their trade-mark, the Maltese Cross, and marked "1892" Pure Aluminum Ware is absolutely pure, wholesome and hygienic, and guaranteed for 25 years.

The Social Realm

If I had the time to find a place
And sit me down full face to face
With my better self that cannot show
In my daily life that rushes so,
It might be then I would see my soul
Was stumbling still toward the shining goal,
I might be nerved by the thought sublime
If I had the time!

WAR RELIC EXPLODES

Shell Blows Out Side of House and Maims Woman and Children

Norfolk, Jan. 15.—A one-pound shell, being kept as a Spanish-American war relic, exploded in a house near the United States naval hospital in Portsmouth, when children struck it against a nail.

The side of the house was blown out and Matilda Clarke and her two children were badly injured. Emily, the older child, lost one hand, and Carrie, the younger, may lose her sight.

O'Connell's Will Upheld

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 15.—The will of ex-Mayor John O'Connell of Marlboro, disposing of an estate worth about $500,000, was allowed by Judge Chamberlain in the probate court here. The will was contested by relatives.

PASSENGERS ALL SAFE

Cause of Wreck of Steamer Chatham Is Not Yet Learned

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 15.—The Merchant and Miners' company's steamer Chatham, Captain Freeman, from Baltimore, via Savannah, for Jacksonville, with thirty-eight first class passengers, went ashore on the north jetty at the entrance of the St. John's river and will be abandoned as a hopeless wreck. What caused the accident has not yet been learned.

The Clyde liner Mohawk, from New York, which was close behind the Chatham when she went on the rocks, immediately sent small boats to her assistance and passengers were taken off.

There is fourteen feet of water in the Chatham's hold, making it impossible to save any portion of her cargo. Lighters have been sent to the ship to remove the fittings.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

The officers of Court Autumno No. 9, L. K. & L., will be installed Wednesday evening, Jan. 19, by Miss Carrie F. Taylor and Miss Martha Amsden of Boston. Supper will be served at seven o'clock. A full attendance is desired.

J. F. Sheppard & Sons have had their force of workmen, and horses busily engaged in cutting ice this week, and storing the twelve inch blocks in the ice houses on the borders of Sunset lake.

Interesting preparations are being made for the marriage of Miss Lila Willis, grandaughter of Elisha Thayer of Crescent avenue, which will be solemnized Wednesday, Jan. 26 in the Episcopal church, Worcester.

Mrs. Rolfin, formerly of this town but more recently of ew York has been quite ill at the home of Mr. Madan on Washington street, with scarlet fever. A Holbrook physician had the case in charge.

The members of the A. B. C. were entertained by Mrs. C. B. Cummings of Pond street, Friday afternoon. The highest scores were made by Mrs. G. H. Arnold and Mrs. S. S. Bridgham.

Weymouth high school basket ball team was no match for the Thayer Academy team, composed mostly of substitute players at Braintree yesterday afternoon, the final score being 32 to 7 in favor of the Academy five.

There will be a public hearing at the State House on Monday, Jan. 24, at 10.30 o'clock, by the special commissioners on grade crossings.

The next meeting of the Braintree Teachers' Association will be held at the Noah Torrey school next Monday afternoon. Prof. George F. Ashley will speak and the teachers of the Noah Torrey will entertain the association.

The January meeting and dinner of the Men's Club of the South Methodist Episcopal church was held at the church last Wednesday, with a good attendance of invited members and guests. The committee in charge comprising Rev. G. H. Parkinson, Messrs Stone, Haworth, Watson and Vernon Heath had the affair in hand and treated those present to a surprising and delightful innovation in the form of a brief but well arranged and well arranged program of instrumental and vocal music.

BRAINTREE G. A. R.

A large company gathered in Grand Army hall last Monday evening to witness the joint installation of Camp 32 Sons of Veterans and Sons of Veterans Auxiliary No. 16. First on the program was a banquet at seven o'clock of salads, cold meats, rolls and coffee, fruit and cake.

After supper all repaired to the main hall to witness the installation ceremonies. The officers of the Auxiliary were first installed by Miss Margaret Carney of Melrose in a very able and businesslike way. At the conclusion of the work Miss Carney was presented with a handsome necklace and responded in a fitting manner. The following are the officers of the Auxiliary for the year 1910:

President—Mrs. M. B. Hollis.
Vice President—Miss A. L. Foster.
Trustees—Miss Alice Thayer,, Mrs. Idella Thayer, Mrs. Ethel Hayden.
Treasurer—Mrs. Alice Hayden.
Chaplain—Mrs. Jennie Jones.
Guide—Mrs. Ethel Hayden.
Assistant Guide—Miss Viola Hollis.
P. I.—Mrs. Lizzie Howe.
I. G.—Mrs. Ellen Jones.
O. G.—Mrs. Esther Decoste.
Color Guards.—Mrs. Idella Theyer, Miss Josie Foster.
Secretary—Mrs. Marion Holbrook.
Judge Advocate—J. E. Hayden.

The officers elect of the camp were then installed by Past Div. Commander, William A. Stevens, known to all Sons of Veterans as "Billy" Stevens and a prince of good fellows. Brother Stevens is no stranger to Braintree and it is needless to say that his work was excellent. These are the officers for the ensuing year:

Commander—J. E. Hayden.
S. V. C.—M. C. Gillette.
J. V. C.—A. H. Holbrook.
P. I.—N. E. Hayden.
C.—A. L. Moors.
Camp Council—W. H. Paine, A. H. Moors, N. E. Hayden.
Treas.—Paul Monaghan.
Secretary—P. W. Holbrook.
Guide—W. E. Holbrook.
I. G.—Frank Call.
O. G.—Augustus Wentworth.

Brother Stevens was presented by Commander Hayden in behalf of the camp with a handsome travelling bag and though greatly surprised responded in a very eloquent speech.

Speeches were then listened to from members of Post 87, and members of the allied societies. There were visitors present from Quincy, Weymouth, Melrose and the neighboring state of Maine.

A BLOW IN JAMAICA

Things That Happen When a Big Storm Breaks Loose There.

A WEST INDIAN HURRICANE.

It Will Leap Out of a Clear Sky and Level Almost Everything In Its Path—Then Comes a Torrential Downpour That Ends In a Flood.

"Have you ever been through a West Indian hurricane?" said a man who has lived in the tropics on and off for a number of years. "Do you want to know what the experience is like?

"A hurricane will leap out of a clear sky, swoop down on a city, blow everything in its path flat and pass on. Then follows the tail of the hurricane, a steady breeze blowing in the same direction, but at a much lower velocity. This is likely to continue for many hours, sometimes for many days, and is always accompanied by a torrential downpour of rain.

"I was in Kingston, Jamaica, at the time of the hurricane of 1903. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon I was in my office on the top floor of a rickety wooden building. As suddenly as a clap of thunder the room went dark.

"I had a pretty good idea of what was about to happen and, going to the window, looked out across the roofs. A black cloud had whirled up out of the southwest, obscuring the sun, but the mountains back of the city were still golden with light.

"In less than a quarter of an hour the wind reached us. The first structure that went was a wooden watch-tower about 200 feet high that had been used in the old days to locate ships approaching the harbor. It had weathered all previous hurricanes, but this time it went down like a house of cards. Spars of lumber from that tower were carried as far as twenty blocks before they came to the ground.

"Then the spire of the church went, the roofs of a good many residences were torn off, and some fine palm trees in the public gardens snapped off about halfway from the ground. Buildings in Kingston, however, are calculated to stand a pretty severe blow. They are built only a few stories high, and the roofs present a broad and comparatively flat surface to the wind. Considering the velocity at which that hurricane was traveling, the damage was not great. Even my crazy office building withstood it. But the tail of the thing followed, with a heavier rain than I have ever seen before or since. To say that it came down in bucketfuls would be mild. It was as if the clerk of the weather had taken the plug out of some huge vat suspended above our heads and allowed the water to plump straight down on us.

"In three hours the macadam on the streets had been washed into the harbor. The street outside my window was a rushing river as much as four feet deep in places. I saw a cart try to cross it, but with the water above the axle of the wheel and the horse's legs being washed away from under it it was an impossible task, and the driver turned back. Big casks and packing cases were dancing on the surface like corks.

"As you can imagine, I did not get home to supper that evening. It was 8 o'clock before the rain stopped and the water in the streets had drained into the harbor. Even then traffic had not begun to reorganize itself.

"The trolley car tracks had been washed out, and no cars were running. Cabs, however, were doing a roaring business, and eventually I got a cabman to drive me home for three times his customary charge.

"The damage to property in Kingston mounted up to hundreds of thousands of dollars, but the real destruction was wrought in the country districts. Floods wiped out many a negro village and sent the flimsy houses floating down the rivers. The railroads were tied up for nearly a week. Every banana tree in the path of the hurricane was uprooted. Oh, yes, a West Indian hurricane can do a lot of damage when it gets busy.

"Loss of life, did you say? Of course there was. Nearly 200 people were killed throughout the island on that occasion, but we grow accustomed to that in the West Indies. We expect a hurricane every once in awhile, and we know that it will take its toll of human life when it comes. If you had been telling the story you would probably have mentioned that first of all, but sudden death is so common below the tropic of Cancer that we get callous, I suppose."—New York Sun.

Albion and Columbia.

"Albion, the Gem of the Ocean," was written and composed by Jesse Hammond, an English government dock official, about 1820 and was heard above all others in the theaters, music halls and on London streets. It is apparent that "gem of the ocean" fits an island more aptly than our large tract of continent, and "borne by the red and the blue" (the red of the British army and blue of the navy) is more logical than the meaningless line "borne by the red, white and blue." The lines of the English songs are almost word for word identical with our version, "The Red, White and Blue."—Exchange.

A Manly Woman.

"Why do you say she is a manly woman?" asked Jinks.

"She always gets off a car properly," said Minks.—Buffalo Express.

Tomorrow is not elastic enough in which to press the neglected duties of today.

NEW THINGS IN CHINA.

A Dainty Dish on Which to Serve Sliced Lemon.

No matter how much china or glassware the average housewife possesses she is always on the alert for something new or more convenient than her present supply. Particularly does this apply to designs for special service, such as relish and entree dishes. In the accompanying sketch are shown some of the most recent productions of this character, all of them practical. The relish rack, which emanates from England, is on the order of the stands so much in vogue for serving cakes and sandwiches at 5 o'clock tea, particularly at lawn parties, to which the English are so partial. Each of the three dishes is in the form of a fish, the coloring being dull green and coral. They are supposed to hold some variety of fish relish.

Sliced lemon is the essential accompaniment of many dishes, particularly in the line of sea food, and for its special service a plate of crystal with a border of filigree silver overlay has made its appearance. A silver fork is added.

Dishes prepared en casserole are always served in the brownish fireproof receptables in which the food has been cooked. To differentiate these aristocrats among baking dishes from the common kind they are slipped into a nickel or silver stand before being brought to the table. It is easier to handle the entree thus served, so there is a practical as well as an aesthetic reason for the adoption of the silver stand.

Cut glass syrup jugs are not altogether new, but one so fashioned as to do away with the necessity for a metal lip is out of the ordinary. Such is the style here pictured, the cutting of the pitcher being quite effective. A napkin ring of cut glass is uncommon and is calculated to interest the housewife who has a penchant for table equipment of this sparkling crystal.

MEATS AND VEGETABLES.

Stewed chicken without mashed potatoes and pork without apple sauce lose half their zest.

With roast meats sweet potatoes are appropriate, as are squash, tomatoes, asparagus and stewed onions.

Baked macaroni is a fitting accompaniment to a roast. So are brussels sprouts and scalloped or creamed cauliflower.

Squabs and all game have lettuce with French dressing served with them, and lettuce must be eaten with Virginia ham.

Fried onions fairly cry aloud for a juicy beefsteak, and roast beef without potatoes browned under the meat never tastes quite the same.

It is no longer correct to serve more than two vegetables with the meat course, though with poultry cranberries are counted as an extra.

Certain meats are as closely allied to certain vegetables as is the long meter doxology to "Old Hundred." To separate them seems almost desecration.

Potatoes are an accommodating sort of vegetable. They are good with all meats, though their digestibility when served more than once a day is questionable.

Turnips, carrots, parsnips and cabbage are generally eaten with boiled meats, while peas, beets, beans, corn and tomatoes are good with either boiled or roasted meats.

Celery should never be omitted when serving poultry and is an invariable accompaniment of soup. It is specially good for the nerves and is fittingly served with all meats.

Rice should be served with stewed chicken. Roast duck demands both apple sauce and stewed onions. Turkey without cranberries would be as lost as venison without currant jelly.

RECOUNT OF BOSTON VOTE

Demand Filed at Last Moment by Both Fitzgerald and Storrow

Boston, Jan. 15.—Both Mayor-elect John F. Fitzgerald and James J. have filed with the election commissioners petitions for a recount of Tuesday's mayoralty vote. Storrow's representatives ask a recount of the votes of both Storrow and Fitzgerald. The latter's representatives ask for a recount of the vote of all four mayoralty candidates.

The filing of both petitions was attended by not a little excitement. Both sides jockeyed with each other almost up to the last minute, Storrow's papers not being filed with the election board until within four minutes of 5 o'clock, which was the last time for filing, and Fitzgerald's papers not being presented until about a minute later.

$5000 FINE IMPOSED

Punishment For Bringing Men From Canada to Work In Mills

Boston, Jan. 15.—Judgment was entered in the United States district court here bringing to a settlement the prosecution by the government of the Manchang Mills of Sutton, as represented by Alme Richaud, Tilden B. Stevenson and Amede Bellaire, who were accused of bringing into the United States five persons from Canada in violation of the contract labor law.

Bellaire and Richaud are ordered to pay fines aggregating $5000. In the case of the other defendants no penalty was imposed. A criminal prosecution against the accused was withdrawn by the government.

BRIEFS.

The Sons of Veterans and Aux. No. 3, hold a whist party in Union hall Tuesday evening.

The Old Colony Association of Universalist churches will meet with the East Weymouth parish on Wednesday, Jan. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Dow nee Frances Burditt have the heartfelt sympathy of their friends in the loss of their infant son.

Rev. A. E. Clattenburg of St. Chrysostom's church preaches at Christ church, Sunday in exchange with Rev. R. E. Armstrong.

Mrs. Edward J. Badger of Park street is now able to be up and around the house, although not able to go out of doors, yet.

The Plaicon-Davis concert at Alpha hall next Wednesday evening is attracting attention in musical circles and the long list of subscribers indicates a large audience. The concert is not for any special society or church but for all music lovers.

At the recent installation of officers of the W. R. C. Mrs. Daniel McGrath of Botolph street was the recipient of a handsome cut glass dish. The members of the society giving this in recognition of her long and valued services as an officer of the corps.

The lone gas street light of Wollaston, situated on Prospect avenue between Lincoln and Warren avenues did good service during the recent absence of the electric lights and the neighbors are congratulating themselves upon its existence.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Wiley who have been staying with the Fred R. Snows on Marlboro street while their house on Elm avenue was being constructed, are now occupying their new home. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stanley moved into the lower apartment of their house last week.

Miss Adelaide Griggs of Boston who is to sing at the Wollaston Glee club concert at the Wollaston Congregational church on Tuesday evening is acknowledged to be one of the finest singers on the concert stage today. Quincy people wil lremember her fine work last winter at the oratorio of the Quincy Choral society at Music hall.

The Young People's Religious Union of First church hold a Neighborhood meeting, Sunday evening in the chapel. Miss Minnie Packard has charge of the meeting and has secured Mrs. L. H. Cate of Canton, as speaker and has arranged for an informal reception to be held directly after the regular meeting. There will be special music by J. Barraja-Frauenfelder and the Y. P. R. U. choir.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

MANICURE GIRL SUED

Also Named as Corespondent In Pittsburg Society Divorce Suit

Pittsburg, Jan. 15.—The last of the batch of 145 divorce cases for this week in the Pittsburg courts bids fair to be the most sensational in years.

Frederick W. Cox of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, a man of good standing, has been sued by his wife, Mary T. Cox, a social leader, for divorce.

She names Mrs. Anna Aleshire, a buxom little manicure, as corespondent, and in another court she sues the manicure girl for $20,000 damages for alienating the affections of her husband.

The wife alleges that Mrs. Aleshire is worth more than $20,000; that Cox, her husband, who is infatuated with the girl, has given her more than this much in the past two years.

LOSE TWO HOURS' EARNINGS

Fall River Mill Operatives Strike on Account of New Law

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 15.—Operatives in several mills are on strike because of dissatisfaction with wages under the new fifty-six-hour law.

As the result of the reduction of two hours a week in the running time of the mills, the operatives lost two hours' earnings per week, and upon receiving their wages under the new schedule yesterday, many left their work at once.

Unless the differences are speedily adjusted, some mills will be forced to suspend operations.

Committees have been appointed by the strikers to confer with the management of the several mills, and an effort will then be made to reach a satisfactory settlement.

HELD FOR KILLING BOSTON POLICEMAN

Nineteen-Year-Old Youth Must Answer to Serious Charge

Boston, Jan. 15.—A warrant charging Henry J. Leavey, 19 years old, Jamaica Plain, with the murder of of Jamaica Plain, with the murder of Patrolman Daniel J. Donovan, was issued by Judge Murray and Leavey will be arraigned today.

The evidence which the police claim to have against Leavey is that just previous to the encounter at the corner of Beach and Hudson streets, Donovan was standing on the corner. Leavey came around the corner. Some words passed between Leavey and Donovan. Suddenly Leavey hit Donovan in the face with the flat of his hand. Donovan fell on the stone steps of a basement back of him. His head hit the stone and it was this impact which fractured his skull and caused his death soon after.

Later Leavey was arrested in Jamaica Plain on a larceny charge. His description there tallied with the description sent out of the man wanted in the Donovan case. Leavey was identified by three witnesses as the man who had the altercation with Donovan.

DEVELOP FARM LANDS

Suggestion For Preventing Folcking of People to Bay State's Large Cities

Boston, Jan. 15.—The Massachusetts homestead commission finds that people are flocking to the cities because they prefer to live there rather than in the country, and states that 90 percent of the population is within the cities of the state.

The suggestion is made that farm lands be tabulated so that people who desire them can locate far from congested centers. The commission also suggests land banks and co-operative banks.

There are 171,000 acres of undeveloped tillable land and 1,000,000 acres of unused pasture land in Massachusetts.

CHAMBERLAIN ELECTED

Four Other Unionists Returned to Parliament Without Opposition

London, Jan. 15.—The first five members of the new parliament were returned unopposed. The general election began with nominations in eighty constituencies, and the first polling begun today.

The candidates returned were ex-Colonial Secretary Joseph Chamberlain, Lord Hugh Cecil, Sir William P. Anson, John Weller and Walter Guinnesss. All are Unionists.

London Has $500,000 Fire

London, Jan. 15.—Another serious fire, involving a loss of $500,000, occurred in the drapery store of Evans & Co. Four of the eleven large shops comprising the establishment were completely destroyed. There were no casualties.

PEACE REIGNS IN CONGRESS

Insurgents Agree to Sever Democratic Alliances

ULTIMATUM OF THE PRESIDENT

It Results In Patching Up Difficulties That Threatened Life of Republican Party—Caucuses Will Be Attended by All Republicans and Future Harmony Is Assured—"Whip" Dwight's Valuable Services

Washington, Jan. 15.—Issuing an ultimatum to the "insurgents" to the effect that the only proof of their Republicism he would accept was attendance upon party caucuses and the breaking of their alliance with the Democrats, President Taft has now succeeded in ending the bitter party war that threatened the very life of the party in power.

For the remainder of the present session, unless something entirely unforeseen shall arise, "stand pat" and "insurgent" Republicans will enter party caucuses together, decide upon party politics and action and abide by the decisions. President Taft insists upon this and the "insurgents" have yielded.

To Taft belongs the chief credit for patching up the difficulties that had widened so alarmingly in the Republican majority of the house. Next to the president, Representative Dwight of New York, the Republican "whip" of the house, is receiving praise for the accomplishment of peace. It was he who first suggested caucuses, and obtained the adherance of the speaker and the president to that plan. A share of the credit is also due to Representative Hayes of California, the leader of the "insurgents," through whom the president carried on practically all his negotiations with those men.

It was upon the immediate issue—namely, the elections of six men to represent the house on the committee which is to investigate the interior department and the forestry bureau—that the basis of settlement was reached, but it goes further than that.

Not content with their memorable victory over Speaker Cannon and his followers last week, when they prevented the speaker appointing the house members of the investigating committee, the "insurgents" held out for a "fair committee," which, they admitted, meant that they expected to be recognized by the Cannon Republicans to the extent of being permitted to have a representative on the committee. This was the situation when Dwight, in his capacity of "whip," undertook to bring about peace and please everybody concerned.

The Cannon men have promised the "insurgents" a fair committee, which will be composed of three regular Republicans, one "insurgent" Republican and two Democrats. This is perfectly satisfactory to the "insurgents."

BARS FIVE-CENT LOAF

Bill Before Bay State Legislature Hits Those Who Buy Bread

Boston, Jan. 15.—A bill has been presented in the legislature to slice four ounces from a loaf of bread. If the bill becomes a law, a 32-ounce loaf will be reduced to 28 ounces. A 16-ounce loaf will be reduced to 14 ounces, and there will be no more 8-ounce loaves sold. That is, the 5-cent loaf is made illegal.

The price fixed by common usage cannot be changed by law, and the profit goes into the pockets of the wheat barons. This is the view taken by bakers, who say that according to the present law the loaves must be smaller or the price higher, on account of flour prices.

POSED AS GOVERNOR'S SON

So Says Complainant Against Man Who Is Charged With Forgery

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 15.—Harry L. Wood, who claims good connections in Chicago, was arrested here, charged wth forgery.

I. B. Walker swore out the warrant, which charged that Wood presented two checks for $100 each, purporting to be signed by Warren L. Douglas, a son of former Governor Douglas of Massachusetts. Walker charges that Wood posed as young Douglas.

Boy Confesses Burglaries

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 15.—For several weeks the police have been puzzled at breaks which have been made and larcenies which have been committed. The burglar was caught when 15-year-old Harold W. Miller confessed, clearing up eight cases.

Fatally Crushed by Cars

Waltham, Mass., Jan. 15.—Carroll Mosley, aged 27, received fatal injuries while coupling freight cars on the Boston and Maine railroad. He was taken to a hospital here, where he died two hours later.

Holland Favors Peace Court

London, Jan. 15.—A dispatch from The Hague says that Holland will strongly support the American proposal for a permanently sitting court of arbitration.

LID GOES ON IN SALEM

New Mayor Has Given Due Warning to Offenders Against Law

Salem, Mass., Jan. 15.—If Salem is not a closed city today there will be trouble brewing for offenders against the law, for today is the first day of the new era which Mayor Howard has promised.

Any club or drug store selling liquor; any pool room allowing minors to take part in games, and any speakeasy that shows contempt for the law will be promptly prosecuted, if the mayor's promises are kept.

Expelled From Stock Exchange

New York, Jan. 15.—The board of governors of the Consolidated stock exchange expelled K. K. Jenkins, who has been a member of the exchange for a quarter of a century. The charge given in the expulsion order was "obvious fraud."

Saw Clips Off Aged Man's Arm

Middleboro, Mass., Jan. 15.—Augustus D. Soule, 82, had his right arm severed at the shoulder by a circular saw at his shingle mill here. Soule slipped upon some ice and fell directly in the path of the fast revolving teeth.

LAND COURT

To Abbie Phillips, Herbert T. Whitman, John G. Whitman, Harriet E. Perry and Alice E. Thayer of Quincy, John Veader of Weymouth, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; Charles D. Brown, Cliscia E. Gannon, Helen R. Wilson and George H. Jones of Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth; Lillie T. Jones and Helen M. Jones of Chelsea, Sarah V. Hatch of Revere, in said County of Suffolk; Margaret Jones, Mary Angeline Crane and Louis O. Crane of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth; Benjamin F. or Benjamin M. Lawrence and Franklin Lawrence, residences unknown, and any other heirs, devisees or legal representatives of Peleg F. Jones, late of said Quincy, deceased, not above named; and to all whom it may concern.

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Mary E. Tisdale of said Quincy, to register and confirm her title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Quincy, bounded and described as follows: Northerly on Washington Street, Easterly on Chubbuck Street; Southerly on land of Abbie Phillips, Herbert T. Whitman, Charles D. Brown, Cliscia E. Gannon and John G. Whitman; and Westerly on land of Harriet E. Perry, John Veader, a private way known as Sixth Avenue, land of Helen R. Wilson and land of James Lonergan.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirty-first day of January A. D., 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this seventh day of January in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

TAFT IS NOW READY TO REST

Responsibility For Legislation Rests Upon Congress

IT HAS HIS ENTIRE PROGRAM

Federal Incorporation Law Not Likely to Pass—Senate May Have Prolonged Debate Over Railroad Rate and Conservation of Natural Resources—Summary of What May Be Accomplished at Present Session

Washington, Jan. 15.—Congress now has President Taft's complete legislative program before it. The message on conservatism and waterways is the last important communication the legislative body will receive from the president during the session unless something comes up to influence him to change his present plan.

No one can foretell at this time what congress will do with the president's recommendations. Some of them will undoubtedly be enacted into law, some will be thrown overboard, while others will be laid aside for future consideration.

The indications are that the net legislative results of the session so far as important general legislation is concerned will be:

(1) Amendments to the interstate commerce law somewhat along the line suggested by the president.

(2) Conservation legislation putting into effect in a general way the recommendations contained in the president's message of Friday.

(3) A new form of government for the territory of Alaska.

(4) Possibly postal savings banks.

It is now settled that the president's recommendations for a national incorporation law will not take the form of legislation at this session. The president understands that such is the decision of the leaders in congress, and he has expressed his acquiescence in it. The tentative agreement is that this proposed legislation shall go over until the long session of 1911.

The leaders in congress understand the president will be content if he can get from congress at this session a fairly good set of amendments to the interstate commerce law and legislation under which something actually can be done toward conserving the natural resources of the country. He wants his entire legislative program as outlined in his regular message and in the two special messages of the last eight days completed before the expiration of his term.

It seems inevitable that both the proposed railroad legislation and the conservation legislation will provoke prolonged debate in the senate. Speaker Cannon will probably be able to put the administration bills through the house without much delay.

Senator Cummins, who represents the radicals of the party in power in the senate, has a railroad rate bill which he feels is an improvement over the administration bill. Senators La-Follette, Bristow and one or two other senators feel the same way about it. It seems inevitable that the points of difference between the Cummins and the administration bill will call out much debate. In the senate are men who are not in favor of conservation legislation such as the president proposes in his message.

Ocean mail, which the president recommended in his regular message, is hanging in the balance. The president has lost interest in this legislation. He still says that he will be glad to see congress pass a subsidy bill, but he refuses to put the influence of the administration behind the pending bill. The friends of the bill have not lost hope, but they have got to a point where they realize that there is a large possibility of their bill beinig defeated.

Postal savings banks, also approved by the president in his regular message, occupies very much the same position as ocean mail. The president is still interested in the enactment of a postal savings bank law, but the legislative body continues to display a lack of interest.

It is barely possible that New Mexico will be admitted to statehood before the session ends. The house proposes to pass the statehood bill at once, and the senate committee on territories has half consented to consider the bill after the legislation creating a new form of government for the territory of Alaska is out of the way.

Now that President Taft has put all his recommendations before the legislative body he proposes to sit back and let the congress take the responsibility. This does not mean that he will not say a good word for his legislative program to senators and representatives who call on him; but it does mean that he will not use a club; that he will not be sending in special messages every few days, and will not be sending for members of congress and threatening them with dire punishment unless they support his legislative program.

In the Business World

New York, Jan. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says that notwithstanding the seasonable lull in business, general conditions are fully normal, and the volume of trade is very large.

BLIZZARD IS WIDESPREAD

Traffic Hampered In Many Cities and Vessels Reported Ashore

Boston, Jan. 15.—Whipped by the second furious blizzard within twenty days, the whole upper Atlantic coast is buried in snow drifts, piled up before a gale that varied in intensity from thirty-eigth to seventy miles an hour.

At sea various casualties are reported. Two schooners went ashore, the Annie F. Conlon at Portsmouth, N. H., and the Frances Whelan in Boston harbor. Along the entire coast from Cape Hatteras northward, every lifesaving station had crews on the alert throughout the night, as it is feared other wrecks will result from the high winds and rough seas.

Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington felt the full effects of the blizzard. In every one of these cities transportation was more or less tied up, street traffic interfered with, telegraph and telephone communication hampered, and much suffering caused among the poor.

Three persons died from exposure in New York and one in Providence. Several were injured by falls in Boston.

BABBLED ABOUT BURIED TREASURES

Search Will Be Made For Supposed Hoard of Hermit

Melrose, Mass., Jan. 15.—George H. Ireson, the hermit of Melrose, was found dead in the little shanty in which he had lived for twenty-five years. He had not been seen for a week and how many days ago he died or how long he suffered in solitude in his rude tumbledown house no one is able to conjecture.

Ireson was 78 years old and died from old age and a complication of diseases. Whether Ireson was ever married has never been known even to the few people who have spoken to him.

Two years ago the hermit created much excitement by babbling about a box of buried treasures while he was in delirium. He said that it was buried beneath a tree in the woods here. Many people still believe that the hermit has gold hidden about the old hut, and that a search will reveal many hundreds of dollars.

INDICTMENT OF HEIKE

Secretary of Sugar Company Said to Be the "Man Higher Up"

New York, Jan. 15.—The federal grand jury has got the "man higher up" in the sugar trust. An indictment was handed down against Charles H. Heike, secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refininig company, and five others, as a result of the investigation into the sugar weighing frauds, for which five men were recently convicted and four sentenced to prison for a year.

The other five men are E. W. Gerbracht, former general superintendent of the Williamsburg plant; J. F. Bendernagel, former cashier; H. W. Walker, assistant superintendent of the docks; J. M. Volker and J. F. Halligan, both formerly checkers.

OLNEY UNDER THE KNIFE

Former Secretary of State Recovering From a Surgical Operation

Boston, Jan. 15.—Richard Olney, secretary of state in the late President Cleveland's cabinet, has been at death's door in the Corey Hill hospital in Brookline. Yesterday a change for the better came, and last night it was announced by Mrs. Olney that her husband would be able to leave the hospital within a week.

Mr. Olney was operated upon for an abdominal trouble on Tuesday. Just what the nature of the operation was his wife would not divulge. The fact that he was ill has been guarded with great secrecy.

To Probe Cuba's Sugar Trade

Washington, Jan. 15.—Richard Parr, deputy collector of customs at New York, is to proceed to Cuba, by order of the treasury department, to look into the methods of transportation of sugar exported to the United States.

BRIEFS

The funeral of Rev. A. A. Ellsworth was held Friday afternoon from his late residence on Russell Park. Services were conducted by Dr. William Gallagher of Braintree. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery.

The cutters at a mass meeting today voted to lay the proposition on the table and stand for the increased scale of wages which they drew up Tuesday.

A social dance under the auspices of the Algonquin Social Club was held last evening at Hibernian hall, South Quincy. There was a good atendance in spite of the inclement weather.

Children of the eigth grade of the Cranch and John Hancock schools enjoyed a sleigh ride Thursday afternoon. They had a jolly time and returned home about six o'clock.

As the manufacturers announced, they will open the shops in Barre, Montpelier, Northfield, Williamstown and Waterbury on Monday. The situation then will be a strike, instead of a lockout.

James Duncan first vice president of the A. F. of L. will be one of the speakers at the mass meeting at Faneuil hall, Boston this evening called to discuss the shirtwaist makers' strike in New York and to acquaint Boston people with the facts.

At the Wollaston Unitarian church tomorrow morning in place of the sermon by the minister, Prof. Frank T. Chisholm will give an address on "The work and the results of Tuskegee." Prof. Chisholm is a graduate and now a teacher of mathematics in the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute.

A Barre dispatch of Friday to the Herald says: Granite manufacturers drew up a prosposition which was presented to the cutters today offering to remedy the working conditions, particularly as regards the use of the pneumatic bushing hammer, according to the cutters' demands, work to be continued under the old scale of wages.

Mrs. H. L. Cate of Canton is the speaker for the Y. P. R. U., meeting in the chapel of First church tomorrow evening at seven. The subject promises to be one of great interest, being, "The dawn of Christianty as illustrated by the story of Ben Hur." There will be special music by J. Barraja-Fraenfelder, and the Young People's choir, also an informal reception at the close of the meeting. Everyone is cordially invited.

A surprise party was given last night to Carl Johnson at his home, 60 Centre street. He was presented with a handsome gold watch and a pair of overshoes. After games were played, Mrs. Johnson had the table set with refreshments. The committee were Ellen Johnson, Chester Moyle and Oskar Selandar. Those present were: Elvira Backman, Ester Asklund, Rebecca Nelson, Mildred Moyle, F. Gustafson, V. Spargo, E. Spargo, E. Johnson, A. Akerstrom, G. Akerstrom, C. Moyle, O. Selandar, R. Johnston, W. Johnston. R. Nelson, F. Allen, R. Blomquist and Walter Johnson.

BRIEFS

The annual meeting of the Corporators of the City Hospital is called for Monday evening, January 17, at eight o'clock at Colonial hall.

Dimock & Patten of Wollaston who have the contract to build the Tuberculosis camp expect to start on the work next week.

On account of the storm the concert to have been given at First Church chapel last evening by the Westland Ladies' quartet was postponed. Announcement of date will be made later by the Quincy Alliance under whose auspices the concert was to have been given.

Death has taken away four of the Granite Manufacturers of the cinty since the first of December, James A. White, Patrick Maguire, William P. Barker and James Thompson. All were among the older firms of the city.

About 125 attended the Men's supper at the Quincy Point church on Thursday evening in charge of E. R. Stone, W. E. Lee, Carl Sherburne, T. W. Lincoln, Jr., J. W. Hendrie, T. B. Pollard, H. E. Bonney and Dr. E. H. Bushnell. The newly elected pastor, Rev. C. P. Marshall of Westford was a guest. The menu included oysters, baked beans, ham., pies, cake and coffee.

GUN COTTON.

A Peculiar Characteristic of This Terrible Explosive.

Many and odd are the materials entering into the manufacture of modern explosives, but perhaps the most interesting of all these elements of destruction as well as the simplest is gun cotton. The gun cotton manufacturing industry is large, as enormous quantities are used in the charging of torpedoes and for similar purposes.

The base of gun cotton is pure raw cotton or even cotton waste, such as is used to clean machinery. This is steeped in a solution of one part of nitric and three parts of sulphuric acid. It is the former ingredient that renders the mass explosive, the sulphuric acid being used merely to absorb all moisture, thus permitting the nitric acid to combine more readily with the cellulose of the cotton.

After being soaked for several hours in the solution described the cotton is passed between rollers to expel all nonabsorbed acid, a process carried to completion by washing the cotton in clear water. This washing process is a long one, requiring machinery which reduces the cotton to a mass resembling paper pulp. Should any nonabsorbed acid be allowed to remain it would decompose the cotton.

If the explosive is to be used after the manner of powder it is still further pulverized and then thoroughly dried, but if intended for torpedoes it is pressed into cakes of various shapes and sizes—disk shaped, cylindrical, flat squares and cubes. When not compressed gun cotton is very light, as light as ordinary batting.

A peculiar characteristic of this terrible explosive is that a brick of it when wet may be placed on a bed of hot coals, and as the moisture dries out the cotton will flake and burn quietly. If dry originally, however, the gun cotton will explode with terrible force at about 320 degrees of heat.

In general it is the custom to explode gun cotton by detonation or an intense shock instead of by heat. In a torpedo the explosive charge is wet, this wet cotton being exploded by means of dry cotton in a tube, this having been fired by a cap of fulminate of mercury, the cap itself having been fired by the impact of the torpedo against the target.—Harper's Weekly.

Giraffe Born In Captivity

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 15.—A male giraffe, said to be the first ever born in captivity, was given birth at the circus winter quarters here.

Farm Boys as Chauffeurs.

The farmers' boys of Kansas have a new idea in education. They are learning to be chauffeurs. So many farmers have cars and they know so little of the mechanism that the sons are eager to learn. Several young men of the country have gone to some city and taken a course in motor driving. They each spend $100 or more on tuition and expenses. Then a motorcar school was started in Abilene, Kan. It has a class of eight young men taking cars to pieces and learning how they are managed. One of the pupils is a farmer worth $16,000 who does not own a car. "I just wanted to know how the machines are run," he explained, "so I put on overalls and started in."

THIRD VICTORY FOR HIGH

Down Milton High at Basket Ball 20 to 7

Quincy High again showed itself a winning team when yesterday afternoon it floored Milton with a score of 20-7. The local team is proving that it can show up the goods. A week ago Friday it won from the heavy Abington team, Tuesday from the fast Reading five, and now the Milton team, which, although light, had beaten six of the seven teams met.

The game was close at first. Neither side seemed able to gain advantage over the other. The referee was very strict and called many fouls, some so unnoticeable that several times the game was stopped for a few minutes to dispute them.

Finally Arthur made a pretty basket from the floor. Then a foul was made on Quincy and Carson got a goal. Manning succeeded in shooting one. A basket was made by Russ Bates on Milton's foul, and soon afterward he made still another. Quincy's left back, Harmon, gained a goal. Bates got one on a foul, and soon Billy Manning followed the latter in the same way. During this half Milton received eight fouls and Quincy five.

Things began to get more lively in the second half. Marceau went in at centre. Harmon started the ball rolling by repeating his trick of the first half. Manning threw a fine one into the basket. Then H. Stuart lifted one in on Quincy's foul. Captain Bates got busy and picked up a basket, and then a goal from a foul. Manning pulled a goal from a foul, and soon sent one from the floor to keep it company. Milton seemed to recover a little and H. Stuart shot a basket and Reed sent another. One more goal was gained by Stuart on a foul. This was the last neither team got another before the whistle blew.

Frank Harmon has improved much. He seems to have got his eye on the basket. Arthur showed he was of first team calibre. L. Cross seemed to catch onto Billy Manning's ways and hinder them a little. Reed played a good game.

The summary.:

QUINCY		MILTON

COCHATO BOWLING.

Teams two of the bottle pin tournament just closed consisting of John E. Arnold, George A. Arnold, William S. Perry, W. F. Dinsmore and C. D. Hopkins, was a winner. The highest average of scores in the tournament was made by Clarence W. Dow, 167 6-16; highest single string 235, W. I. Arnold; best three string total 576, Clarence W. Dow. Other prize winners were W. F. Rogers, George E. Sampson and Dr. Johnson.

A list has been posted for a ladies' candle pin tuornament to begin Feb. 7. Lists will close Monday, Jan. 13.

There will be a new candle pin tournament for the gentlemen in about a week.

CLASS OF 1910 WON.

The first game of basket ball at the Woodward Institute in the series for the cup offered by the Class of 1906 was played Friday afternoon, between the classes of 1910 and 1911. Tht game resulted in a decisive victory for the Class of 1910, the score being 26 for 1910 and 12 for 1911.

The game was played in the gym at the school, and admirers of each class were present in large numbers to cheer for their favorite. The line-up of the two classes were as follows:

Class of 1910—Bean, Edwards, Samuelson, Halloran, Baker, Keating.
Class of 1911—Ekstrand, Torrey, Curtin, Hardwick, McConnell, Mullen.

SPORTING NOTES.

Two basket ball games tonight at Y. M. C. A.—Quincys vs. Brocktons; Fore River Apprentices vs. Bryant A. C.

At Reading on Thursday night the Quincy Y. M. C. A. was defeated by the Reading Y. M. C. A. 27 to 15.

At Pinehurst, N. C., yesterday George Wright of the Wollaston Golf club was defeated in a 20-hole contest by R. M. Purves of the Woodland.

CITY OF QUINCY.

IN COUNCIL,
Jan. 10, 1910.

ORDERED: That public convenience and necessity require that the City of Quincy, take under the provisions of law authorizing the taking in fee of land by cities for the purpose of erecting a schoolhouse thereon, the parcel of land hereinafter described, and located in that part of the said city, known as Montclair, for the purpose of erecting a schoolhouse thereon. Said parcel of land is owned by and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake on the southeasterly line of West Squantum street at its intersection with the easterly line of Highland avenue, so called, the northwesterly line of said lot runs in a northeasterly direction on West Squantum street a distance of about 220 feet to a stake ,thence turning and running in a southerly direction parallel with Highland avenue, so called, a distance of about 313 feet to a stake in the northerly line of Broadway, so called, thence turning and running in a westerly direction along the northerly line of Broadway, so called, a distance of about 200.5 feet to a stake in the easterly line of Highland avenue so called, then turning at 90 degrees and running in a northerly direction along the easterly line of Highland avenue, so called a distance of about 225.4 feet to the point of beginning, all as more particularly shown on a plan made by Ezekiel C. Sargent, City Engineer, dated November 1909, and accompanying this order.

Said parcel of land is owned or supposed to be owned by the following named persons:—John L. Norrie, or Norris, heirs of Horatio N. Holbrook and Henrietta Holbrook.

And it is further ordered that a public hearing be given by the City Council to all parties interested on MONDAY evening, Feb. 21, 1910 at 7.45 o'clock in the Council Chamber, City Hall, and that due notice of the intention of the city to take said parcel of land for such a purpose, and of said hearing, be given to all parties, interested by publishing a copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger, Quincy Advertiser and Quincy Telegram, at least 21 days before the date of hearing, and that an attested copy of this order be served upon the owner or owners of said parcel of land, by a constable authorized to serve civil process by delivering an attested copy thereof in hand to said owner or owners or by leaving an attested copy thereof at the last and usual place of abode of said owner or owners.

Adopted Jan. 10, 1910.
Attest:—GEORGE T. MAGEE,
Clerk of Council.

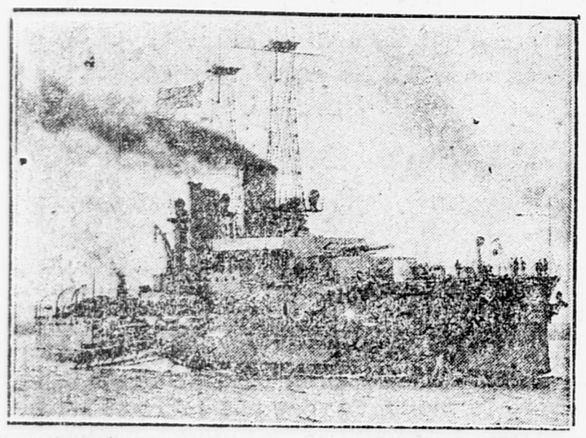
THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

PUBLISHED IN THE CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Vol. 24 No. 14 QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 17, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

TO BUILD BATTLESHIPS FOR ARGENTINE REPUBLIC

Tender of Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy the Lowest



NORTH DAKOTA, UNCLE SAM'S SPEEDIEST DREADNOUGHT.

Although the North Dakota was launched only Nov. 10, 1908, she is now ready for business. She is modeled closely upon the British Dreadnought, although she is an improvement over that famous fighter. She has armor around her smokestacks and uptakes, which the Dreadnought has not. She is also provided with the new "spider" masts, from which the gun fire of the ship will be directed. A peculiarity of the North Dakota is that all ten of her big twelve inch guns can be trained on the enemy at the same time. Her speed is 22.25 knots. Her normal displacement is 20,000 tons.

The Boston Herald prints the following cable from Buenos Ayres via Galveston, under date of January 16—The Argentine naval commission, after receiving full information from London, has classified in the following order the tenders of the six forms competing for the construction of battleships.

Fore Rive of Quincy, U. S. A.
Armstrong, England.
Forges St. Chantiers, France.
Vickers, England.
Bloom & Voss, Germany.
Ansaldo, Italy.

The two battleships called for in the Argentine contract are much larger than the dreadnaught North Dakota built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, and there will be activity at the local shipyard for several years. The success of the Fore River Company in building the North Dakota counted largely in its favor.

For several months the Argentine Republic has been dickering with the Fore River Company, for the plans have been changed several times, but each time the Fore River was equal to the occasion. President Bowles has been absent from the city several months on this contract; part of the time in England, and part of the time in South America. All the time, however, the company has been in touch with him by cable and have supplied promptly all figures desired. Whether the Quincy yard will build one or two battleships is not known. Congratulations to Admiral Bowles, the company and the city.

This contract means a new navy for the Argentine Republic as the World Almanac reports that the country has only three small battleships: the Independencia of 2336 tons displacement, completed in 1893; the Libertad, also of 2336 tons, completed in 1892; and the Almirante Brown of 4267 tons reconstructed in 1897. The Argentine Republic has an area of 1,135 840 square miles, about one-third of the United States, but a population of only 7,000,000.

BOARD OF TRADE SPECIAL.

Aspecial meeting of the Quincy Board of Trade was held Saturday evening to take action on the death of ex-Mayor James Thompson, a long time member of the association. President Eugene R. Stone presided and eulogistic remarks were made by several of the members. Resolutions on the death of Mr. Thompson were adopted, and the following committee was appointed to represent the board at the funeral: Eugene R. Stone, W. P. Thompson, Walter E. Piper, Charles A. Ericson, W. H. Teasdale, J. W. Pratt, T. L. Williams, E. J. Sandberg, and Charles H. Johnson.

SUDDEN DEATH.

The many friends of Mrs. H. J. Hunter of Bunker Hill avenue will be sorry to learn that she passed away at the City Hospital Sunday afternoon. Her death was caused from appendicitis. Mrs. Hunter is 18 years of age and had been married but three months. Her maiden name was Josephine Rizzy. She was one of the leaders of society at West Quincy. Mr. Hunter is also well known in this city, being a member of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and the Bryant A. C. Tonightthe Bryant A. C. will adjourn from their rooms to the home of the late Mrs. Hunter who will be buried Tuesday morning.

TO WAIVE CAUCUSES

Ward Two Will Have Three Candidates for Council

It has been agreed between Chairman Chase of the Republican City Committee and Chairman McGilvary of the Democratic City Committee, that neither party will ask for a caucus for the special election to be held in Ward Two on March 1. If a caucus is to be held the order calling it must be adopted by the City Council tonight. A caucus means an expense to the city of several hundred dollars, and it is in the interest of economy that both parties have agreed to waive a caucus. This means that candidates must file nomination papers in the regular way although no candidate can file a paper as a Republican or Democratic candidate. The designation must be either as a Republican Independent or Democratic Independent or some other term.

There will be at least three candidates for the office. D. J. Seward McCurdy, who ran on citizens papers at the election has stated that he is to enter the contest. Messrs Studley and Histen, the two gentlemen who were tied at the municipal election will also be candidates.

TAX LEVY AND COLLECTION

How the Latter Compares With the Former

No article in the Daily Ledger for several weeks caused such widespread interest and comment as the statistics of Friday concerning the taxes and temporary loans of the city. It set forth so clearly how the evil has grown that all citizens could understand who were ignorant of the situation before.

One more summary is now necessary to make the study complete, and that is a comparison of the levy each year with the total tax collections during that year. With one exception when they were $33,000 in excess the the total collections each year have been much smaller than the levies. This has been particularly true during the last three years, when the collections were $61,362.59, $82,985.07 and $72,710.91 under the levies. The collection in a given year does not necessarily mean from the levy of that year; thus the collection of 1909 includes only $371,099.54 of the levy of 1909, the balance being back years.

The total of the levies for eleven years has been $5,295,373.25, and the total collections $4,970 743.97, a difference of $324,629.29.

The summary by years follows:

Year.	Tax Levy	Total Collection
1899	$395,000.00	$359,096.82
1900	385,297.85	355,676.50
1901	392,865.91	386,853.08
1902	404,230.50	374,465.05
1903	419,024.38	405,017.00
1904	452,863.70	485,615.72
1905	491,218.52	480,498.40
1906	520,909.62	507,617.20
1907	557,811.42	496,448.83
1908	609,666.52	526,681.45
1909	665,484.83	592,773.92
	$5,295,373.25	$4,970,743.97

—With 4,000 pairs of shoes daily to make from now until June the Rice & Hutchins shoe factory is showing some of the other manufacturers how to hustle to get out the orders. The big factory is now one veritable hive of industry an dit looks good to see everything running full tilt. Seems like the good old times once more to see eve ybody working. With the other factories in town busy also, Rockland has very little to complain of in the way of business.—Rockland Standard.

TWO GIRLS THROUGH ICE

Were Skating Sunday on Town River

Two young ladies, Alice Mahoney, aged 17 years, a daughter of John A. Mahoney, and Miss Lulu Moody, aged 16, a daughter of Henry H. Moody, came near losing their lives Sunday afternoon while skating on Town river near Johnson's lumber wharf. There was quite a crowd skating on the river andthere were a number of holes in the ice caused by the receding tide, and the two girls skated into one of these holes.

Both are good swimmers and they retained their presence of mind and began to tread water at the same time trying to drag themselves back onto the ice. As soon as their predicament was seen, Joseph Levangie Fred Schofield and John Rogers rushed to their assistance. With some difficulty Levangie managed to get a position on the ice where he could hold himself firm and drag the Mahoney girl onto the solid ice. In the meantime the other two men gave their attention to the Moody Girl, whom they got out of the water without much difficulty. Miss Mahoney was pretty well exhausted before she was gotten out. Both however were able to go to their homes unassisted.

INTEREST A BIG ITEM

How It Has Grown for Temporary Loans

In 1888, the last year of the town government, the total paid by the Town Treasurer on account of interest was but $3,157.72. Temporary loans in anticipation of taxes were then but a small part of the tax levy. In 1909 the City Treasurer paid for interest on temporary loans alone $14,412.99 and a grand total for interest during the year of $84 318.65

In 1893 the total interest account was $15,213.33.

Since 1896 the city has paid for interest on temporary loans alone, the following sums, which do not include interest on Muncipal debt, Water debt, Sewer debt Park debts or any other debts:

1896	$7,426.62
1897	5,110.26
1898	5,061.46
1899	6,056.04
1900	5,490.78
1901	6,494.16
1902	7,891.89
1903	9,543.69
1904	8,601.99
1905	10,301.49
1906	11,906.38
1907	16,402.37
1908	14,720.40
1909	14,412.90

The financial policy of the city has been such that hereafter it must pay $15,000 or more annually for interest on temporary loans in anticipation of taxes, if it is to borrow $500,000 or more each year.

CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight, and the indications are that it will be fully as lively as the meeting of a week ago. The discussion will probably come on passing the temporary loan order. There are two of these orders before the Council, one calling for $500,000 the other for $325,000. It will take 16 votes to pass either order. Outside of this there is not much to come before the meeting, as no committees have met this week. More or less new business will doubtless be received.

JUNK SHOP LICENSES

Louis Grossman Summoned In Court

The question of junk shops, which has at various times been a subject of much discussion in the City Council, is to be tried out in court. This morning Louis Grossman was summoned into court by Chief of Police Burrell for keeping and maintaining a junk shop without a license from May 1, to Dec. 31 1909.

Mr. Grossman is sick and did not appear to answer to the complaint. He, however, was represented by Philip Sullivan, Ssq., who before entering a plea to the complaint filed a motion to quash. In his motion he alleges that under the complaint as drawn no offense is set forth; that no offense against the law has been set forth; that the ordinance is against public policy and that the ordinance is unconstitutional and void.

As Mr. Grossman was not present, the court did not rule on the motion, but it was intimated that a new complaint would be drawn. The case was then continued until Saturday.

BREAK AT BARRE.

The Barre Daily Times of Saturday said:

Following the action of Barre branch in laying on the table the latest proposition from the Barre Manufacturers' association, Montpelier and Northfield branches took similar action last evening. Tool Sharpeners' branch and Polishers' branch of this city also held meetings last evening, the former voting to lay the proposition on the table, and the latter declining to accept it.

It is anounced this afternoon that the Leland Granite company has withdrawn from the Manufacturers' association and signed the bill as drawn up at the meeting of the union in the opera house on Tuesday afternoon, and will resume work at its plant on Monday morning. This firm employed 72 men at the time the lockout began. This is the first break there has been in the ranks of the manufacturers in Barre, though G. R. Bianchi of Montpelier broke away some weeks ago.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

In the discussion of the absorption of the street railway lines outside of Boston by the Elevated railway company at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association, the impression seemed to be that of the Old Colony road was absorbed by the Elevated it would mean a five cent fare to Boston. The fare however under the consolidation would probably be the same as now, 10 cents. It is not generally known, perhaps, that the charter of the Boston Elevated stipulates that not more than five cents shall be charged on any of the lines it operates, and it is this clause that has prevented the Boston Elevated from taking over the Old Colony. The new bill for the merger in the Legislature this year stipulates that this clause shall not be operative, and if passed means that while Quincy may perhaps get better service there will be no difference in the fare to Boston than at present.

The members of the City Council who are enquiring relative to temporary loans should be accredited with honesty of purpose and a desire to accomplish what is best for their constituents and the city. Not one, probably has any desire to injure the credit of the city or embarrass the Mayor or City Treasurer. Other municipalities with as large a tax levy do not find it necessary to borrow annually such a large sum in anticipation of taxes, and few cities allow taxes to remain unpaid as many years as Quincy. In some cities tax levies are cleared up in one or two years, and it would be much more satisfactory all round, and greatly to the benefit of teh city financially, if taxes could be collected quicker. Now the city deceives itself for these unpaid taxes are considered good assets. In Milton the tax levy is about as large as in Quincy, but the town finds it necessary to borrow but a very small sum in antitipation of taxes and therefore pays but little for interest.

The situation in Quincy is particularly serious because the loans in anticipation of taxes are in excess of the amount now due the city in unpaid taxes, and there are no funds to meet the maturing loans. Then the order is now a mis-nomer. It is ostensibly to borrow $500,000 in anticipation of taxes of 1910, but $425,000 will be needed within two months to meet maturing temporary loans of other years, leaving at best only $75,000 to be borrowed in anticipation of taxes of 1910. More than $75,000 is required each month for current expenses of the city. Tax payments and water receipts will not be sufficient with the $75,000 to meet the demands, until Nov. 1. What is the remedy?

Another financial order which should not be rushed through the new City Council without a knowledge of the needs, is the $30,000 water loan ostensively for water extensions. Do the Councilmen know that this sum is necessary for water extensions? Where is it to be expended? Did the city in 1909 make as many extension and introduce as many water meters as it should for $42 000? Is it the practice to expend this large sum each year for extensions, or is it used largely for current expenses of the Water department? The City Council should have the detailed items of expenditure under the 1909 loan before a loan is made for 1910.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A New Hampshire paper says that it is estimated over 6,000 people came to Manchester to attend the state grange there and that they left with the merchants of Manchester over $100,000. This shows the value of a large convention to the business men of any place. The first requisite for a village or city to attract conventions is good ample hotel accommodations.—St. Johnsbury Caledonian.

OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

IS TIME FOR ACTION

Councilman Richards Replies to Mr. Marshall

Editor of Daily Ledger:

In your issue of Jan. 12, my attention was called to a letter by John R. Marshall, and it pleased me to know our citizens were at last awakening to the needs of our city, and it will be no harm to consider the suggestions in order.

The matter of taxes is a very serious question before our city today. We who do any thinking, and have no interest except to pay our taxes and expect proper service, are chafing under the conditions. My first year in the City Council was in 1909, and I had been there but a short time when, from what I could not learn there, and from observation on the outside from a practical outlook, the necessity of more light was aparent to me, and my order early in the session of 1909 for a committee to consider the advisability of revising the City Charter, was placed before the Council, and after a long fight secured the passage, but the makeup of the committee did not suit.

I called then for the committee to be increased to seven members, and the chairman of the committee to have the privilege of appointing the four extra members. This was turned down. It was evident to me then that it would be useless to go further at that time. It must be apparent now that had an efficient committee been appointed at that time ,to dig down below into the condtiions as they appear now to exist, it would probably have saved the taxpayers a few dollars at least.

The ideas expressed in relation to what is needed to encourage new industries into our city are absolutely correct. We are today, in our city, getting the minimum of results, at the maximum of cost, both in our civic affairs and public utilities. When the gas p oblem was up in the Council last year, my contention was along the same line, and I had the Gas Company blocked in the committee, and was gloriously defeated by the gas interests in the City Council.

My question to Mr. Richards, president of the Consolidated Gas Co., was very simple. We would suppose that he lived on the Quincy side of the Quincy-Milton line. His neighbor was on the Milton side of the imaginary line. He, living in Quincy, paid $1.50 for his gas. His neighbor, on the Milton side, paid 80 cents. Both tapping the same pipes, and this in the face of the fact that his representative had admitted that Quincy was the best proposition of the two, when in the committee room. The answer was, that it did look hard looking at it in that way.

And so we could go all along the line. I think that it is indeed high time that the citizens of Quincy wake out of their long nap and demand a commission of absolutely disinterested citizens to look into the financial and business situation in the city, with a view to improvements in the interests of the people who pay the bills, for when we get the head of the house going right, the neck and body must follow.

There is not one of the subjects mentioned in the schedule but has received thoughtful attention, and I would invite Mr. Marshall and all citizens interested in the welfare of our city to come up and join the Board of Trade and help the good work along with counsel and action, for I am satisfied, after the drawing out of the financial condition in our city last Monday evening, that the welfare of the city absolutely demands energetic action on the part of every well wishing citizen of our city. For with $425,000 due on temporary debt for 1909, and only $287,000 due on taxes for 1909, providing we can consider every dollar of these taxes a good asset (which from the showing by the experience of past years it seems we are hardly justified in doing) is a showing that business men must realize is hardly such as would appeal to business men who wished to locate here. Especially when, with this financial condition, there is also a high valuation placed on all business property, and the assessment certainly high enough to satisfy the most ardent advocate of high assessments, especially among the average non-influential taxpayers. It is a time for action.

The water question should also receive attention. Each department should be charged with water used, and the public fountains should also be metered, for the taxpayer today is paying for an anormous waste of water. It should be located and remedied.

John R. Richards.

ANNEXATION THE CURE

Metropolitan City Advocated by Mr. Packard

Editor of Daily Ledger:

Regarding the recent mayoralty election in Boston it means very much to us. If there is a recount, and Storrow is declared elected it will simply postpone the inevitable. If Fitzgerald it will hasten.

No sane man believes the city is going to the dogs in any event. Business is transacted as usual, but on account of the lavish expenditure of money most of which is illegitimately used for retaining the services of men who lead the candidates or their managers to believe that they possess the power of controlling more or less votes.

Each candidate required a manager, who in all probability received for their services a large amount of money, the most of which might as well still be in their possession, as there seemed to be plenty more available. They were consequently besieged all through the campaign by men in eve y ward for money to help along the cause. Every cent given those fellows is money thrown away, as they can never deliver the goods every voter knows that.

I don't believe any man ever sold his vote. He might take a ride, a drink or cigar, but when he gets into the booth it is all off.

Two of the candidates easily got 5,000 signatures to run, but very few votes.

Some think that if women could vote it would purify the ballot. I do not think so, although I am not opposed to woman suffrage.

What is true of Boston also applies to smaller cities.

For the last ten years at sundry times and divers places I have advocated the annexation of Quincy to Boston, giving my reasons among others that salarys of teachers, firemen police and laborers would be higher, that the granite edgestone for the city would be bought here, that we would have better streets , cheaper light and lower tax rate. The principal argument against was that we would lose our identity. Roxbury, Charlestown, Dorchester, Jamaica Plain and Brighton, are still in existence, and with the system of borough or district license we would still be protected on the liquor question. By the rapid increase in population in the suburbs we have pretty near lost sight of our historical old families.

I have come to the conclusion that inasmuch as about 1,000,000 people, who live in the various towns and cities adjacent to Boston, have vastly more interests in that city than the smaller numbers who reside there, that before another election we will find the Metropolitan city extending from Salem to Cohasset and west to include Newton, and governed by a commission appointed by the State. Even then the land area would be less than Philadelphia or New York.

Possibly we may have a normal mayor but his only duties will be to look nice, and once in a while go over to the shipyard, attend a reception at Harvard or somewhere, or be ready to receive some visiting official.

Elisha Packard.

Microbes In Apples a New Scare.

Another terror for mothers has been discovered by Professor Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute in Paris. Hitherto the humble apple has been considered one of the most healthful of fruits, and lettuce and other green salads were supposed to be especially good for children. Now comes the professor with his terrible warning that he has found a microbe making its home in apples which is so deadly that every year it kills 10,000 children in France. The microbe is said to be that of gastro-enteritis, and, besides fastening on apples, it attaches itself to the surface of the fresh greens most frequently used for salad. The professor offers a ray of hope, however. He says his microbe has a mortal antipathy to soap, and apple eaters still may indulge with safety if they first wash the fruit thoroughly in warm soapy water.

His Landscapes.

UNDER HEAVY HANDICAP

Golden Eagle and Coyote Have a Hot Battle to a Finish

Spokane, Jan. 17.—Edward Morrison set his traps close together near Fairfield and caught a golden eagle in one and a coyote in the other, and both captives at once began to fight.

The eagle was heavily handicapped by the trap, which held its left claw, but stood its ground well by using the right spur and beak. It died shortly after being released from the trap. The coyote was the largest ever seen in eastern Washington. The scratching on the frozen ground and the wounds on its hind legs indicate that the animal attempted to get away from its foe, but the trap held it firm.

Morrison, who witnessed the last part of the fight, says it was a lively skirmish, the battle continuing a half hour after he reached the scene, when he dispatched the coyote with a stick of cordwood.

WAR ON TUBERCULOSIS

Schoolteachers Are to Lend a Hand by Wearing Short Dresses

Pittsburg, Jan. 17.—At a meeting of persons interested in the stamping out of tuberculosis, Miss Charlotte Miller, representative of the Anti-Tuberculosis league, made the first move in that direction when she declared that all school teachers should be forced to wear dresses not coming below their shoe tops.

Miss Miller suggested, and later the suggestion took resolution form, that the superintendent of schools in every large city of the country be requested to order the teachers to wear "shoe top" dresses. If this is not adequate, the board of aldermen of each city will be requested to pass an ordinance making such apparel mandatory.

CANNON'S RULE NEAR THE END

Is Serving His Last Term in the Speaker's Chair

Washington, Jan. 17.—It is now accepted, both by the Republican regulars and insurgents, that Speaker Cannon is down and out. Offered up by President Taft as a sacrifice in the cause of party harmony, it is taken for granted that "Uncle Joe" is serving his last term in the speakership.

Already candidates for the succession are announcing themselves. Representative Gerrit J. Diekema of Michigan has hurled his castor into the ring. He has been one of Cannon's most loyal lieutenants.

Diekema is serving his second term in congress. He was for years a member of the Michigan legislature and for a time was speaker of the lower house. He is chairman of the Republican state committee and has managed four Michigan state campaigns in succession. In the present congress he is a member of the judiciary committee and of the committee on election of president, vice president and representatives in congress. He has been called by Cannon to preside over the house temporarily three times.

"I believe that the next speaker will come from the middle west," said Diekema, "and I know of no reason why I should not be a candidate."

Mr. Diekema does not believe that Cannon will again be a candidate for the speakership.

A poll of the Michigan delegation on Cannonism hastened Diekema"s announcement. It became evident that insurgent ideas had gained a foothold in Michigan, and representatives classed as Cannon men may have trouble being re-elected.

Representative Gardner of Massachusetts, son-in-law of Senator Lodge, is said to have speakership aspirations. He is an insurgent. Other "rebels" who are known to have the inclinations that way are Norris of Nebraska and Murdock of Kansas.

Prospective "regular" candidates for the speakership, talked of openly by their delegation, are Dalzell and Olmstead, Pennsylvania; Currier, New Hampshire; Mann, Chicago; Walter I. Smith, Iowa; Fassett and Parsons, New York; former Speaker Keifer, Ohio, and Tawney, Minnesota.

Champ Clark and the Democrats hope to capture the next house. There is a rumor that Clark will be urged to make the presidential race. If he enters the fight he will not be elected speaker and Underwood of Alabama will get the Clark following for the speakership.

Representative Dawson of Iowa announces that he will not be a candidate for re-election by the Republicans of his district. Dawson was secretary of the late Senator Allison and has served six years in the house.

Dawson says he can make more money in private life. But Dawson has been regular and a supporter of Cannon. The insurgents under Senators Cummins and Dolliver have set Iowa aflame with insurrection, and Dawson's seat was threatened. He had a bifter fight on hand to secure a nomination.

It is reported that other "stand patters" are considering the adoption of the Dawson course, especially those who come from the middle west. Everyone of them has a fight for renomination on his hands. It is predicted in Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa that not a single representative save those of insurgent inclinations will be returned to congress.

Tawney of Minnesota, chairman of the house committee on appropriations and Cannon leader, has a bitter fight on his hands, the outcome of which his colleagues cannot forecast. Tawney has gone back on the congressional campaign committee which has charge of distributing the campaign funds, and this may help some. The insurgents in Minnesota expect no assistance from the congressional commmittee.

The authoritative statement of the president's attitude toward the insurgents has served to define the exact position of the president in respect to Cannon as nothing else could.

The speaker is no longer a political sacred cow to be bowed to and reverenced. It is lawful to take a whack at him and still retain one's Republicanism. Moreover, the elucidation of the president's position shows that the president believes the speaker should retire.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Over 100 Religious Services In the City

BETHANY CHURCH.

"Measure for measure" was the subject of the pastor Sunday morning. At 7.30 P. M. another of those enjoyable monthly musical services was given, the soloists being Mrs. Emma S. Moore and Miss E. V. Steeves.

The annual meeting of the church corporation will be held Wednesday evening at 7.45, to be preceded at 6 o'clock with supper, when plates will be laid for 200. The reports of the officers and committees of this church are always interesting, showing achievement and progress.

AT ST. MARYS.

Masses at St. Marys church were held at 6.45, 8, 9.15 and 10.30. Sunday school at 2 o'clock. Masses were said by Rev. Fr. Grady and Rev. Fr. Duffy.

The Holy Name Society received Holy Communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass which was said by Rev. Fr. Grady.

At the 9.15 mass Fr. Duffy gave a short sermon on the Holy Name of the Lord. He said: "Today we celebrate the feast of the Holy Name and it brings us back to the time when the good Lord went among the people performing mi acles and how he went into the temple and preached to the wise men, who wondered who this youth was that could answer questions perfectly and would ask some that were impossible for them to answer. Then he went among the good and poor people, making the blind to see, the lame to walk and gave the hungry food. And in return what does He ask us? Just to serve Him well so that He may give us the benefit of Heaven, the home of His Father."

Tuesday night, at 8 o'clock, there will be a meeting of the Ladies Sodality followed by a meeting of the committee who are to take charge of the Coffee party and reunion which will be held in February in St. Mary's hall.

AT ST. JOHNS.

Over one hundred new members were consecrated in the Holy Name society of St. John's church Sunday evening. The consecration service was preceded by a solemn high vespers which was celebrated by Rev. John J. Coan with Rev. Benjamin Teeling of St. Philip's church, Boston, as deacon; Rev. John J. Casey, as subdeacon, and Rev. Patrick J. Scannell as master of ceremonies. Rev. Fr. Teeling preached the consecration sermon his text being "You are the salt of the earth."

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

This church, in association with the National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches, accepts "The religion of Jesus, holding, in accordance with his teaching that practical religion is summed up in love to God and man."

Last November it was the Bethany Baptist church of Denver, Col., which voted to leave the Baptist denomination and join the Unitarian Fellowship, this month it is Plymouth church (Trinitarian Congregational) of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., which at a recent meeting voted unanimously to affiliate hereafter with the Unitarian Association of the United States and Canada. The Unitarian church has always stood for pure christianity, accepting the religion of Jesus and not the doctrines of men.

Prof. Frank P. Chisholm a graduate and now a teacher of mathematics in the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute occupied the pulpit on Sunday morning and gave an interesting account of "The work and the results of Tuskegee."

Sunday evening Rev. Carl G. Horst spoke upon "Commonplace lives and their mission in the world" to the members of the George Herbert Hosmer society connected with the Church of the Unity in Neponset.

The warrant for the annual business meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian church was read by the clerk, Mr. Nathan Robinson, Sunday morning. The meeting will be held Monday, Jan. 24, at 6.30 P. M., when supper will be served. Reports from the officers of the church and the allied societies will be read and the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

The mid-week service, Wednesday, Jan. 19, in King's chapel, (Boston), will be conducted by the Rev. Albert Lazenby of Lynn.

At the Y. P. R. U. meeting next Sunday evening Miss Dorothy Fay will conduct the devotional service and Fred M. Rollins will speak upon "Church days and feasts."

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOMS.

At St. Chrysostoms church Sunday morning Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, rector of Christ church spoke on "Our missions in the Philippine islands." He told of his own personal experiences while there under Bishop Brent and of the great need to improve the existing conditions.

At the evening service, the recto , Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg gave the sixth address in the course of addresses on The life of Christ, subject, "The object and claims of Christ."

WOLLASTON M. E.

Sunday was a red letter day at the Wollaston Methodist church. Large audiences were present at all of the services. It was the climax to all the special meetings which have been held for the past two weeks. The gospel team of Boston University had charge of al lthe services for the day. Rev. Mr. Andrews preached an earnest sermon in the forenoon.

At the close of Sunday school lesson each one of the five of the gospel team told what Jesus meant to them and what the Sunday school had done for them.

At the Junior League service each of the teams spoke on the subject, "The big brothe:." At the close of their remarks Miss Rena M. Chamberlain, the superintendent spoke a few moments and then invited all over twelve years of age who would like to live for Christ to stand. More than a dozen signified their desire to obey Jesus.

At the Epworth League service Rev. Mr. Howermail spoke.

At 7 o'clock Rev. T. C. Owen, the leader of the gospel team and Mr. Blake, the pianist and soloist, were present. Mr. Owen took charge and preached. Mr. Blake sang several solos. Mr. Owen led. An enthusiastic praise service. At the close of the sermon more than a score of people came forward and surrendered to Christ—and many rededicated themselves to Christ for service.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING.

The Brotherhood of the Swedish M. E. church of Fort Street extended an invitation to Fowler Chapter of the Hall Place M. E. church West Quincy to attend their monthly meeting in the church tonight which they accepted. It is hoped that both organizations will be well represented at this meeting. A program has been arranged by the home Brotherhood for the evening. Rev. C. H. Raupach will address the two Brotherhoods. A good social evening is anticipated.

UNDER THE OCEAN.

Things That Happen at the Bottom of the Sea.

Naturalists dispute as to the quantity of light at the bottom of the sea. Animals from below 700 fathoms either have no eyes or faint indications of them, or else their eyes are very large and protruding.

Another strange thing is that if the creatures in the lower depths have any color it is orange or red or reddish orange. Sea anemones, corals, shrimps and crabs have this brilliant color Sometimes it is pure red or scarlet, and in many specimens it inclines toward purple. Not a green or blue fish is found.

The orange red is the fish's protection, for the bluish green light in the bottom of the ocean makes the orange or the red fish appear of a neutral tint and hides it from its enemies. Many animals are black, others neutral in color. Some fish are provided with boring tails, so that they can burrow in the mud.

The surface of the submarine mountain is covered with shells, like an ordinary seabeach, showing that it is the feasting place of vast shoals of carnivorous animals.

A codfish takes a whole oyster into its mouth, cracks the shell, digests the meat and ejects the shell. Crabs crack the shells and suck out the meat. This accounts for whole mounds of shells that are often found.

Not a fishbone is ever found that is not honeycombed by the boring shellfish and falls to pieces at the touch of the hand. This shows what destruction is constantly going on in these depths.

If a ship sinks at sea with all on board it will be eaten by fish, with the exception of the metal, and that will corrode and disappear. Not a bone of a human body will remain after a few days.—Philadelphia North American.

THE WORK AT TUSKEGEE

Prof. Chisholm Speaks at Wollaston Church

In an address upon "the work and results of Tuskegee" at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday morning Prof. Frank P. Chisholm gave a most vivid description of the conditions of the Negro in the South. As a graduate and teacher at Tuskegee, the leading exponent of Negro education in the South, Mr. Chisholm was well equipped to deal with the problems of his race. Telling how this school started in 1881 in a shanty with an attendance of 30 children with Booker T. Washington as the only teacher, he described the growth until the present day when it comprises 2300 acres, 96 buildings, 38 industries, 1600 students and 166 earnest, practical Christian Negro teachers.

"From what was formerly a Southern wilderness," said Mr. Chisholm, "has sprung up a well organized industrial school which in an inspiring example of Negro achievements. It shows how to dignify and glorify common labor, and each year sends out leaders to the benighted districts to uplift the inert and shiftless mass of Negro people. Records have recently been searched and nowhere can be found Tuskegee graduates who are idle or shiftless. With one exception since its organization no Tuskekee graduate has been convicted of any crime."

The South land is at present under a radical revolution and there is a great demand for skilled labor. It is in adapting its students to this demand that Tuskegee is solving the problem of the Negro. Just as soon as a school is built there are eager Negro children waiting to fill it. They are not asking charity, but simply a man's chance. Give him a chance and he will solve his problem. Ignorance never solved any problem much less the race problem.

Mr. Chisholm also addressed the Sunday school telling many amusing anecdotes of the South.

ODD FOUNTAIN FOR SCHOOLS

St. Louis Man Wants Children to Drink Like Birds.

Children in public schools of St. Louis are to imitate the attitude of little birds staring upward with mouths gaping for food if Superintendent Ben Blewett gets his newfangled drinking fountains installed.

Blewett says the children will hold their mouths wide open under faucets while streams of water trickle down their throats. The faucets will be too high for the drinkers to touch them with their lips. The flow of water will be so slow that there will be little danger of their choking as they drink or the water overflowing their mouths.

Fate of a Lincoln Car.

On the forty-sixth anniversary of the world famous Gettysburg address of Abraham Lincoln the car which conveyed the martyred president to and from Gettysburg was found five miles from town being used as sleeping quarters by a railroad repair gang. The car for many years was used between Hanover and Hanover Junction, where it was affectionately designated as "Old 74," that being its number. Recently it was found to be getting out of repair and was assigned to a repair gang. By a singular coincidence that particular gang was assigned to the Gettysburg division of the road, and the car was found at Seven Stars by persons who knew its history. There is talk of trying to have the car sent to Gettysburg and convert it into a historical museum.

Rogues' Gallery For Mashers.

Police in Detroit, Mich., have instituted a drastic method of suppressing "mashers" by making a separate "rogues' gallery" of them. They have been spurred to this action by recent assaults on women, one of which resulted in a murder.

Officers not in uniform are sent out to keep watch of men and youths who bow to women they don't know. When they are detected they are taken to a station and put through the same ordeal a criminal has to undergo. Hereafter when a woman or girl is annoyed and the masher gets away, if sh will go to police headquarters she ca look over this gallery, identify her man and the police will look him up and bring him in.

Husband Taming Club.

Young women of Grangeville, Ida., married during 1909 have formed the "1909 club." The brides refuse to tell the motive of the club, but it has leaked out. The object is for the exchanging of ideas as to the proper governing of a husband, the best things to make him eat and how generally to please him. At each meeting some one member of the brides' club delivers a dissertation on some specific branch of husband taming. Then all discuss what has been said and offer suggestions.

MANY SKIPPED TEST

Naval Officers Will Be Sorry That They Did Not Fulfill Requirements

Washington, Jan. 17.—Trouble is looming up before the hundred naval officers, more or less, who failed to take the physical tests during the last calendar year and who were not excused. The report has reached some of them that Secretary Meyer is going to make the test cumulative.

Hence, instead of being required to walk fifty miles in three days, they will be required to walk 100 miles in six days when they fail to comply with the regulations for one reason or another.

The question of some action in regard to the physical tests, in view of the large number of officers who failed to take them, is being considered by the navy department, but no action has been decided upon.

RAIDS ON STOCKYARDS

Animals Continue to Disappear From Brighton Slaughter House

Boston, Jan. 17.—Continued loss of cattle from the yards of the Brighton slaughter house has baffled the police and caused a general feeling of unrest among the cattle dealers in this section. Night raids on these yards are evident from the finding of wheel tracks and footprints in the morning alongside the marks of hoofs of cattle believed to have been stolen.

The theory of the police is that a band of thieves has corralled a number of the stolen cattle in the woods. The persistency of these losses has caused the police to institute drastic methods for the safeguarding of the property of the cattle men.

TIME FOR CHARITY TO BE ABOLISHED

Doctor Says Those Who Receive It Give Up Hope

Boston, Jan. 17.—Dr. W. T. Porter created a sensation among his audience Sunday at the Harvard medical school, when, lecturing on the growth of schoolchildren and its relation to disease, he declared charity to be an old-fashioned idea which should be abolished; that old people who are physically unfit should be given relief, but allowed to die; that it was a question whether it was an economical thing for a community to save sick babies and that the money of humanitarians should be given to safeguard educated children, which be termed the most hopeful class in the community.

Dr. Porter said that charity means that those who receive it give up hope. It is uneconomical and an official stigma. Back to the country is a senseless idea; people need the stimulus of the town.

The mistake of charity, Porter said, lies in its history; it began in the churches.

IMPORTED BEARS' NOSES

Indian Did a Thriving Business In Collecting State Bounty

Calais, Me., Jan. 17.—Joseph Lacoot, a Passamaquoddy Indian, who from time to time has been bringing in bears' noses and paws and collecting the $5 bounty, has been sent to the Machias jail for ninety days. His last lot of twenty-three noses was his undoing.

A detective discovered that Joe did his hunting in a fur dealer's place in St. Stephens, N. B., buying the noses and claws and smuggling them across the line.

FINED FOR FRAUD

"Mediums" Arrested After Detective Grabs "Spirit" of an Ancestor

Chicago, Jan. 17.—Mrs. R. L. Green and her husband, spiritualistic mediums, whose "studio" on the south side was cleared by the police, were fined $50 and costs for fraud. Half a dozen persons who were attending a seance were discharged.

The arrests were made after a detective had conversed with the "spirit" of his great-grandfather and found by a sudden grab that Mrs. Green was the "spirit."

Two Midshipmen Dropped

Washington, Jan. 17.—Two midshipmen, P. C. Henry of Arkansas and J. W. Allison of Texas, were dropped from the rolls of the naval academy by the navy department. The cause of this action was given as "inaptitude."

Los Angeles, Jan. 17.—Emil K. Von Hagen was arraigned here on a charge of bigamy. He is wanted in Hoboken, N. J. Bail was fixed at $10,000.

CONSTRUCTION OF NEW WORLD MAP

Uniform Plan and Scale to Be Followed In the Work.

SIXTEEN MILES TO THE INCH.

Technical Arrangements Made at International Conference In London—All Great Nations Represented and Each Government Expected to Help—Special Symbols to Be Used.

An international conference has recently been sitting in London for the purpose of making the technical arrangements for the construction of a new map of the world on the uniform plan and scale of one to one million, which is equal to sixteen miles to the inch. These arrangements have been concluded and will be communicated officially by the British foreign office through its diplomatic agencies to all of the civilized governments of the world, including those which were not represented at the conference, with the request that they proceed as speedily as convenient to prepare maps of their own territory conforming to the plan and scale adopted by the conference.

All of the great European nations, the United States, Canada, Egypt, India and Japan were represented at the conference. The delegates from the United States were Bailey Willis, geologist, and J. S. Kubel, chief engraver, of the geological survey. The scientific questions involved in the proposition were all considered and reported upon by subcommittees. They were discussed and adopted after modification in some cases, and the plan is now complete. It remains only to take the practical steps necessary to carry it into effect, and the British government has undertaken to construct a sample sheet on the lines laid down as a specimen and publish the details agreed upon by the conference in several languages so that they may be understood.

Special Symbols For Rivers and Roads.

The international map will be what is known as a hypsometric map, and the contour lines will be drawn in brown at intervals of 100 meters or in decimal multiples or submultiples of that measure. The interval of 100 meters will be used up to a certain altitude, beyond which the interval for a further altitude will be 200 meters, the interval increasing at certain stages up to 7,000 meters and above. The spaces between the contours will be tinted in green for the lower altitudes and then in different shades of brown, increasing in darkness up to a certain altitude, where the brown merges into other tints, altitudes above 7,000 meters being left white.

The sea will be shown by a blue tint, increasing in darkness according to depth. All other water will be in blue, special symbols being used to indicate rivers, the navigability of rivers, obstructions of various kinds, salt and fresh marshes.

There will be special symbols for main and secondary roads, for railways, telegraphs, postoffices, boundaries (international and provincial) and towns of varying importance. The spelling of place names in independent countries will be that in use by the countries, while in the case of a colony, protectorate or possession it will be that of the governing country.

International Number on Each Sheet.

A separate sheet will be published containing a complete list of all the symbols used, while the most important symbols will be shown on the margin of each sheet.

Each sheet will bear an international number and also the name of the most important place or feature on the sheet, so that in whatever country or language it may be issued it can at once be ordered by its number and name. The numbering starts from 180 degrees east or west of Greenwich, and the sheets are numbered from 1 to 60, increasing in an easterly direction. The zones extending from the equator on each side to 88 degrees north or south latitude will be given letters from A to V. The polar areas will be lettered Z, preceded by the word north or south. Thus each sheet can be identified by its number and letter.

Each government is expected to do its share of the work, and the more important nations will divide up among themselves the rest of the labor.

Division of Expenses.

The expense of the map will be paid by the respective governments, by geographical societies and other official and unofficial organizations, and each government will adopt its own plan of distributing the results of its work to the public. It is not necessary for any person to have the entire map unless desired. The sheets for each country will be entirely independent, and the projection adopted will permit every sheet to fit exactly together with each of the four sheets adjoining its four sides. These conditions are made possible by adopting what is known as a modified polyconic projection—that is, by making it a plane instead of a spherical surface.

All of the sheets of the United States pasted together, not including Alaska, will make a map of about eighteen feet east and west and about twelve feet north and south.—William E. Curtis in Washington Star.

BRIEFS.

Mrs. William Nelson entertained a party at Bridge whist Saturday evening at her home on Standish avenue.

Mrs. Albert W. Fay of Newport avenue has returned from Sherburne, where she has been since Tuesday at the "Fay Farm."

Miss Corlew's second term in dancing will open Saturday afternoon, Jan. 22, the beginners class at 2 o'clock, the advanced at 4 P. M.

The high temperature of Sunday improved the sleighing. This is the 23d consecutive day for Quincy, over three weeks.

John Morgan of Standish avenue attended the shoe and leather men's banquet Saturday evening at the Somerset, Boston. Covers were laid for three hundred.

Frank S. Pollock of Bigelow street will soon take possession of the estate on Hill street, East Weymouth, which he recently purchased of Seth Reckard, executor. The house has eight rooms with modern improvements, and there is a stable and 38,000 square feet of land.

The funeral services for John S. Williams formerly of Quincy, were held this afternoon from the residence of his daughter Mrs. John Meehan at 131 Morton street, Dorchester. The Rev. Charles F. Dole of the First Congregational Society officiated. Members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company were in attendance.

An unusually attractive program has been prepared by President Southworth for the meeting of the Bethany Men's Club this evening. Prof. Malcolm S. Barrows, one of the speakers announced, has the reputation of being the prince of story tellers; while Dr. G. L. Cady of Dorchester is an eloquent and entertaining speaker and will talk on Socialism, his subject being "The golden age." Supper will be served at 6.30.

Miss Marion White formerly of Quincy, celebrated her fifteenth birthday anniversary, Thursday evening, Jan. 13, at her home in North Weymouth. The usual games were enjoyed and at 9.30 the young folks were invited to the dining room by their young hostess, where a dainty lunch was served. The color scheme of the table was pink and white, which was successfully carried out even to the confections. Favors in the form of New Year mottoes were presented each guest and original poetry was in order. The evening's pleasures were brought to a close with dancing. The young folks were most generous with goods wishes for many more happy birthdays for Miss Marion.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

"DEATH FARM" SECRETS OUT

Lamphere's Confession to a Clergyman Is Made Public

WITNESSED ACTUAL MURDER

Used His Knowledge as a Club Over Guilty Woman and Made Her "Dig Up" Money Several Times—Finally Visited House With Negress For Purpose of Robbery, and Chloroformed Her and Three Children

Chicago, Jan. 17.—The Tribune prints the following under a Mt. Pleasant, Ia., date:

Dr. E. A. Schell, president of Iowa Wesleyan university, broke his long silence and gave to The Tribune the confession of Ray Lamphere, made to him in the county jail at Laporte, Ind., in April, 1908.

Dr. Schell told of his visits to Lamphere in the jail at Laporte, after which the statement continued:

"I promised not to tell the prosecuting attorney, and after some two hours of general conversation about Mrs. Gunness he told me the story of the night, as follows:

"'I had been intimate with Mrs. Gunness from June, 1907, while as a carpenter and man of all work I was around the house. Three times, at her request, I purchased chloroform, and once I dug a hole in the hog lot for her and helped her put in the body of some one who she said had died suddenly about the house, and she thought the easiest way was to cover him up and say nothing about it.'

"Lamphere went on to say that he had no suspicions of Mrs. Gunness having murdered anyone until one night when he returned suddenly from Michigan City and, having bored some holes through a wall, saw her administer some chloroform to a man and hit him in the back of the head with a hatchet. He then said that he had taken money from Mrs. Gunness several times, making her 'dig up' or he would tell on her. He would then go to the saloons and when he was sober once more he would find the money all gone.

On Sunday night, after he and a negress he mentioned, had been drinking, about 11 o'clock the two went together to the Gunness home, letting themselves in by a key which he had, and going quietly so as not to disturb another hired man, who was in the house. With some of the chloroform which he had purchased for Mrs. Gunness before Helgolein disappeared, and part of which he put into another bottle, the two gave Mrs. Gunness some chloroform, holding it under her nose until she became quiet. The little boy was in bed with her. They then gave some o the two children, who were in bed in another room.

"Then they searched the house for the large sum of money which they felt sure was hidden in the house, but found only a small amount. He did not set the house on fire, though he said he was not certain that the negress did not do it, for she was as drunk as he.

"He and the negress left the house together, and at a certain point on the road she went home, and he went running away, greatly afraid because he saw the house burning. I advised him to tell the story to Prosecuting Attorney Smith and save the county the cost of the trial and his sisters the expense of defending him, and allow him to consult with a lawyer before a plea of guilty was made. I met Smith almost immediately after leaving the jail and told him Lamphere was going to confess.

"I advised him to arrest the negress, but he attached no importance to it, and I urged him to let Lamphere have a lawyer. He asked me if Lamphere had confessed, and I made an evasive answer."

Mrs. Adams Arrested

Laporte, Ind., Jan. 17.—A negro woman, Mrs. Elizabeth Adams, was taken into custody by the sheriff as a witness to the murder of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her children as revealed in Lamphere's confession to Rev. E. A. Schell. Judge Richter ordered the arrest of the woman after conferring with Prosecutor Smith. The prosecutor announced that he was satisfied Lamphere's narrative was a faithful account of the happenings on the Gunness "murder" farm.

POLITICIANS SURPRISED

Find That O'Meara Was Willing to Make Fight For Mayor of Boston

Boston, Jan. 17.—Stephen O'Meara, the police commissioner, in a letter to the newspapers, shattered the prevalent belief in Boston political circles that he had refused to allow his name to be used as a mayoralty candidate against John F. Fitzgerald.

In the letter he reveals for the first time that although he had no desire to make a contest for the highest position in the city, he was ready to do so if the judgment of the committee believed that his fitness and availability were the best at their command.

The fact that O'Meara was willing to give up his present office and make a contest against Fitzgerald comes as a surprise to politicians, a surprise perhaps as great as any in the recent election.

CREDITOR BUYS DAUGHTER

Marriage Proves Unhappy and Girl Applies For a Divorce

Kewanee, Ills, Jan. 17.—In replying to a suit brought against him for divorce, Elias Nicola says that he and I. H. Manser were old friends and when the latter became ill a few years ago and contracted bills for $300 he proposed to Nicola that for the amount of his indebtedness he would sell his daughter, who was in Europe.

The $300 was paid and transportation was sent the daughter, but Nicola was surprised to find her a mere child. They were married on declaration of the father that she was 16. As time passed the girl decided she did not want Nicola for a husband.

LIBERALS WINNING IN BRITISH ELECTIONS

Will Have Good Working Majority In Parliament

London, Jan. 17.—Sunday gave a welcome respite from the strenuous work at the election stations, and an opportunity for calm reflection over the prospects of both parties striving to gain control of the government.

Although both sides preserve an air of confidence, it is evident that the Conservatives of Unionists have at last abandoned hope that their party will form the next government.

An estimate based on Saturday's pollings gives the Liberals and Laborites a clear majority of 90 or 100 over all parties, which would provide the Liberal government with a good working majority.

THE JOHNSON-JEFFRIES MILL

Gleason and Rickard at Odds Over the Selection of a Battleground

San Francisco, Jan. 17.—A bitter controversy is on between the two men who are to manage the Jeffries and Johnson championship fight. Jack Gleason of San Francisco and "Tex" Rickard of Nevada are in a warm dispute over the selection of a battleground.

Rickard issued a flat statement that the fight would take place in Salt Lake City or its immediate vicinity.

In response Gleason just as positively said that Jeffries and Johnson would meet in San Francisco or near by.

SMALLPOX CLOSES CHURCH

Wakefield Health Authorities Forbid the Holding of Sunday Services

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 17.—The continuation of the epidemic of smallpox, which broke out here some two weeks ago, resulted in the board of health refusing to allow the Congregational Church soicety to hold its usual Sunday service.

A notice was also sent out by the board that the schools, which have been closed for a week, would not reopen today as intended, but would remain closed for an indefinite period.

SHIRTWAIST GIRLS FIRM

Reject Arbitration Proposition of Philadelphia Manufacturers

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—Proposals of arbitration with the manufacturers were hooted and jeered at by the striking girl shirtwaist makers at a mass meeting held to consider the subject

The manufacturers issued an ultimatum that the girls must return to work today and put the disputed questions in the hands of an arbitration board.

Demand of Coal Miners

Indianapolis, Jan. 17.—Ten percent increase in wages for the bituminous miners of North America probably will be the demand formulated in the annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which will open here tomorrow.

No Change In Inauguration Date

Washington, Jan. 17.—The proposed change in the inauguration date got a setback in the house when the Henry constitutional amendment was referred back to the judiciary committee. This practically defeats the measure.

Mrs. Cleveland In Rome

Rome, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Grover Cleveland and Miss Cleveland came on here from Florence and are the guests of Mrs. Crowninghsield at the American academy.

NO FIGHTING AT GREYTOWN

Forbidden by Order of Captain of British Warship

BRITISH SUBJECTS OWN TOWN

United States, However, Recognized Blockade Declared Against It by Estrada—American Warship Commander Was Asked to Sign No-Combat Order, but Was Instructed to Have Nothing to Do With It

Bluefields, Nicaragua, via New Orleans, Jan. 17.—The official declaration of Captain Reisiger of the British warship Scylla, stationed in Nicaraguan waters, that there shall be no fighting at Greytown, is still regarded by the resident Americans as an act not as innocent as it appears on the surface. Many declare that it looks like a covert slap at the United States.

While a similar order with reference to Bluefields before the battle of Recreo was made by Captain Shipley of the Des Moines, it is pointed out that the situations were not parallel. There were no troops within sixty miles of Bluefields and Shipley's mandate occasioned no embarrassment.

The government troops are in Greytown, and just how General Matuty is to defeat them unless Reisiger compels them to move outside the town, which would put him in the position of interposing armed intervention, is puzzling the Estrada government.

Greytown is the sole British legacy remaining from the old "Mosquito coast." Although the town has fallen into decay such property as is there is owned by British subjects, many of them negroes from Jamaica. Notwithstanding this, the United States recognized the blockade which Estrada declared against Greytown.

British Consul Bingham of Greytown is generally reported to have been interested in certain enterprises with Zelaya. It is said he requested that a warship be sent to that port upon the outbreak of the insurrection The appearance of the Scylla followed.

The order of Reisiger that there should be no combat in Greytown states that there is open ground beyond the town where the combat may be waged with justice to both sides and safety to non-combatants.

Captain Reisiger requested Captain Shipley to attach his signature to the no-combat order. Shipley is said to have forwarded the request to the navy department for instructions, and in the absence of his name from the order, it is believed that the American captain was told to have nothing to do with it.

More Money For Mission Work

New York, Jan. 17.—Five thousand laymen voted unanimously at a mass meeting to increase the foreign missionary offerings of the Protestant churches of Greater New York by $325,000 during the coming twelve months. The sum given last year was $400,116.

AID FOR HOME TRADE

Strong Fight Should Be Waged Against Mail Order Menace.

VALUE OF SYSTEM BUYING.

It Meets the Catalogue Houses on Their Own Ground and Enables the Local Merchants to Cut Retail Prices—Co-operation Is Beneficial.

One method of fighting the mail order houses adopted by some country merchants is that of system buying. While it is well to warn merchants against irresponsible representatives of so called "system" concerns, the plan itself is one of merit and properly organized and honestly carried out can be made of very great benefit. What is known as system buying is merely an application of the co-operative principle. It meets the catalogue houses on their own ground and by procuring the lowest possible prices from the manufacturer enables the local merchant to cut retail prices.

System buying takes advantage of the method of buying adopted by the mail order concerns themselves. Through considerable experimenting and study it has been brought to a higher state of efficiency than it could boast in the beginning. As a matter of fact, some of the early efforts in this line were rank failures. These very failures taught their lessons, however, and pointed out the danger spots.

A kindred effort to help the local merchant is the sales promoting company. The design of these concerns is to give the individual tradesman the advantage of the latest and most approved methods of advertising, collections, soliciting trade and carrying on a successful campaign against the catalogue houses.

Both the system buying and the sales promotion are in a way an application of the principle of co-operation among local merchants. The idea has perhaps been carried to its farthest point of development in the combination of manufacturers and merchants into a house similar to the mail order concern, with the exception that all sales are made through the local tradesmen. One of the pioneer houses of this kind has its headquarters in Sioux City. I am far from advocating any specific company or indeed from advocating any sort of combination. system buying or sales promoting that does not appeal to the individual merchant himself. My own idea has always been that in the last analysis this fight depends on the local trades man. He is the trade winner. He is the one most interested, and he is the one who must decide. It is only with the idea of making some suggestions which may possibly help him in his fight that this article is written.

While it is true, however, that the individual merchant is the cornerstone, he is not the entire superstructure. His relation to his fellow merchants who have like interests with himself goes to make up the completed edifice. The co-operative principle is sound and is the most important factor in modern commercial and industrial development. For the local merchants of America to make a successful fight against the catalogue houses some form of co-operation is absolutely necessary. This will in no way or at least should in no way hamper the liberty and initiative of the individual merchant. Its only legitimate function is to help him, to make him more efficient, to give him lower prices in buying, better ideas in advertising and soliciting, more businesslike handling of credits and collections and up to date methods in selling. In the main the interests of all local merchants are the same. Their experience should help each other. By uniting each of them strengthens his hands. But this union must be their own, must belong to the individual merchants themselves. It must not be made by some outside concern for the purpose of its own advancement and enrichment. That is not co-operation, but exploitation. The union must be for the purpose of advancing and enriching the local merchants. They should keep the control in their own hands. This is sound business. And some such co-operation is forced by the very logic of the situation.

There is no reason why a large number of local merchants should not band themselves together and adopt a method of system buying that would be of benefit to all. It would even be possible to have certain manufacturing concerns go in with them. Such an association could devise its own methods of trade promotion and of fighting the catalogue houses. The individual merchant would be left absolutely free in his own sphere. He would only have added the support of his fellows and gained the advantage of their experience. He would likewise have the power through combination with them to procure the lowest possible prices in buying goods.

This is the day of honest merchandising and of truthfulness in advertising and representing goods. No other method will win in the long run. No other plan will meet the competition of the catalogue houses and the big city stores. It is foolish and unfair to abuse the mail order concerns or their patrons. Men have a right to trade where they can get the best prices, and they will do so whatever we say. The battle of the local merchant is to convince the public that he can give better values. Co-operation with other local merchants, especially in the matter of buying, will enable him the more effectually to do this.

Mexico City, Jan. 17.—After having leased and taken possession of a house with the announced intention of making his home here for several months at least, ex-President Zelaya of Nicaragua announced that he would sail for Belgium as soon as he could make arrangements.

The decision was said to be due to the receipt of a telegram from Mrs. Zelaya, now at Managua. She has decided to go direct to Brussels, her old home, instead of coming to Mexico City to live.

TEN-CENT SWEAR BOX

Policemen Fine Themselves Whenever Profane at Headquarters

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 17.—An anti-profanity league was started at police headquarters, when Frank Waterbury, a member of he force, presented to the men a small tin bank with the decree that each man who swears in the room must place a dime in the bank.

When $5 is secured it will be taken from the bank and placed in the fund maintained by the men for the care of sick policemen.

A DEARTH OF KISSES

Considered by Missouri Judge to Be Ample Grounds For Divorce

Sedalia, Mo., Jan. 17.—"Yes, your honor, I admit that I have not kissed my husband for ten years, but it is longer than that since he kissed me," said Mrs. Lena Hayworth in court here.

After hearding this testimony the judge granted her request.

Hub Bakers Against Bread Bill

Boston, Jan. 17.—The 5-cent loaf of bread is not in danger. The bill to legislate it out of existence, which caused considerable worry, will not pass unless the Boston bakers and consumers let it go by default on some rainy day. Boston bakers do not believe it will pass.

THROWN DOWN WELL BY HER HUSBAND

Frozen Feet of Bride Will Have to Be Amputated

Fairfield, Conn., Jan. 17.—Knocked on the head, thrown into a well by her husband and a male companion, and left for dead, was the fate that met Annie Moskill, a bride of three days, who was married in Chicopee, Mass., on Friday.

The three arrived in Bridgeport Saturday morning, and after leaving the woman in the station all day, the man returned at night and brought her to the Ferris farm, where they attacked her and threw her into the well.

On striking the water the woman regained consciousness and drew herself out of the water by means of an iron pipe, which she clung to until Sunday, when she was found by William Ferris. Her feet were found to be frozen and they will have to be amputated.

The men returned to Bridgeport and there checked a trunk, which belonged to the woman, which she said contained $700, to Springfield, where they are supposed to have gone.

KNEE BREECHES GIVEN UP

Trousers Worn by Men Dining In Company of King Edward

London, Jan. 17.—An innovation which has caused some surprise was the request conveyed to the men invited to met the king on Sunday evening at Lady Paget's to wear evening trousers instead of the black satin breeches and black silk stockings which are always the rule when dining in the company of the sovereign.

King Edward also wore trousers, but the reason of the innovation is unknown.

GERMANY GETS A TIP

Lloyd-George Says It Would Be Madness For Her to Fight England

London, Jan. 17.—Great Britain will soon have twenty dreadnoughts to Germany's thirteen, said David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer, in an election meeting at Grimsby.

Referring to the war scare he said it would be madness for Germany to attack England. The score of ships he mentioned, he said, did not include those promised by Australia and New Zealand.

Six Families Burned Out

Boston, Jan. 17.—One man jumped three stories, only to receive a broken leg, and other inmates of the six-family block at the corner of Seneca street and Harrison avenue escaped over the roof, down smoke-filled hallways and by means of fire escapes, when the building was gutted by fire. The police are investigating circumstances that they believe should be explained.

Mills Estate Over $60,000,000

New York, Jan. 17.—The will of D. Ogden Mills, who died last week, was offered for probate today in the surrogate's office in this city. The estate is said to amount to over $60,000,000.

—There are many people in this country who believe that Newfoundland is one of the coldest places on the face of the earth; this is a mistake. The seasons are neither as cold or as warm as in Massachusetts. We are reminded of this fact by reading a New Year's editorial in the Newfoundland Free Press, published at St. John's, in which the editor says: "Despite the date, we are writing in a fireless office, with window and door both open, whilst a pleasant breeze is gently fanning the loose papers on our desk. It seems difficult to realize that this is Dec. 27." On Dec. 27 we sought no "pleasant breeze" at our desk, but labored under difficulties trying to keep warm with a full head of steam turned on the radiator.—Athol Chronicle.

BRIEFS

A grand day for a sleigh ride.

City Council this evening.

The sun will rise at 7 o'clock the last day of the month.

Annual meeting of the City Hospital corporation this evening at Colonial hall.

Patrick Fitzgerald of Packard lane died on Saturday aged 63 years. He was a member of St. Francis court, and leaves a widow.

Snow shoe parties were much in evidence Sunday many taking long tramps through the reservation and inland over the fields.

The many friends of James King of California avenue will be happy to learn that he is recovering rapidly from his illness.

City Hall was closed between 2 and 3 this afternoon during the funeral services of ex-Mayor Thompson. Many of the business houses of the city also closed between these hours.

Frank Fessenden Crane Quincy's water front commissioner, will speak tonight at the Universalist church, North Weymouth, his subject being, "Inland Waterways."

The many friends of Willis Wright of Bryant avenue, East Milton, a member of the Bryant A. C., will be happy to learn that his hand that was attacked with blood poison is nearly well. He has gone back to work.

The heavy fall of snow last week put a stop for the present to the harvesting of ice. At that time all of the ice men were busy harvesting their crop. It will now be necessary to use scrapers to clear the snow from the ice.

A horse attached to a buggy top sleigh of Dr. Middleton became frightened while left alone for a few minutes this noon in front of Hearn's drug store. The horse ran as far as the corner of Temple street, where the sleigh was turned upside down and the shafts badly smashed. The horse was captured before any further damage was done.

Patronesses of the Plancon-Davis recital on Wednesday evening are Mrs. Laurance H. Sturtevant, Mrs. Theophilus King, Mrs. C. Theodore Hardwick, Miss Isabecla Osgood, Mrs. Henry E. Hardwick, Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Mrs. Henry M. Faxon, Mrs. Lewis Bass of Quincy, Mrs. Walter E. Morrison of Braintree and Mrs. George E. Frost. The list of subscribers is growing larger each day.

GREAT SPORT ON THIRD HILL

Norwegians Bring Forth Their Skees

Third hill, Wollaston, has a novelty for Quincy, which is attracting many people. On Sunday Norwegian residents hungering for the sports of the old country built a fifty foot embankment on Third hill, hunted up their skees and then the fun began. To the uninitiated onlooker the sport was remarkable; the tremendous jumps and the agility of the men almost taking ones breath away. There were no accidents, and the men and those looking on enjoyed the sport until after dark. If this weather continues and the snow lasts the moonlight will enable the men to continue the fun nights.

RULES ADOPTED FOR CATBOATS

Quincy Men Attend Conference at Providence

Commodore Herbert W. Robbins and Rear Commodore Frank F. Crane represented the Massachusetts Bay Cat Boat association at the conference of the Massachusetts Bay, Narraganset Bay, Great South Bay and Barnegat Bay, associations, which met at the Edgewood Yacht club at Providence, R. I., Saturday, to draw up rules and specifications for the interbay cat boat races for the Thomas Fleming Day cup. The races are to be what is known as team races, to be given each year where the cup is held. Although the race is to be a team one the club holding the cup will offer a championship cup for the yacht winning the largest percent in the series. The delegates were royally entertained, a banquet at Pawtuxit being one of the features.

Wallace Arnold of the Quincy Yacht club is building a 27 foot cat boat at Crosby's, and the Narraganset club is building a new boat to compete for the cup.

There are a number of very fast cat boats in the Quincy club, and it is possible that one of those may be selected to represent Massachusetts bay in the races.

BRIEFS

The Daily Ledger of Friday, Jan. 14, is in great demand.

Mayor Shea will be a guest this evening of the Knights of Columbus at Brockton, who will have a Mayor's night.

Rev. Carl G. Horst of the Wollaston Unitarian church was the speaker at Y. P. R. U. meeting at Neponset on Sunday evening.

The City Council may find on the Newsboys' ordinance that the School Committee have exclusive authority in issuing licenses to boys of certain ages.

Commissioner Bainbridge had a large gang of men at work all day Sunday breaking out streets and sidewalks. In some cases along Hancock street it was necessary to shovel through large snow banks which were too large for the plows to get through.

A funeral to have been held at Montclair on Saturday had to be postponed until Sunday as the street was so badly drifted with snow that the hearse could not reach the house. Snow shovellers tried to open up the street but the high wind blew the snow back faster than it could be shoveled out.

—Senator Root introduced a bill in the Senate Tuesday for the payment of a pension of $5000 a year to Mrs. Grover Cleveland same as is allowed widows of former presidents of the United States.

The Weather

Almanac, Tuesday, Jan. 18.
Sun rises—7:10; sets—4:40.
Moon's first quarter—5:21 a. m.
High water—4:30 a. m.; 5 p. m.
Forecast for New England: Fair; warmer in the interior; light to moderate west winds.

HOCKEY SEASON IN FULL SWING.

Title Games In All Circuits From Now On.

CLOSE RACES ARE EXPECTED.

In New York Amateur League Several Teams Appear to Be Evently Matched—The Intercollegiate League Fight. Pittsburg Prospects.

Ice hockey, that fast, furious and brilliant national pastime of the boys across the border, will from now on until March occupy a conspicuous place in the limelight of the sporting world. In fact, judging by the present healthy condition of the sport and large attendance at the games in New York, Pittsburg, Cleveland and St. Paul and several other cities where the game is played, besides that on the different Canadian circuits, it surely looks as if the strenuous ice game will enjoy the most prosperous season it has had in some years.

The uncertainty which exists as to the ultimate outcome of the race for the championship of the Amateur Hockey league in New York tends to add greater interest to the season. Three of the five clubs which compose this circuit have shown great ability, and it is a tossup as to which of them will win out.

The New York A. C. is even stronger than it was last season, except in one feature—Jimmie Sherriff still is firmly ensconced in his announced intention of being a spectator and not a player this season.

The Wanderers are more than 100 per cent better than they were last year and have put what could probably be termed an all Canadian team on the ice. The St. Nicks will be in the fight right up to the finish and have shown that the club which defeats them will be going some. The other two clubs, the Crescents and the Hockey club, will furnish no end of opposition to the three "best bets" and will be stumbling blocks not to be overlooked.

All of these teams have had considerable practice, and their players are in the best shape for a hard season. Under such conditions and judging from the speed and fine play which have been exhibited in several games to date the caliber of hockey in the league will be of the best.

The fact that many of the sevens have been strengthened by the securing of the services of Canadian amateur players of the first rank indicates that the winners will have to travel at top speed throughout the season. The teams which have been seen in action thus far have all shown marked improvement over their work of last year. They have solved many of the more difficult features of play, and New York is in for a siege of the best hockey it has ever known.

The intercollegiate league of which Harvard, Yale, Dartmouth, Columbia, Princeton and Cornell are members holds another element of uncertainty. Princeton is the only one of the teams to show marked weakness, but this in a large measure has been eradicated. Probably the best showing by any of the teams has been made by Harvard, with Cornell next. All the teams in the league have been practicing steadily since Thanksgiving day and are in condition to play lively games and maintain their ability to the end. The campaign of the college boys will extend until Feb. 19, eight games being scheduled for New York, seven for Boston and one for Cambridge, Mass.

The recent visit of the Cleveland and the college teams to Pittsburg has stirred up renewed interest in the game there. And there is considerable talk of organizing a new league. As there are quite a few players residing in Pittsburg who were members of teams in the Western Pennsylvania Hockey league and who are more than anxious to get back in the game, it looks as if the promoters would experience very little difficulty in getting together several strong teams. Among these players are such stars as McKay, Donnelly, Strobel, Koch, Campbell, Ray Robinson, Garnet Sixsmith, Meyers, Brown and Rutledge.

Three Men Willing to Swim Rapids.

Three enthusiasts have expressed their determination to try to navigate the Whirlpool rapids, below Niagara falls, with motorboats and try for the prizes offered by John A. Penton and others of Cleveland. These prizes are a gold cup worth $500 and $1,000 in cash. These three, who evidently hold their lives cheaply, are John L. Gibney of Brooklyn, John W. Kirk of Cleveland and Allan A. Blanchard of Oak Harbor, O. They have made formal entries. Those who are booming this affair say that a dozen others have made inquiries and will probably enter in the next few weeks. The committee to manage the trials will be named shortly.

New Heavyweight Pugilist.

Joe Choynski is boosting a new heavyweight. This man is colored, and his name is George Cotton. He is a 195 pounder, and Choynski says he will make the best of the big ones hustle in the near future.

Vacation For the Eel, 2:02¼.

The Eel, 2:02¼, will not be raced on the ice this winter. The gray wonder has been barred in the free for all at Ottawa; hence his vacation.

FIFTEEN HUNDRED

Employed in Granite Industry in Quincy

Through the courtesy of James Duncan, Secretary-Treasurer of the Granite Cutters' National union we are able to give the number of granite cutters and quarrymen employed in Quincy during the year 1909. These figures are given by months in comparison with the years 1908, '07, '06, '05, and '04.

It will be noticed that the number for the past years is greatly in excess of the years 1904 and 1905. This is due to the fact that previous to 1906 the number of men employed as quarrymen was not included in the tables. Comparing the table with the year 1908 it will be seen that the average number of men employed was practically the same. The table also shows that the largest number of men were employed during the month of September and that the smallest number were employed during the month of March.

It should be borne in mind that the figures do not include superintendents, firemen, apprentices, tool sharpeners or polishers, and if these were added that the total number of men employed in the industry outside of the manufacturers would not be far from 1,500.

LOST IN FINALES.

Eddie Kenney of this was entered Saturday night in the B. A. A. boxing contests. In the 135 pound class he beat E. Turpin, Jr., of East Bostaon in three rounds in the semi finals, but was beat in the finals by H. Ross of South Lincoln. A Poston paper says: Kenny had the bout won. When in the middle of the third round Ross put Kenney down with a right on the jaw. Kenney was so badly affected by the punch that he showed badly during the rest of the bout.

BASKET BALL.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. and Brockton Independents played a close match on Saturday when the latter won 29 to 24. Quincy played six different men on the team, Bates, Morris, Mandie, Tupper, Jenkins, and McKenzie. Between the halves the Bryant A. C. defeated the Fore River Apprentices 12 to 10.

At Braintree the Thayer Academy second team defeated Randolph juniors 30 to 15. The Thayer Academy girls team defeated an Alumnae team 22 to 12.

The Bryant A. C. are very happy at winning their opening game with the Fore Rivers and celebrated in their club rooms by singing and piano playing. Many short recitations were spoken by the members.

Friday night Cronin will take his men out to Charlestown to meet the fast Madison A. C., and hopes to win one more. Bennett, one of the St. Mary's second five players will be with him, and he is signed to play with them the rest of the season. He will also take Good with him, one of the Fore River junior men. These with his regular men should make a good show.

TODAY'S COURT.

Patrick Callahan was arraigned for drunkeaness at Quincy. He was fined $10 and sentence suspended until March 1.

Robert Fraser of Milton was fined $5 for drunkenness, and had his case continued until March 1.

—The state of New York is urged to plant 50,000 000 trees a year to replenish the supply of firewood. In recent years reforestation has been conducted on a large scale, but such repairs were so long delayed that a serious shortage is faced. Within the next century wood is likely to become as expensive in great American cities as it is now in the older European capitals.—Boston Record.

ORDER OFFERED FOR NEW SCHOOLHOUSE

City Council Debates and Passes Temporary Loan Order of $500,000.

Special Committee Appointed to Investigate Junk Collectors.

The order authorizing the City Treasurer to borrow $500,000 in anticipation of taxes was the one matter that called for any debate at Monday night's meeting of the City Council. At the start President Hobbs stated that he desired to take back his ruling of a week ago, admitting the temporary loan order for $825,000. The line he said was very close, but he now desired to rule the order not in order, which he did. This left the original order for $500,000 before the Council. An attempt was made to amend the amount to $425,000 on motion of Councilman Sandberg, but failed on a rising vote of 7 yes and 11 no. After a discussion of an hour the order was passed unanimously. Councilman Nowland and Woodward were absent.

Councilman-elect Loud was sworn in and took his seat.

APPOINTMENTS.

A communication was received from the Mayor appointing Fred P. Loud and S. O. Williams public weighers. Confirmed.

LICENSES.

Several applications for minor licenses were received and referred. These included one application to transport liquor which was endorsed by the Naturalization club of West Quincy.

REPORTS.

The Committee on Streets reported an order for a public hearing Feb. 7, on petitions of the Electric Light Co., for a location for poles; and of the Telephone Co., for attachments. Referred to Committee on Streets.

The License committee reported an order granting Berger Karlstrom a license to run a wrestling exhibition. Adopted.

Referring back to petitions, Councilman Moir presented a petition for the acceptance of Birch street. Referred to Committee on Streets.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The Council by ballot elected Councilmen Whiton and Gardner as trustees of the City Hospital.

The nominations for member of the Managers of the Woodward Fund were taken from the table, and on ballot, Richard R. Freeman was elected. The vote was Freeman, 14; Abele, 6.

SIDEWALKS WANTED.

Councilman Ericson offered an order for a gravel sidewalk with granite edgestones on the easterly side of Whitwell street from the corner of Granite street to Glendale road, and on Glendale road from the junction of Whitwell street, a distance of about 488 feet to a private way, said sidewalks to be built under the act authorizing the assessment of betterments. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

CAMP LOCATION.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order requesting the Board of Health to look into the proposed site for the tuberculosis hospital and inquire into any objections the citizens of that locality may have, and report to the City Council. Adopted.

STREET LIGHTS.

Councilman Cherington offered an order for four lights on Glover avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Smith offered an order for one light on Copeland street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Moir offered an order for one light on Hollis avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Ericson offered an order for three gas lights on Beacon street, and one gas light on Euclid avenue. Referred to Executive.

Councilman Boyd offered an order for one light on McDonnell street. Referred to Executive.

Councilman McDevitt offered an order for two lights on Wesson avenue. Referred to Executive.

CITY AUDITOR.

Councilman Moir offered on amendment to the ordinance concerning the Auditing department. The proposed amendment adds the following. "The Auditor of Accounts shall engage in no other business, devote his whole time to the duties of the office and be accessible to the public between the hours of 9 A. M. and 3 P. M. of every business day." Referred to Ordinance committee.

WOLLASTON SCHOOL.

Councilman Loud offered an order requesting the School Committee to procure plans for a twelve-room brick school building with assembly hall to be located on the Wollaston school lot, the cost of the same not to exceed $75,000.

Councilman Bryant thought there might be some objection to the location named and moved to lay on the table. Voted.

Upon motion of Councilman Bryant the temporary loan order was taken from the table.

Councilman Cherrington was called to the chair.

Councilman Richards said that he hoped the Council would give due consideration to the question to see if it was judicious at the present time to vote for the order. Under the present conditions it was time something was done so that instead of being behind we can pay as we go. We are getting too far away from that policy.

Councilman Hobbs said that during the past week there had been much misrepresentation as to what he had said at the last meeting. He had merely asked questions, and what he had said was correctly reported in the Daily Ledger of the next day. I simply asked the City Treasurer certain questions. He wanted it understood that he made no attack on the present administration or any part of it. He did not intend to pose as a reformer, but to overcome the objections made that the Council had passed orders not knowing what they were voting for.

Councilman Sandberg moved to amend by making the amount $425,000. In reply to a question as to why he made the motion, Councilman Sandberg said he believed the Council was not ready to pass the order for

MANY OFFICIALS ATTEND

Funeral of Ex-Mayor James Thompson

The funeral of ex-Mayor James Thompson was held Monday afternoon from his late residence, 116 Franklin street, and was very largely attended, both by representatives of the organizations and institutions of which he was a member, by the granite trade and by present and past city officials.

The services were of a simple nature and were conducted by Rev. Daniel M. Wilson of Kennebunkport, Maine a former pastor of the First church, assisted by Rev. Edward Norton, pastor emeritis of the Bethany Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Wilson delivered the eulogy and spoke as a long-time friend of the departed, and as one who came from the same country at about the same time. He paid a glowing tribute to upright character of the deceased, of the many positions of public trust which he had been called upon to fill, and of his honesty and sympathetic nature.

The flowers were elaborate and beautiful and completely surrounded the casket in which the remains reposed so peacefully. These came from friends and neighbors, from the Granite Manufacturers association, workmen, banks and trust companies with which he was affiliated, the Odd Fellows and from present and past city officials.

The burial was in the family lot at Mt. Wollaston cemetery, the bearers being William J. Littlewood, Otto Backman, John Duffy, Charles Torn, William Fllize and John Peterson, six of the workmen employed by the deceased at his granite manufacturing plant.

Among the many present were Mayor William T. Shea, ex-Mayor John O. Hall, ex-Representative James F. Burke who with the Mayor were his collegues in the first city council, City Clerk H. A. Keith, Commissioner Bainbridge, Postmaster Charles L. Hammond, John C. Murray, ex-councilman and president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association, Clarence Burgin of the Quincy Savings Bank, Horace F. Spear of the Mt. Wollaston bank, ex-Assessor C. H. Johnson, ex-City Treasurer Henry G. Fay, City Messenger Harry W. Tirrell, Building Inspector Warren S. Parker, Chief of Police Frank E. Burrell and Inspector Daniel R. McKay, City Engineer E. C. Sargent, County Commissioner, John F. Merrill, Ex-Chief Engineer A. L. Litchfield, ex-Tax Collector James H. Cunningham, Representative William R. Thomas, Deputy Sheriff, G. H. Field, William H. Teasdale formerly chairman of the Board of Health, J. J. Keniley, inspector of plumbing, Councilmen C. A. Ericson and John R. Business was also suspended in some of the granite yards.

—The biggest factor in the postal deficit of $17,000,000 is clearly the cost of transporting magazines. The American people do not care to be taxed for delivering so many silly love stories and the same kind of plate matter that many newspapers saw off for ten cents a column.

INCREASE IN FUNDS OF CITY HOSPITAL

Good Balance on General Fund at the End of Year Reported

Thanks Extended to Press and Others for Hospital Week Work

Some thirty incorporators of the City Hospital met Monday night at Colonial hall for the annual meeting. Vice president N. G. Nickerson called the meeting to order and Warren W. Adams, clerk, read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved with the exception of clause relative to the election of trustees for two years, which being contrary to the charter was rescinded.

The trustees' report was read by the secretary of the board, Timothy Reed, giving statistics of number of patients (313 being treated during the past year,—number of operations number cured, deaths, etc.

The annual report of H. G. Fay, the treasurer, was very satisfactory. The receipts of the year were $16,562.69, including $5,111.62 from patients, $4,000.00 appropriation from the city, $2,605.83 as interest and dividends on endowment fund, $3,244.99 from Hospital Week collection, and other items, it being necessary to raise but $400 on a temporary loan.

The largest items of expense were $4,889.61 for pay roll, $3,463.17 for groceries and provisions, $204.53 for fish, $958.12 for fuel, $703.03 for milk, $529.71 for light and heat, $841.44 for medical and surgical supplies, $109.13 for telephone, $116.67 for express, $246.64 for stationery and printing, $910.68 for repairs and labor, $368.65 for furnishings, $399.78 for sundries, $251.91 for interest. After the payment of the temporary loan of $400.00 there was a cash balance of $2,161.34.

The endowment fund amounts to $66,915.33 having been increased $56 by gift of Mrs. Jane C. Gilbert.

The fund for the Nurses' Home amounts to $2,169.47, an increase of $84.22.

The fund for the Contagious Ward amounts to $1,039.74, an increase of $77.26.

One new member was voted into the corporation.

Dr. John F. Welch, chairman of the nominating committee, presented a ballot of 30 names for the selection of 22 for trustees for the ensuing year. The tellers were James F. Burke, Arthur W. Newcomb and Henry G. Fay.

While the ballots were being counted there was an informal discussion.

Fred B. Rice said the trustees were pleased with the amount collected during hospital week, while not as large as the banner year, it was larger than some other collections, being over $3,000. He made a motion that vote of thanks be extended to those contributing and to the local press in appreciation of generous help, the thanks to be expressed through the newspapers and recorded on the books of the corporation.

Miss Charlotte Burgess for the Hospital Aid Association reported that the annual meeting had been held and the following officers reelected: President, Miss Charlotte Burgess; treasurer, Mrs. Charles A. Howland; secretary, Mrs. James H. Slade. Because of lack of interest and the difficulty of raising money for the work, the association was considering disbanding.

Fred B. Rice voiced the sentiment of the meeting that the association would not disband. It had always been a great help to the trustees in running the hospital, and they still needed it as an inspiration to continue the good work.

Dr. Welch had a good word for the association. The old idea of bringing all the people together for one big affair, like an entertainment or fair he thought feasible. Should try and stimulate interest. Hoped would not disband.

Dr. Gordon also spoke of the good work done by the association since the founding of the hospital, and hoped it would not disband. Dr. Gordon had a few words to say about the year's work at the hospital. The new pavilion, made possible by the continued generosity of the donor of the hospital, the late William B. Rice, was nearly completed. Beside a ward to accommodate 14 there were private rooms which would about double the capacity of the hospital, increasing the work and value of the institution to Quincy people.

N. G. Nickerson said it was possible to raise money for the hospital which was proven by the Y. M. C. A. raising over $25,000 in one week, and the hospital at the same time collecting over $3,000. A city that could give so generously could be depended upon to do the same again when necessity arises.

R. D. Chase said he did not think the Y. M. C. A. collection made the hospital collection smaller, it simply got the people in the way of giving. By giving one gets in the way of giving. All that was necessary was to unlock the pocket, and giving would become a habit.

Dr. Gordon gave a few figures compiled by the superintendent of the hospital. There had been during the year 313 patients: 172 men, 141 women. The reason there were more men than women was because of lack of accommodation for women. This would be obviated by the new ward. The hospital was almost a surgical one, there being 244 cases to 69 medical, an average of five operations a day, which meant lots of work for the nurses. The average patients per day at hospital was 17, and the stay of each patient about 18 1-2 days. Often cots were necessary to accommodate urgent cases.

The tellers announced the following elected as trustees: George E. Adams, James F. Burke, Daniel L. F. Chase, Richard D. Chase, Rupert F. Claflin, Joseph A. Dasha, Alexander Falconer, Henry M. Faxon, John A. Gordon, M. D., Wendell H. Hull, Eugene C. Hultman, Nathaniel S. Hunting, M. D., Charles P. Hutchins, Henry McGrath, Arthur W. Newcomb, Nathan G. Nickerson, Timothy Reed, Fred B. Rice, Harry L. Rice, Fred H. Smith, Frank P. Waterhouse and John F. Welch, M. D.

Three in the list are new: Rupert F. Claflin, Harry L. Rice and Fred H. Smith.

Dr. Welch, Henry M. Faxon and James F. Burke were appointed as the nominating committee to prepare ballot for the next annual meeting.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The City Council did the inevitable. It could not do otherwise than pass the temporary loan of $500,000 and do it in a hurry, as notes of $115,000 mature this month, $175,000 in February and $135,000 in March. The Councilman who assumed that the statistics in the Daily Ledger were prepared to defeat the order, was wrong. They were given just to enlighten the taxpayers, and to show that more than $500,000 will be necessary for temporary loans before the year 1910 expires, or else several large loans for schoolhouses and improvements.

Many hope the Merchants' association will undertake to do in Quincy what has recently been accomplished in Northampton. Hancock street, and City Square is in need of more light. Northampton's new main street with its hundreds of brilliant electric lights marks a new era for a larger, better and more progressive city, and it shows what a body of alert and enthusiastic men can do. The members of the Mercantile Committee of the Board of Trade, determined to place Northampton in the postition she was entitled to among her neighbors in New England and to make her light shine literally among not only Western Massachusetts but all New England as well. With that end in view this matter was placed before the Northampton Merchants and Business men, who responded nobly and the co-operation of the Northampton Electric Lighting Company was asked for and cheerfully given, not only by making a cash contribution of $250 but furnishing all the labor necessary for the construction of the new arches and has agreed to furnish this lighting at practically cost as it believes the indirect results will more than repay it. Consequently, Northampton's new main street will be without doubt the best lighted street in New England and these electric arches will be lighted for the first time in honor of the Board of Trade's annual meeting, Monday, January 17th.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

This is the time of the year when officers are installed in the various fraternal organizations which are so numerous in this locality. The words of wisdom spoken by the installing officers and others who accompany them are calculated to make better citizens of those who listen attentively to them and give heed to what they hear. The principles of the fraternal organizations are high and worthy and the man or woman who lives up to the principles inculcated in the lodge room will make a model member of society.—Wareham Courier.

Locality has much to do with divorce, for in some states it is not granted for any cause, or extremely hard to obtain, but suicides are possible everywhere, and the law is powerless to prevent them. The growth of both constitute distressing features of American life which have not been satisfactorily explained. Possibly the breaking of marriage ties and self-destruction have a close connection with a rapidly growing country where people marry in haste and where business chances are more frequently taken than in the longer settled regions of the world.—Brooklyn Union.

Are the average town assessors qualified to assess every kind of property? No. They may be able to judge what the fair market value of a piece of real estate is, but they are not competent to go through a factory and make up the proper assessment on machinery, particularly machines for special uses, machines that look innocent and small, but because of their fitness cost many hundred dollars more than the ordinary layman has any idea of. If the towns want full assessed values only an expert can get them. It would be prudent policy for each town to employ an expert to make a careful full value report of the stock, equipment, etc., of factories, mills, stores and the like. Perhaps the work would take three weeks or a month at a cost of a few hundred dollars, but the cost would be a good investment.—Mansfield News.

Having managed to shut out not less than three-fourths of outside publications, Oklahomians will become even more benighted than they are.

Farmer Must Not Be Neglected.

By Senator WILLIAM E. BORAH of Idaho.

THE farmer today is the MOST POTENTIAL FACTOR IN THE WHOLE ECONOMIC LIFE OF THE NATION, not because he is entitled to peculiar favor, but because of FAVOR BEING WITHHELD FROM HIM WHILE BESTOWED UPON OTHERS. This treatment is having and has had its effect upon the industrial life in the country.

NO MORE IMPORTANT PHASE OF OUR INDUSTRIAL LIFE HAS BEEN UP FOR CONSIDERATION THAN THE EXODUS OF THE LAST THIRTY YEARS FROM THE FARM TO THE CITY. IF IT SHOULD CONTINUE TO THE SAME EXTENT FOR ANY CONSIDERABLE TIME IT WOULD BE FATAL TO REPUBLICAN INSTITUTIONS.

This government would not last for a decade if that seething mass of political corruption lately exposed to public gaze in a great metropolis did not FIND ITS ANTIDOTE AND DISINFECTANT IN THE HEALTHY, PATRIOTIC LIFE OF THE FARMING COMMUNITIES and the business men of the agricultural village.

It seems to be a peculiarity of the human family that in proportion as we lose our identity in vast aggregations we also LOSE THE SENSE OF RESPONSIBILITY and the inestimable virtue of personal pride. When the finger of public opinion points to an individual and beckons for action the results are generally gratifying.

It is estimated that 70,000 will seek homes in Canada and will take with them $70,000,000 or $100,000,000 in cash and effects. The money or its equivalent which they take I do not so much deplore, but they are the BEST OF OUR CITIZENS, men whom we can ill afford to spare. All this is transpiring at a time when there are UNTAKEN MILLIONS OF ACRES OF THE RICHEST AMERICAN SOIL THAT EVER BLOSSOMED INTO PROSPERITY WHEN WATER IS PUT UPON IT.

A TALK ON SOCIALISM

Right in Principle But Program Wrong

Over sixty representative citizens were present on Monday evening at the January meeting of the Men's club of Bethany church. An excellent hot roast beef dinner was served, and the two speakers of the evening fulfilled all expectations.

Prof. Malcolm S. Barrows of the English High school of Boston was announced as the "prince of story tellers" and he certainly was among the best. After entertaining with several good stories he was so persistently encored that he consented to give more.

President Edward Southworth then introduced as the principal speaker of the evening Rev. Dr. George L. Cady the able pastor of the Pilgrim church at Dorchester. He also had a few stories to relate, but soon entered upon the serious consideration of his subject, a talk on Socialism, entitled: "The Golden Age."

The speaker had had a good opportunity while a resident of Iowa to become acquainted with the principles and workings of Socialism. He protested with the Socialist against the economic conditions of today—long hours for labor, debasement of womanhood, evils of child labor, etc. It was a question above the tariff, but I part company with the Socialist on the program. The program of the Socialist is a misfit.

Dr. Cady showed where it was a misfit. First, because its philosophy of the wage question is incorrect. Equal wages for all would never be satisfactory. Second, because of the philosophy of property. Just in proportion as the land gets away from the people the situation will be dangerous. Civilization began when people began to accumulate property. Third, because of the destruction of individualism. The individualism must be curbed, not killed. There were puppets in the halls of legislation, and such men as Cannon and Aldrich were enemies of the country. Fourth, Socialism was wrong in its settlement of social betterment. They forget human nature. A socialistic state is impossible. Preparation is necessary and christianity is the remedy. Government was taking a hand, and was making inroad into the selfishness of individuals. Theodore Roosevelt was not dead, but was coming back to hunt something besides lions and elephants. He disliked to criticise a President, but Taft was administering too much whitewash, so that some interpreted the verse in 23d Psalm to read: "Thy rod and thy Taft they comfort me." Pittsburg millionaires were the stench of the country. There was more deviltry on Fifth Avenue than on the East Side, and he was not sure but there was more on Back Bay than at the North End. Abolish greed in the heart; abolish poverty; abolish intemperance; abolish the evils of home. There was a need of personal responsibility of individuals.

Long applause followed the address and did not subside until Dr. Cady rose in acknowledgement. Questions were invited, but the address was such a finished product that no one wanted to spoil it. A vote of thanks was given to both speakers.

NATIONAL AUTOMOBILE SHOW

Large Number of Exhibits and Beautiful Color Scheme In Decorations.

Probably the greatest of all automobile exhibitions ever held in the United States in point of beauty and in the total value of goods shown was recently inaugurated in Madison Square Garden, New York, when the tenth annual national automobile show was opened there in a setting of spectacular decoration. The spacious auditorium has been transformed into a Roman amphitheater, and from basement to dome a harmonious color scheme in the decorations is followed, showing off the beautiful cars to the best advantage. Under the steel girders near the roof is a cloth dome of azure blue, from which are suspended huge arc lights with colored shades. More than $35,000 has been expended to make this year's decorative display the finest ever seen at an auto show. A new feature is the reservation of a number of boxes seating 1,000 persons in front of the arena.

At the entrance is seen a Roman fountain in plaster, and in the sparkling water which flows to the large basin goldfish are seen at play amid pond lilies and water plants.

More than 7,000 additional feet of space has been added for the exhibitors, and this was obtained by erecting platforms about the amphitheater. These platforms are surrounded by Doric columns, which are decorated in white and gold, surmounted by an eagle on a wheel, the emblem of the show. All the newest designs of models produced by the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers are on view, including every conceivable kind of motor vehicle.

The show this year is larger in number of exhibits than ever before. There are more than 323 different displays, of which fifty-four are exhibits of complete cars propelled by gasoline, electricity and steam; 246 are exhibits of accessories and parts, and there are 23 motorcycle exhibits. The cars range in price from $750 to $7,500.

There is a comprehensive line of motor trucks and business wagons in the basement of the Garden. Here also is a complete exhibit of motorcycles.

There is an unusually large number of inclosed cars on exhibition. Many of the limousines are particularly luxurious. One has a spacious body constructed to permit carrying a washstand and other toilet facilities as well as carrying five passengers in the back. On the roof is space for two trunks. A rack for three more is in the rear. Among the luxurious electric cars is a coupe finished in black and gold, upholstered in golden bronze brocaded satin, with tufted satin head lining and silk shades. It has a cut glass flower vase, and the metal parts are gold mounted. It has cardcases and other dainty conveniences.

PLAN TO STOP SMUGGLING.

Dealers In Gems Form Association to Aid Authorities.

To stop the smuggling of gems, especially diamonds and pearls, a movement has been begun in the Maiden lane district of New York city. Thirty of the largest wholesale firms have formed an association for the purpose of co-operating with the federal authorities in running down all smugglers, whether dishonest dealers or returning tourists.

One of the means proposed for eliminating the gem smugglers or at least curtailing their activity is to induce the London diamond syndicate or the British authorities to keep accurate records of shipments, as is done by the customs authorities in New York. In addition, the members of the new association in New York are to obtain and give information that will assist the authorities in tracing shipments and sales in New York and abroad whenever there is a suspicion of smuggling.

IN DIPLOMACY AND LITERATURE

Nabuco's Success Recognized and Rewarded the World Over

Washington, Jan. 18.—Joaquim Nabuco, ambassador of the republic of Brazil to the United States, died at his home in Lafayette place Monday. He had represented his government here since May, 1905.

Joaquim Nabuco became well and widely known during the several years he was stationed at Washington. He was a conspicuous and interesting figure in the diplomatic circle at Washington, as he was before his appointment to this post a conspicuous and interesting figure in the political circle of Brazil, in the history of which country his family for four generations has played an important part, his father, his grandfather and his great-grand-uncle having served as senators in the Brazilian parliament.

On the death of his father, an ardent supporter of Dom Pedro II, Nabuco was elected to succeed him as senator in the Brazilian parliament, where his service will be always memorable for the part he took in bringing about the abolition of slavery, a mission that entirely obsessed him from 1878, when he first interested himself in the measure, until 1888, when it was finally accomplished, and accomplished at great cost to the Royalists, for it preceded and was in part responsible for the downfall of the monarchy and the establishment of the republic.

With the latter event Nabuco, who was unreconciled to the new government and hoped for the re-establishment of the monarchy, retired from politics and devoted himself to literature, writing in the next ten years a number of volumes. As the years went by the most ardent Brazilian Loyalists were compelled to admit that the republic would never be dislodged, and the supporters of Dom Pedro gradually came into the camp of the republic, laid down their arms, swore fealty, and some of them, Nabuco among the number, entered her service.

His first billet under the new regime was as a special advocate for Brazil in her controversy with Great Britain over the British Guiana boundaries, when the King of Italy acted as arbitrator. Nabuco's literary work in this connection consists of seventeen folio volumes, written in French, with a large atlas.

This mission finished, Nabuco was appointed as minister to England, whence he was transferred four years later to Washington and promoted to ambassador, the first agent of that rank ever accorded by Brazil to any country.

There were no questions of tremendous import between this country and Brazil, yet Nabuco's usefulnesss at the American capital can hardly be overestimated.

Mr. Nabuco's work, both in diplomacy and literature, was recognized and rewarded. Not only his own, but other countries as well, evidenced their approval of his accomplishment, and societies and institutions the world over honored him with degrees and decorations.

The universal approbation of his endeavors to bring about the abolition of slavery was, however, more grateful to him than all the other honors he received, for this object was the passion of his youth, which he followed with unremitting enthusiasm and to which he gave the best there was in him.

THE SKIPPER'S WHITE LIE.

What Happened at Night and What the Passenger Was Told.

It was a dirty night, to use a sailor's phrase, and the talk in one corner of the smoking room drifted to events at sea and the childlike faith that passengers repose in navigators.

Said the scientist who had been collecting specimens on a coral reef:

"I've often heard men and women say they felt so safe with Captain So-and-so, and I've wondered, too, whether their sense of security would still be retained if these favored travelers knew exactly what happened on shipboard during a voyage. For my own part, I have more confidence than ever in a captain of my acquaintance since I learned that he could tell a white lie when it was necessary to calm the fears of a nervous traveler. It so happened that one foggy night I was awakened by the sudden stoppage and reversal of the engines. I jumped out of my bunk, went on deck and was told by the second officer that we had had a narrow squeeze. It appeared that we had nearly run down a schooner as she silently crossed our bows and disappeared into the haze.

"Next morning a woman passenger who sat at the captain's table asked him whether the engines had been stopped and reversed, and he replied: 'Yes; we sometimes do this to test the engineer's watch and see if our machinery is in proper order. We do it at night so as to create no excitement.' Then he got the woman to describe what she had heard and asked her, 'Did you find much time between the stopping and reversing?'

"'No,' she replied.

"'Then,' said the skipper, 'that showed how well everything was working, did it not?'

"When I got the skipper's ear I told him confidentially that I didn't think the schooner's engines had worked as well as ours, and he remarked that it might have been worse. Whether he meant the lie or the incident I didn't inquire, but I suspect it wasn't the lie."—New York Post.

PEARY ON ANDREE BALLOON.

Quite Sure Lost Explorers Never Got to North Pole.

Just before one of his recent lectures on the north pole Commander Peary took occasion to discredit the reports of the discovery of the remains of Andree's balloon 900 miles north of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, near Reindeer lake, in the arctic circle, which have been sent out by Catholic missionaries in that region. He is confident that the Andree expedition never reached the pole.

"Similar reports of the finding of wreckage from the ill fated Jeannette on the north coast of Siberia were heard for years until they were finally discredited by the knowledge that Melville and De Long had landed in the Lena delta," said Commander Peary. "In my opinion, Andree's party came to grief and their balloon dropped into the polar ocean shortly after their start. The chances are that they were either drowned or that they starved miserably to death upon an ice floe.

"I doubt if their exact fate will ever be known."

CHURCHES CONTINUED

Additional Services Held on Sunday

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

Although the special services at the Hall Place M. E. church have closed, the evangelistic note is by no means silent. On Sunday, the pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach, preached two stirring sermons. His morning text was taken from Rev. 3:2 "Be watchful; and strengthen the things that remain." He spoke particularly of strengthening the regular services of the church, the morning worship and the evening praise and gospel services, the Sunday school and the prayer meeting and urged the people to give as much of their time and make the same sacrifice for the church and the work of the Lord as many give to their secular engagements.

His evening sermon was preached from the text "For it is time to seek the Lord,"—Hosea, 10-12, pointing out that the best time is now, and that if ever we intend to accept God and become heirs of eternity it is time now that we did it.

AT FIRST CHURCH

The Young People's Religious Union of First church held a most successful neighborhood meeting Sunday evening in the chapel about seventy-five being present. The meeting opened with the usual devotional excercise, of which a vocal solo by J. Barraja-Frauenfelder was much enjoyed. Mrs. Cate of Canton, who was to have spoken, was unable to be there, but the union was very fortunate in securing Sanford Bates of Dorchester, who held the closest attention of his audience throughout his talk on Socialism in the United States. Mr. Bates after telling of the stages through which Socialism had passed; of its success and failure in other countries, even back as far as when Sparta was in her prime, read from Well's book on Socialism explaining the two basic principles. Mr. Bates closed by saying that while he was not in sympathy with the Socialists' drastic measures still he could see where many of their ideas were ones that might well be considered.

The Young People's choir gave a selection which was exceptionally well rendered. After the meeting an informal reception was held in the ladies parlor, where cocoa, crackers, nuts and candy were served, the pourers being Miss Lela Smith and Miss Gerna Saville.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The preaching morning and evening on Sunday was by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther. Morning text was taken from I John 5:14. Subject: "Our confidence in the matter of prayer." John himself was a beautiful example of confidence and faith in God. He had lived with Jesus and knew what he was talking about and therefore spoke with authority. The world today is looking for men who really know things. The wisdom of parents was emphasized in granting the requests of their children; but the wisdom of God was more strongly emphasized in granting the many requests of men. We can claim God's promise if our petition is in accordance with His will. God is bound to fulfil His word if the condition is complied with. Men pray for what they want, but God gives them what they need. God has not promised to do for us what we can do for ourselves, therefore we can do a great deal toward answering our own prayers.

The evening text was from Mark 12:34; subject: "Not far from the kingdom of God." Mr. Walther spoke of principle and morality as being virtues that brought us very near the kingdom, and that being in the death chamber and see our loved ones pass from us brought us very near God. The preacher pointed out very clearly that to be near was not enough, and closing made a most loving and earnest appeal to his congregation, not only to be near the kingdom, but to be in the kingdom and to have the kingdom in them.

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of H. J. Grass, 52 Ardell street, Montclair. The pastor will lead.

Wednesday evening at 7.45 the men's class social will be held in the chapel. Capt. John Ryan of the Newton police force, 14 to 16 years in the regular army during which the Custer massacre occurred, will give an address. Refreshments. Men invited.

ADVERTISE.

CITY COUNCIL

$500,000. He believed there was enough votes to kill the bill and that the only way was to compromise.

Councilman McDevitt said that he would vote for the $425,000 order.

Councilman Bryant—We may criticise, but the fact remains that the city will have to have $500,000 this year. There were two ways of straighting this matter out. One was by going outside the debt limit, the other by temporary loan. He saw no reason to go outside the debt limit. He saw no reason for a compromise. It has got to be done as sure as we are sitting here. We can not renew these loans as a business man can renew his notes. We are only doing what we are obliged to do. If we should appropriate money for two schoolhouses this year the City Treasurer would not have to borrow so much on temporary loan. These notes have got to be paid unless we want the notes of the city to go to protest.

Councilman Moir—Assuming that the Tax Collector got a substantial part of the taxes of 1908 and 1909 would that be a reason why the City Treasurer would not have to borrow so much.

Councilman Bryant—Yes. We cannot force the taxes of 1909 this year.

Councilman Hobbs—If the city does not collect inside of two years it loses its lien.

Councilman Richards asked Councilman Bryant if he considered the finances of the city in good condition.

Councilman Bryant—I stated that the Finances of the city were in remarkably good condition.

Councilman Richards—We all have a right to our opinion. If any business man found his busines in a situation of this kind he would think it time to get together and get the best results from his assets. We have got to a point where it is absolutely necessary to find out what our assets are. Practically every man tells me he is assessed to the full amount. All know the assessment in Quincy is above anything in the commonwealth. We have natural resources other cities do not have, yet we do not find any other city that does not have more improvements than we have. We should appoint a special committee to see what the assets of the city are.

Councilman Whiton—If you can show me what bearing this has on the loan order I should be glad to hear it. He fails to tell us what the assets are. I suppose the assets are the individuals of the city. We have got to borrow money on the taxes. It seems ridiculous to borrow $425,000 when the City Treasurer will only borrow just what he needs. We do not gain a single thing by delay. It does not relieve the poor tax payer. I do not mean to say that the gentleman does not tell the truth, but it has no bearing on this matter.

Councilman Branch failed to see the reason why we should pass a loan for less than $500,000. The article in the Daily Ledger evidently prepared against the amount, seems to be convincing why that amount is needed. Three fourths of the year passes before the taxes come in, so if the city was square at the beginning of the year we would have to have a loan. It seemed to him that the city was in good condition. It would be unwise to have this same question up again. It is agreed that there are some things that need overhauling but there is a proper time for that. There seemed to be no reason why we should not pass the $500,000 order.

Councilman Hobbs—The law authorizes the borrowing of money to take care of the city until the taxes come in. This money was never intended except to pay the running expenses of the city. We seem to have a permanent indebtedness on which we have to pay interest every year. He had talked with several Councilmen who were agreed that something should be done. He believed that the city should live within its income. We do not seem to be doing it. We may as well settle this and get it out of the way. What little I know about business is that the assets are the money on hand and what taxes are due. The houses, buildings, and industries. We were never in as good shape as at the present time.

Councilman Snow said that he had changed his mind from the last meeting. How long have we got to anticipate that these back taxes will come in? Our city may be a loan office, but it was not intended to be.

Councilman Hobbs asked of the Tax Collector what percentage of the taxes of 1902 to 1906 he considered collectable?

Tax Collector Carey replied that he would not care to state. I recommend all back of 1902 be abated except the City of Boston tax.

In reply to a question as to the City of Boston tax, Collector Carey said that the tax was for Squantum Head. The City of Boston claimed it should be exempt from taxes on this property. Last year the city took a tax title on the property.

Councilman Bolster asked how we could meet all the bills without borrowing money to do it.

Councilman Hobbs we can borrow money by a short term loan and put it in the tax levy.

The motion of Councilman Sandberg for $425,000 was then lost, 7 voting yes and 11 no.

The order for $500,000 was then passed to be ordained without a dissenting vote.

President Hobbs appointed Councilmen Bryant, Flynn, Gardner, Cla k and Branch as the special committee to investigate junk collectors, etc.

Adjourned at 9.15 until Feb. 7.

A COMBINATION WRENCH.

May Be Used With Equal Facility on Square or Round Work.

The wrench illustrated herewith differs materially from the ordinary in the fact that the usual screw mechanism is entirely dispensed with, and the jaws may be instantly opened or closed to any desired extent. The wrench is also provided with a removable jaw piece, which may be quickly applied to adapt it for use in gripping pipe or round work.

Fig. 1 illustrates the wrench with the pipe gripping attachment applied thereon, while Fig. 2 shows the wrench adapted for ordinary use. In this view the lower jaw is cut away to show the interior details.

It will be observed that the ratchet mechanism with which this wrench is equipped in place of the screw mechanism is controlled by a button, A, that projects from the forward face of the lower jaw. When the button A is depressed the dog B is disengaged from the ratchet teeth, permitting the jaw to be moved downward on the shank of the wrench. A spring, C, serves to hold the dog in engagement with the ratchet teeth when the button A is released. It is not necessary to operate the button A when closing the jaws on a piece of work, but merely when it is desired to open them. The pipe gripping device consists of a slotted member, which may be fitted over the shank of the tool and is provided with inwardly inclined teeth, as shown in the illustration. The inventor of this improved wrench is Mr. Charles Waller of Hamilton, Wash.

Formic Acid For Dyeing.

Formic acid, which has become a formidable competitor to acetic acid in the dyeing trade of Germany, is found in a natural state in ants, caterpillars, leaves of fir and pine trees and in the common nettle. It also forms itself in a distillation of sugar, starch and tartaric acid. It is extracted commercially by heating crystallized oxalic acid with glycerin, from which it is withdrawn by means of distillation.

Although chemically pure formic acid is used in small quantities for medical purposes and to some extent in the manufacture of fruit essences, its chief commercial application is in the dyeing and tanning trades, in which its corrosive effect is of great value. For dyeing purposes it is now substituted where formerly 30 per cent acetic acid was used. It gives to mercerized cotton the rustling effect of silk, and in silk trades it is used advantageously to produce the sheen.—Popular Mechanics.

Photograph prints can be mounted on glass with an adhesive made by soaking one ounce of sheet gelatin in cold water to saturation, then dissolving in three and one-half ounces of boiling water. Let the solution cool to about 110 degrees F., then immerse the print in it and squeegee face down on a clear piece of glass. When dry take a damp cloth or soft sponge and wipe off any surplus gelatin on the glass.—Popular Mechanics.

GIFFORD PINCHOT AND HIS HOBBY

What the Former Chief Forester, Deposed by President Taft, Has Done to Save the Wooded Domain of the United States. :: :: :: ::

Determined Fighter Who, Despite His Millions, Developed Early a Civic Ideal. How He Conserved Water Resources For the Public.

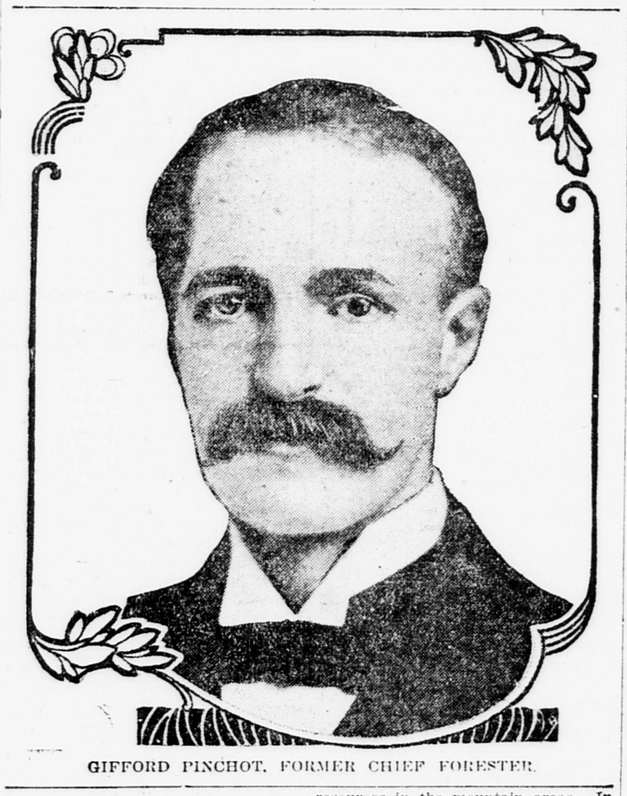
By ROBERTUS LOVE.

NOBODY is particularly surprised that President Taft has dismissed from office Chief Forester Gifford Pinchot. Ever since the Pinchot-Ballinger controversy began the signs have indicated that either one head or the other inevitably must fall. The president has stood by his cabinet officer, Secretary Richard A. Ballinger of the interior department, who has been accused by Mr. Pinchot of complicity in certain land deals alleged to have been engineered for individual and corporate aggrandizement. A commission from congress is going to thrash out this whole matter.

Forester Pinchot was cut down by the presidential ax for constructive insubordination in sending to Senator Dolliver of Iowa a letter presenting his side of the case in outline before the executive department had taken definite action.

The deposed forester is a fighter with a record reaching back to the middle of 1898, when he became chief of our forestry service. President McKinley appointed him. President Roosevelt retained and sustained him.

The forestry service was a standing joke when Pinchot took charge of it, but a serious joke withal, for until that time the powerful corporations and the august individuals who are denominated captains of industry had enjoyed almost a free rein in so driving their horses that they rode roughshod over the public domain, exploiting it in their own interests.



GIFFORD PINCHOT, FORMER CHIEF FORESTER.

The late Secretary Hitchcock of the interior made this discovery in relation to grazing and farm lands particularly and led a fight upon the exploiters which belongs to history. Pinchot discovered it with relation to the national forest reserves and led a fight which is still making history.

Did Things His Own Way.

There is a possibility that Mr. Pinchot is somewhat too self assertive to make a tractable subordinate official. If this be so it may be explained in part by reference to his antecedents. He was born with a whole set of silver spoons and other choice cutlery in his mouth. He is said to be several times a millionaire. In his youth and early manhood he did just what he pleased, having the money to back him up. After getting into an important office he still wanted to do things in his own way. Governmental red tape had the same effect upon him as a red flag flaunted in the face of a bull that has owned the pasture since calfhood.

Pinchot's salary as a forester was a picayune tidbit to him. He didn't need the job to make a living. What he seems to have desired to do was to make a record, and that he has made one which in the main will preserve him to posterity as one of the nation's chief benefactors cannot be gainsaid by disinterested observers, no matter whether they uphold Pinchot in this instance or stand by the president.

Under Pinchot the forestry service has grown from a cubbyhole in the interior department, operated by ten clerks, to a vitally important division in the agricultural department, to which it was transferred five years ago. Now 250 professional foresters are employed. The number of men engaged in protecting and policing the national forests is about 3,000. Our national forest domain comprises 194,500,000 acres, nearly one-third of the forest area of the United States. The money value of this vast domain is estimated at $2,000,000,000, which would have paid the civil war debt and built the Panama canal and the proposed inland waterways.

Pinchot, despite his millions, developed early a civic ideal. His youthful hobby was forestry. He studied the science in America first and then in several European countries. He became known widely as a choice expert in his line. After he was appointed to the post of chief forester he preached the conservation of forest resources so strongly that President Roosevelt took the cue and made the conservation of all national resources one of the prime crusades of his two administrations.

Through Forester Pinchot, upheld by President Roosevelt, vast areas of the western forest reserve were withdrawn from settlement. They were withdrawn also from mineral prospecting, from water power development and free for all cattle grazing. This created a storm of protest. Pinchot was accused of putting a chuck block under the wheels of progress. He was denounced by powerful interests in some of the western states as an autocrat, a czar, a foe to the common people, and all that sort of thing. These denunciations rolled off Pinchot as water from a duck's back. He adhered to his policy, declaring that ultimately the whole people would acknowledge its wisdom.

Conserved Water Supply.

As an instance of the work done by Pinchot, which no insubordination or other shortcomings upon his part can prevent being recognized by future generations as a splendid heritage, may be cited his protection of water resources in the mountain areas. In some parts of Colorado, Utah, Montana, Oregon and Washington the most valuable asset on the map is water. Anybody who can get control of a water supply and turn it into irrigation ditches or transfer it into industrial motive power has entered an open road to opulence.

Corporations and individuals were acquiring water rights in our national forests on easy terms when Forester Pinchot stepped into the arena and shut off the golden streams. He plugged up the flumes for future public use. The privateers who had preyed upon the national domain saw their ships scuttled and raised yells that sounded like wails of drowning men.

Mr. Pinchot let them drown. His theory was that the watersheds, belonging to the public, should be conserved for public benefit. Coincident with this was his theory that if the forests were to be denuded by the wholesale cutting off of the timber the water supply would be sadly depleted. Forests serve to draw down the gentle rains from heaven. It does not rain in desert regions, because there are no trees. Pinchot fought to preserve the timber supplies from marauding lumbermen and in so doing preserve the water supplies, which he bottled up to save from private exploitation.

There is no way of estimating accurately how much in mere money value Gifford Pinchot's preservation policies have saved to the republic. The enormous aggregate will grow with the passage of time and the development of the great west.

It will be understood by the reader that President Taft in deposing the chief forester shows no disposition whatever to discredit Mr. Pinchot's ten years' labor in behalf of the service. The president's action is based upon Pinchot's very recent activities in the Ballinger matter, resulting in his "going over the head" of the chief executive in presenting his side of the case to the United States senate.

Miss Helen Leary of Huntington road, East Milton, is convalescing from scarlet fever.

A children's dance in Wollaston hall is scheduled for the afternoon of February 4.

Mrs. Bessie Ducey is convalescing at her home on Arlington street from an operation on her ear.

Mrs. George E. Thomas of Newton street who has been ill since Thanksgiving, is able to sit up a short time each day.

Rev. Joseph Walther will lead the cottage prayer meeting at the home of H. J. Grass, Ardell street, Montclair this evening.

The annual business meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian society will be held in the vestry on Monday evening January 24th. The meeting will be preceded by a supper.

Men's club of St. Chrysostom's enjoyed the hospitality of Frank E. Cleveland on Monday evening at his home on Cheriton road at a "smoker."

On account of the schoolhouse meeting in the Baptist church, the Wollaston Boys club will hold their meeting on next Thursday in the vestry of the Congregational church.

A gala night is promised on Wednesday evening at the open meeting and guest night of the Girls' Choir club in the vestry of the Wollaston Congregational church.

"The savage" will be the subject at the meeting of the Queen Esther circle to be held at the home of Miss Bessie Wilbur, Taylor street on Wednesday evening.

The annual meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Mission societies of the Wollaston Baptist church will be held with Mrs. Geo. F. Pinkham, 111 Warren avenue on Wednesday afternoon.

SAGE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

NEW HAVEN CHARTER SAFE

Joint Board Says There Should Be No Steps Toward Forfeiture

Boston, Jan. 18.—The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company's charter should not be repealed, nor should proceedings for its forfeiture be taken. If, however, that company is to continue as a corporation of Massachusetts the commonwealth should be secured in an effective control and supervision of such franchises and powers as do not fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of any other state.

The relations of the commonwealth and the corporation should be clearly established, for in his way only will the most efficient service be rendered by the carrier and the best results obtained for all the people of the commonwealth.

Such are the unanimous conclusions of the joint board, consisting of the railroad commissioners, the tax commissioner and the bank commissioner, to whom the legislature of 1900 referrred those questions.

GALLANT SHIP IS BURNED

Torch Applied to the Enterprise to Secure Junk Which She Contained

Boston, Jan. 18.—The old Massachusetts training schoolship Enterprise was destroyed by fire Monday, and when flames and smoke enveloped her time-worn hull some of the spectators felt almost as badly as if "Old Ironsides" had been destroyed.

The Enterprise played a gallant part in peace and war. Many a Bay State boy was taught aboard of her to hand, reef and steer, and has entered the merchant marine or navy. She turned out a host of able seamen.

The Enterprise was burned at the mouth of Pine river for the copper and other metal with which she was bound and fastened. She had been bought by a Boston junkdealer.

GRANITE LOCKOUT CHANGED TO STRIKE

Employers' Proposition to Return Rejected by Workmen

Barre, Vt., Jan. 18.—The lockout which has practically paralyzed the granite industry of this state since Nov 18 has changed to a strike and the responsibility thrown on the 5000 cutters who are out.

This movement was brought about by the action of the manufacturers in Barre, East Barre, Northfield, Montpelier, Williamstown and Waterbury in opening their quarries for the men to return, if they choose, under the old conditions.

The trouble originated at Northfield, where the cutters in some of the shops went on strike because they objected to the use of the pneumatic bush hammer, which the strikers claim emitted so much dust that they were unable to perform their work under satisfactory conditions. A lockout of practically all the granite cutters in the state soon followed, resulting in the tying up of the whole industry in the state for the past two months.

He Refers to Miser Uncle's Legacy as His "Misfortune"

New York, Jan. 18.—J. E. Boeck, who is serving a term of six years in Sing Sing prison far a $250,000 jewelry swindle, learned yesterday that he is heir to a fortune of $1,000,000, left to him by his miser uncle.

When Boeck was told of the inheritance he became agitated at first, but his face soon resumed the hopeless convict look. He has four years to serve before he can use the wealth that has been so unexpectedly thrust upon him.

The millionaire prisoner is a highly educated man, a great traveler, an art connoisseur and a jewel expert. He referred to his inheritance as his "misfortune," and said that, with four years to serve, he has no more use for the money than the man who is dead.

FOOD PRICES TOO HIGH

Should Be Soon Put on Reasonable Basis, Says Cardinal Gibbons

Washington, Jan. 18.—"Most of the prices for food products are clearly out of all reason," said Cardinal Gibbons, in a ninterview, "and the people cannot go on paying such prices when they are not earning any more than they were some years ago, when prices were not so high.

"Something must be done soon to put the prices of foods on a reasonable basis, and any method which will bring this about I endorse."

FAIR MAJORITY FOR LIBERALS

Assured by Elections Held In Great Britain Thus Far

BATTLE OF STATE OFFICIALS

It Results In Their Success, but by Reduced Majorities—Ranks Will Be Augumented by Poll of Scotland and Wales—Burns Scores Notable Victory After Defeat Had Been Predicted by Pessimistic Friends

London, Jan. 18.—At the conclusion of Monday's polling in the general elections the parties stood as follows: Unionists, 92; Liberals, 77; Laborites, 16; Nationalists, 13. Net gain for the Unionists, 29.

The government fared much better than their most ardent supporters expected. The Unionists gained 19 seats, the Liberals four and the Laborites one, making a net gain for the Unionists for the day of 14, one less than they gained at fewer elections on Saturday.

This practically assures the return of the Liberals to power with a fair majority, for among the places still to poll are those in Scotland and Wales, which are always solidly Liberal.

There cannot be said to have been many surprises. Some expected that John Burns, president of the local government board, would be defeated, but pessimism has been present in every election since Burns has been a candidate.

Other state officials who had to fight for their seats and were successful, were Augustin Birrell, chief secretary for Ireland, C. E. Hobhouse, financial secretary to the treasury, and T. J. MacNamara, secretary to the admiralty. Their majorities were considerably reduced.

In fact this happened all through the country, the huge majorities secured in 1906 showing big reductions in almost all cases. Indeed, many of the Liberals who became members of the house of commons by grace of the landslide that year, have been sent back to private life.

Polling will take place today for 46 members, 14 in London and 32 in the provinces.

John Burns of Battersea comes back to parliament with flying colors. Although in the great landslide of 1906 he won by 1600 votes, his normal majority is about 200, and in Monday's hard-fought battle he beat A. S. Benn, the Unionist, by 555.

Defeat has been predicted for "Honest" John perenially during the past decade, and Burns and his friends were considerably frightened this year. Since the most picturesque figure in Westminster was sent to the house of commons by the enthusiastic support of the workingmen and Socialists of his home district as their spokesman, and since he held positions of increased responsibility he has gradually outgrown his old radical ideas.

John Burns of today is a vastly different politician from the old John Burns, who exhorted the workingmen in Trafalgar square to rise against the police. He has become one of the most conservative of Liberals.

John Burns has so far outlived his famous dictum that no man can honestly earn more than $2500 yearly. He holds a $10,000 position and is likely to be promoted to a $25,000 position, although his style of living remains as modest as ever.

MADE TENDERFOOT DANCE

Cowboy Uses His Gun Because Steps Do Not Meet With His Approval

New York, Jan. 18.—"I'm from the wild and woolly west," yelled a stranger in an up-town hotel as he drew a six-shooter and pointed it at the patent leathers of a young man. "Dance, you tenderfoot; dance."

The terrified young man did his best at a buck and wing, but the stranger demanded;

"Faster, you dude, faster."

The young man couldn't go any faster, and the cowboy sent a bullet through his ankle and quickly escaped into the street. The victim has a permanently crippled foot, and the police are seeking a man who looks like a wild westerner.

$30,000,000 of Bonds Wanted

Washington, Jan. 18.—The issuance of $30,000,000 worth of government 10-year 3 percent bonds, for reclamation projects desired by the administration, is provided for in a bill introduced by Chairman Mondell of the house committee on public lands.

To Repay Stolen Funds

Washington, Jan. 18.—The house committee on claims favorably reported a bill to reimburse William Boldenweek, assistant United States treasurer at Chicago, for the $173,000 stolen from the sub-treasury there in February, 1907.

Boy Kills His Father

Ludington, Mich., Jan. 18.—Charles Smith was shot and fatally wounded by his 14-year-old son Henry in his home here when Smith came home intoxicated and threatened to kill his wife.

FAVORS BUT THIRTY-FOUR

Bay State Health Board Finds Many Abattoirs Objectionable

Boston, Jan. 18.—The state board of health reports that out of 370 licensed slaughter houses there are 117 which are distinctly objectionable and only 34 that deserve commendation. The report is an argument for the recommendation made by Governor Draper in his inaugural that the inspection laws of the state be strengthened.

The board itself urges that slaughter houses be isolated; that all waste be removed; that there be running water, hot and cold; that the instruments be sterilized; that animals awaiting slaughter be not tied up in the slaughter house.

The state board of agriculture filed a report recommending that the duties of the cattle bureau be merged with those of the state board. It also wants virus for the prevention of rabies distributed.

GIRL "SOLD" FOR $20

Two Arrests Follow Indictments In White Slave Investigation

New York, Jan. 18.—The price of a comely girl in New York is $20. For this sum Elizabeth Harzo, 20 years old, was "sold" to a woman, according to indictments returned by the Rockefeller grand jury which is investigating the white slave traffic in Greater New York.

Six indictments in all were returned yesterday afternoon, the first since the grand jury began its sessions, and two arrests were made almost immediately thereafter.

Paul Drinko and Philip Mangold were arraigned in the court of general sessions and held in $7500 bail each for trial. Other arrests will follow. The prisoners went to the Tombs in default of bail. They are charged with abducting and selling the Harzo girl.

YOUNG WOMAN VICTIM OF BRUTAL ASSAULT

Youth Charged With Crime Held In $5000 For Hearing

Boston, Jan. 18.—John W. Koelsch was held in $5000 on a most serious charge for a hearing on Jan. 26. Miss Constance Hall, the complainant, was unable to appear against him. Koelsch, who is 18 years old, pleaded not guilty.

Miss Hall is 17 years old and lives with Mr. and Mrs. George W. Russell, 32 Summit street, Roslindale. She was brutally attacked in a field off that thoroughfare Saturday afternoon, and Koelsch is accused of the crime. She is in a serious condition. She was cut, bruised and battered by the blows dealt her by the assailant. According to her statements a young man crept up behind and knocked her down. She was rendered insensible by his ferocious attack, and when she recovered consciousness he was gone. She dragged herself on hands and knees to the Russell home, and Dr. Ford was summoned.

BOSTON'S RICHEST MAN

Title Passes to Middle-Aged Bachelor Who Is Self Made

Boston, Jan. 18.—The distinction of being Boston's biggest individual taxpayer goes this year to George R. White, president of the Potter Drug and Chemisal company, who lives at 285 Commonwealth avenue, according to a compilation made up by experts in the office of the board of assessors.

Mr. White, who is Boston's "latest" richest man, is the successor of the late Quincy A. Shaw to that title, Shaw in turn having succeeded J. M. Sears.

White was born near Boston and is middle-aged, but still a bachelor. He was not "born with a silver spoon in his mouth" and is what might be termed a self-made man. He is not a college graduate.

Lighting Plant Burned

Bristol, N. H., Jan. 18.—Bristol and New Hampton people are buying kerosene and candles for the week because they do not expect to have any electric lights during that time. The lighting plant, valued at $25,000, was practically destroyed by fire. There is no gas plant accessible to the two towns.

American Warships at Yokohama

Tokio, Jan. 18.—The Asiatic squadron of the Pacific fleet, United States navy, anchored in Yokohama harbor to coal. Rear Admiral Hubbard and the captains will be received by the emperor next Wednesday.

In Deer Fork Canyon

How a Man Helped to Save His Enemy's Life.

By ADDISON HOWARD GIBSON.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

In the maroon haze which always in the late summer enwraps the rugged slopes of Deer Fork canyon Faith Austin was gathering wild red raspberries.

A young man in miner's garb who was prospecting behind the bowlders on the opposite slope saw her and had just made up his mind to cross the stream that zigzagged down the canyon and join her when he saw a man swinging along up the trail toward her.

"It's Nick," he said to himself. "I had forgotten for the moment what he told me last night. I meant then to leave the canyon at once, and I must, for I can't bear to stay and see her throw herself away on such a fellow as Nick Sanders." And Howard Olney turned and walked away that he might not witness the meeting between the two.

The girl did not need to turn her head to know who was coming. There was an unmistakable individuality in the shuffling steps, and recognition brought a look of annoyance to her face as she continued her work.

"Pickin' berries, be you, Faith? You're lookin' sweet as a Injun pink. What's the use of your workin' so hard for them boarders when you know I'm ready for you?" he asked.

"But you ought to know by this time that I'm not ready for you," she flashed back.

The man reddened to the roots of his sandy hair, but, controlling his anger, replied:

"I've got enough to keep you from slavin' here, boardin' miners, as you're doin'. There's no use in your stayin' single for Howard Olney. He left for good this mornin'. He's goin' to keep books for Mr. Owen, the superintendent of the High Tone mine."

The telltale color mounted to Faith's cheeks, but she bent forward to capture a refractory vine, thus hiding her face from her companion.

"You think I'm not good enough for you," he went on, as she took no notice of his insinuation. "You think Olney's better'n me 'cause he's been a schoolmaster back east and can use lots of grammar. But if you'd lived in the same shack with him, as I've done, you'd know he's not such a saintly galoot as you think he is. It's no man that'll turn his back on the girl as loves him and go off courtin' Superintendent Owen's daughter," he finished contemptuously.

Faith faced him with flashing eyes. "Nick Sanders, you're worse than I thought you were! Howard Olney took you into his cabin and nursed you through a spell of fever when nobody else would, and now you try to injure him behind his back. That's your gratitude!"

His eyes fell beneath the withering scorn of hers. Of the allusion to herself she took no notice, but she could not help resenting the slur put upon the man she loved.

"You've no call to fire up for Olney," he said maliciously. "He's above courtin' a girl who makes her livin' cookin' for miners. Besides, he's in love with Daisy Owen, and she's struck on Olney's good looks. It's bound to be a match."

Faith again bent over her berry picking that her tormentor might not see the effect of his words. She had heard through her mother's boarders about Miss Owen's wealth, beauty and accomplishments and realized that she was a mere nobody compared with the superintendent's heiress. What right had she to hope that Mr. Olney would ever love her? Still, the mocking tones stung her keenly, and, her basket being filled, she said goodby and hurried away up the rocky trail that led to a dingy, weather worn cabin half hid by the bowlders and evergreens surrounding it.

Faith and her mother were alone in the world. About a year before her father had been killed by an explosion in the mines. It was Howard Olney, a young schoolmaster from New York, turned prospector, who had risked his own life to recover the body. They could never forget this nor his untiring kindness during that time of bereavement. It was he who had encouraged them to go on with the regular routine of life, and from this sad period Faith dated her love for the young man. He had a shack two miles down Deer Fork, and most of his days were spent prospecting.

Soon after Sanders suddenly returned, having been away several months. He had been "speculating," he announced, and had brought back some money. Nick had known the family in Indiana. In fact, he had accompanied Mr. Austin to Colorado. He was a crafty, shiftless fellow and did not make friends among the miners. Indeed, so unpopular was he that when stricken with fever shortly after there was no one to care for him except Mrs. Austin until Howard, to relieve the overburdened woman, took the fellow home with him and nursed him back to health and strength. Had it not been for jealousy he would have been grateful as one of his selfish nature could be.

Meanwhile Faith had wandered down the canyon, unconsciously taking the trail over which her lover had passed an hour or two before.

"I will give up thinking of him," she said, stooping to gather a spray of wild columbine. "I won't let his going away without even saying goodby worry me. Mother must not see that I care, for of course she'll hear that he's gone. I'll pick some flowers as an excuse for coming and go home and live my life without him. A woman's heart must be strong for endurance."

Suddenly a wild cry burst upon her ears.

"Help, help!"

The girl listened with bated breath. It did not come from the direction of the mining camp. Still, it might be one of the men had wandered down the gulch and met with some accident.

Again the call came, wild and agonizing, as though face to face with a terrible doom. This time she located the cry.

"Some one has fallen into the old shaft!" she cried, running swiftly in that direction. This "old shaft" led to what had once been a promising mine, but a subterranean stream that rose mysteriously and at no regular period rendered it so unsafe that it had been abandoned, and no one who knew of its treachery dared venture into the shaft.

Almost breathless, Faith gained the mouth of the mine and, dropping on her knees, peered down into the dark depths below. The black sullen waters of the rising stream boiled and hissed among the jagged rocks and crevices, lashing madly the legs of a man who stood insecurely on a narrow ledge fully halfway down. He was clinging in terror to a jutting rock above him, which threatened every moment to give way. It was a perilous, an awful situation, and the girl shuddered as she gazed, while in the white horror drawn face upturned to hers she recognized Nick Sanders.

"For God's sake, Faith, try to help me out of this!" he screamed.

"I'll try, Nick!" she called back.

But how was she to do it? She looked about hopelessly; then her eyes fell upon a large coil of castoff rope near the broken windlass. She caught it up eagerly, and, lowering one end to Nick, she said:

"Tie this around you under the arms."

He did so and felt himself being slowly drawn upward. Such was his peril that he could not realize that the girl's hands alone were not strong enough to pull him to the top. He did not know that another had also heard his calls for help and had arrived just in time to aid in the rescue. When almost up a blow on the head from a shelving ledge rendered him unconscious for several minutes.

When he came to himself he was lying on the bank of Deer Fork, and Faith was bathing his face. Hearing Howard Olney's voice, he kept his eyes closed and listened.

"I'm glad I was in time to help you save him," the young man was saying. "I was on my way to see you, Faith, to say goodby before leaving the canyon. At first I thought I would go away without, but I couldn't. I felt that I must look upon your face once more before I gave you up to him."

Nick heard the tremor in Olney's voice that told of the emotion he was endeavoring to control.

"Just once more, Faith," he went on. "I should not go if you could love me, but I know how it is. You have known Nick all your life. In the delirium of his fever I learned how much he loved you, and afterward he told me that you loved him in return. I will not come between you. Goodby, dear one. Remember I helped save him for your sake."

There was intense pain in the tones, and as he turned away Faith gave a quick sob, and Nick felt a hot tear fall on his face. But the girl made no effort to detain the man she loved. One word would have called him back to her side, yet her lips seemed paralyzed. She knew that he loved her and was going because he believed she loved another; that she would never see him again and her old lonely life would go on unbroken, unbrightened by him. He was slipping away from her forever, still she could not utter a word.

And Nick knew, too, that if Olney went now his own chances of some time winning Faith were better than ever.

"Hold on a minute, Howard!" called the rescued man, sitting up.

"What is it, Nick?" asked Olney, turning back, though he did not trust himself to look toward Faith.

"Come up nearer. I've got somethin' to tell you both, and you don't know how hard it is for a man to call himself out loud and right before two good folks he's been a-wrongin', a onery big liar," said Nick. "But that's just what I am—a onery big liar. I lied to you about Faith's lovin' me, and then I lied to her about your leavin' Deer Fork to keep accounts for Mr. Owen just because you were in love with his daughter. I'm a low lived devil, but when I was down in that ole shaft a-facin' death I made up my mind if I ever got the chance I'd be a better man. Now that you two have saved my worthless life and have give me the chance I asked for I'm goin' to begin with you and Faith by settin' you right. You love each other, and I want to see you happy, so my lies ain't standin' in your trail any more.

"Maybe you wonder how I happened to be down in that old mine. You remember that Swede who got a pile of gold and some nuggets stole from his cabin over on Firecheck creek? Well, I am the thief, and I hid it all down in that shaft, where I knowed nobody would dare go pokin' round. I went down, aimin' to git part of it to swap off, and that water riz right up like a avengin' angel. I hain't got the makin' of half a saint in me, but I'm goin' to tote back that stuff where I got it from and strike a new trail up the canyon of life."

FORECASTS MADE FOR 1910

Men of Prominence Predict a Brilliant Year.

MARKED ERA OF PROSPERITY.

South Pole to Be Reached This Year and Air Travel In Five Years, Says Professor Willis Moore—Much Progress In Aeronautics—Real Help For Poor Women.

Predictions of continued prosperity and a continuation of the wonderful march in progress are contained in the following symposium of New Year's greetings from some famous men and a prominent woman:

By JOSEPH G. CANNON,
Speaker of house of representatives.

The year 1909 has closed with the people prosperous. They are earning more on the average than they ever earned before. I see no reason for a change during the new year.

By JAMES BRYCE,
British ambassador to United States.

The twentieth century will be renowned for commerce, for progress in the manner of living, for the successful extraction from this world of all the boons it offers to those who are willing to go after them. Every nation will strive for commercial supremacy, and this means that every one of its citizens will have to work toward this end. The competition that will follow will be but an incentive toward progress. The era of prosperity before us will be more substantial than any in the past.

By WILLIS L. MOORE,
Chief of United States weather bureau.

If I were to make a forecast for the coming year and longer I should predict that within twelve months the south pole will be reached and that within less than five years passengers will be carefully tucked away in aluminium compartments, with air cushions and electric lights and heat, and glide through the air at the rate of 200 miles an hour over the route followed by Peary, encircle the globe and return to civilization without having landed.

By MRS. O. H. P. BELMONT,
Prominent woman suffrage leader.

As the old year died some of the traditions that women have clung to died with it. A new awakening has come with the new year. This enlightenment will make slow but gradual progress with the women of the nation.

The more fortunate woman has awakened to the fact of her obligation to the self supporting woman not only in the way of charity, but in methods that do away with the necessity of charity. The woman who has everything is beginning to realize that she has it in her power to enforce conditions wherein women less fortunate may benefit by her influence. The woman suffrage movement is producing this effect. The anti-women, who are unable to appreciate this, are still satisfied with the subordinate position of the sex in general—praiseworthy, perhaps, in some respects, but far from an elevated standard.

If the suffrage bill, as now promises, shall pass the legislature I should say, as the greatest boon of 1910, that the wise men of the United States have at last realized their inability to stand alone in the government of the country and that the extended help of the wise women is grateful to them.

By ORVILLE WRIGHT,
Famous aeronaut and inventor.

We are of the opinion that the new year will see much progress in aeronautics not only in America, but in all the civilized nations that have taken up the art of flying. Better motors, greater speed and improvement in details are some of the things we expect in connection with the aeroplane. It is almost certain also that flying will be taken up by amateurs to a great extent during the next few months. Two big events that will arouse world-wide interest will be held in America—namely, the Gordon Bennett international balloon race and the Gordon Bennett flying machine cup event. Both of these will add much zeal to the flying business and are sure to put aeronautics on a stronger basis in the United States.

My brother and I will probably be busy manufacturing aeroplanes in 1910. We expect to do little if any flying ourselves and will devote what time we have to the scientific end of the business in the hope of bringing our machine to greater perfection. One other thing that we expect to do in the new year is to build some racing machines. We have never built a machine especially for speed. The one we built for the United States government was faster than our others, but it was not designed for speed as much as for capacity and long distance flying. But our intentions are to build a machine especially designed for racing.

By Brigadier General JAMES ALLEN,
Chief signal officer of U. S. army.

The new year should be signalized by the perfection of the inventions and discoveries which have so far added to the world's material and moral advancement. One of the possibilities of the near future is that the peace of the world may have to be preserved by the best aerial navy.

NEW CHARGES IN LAND CASE

Alleged Misuse of Public Funds by Ballinger and Other Officials

Washington, Jan. 18.—Sensational charges against Secretary of the Interior Ballinger and other officials, alleging improper use of public funds to pay private traveling expenses of a nephew of the secretary, were made in an affidavit filed by Representative Hitchcock (Dem. Neb.), with the house committee on expenditures of the interior department.

This action, which will add fuel to the already raging Ballinger-Pinchot controversy, followed the action of Senator Nelson presenting the conference report on the resolution providing for the investigation of the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy. The conference report would permit "any official or ex-official" concerned to appear personally or by counsel, and the time limit provided could make it posible to extend the investigation beyond this session of congress.

The conference report, as presented, was unanimously adopted by the senate.

GREAT ARTIFICIAL LAKE

Government Dam to Hold Soshone River In Check Is Completed

Cody, Wyo., Jan. 18.—The last bucket of cement to complete the big government dam to impound flood waters of the Soshone river, eight miles above Cody, was put in place Monday, and the event was celebrated in true western style.

The dam is the highest structure of its kind in the world, 328 feet. It is 85 feet long at the bottom and 200 feet long at the top.

It is designed to hold back only the flood waters of the Soshone to form an artificial lake, ten miles square. This is expected to furnish water for the irrigation of 159,000 acres of land.

WALSH MUST SERVE HIS FIVE-YEAR TERM

Supreme Court Refuses to Review Chicago Banker's Case

Washington, Jan. 18.—The last hope of John R. Walsh, the Chicago banker, in his fight for liberty, was swept away when the supreme court of the United States denied him a writ of certiorari that would permit a review of his case.

Walsh is under sentence to five years in the federal prison at Leavenworth. The man convicted of juggling railroads and wrecking the Chicago National bank based his fight for a review of his case on the grounds that several of the fifty-four counts were based on the same transaction. The plea for a writ of certiorari was filed with the supreme court on Dec. 20 after the United States circuit court of appeals had refused the banker a new trial.

RAISE IN SHOE PRICES

To Keep Pace With General Advance In Practically All Commodities

Boston, Jan. 18.—A committee especially appointed by the national convention of shoe and leather industries reported to the National Shoe and Wholesalers' association, meeting in this city, and its finding recommending a readjustment of prices was unanimously adopted.

The committee reported in part as follows: "The existing high level of prices for leather and other materials compels a general readjustment of prices for all grades of footwear. The same economic conditions which have brought about advancing prices of practically all commodities include in their operation hide, leather and shoe prices. This necessitates, for the protection of the consumer in the quality of his footwear, an advance in price equivalent to the increased cost of material."

SMALLPOX INCREASING

Quarantine Duty Causes Wakefield Police to Become Exhausted

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 18.—The discovery of three more cases of smallpox, one in a boarding house where twenty-five girls employed in a knitting mill have been quarantined, has confirmed the fears of the health authorities that the town's visitation by the disease is to be continued indefinitely.

The situation is being complicated by the smallness of the town's police force. The officers have been working night and day guarding quarantined houses, and several have been found sleeping while standing up at their posts.

Storrow Gains Twelve Votes

Boston, Jan. 18.—James J. Storrow made a net gain of twelve votes over Mayor-elect Fitzgerald in the first nine wards at yesterday's recount of the votes cast in the mayoralty election.

French Warship Wrecked

Paris, Jan. 18.—The French sloop of war Martial has been wrecked on one of the Balearic islands. Three of the crew were drowned.

Statehood Bill Passes the House

Washington, Jan. 18.—The bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico to statehood passed the house. It will now be sent to the senate.

WANTED TO GET GIRL'S SAVINGS

Bride Brutally Treated by Two Men as Soon as Wedded

HER HUSBAND IS IMPLICATED

Woman Feigned Death After One Held Her Down While the Other Kicked Her In the Head—Tried to Conceal What They Thought Was Murder by Throwing Her Into a Well, Where She Revived

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 18.—Joseph Marok and Bartoni Laski of Chicopee, wanted in connection with a murderous attack on Marok's bride, formerly Miss Annie Maskal of Chicopee and Salem, and leaving her for dead in a well in Bridgeport, Conn., were arrested Monday at the baggage room window of the Union station in this city.

They came to the station and presented a baggage check for the trunk which the unfortunate bride had taken with her from Chicopee when she left there last Thursday to be married. The Springfield police had been tipped off from Bridgeport that the trunk had been sent to Springfield. Watch had been kept at the Springfield baggage room for them.

It was learned that Mrs. Marok formerly lived in Salem. She had saved her money in that city and had a deposit book calling for $250 on the Salem Savings bank. From Salem she moved to Chicopee, where she saved $350 to put in the Chicopee Falls Savings bank.

Two deputy sheriffs who came to Springfield in pursuit of the two men said that Mrs. Marok was in a critical condition in the Bridgeport hospital.

Marok and Laski were held on a technical charge of being fugitives from justice.

From the previous reports and from new facts told by the Bridgeport deputies at Springfield the story charged against the two men runs thus:

Marok and Laski found out that Miss Maskai had saved $600. Marok proposed marriage to her and was accepted. Last Wednesday the girl drew $350 from the Chicopee Falls Savings bank. She put that in her trunk, with her $250 bank gook on the Salem Savings bank.

Laskai and the girl at once went to Hartford, where Marok and the girl were married. Friday all three went to Bridgeport. The men let the girl wait in the Bridgeport station all day, then started her out toward Fairfield at night on pretext they were to visit relatives.

When out on the Fairfield road, according to the police story, the men attacked the girl. One held her down and the other kicked her in the head. The girl told the Bridgeport hospital surgeons that she feigned death in order to have them let her alone. Believing her dead, the men threw her over a wall and walked away. A few rods beyond, they came across a well on the William Ferris farm. They returned to the woman, who had not dared move, carried her to the well and threw her in, leaving her this time for good.

This was about 9 o'clock Friday night. There was a little water in the bottom of the well. The girl revived on being chilled by the water, climbed to a thick ice-rim on the top of the water and held onto a small pipe. She was too weak, however, to try to get out. There she clung all night, her feet freezing.

At daylight she threw her muff and shoes up over the mouth of the well so it would attract attention. She was too hoarse to scream.

Saturday noon William Ferris saw the muff and shoes, found the woman and dragged her out of the well more dead than alive.

THIRTY-EIGHT ARRESTS

Ocean Stewards and Waiters Implicated In Theft of Provisions

Hamburg, Jan. 18.—Thirty-eight of the stewards and waiters of the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria of the Hamburg-American line were arrested upon the arrival of the steamer at Cuxhaven.

Detectives allege that they found the existence of a system through which provisions were stolen and smuggled into the quarters of the steerage passengers by the connivance of the stewards with the waiters, and sold to those in the steerage at low prices.

HOUSEHOLD CARES

Tax the Women of Quincy the Same as Elsewhere.

Hard to attend to household duties
With a constantly aching back.
A woman should not have a bad back,
And she wouldn't if the kidneys were well.
Doan's Kidney Pills make well Kidneys.
Here is a Quincy woman who endorses this claim:

Mrs. Deborah Prouty, 39 Quincy avenue, Quincy, Mass., says: "I am in a position to speak in the highest terms of Doan's Kidney Pills. My back ached nearly all the time and caused me considerable trouble. Any sudden movement or an attempt to stoop, sent sharp pains through my loins. My health was much run down and I had but little strength or energy. I was very much alarmed about my condition. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I had known so many people who had used them with benefit, that I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. The use of three boxes convinced me that they were the best kidney remedy to be had. I am now in good health."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Ralph P. Damon is seriously ill at his home on Mill street.

The City Council Committee on Finance met Monday night after the Council meeting.

If the rain continues long it means several inches of slush to wade through for a time.

The rain today was very unwelcome. Such changeable weather is unhealthy.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. William E. Brown, whose father, Terrence Byron, died last week at Concord.

A supper will be held at the Atlantic Memorial church this evening by the Ladies' society.

Mrs. Francis M. Dyer of Eustis street passed away Saturday. Funeral services were held this afternoon, the burial being at Portland, Me.

William Loud, the contractor of Hall place, has had a car load of green horses come from a ranch in Cleveland, Ohio, and hopes to break them in with his heavy stone teams.

V. S. Brokaw and W. J. Leslie are the two new vestrymen elected last week at the annual meeting of St. Chrysostom's parish.

Senator Hultman had taken from the files on Monday, the bill of 1909 to make the salary of the judge of probate of Norfolk county $5,000 a year.

Wollaston Glee club gives its first concert of the season tonight at the Wollaston Congregational church. The club will be assisted by soloist and reader from Boston.

It will be good news to Quincy if the Fore River secures a contract for one or two battleships from the Argentine Republic. It would mean at least two years' work for a large number of men.

Henrich Shuecker, harpist of the Boston Symphony orchestra, considered one of the finest in this country, is coming to Quincy tomorrow night to assist at the Davis-Plancon concert at Alpha hall.

A social of the Walther Men's club will be held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church on Wednesday evening. Captain John Ryan of the Newton Police force who served for a long time in the regular army during which the Custer massacre occurred will deliver an address. Refreshments will be served.

The many friends of T. Stanton of Bates avenue will be happy to learn that he is home from the Newton hospital, where he was confined on account of a recent fall from a tree, while at work with the gypsy moth gang. With the aid of crutches Mr. Stanton is able to be about.

T. Corcoran of Grove street had a very unlucky accident happen to him a few days ago. While nailing up a case he cut his finger with a nail which after a few days festered and in picking at it with a rusty knife blade caused blood poison to set in. It is stated by Dr. Sheahan who is attending him, that his hand and arm is in a very serious condition.

MARRIAGES.

LOUD—CAMERON—In Brockton, Jan. 1, by Rev. Ira David, Mr. Walter Loud of East Milton to Miss Jeanette Cameron of West Quincy.

DEATHS.

BRIEFS

The annual meeting of the Democratic City Committee, to have been held Monday evening, was postponed until some future date, to be announced, for lack of a quorum.

The rain during Monday night and the cold air covered the brick sidewalks in City Square with a coating of ice that was extremely dangerous to pedestrians until the sidewalks were sanded.

A falling icicle on Monday struck Samuel Sammett of Quincy, as he was standing on Washington street knocking him to the sidewalk. He was taken to the Relief hospital in a police ambulance, where it was found that he had a badly lacerated forehead and possibly a fractured skull. He is junior partner in the firm of Greenhaus & Sammett, 564 Washington street, Boston.—Boston Advertiser.

LOUD—CAMERON.

Miss Jeanette Cameron of Copeland street and Mr. Walter Loud of Somerset place, East Milton, were married Sunday afternoon at the home of Rev. Ira David of Brockton. It was quite a surprise when they came home on Monday and announced their marriage. Miss Cameron is well known in West Quincy on account of being a member of many social clubs of this city and Mr. Loud is very well known as he played base ball with the old West Quincys and also with Watertown A. A. He is employed as a teamster by his father, George W. Loud of East Milton. Mr. and Mrs. Loud will reside on Pierce street, East Milton.

PARKWAY REPAIRS.

William B. de las Casas, chairman of the metropolitan park commission, was heard by the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs of the Legislature on Monday on a request for an appropriation of $55,000 to repair damages by the blizzard, Dec. 25-26 on the Winthrop boulevard, Revere beach reservation, Lynn shore, Quincy and Nahant. The commission also asked for $15,000 to complete the dredging of the upper Mystic river as required by the state board of health. There was no opposition.

TODAY'S COURT.

James Reed was fined $15; John J. Kelley, William Wynne and William Williamson $10 each, for drunkenness at Quincy.

Patrick J. Whalen was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Randolph.

SUFFRAGE DISCORDS.

Mrs. Belmont's Ascendency a Bone of Contention.

Unless all signs fail there are going to be serious ructions of some sort in the woman suffrage camp. So many are their woes that it would take too much time to enumerate them, but everything goes back to the national convention in Seattle last summer, when the national association voted to move its headquarters from the peaceful little town of Warren, in Illinois, to New York. As soon as this decision was reached the bird of peace spread its wings and took its departure to parts unknown. The western sisters murmured. The metropolis would swallow up the headquarters, they thought, and they would be left out in the cold The New York suffragists also had their misgivings. The headquarters, they prophesied, would swallow New York.

From the point of view of the two classes of malcontents both these predictions have now happened. Complaints that the national office is absorbed with local affairs and oblivious to constitutional amendments and other issues pending in the west reach the east daily, and the local organizations on their part complain of encroachments on their preserves by the national office, while the state office is declared to be an equal sinner.

"There are upward of a score of counties in New York state that haven't even an organization," a local suffragist remarked tartly, "and yet the state officers spend the greater part of their time in New York."

The association of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont with these two organizations makes the situation acute. When the two bodies acceded to her proposition to make their removal to New York financially possible her capacity for leadership was not reckoned with. Now, as her figure has loomed larger and larger in the public eye, the query of Cassius, "Upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed that he is grown so great?" has been repeated with suitable modifications. One of the specific complaints anent the relations of the suffrage organizations with this particular patron is that her financial contributions are always made for a specific purpose instead of being paid into the treasury to be expended as the executive sees fit.

The next meeting of the National Woman Suffrage association will be held in Washington in April, and all these issues are likely to come to a head there. The association elects its president every year, and a well known western woman is talked of as the probable nominee of the insurgent party. The present president, the Rev. Anna Howard Shaw, has held office for eight years.

POOR CONDITION MAY DEFEAT JEFF

Chances to Dethrone Johnson Depend on Physical Shape.

FANS ARE ON ANXIOUS SEAT.

Await Favorable Reports on Big Californian's Training Before Betting on Him—Battle Will Surely Be History Maker With Big Fellows In Shape.

Pugilistic fans throughout the country will be more than pleased when Jim Jeffries settles down to the hard training work he has promised to do in preparation for his fight with Jack Johnson for the world's heavyweight title July 4 next.

In the minds of a great many of those who follow the game of fisticuffs closely the big Californian will have more than a hard task to fit himself for a strenuous battle despite the fact that he declares he will be able to do so. There are many reasons why the fans are on the anxious seat at the present time and are fearful of the result of the conflict on Independence day. The most important of these are the reports which have been coming day after day from the cities where Jeff was performing his theatrical contracts. These reports have had him suffering from various ailments, principally colds and lumbago, and no effort seems to have been made to cover up the fact that Jeff is in bad physical condition.

Jeffries as well as anybody else knows the strenuous training program ahead of him, and he also knows that he must be in good condition if he is to knock that black man, Jack Johnson, off the throne he now occupies. That is Jeff's ambition, and it is the ambition of the majority of fight fans to see him turn the trick.

But there is no gainsaying the fact that the reports of Jeff's poor condition for the last couple of weeks have served to arouse more doubt than before existed in the public's mind as to his ability to lick the negro. It is true that the Californian has been training while on the road in an effort to get into better condition, but it is doubtful if the benefit he has gained through such activity has offset the ailments which he has incurred by jumping from city to city for his theatrical contracts.

As a financial proposition this theatrical work is certainly reaping a harvest of golden shekels for the man who is to face the negro, but those who want to see Jeff defeat Johnson are not looking at the thing from a financial viewpoint. They want to see him in a condition that will merit their confidence; then they will be satisfied to bet their money on him.

With this confidence lacking it would not be a hard thing for even those who admire Jeffries to switch their allegiance to the negro, and there are a great many who doubtless would not allow their admiration to stand in the way of their better judgment when it comes to the real fight. Jeff's success as a drawing card as an actor is not questioned, but if he is not in the "condition of his life" next July 4 it will not be hard for those to remember what is written in the past.

As a factor in making the fight itself the success it should be, financial and otherwise, after the colossal purse that has been offered by Tex Rickard and John Gleason, the condition of the "big card" will cut a great figure. With Jeff really fit it will be a fight that will carry thousands of people to the ringside. If he is not in the condition he should be in these same people might change their minds about attending it. And there is where the promoters would receive a jolt.

It has been said before than condition more than anything else will decide whether there is to be a new white world's champion or whether a black is to remain the ruling power. This means Jeff's condition, for it can be depended on that Jack Johnson will be ready and fit when the first gong starts what is expected to be the greatest battle in modern ring history.

When it is said that this contest will find such a prominent place in the record of fistic encounters the fact is not overlooked that it might not do so if James J. Jeffries is not in fit condition to place it there.

Fred Clarke an Inventor.

In addition to being the leader of a baseball team as well as the owner of a fine Kansas farm, Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburg Nationals, is the inventor of a waterproof covering for baseball diamonds, the device used in Pittsburg the past season having been originated by him. Since the end of the playing season Clarke has worked on his idea, developing the same until now he has perfected the diamond protector to such an extent as to warrant his placing it on sale in the open market.

Ketchel to Tackle Burns.

Stanley Ketchel, the middleweight champion, has announced that he will fight Tommy Burns before the National Sporting club of London. The fight is slated for February or March. "If I beat Burns," he declared, "I will probably give Sam Langford a match in London and then run down to Australia and go up against Bill Squires and Bill Lange."

BASKETBALL SEASON ON.

Grand Struggles In All Big Leagues Anticipated.

HOW THE TEAMS SIZE UP.

In West Chicago Appears Strongest. In the East No One Team Stands Out as Best, but Cornell and Columbia Look Good.

Judging by the intense interest that is being displayed and the large attendance at every game, the 1910 basketball season will be the greatest the strenuous and popular indoor game has ever had. In fact, basketball now occupies a more important place in the curriculum of college athletics than ever before. In the east a grand struggle is anticipated for the chance of playing against the winner of the western title for the national championship.

Yale, Cornell, Princeton, Pennsylvania and Columbia universities are all represented by strong teams this season; but, while the honors seem to lie among these teams, there are many other fives to be reckoned with. Take, for instance, the West Point cadets. Uncle Sam's boys have one of the strongest teams in the east, while Williams, Dartmouth, Penn State, Brown, Georgetown, Rochester and Syracuse are all to be reckoned with before the season's honors in the east are decided.

Of the so called big six Princeton's team is the weakest at present, but the Tigers have several good players, and the team may show improvement later. Cornell is represented by one of the strongest fives that ever represented the Ithacans on the floor. In Captain Crosby Cornell has one of the best all around players the game has ever brought to light. He is a splendid shot and Cornell's main offense.

As he is a first class man himself, it is up to him to develop some good guards and another forward. Last season he had a few green men and whipped them into such shape that at the end of the season the team disputed the championship with Pennsylvania.

While Yale has lost Eddie Van Vleck as center, the coaches have any number of good subs left. The team for the present is made up of Captain Eames, guard; Holdenridge and Hyde, forwards; Scudder, center, and Legg and Murphy, guards. All these were regulars last yeair except Scudder and Murphy, who were substitutes. Fred Murphy, the baseball captain and football halfback, is the best basketball guard in college, and it is expected that he will play in the championship games. Yale expects to have a better basketball team than for two years, although there is no professional coach, graduates helping Captain Eames.

Although Pennsylvania is minus the services of the famous Kienath, one of the best basketball players any university ever had, and the two guards, McCrudden and Kiefeber, McNichol, Hough and Spier are left, however, while Miller, captain of last year's football team, also showed up well last year in the few games that he played. This in itself is a strong nucleus for a varsity team.

The prospects for a strong team at Columbia are very bright. Captain Ted Kiendl has two of last year's subs and one regular left to help him out. With Mahon and himself for forwards these two positions will be well taken care of. Columbia's recent easy defeat of Princeton in New York by a score of 40 to 9 shows that the Blue and White men will be in the thickest of the fight from start to finish.

In the west a grand struggle for the conference championship among the three big universities—Chicago, Wisconsin and Minnesota—is in order. Of the trio Chicago appears to be the strongest. Although former Captains Schommer and Georgen are both out of the game for good, the Maroons have a strong nucleus upon which to build up another powerful five in Captain Hoffman, Page and Fulkerson, guards; Hubble, subcenter, and Clark, Kelly, Cleary and Henry, forwards. This squad of veterans will be reenforced and strengthened by several likely candidates from last year's freshman five.

Minnesota has nine veterans of last year's team in Grimes, Mencka, Grant, Rosenwald, Anderson, Lawler, Walker, Hanson and Giltinan. Long, Robillard and Clark are some of the freshmen who are showing exceptional quality on the floor.

Wisconsin will have a powerful five this season and will undoubtedly make things warm for their rivals.

Nelson May Be Referee of Big Fight.

Battling Nelson says he may be the third man in the ring in the coming Jeffries-Johnson fight for the world's heavyweight championship.

"Johnson made the suggestion a short time ago that I act as referee in his fight with Jeffries," declared Nelson recently. "Since then I have also seen Jeffries, and he also is agreeable to my officiating."

Will Try to Swim English Channel.

Brent Hayes, an actor, new in this country, will next summer try to swim the English channel. Hayes has already made many preparations to attempt the feat. He has made several records for endurance swimming.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

Editor of Daily Ledger:

It seems to us that you are confusing issues when you mass together the conflicting demands of different parts of the city. There is a wide difference between what one wants and another needs. A child may want a looking glass and hammer, but it does not need them. And Montclair does not need at present a larger schoolhouse than Houghs Neck, one of 4 rooms that can be added to as occasion requires.

Every boy or girl who studies Caesar's commentaries knows what trouble the Roman General had with all Gaul which was divided into only three parts. Quincy, divided into ten parts, is made up of sections somewhat in the condition of the tribes of whom Cicero wrote "They are separated from each other by mutual fear and mountains."

We respectfully submit that it is time to differentiate and give Wollaston needed attention. The mother of two presidents has not divided her attentions justly among her ten children. Because Wollaston has submitted in the past to neglect, even our youngest has joined in the chorus: Wollaston has been fed so long on sawdust and shavings that it is quite used to the diet.

But forbearance has ceased to be a virtue and Ward Five is thoroughly aroused. Cato in the Roman Senate could see only one thing: "Delenda est Carthago." And we know only one subject of importance now, and that is: Wollaston must have a new schoolhouse.

"Do the next thing" is the modern spelling of a quaint old English injunction. Do it when? Dr. Hale used to tell us when we asked this question, "In the year nineteen hundred and now." In all well regulated families it is the custom to make over the clothes of the older children for the younger ones to wear. Study a little longer, little Montclair, in the school of patience, where Wollaston has sat so long. We have a garment in our present edifice which we will cut up into two pairs of trousers, one for you and the other for the next child which shall be born to our Mother but it is quite time for Quincy to quit repeating "I love you my Wollaston, but oh you—some other section of the city.

Rufus B. Tobey.
Chairman Wollaston Schoolhouse Committee.

LAW OF GRAVITY VIOLATED.

Conditions Under Which Water Actually Flows Upward.

"Water seeks its level" is an expression heard so frequently as to be almost trite, and yet the law has its exceptions. There are conditions under which water actually flows upward and rises above its source. If a glass tube be dipped into water the column inside will be above the level of the surrounding surface. Moreover, if a tube of half the diameter be substituted the column doubles its height. The water creeps along the inside of the tube, owing to the adhesion, and forms a cup shaped depression at the top.

An explanation is not difficult. It can be proved mathematically that if the diameter of a circle be diminished one-half the circumference is also reduced to that extent, while the area is one-fourth of its former value. The circumference of the column of water being reduced one-half, its contact with the glass, and hence the adhesive force, is also diminished to that extent, while the cross section, and hence the weight, is decreased to a fourth of what it was before. Therefore the second column can be twice the height of the first without exceeding the lifting power.

Remarkable as the underlying principles of this phenomenon undoubtedly are, nature made use of them long before man made their discovery. Every tree and flower adds its testimony. The core of a tree or plant, instead of being a single open channel, consists of a spongelike substance containing many miniature tunnels, through which the sap and moisture collected by the roots flow upward in small rivulets, rising higher and higher in sheer defiance of the great law of gravity.—St. Louis Republic.

Horsepower of the Waves.

Riccardo Salvadori, an Italian engineer, has been trying by experiment to determine the power of the waves of the sea, not, be it noted, of the tides, but of the real waves. He has just announced the result of his calculations, showing that the power depends upon the height of the wave, in accordance with the following table:

Height of wave.	Horsepower.
1 foot 7 inches	.16
3 feet 4 inches	1.27
6 feet 6 inches	7.25

It is not often that waves attain a height of more than six feet on the coast, although they may appear to the eye to be much higher. The plant necessary to utilize the force of the waves would cost about $1,000 per horsepower.

LADIES' NIGHT OF MEN'S CLUB

Large Party at Christ Church Parish House

A grand feast, excellent music, lots of wit, and good fellowship characterized the sixth annual banquet and ladies' night of the Men's club of Christ church on Tuesday evening, over 100 gathering at the parish house.

Henry P. Furnald is the club caterer and few clubs have a better one. His menu included chicken salad, potato salad, cold ham, cranberry sauce, escalloped oysters, harlequin ice cream, assorted cake, rolls and coffee. He was assisted in serving by H. G. Johnson, W. G. Andrew, Miss Emily G. Moyle, Miss Minnie Barnicoat, Miss Mabel Dickie, Miss Lizzie Dickie, Miss Olive C. Smith, Miss Marion G. Mitchell, Miss Nellie May Drummond, Miss Edith Helen Fox, Miss Alice Gertrude Jones and Miss Bessie Walsh Dimmick

During the banquet there were selections by an orchestra composed of Robert D. Smith, William Provost, Joseph W. Donovan, Edward A. Schell, G. Benedetti and D. Weggiamini.

President Merton A .Turner was the toastmaster and welcomed the guests. All the speakers told stories, and the entertainment was continued until nearly 10 P. M. The speakers were H. L. Brown, of Savings Bank insurance renown; Elisha Packard, for many years a deacon of the church; Rev. Richard E. Armstrong, the rector; James H. Steadman, who spoke for "The Club"; Senator Eugene C. Hultman, whose toast was "The Ladies"; and George H. Brown, who spoke for "The Church." The addresses were interspersed with vocal solos by Carlton Beal, piano solos by Prof. Wrigley, and selections by the original Men's Club quartet. The concluding number was "America," the words being thrown on a screen.

At the tables were:

FOUR HUNDRED WANTED

Y. M. C. A. Campaign to Enlarge Membership

Two hundred new members in six days is the new slogan among the Y. M. C. A. leaders. At a big banquet on Saturday night another hustling campaign will be inaugurated. It will be conducted along the same geenral lines as that of the November campaign, with ten teams of ten men each making a working force of 100 men.

The completion of the new running tracks and the swimming pool are the new and special inducements. While the pool is not yet complete the plan is to date all new tickets the date upon which it will be opened, probably about March 1, so giving each new member thirteen months for the price of twelve.

An attractive program has been arranged for the opening of the campaign. Frederick H. Retan of Boston, one of the leading men of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., will be the chief speaker.

MUCH WORK TO BE DONE

To Overcome Damage of Christmas Storm

The Electric Light Company has practically restored all its lighting circuits destroyed by the storm of Dec. 26. Up to Tuesday night every light was working except a few on Palmer street, Germantown, and it is expected that these will be in working order by night. The telephone company has also cleaned up about all its trouble caused by the storm, and the telephone service of all subscribers has been renewed. In the case of the Telephone company it was necessary in many cases to entirely reconstruct many of its lines. As far as possible in the reconstruction the lines were placed under ground. Mr. Hyland, the plant chief of this district whose office is in Quincy, says that in thirty years' experience with the company, the storm of Dec. 26 was the worst he ever experienced as far as damage to lines was concerned.

As far as the fire alarm circuits of the city are concerned, good progress has been made in getting them into shape, considering the fact that not only were poles and wires down, but that many of the boxes and bells were burnt out by the lines becoming crossed with wires carrying a heavy current. The day after the storm, every one of the six fire alarm circuits was out. Up to Tuesday night every circuit except number four was working, although there is still much work to be done on these circuits to put them in permanent condition.

Number 4 circuit, which is still out of service, and upon which the superintendent of fire alarms is still at work, is that which takes care of Wollaston and Atlantic. No fire alarm boxes in these two sections are working, although it is possible that tonight or tomorrow they will be cut into the service. This section was one of the worst in the city as damage to poles and wires was concerned, as there were many poles down and practically all of the wires, so that it meant almost a reconstruction of the circuit.

—Restriction of billboard display, abatement of the smoke nuisance, creation of a park at Niagara, extermination of the house fly, establishment of a sane Fourth of July, and some other objects, are on the program of the American Civic Association, which has opened headquarters in Washington. If it can get any one of its bills through congress it will receive the gratitude of an astonished public.—Boston Record.

GLEE CLUB CONCERT

As Usual the Musical Treat of Season

It was an appreciative audience that gathered in the Wollaston Congregational church on Tuesday evening at the firstconcert for the season of the Wollaston Glee club. Under the magnetic direction of its conductor, John A. Crowley the club was at its best and the hearty chorus of male voices in perfect harmony was worth coming a long distance to hear.

Miss Adelaide Griggs of Boston who is a contralto of no mean note and who is well known in musical circles of Quincy was most pleasing in her solos. Miss Griggs has a voice unusually strong and clear with an amount of expression appreciated by music lovers. She received a large share of well merited applause.

In his tenor solos Edward E. Bullock, whom Wollaston claims as a resident and whose reputation is well known, was shown the appreciation of the audience by the repeated encores he received.

Miss Nina Bearse Wilbur in character studies and readings, both humorous and striking, displayed a range of ability much enjoyed by her listeners.

As an accompanist William Weston is unexcelled, and his work both on the piano and organ, on Tuesday evening was no exception.

The club is in its eighth year of successful existence, and is composed of the best element of the city who are interested in developing and raising the artistic and musical standards of the community. It is at present engaged in forming an associate membership which will help bear the financial burden and give the club an added incentive to devote more time and study in the preparation for the entertainment at their two annual concerts.

The program of Tuesday evening follows:

"Peasant's Wedding March,"

MILTON.

One man was seriously injured and six others more or less hurt on Tuesday when the top run at the ice houses of Pope & Turner at Milton broke, throwing the seven men and heavy cakes of ice a distance of 40 feet to the ground. The run was loaded with ice at the time and the extra heavy weight caused it to break. Hurry calls were sent to all the physicians of Milton and the injured men received attention. It was found that Walter Brown, the foreman, was the most seriously injured, but just how seriously can not be definitely told at the present time.

East Milton has decided to have an Improvement society, and over 150 people were at the meeting Monday evening at Ellsworth hall. After a short talk on the good that improvement societies would do officers were elected as follows: President, J. A. Simpson; vice president, S. A. Parsons; treasurer, T. H. Bannon; secretary, W. E. Beer.

THE DORCAS SOCIETY

Elect Officers and Have a Good Time

The Dorcas society of the Universalist church was most delightfully entertained in the vestry of the church on Tuesday evening by Mrs. Thomas W. Addison.

The election of officers postponed from the last meeting took place and the following were elected:

President—Mrs. George E. Sprague.
Vice President—Mrs. Robert G Reed.
Secretary—Miss Maud H. Cudworth.
Treasurer—Miss Florence E. Holton.
Chairman of Sick Committee—Mrs. M. E. Spooner.
Chairman of Sewing Committee—Miss Annie L. Hobart.

The reports of the retiring officers were read and the treasurer's report showed a good balance in the treasury. All were enthusiastic and a successful year is indicated. After the business was concluded, refreshments of ices, cakes and cocoa were served by Mrs. Addison, who was assisted in serving by Mrs. Sprague. A most enjoyable evening was passed, and a rising vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Addison for her kindness.

FUNERAL OF MRS. HUNTER.

Many friends and relatives attended the funeral of Mrs. H. J. Hunter at 2 o'clock Tuesday from her late home on Bunker Hill avenue. The Franco American Society of which she was a member attended thefuneral in a body, and also the Bryant A. C., of which Mr. Hunter is a member. The body was removed to St. Mary's church and Rev. Fr. William Duffy said prayers. The body was laid to rest in St. Mary's cemetery. There were many floral tributes, among them a standing wreath from the Boston Gear Works, one from the Rice & Hutchins shoe factory, a pillow from the Franco American society, a standing crescent from the Bryant A. C., and many other floral tributes from friends and relatives. The pall bearers were: Joseph Brunnett, William Buckley, Frank Bates and Harry Nedo.

NO CONFERENCE.

The situation at Barre remains unchanged. It was expected that a conference would be held Tuesday between conference committees of the manufacturers and cutters, but when the cutters learned that the manufacturers' committee was not composed wholly of Barre men, the meeting was called off. One small firm in Montpelier has signed the bill and started up work. Nine men are employed by this firm.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

People who sometimes think their own belief is somewhat Socialistic, find consolation in the address of Dr. Cady at Bethany church this week. While they sympathize with many of the views of the Socialists they may differ on the program or the remedy. More toward reform can be accomplished with such a President as was Roosevelt than the Socialists as a body can ever accomplish. That was a rousing address of Dr. Cady, and all too true.

Seldom does one hear at a funeral words of eulogism so much deserved as characterized the remarks of Rev. Daniel Munro Wilson and the prayer of Rev. Edward Norton at the bier of Hon. James Thompson, a former Mayor of our city. Both spoke from an association of a generation or more with the gentleman and echoed the sentiments of the large assemblage of ladies and gentlemen, officials business associates, neighbors and friends.

The ease with which the City Hospital raised the necessary funds in 1909, and came out with a cash surplus of over $2100, shows that the institution on the hill is now well established. The revenue from patients was only one-third of the total cost of the Hospital for the year, but amounted to $5,111.62 and will be more in 1910 because of the completion of the new ward. The income from the endowment fund is now over $2,500 annually, which is a great help. When occasion requires the citizens can be depended on to raise whatever funds may be necessary for the Hospital.

President Taft has mapped out a programme for Congress that is well calculated to keep our solons busy the rest of the session. He proposed to amend the laws for regulating corporations and for a new law to establish postal savings banks for the benefit of the people, which he promised in his campaign, and also a law to authorize the establishment of post parcel deliveries which will enable the Post Office to underbid the exorbitant charges made by the various express companies. The way the Congressmen and Senators are hearing from their constituents on these reforms indicates that the public is alive to the necessity for such measures and that these laws will be passed, as recommended by President Taft, in his recent messages.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The canvass of the principal manufacturing firms of the town for the industrial exposition of the board of trade shows an interest and a desire to cooperate in a practical way that will be sure to bring out a complete showing of the products of the town. And that showing will be a surprising one to nearly every one in town. Few know the variety and extent of the town's manufactures and a gathering of them together will in itself make an exposition at once interesting and impressive.—Stoughton Sentinel.

STRIKE CONTINUES.

The Barre Daily Times of Monday said: Sartorelli & Ossola, a small firm employing less than a gang of men, signed up today the same bill of prices as the Leland Granite company did Saturday and has resumed operations. The Leland company opened up this morning with about 75 men at work. Aside from these two firms, there were no resumptions of work in Barre, although the manufacturers as a rule threw open their doors for work. Beyond this, there is no change in the situation from last week, and what the next move will be no one seems to know.

COMPULSORY INVESTIGATION

Massachusetts May Copy the Canadian Law

J. L. Miller represented Quincy at a banquet tendered the Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Minister of Labor in the Laurier Government of Canada, on Friday evening, Jan. 14, which was tendered to him by the City Club of Boston. There were about 75 at the banquet and some 300 in the auditorium to hear Mr. King's explanation of the Canadian law for the promotion of industrial peace. They have the most advanced legislation ever enacted by any country in the world. It is a compulsory investigation and conciliation before a strike takes place. The parties to a dispute must petition the Minister of Labor to create a board of investigation and conciliation. He at once notifies each party to select one man for the board. If either party refuses, he appoints that member. These two appoint the third if they can agree, if not the minister appoints him. Said board has full power to summon witnesses and examine them under oath. In this way they get all the facts and advise a settlement.

Since the law was enacted there have been 89 boards petitioned for. They settled 74 and 11 settled before the boards could be appointed, as one or the other of the parties did not want the publicity.

Such a law will be introduced into the Massachusetts Legislature at the present session, and it is hoped that employer and employe will inform themselves about it, for if a way can be devised to save the millions that are now lost each year by industrial warfare it will be a blessing to humanity. It is too bad that it was so stormy Friday night, as Mr. King was worthy of an audience of at least a thousand.

INCOME TAX.

Congress has amended the Constitution of the United States, so as to provide for an income tax, and it is now up to the States to ratify that amendment, which becomes a part of our constitution as soon as it shall have been ratified by three-fourths of the States. The corporations and capitalists of the country are doing their utmost to influence the legislatures of the various States against this amendment.

However, it is believed that the amendment will be ratified by practically all of the States.

WORLD ALMANAC.

The mission of The World Almanac is to eliminate the superficial and replace it with facts; facts you may have with you; facts that may be tossing about in an active brain that won't be remembered; facts that make your acts unimpeachable; facts that fit your pocket, financially and literally; facts that adapt themselves to any space or place without inconvenience until you make a convenience of them; facts are not facts unless they can be proven, and proven facts are necessities every man must encounter at some time. The 1910 World Almanac is better than ever. Not that it is more complete than ever, but because the world has lived another year and things have progressed and happened in the light of another year's added knowledge and experience. The history of the year just passed is brought down to the last tick of the clock; 365 days of the world's history in combination with something about almost everything you should know. Users of The World Almanac will tell you to buy it, not borrow it, and make your doubts certainties. On sale wherever books are sold.

New Bargain Hunter.

There is a new kind of bargain hunter in the field now at New York. If you take particular notice while passing a pawnshop you will find one or more men loitering about near the entrance. If you stop a few moments you will see these men follow close behind any man that happens to leave the place to see whether he throws away or tears up his pawn ticket. If the ticket is thrown away it is grabbed up quickly. The man who gets it finds out what the article is, what it's in for and if it is of any use to him. If so he immediately gets it out. The torn tickets are easily put in shape with sticking plaster, and then the article pawned is redeemed if it is worth while.

NEWSBOYS ORDINANCE

Licensing Power Vested in School Committee

The City Council committee ran up against a snag when it came to consider the proposed ordinance to regulate the sale of newspapers by hawkers and peddlers. The proposed ordinance provided that no person shall hawk or peddle newspapers without first obtaining a license from the chief of police. This clause, however, conflicts with the authority of the school committee. Under a law passed in 1906, it is provided that cities and towns may make regulations for the hawking and peddling of newspapers and license the same, provided however that the issuing of licenses for this purpose to minors under 14 years of age is solely in the power of the school committee.

It would seem therefore that the ordinance when drawn must prescribe certain regulations for the government of newsboys but that licenses to minors under 14 years of age shall be left to the school committee, while licenses to persons over that age could be issued by the chief of police.

There is still another law bearing upon hawking and pedling by children which was passed in 1905. This provides that every child between seven and fourteen years of age, and every child under 16 who cannot read at sight and write legibly, etc., shall attend some day public school in the city or town in which he resides during the entire time the public day schools are in session.

This means that no minor under the age of 14 years can hawk newspapers until after the close of schools. Perhaps, if inquiry was made, it would be found that some of the boys imported from Boston recently to sell newspapers, and who have made a nuisance of the business, may come within the law.

ANTI-CHRISTMAS CLUB.

Five Dollar Fee For Assurance of Immunity From Gifts.

Jolly old St. Nicholas will have his troubles when he goes to Cleveland, O., in 1910—that is, if the anti-Christmas gift movement grows. It has been inaugurated by Dr. John Mohr.

The idea is for an organization to be known as the "Anti-Christmas club," the purposes of which shall be to curtail, not absolutely eliminate, the traditional habit.

The membership fee of $5 will entitle members to cards assuring them immunity from promiscuous givers. The fund raised by the fees is to be used for charitable purposes exclusively.

Paulhan Makes a Wonderful Cross-Country Flight

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—Louis Paulhan in his Farman biplane made what aviation experts regard as the most remarkable cross-country flight in history.

On the wings of a wind that other aviators hesitated to face, the Frenchman dromed from aviation field to "Lucky" Baldwin's ranch, twenty-three miles away, circled the old Santa Anata race track and bucked his way to his tent.

In all, he covered an estimated distance of 47½ miles in 1 hour 2 minutes 42 4-5 seconds. He flew to Baldwin's with the wind in 30 minutes, and came back against it in 33 minutes.

When he finished he said that the motor was as cool as when he started and that he could repeat the trip at once.

The only test approaching Paulhan's feat was that made by one of the Wrights last fall in a flight from Washington to Alexandria and back. Bleriot, Latham, Farman and Cody have made flights nearly as long, but they did not return.

It is probable that the prize of $10,000 will go to Paulhan, but there will be much official pondering and cabling before a new world's record is recorded in his favor.

Paulhan maintained an altitude of from 1000 to 2000 feet on his way over the valley. His highest point was 2130 feet.

Under him, speeding over country roads, were automobiles, equestrians and motor cycles, trying to be near the machine should Paulhan fall or have to descend.

When Paulhan reached the grandstand on his return he was mobbed. The crowd broke through the barriers. The aviator was borne over the field. His countrymen kissed him and wept with joy.

This event was the only one of importance in the day's meet. Curtiss did not go into the air until after Paulhan had been away for half an hour. Then he gave a pretty exhibition of fancy starting and retired.

The wind came up suddenly and for a time it looked as though the program would be spoiled. At 3 o'clock nothing had happened except a few skids over the field; the crowd began to howl. Paulhan rose to the occasion. Without any announcement his machine appeared at the far west course, beating against the wind; then it came around with the wind at sixty miles an hour.

Paulhan came down as though he had decided against further flying, but before the crowd had time to forget their first wonder he rose over their heads again and pointed the flat nose of the big white plane toward the mountains. It was 3:09 o'clock.

"He's off for the cross-country record of the world," announced the megaphones.

For ten minutes the machine flew onward and upward straight toward the snow line of the Sierra Madre range. Old Baldy Peak was the compass point. It lay in shining white relief against the sky. Through the glasses Paulhan could be seen rising above the haze and taking a trail, so it seemed, to the summit. Soon he disappeared from sight of the field.

Bulletins were posted on a blackboard as the machine passed over small towns on the way to the Baldwin race track.

At 4 o'clock there was a great shout. Someone had seen the aeroplane. Soon it came into sight, blown from its outward course, and on a line with Mt. Wilson. The machine loomed more and more distinctly, and even the experts, watching and timing, were surprised at the speed with which it returned.

Soon Paulhan was over the field and settling gently. The rush began. The Frenchman stepped out of the saddle and asked for a cigar.

"I will go twice as far some day," he promised.

NEBULA HYPOTHESIS.

One of the Most Interesting Propositions of Science.

WHAT IT ACTUALLY MEANS.

That the Sun, Planets and All Matter Were Once a Vast Mass of Incandescent Gas All Jumbled Together In an Enormous Chaotic Cloud.

Everybody has heard the phrase, the nebula hypothesis, but what is it?

In a few words this is the meaning of "nebula hypothesis:" That the sun, the planets and all that is in them were at one time in the inconceivably remote past a vast mass of chaotic, incandescent gas all jumbled together in an enormous nebula, or cloud.

To begin with, the first conception that science has dared to make, however, takes us one step further back Without mentioning the origin of matter itself science conceives that in the beginning all matter was uniformly distributed throughout space — that there were no stars, no planets, no satellites, but that all space was filled with the matter we now have divided up into very fine particles some distance apart. The consistency of such material was perforce very thin indeed, much more rarefied than the highest vacuum we can obtain now by air pumps. From this state to the nebulous state the theory has a missing link, one that can only be satisfied by supposing divine command, for it assumes, in the words of Professor Todd, that "gradually centers of attraction formed and these centers pulled in toward themselves other particles. As a result of the inward falling of matter toward these centers, the collision of its particles and their friction upon each other the material masses grew hotter and hotter. Nebulae seeming to fill the entire heavens were formed—luminous fire mist, like the filmy objects still seen in the sky, though vaster and exceedingly numerous." This process is supposed to have gone on for countless ages, faster in some regions than in others. Many million nebulae were formed and set in rotation around their own axes. This happily can be explained by science. Whenever particles are attracted toward a center and are kept from falling directly to this center a whirlpool is formed, rotating in one direction. An example of this, though humble and not exactly analogous, is the rotation of water in a basin when the stopper is pulled out of the bottom. Gravity attracts the water immediately above the hole, which starts flowing out, thus leaving a space to be filled. The rest of the water rushes in from all sides to do this, and the whirlpool is the result.

Now each of these whirling nebulae became exceedingly hot, and each formed what is known as a star or sun, our sun being one. The earth and other planets had not then come into separate existence, of course, as it is supposed that they were thrown off later from the sun.

Our sun in its nebulous form and rotating swiftly on its axis gradually flattened at its poles on account of centrifugal motion. This phenomenon is entirely familiar to those who have seen a ball of clay on a potter's wheel gradually flatten. The motion was so swift and the mass so nebulous that the sun to be took the shape of a disk. As time went on the outer part became cool and somewhat rigid, while the inner part continued its cooling and contracting. Thus the inner part drew away from the outer, leaving a ring of matter whirling around on the outside. This breaking off of the ring is supposed to be hastened by the inability of the outside to keep up the swift motion of the central mass, both on account of the slight cohesion and of the centrifugal force. But this particular part of the argument has nothing to stand on if the first law of motion is true.

In the successive stages of the sun's contraction this process was repeated over and over again, until several rings were whirling around the central orb. They would necessarily be in the same plane. Now, these rings, not being uniform in mass or thickness, would each gradually accumulate toward the densest portion until they, too, would form a ball which would subsequently flatten, and if the substance continued nebulous and the ball was large enough they would also slough rings.

Of course the rings the sun discarded have become the planets, which, as required by the theory, are all very nearly in the same plane. The rings that the planets formed have become moons or satellites. So we are driven to conclude that our sun at one time filled all the space from his present position to the farthest planet in the solar system.

From this theory there is another thing that we have to believe, and that is that every star in the heavens has gone through this same process and has a family of planets sailing around it, just as our sun has. It would be impossible to see these planets, of course, for it is impossible to see a star, even with the greatest telescope, except as a mere point of light.

As regards the proving of this nebula hypothesis, of course it cannot be done. But everything points to its accuracy. Many nebulae are seen even now among the stars that seem to be going through the delayed process of world forming. Around one of the planets of our own solar system, Saturn, are three rings, which are probably destined in time to become moons, in the opinion of some scholars.—A. T. Hodge in New York Tribune.

WOMEN'S CLUBS

WHAT THEY ARE DOING AND SEASONS' PLANS

Beginning this week Friday, Mrs. Mary L. Wade is to begin a series of five lectures for the Philergians of Braintree, three demonstration and two on home economics.

* * *

The Wollaston W. C. T. U. had a parliamentary drill at its regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. H. Rhodes, Old Colony avenue. Mrs. Ida S. Brown was the leader.

* * *

The Junior Friday club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. William H. Whitney, it being the first meeting with her since she moved into her new home on Brook street, Wollaston. Mrs. Ernest D. Gourd was chairman of the afternoon's program the subject being France: house of Valois, Joan of Arc, etc. Lunch was served by the hostess at the close of the meeting.

* * *

There was a good attendance of members of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary at its meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Frank W. Crane, Presidents hill. The speaker was Rev. George S. Butters of Newton.

* * *

Miss Priscilla Whiton and Mrs. Montgomery are the speakers announced for the Junior Alliance meeting on Monday evening Jan. 24 in the parlor of First church.

* * *

The monthly sewing meeting of Wollaston Alliance is being held today. The next regular meeting will be an evening one on Feb. 2.

* * *

The annual meeting on Monday, of the Charitable Ten's Circle of King's Daughters was well attended. The same board of officers was re-elected and the treasury showed a good balance to continue the work which this circle has done for many years. The social half hour, during which Mrs. Wilson dispensed a gracious hospitality, was enjoyed by all.

* * *

Non-members of the Quincy Women's club who have been members of the different classes under the Arts and Crafts department of the club, and those on the waiting list of the club, are invited to attend an exhibition of the work done by the classes after half past four on Tuesday afternoon Jan. 25.

* * *

Rev. James Huxtable is the speaker announced for the meeting of Quincy Alliance in First church parlor on Monday afternoon. Owing to the severe storm last week the concert which was to close the course of entertainments by the Alliance was postponed and will take place the evening of Friday, Jan. 28.

* * *

The Friday club will meet next week with Mrs. William E. Alden of Chestnut street, instead of with Mrs. Hayward as scheduled in the year book. Mrs. Henry M. Faxon is arranging the program which continues the study of Colonial America, the special subjects being the French in America and Acadia.

* * *

Thursday afternoon the State society of the Daughters of the Revolution give a vaudeville entertainment at the Hollis Street theatre, Boston, to raise funds for the sailors' memorial to be erected at Annapolis, Md., by the general society. All the leading artists now playing at Boston theatres are to assist and the afternoon promises to be entertaining.

* * *

The Country club entertained on gentlemen's night at the home of Mrs. Albert Willis, President avenue. Whist was enjoyed for two hours, souvenirs being awarded to Mrs. William Westland and G. Harvey Field. Mrs. Hall and Miss Lester securing consolation prizes. A salad supper was served which all enjoyed very much. The house was prettily decorated with palms and flowers. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Richard Gordon of Franklin street.

* * *

Miss Eleanor Nelson of Atlantic street was hostess of the Thimble and Book Club on Tuesday evening.

* * *

All plans are perfected for the two Valentine dancing parties to be given by the Day Nursery association in February. Mrs. E. E. Jameson is in charge of the evening party and Mrs. Charles M. Bryant the children's.

Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters hold their next meeting on Monday evening, Jan. 24 at eight o'clock with Mrs. George R. Badger of Safford street, Wollaston.

Members of the Quincy Women's club who failed to attend the gentlemen's night of the Art and Lite ature committee last week Wednesday evening at the club house missed a fine entertainment. The reading of Shakespeare's "Winter's Tale," by Thomas A. Watson of East Braintree was a pleasure that will bear repeating.

The Philathea Bible society of Bethany church held their annual meeting last week at the church. The following officers were elected for 1910: President, Miss Augusta Crane; Vice President, Mrs. Jean Mitchell; Secretary, Miss Agnes Souter; Treasurer, Miss Elizabeth Rulton; Reporter Miss Bertha Pearson.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

Of the many fine afternoons presented in the club calendar since the formation of the club nearly five years ago the annual musicale is and always has been the favorite and draws out the full membership. Next Tuesday the Music committee, Mrs. William H. Doble, chairman, presents the Caroline Belcher st ing quartet and Elsie Leighton Livermore in original monologues. The combination promises a delightful program as both excel. Miss Livermore has been heard in Quincy this season when she gave a fine interpretation of Capt. Jinks and those who heard her then are looking forward with much pleasure to her appearance next Tuesday.

Last week Friday in the snowstorm the series of demonstration lectures came to an end. Ten braved the elements and enjoyed the lecture which was on Cheese dishes.

Again on Saturday the storm did not prevent club members from getting out and over $6 worth of home cooking was sold at the exchange, established on Saturday afternoons at the store of W. G. Shaw. Mrs. John T. Conway and Miss Carrie Hatch are deserving of much praise from their committee for the energy and ability they bring to the work.

Several members of the club enjoyed the State Federation meeting Tuesday afternoon at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Miss Georgie A. Bacon, state federation president presided and there were several papers on art. Arthur W. Fairbanks, director of the Museum spoke on the educational work of the museum.

Tuesday afternoon after the musicale the Arts and Crafts committee is to have an exhibition in their rooms of articles made by the different classes this fall. The committee will also be there to answer questions about the formation of new classes for the spring.

BIENNIEL IN MAY.

Circulars are being received by clubs in the various states showing that plans are well underway for the biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs. It will be held in Cincinnati, Ohio, May 11-18. Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation writes: "I have never befo e known such a desire to come closely into touch with the main organization to coordinate their committee work with the 'policies' of the General Federation, to know its history, work and purposes, and to realize that they are indeed mighty members of this splendid force. There is no doubt as to large delegations to Cincinnati."

The union of forty-seven State federations, the canal zone federation, national societies, city federations and individual clubs in the United States, England, Germany, China, Chile Mexico Hawaii and Alaska, numbering approximately eight hundred thousand women who believe in the strength of union is bound to be a factor in civic affairs. At every biennial there are disappointed club women who do not have the privileges of convention, merely because their clubs did not heed the warning to apply early. It is, therefore, none too soon for those organizations who are thinking of the advantages of cooperation in this great movement to make their decision speedily and join in the satisfaction that will surely come from having an active part in it.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Jolly Sixteen Surprise Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Merritt

Monday was a gala day in life's journey for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Merritt, it being the 28th anniversary of their marriage. The Jolly Sixteen, of which both are members, knowing this planned a very pleasant surprise on the happy couple, in the shape of a costume party. Then all the party wended their way to Arthur's and presented themselves and so took Arthur by surprise that it was some time before the tears stopped rolling.

After a serenading which won't be forgot four prizes were given for the best costumes which were as follows: first to Mrs. Annie Smith as a "Little Girl", second, to Mrs. Stoddard, as "Biddy," third to G. W. Gragg, as "George Washington," fourth, to Mrs. Johnson, as "Aunt Jemima." Two others of special mention were Mr. Johnson as "A tin soldier" and Frank Stoddard as "The coming lady."

Then followed an enjoyable hour at whist, after which the wives of the Jolly Club provided an elegant oyster stew with the fixings. The evening now being almost gone and the members wishing Mr. and Mrs. Merritt many more happy years of wedded life, Mrs. Walter Howes in behalf of the club presented the couple with an imported Japanese rug, and Arthur and Annie a consolation prize. The hour for departing, John Smith presented each with a souvenir such as used by King of Spain.

DELAGRANGE'S MISHAPS.

Frenchman Killed In Monoplane Flight Was Prominent Aviator.

Leon Delagrange, the Frenchman who was recently killed when his monoplane broke in midair at Bordeaux, France, was well known as an aviator, not only as having at various times held the record for speed and distance, but also for his daring. His career was marked by several serious accidents before the fatal one, but he continued his exploits, earning the reputation of a man who would run a good deal of risk rather than disappoint the spectators who had gathered to see him fly.

Well known already as an automobilist, Delagrange took up aviation in the early stages of the sport and made his first public ascent at Bagatelle, France, on March 16, 1907, in a biplane. He was satisfied then with a flight of thirty feet, but a few days later he took a passenger up and accomplished 453 feet.

On Nov. 5, 1907, he met with his first accident at Issy, France. His machine fell and was smashed; but he escaped with a few bruises and cuts. At Issy also in the following May he had a narrow escape, as with Farman he was competing for the Armegaud prize of $2,000 for a flight of fifteen minutes. He was traveling fast near the ground, and his machine swerved toward the crowd of spectators. He at once shut off power and in descending crashed into a motorcar. The machine was smashed to atoms, but Delagrange escaped almost uninjured.

Again he was hurt in the next spring in an exhibition flight at Milan before Queen Margherita of Italy, but so little was he unnerved that eleven days later he gave another exhibition before her majesty, remaining in the air for 16 minutes 11 seconds and covering a little over eleven miles. For this performance, a record at the time, he received a special gold medal.

At Issy, on Sept. 6, 1908, Delagrange made another record. He flew fifteen and two-fifth miles in 29 minutes and 54 4-5 seconds and came to the ground only because his petrol was exhausted. At that time this beat Wright's and Farman's records by twelve minutes.

In May last year Delagrange, at Juvissy, won the Lagatineri prize, making three and six-tenth miles in 10 minutes 18 seconds. At the Rheims competitions in August he used for the first time a monoplane, but achieved no great success, being placed tenth for speed and eighth for distance. On one occasion his propeller broke, and he was badly bruised. He then visited Denmark and flew for fifteen minutes for King Frederick at Aarhus.

His first sensational flight, however, was made on Oct. 26, 1909. At Doncaster, in England, he covered six miles in 7 minutes 36 seconds, at a rate at times of over fifty miles an hour. He also established a speed record of 1 mile and 860 yards in 1 minute 47 1-5 seconds—that is, about fifty-four miles an hour. His machine on this occasion was a Bleriot monoplane.

On Thursday, Dec. 30, 1909, he accomplished another world's speed record. At Juvissy in trying to win the Michelin cup he flew 124 miles in 2 hours 32 minutes, an average speed of forty-nine miles an hour.

Many honors were conferred on Delagrange for his achievements. Among them were the Order of the Legion of Honor, an enamel medal by the Academy of Sciences, Paris, and the presidency of the Aviation Club of France for 1907. His pastimes consisted in hunting, horseback riding and automobiling.

WHAT WOMEN ARE DOING

Daughter of William Lloyd Garrison a Suffragette Leader—Ohio Girl In National Academy. Women Circle Globe.

As chairman of the New York Woman's Suffrage association Mrs. Fannie Garrison Villard is doing valiant work for the cause of "votes for women" in America. She attends the sessions of the legislature at Albany when any suffragette movement is on foot and raises her voice for woman's rights. At last year's session Mrs. Villard made one of the most rousing speeches in the lower house on the Hill bill favoring woman suffrage. The fact that the Hill bill never climbed, but went down the depths like an avalanche, with only two votes in the committee to eleven against it, never deterred Mrs. Villard for an instant. She is ready this year to go before the state legislature again and work for the cause. Mrs. Villard is the widow of Henry Villard, years ago a power in Wall street, the man who completed the Northern Pacific railroad and was president of that great line long before the late E. H. Harriman was known in the railroad world. But it is even more interesting to know that Mrs. Villard is a daughter of William Lloyd Garrison, the illustrious abolitionist.

MRS. FANNIE GARRISON VILLARD.

Miss Evelyn B. Longman, sculptress, has been elected recently to the National academy, the first woman to attain that distinction. Still a young woman and a beautiful one, Miss Longman's uphill climb in her art has been a struggle calculated to age an immortal goddess. She is a Winchester (O.) girl who went to Chicago and worked in a department store at the average meager wage while trying to study drawing and modeling in a night school. In some marvelous way she managed to save $260. She entered the drawing and painting classes at Olivet college, in Michigan, where she studied until her money gave out. Then she returned to Chicago and to the dreary routine of the shopgirl. Later she began the serious study of sculpture in the Chicago Art institute, working nights in the library to pay her expenses. With $40 she went to New York. Forty dollars lasts about as long in that city of dreadful heights as a cheese sandwich in a rat trap. Miss Longman admits she doesn't remember just how she did contrive to get along, but she managed somehow to eat and to find a place to sleep until finally the famous sculptor Daniel C. French discovered her, took her into his studio and introduced her to the world of art. Miss Longman has maintained an independent studio for years. Many visitors to the Louisiana Purchase exposition will remember her magnificent "Victory," a colossal figure that surmounted the dome of Festival hall, the artistic heart and center of the world's greatest exposition. Now her election to the National academy is another signal victory.

The wife of Gypsy Smith, the noted evangelist, is a real helpmate for her husband. Of late years Mrs. Smith has traveled much with him, in a quiet way assisting in his work, though seldom coming into the limelight herself. She is not a gypsy, though her complexion is dark, like her husband's. She is a typical Englishwoman, with a strong accent that marks her at once as a daughter of John Bull. Mr. Smith met his wife many years ago at one of his revival services and fell in love with her. She was a dark eyed girl among the converts. Gypsy Smith didn't know that night that he was preaching the most important sermon of his life, but he realized it later. The Smiths have a grown son in America, a naturalized citizen, who recently visited them for the first time in years. They have three younger children in England. The evangelist and his wife are still British subjects.

Mrs. W. F. Goodspeed and Miss Helen Deshler of Columbus, O., have just completed a trip around the world. They went to the exposition at Seattle last June and decided to go on to Japan. After reaching that country they determined to continue around the globe. "All during the trip," said Miss Deshler, "wherever we were, men went out of their way, I thought, to do something for us. We had so easy a time getting about from place to place that I do not feel any more that the journey was a remarkable one." The women say they enjoyed Japan and the trip on the Transsiberian railroad most of all. MARY DALE.

FAMOUS SLEUTH IN NEW ROLE.

Stories of Lieutenant Sheridan, Who Will Guard Banks.

LONG A TERROR TO CROOKS.

Well Known Detective, Formerly of the New York Police Department, Is Noted For His Amazing Ability to Photograph Features on Memory.

Owing to an affection of the eyes which interferes with his proper vision Lieutenant William Patrick Henry Sheridan, who is known to the lawbreaking fraternity of two continents as "the man with the camera eye," recently retired from the detective department of the New York city police force to enter into partnership with William J. Burns, former secret service man, who is official guard of the 1,400 banks in the American Bankers' association, a trust formerly held by the Pinkerton agency.

The remarkable memory for faces that characterizes Lieutenant Sheridan's career made him celebrated in police circles the world over. His eye was unerring, and once the features of a criminal's face were beheld by him they were photographed in his mind, and he never made a mistake in identification. In this regard he was one of the most valued members of the city detective force, and as "the man with the camera eye" he was a terror to evildoers of every nation.

Feared by Criminals.

Lieutenant Sheridan got his start under Inspector Thomas Byrnes in 1887, a year after his appointment to the force. He was sent after the assistant cashier who had robbed the National Park bank of $165,000 and after a search of six months found his quarry in a hole in the Canadian hills known as Standstead. He was instrumental in bringing hundreds of robbers, safe crackers and other criminals to justice. He especially was valuable in his identification of criminals, every mark that served to identify them being photographed in his memory.

It is doubtful if there is another man in the United States who inspired more fear than did Sheridan in the hearts of criminals with records. No man in the history of the New York police department has been so quick to see through a disguise and to identify prisoners with pictures that had been taken five, ten and even twenty years before.

Many a city as far west even as San Francisco came to learn that the appearance of Sheridan in a crowd was the surest means of ridding the city of a band of itinerant crooks. Sheridan was the man to whom the New York police department turned when all others failed to identify a prisoner. If Sheridan passed a prisoner it was taken for granted that his picture was not among the 200,000 or more in the rogues' gallery.

Conviction of a Bank Sneak.

A case where Sheridan made good with his camera eye is that of a bank sneak who was arrested in Brooklyn in 1903 and who gave the name of William Murphy. Murphy's picture was taken in Brooklyn and sent over to Mulberry street for identification.

"Why," said Sheridan, "that's Bob Suffrage; served five years in Liverpool, eight years in Brussels and two years in Sing Sing. He was arrested twenty-one years ago by Tom Mulvey, on Reynolds' staff."

Inspector Titus sent Tom Mulvey over to the Raymond street jail in Brooklyn to identify the prisoner. Mulvey took a look at him and reported that he never had arrested him, never had seen him. Sheridan himself had never seen Bob Suffrage. All that he had in mind were the pictures that had passed through his hands, two or three out of a total of 200,000 in the gallery. Sheridan still insisted that the Brooklyn sneak thief was the notorious Bob.

Finally the prisoner was arraigned before Judge Aspinall and pleaded guilty. The judge said to him:

"Now I am going to ask you some questions, and if you tell the truth I'll take that into consideration in sentencing you. Is your name Bob Suffrage?"

"Yes," said the prisoner, and then he went on to tell the terms he had served just as Sheridan had done from memory several weeks before.

How He Identified a Precious Pair.

Sheridan's friends love to tell how he identified Mott Haven Red and Frank Codd. They had been taken in by chance on the Bowery in New York, and when the precious pair were stood up the next day no one knew them, so they went on to Sheridan.

"That's Mott Haven Red, alias Joe Fay," said Sheridan instantly. "I saw his picture ten years ago. He got nine years and eight months in Dannemora for blowing up a safe of the Standard Oil company in Syracuse."

The prisoner stoutly denied his identity, whereupon Sheridan said to a detective:

"Pull up his sleeve and you'll find 'W. I. U.' tattooed on his right forearm." The letters were there.

"Now look on his right hand and see if the cord on the little finger has not been shortened," said Sheridan, and it was. That was too much for Mott Haven Red, and he confessed his identity.

That is but one instance in many which the detectives recall in illustrating Sheridan's wonderful faculty.

BRIEFS.

Councilman Loud had the misfortune to freeze one of his toes while on his trip through the west.

Miss Alice Webb has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Cole of Bridgewater.

Felix Favorite has bought 16,266 square feet of land at the corner of Hillside avenue and Pine street, Wollaston which he will develope.

Mrs. Mary Thomas Burgess, widow of Nelson A. Burgess, who died at her home in Somerville last week was buried in the family lot in Mount Wollaston cemetery, in this city.

Church days and feasts will be the subject of the meeting of the Y. P. R. U., of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday evening. Miss Dorothy Fay will be the leader and the speaker Fred M. Rollins.

Mrs. Mary L. Wade of Wollaston Park, chairman of the Home Economics committee of the Quincy Women's club, is about commencing a series of lectures for the nurses at the Brockton hospital of which Miss Grace Beattie is superintendent.

Mrs. William A. Norton is in charge of the Bridge party, the next entertainment in course being given this season by the Cochato club of Braintree. She will be assisted by Miss Jennie F. Edgcomb, Mrs. George W. Andrews and Mrs. George E. Williams all of Braintree. The date is Jan. 28.

WHIST PARTY.

The ladies of the jolly Eight Whist club met Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Walker of Pratt avenue, North Weymouth. After the customary two hours' play a dainty collation of ice cream and cake was served by the hostess. On account of the snow, several of the ladies, including, Mrs. Marie Minor, Mrs. Conrad, Mrs. Lizzie McNeil and Mrs. Jennie McNeil made up a jolly sleighing party, and were greeted at Weymouth, by the rest of the club, with a fusillade of snow-balls. Every one entered into the spirit of the battle and had a real old fashioned good time. Next Monday evening the club will meet with Mrs. J. M. McNeil of Wharf street, Quincy Point.

Coughs and Colds.—At this season when coughs are so prevalent, an effectual remedy and one easily obtained is Perry Davis' Painkiller. It is new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over seventy years; and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventor.

THE PRESIDENTIAL BEE

Not Buzzing In the Bonnet of Hughes, According to His Own Statement

Washington, Jan. 19.—Governor Hughes of New York, who is here to attend the meeting of the governors, was asked:

"Does your declination to run for the governorship of New York a third time mean you will consider the Republican nomination for president in 1912?"

"It means nothing of the sort," Hughes promptly replied. "It means simply that I intend resuming the practice of law when I finish my present term, and that I will be out of politics. I have served New York the best I know how, and believe I am entitled to a rest from official duties. The talk of my being a presidential possibility comes from my friends and not from me, as I have not given the matter any thought."

HEADED FOR PRISON

Banker Walsh Starts on His Journey From Chicago to Leavenworth

Chicago, Jan. 19.—John R. Walsh, 73, after winning his way from newsboy to the control of millions of dollars in banks, railroads, newspapers and coal fields, left last night for the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan. He will there begin a five-year sentence for misapplying the funds of the Chicago National bank, of which he was president at the time of its failure three years ago.

The start for prison followed a denial by the United States circuit court of appeals of his petition for a new trial on the ground of alleged misconduct by the jurors who found Walsh guilty.

BRIDGEPORT MOB IN LYNCHING MOOD

Men Accused by Bride Heavily Guarded In Jail

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 19.—In abject fear, Joseph Marock and Bartholmy Laska are kept under heavy guard in jail here to prevent their seizure by a mob, which, when they arrived here, clamored for a lynching.

The men are accused of attacking Marock's wife of four days and throwing her into a well, where for thirteen hours, always in peril of quick death, she clung to a frozen pipe and a ledge of ice. Following their capture at Springfield, Mass., where they were about to get the young woman's trunk containing a draft for several hundred dollars and a bank book, the men were brought here.

When they arrived a crowd, incensed by the bride's story, was gathering, and the authorities had difficulty in rushing the prisoners through the gathering to demand drastic action, and for a long time an outbreak was imminent.

The victim of the attack is still in a serious condition, but her recovery is expected.

TWELVE HUNDRED ON STRIKE

Cotton Mills Operatives Get Lower Pay Under a New Law

Webster, Mass., Jan. 19.—As a result of the fifty-six-hour law that went into effect Jan. 1 in factories in this state, 1200 employes walked out of the Slater estate cotton mills, North Webster, yesterday afternoon. It means a loss in wages to Webster and Dudley of approximately $8000 a week.

By a prearranged signal 2200 looms stopped simultaneously. The strikers' demand is fifty-eight hours' salary for fifty-six hours of labor.

ANTI-FOOD TRUST LEAGUE

Two Hundred Thousand People Already Eager to Become Members

Washington, Jan. 19.—Applications for 200,000 membership cards to the anti-food trust league, recently organized to fight by boycott high food prices, already have been received, it was announced after the first meeting of the board of directors of the association.

Various organizations also have asked for membership blanks to be distributed to their members who had signified willingness to join the new league.

New College to Cost $3,000,000

New York, Jan. 19.—The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia university is to be moved near the campus and incorporated physically as well as educationally in the university system. Three million dollars will be spent to carry out the change.

Hundred-Year-Old Bank Trustee

President Issues Tariff Decree

Washington, Jan. 19.—The president has issued his proclamation in which it is declared that under the new tariff law the countries of Italy, Great Britain, Russia, Spain, Turkey and Switzerland are entitled to the minimum imposed by that act.

HITCHCOCK'S ACCUSATIONS

Branded by Ballinger as Absolutely Without Foundation

LAND OFFICE INVESTIGATION

Had Its Inception In Charges by Nebraska Congressman That Nephew of Ballinger Received Pay of Judge Whose Salary Was Cut to Make Room For Him—Other Alleged Wrongs Perpetrated

Washington, Jan. 19.—Richard A. Ballinger, secretary of the interior, issued a statement in which he denies specifically and strongly the accusations of fraud in the conduct of his office made against him by Representative Hitchcock of Nebraska. The specific charge enumerated by Hitchcock, to the effect that Ballinger made room for a relative on the payrolls of the government by reducing in rank a judge whose salary was cut from $2000 to $1400 a year, which reduction caused the death of the judge of a broken heart, is branded as "false" and the other charges as "absolutely without foundation."

Mr. Hitchcock is responsible for an investigation of the general land office that is being conducted quietly and without any publicity except what he is giving to the committee on expenditures in the interior department of the house of representatives. He appeared before the committee and made a long statement.

Chief among Hitchcock's charges was that Ballinger, while commissioner of the land office, had befriended his young relative, "Jack" Ballinger, by giving him a job. The Nebraskan said that in order to do this Ballinger reduced Judge Wright, one of the law clerks, from $2000 to $1400 a year and the judge died of a broken heart soon thereafter.

To further the "reckless expenditure" in the land office under Ballinger, Hitchcock said when "Jack" Ballinger left, which was about the time his uncle went, he was designated as a special temporary inspector of offices and kept in that job just long enough to allow him to travel home to Seattle at the government's expense, after which he resigned to begin practising law.

The committee is now going to call Fred Dennett, the present commissioner, and others from the land office to answer other charges of misappropriation of funds made by Hitchcock. One of the wrongs that have been perpetrated by this branch of the government service, according to Hitchcock, is the building of a brick chimney on the land office building in Washington out of a $1,000,000 fund for the protection of the public domain.

In Ballinger's statement, just issued, replying to the charges of Hitchcock, he ridiculed everything that the Nebraskan told the committee, declaring that in every instance cited by Hitchcock the money was spent with the full sanction of congress.

LET CREDITORS TAKE RISKS

Chicago Pastor Advises Putting of Home In Wife's Name

Chicago, Jan. 19.—"Put your home in your wife's name," advised Rev. Dr. Barton of the First Congregational church, Oak Park, in a sermon on "The Sin of Extravagance."

"Do it openly, and record it where all your creditors can learn it if they wish. Do it now, when times are good, and when everyone knows you can pay your debts.

"It is far more honest for the creditors to take these risks than that a man should load upon his wife and children burdens from which he may not be able to save them."

DEAD BABY IN SUITCASE.

Woman Detained by Worcester Police to Await Result of Autopsy

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 19.—Mary Astron was detained here by the police, following the discovery that she carried the dead body of a 4 months' old child in a suitcase.

The woman appears to be a native of Sweden, and says that the death of the infant occurred in Gloucester, where she formerly lived. An autopsy will be performed to learn the cause of death.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Three months in the house of correction was the sentence which Judge Burke imposed on Michael J. Downey for attempting to vote illegally in Ward 8 at the city election. He pleaded guilty to the charge.

Taft For Public Health Bureau

Washington, Jan. 19.—President Taft will send to congress within the next few weeks a special message recommending he consolidation of the various bureaus and agencies of the government handling public health matters.

Wine Drinking Kills a Child

New York, Jan. 19.—Eva Bonacci, 6 years old, died of alcoholism. An autopsy showed that death resulted from drinking a pint of wine, which she smuggled away after attending a wedding ceremony with her parents.

JUDGE "FIRES" A JURY

Dissatisfied With Verdict Returned In Liquor Nuisance Case

Saco, Me., Jan. 19.—Immediately after the verdict of "not guilty" had been rendered in a liquor nuisance case in the supreme court, Judge Spear summarily dismissed the jury for the balance of the term, declaring: "It would be highly improbable that the state could produce sufficient evidence to convince your judgment beyond a reasonable doubt."

The liquor nuisance charge was against a Biddeford man and was supported by the evidence of a detective hired by the sheriff as a "spotter." A number of other similar cases are still to be tried.

In consequence of the dismissal of the jury, the municipal officers of Saco and Biddeford had to hold a special jury drawing session to fill the panel for the rest of the term.

INCREASED BY SEVEN MEN

Bodyguard of Rockefeller Will Be on Duty Night and Day

New York, Jan. 19.—As a result of many rumors of plots against the life of John D. Rockefeller and also a report that an attempt was to be made to kidnap and hold him for ransom, seven deputy sheriffs have been added to the private constabulary of the Pocantico Hills estate.

The men were sworn in by Sheriff Scherp at the request of Rockefeller and will act as his guards night and day. It is said that the seven have done work in the secret service.

No visitor can get anywhere near the Rockefeller mansion in future without being halted by one of these men and made to explain his business.

NICARAGUAN BLUFF CALLED AT CORINTO

American Naval Officer Forced Release of Steamer

San Francisco, Jan. 19.—The story of a bloodless encounter between the United States naval forces at Corinto and the Nicaraguan authorities was brought by the liner San Juan.

When Captain Nelson of the City of Para applied for clearance papers, he was told that the ship could not leave till Captain Chavez had been turned over to the authorities. Chavez, who had given the American consul details of the execution of Groce and Cannon, had been taken on board the City of Para to be under American protection, as attempts on his life were feared.

Signals were sent by the American consul to the United States fleet off shore. Response was quick and Captain Oliver, coming ashore from the Albany, gave the Nicaraguan commandant of the port five minutes to let Nelson have his clearance papers.

The clearance papers were given and the City of Para sailed with Chavez as a passenger.

PLUM FOR TAMMANY MAN

Made Commissioner of Corrections at Salary of $7500 a Year

New York, Jan. 19.—With one exception, William J. Gaynor completed his official cabinet as mayor of Greater New York last night. In this, the last batch of appointments which the mayor has handed down, Tammany fared better than at any time since the inauguration of the Gaynor administration.

The new commissioner of corrections is Patrick A. Whitney, recording secretary of Tammany Hall. He jumps from the position of deputy fire commissioner to the new job, which pays $7500 a year, succeeding John J. Barry, the McClellan appointee.

HITS AT COMBINATIONS

Cattle Census Bill of Wide Scope Favorably Reported In Congress

Washington, Jan. 19.—Striking a blow at the alleged manipulation of slaughter house products and the effect on the high cost of living, the Crumpacker bill, providing for enumeration at the coming census of all cattle, calves, sheep, lambs, hogs, goats and kids slaughtered, was ordered favorably reported by the house census committee.

The bill provides for a full census of hides to show increases in number and prices and to determine whether these products are under the control of a combination to affect market prices.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

THE PANAMA HAT.

What Came of a Glimpse of the Initials on the Inside.

By HARRIET LUMMIS SMITH.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

As Genevieve came on deck the young man in the panama hat glanced over his shoulder in her direction. Then, with surprising alacrity, he whirled about, and the rapid removal of the panama revealed a well shaped head and close cropped dark hair, which clung through many vicissitudes to an unmistakable tendency to curl.

As the morning dew vanishes under the fierce rays of the midsummer sun, so the young man's expression of joyful animation disappeared when met by Genevieve's chilly stare. His lower jaw dropped. The color mounted from the top of his rather high collar to the roots of his hair. Genevieve went on her way well satisfied with herself.

"I imagine he thinks me not quite as unsophisticated as he supposed. Probably his intention was to surprise me into a bow and then to presume on that to join me. And by the time that I had explained that I really didn't know him we should be beginning to feel quite well acquainted." She smiled again with superior triumph as she reflected on the overthrow of the plot. She wished that Aunt Myra might have been an onlooker—Aunt Myra, who had questioned the propriety of her taking the short voyage unchaperoned.

On the opposite side of the steamer the wearer of the panama hat leaned upon the rail and darkly regarded the blue water. The attitude, suggestive of dejection, gave Genevieve the opportunity to steal furtive glances at the motionless offender. His clothes fitted well. As far as that was concerned, any tailor would be inspired to do his best by such a figure. "Adorable shoulders," said Genevieve, so nearly aloud that it was just as well that Aunt Myra was not present.

At the expiration of an hour Genevieve had come to the conclusion that the guilty young man who had addressed her when she came on deck was not an old offender. He had taken her rebuff too deeply to heart for that. His interest in the Chesapeake bay seemed to undergo no diminution after sixty minutes of incessant staring. Genevieve began to feel that possibly she had been too severe. A look of dignified perplexity might have been enough without any of the ruthless, annihilating scorn before which his self confidence had shriveled. Genevieve surprised herself in a pitying sigh.

It was now time for the panama to take a hand. As Genevieve's commiserating glance stole in the direction of the crushed and disheartened youth staring over the rail her challenge was accepted. With a birdlike motion the panama rose from its owner's head, evading his clutch with a dexterity that argued deliberate intention. It sailed across the steamer's bow, dodging various agile persons who attempted to intercept it, and continued in Genevieve's direction. On reaching her it surrendered at discretion. Tame and obedient as a pet dog, it dropped into her lap, and, though Genevieve clutched it by the brim, that was merely a matter of form. She was sure that the panama hat had no intention of going farther.

The hat's owner was not far behind his property. There was a redness about him that was not due to sunburn, but was not unbecoming. He bowed. Genevieve reflected, with a feeling of self congratulation, like a gentleman.

"I am very much in your debt," said the owner of the panama.

"Not at all, I'm sure," responded Genevieve. Her tone was calculated to a nicety—not friendly enough to encourage liberties in the presumptuous, not chilling enough to disheartened the timid and retiring.

"Perhaps," the young man hesitated, taking his property from her extended hand, "I might improve this opportunity to apologize for what must have seemed a piece of rudeness on my part."

Genevieve listened with an expression as nicely calculated as her tone had been. There was nothing about it on which one could presume, yet it was far from being frosty.

"As you came up the stairs," the young man continued, twirling the panama, "I glanced over my shoulder, and for some reason your face looked extraordinarily familiar. When I bowed I was under the impression that I knew you."

Genevieve's lips curled a little in spite of herself. He would have done better, she reflected, to stop with the apology, the explanation was so painfully weak; trite to start with, and, moreover—well, without vanity, Genevieve knew that her type was not common.

Certainly never was six foot one of manhood so easily disconcerted.

"Thank you again," said the owner of the panama in a low voice, and he turned on his heel.

But as he set his recovered hat upon his head Genevieve caught sight of something that made her start—three shining gilt letters fixed into the inner leather band. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" she cried impulsively.

The young man did not hear her, and a fellow passenger checked him in his return to his seat, seizing his coattails. "Lady ain't done with you yet," said the obliging passenger, and the owner of the panama looked back and saw that it was true.

He returned with an apparent reluctance Genevieve thought best not to notice. "Excuse me," she said breathlessly, "but those letters inside your hat—are they your initials?"

The young man stared and colored. "Why, yes."

"Like an algebra problem, aren't they?" Genevieve persisted.

Apparently the young man wished to show her that she was not the only person who could assume an air of hauteur. "The peculiarity of my name," said the owner of the panama, looking over Genevieve's head, "is a misfortune in which the general public"—

"The reason I asked," interrupted Genevieve, "is because I never heard of but one person whose initials were X. Y. Z., and he was one of my cousin's dearest friends."

The owner of the panama no longer looked haughty. Instead his expression suggested blissful incredulity.

"His name began," Genevieve continued, blushing under the young man's gaze, "with Xavier."

"Young," prompted the other delightedly.

"Zimmerman," Genevieve concluded, and she looked about her. "Isn't there an unoccupied chair? Oh, yes!"

The young man brought it and seated himself beside her. "I've always hated my name," he said meditatively. "It's a mixture of French and English and German, of the prosaic and the sentimental. It's fairly grotesque and indefensible from any standpoint. I've seriously contemplated having it changed by an act of the legislature. But from this day on I'll find no more fault with it. When you saw those letters X. Y. Z., of course you knew there couldn't be but one of us."

"I blame myself for waiting for that," said Genevieve demurely, "since I've seen your photograph at my cousin's, a number of photographs indeed."

Mr. Zimmerman drew a long breath. "And I was wondering why your face seemed so familiar." He made a motion toward an inside pocket, but then checked himself, reflecting that perhaps it would be wiser to wait a little for that. But by the middle of the next forenoon he felt it safe to exhibit the little kodak picture Jim had given him—a picture of Genevieve with a tennis racket over her shoulder and her hair ruffled by the breeze.

Genevieve pouted. "If he were going to give you any," she said, "he might have chosen one that—that flattered me more."

The sea voyage from Baltimore to Boston, though not a long one, affords considerable opportunity for progress in acquaintance. Mr. X. Y. Zimmerman might be suggestive of an algebraic problem, but in that case no one of his fellow passengers was in doubt as to the final solution.

The Psychology of Crowds.

There is a justification for a preventive censorship in the peculiar nature of the crowd. Collective psychology, or the psychology of crowds (mainly investigated so far by French and Italian inquirers), is a study still in its infancy. A completely satisfactory explanation of the peculiarities of the crowd is not yet forthcoming. But those peculiarities are matters of common knowledge.

Briefly, a crowd is a new entity, differing in mind and will from the individuals who compose it. Its intellectual pitch is lowered, its emotional pitch raised. It takes on something of the characteristics of a hypnotized "subject." It tends to be irrational, excitable, lacking in self control. Many Frenchmen under "the terror," gentle and humane as individuals, made up crowds guilty of horrible atrocities. Questioned afterward, they could not account for their actions. Some inexplicable change had taken place in them, and that inexplicable something was the peculiar influence of the crowd.

A theatrical audience has the peculiar psychology of the crowd. An offensive play performed before it has an entirely different effect from that which the play would have if read separately and privately by each individual. The crowd is the real controlling factor in the matter.—A. B. Walkley Before Stage Censorship Commission.

Forever.

"What's the matter, daughter?"

"Ferdy and I have parted forever."

"Um! In that case, I s'pose he won't be around for a couple of nights."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

D. O. MILLS, NOTED PHILANTHROPIST

Financier Who Favored Aiding Others to Help Themselves.

FOUNDER OF NOTED HOTELS.

Three Built In New York Are Monuments to the Late Banker's Common Sense Charity —Incidents of His Career and Early Life—A Sample of His Wit.

To many thousands of persons in the United States the name of Darius Ogden Mills, the famous banker, financier and philanthropist of New York, who recently died at his winter home at Millbrae, near San Francisco, will be associated solely with his broad interest in the welfare of his fellows. His theory was that there is too much waste in the United States and that the value of money is not appreciated. He believed that economy could be practiced without a loss of self respect or injury to the physical being, and he pointed the way in practical fashion. Thousands of young men he saw were expending every cent of their earnings for a bare living amid squalid surroundings, and he erected cheap hotels where food and lodging could be obtained at a minimum price and where a man's self respect would not suffer.

Object Lessons In Thrift.

These hotels, of which there are now three in New York city, are object lessons in thrift, cleanliness and decency. There the man of small income may live well at a small cost and absorb a motive to save a part of the earnings that he would otherwise have to expend for food and lodging. He also erected several model tenements for families of small resources and found that these people respond quickly to the uplifting influences of modern sanitation and moderate rentals. Although his charities were broad, he was always thinking of a way to help men to help themselves before the time came when they had to be helped by their more fortunate fellows.

Mr. Mills was born in North Salem, N. Y., on Sept. 5, 1825. He was the fourth son of James Mills and Hannah Ogden Mills of North Salem. In December, 1849, he started for California, going around the Horn, and arrived at San Francisco on June 8, 1849. From that day his name was interwoven with the story of the growth of California.

Became a Leading Banker.

He established the banking house of D. O. Mills & Co. of Sacramento, which is still the leading bank of the interior of California. Although Mr. Mills spent the greater part of recent years in New York, he passed some months each year in California.

Mr. Mills married on Sept. 5, 1854, Miss Jane Templeton Cunningham of New York, who died on April 26, 1888.

When young Mills left his home in Westchester county, N. Y., to win a place for himself in New York that city was little more than a provincial town, with woods and meadows covering the district north of the city hall. It was not difficult to obtain a clerkship in a bank in those days, and Mr. Mills was not long in finding work. He was not satisfied with the outlook for promotion, however, and gave up the position for a better one in Buffalo, where he soon became cashier and his employer's partner. The first rumors of the discovery of gold in California found him an eager listener, and he resolved to try his fortunes in this new western world.

Got the "Gold Fever."

The "gold fever" which possessed him was not of the speculative character, which was typical of the man. He argued that the rush of men to the gold sections of California would result in suffering from lack of the necessities of life and that there would be a dearth of business organization.

Investing his savings in a stock of mining supplies, he made his first appearance in the gold fields as a merchant. He was successful from the start. Sacramento was not much more than a village at that time, but the proximity of the diggings made it a center of trade with the miners. It was not long before he had established a bank, the first institution of the kind on the Pacific coast. It became a prominent factor in the growth of the community surrounding it.

The bank spread out into a network of enterprises and was finally followed by the Bank of California, which Mr. Mills helped to organize in San Francisco and of which he was the first president. The institution soon attained an international prominence.

A sample of the banker's ready wit was displayed on one occasion in the fifties when an amateur dramatic performance was given in San Francisco for the benefit of some deserving charity. Among the performers was the late Hugh Farrar McDermott, the poet, and in a box was Mr. Mills. The play was some classic piece, and the acting was so bad that what should have been a tragedy became a farce. In the last act McDermott dropped his sword and, stooping awkwardly, picked it up. There was a titter in the audience, which increased as the luckless performer asked, "What shall I do with this envenomed blade?"

From the banker's box came in a queer stage whisper, "Stab yourself, Hugh, and be done with it!"

THIEVES INVADE HOSPITAL

Carry Off Furnishings Which Had Been Used by Smallpox Patients

Chelsea, Mass., Jan. 19.—The smallpox scare in this city caused by the prevalence of the dread disease in this section of the state, was added to when it was discovered last evening that all the bedding, dishes and cooking utensils in the smallpox hospital, located on Bellingham street, had been stolen. As the furnishings taken away have been used in the past by those suffering with the disease, they may spread infection.

How long it is since the goods were stolen is not known. The hospital has not been open for about two years. Not only have thieves looted it of bedding and other articles, but lead pipe has been cut away. The police are looking for the thieves.

KILLED A POLICEMAN

Charge Upon Which a Youth Is Arraigned In Boston Court

Boston, Jan. 19.—John J. Leavey was held without bail for a hearing on Tuesday when arraigned in the municipal court on the charge of murdering Patrolman Daniel J. F. Donovan.

The patrolman went into Chinatown in plain clothes on Tuesday last, when he had a day off, and getting into an altercation with a man was pushed or knocked down. Donovan's skull was fractured and he died in a few minutes. The police accuse Leavey of being his assailant.

Leavey, who is 19 years old, asked for the continuance. He had no counsel when arraigned and it is understood he seeks time in which to engage an attorney.

MISS GOULD REJECTS TITLED FOREIGNER

Her Engagement to Anthony Drexel, Jr., Is Announced

New York, Jan. 19.—Miss Marjorie Gould, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, has declined the chance to marry a titled foreigner and pledged her hand to an American.

Her engagement to Anthony J. Drexel, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel of Philadelphia, was announced last night at an entertainment given by the Goulds at their new home in this city.

Drexel is the young man who a year ago horrified his mother by declaring, on returning from Europe, that he was engaged to Hattie Forsythe, the actress and friend of Evelyn Thaw.

Drexel and the actress became engaged on board the steamer, but the opposition of the young man's mother finally broke off the match.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS

Gains Recorded In Tuesday's Polling All In Favor of Unionists

London, Jan. 19.—The Unionists had decidedly the better of the elections held Tuesday. Of 44 seats contested they won 21, of which 12 were represented by ministerialists in the last parliament.

Several of the Liberal losses, as on preceding days, were caused by three-cornered contests, the intervention of a Labor Socialist candidate precluding the success of the government supporters.

T. P. O'Connor's grip on the Scotland division of Liverpool was proved by an increase of 500 which he received over his big majority of four years ago.

TARIFF WAR MAY RESULT

Germany Will Continue to Stand Pat Against American Meats

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Rejecting many of the demands of the United States, Germany has sent to Washington an outline of her final stand in regard to a tariff agreement. If America seeks to force more advantageous terms than Germany grants in the memorandum cabled yesterday the only result will be a tariff war.

Germany has not backed down from her stand against American meats, which have been the principal point of contention in the negotiations conducted between the state department and the German ambassador at Washington.

Fifteen Hundred at Reception

Washington, Jan. 19.—The second of the big state receptions of the season was held at the White House last night, when President and Mrs. Taft and members of the cabinet circle greeted some 1500 guests. The reception was held in honor of the judiciary.

Doe Breaks Into a Bank

Ware, Mass., Jan. 19.—A directors' meeting at the Ware Savings bank was broken up when a doe crashed through the window, leaped over several desks and drove the clerks and customers out into the street. The doe was badly cut.

General Draper Critically Ill

Washington, Jan. 19.—No change is reported in the condition of General William F. Draper, former ambassador to Italy, who is desperately ill at his residence in Washington. The disease is diagnosed as hardening of the liver.

MURDER WAS NOT INTENDED

Schermerhorn Only Wanted to "Scare" Nurse Brymer

HE MAKES FULL CONFESSION

Brought to Tell Story by Pleadings of Mother In Hospital Where He Is Being Treated For Self-Inflicted Slash In Throat—Gives Intoxication as an Excuse For Committing Atrocious Crime

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 19.—While his aged and weeping mother stood on one side of the chair in which he was propped up, patting his head, and his sister, who also was crying, stood at the other, Frank Schermerhorn, the coachman suspected of the atrocious murder of Miss Sarah Brymer, a nurse, in the home of Barnes Compton, at Millbrook, confessed that he was the murderer and revealed the details of the crime.

When he suddenly blurted out that he was the slayer of the young woman, his mother staggered and then fell insensible to the hospital floor. Her daughter was likewise affected, but was caught before she dropped. The two had believed in the innocence of Schermerhorn.

Schermerhorn, who cut his throat some hours after the murder when he saw that the detectives suspected him of the crime, and who has been in Vssar hospital ever since, had told the officers that he might make a statement after he had seen his mother.

His mother bent over him, and while the officer stood off some distance, the mother counselled her son to make a full and free confession. He seemed reluctant for a time to do so. Finally, while his mother spoke to him in low tones, he blurted out: "Oh, I did it. I will tell."

While nurses were caring for her Schermerhorn made a formal confession, which was reduced to writing and signed by him.

In this confession he pleaded intoxication in extenuation of the crime. He declared that he had no intention to kill Miss Brymer. He told of taking the maids, Miss Alice Dutcher and Miss Mary Farrell, for a sleigh ride the evening before the murder. He drank considerable beer and whisky, and after leaving the girls at the big house he put the horses in the barn and went to his own house and changed his clothes.

Some time after midnight, he continued, he went to the mansion and made his way up stairs and out upon the porch, where Miss Brymer and Polly Compton, 3 years old, were sleeping. He said he has no remembrance of choking Miss Brymer and only went to her room to scare her. Of stealing silver and personating a burglar Schermerhorn professes to have no recollection.

CUPID OUTSTRIPS TRAIN

Father of Eloping Girl Catches Runaways After Their Wedding

Washington, Jan. 19.—Miss M. L. Clark of Virginia became Mrs. Reid in spite of the fact that her father, Franklin Clark, chartered a fast train at New York and pursued her to Washington to prevent her marriage to A. A. Reid of Baltimore.

The father caught up with the runaway couple just in time to be present at the wedding dinner their Baltimore friends were giving them at the Hotel Arlington here.

"Bless you, my children," was all Clark could say when, after he found himself beaten by the elopers, neither of whom is yet 20, he joined in drinking their health.

AN ALLEGED HOLD-UP MAN

Charge of Murder May Be Lodged Against Him by Providence Police

Providence, Jan. 19.—A few hours after William Ludon of this city had been arrested for the alleged holding up and robbing of Sanford Burton, he was locked up on a charge of murder.

The police believe that Ludon has been responsible for the numerous hold-ups which have occurred in this city and vicinity recently, the most serious of which came on the night of Jan. 8, when Gilbert Mann was shot and killed by a man who stopped his carriage in the town of Johnstown.

BRIEFS

George F. Spooner has been enjoying the past few days at the Cape, fishing through the ice.

A few sleighs are out today, but the snow disappeared rapidly yesterday, and the sleighing is most gone. The walking has greatly improved.

The pupils of the Coddington school are busily practicing for the operetta "Golden Hair and The Bears" to be given in the school hall the early part of February.

The installation of the newly elected officers of the Y. P. C. U., of the Universalist church takes place this evening at 7.30 o'clock in the church vestry.

The breaking of a coupling on the 5.45 train from Boston caused a delay of nearly a half an hour to many trains near the South Boston bridge on Tuesday night.

Cold hands instead of cold feet are the probable reasons for the stoppage of the clock on the Wollaston station which has been on the strike for the past week.

At the meeting of the Wollaston Young Peoples Religious union on Sunday evening Fred M. Rollins will speak on the three fundamental principles of Unitarian belief—"Truth, worship and services."

Pickwick club meets this evening at the home of Miss Hattie E. Sargent, Hancock street when "Present day conditions in Spain" will be discussed by John O. Hall and Herbert J. Gurney.

By the will of the late H. H. Johnson of East Braintree and Boston after a few bequests to charities his property is divided half going to his four sons and the other half to his two daughters.

Brockton papers speak of our Mayo as "Daniel "Shea. Here in Quincy those who know him well usually greet him with the cry "Hello Bill." If you said "Hello Dan" it is doubtful if he would recognize the hail.

Next Wednesday evening the Elliot club of Wollaston meets with Mrs. Edward S. Tenney of Prospect avenue. The subject for the meeting is Philanthropists, the parts taken by Mr. and Mrs. Bean, Mrs. Allen M. Jameson and Mrs. John Litchfield.

John C. Murray, president of the Granite Manufacturers' Association; W. L. Jackson, superintendent of the Quincy Quarries Co., and Alexander Falconer, leave tonight for Philadelphia, to attend the two days' convention of the Retail Granite Dealers Association to be held in that city Jan. 20 and 21.

BRIEFS

Fair weather today.

And fair tomorrow.

A meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association will be held Thursday evening.

The City Council Committee on Ordinances will meet next Tuesday evening.

Charles A. Rideout, formerly of Germantown, died on Tuesday at Winthrop aged 24 years.

Mrs. J. B. Sylvester of Maine is renewing old acquaintances in this city for a few weeks.

The Fore River Company feels confident that the Argentine Republic will sign the contract with them this week for one or two 28 000 ton battleships.

James Howley of West Quincy a member of the Boston College class of '11, will represent the college in the South Boston A. C. meet.

A joint installation of John A. Boyd Camp 2 and Gertrude A. Boyd Auxiliary U. S. W. V., will be held tomorrow evening at Union hall, Kincaide's building.

The steam collier Malden built at Quincy is at the Fore River for repairs. While 90 miles south of Nantucket boarding seas started her pilot house, twisted steam pipes on deck, damaged deck fittings and bent the taffrail flag staff.

The many friends of John Joyce of Bates avenue president of St. Mary's C. T. A. and M. R. society, who is now in the City Hospital, will be glad to learn that he is fast recovering from his illness and operation and will be home Saturday.

The many friends of Daniel Duggan of Grove street, a member of the St. Mary's basketball five, is fast recovering from his sickness and it is hoped by the basket ball fans that he will soon be on the floor with the rest of his mates.

Mrs. John Meehan of Jamaica Plain has the sincere sympathy of her many Atlantic friends in the sudden death of her father. Mr. Williams made his home in Atlantic several years ago and was in excellent health until very recently, the cause of his death being appendicitis.

The Sons of Veterans and their Auxiliary held a whist party Tuesday night in Union hall, with thirteen tables. The prizes were taken by Mrs. G. Richardson, smoking set; E. P. Smith, ice cream set; Eddie McDonald, trip ticket to Boston; Arthur French, pair of towels; Mrs. J. Smith, picture frame; George B. Dexheimer, china salad dish. The next party will be Friday evening, Jan. 28.

The monthly meeting of the Wollaston Social society was held in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Tuesday evening. A silhouette guessing contest was the feature of the evening's entertainment and a graphaphone concert was enjoyed. The committee in charge for the evening consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Roy C. Baker, Clarence Moulton, Frank Bishop, Herbert Percival, Miss Elsie Moulton, Miss Estelle Rice and Miss Grace Bishop.

ASSAULT CASE.

Daniel Mullen, widely known at South Quincy, was arrested Tuesday evening by Officer Dinneen on a complaint for assault on a young girl and was in court this morning.

Mullen denied the charge and says that it is a case of mistaken identity and brings forward a number of witnesses who testify as to his movements that evening. The girl claims that a young man spoke to her near the South Quincy depot and followed her up Water street. When Litchman's store was reached she went in there to get away from his. After waiting until she thought the fellow had gone she continued on her way toward home through the John Hancock school yard. As she was passing through the yard the fellow jumped out and grabbed her. She shouted for help and her cries were heard by an older sister who had become alarmed at her non-appearance and was out looking for her. Both girls claim to know the fellow, and on the strength of their testimony a warrant was issued.

Mullen brought forward a number of witnesses who testified that he was with them from 7 o'clock up to the time of his arrest. After hearing the evidence, the court dismissed the complaint for felonious assault, and a new complaint for assault and battery was issued. On this complaint the court held Mullen until next Wednesday.

REVERE HIGH TAKEN INTO CAMP

The Fourth Straight Victory for Quincy High

The fast Revere High team was scalped Tuesday afternoon by the Quincy High five. According to Revere's reputation some believed that Quincy's line of victories would be broken, but from the moment the home team went after them they had no show. The score of 39 to 7 speaks for itself. It was not a soft snap however. The beach bunch were no Rubes. They knew their business and made Q. H. S. step lively. Heavier weight was an advantage to them.

Team work by the local quintet was especially noticeable. No sooner was the leather carried close to the enemy's camp then it was returned. Bates, Manning, and M. Chapman worked together like clockwork. Russ Bates and Billy Manning would pass the leather back and forth from any place distant from their territory with little interference. When they neared the cage one of them would shoot a goal. If perchance a Revere fellow gained possession and attempted to shoot the ball toward his basket Mel Chapman was waiting, and with his baseball training seemed infallible in catching it. Harmon and Arthur were right in the midst of the fray. Another point evident was the excellent covering. The boys not only looked after their individual men, but also saw that the leather was protected wherever it might be.

The way Quincy kept its hand on the ball was certainly worthy of mention. Under such circumstances it is impossible for the opposing team to cast a goal. This excellent work is due to the training gained from hard and persistent practice. With the polishing down each game is giving, the quintet is developing so fully-rounded that any High School team around Boston must put up a crackerjack game to win.

Quincy received 30 of its baskets in the first half, while those of Revere numbered 5. As is often the case, the second half was much more evenly matched.

Russ Bates and Billy Manning were the stars for Quincy because of their fine all around work. Thirty-seven of the 39 points were due to their skill. Their playing became more effective by the able seconding of the other members of the team. Baker played a good game for Revere.

The summary follows:

QUINCY	REVERE
Bates rf	lb Smith
Manning lf	rb Rouillard
Arthur c	c Lambert
M. Chapman rb	lf Clark
Harmon lb	rf Baker

Score—Quincy 39, Revere 7. Goals from floor—Bates 5, Manning 9, Arthur Smith, Baker 2. Goal from fouls—Bates 9, Smith. Referee—Anderson. Umpire—Currie. Scorer—Miller. Timer—Gourlie. Time 15 and 20m periods.

The second teams of Quincy and Revere clashed in the interval between the halves of the big game and afterwards. They put up a very good game, so close that it was uncertain who should win until far into the second half. Quincy conquered 17 to 12. The home five made a good record especially so as it was only about a fourth team.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Dewey club of Weymouth gave a dinner to the officials of the Old Colony base ball league at the United States hotel, Boston, on Tuesday evening.

The St. Mary's basket ball five are now ready to play again and much practice was put in Tuesday night. The baskets had been down for over two weeks and Manager McLaughlin and Bennett thought it foolishness to play with out practise, for they will play nothing but fives with good winning reputation this season.

TODAY'S COURT.

Thomas J. Kenney, Thomas F. Patten and James F. Devine were arraigned for mutual assault at Randolph. Cases continued until next Wednesday.

Daniel Mullen was arraigned for assault at Quincy, Case continued until next Wednesday.

HEAVY LOSS.

While driving up Granite street Monday a horse owned by J. N. Fornell & Co. of 41 Cranch street slipped on a piece of wood and fell breaking its leg. It was first thought that the bone was only cracked, but after a careful examination by a veterinary who used every means to save the horse it was found that the leg was broken and the horse was shot, much to the regret of the owner who stated that it was the best horse he had and valued at $450.

SUPPER AT ATLANTIC.

The people who braved the disagreeable walking and attended the supper at the Memorial Congregational church on Tuesday night felt amply repaid for their efforts, for a very delicious supper was served, the menu consisting of escalloped fish, made pickles, rolls, ice cream, cake baked beans, mashed potatoes, home-and coffee. The supper was in charge of a committee of six ladies, Mrs. Chase Pope being chairman, assisted by Mrs. Charles Cherrington, Mrs. Albert Hall, Mrs. A. Polson, Mrs. Ralph Hobbs nad Mrs. eHnry Von Emden The entertainment given with such success by the Girls' club was repeated for the benefit of those unable to witness the first performance.

London's Latest Craze.

Last year roller skating in London was the pastime of the moment. This year a novel and exciting feature has been added to it. At the Empress Skating rink at Earl's court a "skating switchback" has been set up. This device, which, by the way, is the first of its kind, is a sort of sloping platform (very like that on which the switchback cars run up and down. This stretches from end to end of the building, and down it those who like new sensations glide merrily on their roller skates. Rather terrifying, but full of thrills and with a fascination of its own, is "skating the switch," as it is popularly called, and London has gone quite crazy over it. The rink at Earl's court is a fine one, having an area of 60,000 feet and accommodating 4,200 skaters.

Man on Dress.

Let him alone.
Don't argue with him.
His ideas are warped.
You can't please him at all.
If extravagant you are a fool.
If economical you are surely dowdy.
He will proudly assert that it's the woman, not the clothes.
You get yourself up to fit his ideas, and it will be a case of "sweet bells jangled."
He will point out all the handsomely (tastefully, he calls it) dressed women and wonder (in a rasping tone) why you look dowdy.

Use For Testing Tubes.

A stock of common glass test tubes is a convenience for women who have table centerpieces or other low decorations to arrange now and then. An attractive dinner table in a small apartment utilized recently the fern dish with pink carnations mingled with the ferns and moss. The flower stems were immersed in the test tubes, which had been sunk into the earth of the dish. The candle shades of the table were, of course, the same shade as the flowers.

ICE SKATING WAR IS ON.

National Union May Dissolve Eastern Association.

FIGHT RESULT OF LAMY CASE

Failure of Champion Skater to Register With Eastern Body Cause of Trouble—Squabble Will Not Keep Cracks Out of Big Meets.

Now that the Amateur Athletic union has taken sides with the International Skating union in its fight with the eastern association one of the bitterest wars that have ever stirred the circles of amateur skaters throughout the country is in order. The squabble was caused by the disqualification of Edmund Lamy, winner of the last amateur title, by the eastern association, who was subsequently reinstated by the International union.

The present squabble may bring about a condition which may mean the elimination of the Eastern Skating association from the ranks of the controlling body in ice skating. According to the action of the International Skating union, which is the court of last resort as regards skating, it has decided that Lamy has violated no rule of the union and has reinstated him to the ranks of eligibles, this action having taken place at Chicago.

The Eastern Skating association was held to be in the wrong in its action, and in addition to the reinstatement of Lamy the resignation was demanded of F. H. Coupe, the secretary of the organization, who, it is said, has led the fight against Lamy. As the Eastern Skating association is set in its idea to decide the case in its own way, it is considered likely by those who are familiar with the inner details that the International Skating union will eliminate the Eastern Skating association and install in its place a new organization, though perhaps under the same name. At any rate, the fight will probably continue for some time to come, and it will disrupt the skating situation in a decided manner.

While the trouble originally involved only the eligibility of Lamy and took some cognizance of his standing as an amateur, the controversy has far outstripped that stage now and has developed into the bitter strife between the governing body and one of its branches. A significant fact is that most of the skaters and those closely allied with the sport have taken the stand that the Eastern Skating association has blundered seriously and is now only increasing its unpopularity by pushing the issue to the extreme, which may mean actual annihilation.

And the whole fight has for its foundation only apparently a trifling incident. Lamy a year ago failed to register with the Eastern Skating association, although it is said he was notified to do so by F. H. Coupe. He entered for the races in Cleveland, Pittsburg, Saranac Lake, N. Y., and Montreal. When he heard that Lamy was about to compete at Cleveland, Coupe telegraphed the referee of the races to bar Lamy from the events. This was refused, as the appearance of Lamy had been extensively advertised, and his nonentry would have caused untold criticism.

ED LAMY, CHAMPION AMATEUR ICE SKATER

The way the matter now stands is that unless the Eastern Skating association falls into line it will be asked to surrender its rights as a governing body, and a refusal will bring into the field another organization.

Despite the fact that the two skating bodies are at odds, many championships are scheduled to be held in and out doors, and all the cracks of the country will compete. The championship meets are as follows:

Jan. 26-27—Cleveland national championships (indoor).
Jan. 28-29—Pittsburg international championships (indoor).
Jan. 30—Brooklyn eastern championships (outdoor).
Jan. 31—New York, eastern championships (indoor).
Feb. 2-3—Saranac Lake, international championships (outdoor).
Feb. 5—Montreal, Canadian championships (outdoor).
Feb. 9 or 10—Boston, New England championships (indoor).
Feb. 22—Chicago, western championships (indoor), conditional on completion of rink.
Amateur Champion Edmund Lamy, recently upheld by the Western association, will tour the circuit.

Bethany Congregational Church Now Has Five Hundred Members

Large Sum Raised for Missions and Benevolences

About 200 were out for the annual church supper of Bethany Congregational church on Wednesday evening. The tables were attractive with jardinieres of ferns and flowering plants and at each end of the seven long tables a chafing dish presided over by one of the committee which included: Mrs. J. F. Welch, Mrs. E. W. Sheppard, Mrs. John F. Hunt, Mrs. E. E. Miller, Mrs. S. I. Wood, Mrs. H. Everett Crane, Mrs. W. E. Blanchard, Mrs. F. W. Crane, Mrs. Percy Sears, Mrs. E. W. Branch, Mrs. V. E. Miller, Mrs. George Marfarlane, Miss Addie Parks, Mrs. W. G. Shaw and Mrs. A. H. Gilson.

The menu included tomato boullion, crackers, corned beef, creamed peas, biscuits, pies and coffee. Members of the Philatheas acted as waiters including Miss Gladys Hunt Miss Gertrude Shaw, Miss Gladys Ganzel, Miss Elizabeth Ruxton, Miss Stella Webble, Miss Elizabeth Ross, Miss Bertha Pierson and Miss Christina Booth.

The corporate meeting of the church followed, the moderator being Frank W. Crane. Prayer was offered by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Hardy. John F. Hunt was elected clerk pro tem.

Nominations for officers were reported, and a vote was taken by Australian ballot.

While the ballots were being counted reports were made. Dr. Hardy for the church committee reported that the membership one year ago was 467. There had been a loss of 16 including 6 by death, but there had been 49 accessions the largest in any one year of the church, and the net membership was just 500, including 174 males and 326 females. Only 181 of the 6,000 Congregational churches of the country have a membership of 500. During the year $1,341 had been given for missionary work, and $1846 raised for general benevolences. The general expenses were $5,294 a grand total of $8,481.

Upon recommendation of the committee, 13 persons whose addresses were unknown were dropped from the active membership list.

Charles W. Miller, the treasurer, reported a total income of $6,059.78, including $4,036.16 from pledges, $372.72 from morning collections, and $728.90 from evening collections. Only $15.33 more was needed to settle all bills.

Other reports were made by officers committees and societies connected with the church, and a budget for 1910 adopted. The appropriation for music was increased, that there might be more music at the Sunday evening services.

Resolutions were adopted in appreciation of the long service of E. D. Gourd as clerk and regretting his removal from town.

The ballot resulted in the election of these officers:

Moderator—Frank W. Crane.
Clerk—John F. Hunt.
Deacons for 3 years—Richard D. Chase and Ernest W. Branch.

Deaconesses—Miss Amelia L. Bumpus, Mrs. Fairvilla H. Branch, Mrs. Annie M. Hayden, Mrs. Jane D. Murdock, Mrs. Margaret Ross, Miss Cora Young.

Treasurer—Charles W. Miller.
Auditor—George A. Sidelinger.
Prudential Committee for three years—John F. Hunt.

Finance Committee—Robert Cantley, Herbert Pratt, Victor E. Miller, William G. Shaw, Richard Bishop Ernest W. Branch.

Music Committee—Walter E. Blanchard, Mrs. Kate L. Keast, Mrs. Marion B. Miller, John C. Pierce and William F. Sidelinger.

Bible School Superintendent—Ernest W. Branch.

FORMER RESIDENT.

Dr. William L. Faxon, formerly a prominent citizen of Quincy, died Wednesday. He was a veteran of the Civil war, being commissioned in 1861 as assistant surgeon and in 1863 as surgeon. After the war he was for many years superintendent of the National Sailors' Home in this city. He was one of the incorporators of the Quincy Water Company and largely instrumental in introducing a water supply, and later seeking a new supply by building the reservoir at Braintree. He removed from town a few years ago. He leaves a widow, and also three sons and a daughter by his first wife,—John G. Faxon of Fitchburg, Harold R. Faxon, Randall Faxon and Miss Florence R. Faxon.

WOMEN IN LAW.

The first open meeting and guest night of the Girls Choir club of the Wollaston Congregational church was held in the vestries of the church on Wednesday evening. Miss Monica Foley of the Suffolk bar, the youngest woman lawyer in Massachusetts, gave a most interesting and instructive address on "Women and law as a vocation." Musical features were enjoyed, including special vocal music by the club members. Light refreshments were served with Miss Frances Jones and Miss Edith Chapman in charge.

DAVIS-PLANCON CONCERT

Musical Treat at Alpha Hall Last Night

Seldom has it been given to Quincy people to enjoy right in their own city so finished a performance as the concert at Alpha hall on Wednesday evening. The artists were Mrs. A. Isabelle Davis, reader of this city; C. Pol Plancon, baritone soloist of Boston; and Heinrich Schueker, harpist of the Boston Symphony orchestra.

Over two hundred were present and from the opening to the closing of the program the audience and artists were in accord; the cordial greetings and appreciative encores meeting with quick response.

Mr. Plancon opened the concert with a group of songs by three Italian composers of a few centuries ago. He never sang better. When Mr. Plancon last sang in public in Quincy it was at Colonial hall which was much too small for his full well rounded voice. The environments Wednesday evening all added to the pleasure of his singing and he was at his best, meriting the hearty applause given him. Mr. Plancon was down for four numbers on the program each so different that his rich dramatic and flexible tones were all brought out to advantage.

Mr. Schuecker found instant favor and he was undoubtedly the favorite of the evening. His harp playing gave so much pleasure that there was no doubt in the minds of the audience as to his being the best harpist in the country. Those attending the concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra have seldom had the opportunity afforded Wednesday evening of hearing Mr. Schueker in solo work. Not only is he a great musician but a generous one as well and his response to encores was appreciated.

Mrs. Davis never appeared in her home town to greater advantage and it was generally regretted that she was only down for two numbers. Her three interpretations of the writings of Eugene Field were distinctive and pleasing and the character sketch "Behind a Curtain" by Mrs. Burton Harrison was finely done. The applause was so insistent Mrs. Davis kindly responded.

As stated above the concert was of unusual merit and enjoyment to music lovers and such as one generally has to go to Boston for. To have such a concert right at home and at a very low price for subscription should have filled every seat in the hall but the loss is to those not appreciating the opportunity offered.

The program rendered was:

Sebben Crudele	Caldara
Ocessate Di Plagarmi	Sca latti

SURPRISE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Langhorn of Quincy street were surprised Wednesday night at their home by a few of their friends who arrived at about 8 o'clock and departed at 12. During the evening a light collation was served which consisted of dainty dishes. Singing and solos were numerous and added much to the occasion. Miss Mildred Crowley was the originator of the entertainment by starting a group of solos. It was continued by a duet by Miss Mildred Rogers and Robert C. McNairn. Mr. Crowley also rang in with a solo which brought forth much applause. The present was a steel engraved picture, a very pretty ornament for the home, and one that can not be forgotten very easily by the surprised. Mr. Crowley made the presentation speech and the way he made it created some excitement. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. John Gillis, Mr. and Mrs. Crowley, Miss M. Crowley, Mrs. B. Porterfield, Miss E. Waldron, Miss Glover of Neponset, Miss Mildred Rogers, R. C. McNairn and John Ide.

MISSIONARY WORKERS.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary societies connected with the Wollaston Baptist church was held with Mrs. George F. Pinkham on Wednesday afternoon, a large number of ladies being present.

The following are the officers elected by the Home Mission society.

President—Mrs. George F. Pinkham.

Vice President—Mrs. Joseph Walther.

Secretary and Treasurer——Miss Laura Jones.

By the Foreign Mission society:

President—Mrs. James P. Perry.

Vice president—Mrs. E. E. Bullock.

Secretary—Mrs. Mary Black.

Treasurer—Mrs. A. D. Albee.

Several committees were chosen for the various departments of work in which the societies are engaged, and the ladies are planning for a busy year. At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and light refreshments were served.

RUNAWAY.

The cause of the excitement in West Quincy Wednesday evening was a runaway horse. The owner went into the depot to get a drink of water, and while he was there the express train due at 5 P. M. dashed in. It frightened the horse who dashed down Copeland street in a mad gallop and was swinging the light buggy back and forth. George Donahue of Grove street, Quincy's old third base man saw the horse coming and ran out and jumped at the horse and caught the bit and held on to him until he came to a stop. He then drove him back to the depot where the man stood wondering where his horse had gone. After thanking Mr. Donahue for his kind service he drove away.

Y. P. C. U. OFFICERS.

The officers recently elected of the Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church were publicly installed Wednesday evening in the church vestry. Roger F. Etes of Tufts college being the installing officer. Following are the officers: President, William French; vice president, Roland Grant; secretary, Frank Smith; treasurer, Harold Smith; chairman of social committee, Mabel Damon; chairman of devotional committee, Edith Hyland; chairman of lookout committee, Nellie Barnes.

Mr. Etes instructed the officers in their new duties, and spoke interestly of the State work of the Y. P. C. U. Refreshments of hot chocolate and fancy crackers were served at the close of the meeting by the social committee and a general good time indulged in.

THREE LAUNCHINGS.

Three launchings are scheduled to take place at the Fore River Ship Building Co. next week. Two of the launchings will be held on Monday and third on Tuesday or Wednesday. The launching on Monday will be two molasses boats, the Fife and Gieziela built for the Porto Rico Mercantile Co. The third boat is the Santa Maria II, built for the Columbus Distilling Co.

COURT HOUSE BILL.

The petition of Mayor Shea and others that Norfolk county be authorized to borrow $100,000 for the erection of a district court house at Quincy was presented to the Legislature on Wednesday.

—Broom corn that formerly sold for $90 a ton is now said to command $240 a ton, and it is declared that brooms are likely to bring a dollar apiece within the next year. Thus do the necessities of life become luxuries to be given up by the average housekeeper. If this thing continues house cleaning may soon become one of the lost arts.—Milford Gazette.

WAS WITH CUSTER

Capt. Ryan Tells of Massacre And Other Events

A graphic account of the Custer massacre at first hand is the way in which the talk of Captain John Ryan, before the Walther Men's class on Wednesday evening should be described. The meeting was held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church and was the monthly social of the class. Captain Ryan, besides having been with Custer, is a Civil War veteran, and when on December 19, 1876, he received an honorable discharge after a faithful service of over fifteen years he held the rank of sergeant.

In introducing Captain Ryan, President Badger said that veterans of the Grand Army commanded respect and admiration wherever they were seen, and where martyrs were given the first seats in Heaven, Grand Army men were given the right of the line. We never can repay or measure, said Mr. Badger, the service rendered by the G. A. R.

Captain Ryan is known as the man who fired the first shot and also the last shot at the battle of Little Big Horn where Custer with his five companies were wiped out of existence. Opening with a personal history of his life connected with the army, Captain Ryan told of the Civil War and the events that lead up to the massacre. Mr. Ryan then told how on the fatal morning of June 25 the troops separated into three detachments to march after the Indians. This was the last time he saw General Custer alive, the former going with Major Reno's command.

This command advanced toward the timber on the riverbank where the first shot was fired. Attacked by the Indians they took to the heights, and there in a natural fortification, surrounded on all sides by Redskins they made a gallant stand for two days and a night until rescued by reinforcements. Then it was that they learned of the fate of Custer and his men, and proceeded to the battlefield to bury them. Captain Ryan, who helped bury General Custer and his brother along with some other officers, describes the general as having been shot twice but not scalped.

The scene of the field depicted by Captain Ryan was especially gruesome, and the scenes of carnage enacted must have been horrible. Mr. Ryan closed his talk with a description of his discharge and his return to Newton, where he has been on the police force for the past 32 years.

In response to questions Captain Ryan stated that in his opinion the reason that Reno's command was spared while Custer's was massacred was due to the fact that Custer had no natural fortification to fall back on, and that the Redskins probably stampeded the horses in whose packs was a reserve supply of ammunition.

Folowing the talk, the class enjoyed a variety of refreshments, including sandwiches, cheese, pickles coffee, oranges and cake. Captain Ryan had on display many photographs, and also some interesting documents including papers signed by General Custer and other men famous in the western campaign.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Plenty of big sticks in the woods where the Pinchot club came from.

An income tax ought to encourage investments in unimproved real estate.

Boiled down Mr. Wu's idea seems to be that a man ought to have no great difficulty living to be 200 years of age, provided he can manage to get beyond the 199th milestone.

Certain misgivings which have been entertained about the location and dimensions of President Taft's backbone have been given a rude shock in the last few days.

Dispatches from Africa say that Mr. Roosevelt refused to make any statement when informed of the dismissal of Gifford Pinchot as Chief of the Forest Service. Mr. Roosevelt believes in forest conservation but just at present he is not engaged in conserving the lives of those who inhabit the forests.

It is not an easy task to get ahead of the high-price game. The shoe men now say that they must raise the price of shoes because meat is so high that people are not eating it and in consequence the packers are not killing so many cattle and hides are scarce. And hides are on the free list, too, and the tariff on boots and shoes was cut to the bone. A newspaper in one of the great creamery districts of New York says the farmers there are eating oleomargarine and selling their butter.

The plans for the Canadian navy have been sufficiently developed to indicate that it is proposed to start with a modest $15,000,000 appropriation. In these days of Imperial Dreadnoughts this appropriation will not go far. It will go far enough, however, to give our friends across the border a taste of what it costs to become a power on the seas. The naval programme of the Dominion government may yet be a source of much trouble to Canada in its dealings with the people who pay the taxes.

MOTOR BOAT SHOW.

Saturday evening will witness the opening of the greatest Motor Boat Show ever held in America. For three years this has been an annual event in Boston. Previously it was held in connection with the Automobile Show, but out growing the fostering care of its parent is started out on an independent career with the resule that it is now considered one of the greatest trade exhibitions given in this country. This year as usual it will be held in Mechanics building, Boston opening at 8 P. M. Jan. 22 and continuing all the following week form 10 A. M. to 10.30 P. M. A larger number of exhibits than ever before have entered and the most complete line of omtor boats, engines and accessories ever exhibited will be shown. Many of the fastest boats ever built will be on exhibition, notably the Dixie II, the defender of the British Cup; the Savello, the Br'er Fox II and other notable models. From the boat that the man of modest means may hope for, to the luxuriously appointed craft of the opulent, all will be there and Manager Chester I. Campbell has a decorative scheme that will enhance the value of the exhibition as in the past.

ADVERTISE.

QUINCY CHORAL SOCIETY.

A most attractive circular has been issued this week by the Choral Society in which the soloists for the Messiah concert of Feb. 15 are announced: Mrs. Grace Bonner Williams, soprano; and Miss Nora Burns of Boston, contralto, who will sing in Quincy for the first time; Mr. H. Lambert Murphy, tenor, and Mr. Willard Flint, bass, both of whom won so much favor at the Elijah concert last year. With such a cast of singers in the solo parts the concert will be a rare musical treat ,and as the tickets have been placed at the lowest prices compatible with paying expenses, it is to be hoped that no one in the city who has any love for music will miss hearing it.

The list of guarantors, remains nearly the same as last year, only a few new names being noted, and it is a splendid testimony of the interest taken in this society by men and women prominent in the business, professional and social life of our city. The subscription tickets now for sale by members of the chorus, exchangable at C. C. Hearn's for reserved seat tickets offers an opportunity for an early choice of seats to those who are willing to buy before the direct public sale opens on Feb. 1.

In many Choral societies where the subscription ticket idea is in force, the buyer is obliged to stand in line at the box office on a certain day to exchange his subscription for a reserved seat ticket, and about his only reward for early buying is a doubtful choice of seats and much discomfort, but the plan as laid down by our own society gives the buyer every advantage for a choice of seats as he may exchange his subscription ticket at any time after purchasing.

In thus trying to return to its patrons, in every way, something of value for the money they expend, the Quincy Choral society is making a great effort to arrange all its business methods on solid and practical foundations which will stand the test of time and grow familiar as they are carried out on the same lines year after year.

MERIT WILL WIN TRADE.

But It Must Be All Around Merit, Not the Halfway Sort.

Not long ago we took occasion to remark that merit was always rewarded. A grocer friend has taken issue with us—not on his own account, however, for he has both merit and success, but because he has failed to trace the connection between the two. His argument consisted of example, and he pointed out an instance which he believed practically upheld his contention.

He knew of a fellow merchant. This man is competent, honest and reliable. He has met with hard fortune at several turns of the road of life, and he has been forced into a sad and irretrievable failure. He handled goods that were good, and he worked hard and with some intelligence, but price cutters and catalogue houses descended upon him, and what they left for him wasn't sufficient to support him, so he dropped out of the race.

The merchant referred to had merit as a man no doubt, but he was not a good merchant. After some persistent questioning we learned the secret. He had some of the elements, but not enough of them. He was a good buyer, but a poor seller, and his place was as an employee and not an employer. He was honest, but he was not farsighted, and both are necessary to success. He was reliable, but he was not courageous, and courage must back up the man who wins in the hard battle of independent merchandising. He carried good goods, with quality behind them, but he did not advertise them.

There it is. He did not possess the qualities of merit as a merchant or success would have been his reward. He had some, but not all, of the constituents. He knew something, but not enough; he did something, but not all. Merit in a store is no halfway article. It goes the whole length of the course.

It may seem harsh and unfeeling to assert that he did not deserve to succeed, but we believe that he did not, for merit is always followed by success and reward. The trouble with our critic is that he does not comprehend what merit means. Merit in merchandising includes all that good merchandising is.—West Coast Trade.

MORE WORK IN SIX HOUR DAY

Union Pacific Auditors to Labor From 8 to 2 Without a Stop.

General Auditor Seger of the Harriman railroads, who took charge of the Union Pacific railroad offices at Omaha, Neb., the first of the year, has introduced an innovation by formulating plans for a six hour workday throughout the entire auditing department. He proposes that the men go to work at 8 in the morning and quit at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, not taking any time off for lunch. Advocating the plan, he said:

"Much more work can be accomplished in six hours of continuous work than in the ordinary working day with time out for lunch. The noon hour off distracts the mind from business, and a heavy lunch puts a damper on the energies for the rest of the day."

COLLECTION OF TAXES

How 1909 Receipts Were Divided Among Years

The annual statement of City Treasurer Curtis and City Auditor Fairbanks is just out ,and while temporary loans and the collection of taxes are under discussion it will be interesting to take off the collection of taxes as shown in City Treasurer's report and compare year by year with the amount reported by the Tax Collector on Dec. 31, 1908, as uncollected. The figures follow:

	Uncollected Jan. 1, 1909	Collected During 1909
Tax of 1894,	$1,214.20	——
Tax of 1895,	——	$11.76
Tax of 1898,	576.35	——
Tax of 1899,	575.79	5.76
Tax of 1900,	936.94	4.09
Tax of 1901,	854.26	——
Tax of 1902,	1,763.75	——
Tax of 1903,	2,048.12	2.00
Tax of 1904,	2,176.80	16.15
Tax of 1905	2,533.55	39.55
Tax of 1906,	5,771.10	1,127.30
Tax of 1907,	64,550.61	54,081.09

Tax of 1909,	*665,484.83	371,099.54

* New levy in 1909.

These figures show that about 57 per cent of the tax levy of 1909 was collected in 1909; that 27 per cent of the levy of $609,666.52 in 1908 was collected in 1909; that 9 per cent of the tax levy of $557,811.42 in 1907 was collected in 1909.

After a tax is three years old very little is collected. Of the $12,679.76 uncollected on the taxes previous to 1906, only $79.31 was collected in 1909.

JAIL AND $6000 FINE

Money Lender's Woman Agent Must Serve Sentence For Usury

Hartford, Jan. 20.—As a result of a decision handed down by the Connecticut supreme court of errors, Miss Dora Griffith will have to serve the sixty days in jail and a fine of $6000 for violating the state usury law, as agent of D. H. Tolman of Chicago, the money lender. Tolman loans small sums of money at exorbitant rates of interest.

Miss Griffiith has been at liberty on a bond of $25,000 furnished by a surety company.

Stetson Faction Loses

New York, Jan. 20.—In a meeting which was marked by frequent uproar the anti-Stetson faction in the First Church of Christ, Scientist, defeated the followers of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the excommunicated leader, in the election of four trustees. The Stetson forces lost by a vote of 732 to 486.

Boy Killed by Snow Plow

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 20.—Herman A. Dery, 6 years old, was killed here by a snow plow. The boy was playing in a barn when the plow was accidentally overturned. It fell upon Herman, crushing his skull.

Car Men Vote to Strike

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—By a practically unanimous vote the motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company expressed their intention to go out on strike unless certain specific grievances can be adjusted.

Sells Lungs and Throat

Detroit, Jan. 20.—Bert Morphy of Chicago, the singer, who features all conventions of the Elks with his melodies, has agreed to sell his lungs and throat to the Bennett Medical college after his death.

A Good and Lasting Memorial.

In 1880 a man who had watched with great interest the development of Cornell university, at Ithaca, N. Y., intimated his desire to present to it some memorial to express his love and interest for the institution. He had not great wealth, through which others had been enabled to present fine buildings, but he appreciated the beauty and value of trees, and so he conceived the idea of planting East avenue with elms. Long years ago the donor passed away, but his beautiful avenue remains as a living witness to his generosity, and at either end may be seen a stone bearing the inscription: "Ostrander Elms. 1880." In no better way can man erect for himself an undying monument to his public spiritedness and in no other way may he leave behind a more graceful or fitting tribute to his love of nature. Not only may man leave his own monument behind, but loving hands could plant a fitting memorial to many of our best and most public spirited citizens. To the writer all of our stone monuments and statues are most inexpressibly ugly, and few indeed are worthy of preservation.

AN EPIDEMIC OF VELVET.

Some Veils In Vogue at the Present Moment.

Among the various accessories which are to be considered by the well dressed woman the veil is not least important. Plain meshes are always worn, and every woman's outfit should number one or two of this variety. Made veils decorated with elaborate designs are more expensive, but the finished style given by the use of one of these cannot be supplied by other veils. In close companionship with the long chiffon scarf, now at the height of its popularity, comes the long net veil, which is tied at the back, the long ends falling to the waist.

All of the pastel shades are still in vogue in plain chiffon veiling. Long lengths are used to drape over the hat brims, and the ends are crossed in the back and tied carelessly in front. Chiffon veils are not worn over the face except while motoring. One of the extreme styles in veils is of fine mesh spotted over with large leaves or butterflies. These novelties are very pronounced in their design and demand a face of unusual attractiveness to counteract the almost grotesque effect produced by the veil itself. They are also very expensive.

Although black and white meshes are always in good taste, self toned veils to match the costume worn are much used. It is really a veiled season, and most women are provided with several of these necessary adjuncts.

There seems to be a perfect epidemic of velvet. With the cold weather and the increasing popularity of Russian styles, street suits of velvet in black and all the modish shades have appeared in great numbers. The favorite expression of this craze is a short skirt of velvet bordered with fur, a moderately long coat, which is shorter than those we have been wearing, a fur turban and a huge round muff. This costume, striking as it is, would be incomplete without the boots, which are modeled after the Russian skating boots except the fur tops. So far this feature has been omitted, but in these extravagant days it is quite likely to make its appearance at any moment. This boot is a high one of rather soft tan leather, with black kid vamp and heel tips. The lacings are of tan, and the top of the boot is ornamented with a narrow black turnover strip that resembles a cuff, and there are tiny bows in the middle.

There seems to be no desire on the part of any one to get rid of the short skirt. It is strongly intrenched and is as popular as it was a few years ago. So far, however, the American woman of fashion has not accepted it for house wear or for dress occasions of any kind, although the Paris fashion arbiters have tried to make it the proper thing for weddings and dances.

The popularity of topcoats has not diminished. They hold their own with the short skirt. These garments show great richness of material. Fur, once a luxury, has become a necessity, and the fur topcoat is to be seen in great abundance. The use of semiprecious pelts has lowered prices most appreciably, and this year the long fur coat is worn both by the lady of the limousine and by the shopgirl. Various other materials are also used in the construction of these topcoats. Some of panne velvet are very handsome, edged, as they are, with skunk, moleskin or bear and lined with bright brocades and satins.

In the world of millinery the turban is still dominant. It has usurped already the place of the picture hat for many dressy occasions. It is vastly less troublesome at the theater or concert and may be held in the lap without danger of catastrophe. It is not easy to account for the popularity of the turban, but it exists none the less. It is not picturesque, and it conceals the hair, but it reigns nevertheless.

The large hat now seen at public gatherings has a wide brim that turns up at the back and is held flat to the crown. It is not claimed for it that it is becoming, and it isn't, but it is smart in a way, and that is quite enough to endear it to some women.

One of the prevailing fashions is the two part skirt composed of two materials harmonizing in tone. There is a plaited or circular lower part and a tunic in any form one wishes for the upper part. This may be turned up at the hem and attached to the lower skirt with buttons and braid buttonholes, or it may be left plain, cut in battlements. EMILY SLOANE.

20,000 REFUSE TO EAT MEAT

"Strike" of Cleveland Shopworkers is Gaining Strength

Cleveland, Jan. 20.—One butcher shop closed, pork chops reduced 2 cents a pound, 7000 recruits to the army of "meat strikers," 13,000 in number Tuesday night, were Wednesday's developments in the campaign of Cleveland shop workers to force down meat prices by abstaining for thirty days from the purchase of meat.

As a side issue, Frank Krauze, a lawyer, started a "30-cent egg club," to which he says hundreds have given their approval.

He declares 30 cents a reasonable price for eggs, and insists that eggs, when they become so plentiful as to lower the price, are speedily shipped into cold storage, reducing the supply and boosting the price. He wants his club members to quit eggs until the supply gets so big that the price cannot get above 30 cents.

Leaders of the "meat strike" greeted the announcement in the twenty-seven shops of the Cleveland Provision company that pork chops would sell at 17 cents a pound, instead of 19, as the first fruits of the strike. Other shops were compelled to follow suit.

Butchers declare, however, that the strike is aimed at the wrong people when it is turned on the retailers, and insist they will give the city council all the aid in their power in the authorized inquiry into the real cause of high meat prices.

The retailers say the only result of the strike will be the ruin of small dealers.

Henry Feuer has closed his doors. The shop sales, he said, usually ran from close to $40 to as high as $75 a day, but had dropped in the last few days so that he could not stand the loss. His shop is in the factory district.

Grocers in the district in which factory workers live are reaping the harvest. Vegetables, cereals and canned goods are replacing meats on the tables of the pledge signers' families. A rise in price of many of these articles of diet is expected.

Albert M. Armour, a director of the Cleveland Provision company, admitted that the strike would hurt the butchers, but he took issue with the total abstainers. "Let the people cut their use of meat 25 percent and they will have brought the demand down on a level with the supply and regulate prices automatically," he said.

There is too much demand for the best cuts and too little demand for the other portions of a carcass. As a result there is a big waste on the meats that might be cooked as palatably as the best cuts. That waste has to be made off the parts of the carcasses which are sold."

In Canton last night the Central Labor union voted to inaugurate a meat strike, while Mingo Junction, a small town, went on a decided strike because the butchers boosted prices.

Barre, Vt., Jan. 20.—With the understanding they would receive the same wages they would receiveetaoin same wages paid Barre cutters, 125 granite cutters at Waterbury returned to work yesterday.

They were, however, obliged to leave their work later in the day upon the receipt of an order from James Duncan of Quincy, Mass., secretary of the International Granite Cutters' union, stating they must receive a specific wage scale before continuing work.

STORROW'S CAMPAIGN BILL

Spent $103,250 In His Unsuccessful Fight Against Fitzgerald

Boston, Jan. 20.—It cost James J. Storrow just $103,250 or more than $2 for each vote he received to make the fight for mayor in the recent campaign, according to a sworn statement filed for him with the city clerk.

The amount of expenditures acknowledged by Storrow is about $70,000 greater than that ever before embodied in a similar statement of a candidate for office in this city.

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL

Items of Interest to Students and Graduates

Many class meeting have been held the past week.

The seniors met Tuesday at 1.20 and elected a number of committees. Those on the class gift committee are Leon Brown, Theodore Corey, Alfred Hanson, William Northrop and Grace DeWolf. Gladys Bain, Anna Heaney, Gordon Jameson, Dorothy Frye and Stanley Churchill compose the dramatic committee. Mary Cleveland, Bertha Given, Charles Kendall, Lillian Mead and Edith Hyland, were elected to the motto committee. Three members were elected to represent this class on the committee for Mr. Cleveland's reception.

A Junior meeting was held Thursday after school. The committee of three was chosen to act with the larger one for Mr. Cleveland's reception. It was also voted that class dues of ten cents a month should begin with January.

The class of 1912 assembled for the first time at a class meeting last week and elected a nominating committee consisting of Eleanor Whittemore, Henry Trask, Louise Prout, Ambrose O'Dowd, Lester Chapman and Dwight Gearwar. This committee brought in its report at Wednesday's meeting. Organization of the class is now complete with Henry Trask as president, Whittemore as vice president, Staples as secretary and Prout as treasurer. A committee of C. Cassidy, M. Blackmore, McLennon, M. Hunt, and Dorley was appointed to act in regard to a class pin. The motto committee consists of L. Prout, Tobey, Briggs, Barnicoat, and Cantley.

The Seniors of the Brockton High school are talking up a trip to Washington in the spring. More than a score have signified a desire to visit the capital.

The marks go into the office next Friday.

The Brighton High school ,of which F. A. Tupper, is the headmaster, held its annual officers' party on Saturday afternoon, about 400 attending. Military drill is required at this school. Mr. Tupper was formerly master of Quincy High.

Franz R. Marceau, the miler, will compete at the South Boston A. C., on Saturday.

The High schools of Malden and Somerville wil lhave a joint debate on Friday evening of this week. Malden and Somerville will each select a judge and the two will select a third.

Mabel Damon, '09, visited school on Wednesday.

The Seniors of the North Easton High school will present "The Rivals" on the evening of Friday, Feb. 4.

The basket ball scores of the Abington, Reading, Milton and Revere games total up 108 for Quincy and 39 for her opponents. It is a curious fact that the total score thus far equals the home fives' score with Revere.

Quincy plays away from home for the first time on Friday when the team goes to Newton.

Sarah Hale has returned to school.

James P. Munroe, chairman of the Boston chamber of commerce in a recent address at Hotel Vendome said: "Education is the greatest industry in Massachusetts and it is necessary for the best interests of the commonwealth that the educators and the leaders of commerce and other forms of industry shall get together in better mutual understanding than in the past."

The Seniors of the Bridgewater High school are arranging for a musicale to be given in the near future.

The library books added by the Rock Island fund at the school are:

Critical Period	Fiske
Zoology	Colton
Zoology	Linville and Kelly
The Middle Period	Burgess
The Making of a Nation	Walker
A Short History of the English Colonies in America	Lodge
Encyclopedia set	Nelson

The Dorchester High school has chosen this week as chairman of its foot ball eleven a freshman, Paul Fraser. He has played however two years with the Boston Latin school.

Miss Thompson, the mathematics teacher, was ill Monday and Tuesday.

The sleighing party Aaron Gould was planning has been given up as the roads are not in good condition for one.

The members of the "Deutsche Verein" are anticipating a meeting Thursday, Jan. 27.

Among the former students seen at the basketball games this week were Harold Nash, Jack Nolan, Walter Lakin and Stanley Bates.

The following from the address of Bishop Mallalieu of the Methodist church last Sunday is reprinted without comment: "There are tendencies in civilization in the wrong direction. We talk about the white slave traffic, but we have something in Boston nearly as bad. I declare to you, people of God, that here in Boston the drift is in the wrong direction and so long as dancing and dances are allowed in our High schools it will continue so. There ought to be a state law against dancing in any public school. The theatre is a school of vice and a destroyer of morals and the nude statues and improper pictures sold on our street corners and the vile literature which some journals publish, all these are corrupting the morals of the young and lowering the standard of morality among the older people and leading to the white slave traffic."

Notice of the Harvard club scholarship of $200 to properly qualified graduates of secondary schools within twenty miles from the state House, has been posted. The attainments of applicants, school record, scholarship and qualities for leadership, showing well rounded development are to be taken into consideration.

Mr. Harper in the school report for 1906 said in regard to a school lunch: "The health of the pupils would be improved if there were an opportunity for those who need it to purchase a simple but good lunch. Some provision should be made for the equipment of the room." While the accommodations at the store are in no wise bad, the food would be more valuable were it other than from a bakery. From the context in the report, it is evident Mr. Harper had the lunch counter in mind when he recommended that the domestic science room should have facilities to run a lunch counter.

Although the space around the counter is not large, it is much more ample than at the store.

Mr. Hermann, the former physical director, recommended that two periods weekly be devoted to educational gymnastics at High. Dr. Smith, the present director finds a period a week inadequate to correct unhealthful tendencies. In that one period, time must be given for changing into the gym suits at the beginning of class and back again at the close, and for returning to the rooms. This taken away from the 35 minute period indeed makes the time on the floor short. If Mrs Hermann's suggestions for the grammar school were carried out at High, about one period a day would be devoted to gym work.

On Tuesday the High school athletic league of New York city voted to ask the rules committee of the Intercollegiate Association for the privilege of having a representative present when the consideration of the present game is taken up Feb. 4 and 5. In case the colleges don't see fit to change the present gridiron game sufficiently to please the high school representatives, it is likely that the members will offer a set of playing rules for the high schools of the city.

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can

PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention if results are to be expected. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful—the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment; when baldness occurs the scalp has simply lost its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions.)

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowlton's Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

THE DIAMOND WORKERS.

By New Agreement Union Allows Increase of Apprentices.

The diamond manufacturers of New York city have been notified that a new labor agreement which will have an important effect on the future of the trade has just been formed in Amsterdam, Holland, the chief diamond cutting center of the world, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Under the new agreement the manufacturers are allowed to introduce 2,200 apprentices into the factories in the next five years.

Up to this time the Diamond Workers' International union has allowed few apprentices under the belief that this policy kept up salaries. The 400 cutters and polishers in this city have been getting from $40 to $80 a week in busy times in accordance with agreements made between the union and the Diamond Manufacturers' association.

Another concession made by the union is that diamond manufacturers may now include their sons or relatives among the 2,200 apprentices. Hitherto the workmen have generally preserved to themselves the privilege of selecting the apprentices, so that the trade has been handed down from father to son for generations and kept to a great extent in the same families. Because of the high cost of diamonds no unnecessary risk is taken of an apprentice spoiling a stone, so his training is necessarily slow and thorough and takes five or six years and often longer.

The consent of the union to the introduction of the large number of new apprentices was given only after the Amsterdam manufacturers had agreed to follow the New York city manufacturers in recognizing the eight hour day. The Amsterdam factories, employing altogether about 9,000 diamond workers, are to make the reduction in hours gradually, but all are to get the eight hour basis before the end of two years.

LABOR NOTES.

About 85 per cent of labor in the building trades at Hot Springs, Ark., is organized.

At the close of the third quarter of the current year the Carpenters' union of Sacramento, Cal., had 564 members in good standing and $10,000 to its credit.

The Salt Lake City Typographical union has started a campaign to obtain the session of the international union for 1911. San Francisco is also out for the convention.

St. Paul (Minn.) Carpenters' union has been considering the feasibility of building a labor temple for the unions of St. Paul. The union has $30,000 in the bank, and many of the members wish to invest in a permanent home for the labor unions.

Jap Labor In California.

According to the thirteenth biennial report of the bureau of labor statistics of California, extracts of which are republished in a bulletin issued by the department of commerce and labor, there were approximately 45,000 Japanese in California in September, 1908. It is stated that the Japs showed a tendency to increase as a factor in all lines of labor throughout the state, especially in the larger centers of population. The Chinese population also seems to be gradually leaving the agricultural fields and turning toward the cities and towns.

"HERO OF FORT FISHER."

Noted Exploit of the Late General Newton M. Curtis.

General Newton Martin Curtis, the hero of Fort Fisher and author of "From Bull Run to Chancellorsville," who recently died in New York city, was born in St. Lawrence county, N. Y., May 21, 1835, where he still had, at Ogdensburg, a home. He attended the Gouverneur Wesleyan seminary.

The day after Fort Sumter surrendered to the Confederates it was suggested in the town of De Peyster, N. Y., where he was living, that it send fourteen men to Ogdensburg to form part of a company that should join the Union forces. Curtis, then twenty-six years old, was for organizing a company and taking it to Ogdensburg to join a regiment there.

He started in to raise a company before President Lincoln called for volunteers and in April was in Albany with eighty men, whose services, along with his own, he wanted to offer. The little company was made a part of the Sixteenth New York, and young Curtis was its captain. He was at the first battle of Bull Run and served with the Army of the Potomac until the battle of Antietam. He was wounded during the peninsular campaign, after which he was promoted to be lieutenant colonel of the One Hundred and Forty-second regiment. He was soon made its colonel, and it was with that command he saw his hardest fighting.

The exploit oftenest connected with his name was the assault and capture of Fort Fisher, which was a strong seacoast fortification in North Carolina between Cape Fear river and the Atlantic ocean. It resisted all attacks until the winter of 1864-5. His regiment was part of a force under the command of General Butler which was landed near the fort.

Colonel Curtis led his men close up to the fort while the fleet bombarded it. General Butler gave up the fight and ordered Colonel Curtis to retire. The colonel and his men remained near the walls of the fort. He kept sending back word that he could take it if his superior would let him. He finally retired after the fourth order directing him to do so.

Upon the return of the expedition to Fort Monroe General Grant, hearing of the colonel's exploit, sent for him and asked a lot of information about the seacoast fortification, and the colonel was brevetted a brigadier general. General Grant ordered that another attempt be made on the fort, replacing General Butler with General Terry. Another brigade was added to the force.

General Curtis' brigade advanced by degrees, lying down flat and then running forward ten or fifteen yards. The enemy got in one volley at them, which was ineffective, and by that time the attackers were just under the walls of the fort and below the plane of fire. The attackers scaled the walls and took the bastion nearest the Cape Fear river, and then began a stubborn fight toward the seacoast end, driving the garrison from one traverse to another.

Though wounded four times during the day, General Curtis kept his command until sunset, when an exploding shell sent a piece of metal against his head, knocking him senseless and robbing him of his left eye. He remained unconscious five hours, and it was thought that he was dead. His obituary was written by the New York newspaper correspondents. He was commissioned brigadier general after that exploit and some years later received a medal of honor for his services there.

CHICAGO'S NOVEL "COURT."

State Attorney to Hear Criminal Cases to Clear Docket.

A department said to be unique in criminal court annals of a large city was recently established in the office of State Attorney Wayman at Chicago. It is to be known as "the state attorney's courtroom." In the new "court" all the old criminal cases on the docket, about 1,600 in all, will be practically tried before Assistant State Attorney George Guenther.

Mr. Guenther will go over the evidence and hear witnesses. If he thinks the evidence against the defendant is sufficient the case will be tried before a regular criminal court judge. If the state's side of the case does not appear strong enough Mr. Guenther will have it nonsuited. In this way it is expected to clear the docket of all cases, some of which are several years old, and also save a great deal of time to the regular courts.

Germany's Novel Movement.

Germany has started a unique movement for the improvement of towns and small cities by constructing a number of garden cities, one Berlin society having acquired a large plot of land on the northern outskirts of the city for the construction under the name of Frahau of the first real garden city of the capital.

This city will be built in a picturesque hilly part of the state forest, will have its own railway station and will be laid out regardless of cost as regards external adornment. Judging from reports from all sections of Germany, the idea has taken a firm hold on the people, the feature most insisted upon being the abandonment of the flat house and the substitution of the small house and villa on the English model. In Bavaria, where there is always a shortage of houses, the government will transfer for garden purposes part of the state forests in the vicinity of large towns. At Magdeburg houses with large gardens for single families will soon be rentable for about $60 a year American money. It is to be hoped that this country will soon undertake the same kind of development.

RECLASSIFYING OF SOCIETY.

The Historic Four Hundred to Be Eliminated.

RANK THE FIRST REQUISITE.

A New Set to Be Called the Assembly Is Being Formed by Smart Sets of Philadelphia, New York and Washington—To Be National In Its Scope. Especial Allowance For Bachelors.

Goodby to the Four Hundred, for now it's to be the One Thousand.

Under the name of the "assembly set" the smart sets of New York, Philadelphia and Washington will be fused into a body not to exceed a thousand families. In this process there will be eliminated the now historic Four Hundred. Mrs. William H. Taft is behind this movement, which had its inception shortly after the death of Mrs. William Astor a year ago, and it is looked upon favorably by the New Yorkers in view of the way that divorce and other causes have played havoc with the original membership. There is absolutely no intention to ignore other cities, except geographically. In the opinion of those behind the movement every social leader of the United States maintains a residence in either Philadelphia, Washington or New York, and this will be sufficient qualification for membership.

Wealth Alone Not Considered.

Rank, birth and wealth will be only relative qualifications for membership. Rank will be more valuable than birth, according to the promoters of the movement. They include birth as a categorical qualification in order to embrace those families that have achieved no especial rank or wealth to justify their coming under these headings. Wealth alone will not be considered. That money nevertheless is not an unnecessary item is made plain by the drain of expenses that membership in this set will demand.

The latest development, by the way, discussed at a recent informal reunion at which Mrs. Taft was present, is to make especial allowance for bachelors between the ages of twenty-five and fifty. Their membership will not be considered a numerical unit in the One Thousand, but an extraneous set highly necessary to the smooth working of exclusive social life. The age limit is made twenty-five on the assumption that a man younger than that is not of much interest except as a dancing partner or to fill in odd places, and these odd places, very frequent at ordinary functions, will be eliminated in the new assembly. At about fifty a bachelor will begin to be uninteresting.

National Set Socially Prominent.

Washington believes that there will be a great howl following this winnowing out of many rabid social families. In most cases, it is said, protests and objections will be overlooked as insignificant, but because the assembly is to be a national set socially prominent and entirely dissociated from the traditional sets made popular in fiction or otherwise—and the White House might officially step on the toes of some "howling political dervish whose daughters make him cantankerous and whose wife drives him to desperation," to use the very words of a popular official hostess from Massachusetts—the launching of the assembly will be unaccompanied by publicity or announcement of date and therefore may be expected to materialize any day.

May Not Know They're Excluded.

Those who are left out may not know of it for many months.

The west will not be ignored in this reclassification of social families. There are at least fifty families who reside some time in the year in either Washington, Philadelphia or New York. New England will be well represented.

In planning the new assembly perhaps not one-fourth of the Four Hundred will be given places. This assertion, already current in high society, has reached the ears of some who believe themselves doomed to exclusion, with a resultant antagonism on their part and expressions of derision at the new order of things. It seems that the promoters of the assembly unite in the belief that the Four Hundred and similar sets in other cities have outgrown themselves by intermarriage and a too farfetched loftiness which has removed them from the interesting side of the world.

Early Rising Club.

A dozen of the most prominent business men of Middletown, N. Y., recently organized a club which has for its object early rising. The club has taken the motto "Early to bed and early to rise make one healthy, wealthy and wise." The members pledge themselves to rise every morning at 6 o'clock and to leave their clubs for home not later than 10 o'clock at night, and there are severe penalties for violations of the club rules. One is that the violator must shovel the snow off the president's sidewalk.

To Try Again For South Pole.

Lieutenant Ernest H. Shackleton, who has succeeded in getting nearer to the south pole than any other explorer, recently announced that he has decided upon another antarctic expedition.

PAULHAN'S LATEST FEAT

Carries His Wife In Long Flight That Creates a New Record

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—By carrying his wife in his biplane on a twenty-two-mile cross-country trip from Aviation Field to a point half a mile out over the ocean and back, by taking another passenger on a twelve-mile flight over the fields, and by taking three other passengers, one at a time, on short flights, Louis Paulhan established new world's records for heavier-than-air flying machines.

No other aviator has taken up so many passengers in one day, and no other aviator has taken a woman for a high flight over fields and woods and villages and surf for more than twenty miles.

There were no life buoys tied to the machine to save them from death had they fallen. He made the trip and other perilous flights with ease.

RANKIN IS INSANE

Judge Orders Verdict of Not Guilty Returned Against Woman Slayer

Saco, Me., Jan. 20.—Upon the testimony of Superintendent Sanborn of the state insane asylum that Fred F. Rankin of Kennebunk, charged with manslaughter in causing the death of his housekeeper, Mrs. Delia T. Littlefield, could not have been in a condition mentally to realize what he was doing at the time of the crime, Judge Spear in the supreme court here ordered the jury to return a verdict of "not guilty, by reason of insanity." This was done. Further disposition of Rankin will be decided later.

Rankin and Mrs. Littlefield were found by a roadside at Kennebunk on July 7 last, locked in a death grip. Mrs. Littlefield died six days later.

DEEDS OF BRAVERY BY NEW ENGLANDERS

Nine Recognized by Carnegie Hero Commission

Pittsburg, Jan. 20.—The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, at its sixth annual meeting here, handed down seventeen more awards for bravery in different parts of the country.

Five silver and twelve bronze medals were awarded, and about $19,000 in money. The acts of heroism include rescues from drowning, electrocution, trains, fire and suffocation.

Nine of those rewarded for brave deeds are from New England, as follows:

Francis T. Smith, Boston, bronze medal; Thomas Brogan, Boston, silver medal and $1000; Humphrey J. Moynihan, Boston, silver medal and $1000; Matthew Walsh, Boston (dead), widow given $25 a month and $5 monthly for each child under 16 years of age; James W. Marrian, Woburn, Mass., bronze medal and $2000; Edith Grigor, formerly of North Attleboro, Mass., (dead), father, Edward Grigor, Boston, daughter's bravery; Duncan J. Campbell, Holyoke, Mass., bronze medal and $500; Thomas J. Caniff, Waterbury, Conn., bronze medal; Oscar H. Thomas, Milford, Conn., bronze medal and $1000.

HOCKING COAL MAKES BREAK

Stock Selling a Few Days Ago at 91 1-2 Collapses to 28

POOL IN STOCK IS SMASHED

Brought About Primarily by Refusal of Banks to Make Further Advances on the Stock as Collateral—Decline In General List—Collapse Sends Two Brokerage Houses Down In the Crash

New York, Jan. 20.—The governors of the stock exchange have decided to investigate the causes of yesterday's sensational slump in the stock of the Columbus and Hocking Coal and Iron Company, which sent two brokerage houses crashing to the wall in failures totalling $4,000,000.

A third house is reported to be seriously involved.

The New York banks refused to accept the stock as security for loans and the pool was carried on call money. This paved the way for the disaster. The direct cause was the sudden selling of about 10,000 shares by unknown interests, and the stock that was selling at 91½ last week collapsed to 28.

The stock was held largely in a pool which put the stock up from $20 a share to $91.50. The pool bought at an average of about $77 a share, beginning a little more than a year ago.

The failures were those of J. M. Fiske & Co., and Lathrop, Haskins & Co. The disruption of the pool in the stock market apparently forced the trouble, another episode in the great turning of the general speculative market since the year began.

The firm of Lathrop, Haskins & Co. was organized about a year ago, with Henry S. Haskins as the board member, Henry S. Leverich as general partner and Fanunie G. Lathrop, widow of the former senior partner of the old firm, as special partner. At the offices of the firm it was announced that the failure was due to customers who had refused to make good their impaired margins.

Lathrop, Haskins & Co. for a long time had beeen intimately associated with the interests of the Columbus & Hocking Coal and Iron company and the sharp decline in quotations on this stock are said to have had an effect on the standing of the house. Haskins of the firm is president of the coal and iron company.

The failure of J. M. Fiske & Co. also was announced on the stock exchange. The firm was organized in April, 1900, and had offices at 42 Broadway. The members of the firm are J. M. Fiske, A. C. Sherwood, D. T. Humphrey and C. M. Washburn.

After the collapse in Columbus and Hocking, there was a crash of stocks just before the end of the closing hour. Already there had been one decline, in the forenoon, just after the announcement of the Lathrop, Haskins suspension. In the afternoon the prices crashed downward so rapidly that changes of half a point were common betweeen sales.

Offerings of stock seemed to flood a market absolutely bare of buying orders. From 84⅞, its morning high price, Steel common was swept downward to 81⅝, Union Pacific was liqudated in such amounts that its price went below 189 from 193¼ earlier in the day.

Southern Pacific fell to 128⅛ from 132; Reading to 158¼ from 162⅞, and other shares of the active list suffered losses extending all the way from one to five points. Demoralization lasted betweeen 2:30 o'clock and 2:45 o'clock. Then the market steadied itself and the stocks regained a small part of their loss before the gong rang.

OHIO AND VIRGINIA

Names Bestowed Upon Twin Babies Born on an Ice Floe

Gallipolis, O., Jan. 20.—While being buffeted about in an ice floe on the Ohio river, Mr. and Mrs. William Shields became the parents of twin girls.

The family lived on a houseboat moored at Milwood, W. Va. The boat was torn loose by the ice and when it landed the mother was attended by physicians.

The girls were named "Ohio" and "Virginia," as a memory of the trying ordeal under which they were born.

ADVICE TO INSURANCE MEN

Hughes Tells Them That It Is Not Necessary to Buy Lawmakers

Washington, Jan. 20.—At the third meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Governor Hughes of New York addressed the executive officers of life insurance companies, declaring his faith in life insurance as an American institution. On the subject of legislative corruption he said:

"I hope the time has gone by when it will be thought necessary to protect the interests of life insurance policy-holders by efforts of corrupt legislators.

"You are not handling your own moneys, but the savings of the people. You are not responsible for legislation and you have no duty in any way, by any method, which will not stand full and public discussion, to thwart any attack upon the interests committed to your care."

TURKISH CAPITOL IS BURNED

Palace Which Cost $16,000,000 and Most of Its Contents Destroyed

Constantinople, Jan. 20.—The palace of Cheragen, where the Turkish parliament meets, was destroyed by fire. The building alone cost about $16,000,000. The fire is believed to have been due to defective heating apparatus, although there have been reports current that reactionary agents were responsible for it.

The fire spread with great rapidity. Little furniture and very few of the important documents were saved. Practically all the archives of the chamber of deputies, including important bills and the budget estimates, were burned. As a consequence the business of parliament will be seriously interrupted. Superstitious orientals regard the fire as an evil omen.

DENNETT DEFENDS THE LAND OFFICE

Freely Answers All Questions Put to Him by Inquisitors

Washington, Jan. 20.—A general denial of the sweeping charges of reckless and improper expenditures cited by Representative Hitchcock was made by Fred Dennett, commissioner of the general land office, at the opening session of a hearing before the house committee on expenditures in the interior department. He admitted, however, that some of the minor specifications were true.

Commissioner Dennett freely answered the inquisitors and informed them that Hitchcock could have got at the department all the facts he desired.

Commissioner Dennett was the only regular witness. Adjournment was taken until next Monday, when Hitchcock expects to bring out important developments by prodding Dennett.

A MOTHER'S SACRIFICE

Transfusion of Her Blood Will Probably Save Life of Young Son

New York, Jan. 20.—Life-giving blood from his mother's veins so invigorated 6-year-old Arthur Shibley that his surgical attendants have every confidence that the lad shot by a maniac last week will recover. Mrs. Shibley, scorning anaesthetics, bore the pain without a flinch as the surgeons opened a vein in her arm. In a moment the blood from the mother's healthy system was flowing into the enfeebled lad's body.

The change in the boy's appearance during the twenty minutes the transfusion continued was wonderful. A healthy glow came to his skin and his pale lips became ruddy. Mrs. Shibley is recuperating nicely from the effects of the exhaustiing process.

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

Man Finds $2.50 Gold Piece In Twenty-Cent Piece of Cheese

Brewster, Mass., Jan. 20.—Elmer R. Raymond of East Brewster, while eating a piece of cheese, which he purchased from a local grocery store, bit something hard, and upon investigation found a shiny $2.50 gold piece, which is thought to have been dropped in the cheese by some careless dairyman who worked in a factory.

Raymond paid 12 cents for the half-pound of cheese, and declares it the most profitable investment he ever made.

Le Blanc Case Postponed

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

LAND COURT

To Margaret A. Burns and James H. Penniman of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, and said Commonwealth; the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company and the Old Colony Railroad Company, duly existing corporations having usual places of business in Boston, in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by Walter M. Hall of Somerville, in the County of Middlesex, and said Commonwealth, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land situate in said Quincy, being lots No. twenty-seven to thirty-five, inclusive, shown on a Plan of Land of the Quincy Land Company, Wollaston Heights, recorded with Norfolk County Deeds at the end of Book 1010, bounded: Northeasterly by Old Colony Avenue five hundred sixty-one and 5-10 feet; Southeasterly by land of James H. Penniman and land of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company one hundred fourteen and 10 feet; Southwesterly by said Railroad Company six hundred seventy-one and 69-100 feet; Northwesterly by land of Margaret A. Burns one hundred fifty containing fifty-eight thousand nine hundred and fifty-nine (58959) square feet of land.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition, and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the thirty-first day of January A. D., 1910, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, Charles Thornton Davis, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fifth day of January in the year nineteen hundred and ten.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

The Ring She Sold and the Happiness That Came to Her.

By JEROME SPRAGUE.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

Mr. Kendall, building a bonfire on the back lot, grumbled, "What's the use?"

Mrs. Kendall came to the kitchen door. "Well, I don't see how we can help taking her in."

"One more mouth to feed," said Mr. Kendall as he piled boxes and papers on the flames.

"Well, I told her," said Mrs. Kendall anxiously, "that she'd have to take pot luck, and that you always had your chop or egg for breakfast because you worked so hard, and that the children and I ate the leftovers, and she said that was all right—that she'd eat the leftovers too."

"Humph!" said Mr. Kendall. "She'll get tired of that."

But she didn't get tired of it. She ate hash and warmed over potatoes and fried bread and mysterious culinary resurrections and said to Mrs. Kendall smilingly, "Everything tastes so good."

"I'm glad you think so, Miss Millicent," Sarah Kendall said. "You always have had everything so much nicer that I am almost ashamed to put these things before you."

Millicent looked thoughtful. She couldn't tell Sarah the story of the rigid economy that she had practiced during the last years of her residence in the old home. She couldn't tell how good the hot, substantial food tasted after the months of cold bread and coffee; of how Mrs. Kendall's savory Irish stews and ham and cabbage made her feel as if she had feasted royally when contrasted to the butterless bread and meatless hashes on which she had dined for over a year.

"MILLICENT," HE SAID SOFTLY.

To be sure, there had been cut glass and silver on the table. But these Miss Millicent's mother would never have allowed sold, so that the two lonely women, the last cent of their income swallowed up by bad investments, had sewed a little for intimate friends, who would not tell, and had thus managed to keep up the appearance of gentility.

But when old Mrs. Estabrook died it all had to come out. Everybody in Twining Town knew at last that Miss Millicent, whose family had for generations lorded it over the surrounding country, was left without a penny and except for the kindness of her old servant, Sarah Kendall, would have had to be dependent upon the charity of the town.

Miss Millicent bore her misfortunes with seeming calmness. It was so good to be filled once more with food, to sit by Sarah's warm fireside instead of shivering over a few coals in the great bare drawing room, that the little lady forgot pride, forgot everything but that she was comfortable.

She sewed for Sarah's seven children and earned her place in the household.

But Mr. Kendall grumbled. It was an extra mouth, he kept insisting.

"It's an extra help, too," Sarah told him, with flashing eyes. "You don't think how much her sewing lifts off me."

Miss Millicent was not blind to Kendall's attitude. But she endured patiently, for Sarah's loyalty and the love of the little children made up for many things. But the time came when even Sarah could not protect her from Amos' crossness.

"It's hard enough to earn a living for your own," he flung out one Saturday night as he came in with a heaped up basket of provisions. "Seven mouths to feed and one extra—it's enough to make a man break down—and butter at 35 cents."

Sarah flashed an anxious glance at Miss Millicent, but the little lady went on sewing calmly, and the good woman sighed with relief.

But Miss Millicent had heard, and that night when she went to her little room, high up in the eaves, she took from its hiding place the one treasure left to her out of the wreck of her fortune.

It was the pearl ring that John Tremont had given her on their betrothal. When the engagement was broken later, because of her mother's stern decree, John had refused to take the ring back.

"I want you to keep it until you die, Millie," he had said. "I don't blame you. Your mother doesn't think I'm your social equal, and I guess she is right. If I were sure I could make you happy I'd run away with you. But I'm not sure. You are so far above me, dearest."

So Miss Millicent through all the stress of poverty had kept the ring. And it seemed a sacrilege to sell it now. But the need was urgent. She must not take bread from the mouths of Sarah Kendall's children.

On Monday, therefore, Miss Millicent for the first time in her life entered a little secondhand jewelry shop, and when she came out there was a roll of bills tucked away in her small bag.

With a shrewd intuition she knew that she must not let Amos know that she had any money. He would not be satisfied until he had it in his possession, and he would spend it as recklessly as he did his wages.

So it happened that mysterious packages began to appear at the Kendall mansion. One week it would be a little pig ready for roasting, the next a leg of lamb with greens. Again it was a basket of groceries, a bucket of oysters, and on Thanksgiving appeared a turkey.

"There," Sarah said triumphantly as she showed the turkey to Amos, "you can't complain now that you've got too many to feed."

"It's no credit to her," Amos grumbled, "that we get the things."

"Well, I'll bet it is," Sarah said. "Some of her old friends are probably doing for her that way. They don't want to hurt her pride by offering it openly."

But if the Kendalls had observed closely they would have seen that Miss Millicent rarely partook of the luxuries that graced their table. To her sensitive soul it was blood money that she had taken for John Tremont's ring.

But Amos ate and bragged to his neighbors, "We had spring lamb yesterday," or "Not many people can eat strawberries at this season."

Miss Millicent spent recklessly. She wanted to make Amos good natured, and she had found a way.

But she was not happy. The possession of the ring had seemed to bind her to her old lover. She did not know where he was, whether living or dead, but he had seemed to be in her life until she had sold his ring.

Daily she went to the little jewel shop and looked in the window where the ring was displayed. Inside the golden circle were the words "To Dearest." She wondered if some other lover would buy it and use that inscription secondhand.

One day as she stood, a little fragile figure with faded curls falling in old fashioned style over her thin, white cheeks, a man stopped beside her.

"Millicent," he said softly.

She flashed up at him a startled glance. "Oh, John, John!" she gasped "I had to sell it."

"Sell what?"

"My ring—the ring you gave me."

It all came out then—her story of poverty, his story of work and acquirement of wealth in the far west.

"And I guess I'm good enough to take care of you now, Millie," he said triumphantly as he finished.

"But I'm such a poor little old thing," she faltered.

"Don't," he said quickly. "You are young to me, and what's forty-five? Why, we've a long, long life ahead of us yet, dearest."

And with that he went in and purchased another ring and also one of plain gold, and in the morning they were married, with Sarah Kendall for matron of honor.

After that the Kendalls lived on a wave of prosperity, for John Tremont never forgot Sarah's kindness to Millicent.

And whenever Amos Kendall grumbled about his work or worries Sarah always stopped him. "You just remember how you used to fuss about Miss Millie," she would tell him, "and all the time she was an angel unawares."

Running Water Frozen.

Running water is usually the last thing to freeze solid, and when it does the cold must be extreme. J. Claude White in the Wide World Magazine gives the following description of this very rare occurrence—the freezing of a mountain torrent in a single night:

The phenomenon was one that I have never before experienced—a running river frozen solid in a night! When we arrived the waters of this stream, tumbling over the great bowlders and rushing through the tortuous channels, made a deafening roar. Gradually, but almost imperceptibly, the tumult decreased, while, worn out after a hard day, we fell asleep.

A few hours later, when we awoke, a deathly silence prevailed, and on looking out, to my intense surprise, I found that the rushing torrent of the previous night had been transformed into a solid mass of ice! In this region of extreme temperatures I had on other occasions seen torrents frozen, but never under such startling conditions. On looking round we found that everything we possessed was also frozen solid, including our saddle of mutton, which was merely a block of ice. We were ravenous, but we got no satisfaction from gnawing at lumps of rock which ought to have been a succulent joint, and so, despite our hunger, we had to content ourselves with a little tea—to make which we melted ice—and a few biscuits.

Worse.

"Worse than that. We have hardwood floors."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BIG CRUSADE TO CONSERVE BOYS

COUNTRY LAD HOPE OF AMERICA

Let Three of Best Five Youths Go to the City, but Keep Two on the Farm, Says John R. Boardman—Declares United States Is Being Impoverished by Exodus of Its Young Men.

A new conservation movement is to become a factor in American life. The greatest of the nation's natural resources, the country boy, is the object of its protection. Its voice is raised for the stemming of the tide "that is sweeping the best manhood of the country to the great cities."

"Let three of the average five best youths which the farms produce go to the city," was the platform recently outlined by John R. Boardman, a leader in the work. "The city needs them and would stagnate without them. But we insist that the other two shall stay in the country. The country needs them and is being impoverished by their loss."

Eighteen States Represented.

Mr. Boardman is senior secretary of the country work department of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association. He presided at a "standardization conference" which was held at Chicago a few days ago, where representatives of the county and state work of eighteen states and provinces gathered to systematize the undertakings of this young branch of the association's activity.

"The country is being depleted of its vitality by the lure of the city," said Mr. Boardman in explanation of the organization's mission. "It is not out of selfish interest, but with concern for the welfare of the nation, that we insist that two of every five natural leaders produced by the country shall stay in the country. The country boy is the hope of America.

"We are willing to give up three to the city, and one of the missions of our department is to see that the country boys who go to the city shall go among friends and favoring influences. But the other feature of our work is to organize the Young Men's Christian associations of the small towns of the country in a way to enrich the life of the boys of the country and lead them to a life of satisfaction and usefulness at home."

Outlines Department's Work.

The following is a summary of what the country work department of the International Young Men's Christian association stands for, as Mr. Boardman outlined it:

For the recognition of the inherent value of country life in and for itself.

The maximum development of constructive forces in rural communities.

The creation of a new social community in village and in open country.

Deliverance from the enervating paternalism of the city.

Better health and sanitation in farm homes and country communities.

A redirected educational system which will fit for life in the country.

A more scientific type of crop production and farm administration as essential to greater satisfaction in rural life.

A wholesome development of the recreative life.

Dominance of Christian ideals in the character of the manhood and boyhood of the country.

Need of Country Leaders.

"The country still is the nursery of the nation's leaders," said Mr. Boardman. "But there is as great a need for leaders in the country as in the cities. Not alone is the country being impoverished, but its best fruits are wasted, for the country boy on going to the city, ignorant of urban conditions, frequently goes to ruin.

"On the other hand, the majority of the college men of the whole country hail from the smaller towns and the rural districts. In the conservation of the youth of the country the country work department of the Young Men's Christian association has a mission of greatest importance.

"Our work is co-ordinate with that of the city associations, and it is co-operative in its concern for the welfare of the youths who leave the country to go to the city. The undertaking is not new, but only of recent times have effective measures been found to meet conditions. The value of our work has received the recognition of the federal administration, which is desirous of the extension of the Y. M. C. A. county work into the reclamation projects of the west."

Why Be a Suffragette?

"I don't know why any woman wants to be a suffragette when she can join the Daughters of the American Revolution and run for president general," said Mrs. Donald McLean in introducing the new president general, Mrs. Matthew Scott.

"Perfect happiness reigns," Mrs. McLean said. "As far as I know, with one exception many years back, there has never been an incoming and outgoing president general who were on speaking terms before."

To Tunnel Mont Blanc.

Negotiations are proceeding between Italy and France with regard to a proposed tunnel through Mont Blanc. The tunnel is to run under the Sorret pass and will be the longest in Europe. It will be more than double the length of the Simplon tunnel, which is 19,803 meters long.

HARMON VIEWS WHITE HOUSE

Ohio's Governor Considering a Four Years' Lease of the Place

Washington, Jan. 20.—Governor Harmon of Ohio was an object of much interest at the gathering of the governors of the states in the east room of the White House. While waiting for the appearance of the president, Harmon wandered from window to window to the famous old room gazing out into the grounds.

"How do you like the view, governor?" he was asked.

"Very much, indeed," he replied. 'I understand this house is for rent every four years."

"Are you thininking of applying for a lease?"

"Well," laughed the governor, "when you go house hunting you usually have to consult your wife, so I won't say anything until I see her. But she's in town, you know, and we may talk it over."

TRIED ELECTION BRIBERY

Delaware Republican State Chairman Must Serve Two Years In Jail

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 20.—John Godwin, political lieutenant of T. C. DuPont, president of the DuPont Powder company and Republican state chairman, must serve two years in jail for attempted election bribery.

The state supreme court affirmed the decision of the judges of the Newcastle county court, who pronounced Godwin guilty. The accused was tried by the judges, the constitution prohibiting trials by jury in election cases.

Godwin is at liberty on $3000 bail. His bondsmen have thirty days in which to turn him over to the sheriff.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED IN FACTORY FIRE

Ignored Life Saving Devices Which Were at Hand

Philadelphia, Jan. 20.—Four girls and one man leaped to their death in a panic caused by a fire in the four-story factory building at 208-10 Chancellor street. Five others suffered injuries from which they will probably die, and many more were less seriously hurt.

Nearly all of the dead and severely injured were employed in the shirtwaist factory of Joseph Chachlin, which occupied part of the fourth floor of the building.

The flames, which originated in the elevator shaft on the fourth floor, are supposed to have been caused by the short-circuiting of the electric motor which ran the elevator.

The girls and men in the factory became panic stricken and jumped wildly from the fourth story windows, although the building was well equipped with fire escapes and nearly every window had a rope. The monetary loss is $50,000.

GIRLS IN STRIKE RIOT

Many Arrests When Shirtwaist Workers and Non-Unionists Clash

New York, Jan. 20.—A clash between shirtwaist girl strikers and non-union workers developed into a riot on Spring street and the police reserves had to be called out.

Many onlookers who had no affiliations with either side took part in the melee, which started in a personal encounter between a strike-breaker and a union picket.

Ten of the of the fourteeen pickets who had beeen stationed outside the Spring street plant were arrested. In default of bail they were sent to the Tombs.

MAJORITY OF FIFTY-SIX

Government Continues to Maintain Lead In British Elections

London, Jan. 20.—Of the elections for 81 members of the new parliament held in Great Britain Wednesday the result of less than half is announced, the others being in widely scattered districts, where it takes considerable time to collect the ballots boxes.

In London, where four borroughs polled, two remained true to the Liberals, one to Labor and the fourth went over from the Liberal side to the Unionist. The government up to this morning has a majority of fifty-six.

Two Hundred Killed In Battle

Tangier, Jan. 20.—Two hundred of the Sultan of Morocco's men were killed in a terrific battle with tribesmen, according to news from Fez. The tribesmen attacked government forces, defeating them sharply. The attackers then fled, pursued by soldiers.

Report of Revolution In Uruguay

Buenos Ayres, Jan. 20.—A revolution is reported to have broken out in Uruguay against the government of President Williman. It has been impossible thus far to confirm the report, as a rigorous censorship has been established at Montevideo.

CREDITED WITH MANY HOLDUPS

Providence Police Have Long-Sought Bandit In Their Net

IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Supposed to Be Man Who Robbed and Fatally Shot Joseph Mann—Opinion That Arrest May Throw Light on Killing of Laura Regester Last May, Which Has Been a Mystery Ever Since

Providence, Jan. 20.—The murders of Miss Laura E. Regester and Gilbert Mann, episodes which the police believed had passed into the mystery class of the annals of crime, criminal atttacks on at least a dozen young women, and hold-ups almost by the score, are being investigated afresh by the police in connection with the arrest here yesterday of Ernest W. Lorenz, whose arrest, the police declare, puts behind the bars the most desperate criminal known to the New England states.

Lorenz claims ignorance of the murder of Miss Regester, a mystery which baffled the Providence police so completely that all those interested in the crime had given up hope that the slayer would ever be apprehended.

Lorenz has admitted that he was not far away from the lonely spot where the girl was murdered, and he has said that he was familiar with the Reservoir avenue district.

He has also admitted that he viewed the body of the girl at the undertaking rooms a few days later through curiosity. The police will make a search in the hope they may find the missing bracelet and other trinkets that belonged to the girl. All former rooming places of Lorenz will be visited and girl acquaintances to whom he might have given the jewelry, will be questioned.

Even if the Regester murder cannot be fastened on the arrested man, the police state that the murder of Gilbert Mann, shot to death Jan. 8, will be included in the charges to be pressed against Lorenz.

George Williams, a companion of Mann on the day he was shot, picked out Lorenz from half a dozen men and Mrs. Mann identified a watch and chain belonging to her husband, which had been found in the arrested man's trunk.

Miss Florence Evelyn Wilcox, a normal school student, Mrs. Harry A. Bartlett of Scituate, Miss Mary Hallene of Lincoln Park, Miss Freda Hallene, Miss Florence Ellis, Miss Florence Wilcox and William A. H. Comstock identified Lorenz as the man who robbed them on separate occasions within a month.

A three-hour "third degree" examination came to an abrupt conclusion when the prisoner collapsed and fainted. He was revived by Dr. Griffin and was put through another examination last night, details of which would not be given out by the chief of police beyond the announcement by Chief of Police Egan that "Lorenz has confessed to having attacked criminally twelve girls."

Boy Turns Bandit and Fires Revolver Shots at a Woman

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 20.—Richard Cronin, 15, fired two shots last night at Mrs. James Prentice in a robbery attempt. She was unhurt. Cronin was arrested.

Inspired, the police say, by moving pictures, Cronin decided to turn bandit. He broke into a hardware store, they charge, secured a revolver and then sought a victim. When Mrs. Prentice came along and refused to throw up her hands Cronin opened fire.

Hearing the shot, a patrolman rushed to the scene and disarmed the boy after a tussle.

Tokyo's Gift to Mrs. Taft.

Two thousand Japanese cherry trees, the gift of the corporation of Tokyo, Japan to Mrs. William H. Taft and the city of Washington, recently arrived there. As soon as the weather is favorable these trees will be set out along the drive in Potomac park. The trees represent ten varieties, with that number of different kinds of bloom. A few of the trees will be planted in the White House grounds and in public parks.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they may lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Residents of this vicinity are constantly testifying to permanent cures.

Richard Smith, South Central avenue, Wollaston, Mass. ,says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dull pains through the small of my back and on arising in the morning, I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly dress myself. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply and in a short time after beginning their use, I was relieved. After I had taken the contents of two boxes of this remedy, I was in good health and I have had no kidney trouble since. I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit for this change for the better and I gladly recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

BRIEFS

Mayor Shea made an inspection of the Water department today and found things in first class shape.

M. Sheahan of Perkins street has arrived home from West Townsend where he has been employed as a stone cutter.

Miss Etta Flynn of Lowell has returned home after paying a short visit to her cousin, Miss Annie Scanlon of 47 Hall place.

Members of the Quincy police are spending all their spare time practicing waltz steps so as to be in good condition for the annual ball next week.

The ice men are busy housing their summer's supply of ice, and it looks as though they would have no difficulty in getting all they want this year, and of excellent quality at that.

The many friends of Mrs. J. Ballou of Rogers street will be glad to know that she is recovering from his injuries due to a bad fall on her steps a short time ago.

Hugh Golden of Miller street, who is in the City Hospital on acocunt of an accident which happened to him in Mannix's quarry, is now able to sit up, much to the delight of his many friends.

The many friends of John LaPeirre of Willard street will be glad to know that he is home from the hospital and is recovering rapidly from the operation which was performed on account of gall stones.

There will be evangelistic meetings for boys and girls every afternoon next week as well as in the evening for adults, at the Water Street Presbyterian church, led by Rev. C. T. Schaeffer, one of the Chapman evangelists.

The big steam collier Melrose, built at Quincy, which was in Boston harbor collision on Tuesday evening was able to sail today for Sewalls Point to load, another cargo of coal. Upon her return, however, she will come to Quincy for permanent repairs.

TODAY'S COURT.

Archie McLellan and Joseph Cronin were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases continued until March 1 on payment of costs

The three cases against Albert Furoush of Braintree, for violation of the milk law, were called and he was defaulted.

WOULD BE A UNION MAN.

A San Francisco Minister's View of Labor Organization.

In a labor sermon in his church at San Francisco on a recent Sunday evening Rev. Dr. Dille said:

"Every sensible man believes not only in the right of labor to organize in its own defense, but in its duty to do so. If the unions were to disappear tomorrow the workman would be reduced to industrial slavery. If I were a wage earner engaged in some manual employment I should belong to a union for mutual support and cooperation as against the aggressions of combined capital. By all proper and lawful means I should try to get the best wages possible under conditions of legitimate competition.

"When I say I am in favor of labor unions I do not mean it in the sense in which a big financial magnate means it. When James Gordon Brocks asked him if he believed in trades unionism he said: 'Yes, so long as the union keeps its proper place. It has nothing to do with its employer's business. If it dictates as to hours or wages or shop conditions it is out of its sphere. It should confine itself to mutual helpfulness, sick benefits, burial funds and the like.' He had no use for the union when it got strong enough to offer the alternative of higher wages, arbitration or a strike. He was in favor of a ladylike, mollycoddle sort of union that would keep its place and let him have his sweet, unhindered way about hours and wages."

Labor Editors' Association.

Labor editors to the number of twenty-two who attended the recent A. F. of L. convention at Toronto have formed an association to be known as the International Labor Press of America. The officers elected are: President, Charles W. Frear of Joplin, Mo.; first vice president, Edward Hirsch of Baltimore; second vice president, R. D. Stewart of Cedar Rapids, Ia.; third vice president, Edward Stephenson of Winnipeg; secretary-treasurer, Will M. Maupin of Lincoln, Neb.

Editors of labor periodicals will be given the opportunity to join the association.

New Musical Instrument.

A new kind of piano, the choralcelo, has the ordinary keys and hammers, which may be used if desired, but is also provided with electro-magnets arranged to vibrate the wires without striking with the hammers. The tones when produced by the action of the electro-magnets are said to resemble those of an organ combined with a stringed instrument, giving novel possibilities of melody.

MAKARIA BOWLING

Married Men Square Accounts with South Quincy

The South Quincy team met the Married Men in the Makaria bowling league at the Y. M. C. A. alleys on Wednesday evening, and came to the conclusion that they need more beef or more skill. There was a protest against D. King playing with the benedicts, and the South Quincys say it was not really a victory for married men. D. King was high on singles and totals, but he had close rival on totals. The South Quincy team did win the third string, seeming to improve on each string. The totals were 1575 to 1419.

The summary.

WHIST TOURNAMENT.

Some remarkably good scores were made Wednesday evening at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club. Eight tables were in play and the contest was a keen one from start to finsh. The top score was secured by William Cooper whose card showed 44 won and 14 lost, which gave him 75.8 percent. He won fourteen consecutive hands, scoring 33 points. W. W. Mitchell was second high man with 36 points won and 18 lost, a percent of 66.2. There were several others who secured over 60 percent. The bottom score was 17 won and 41 lost or 29.3 percent. A lunch was served as usual after the play.

QUINCY Y. M. C. A. WINS.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. second team defeated the Wellesley first team at the Wellesley Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evening by a score of 30-12.

The line up:

QUINCY	WELLESLEY
H. Glover, r.f.	Hudson
r. f.	Hopewell
J. Pinel, l. f.	Wright
E. Jenkins, c.	De Grass
D. Dackers, r. b.	Gray

D. Morris, l. b.

Score—30-12. Goals from joor—Glover 5, Pinel 2, Jenkins 4, Morris 1, DeGrass 1, Gray 1, Webster 3. Goals from fouls—Dackers 6, Hopewell 2. Referee—Wellesley manager. Timer McDonald. Halves—20 and 15 minutes.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Tammany club of Bryant avenue visited the Washington Social club Wednesday night and played to a tie in a series of cribbage and forty-five. They enjoyed three solid hours. Tonight the Tammanies of West Quincy try luck with Washington Social at Quincy Point.

David M. Wiseley was elected commodore of the Winthrop Yacht club at the annual meeting this week.

Milton High and Revere High schools have arranged for two basket ball games, the first to be played at Revere, Feb. 12, and the other at Milton Feb. 22.

The Bryant A. C. will go to Alpha hall Saturday night in a body to cheer Mr. O'Brien who is in the prize waltz and they hope that the prize will be his as that will be another feather in their caps.

Buckley and Fitzgerald played a pool match at the Bryant A.C. Wednesday night and excitement ran high among the members when the last game was being played. Fitzgerald finally won after running off nine balls in the winning bust.

St. Mary's basket ball team was defeated Wednesday night by Co. G. of Gloucester at Gloucester, the score being 34 to 21.

NEW BOWLING RECORD

Three String Total 312 in Old Colony League

Norfolk Downs has now passed Quincy in the Old Colony league, the standing being as follows:

	Won.	Lost.
Weymouth	21	4
Norfolk Downs	14	14
Quincy	12	16
Braintree	6	22

QUINCY GAME.

The Norfolk Downs team took the Quincys into camp on the Granite street alleys Wednesday night to the tune of 1359 to 1231.

The visitors' team did some great bowling, Lyons making a phenomenal score of 312, which beats the league record. Up to this game, the record was 311 held by Mellanson of the Braintree team. Lyons' individual strings were 105, 104 and 103. Bugbee also had a big score, his total being 289.

Not only did Norfolk Downs win the match, but they also won all three strings, the lowest of the three strings being three pins more than the highest string of the Quincy team. For the Quincys, Dell was high man on three string totals with 258, with Boutin a good second at 255. When it is considered that the world's record three string total is 325, it will be seen that Lyons did some great work.

The summary:

FOR A SPOTLESS TOWN.

Women Will Dust St. Louis Street Cars Before Riding.

As a protest against the cobwebbed and dusty conditions on a street car line in St. Louis, the women's auxiliary of the North Side Commercial association of that place took the pledge recently to volunteer as car cleaners. Each of the sixty members will carry a whisk broom and dust cloth and before sitting down in the car will brush the seat with the broom and clean the window with her dust cloth.

The wife of a prominent manufacturer leads the movement and borrowed a whisk broom and dusting cloth when going home from a recent meeting. She dusted the seat and cleaned the window, to the amazement of the spectators and the discomfiture of the conductor.

Numerous petitions have flooded the offices of the United railways demanding improvements on their lines, but without avail.

—A total of $76,622,629 was sent out of this country by postal money order during 1909, and $640,640,817 since 1890, representing the surplus earnings of foreign labor employed in the industrial and commercial enterprises of the United States. As most of this was hoarded until it was sent back to the "old country," the figures are a strong argument for the introducton of a system of postal savings banks, similar to those in other countries.—Medford Mercury.

ATTELL AFTER DRISCOLL.

Featherweight Champ Would Meet Jem In Jeff-Johnson Preliminary.

Abraham Attell is once more full of defiance and conversation. The Jem Driscoll bee is still buzzing in Abe's bonnet, and he offers to take up the little Englishman who gave him a ten round lacing in New York last year. He thinks that it would make a fine prelude to the Jeffries-Johnson bout.

Furthermore, Attell is willing to make a concession in the matter of weight, allowing 125 pounds at 6 o'clock as his limit of good nature. Knowing the wily feather, one might imagine that he is growing heavy, as it has not been his custom to give away much, though he has met many men weightier than himself. But this return engagement with Driscoll has become an obsession with him. He wants it, and he wants it badly.

RECTOR TO RUN AGAIN.

World Famed Sprinter Will Once More Try to Outdistance His Rivals.

Jim Rector, known the wide world over as one of the greatest sprinters that ever pulled on spiked shoes, who retired from active participation in athletics after his return from the Olympic games in London in 1908, will return to the cinder path. Rector is now a resident of St. Louis and has announced that he intends to take up running in the spring, representing the Missouri A. C. The former Virginia athlete caused much comment when he ran second to Walker, the South American sprinter, in the 100 meter race at the 1908 Olympic games at Shepherd's Bush, London. Soon after his retirement it was reported that Rector had developed heart trouble. Rector says he thinks with training he will be able to compete in as good form as when he gave up running.

Annual Canoe Meet Scheduled.

Burlington island, on the Delaware, opposite Burlington, N. J., has been selected as the site for the annual encampment and race regatta of the Atlantic division of the American Canoe association. At least 100 paddlers are expected to participate in the four days' cruise from Easton to Burlington, which precedes the racing program. The big canoe fleet will embark at Easton on June 24 and cruise down the river in easy stages, making night camps at selected spots, and will be entertained on the fourth night of the cruise by the Park Island Canoe club of Trenton, N. J. The races will begin on July 1 and will extend over until the 5th.

Wagner May Go to First.

President Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates is seriously contemplating the permanent shifting of Hans Wagner, his champion batsman and star shortstop, to the initial corner of the diamond. He thinks as first baseman the big Dutchman will have less to do and thereby prolong his use as a slugger for the Pirates to the extent of several years. Hans played the initial bag on several occasions, and, while not a sensation, he filled the bill.

SPORTING SIDE LIGHTS

Denver is planning a regatta for oarsmen for next summer.

The Naval academy is holding its first interscholastic basketball series.

The right name of Zbysco, the Polish wrestler, is Stanislaus Cyganiewicz.

Bennie Allen of Kansas City, Mo., aspirant for the pool title, is only nineteen years old.

The Argonauts of Toronto have received a challenge from Syracuse university for rowing races in four and eight oared shells in May next, which the Canadians will accept.

The Amateur Skating Association of Canada will present three trophies during the present season for speed skating—one for skaters under fourteen years, another for skaters under fifteen years and a third for senior skaters.

IDEAL SCHOOLHOUSE FOR WOLLASTON

Dr. W. H. Burnham Describes in Detail What It Should Be.

Present School Lot on Beale Street Favored for Building.

Under the auspices of the Wollaston Schoolhouse committee at the Wollaston Baptist church on Thursday evening, Dr. William H. Burnham of Clark University lectured upon the subject: "The ideal schoolhouse." A number of city and school officials and several school teachers were included in the audience. Among those present were Superintendent Parbury, John L. Miller, of the School Committee; Leslie L. Cleveland, head master of the High school, Principal Goodspeed of the Wollaston school, Councilman Walter F. Nichols and many prominent Wollaston people interested in the movement.

Rufus B. Tobey, chairman of the committee, who presided, prefaced the introduction of the speaker by acknowledging the committee's obligations to the pioneer work, so called of the Child Nurture club.

In opening Dr. Burnham described the conditions in the little country schoolhouse, so well known to the past generation, with the seats near the stove so very warm and the rear seats so very cold. He described the school as the place where centre the recollections of life's beginnings. Where friendships are started and their career as members of society began.

First of all, however, said Mr. Burnham, the school is a workshop and the buildings are not always well adapted for work. Conditions show a lack of expert knowledge and a continuation of old methods. In fact conditions in some schoolhouses are such that did they exist in a private dwelling the health department would step in. The school is the best example of public ownership. It is your workshop; your children are the workers, and you have a right to demand that they work under favorable conditions. Light and air, said Dr. Burnham are the chief requisites with especial care to avoid dust. Work in school requires constant use of the eyes and brain, therefore there is a large amount of light necessary. A rough and ready rule is that the window surface equal one fourth the floor surface. The Boston authorities, however, are satisfied with one-fifth. Dr. Burnham then looked at the situation from an economic standpoint and asked what profit was made if we saved money by not having improvements and the child looses time from school on account of conditions. Among the features in an ideal schoolhouse are the heating and ventilating. This should be by the so-called plenum and exhaust systems. In this large tubular boilers generate steam that is circulated through vast coils of piping between the cold air room and the fan room. On the north side, fresh air is received and is warmed by passing over the steam pipes and forced by fans into the main duct, which extends the entire length of the building, and is introduced into each room by registers in the wall. Brain-work demands an adequate supply of oxygen and the amount of work accomplished depends on this. Efficiency is increased from 15 to 25 per cent in a well ventilated room. The amount of air space per scholar should be 250 cubic feet, and the fresh air supply per minute for each scholar should be 30 cubic feet.

Furniture should be wiped and chalk dust reduced to the minimum. Individual lockers should be provided, and no drinking cups but drinking fountains should be furnished. The school should not be surrounded by high buildings and a playground is essential.

Three things are necessary—light, air and cleanliness but the greatest of these is cleanliness. This is impossible without a proper ventilating system. In the basement should be found, besides the heating and ventilating apparatus, storerooms, playrooms gymnasium, and toilet rooms. Plumbing should be all open and the sanitaries of the best modern style and ventilated through a special exhaust duct.

The light in the class rooms should come from the left or from the left and rear. Schoolhouses should be places of safety not fire traps. There should besides fire escapes be wide staircases, and all exits should open outward. On account of the schoolhouse disasters from fire, said Dr. Burnham, "Lest we forget" should be written on the plans of every school.

Dr. Burnham went on to tell of the germs and contagion arising from particles of dust and urged the use of a vacuum system or an oil brush in cleaning the rooms. We are always ready to spend money to cure a disease or harmful condition, but very little to prevent it. The person who remedies an existing condition is looked on with favor, while one who deals with preventing these conditions is called an academic reformer, a medler, a crank.

The school should first be built as a workshop, but next should be beautiful. At a very reasonable additional expense a pleasing architectural effect may be obtained. No community will knowingly weigh the health of the child against dollars and cents. The important thing is not the work but the worker. Scholasticism looks at the work accomplished rather than at the condition of the worker. Hygiene looks at the mental and physical condition of the pupil.

At the close of the lecture a hand vote was taken as to the location of the proposed new schoolhouse, and was unanimous for its location on the land of its present site.

Dr. Burnham then received a fire of questions, prominent among the questioners being W. H. Brainerd, of Brainerd and Leeds, architects of Boston, Mrs. Robert E. Park and Mrs. Willard E. Keyes.

In response to question Dr. Burnham replied: That it was preferable to have the window space all on one side of the room. That there should be from 40 to 45 pupils in a room and he advocated small class room. That the east or west exposure, for class rooms should be obtained with the sun part of the day and that the old idea of the northern exposure had been given up.

That fire escapes as a rule are a delusion and a snare and are not needed in a proper building. The best fire escapes consist of broad iron staircases with ample exits. That toboggan fire escapes are poor devices and it is a bad idea to think that fire escapes make a poor building safe. A child naturally forms habits in regard to exit and for this reason the regular stairway if it be broad enough is the best.

That two floors were preferable and when there was plenty of land there was no occasion for three. Adjoining buildings should not be nearer than twice their height. That economy consists in two things—the initial cost and then the running expenses. In a school we can afford to increase the initial cost if it will reduce the running expense.

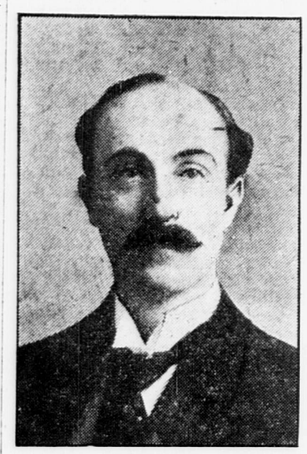
Preceding the lecture a brief organ recital by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith was enjoyed.

—For men the very latest is an Oxford or Derby shoe with high toe, high waist and high heel, also a short vamp. To the conservative English mind this shoe looks a freak. One manufacturer calls his high heel shoes the "Hee-Haw Line." That's just what the shoe looks like.—Shoe Manufacturers' Monthly.

EVANGELIST COMING

Services for Boys and Girls As Well As Adults

Special evangelistic meetings are to be held at the Water Street Presbyterian church for the next two weeks. They will begin Sunday with three services, at 10.30 A. M., 3 and 7 P. M., and will be conducted by Rev. C. T. Schaeffer, one of the Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman evangelists. The morning and evening services are for adults and everyone is invited to come and bring his friend.



REV. C. T. SCHAEFFER.

The afternoon meeting is for boys and girls when Mr. Schaeffer will speak on "Habits." These afternoon services are to be continued each day at 4 o'clock, when the subjects will be as follows: Monday, "Cup of Life" Tuesday, "Wordless book;" Wednesday, "Kites;" Thursday, "Dolls," and Friday, "A new heart."

The meetings for adults will be continued to include Sunday Feb. 6.

Battleships of 28,000 Tons Each With Speed of 22 Knots

The Boston Herald prints the following dispatch, bringing good news to Quincy and Massachusetts:

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 20—The council of ministers has ratified the recommendation of the naval commission that two dreadnoughts be built by an American company. These battleships will be of 28,000 tons each with a speed of 22 knots.

The Daily Ledger is informed that the Commissioner in London is now authorized to made the contract, which will total over twenty million dollars.

ABELE---HUNT NUPTIALS

Will Go To Bermuda on Their Honeymoon

At the home of Mrs. Clarence A. Hunt, 18 Bigelow street, was solemnized on Thursday evening at eight o'clock, the marriage of her daughter, Lora Munroe, and George W. Abele of Adams street. Rev. Henry C. Alvord of the Old South Congregational church, South Weymouth, former pastor of the bride, was the officiating clergyman, and the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, the Rev. J. L. Munroe.

Miss Mary L. Hunt, sister of the bride was maid of honor, and the groom was attended by his brother, Lieut. Clarence A. Abele of Bridgeport, Conn., as best man. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Mrs. John F. Hunt.

The setting of palms and cut flowers was an effective background for the wedding group. The bridal robe of white satin was most becoming to the bride who is bright and vivacious. Her bouquet was of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor wore an apricot silk and carried a bouquet of blush roses.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception for the immediate families and a few intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Abele go to Bermuda for their honeymoon and on their return are to reside at 64 Goffe street, Presidents hill, in the house which has been building for them since early fall and where they will be at home to their friends after March first.

Hearty good wishes are extended to the couple. The bride is popular not only in this city but in Weymouth her native town. As a teacher in the public schools she won the friendship of many young people. Mr. Abele is one of Quincy's well known and successful attorneys, with offices in this city and Boston, and has served as a member of the City Council.

THE PEOPLE'S SHOE STORE

BUY RUGS WHERE RENTS ARE LOW

In Boston rents are measured by inches of floor space. In Quincy rents are measured by yards of floor space. In Boston land is assessed in the business district at hundreds of dollars per square foot. In Quincy a dollar or so a square foot. Boston landlords must and do get enormous rents. Profits are gaged on cost of doing business. If expense of doing business is high, prices are gaged accordingly. We claim that we can and do undersell Boston Stores. On rugs for instance by buying here you can easily save from 10 to 25 per cent. It's these savings to our patrons that makes our business grow.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

We guess it will have to be admitted that this is what has been heretofore known as an old fashioned winter.

Dr. Fletcher says chew every article of food taken 32 times. At that rate, would it be possible to finish dinner by supper time?

There is, after all, one good thing about a severely cold winter. It lessens the opportunities for skating on thin ice.

Up to date Mr. Rockfeller and Mr. Carnegie have given away nearly $400,000,000. Enough to keep them out of the tightwad class, at all events.

The announcement that Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York will retire to private life at the close of his present term means a distinct loss to the public service of the nation as well as to the Empire state. In his short career as executive of New York Mr. Hughes has become a national figure. His efforts in behalf of clean government and for higher ideals in the public service have brought concrete legislative results in his own state and have had a salutary influence on legislation in many states. He has been progressive without being radical and forceful without being dictatorial. He went into office with no political machine at his back and he did not bend to the wishes of the political bosses either in his appointments to office or in his recommendations for legislation.

No chief executive of New York since Mr. Tilden has impressed his individuality on the nation as has Mr. Hughes. In the last Presidential campaign his speaking tour of the West was a continuous ovation. His keen and lawyer-like analysis of the Bryan's panaceas won for the Republican national ticket thousands of votes in strong Democratic territory. Every step he has since taken has increased his hold on the admiration of the country. Even his political opponents agree that in talents and character he is second to no man in public life.

The announced reason for the retirement of Governor Hughes is that he desires to return to his profession in order to provide a competence for his family. He is not a wealthy man and the duties of his high office have made it necessary for him to draw on his private fortune. Doubtless many public spirited citizens of New York would be only too glad to raise a fund to provide an ample future income for the Governor's family, but it goes without saying that this suggestion would find no favor with the New York executive.

Gov. Hughes is still a young man and if he keeps his health and strength his retirement from the Governorship will not close his career as a public official. A year or so hence the Republican party will be in search of a leader to take up the Roosevelt and Taft policies and it is not at all impossible that the men of thought and strength in that party will look to Charles E. Hughes as a man in every way fit by training, temperament, experience and ability to uphold the party standard in the campaign of 1912.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of th's preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

A newspaper says that the art of conversation is dying out in the United States. Is it? Did the man who wrote that opinion ever try to get somebody on the telephone on a party wire? How many times out of ten did he strike his party the first time instead of being told the wire was busy? Did he ever go along the street of a pleasant evening and hear the mass of chat that is being exchanged on any and all subjects? Did he ever attend many dinners and hear the after-dinner speakers reeling it off by the yard? Did he ever try to read an especially interesting article in a hotel or car, and was he ever annoyed by the amount of talk going on all about him? Conversation a lost art? A good many people sometimes wish it was, but it isn't. Fine and artistic and helpful conversation may be dying out, but plain, everyday, low-priced and largely unsaleable conversation is as thick as snowflakes in a blizzard.—Brockton Enterprise.

RULES WOULD BE ABOLISHED

No Need of Them If Roosevelt Wields Gavel In Congress

Washington, Jan. 21.—Roosevelt for speaker, to succeed Cannon, is the latest imaginative disposition of the ex-president. The story has circulated through the Capitol, and represents Roosevelt as agreeing to a plan to run for congress from the First New York district and to accept the speakership as the only public office, aside from the presidency, that appeals to his aggressive qualities.

The White House is conveniently dragged into the plot, with the suggestion that this alleged ambition of Roosevelt is known to President Taft, who is said to have promised to attend the big reception to the ex-president which will be accorded him when he arrives in New York about June 1.

The First, or Oyster Bay district, of New York is represented by William W. Cocks, who is described as more than willing to step aside to let Roosevelt in. Cocks was one of the callers at the White House yesterday, and was in the merriest kind of mood over the report.

"It suits me first rate," said Cocks. "You know Roosevelt has been mentioned for every office in the country ever since he left Washington. This last one strikes me as being pretty good dope. Get out of the way? Of course I would. I would be mighty glad to go back to farming if Roosevelt wants to come to congress."

"What effect would Roosevelt as speaker have on the rules?" Cocks was asked.

"Rules," echoed Cocks, "there wouldn't be any rules if Roosevelt was speaker. What would they want with rules? Talk about Cannon; why, if Roosevelt was in the chair you would never think Cannon had been there."

As Cocks was the innocent cause of the suggestion, made some months ago, that Roosevelt could be nominated for governor of New York, of course he is equally good authority on the speakership. As a matter of fact the ex-president is being very seriously considered for the governorship, on the theory that he is the only man who could pull the Republican party through the Empire State. His intimate friends, however, do not believe that any consideration would tempt him to touch New York politics again, except as a sort of physical director.

Now that the suggestion is made that he succeed Cannon, it has been received with a spontaneity and enthusiasm which are exceedingly interesting. That is all that can be said of the story at present.

LILLEY SURRENDERS

Former Treasurer of Pittsburg Presbytery Confesses $23,000 Shortage

Pittsburg, Jan. 21.—William C. Lilley, former treasurer of the permanent temperance committee of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church, and also of the Pittsburg Presbytery, who had been missing since Sept. 28, has returned to Pittsburg.

Lilley was found to be short $23,000 in his accounts shortly after his absence, but no action towards prosecution has been taken by the church. Lilley has made a confession of his shortage, and a special meeting of the Presbytery will be called to take action on the case.

GREAT MASS OF EVIDENCE

Providence Police May Send Lorenz to Prison For Life

IS CHARGED WITH MURDER

Further Probe Regarding Killing of Laura Regester Not Considered Necessary In View of Other Crimes Which the Bandit Is Alleged to to Have Committed—Plea of Not Guilty Is Entered For Prisoner

Providence, Jan. 21.—Ernest W. Lorenz was held without bail, in the Knightsville court, on a charge of the murder of Gilbert Mann.

Four other warrants charging assault and larceny were also read to the prisoner, and he refused to plead to each.

The police, after a strenuous effort to connect Lorenz with the murder of Laura Regester, have determined to devote their energies to convicting him of crimes with which he is intimately connected by confession and evidence.

Last night several persons who have been held up within the past year called upon the police and identified Lorenz as the perpetrator. These charges will not be pressed, however, as enough have aready been brought to secure, the police state, sentence for life in prison. There is no capital punishment in Rhode Island.

All the warrants are against Ernest W. Lorenz, alias William Luder. The first warrant charged him with the murder of Gilbert Mann in Johnston on Jan. 8.

In reply to Judge Knowles' query, "Guilty or not guilty?" the prisoner, in a dazed manner, said: "No, sir; I can't remember."

Upon his refusal to plead, the court entered a plea of not guilty and held him without bail for a hearing on Jan. 28.

He was next arraigned on a warrant charging that on Dec. 24, in the town of Johnston, he robbed Alice W. Bartlett of a diamond ring, valued at $165. Lorenz said:

"I don't know what you mean. I had a ring and I saw a lady down street. Is she here? If it's the one I saw down street, I held her up, but there were so many of them I don't know which is which if I do not see them."

SLAIN WITH AN AXE

Two Women and a Man Found Murdered In a New York Flat

New York, Jan. 21.—Triple murder was revealed in an obscure flat in the heart of New York's East Side. Two women and a man were the victims.

Gagged with silk handkerchiefs and with their heads crushed with a hammer or an axe, they were left bleeding on the floor, with a whimpering bull terrier as companion for the dead. Robbery was the motive, or else, the police say, it is another case of the Black Hand.

Salvatore Scalpone, a well-to-do young Italian barber, his wife and a middle-aged woman, believed to have been Mrs. Scalpone's mother, were the unfortunates.

The police are convinced that more than one person took part in the murder, but there is no direct clue to the murderers.

LIBERALS DISAPPOINTED

Indications That the Irish May Be In a Position to Dictate

London, Jan. 21.—Results of the latest polling have been a source of keen disappointment to the Liberal party. Their leaders reckoned on losing eight seats, whereas they lost nearly double that number.

The struggle now turns on the point whether the Liberals will be able to obtain a majority clear of the Irish. It is candidly admitted among themselves that unless they do much better today there is little prospect of this indispensable condition of their permanent retention of office being realized.

HER HOBBY.

It Led Her to Make Trouble, but She Rectified It.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

Is there any one who has no hobby? Well, if there is it is questionable if such person is happy. We live lives—at least most of us do—that lie in beaten tracks.

The merchant that has built up a large business goes to his store every day to do pretty much the same thing. His wife stays at home, looks after the servants and makes calls. The doctor visits the sick and listens to an eternal round of aches and pains.

The clergyman preaches every Sunday and makes parochial visits. With all of us our occupation sooner or later becomes humdrum.

What, then, is our relief, our safety valve?

A hobby.

Hobbies are sometimes mere whims, or they may be a fancy that a certain line of action under certain circumstances is essential. Of such kind was Neil Lambert's.

Her hobby was self control. She was accustomed to say that it was the only cultured substitute for contentment and that the result of its perfect attainment was perpetual youth. The quick growth of a frown habit and the wrinkles that follow in its wake were among her strongest arguments.

Neil was wooed and won by John Brent. She was very happy, and apparently John was happy too. The world seemed suddenly transformed from a very humdrum affair to a paradise. She managed to retain her self control, so far as telling any of her friends of her engagement was concerned. Then there was a lapse. Her friend Pattie Roane called, and Neil let out the secret.

Not long after Miss Roane's departure Pattie was standing at the parlor window which overlooked the street admiring some flowers that were kept in the window. She was thinking of her lover, and it seemed that the flowers looked up at her with a happy smile. Happening to glance up, her heart seemed to cease to beat.

There, driving down the street on his dogcart, with Miss Roane beside him, was John Brent. Nevertheless her habit of self control was strong enough to enable her to give the couple a gracious nod and a smile.

What did it mean? Had she not been in that tremulous condition, love, when every shadow is a demon? She would probably have thought that there was no meaning to it whatever. As it was, she considered it in the light of an insult from both John and Pattie.

That evening John called. She received him graciously and chatted with him as if nothing had happened, but before he left told him that their engagement was a thing of the past. All this required great self control, but that self control she possessed.

The three weeks that followed found her still living up to the hobby. If she was a bit whiter and thinner the spirituelle effect was becoming, therefore welcome. There could be a tonic and a change of air should the scrawny stage threaten. Pending that time her maid one morning announced, "Miss Roane."

"Lower the shades a trifle, Lisette," said Neil and glanced into her mirror. "Draw that stand of lilacs nearer, so Miss Roane may come up."

"How sensible you always are!" said Pattie, making at once for an easy chair. "Here have I for three weeks been afflicted with a conscience, and you—you look as if you never had one."

"Three weeks?" smiling. "It is a long time to carry anything heavy."

"Well," with a look half meek, half mischievous, "I have brought the burden to you."

"To me? I thought a conscience was like a railroad pass—always labeled 'not transferable.'"

"I only want it doctored."

"But that is a very trite idea, is it not?"

"What I mean is not trite," said Pattie. She took a cluster of white lilacs from the stand and gently brushed her face with them. Keen eye shots could piece such a hedge undetected. "Trite exploits are either easy or necessary."

"If you mean it is hard to do anything original"—

"But I do not. I mean this is original because too hard to be often undertaken."

"Yet it is only a little conscience to be doctored."

"There are things to tell you," gravely, "because we are friends."

"Present tense?"

"Yes," lowering the hedge to give a steady look.

"Very well," with a smile that held some sarcasm lurking beneath it; "tell on."

"That day after you told me of your engagement to John Brent I saw his dogcart before Ransom's, and I happened in, don't you know, and said something about such a royal day for driving and smiled up at him my very best smile. It was a bit of mischief. I knew you would be cool over the matter and wake his resentment."

"'Behold how great a fire a little spark kindleth,'" said unruffled Neil.

"I asked him to drive this way, and he laughed. We meant only to tease you a little—nothing serious."

"No?"

"Not then," bending her face into the lilacs.

"Well," coldly, "he is now free."

An eye shot passed over the hedge.

"Knowing how that drive came about, you are still too proud to recall him?"

Neil settled herself more cozily among the cushions of her divan and gave her prettiest low laugh. "'Is thy servant a dog?'" she said.

"But he would come," said Pattie gently.

"There is a better way to come."

"And if he does not choose it?"

"I am content," sang Neil sweetly.

"Then if he's free," said Pattie, well behind the flower hedge, "I ought to let you understand," hesitatingly, "that—that"—

"Oh, certainly," said Neil mockingly, "each one for herself."

"I should not have put it in just that way," Pattie went on, with a half nervous little laugh, "but I shall not avoid him or be at my worst with him."

"It is a woman's business," dryly, "to charm, especially to charm one man."

"If he is the right one," faltered Pattie Roane.

"True. Yet the wrong one is often entertaining and easier."

"And you do not care?" asked Pattie as she took up and put the flowers back in the vase. "But you'll believe, won't you, that I meant no wrong, that I did not know what would come?"

"You have not finished your story," said Neil, with sudden sharpness. "What has come to him—what has come?"

"If you would be sorry, I think," very low, "that he would be happy."

"Otherwise—in time?" breathlessly.

"Perhaps he may think of me," said Pattie and turned away her face.

She was going silently to the door when Neil, white as her lilacs, came to the lintel.

"You have been honest," she said chokingly, "so I will tell you. I cannot bear it," with a sob, "I cannot!"

Pattie flushed. "Do you want me to go away out of his reach?" she asked with voice that trembled and with lowered eyes.

"No, but I will write and ask him"—alas for the hobby, tears came—"ask him to forgive me."

"I will wait and post the letter," Pattie slowly and went back to her chair.

"He may be angry still, you know," Neil said wistfully when the note was written and her guest on the stair, but there was no answer.

Pattie hurried out to the corner mail box and, having dropped the note inside, came around the turn of the street face to face with John Brent.

"I have been attending to some of your business," she said, with a happy laugh.

"Thank you. It could not be in better hands, I am sure," said John.

"I think so myself," radiantly. "Could you pick a lock or a corner post box?"

"Well, not without some training, I think."

"Then the best thing for you to do is to go on to Neil's. Say the proper thing, you know," rapidly. "Say that you are a wreck from misery and cannot bear it any longer."

"But"—

"That handsome Englishman has been sending more flowers, exquisite white lilacs. If I were you they should go out of a back window."

"But"—

"She will be delighted that you came before the note reached you, but do not hint that you know about it."

"About what?"

"The note, the note, the note!"

"Pick a corner post box," said John dazedly, but with a slight dawning in his eye. "Neil has written me a note?"

"Oh, the slowness of a man's mind!" cried Pattie. "Are you going to stand here after all my brilliant plot while that girl sobs herself ill—ill waiting to know if you forgive her?"

John's answer was in the rapidity of his stride around the corner, and Pattie, the plotter, her face dimpling with smiles and ease of conscience, went far enough to peep and see him run up Neil's steps three at a time.

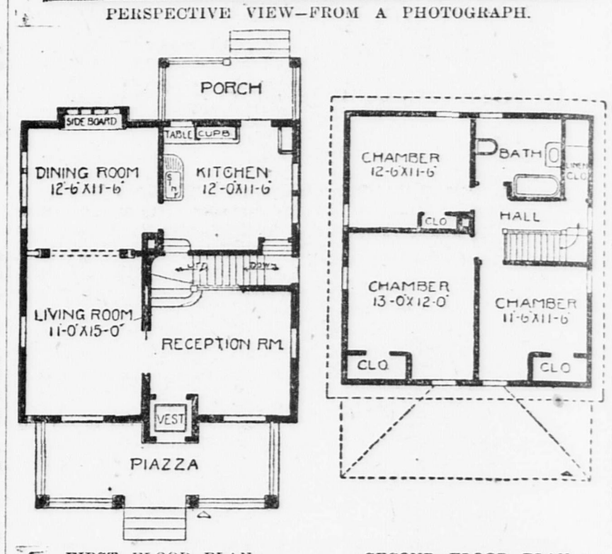
"Good!" she murmured, with a little chuckle. But it must be admitted that she deserved one.

That was Neil's last effort at controlling her feelings when she felt aggrieved. She had learned that standing out as if the right was all hers without giving the other side a hearing was not self control, but injustice. And Pattie Roane, whose mischievous disposition was always getting her into scrapes which her genial disposition usually got her out of, learned that her propensity for such larks should be curbed by a proper self control.

A Well Arranged Cottage.

Design 93, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This plan for a seven room cottage is greatly admired. The arrangement of the rooms is compact and convenient, making a comfortable dwelling for a family that can be accommodated in a house of this size. The first story contains four large rooms, all opening together. There is a sideboard in rear of the dining room, with windows over it. There is also a grade door on the kitchen side under the stairs to the second story. The second story is reached by combination stairways leading from the kitchen and reception hall. There are three large chambers in the second story, good bath and linen closet. Size 26 by 28.

There is a full basement under the entire house. The first story is nine feet high, the second story eight feet. Birch floors are used throughout, with Washington fir or red oak finish in the first story and pine to paint in the second. Cost to build, exclusive of plumbing and heating, $2,300.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 93 for $15.

WHY GAS IS THE BEST LIGHT FOR YOU

QUALITY—The soft, mellow steady light of the modern mantle burner is absolutely the best artificial light to work or read by.

DOES NOT TIRE THE EYES.

CONVENIENCE—By using the Chain Pull attachment on the burners, the use of matches is abolished.

QUANTITY—The Reflex Inverted Light with Holophane Reflector gives a light equal to 200 candles directly under the light.

We will put in a light on trial; if you don't like it we will take it out without expense to you.

ASSESSOR'S AGGREGATES OUT FOR YEAR 1909

Over 7,600 Assessed for Property an Increase Of 620 in One Year

Buildings Assessed for $2,526,825 More Than the Land

The assessed valuation of city for 1909 was reported in the summer at $29,811,565, but there are certain interesting figures known as the "Assessors Aggregates," which come later, and are given below in comparison with the year 1908. The increase in valuation in one year was $1,201,175, of which $704,875 was on real estate, and $218,500 on personal property. The per capita valuation on a population of 29,811 would be $1,000.

The value of the buildings exclusive of the land is $13,262,675, an increase of $704,875 in one year, and $2,526,825 in excess of the assessed value of the land.

The value of the land excluding building is $10,735,850, an increase of $218,500 in one year.

The assessed value ofpersonal property is $5,813,040, an increase of $377,800 in one year.

The number of persons assessed on property is 7,615 an increase of 620 in one year.

The number of residents assessed on property is 5,217 an increase of 405 in one year. Over 17 per cent of the population own property in Quincy, about one in every six. How many of these are men and how many women the figures do not disclose, and it is not easy to ascertain how many taxpayers are voters.

The number of non residents assessed on property is 2,398, a gain of 215 in one year.

The value of resident bank stock remains about the same.

The number of horses assessed is 1156, a loss of 52 in one year. There is also a loss of 12 cows.

The number of houses in the city is 6,021, an increase of 406 from May 1, 1908, to May 1, 1909, a big showing for any city with twice the population.

The Assessors figures of 1908 and 1909 are compared below:

	1909.	1908.
Residents assessed on property,	5,217	4,812
Individuals,	4,392	4,038

WANTED IN DAKOTA

West Quincy Pastor Receives Urgent Call

Rev. Carl H. Raupach at the present time pastor of the Hall Place M. E. Church, has received an urgent call to South Dakota. It is not known whether or not Mr. Raupach will accept the call, but West Quincy people and especially those of his own church, while they wish him all the success and joy of the larger field of work to which he has been called, and for which he is so admirably fitted, do not care to lose him, and it is earnestly hoped that the conference will unanimously request his return to West Quincy for another year. Mr. Raupach has been a faithful, industrious, untiring worker since he came to this church over two years ago, and it is through his efforts and his labors that so many much needed improvements have been made in the church.

Although not entirely free from debt the church has been benefitted financially during this time, and it is hoped to free the church from any and all debts in a short time.

Spiritually the church was never in a better condition, and while no depreciation of past or future pastors is intended, it is certainly the right thought in the right place that Rev. C. H. Raupach is the man best fitted to cope with this important work. His friends hope for his return to his present charge for another year.

LIBRARY EXHIBIT

Beautiful Pictures of the Rhine Region

The beautiful photographs of Norway, its fjords and pine-clad hills and midnight sun, have been sent on to the next library, and in their place there is now on exhibition at the Thomas Crane Public Library until Feb. 5 a charming collection of colored photographs by the Detroit Photographic Co. There are 58 pictures of the beautiful Up the Rhine region; its castles, cathedrials fortresses, tones, castles, cathedrals, fortresses, towers, mountains ,water-places, including maps of the vicinity. This is a feast to the eye and mind, both to those who hold the pleasure in memory and those who hold it in anticipation, as well asto those who may only read, and see it in imagination and dreams. graphy

Those who are interested in photography wil lfind among the new books on the outside bookcase the American annual of Photography for 1909. Beside numerous illustrations through the text, there is a formulary at the end of the book giving working methods of practical photographs.

Japan Stands With Russia Against Manchurian Railway Scheme

Pekin, Jan. 21.—Japan has notified China informally through the Japanese legation here that Japan and Russia, with concerted action, will decline the proposal of the United States for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways.

Japan charges China with having been responsible for the proposal and thus of having committed an act unfriendly to the former.

BEHEADED WHILE ASLEEP

Appalling Circumstances Surround Murder of a Chicago Woman

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Anna Furlong was murdered at 50 West Seventeenth street by a man who broke in the rear door of the flat in which she slept alone, beheaded her and escaped, leaving no clue to his identity.

The circumstances surrounding the murder were appalling. The victim was not only beheaded, but the body was fearfully mutilated.

Two Negroes Publicly Hanged

Osceola, Ark., Jan. 21.—William and Charles Mullins, negroes, were publicly hanged before 3000 spectators for the murder of A. Robinson and his daughter. Their purpose was robbery.

PRESENTATIONS NUMEROUS

At Joint Installation of Camp Boyd and Auxiliary

A joint installation of the officers of John A. Boyd camp, United Spanish War Veterans, and of Gertrude A. Boyd Ladies Auxiliary, was held Thursday evening at Union hall, in the presence of a large gathering of the members of the two organizations. Commander Fred E. Foy and Past Commander Harry W. Loud, with eleven comrades of Maj. James A. Frye camp of Brockton, President Mrs. James M. Manuel and twelve ladies from Sabina Frye Ladies Auxiliary of Boston, and Junior Vice Department Commander H. J. McCammon of Newton, and a number of ladies from the South Boston Ladies Auxiliary, were among those present.

The officers of John A. Boyd camp were installed by Adjutant Inspector General Richard Rowles of Jamaica Plain with Past Commander Harry W. Loud of Brockton as master of ceremonies.

The officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary were installed by Mrs. Bertha Connell of Charlestown, who was assisted by the flag team from the South Boston auxiliary.

After the installation of the officers of the auxilary the installing officer presented the retiring president, Mrs. Cora Carmen with a past president's jewel, and the new president, Mrs. Annie T. Morrison, presented the installing officer with a cut glass dish.

There was one more presentation and that was to the new president, Mrs. Morrison. This came from her brother, Fred Ridge of Camden, N. J., and was presented for him by Mrs. Carmen. This gift was a presiding officer's gavel, with an interesting history. It was made from a piece of the recoil block of one of the guns of the Japanese battleship Makasa. This was Admiral Togo's flagship during the war between Russia and Japan, and the recoil was splintered during a naval battle by a Russian shell. The piece of wood was given Mr. Ridge by one of the Japanese naval officers of the flagship.

After the installation services a committee of the ladies, with Mrs. Bellen Morton as chairman, served a buffet lunch which was followed by a social hour.

The officers of the Spanish War Veterans follow:

Commander—Thompson B. Crane.
Senior Vice Commander—Thomas C. Brown.
Junior Vice Commander—John S. Gallagher.
Adjutant—Walter F. Carmen.
Quartermaster—H. F. Tucker.
Officer of Day—John R. McGrath.
Officer of Guard—Thomas Gould.
Chaplain—George A. Wardwell.
Trustee for 3 years—Carl W. Weixler.
Delegate to Department Convention—John V. Mead.
Alternate—Thomas C. Brown.
Delegates to Municipal Council—Thompson B. Crane, George A. Wardwell and Walter F. Carmen.

The new officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary are:

President—Mrs. Annie T. Morrison.
Senior Vice President—Mrs. Hannah Grant.
Junior Vice President—Mrs. Mary Mead.
Treasurer—Mrs. Bertha Gould.
Secretary—Mrs. Belle Morton.
Conductor—Mrs. Catherine Pitts.
Assistant Conductor—Mrs. Cora Carmen.
Guard—Mrs. Mary Allen
Assistant Guard—Mrs. George F. Phillips.

VESSELS UNSURPASSED

That's Why Contracts are Coming to Quincy

The Boston Herald says editorially:

Reports from Buenos Ayres intimate that the Naval Commission, after careful comparison of bids, will recommend that contracts for construction of two battleships, each of 28,000 tons and guaranteed to go twenty-two knots an hour, be given to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy. Should this prove to be the case it will be a conspicuous victory for American naval designers and constructors and will establish a precedent important in consideration of the number of such craft which Latin American countries are likely to order in the future, most of their orders of this kind hitherto having gone to British builders.

Apropos this phase of the matter, it is suggestive to find in a recent Glasgow Herald a letter written from Boston, pointing out to dwellers on the Clyde that they must not take too complacently the reports from the Argentine that the awards were going America's way, nor infer if the ships were built in America that they would prove a loss to their builders. Said this writer, who claimed for himself knowledge of international shipbuilding in all its phases, "Not only do American shipbuilders already have all the experience necessary in any and all branches of marine architecture, but in warship design and construction particularly they are producing vessels unsurpassed by any nation."

He showed how superior the method of competition is which determines who shall design the vessels of our navy, how rigid are the tests of materials and workmanship "superior to those obtaining in any other fleet built, and so exacting that a British shipbuilder would doubt that contractors could be got to fulfill them."

Lastly, he points cut how much more ample are the facilities for thorough and exacting supervision of ship construction by government officials in this country than they are in Great Britain; and he calls for a halt on the patronizing condescension of British shipbuilders toward a "nation that initiated steam navigation, whose clipper ships for a decade were unequalled, and who gave to naval science the armored turret ship, the torpedo and the submarine."

—Cultivate the outdoor habit at this time of year. Cold weather will not hurt anyone. In fact it is decidedly stimulating. We should realize that not every one is fortunate enough to be able to get out in the invigorating ozone of a Massachusetts winter and we should make the most of our good fortune. The air is now free from dust and germs that were blowing about before the snow came. Get out of the notion that you can't stand cold and snow and you soon will realize what you have been missing and what all miss who have no opportunity to benefit by the invigorating effect of a Massachusetts winter.—Haverhill Gazette.

BOY BURGLAR CAUGHT

Found Policeman Awaiting Him When He Entered a House

Newton, Mass., Jan. 21.—James H. Greagan, 12 years old, was arrested last night in the residence of Mrs. David Farquhar after he had effected an entrance while Policeman Goode lay concealed within.

Greagan is already held under bonds for a further hearing on a warrant charging the forging and uttering of two worthless checks.

For several nights past Mrs. Farquhar has been missing small articles from her residence. She complained to the police and Goode was assigned to the case.

Three nights in succession he waited for another visit of the burglar. Last night he heard a noise at the door and heard a sound like that of a key turning the lock.

A moment later young Geagan stood in the hallway and Goode seized his prisoner, who made no resistance. The youngster will be arraigned on the charge of breaking and entering.

HUB NO-MEAT CLUBS

Report That Formal Organization Will Soon Be Undertaken

Boston, Jan. 21.—"No meat" clubs, similar to those of Cleveland, are soon to be organized in this city in an attempt to force the price of meat down, it is reported.

Plans to use Faneuil Hall are forming for a great mass meeting of the citizens of Boston interested in a movement to try the experiment that has made Cleveland and her "no meat clubs" famous.

Prominent business men of this city who are large buyers of meats, but who do not care to have their names quoted for various reasons, declare that they heartily favor the plan adopted in Cleveland and declare that action will soon be taken in this city to form similar clubs.

HOOKWORM HITS NEW ENGLAND

Springfield Woman Found to Be Ill With the Disease

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 21.—Until yesterday Miss Louisa Johnson of this city did not know the nature of the ailment which has kept her in poor health for over a year. Members of the medical staff of the Mercy hospital have determined that she is suffering from the hookworm disease.

Immediate relief was noted when the proper treatment was administered. Specimens have been sent to the Harvard medical school for examination, but the local physicians assert that there is not the slightest doubt as to the nature of her malady.

Miss Johnson is a Swedish woman about 40 years old. She has never lived in the south, and her case is the first to be reported in this section.

Reputable physicians here believe sporadic cases may exist in New England, which have been generally termed anemia, or intestinal trouble, both of which are symptoms of the hookworm.

SIX COUNTS OF MURDER

Court Decides Mrs. Kelleher Must Be Tried on All at Same Time

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Mary Kelleher of Somerville, who is under indictment for the murder of six of her relatives by poisoning, will be placed on trial Feb. 7 on the six counts of murder, according to the ruling of Chief Justice Aiken of the superior criminal court, who overruled the motion of the woman's attorneys that she be tried on one count at a time.

In their motion the attorneys stated that Mrs. Kelleher was accused of several separate and distinct acts and that for her to be tried on the six counts at one time would unduly prejudice her right to a fair trial.

HONEYMOON INTERRUPTED

Soldier Arrested Just After Marriage For Alleged Desertion From Army

Lincoln, N. H., Jan. 21.—The honeymoon of Charles F. Krebs was rudely interrupted by Chief of Police Carey, who arrested Krebs here on a charge of desertion.

Krebs arrived in town Wednesday night and immediately went to the home of his sweetheart, Josephine Lapointe. Soon after, they were married and had a little reception, attended by a few friends. Yesterday Carey arrested the bridegroom on the charge of desertion from Fort Williams, Me., where he was a member of the Fifth Coast Artillery.

Inquiry Will Be Thorough

Albany, Jan. 21.—That the investigation into the charges involving the integrity of Senator Allds, majority leader of the senate, will be a thorough one, was evidenced by the action of the senate in adopting a resolution providing that the inquiry be conducted by the senate itself rather than by a special committee of that body.

Actress to Become Countess

Berlin, Jan. 21.—The engagement is announced of Fritzi Masari, a popular actress, and Count Alexander von Talleyrand-Perigord, a clerk in a bank here.

REPUBLICANS REJECT RAINEY

Understanding Between the Two Parties Is Violated

FORCED BY PRESIDENT TAFT

Battle Over Committee to Probe Forestry Department Is Won by Regulars, the Insurgents Voting With Them In Ratifying Action of Caucus —Chief Executive Criticised For Interfering With Choice of Democrats

Washington, Jan. 21.—With a majority of forty-five on straight party vote, with the Republican insurgents voting solidly with the Republicans, the house ratified the action of the Republican caucus in naming the full membership of the Ballinger-Pinchot investigating committee. The committee will be composed of Representatives Olmsted of Pennsylvania, McCall of Massachusetts, Denby of Michigan and Madison of Kansas, Republicans; and James of Kentucky and Lloyd of Missouri, Democrats.

CONGRESSMAN RAINEY.

The procedure in the house was orderly, the Democrats, through Champ Clark and Clayton of Alabama, merely making passionate, but brief, protests against the course of the Republicans in substituting Lloyd for Rainey of Illinois, the other nominee of the minority caucus, by a vote of 94 to 62.

Mr. Cooper of Wisconsin, one of a half dozen insurgents who quit the Republican caucus, explained to the house that he believed in the principle of the Democrats selecting their own members. He had told the caucus, however, that Rainey, although personally unobjectionable, had evinced on the floor a prejudice against the administration and relatives of the president which unfitted him for a place on the committee. Cooper had hoped that the Democratic caucus would be given an opportunity to select another man, but as this had not been given he would be obliged to vote against the resolution which Clayton had offered to substitute the name of Rainey for that of Lloyd.

The action of the house was rather a repudiation of Rainey, at the instance of President Taft, than a deliberate attempt to violate the understanding between the two parties, according to which each names its own men for committee membership. The Republicans would have nothing to gain by this course, while the cooler heads among the Democrats, understanding that the Republican hand was forced by the White House, are in favor of straightening out the tangle by the means suggested. Lloyd's presence on the committee, if it could be legalized, would strengthen it materially before the country, while that of James alone would weaken it.

The danger to the president which the whole situation involves is obvious. The current comment in Washington is, as hinted by Champ Clark in his speech, that the president has made a mistake in interfering at all with the choice of the Democrats.

"If nothing is wrong," said Clark, "Rainey and James couldn't find it. If anything is wrong, it should be dragged to the light of day. If the president did interfere, he is going might close to the privileges of this house."

Mr. Clark also shot a word of warning to his Republican friends across the chamber, in view of his own firm belief that he will be the next speaker. Referring to the overturning of the Democratic selections, he said:

"You are setting a very dangerous precedent. I am not a revengeful man, for I have learned that revenge is a very bad investment, but this precedent may return to plague you. We don't want anything but the truth. We would be ashamed of ourselves and the country would be ashamed of us if we looked for anything else in this investigation."

Death of Ex-Governor Lowry

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 21.—Brigadier General Robert Lowry, twice governor of Mississippi, is dead, aged 78. At the battle of Shiloh he was wounded in a memorable charge in which the regiment lost in killed and wounded 320 out of a total of 406.

AVIATION MEET CLOSES

Paulhan Carries Off $19,000 In Prizes, While Curtiss Captures $5000

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 21.—As dusk gathered over the old Dominguez ranch last night, four flying machines which had been circling in the air descended, the aviators walked to their tents, the great crowd filed down the roadway, and the first international aviation meet held in America was finished.

The Curtiss machines won all the prizes for speed, quick starts, perfect landings and those events where a light, swift machine showed best.

Paulhan won all the cross-country, passenger-carrying and endurance tests, having a heavier, slower machine and an engine which he trusts absolutely. Paulhan took $19,000 in prizes and broke the world's records for altitude and cross-country flights, alone and with a passenger.

Curtiss broke no world's records and won less than $5000 in prizes.

TO WED "YAMA YAMA GIRL"

New York Gossips Pick Next Bride of Richard Harding Davis

New York, Jan. 21.—It is common report on Broadway in theatrical and literary circles that when Mrs. Richard Harding Davis secures her divorce from her husband he will marry Miss Bessie McCoy, the "Yama Yama Girl."

The writer and the dancer have been friends for more than a year, and many of their friends have thought that the friendship had deepened to a warmer feeling.

The trouble of Davis and his wife appears to be, according to their friends, that they were never really deeply in love with each other, having been acquainted since childhood and being really nothing more than "chums" at the time of their picturesque marriage in 1899.

TAFT HAS IGNORED HIS OWN RULINGS

Never Read Insurance Policies He Has Taken Out

Washington, Jan. 21.—President Taft, in addressing the annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, held out no hope for the enactment of a federal law to govern the companies, and advised the executive officers to bend their efforts toward uniform legislation in the states.

"The only function that the United States can perform," said the president, "is to pass a model law in the District of Columbia and there show to the world what congress, aided possibly by a scientific commission, shall believe to be the best kind of an insurance law. I shall be very glad, in so far as any power lies in me, to encourage such action.

"I have been on the bench and at the bar and I have ruled that men must read their policies to know what they contain in order to have an understanding of what the contract is, and I am conscious of never having read any of the policies which I have taken out because I trusted the man who explained it to me."

WRONG HOUSE TORN DOWN

Woman Goes Shopping and Returns to Find Home Disappearing

Hartford, Jan. 21.—The Hartford Saengerbund, a local German singing society, voted to have their old club house torn down. Yesterday forenoon Miss Agnes Campion, who lives in and owns the building next to the club house, went shopping, and when she returned in the afternoon she found workmen tearing down her house.

Telephone conversations revealed the error of the foreman, who supposed that the old Campion house, and not the club house, was to be done away with. Miss Campion says she will institute heavy damage suits against everybody concerned.

FAITHFUL TO MRS. EDDY

Deposed Leader Has No Intention of Starting Another Church

New York, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, until recently leader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, has issued a statement denying the report that she was to start another church.

"I have no such intention," said Mrs. Stetson, "nor has such a step ever occurred to me. It is only when my loyalty to my beloved and revered leader, Mary Baker Eddy, the mother church, and to the cause of Christian Science is questioned, that I protest and ask to be heard."

JOY OF LIVING WITHOUT COOKS

Carthage Woman's Scheme to Solve Servant Problem.

LARGE ROOM FOR CHILDREN.

A House Has Been Rented and a Co-operative Kitchen Established Where the Members Go Daily For Meals and Share the Expense.

The co-operative kitchen founded recently by women in Carthage, Mo., has passed the experimental stage and will now become a permanent institution.

A number of women who had been troubled by the servant problem decided a few months ago to pool their interests, or, rather, troubles, and endeavor by their combined efforts to secure servants and gratify their appetites without contaminating the feminine portion of their several families with the odor of the kitchen.

Many were skeptical when the idea of the undertaking was first suggested, but those even most positive of the failure of the undertaking have now applied for admission to the dreamful kitchen, where servant troubles are only horrid nightmares, delicious meals the regular order and contentment reigns supreme.

Furnished Their Own Tables.

It was decided to lease the Johns residence on South Garrison street and convert it into the co-operative kitchen. The large music room and the two smaller rooms were made the dining rooms. Each family furnished its own table and chairs, and every one chipped in to furnish the kitchen and second floor, where one large room is used for the children. A nurse is always waiting to take the crying baby while the old folks are enjoying their meal. The balance of the second floor is used as the servants' quarters.

A regular menu is served, but should any family wish something special it is bought and charged extra. Mrs. John C. McGee, a leader in Carthage society, has been appointed to supervise the cooking and to act as manager of the institution. Each member bears her pro rata of the expense.

An Opportunity For Gossip.

The social side of the kitchen is one of the most pleasant. All of the members are friends, so an exchange of greetings—and possible gossip—thrice daily is not to be despised by the women, while the husbands may discuss the latest news of the north pole and the probable weight of Jim Jeffries at the time he goes into the ring.

The children of "the kitchen," of whom, by the way, there are a great many, can visit and play on the lawn.

But, whatever the minor virtues of the kitchen may be, the good meals, served by neatly dressed girls, prove the greatest and most brilliantly enjoyable feature of the institution

MANIAC'S SECOND VICTIM IS DEAD

Courageous Little Fellow Made Great Fight For Life

New York, Jan. 21.—Seized with a sudden convulsion that made him gasp for breath and extending his arms toward his mother as though he wished her to embrace him, Arthur Shibley, the 6-year-old boy who was shot by a maniac in Highbridge park at the same time that Robert Lomas was killed, died at a time when he seemed to be on the road to recovery.

When Mrs. Shibley, his mother, saw the three physicians who were nearby look gravely at the child and then apply the stethescope to his heart, she screamed, instinctively knowing that he was dead, and fell insensible over his body.

Nurses carried the mother to an adjoining room, where she was revived. In heart breaking tones she called for her boy and could not persuade herself that he was dead. She was weak from the operation for the transfusion of blood from her veins to those of her son and also from her long vigil at his bedside. She was led away to her home by her husband.

The remarkable fight that the child made for his life and the wonderful courage that he displayed in his sufferings had endeared him to the doctors to such an extent that they were almost constantly at his side. The vitality that the boy displayed was said at the hospital to have been wonderful. An ordinary child would not have survived the wound more than a day, while he lived a week.

BRUTAL POLICE MUST GO

Gaynor Fires One, Suspends Two, and Orders Four to Trial

New York, Jan. 21.—Mayor Gaynor's campaign against police brutality entered upon active hostilities when one policeman was dismissed from the force, two others suspended and four were ordered to trial on charges of violence and drunkenness.

The mayor heard the cases in person and transmitted his recommendations to the commissioner of police.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS

KEITH'S THEATRE.

It is a long time since there has been anything in vaudeville, not excepting even the remarkable engagemen of Denman Thompson, that has aroused such interest as Loie Fuller's "Ballet of light" now being presented at Keith's theatre. Nothing has more clearly demonstrated the strides made in vaudeville than the fact that this mammoth production, which has been one of the sensations of the grand opera seasons at both the Metropolitan opera house in New York and the Boston opera house, could be given with the full effects as a part of one of Mr. Keith's vaudeville shows. That he is fully justified in going to extremes in the matter has been demonstrated by the remarkable business for the past week, the house being sold out at every performance and the continuation of the engagement being decided upon within a short notice. Aside from this strong feature, Irene Franklin, who is now at the head of the vaudeville profession, would be enough to draw tremendous business to the house. Miss Franklin this season is appearing with an entirely new repertoire of songs, including her famous "I've got the mumps," "The Bride," "I'm bringing up the family," and others that are far ahead of anything she has previously given the public.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Shakespeare has proved so great a favorite at the Castle Square that Mr. Craig is to give his third production this season from the works of the great poet and dramatist. His first was "Hamlet," and its reception was cordial beyond all possible expectations, and the same is true of "The Taming of the Shrew." For next week he has selected "Othello," and that great tragedy will be played with all possible scenic splendor and with a cast that will give it the best of interpretations. "Othello" is in many ways the most human of all Shakespeare's plays, in plot and character it is thoroughly up to date, and its story of the Moor and his beautiful wife Desdemona, of the villain Iago and the unfortunate Cassio, possesses an interest that is remarkable and continuous up to the tragic conclusion of the last act. Humor is not wanting, moreover, in "Othello," and the many who go to see Mr. Craig's production at the Castle Square will be sure to be satisfied in every way. In "Othello" Mr. Craig will of course be seen in the great leading role of the Moor of Venice, the gallant Othello who woos and wins the daughter of the brave Brabantio. It is a character that will call out all of Mr. Craig's powers and they will certainly not be found wanting. William Norton has been especially engaged for the part of Iago, and that Mary Young will make a pretty and an effective Desdemona is without question. Mr. Meek will appear as Roderigo and Miss Colcord Miss Binley, Mr. Hassell, Mr. Roberts, Bert Young, Wilfred Young will also have important roles.

SHUBERT THEATRE.

The final touches have been given to Boston's playhouse de luxe, the Sam S. Shubert theatre, Tremont and Hollis streets, and there is no doubt in regard to its opening on schedule time, Monday evening, January 24th, with E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe as the inaugural attraction. The box office of the new theatre opened Thursday morning and seats went on sale with a rush for all performances of the Sothern-Marlowe engagement which is limited to two weeks. The selection of Sothern and Marlowe to inaugurate the magnificent Shubert theatre will give if possible, added dignity and importance to the event. These two eminent dramatic artists, in whom now repose the hopes of the American stage, and to whom the public looks for the upholding of the dignity of the drama in this country, will present a series of Shakespearean plays which will run a wide gamut of artistic portrayal. For their first week, beginning January 24th, the repertoire will be as follows: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday night, "The Taming of the Shrew"; Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday matinee, "The Merchant of Venice"; Saturday night, "Romeo and Juliet."

BOSTON THEATRE.

The Boston theatre attraction for the week beginning the 24th instant is "The Girl from Rector's" a play which created a sensation in New York and played continuously for seven months at one theatre. It carried off all honors as the season's most diverting entertainment and delighted thousands with its comical situations, its humorous episodes, its interesting characters and its fascinating story. The splendid cast, of course, had a great deal to do with the phenomenal success of the piece. The same players will be seen at the Boston theatre for Managers Charles Frohman and William Harris will not offer their great and growing constituency, a second company or any production which falls short in any way from that presented in New York. Among the best known of the actors who will be seen here with "The Girl from Rector's" are Elita Proctor Otis, Nena Blake, Gertrude, Millington, Nella Webb, George Anderson, Edward Heron and Charles Eldridge. Such a cast as this ought to be able to make a notable success of even mediocre work by an amateur playwright, but in this instance the piece will be found to give the actors abundant opportunity for excellent character work, and many chances for the provocation of hearty laughter. "The Girl from Rector's" is declared to be a great creator of merriment. The usual matinees will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

The bill which will be presented at the American Music Hall next week will be a remarkable one in many respects. First because it will contain as the big feature R. A. Roberts, the famous English protean artist and again because every act in it will be of the headline variety. Mr. Roberts by many is considered the greatest in his line on the stage. He will present his latest productions "Cruel Coppinger" and "Dick Turpin." In both of these productions Mr. Roberts portrays every character and shows versatility coupled with an ability to change costumes quickly which is nothing short of marvellous. The public is familiar with "Dick Turpin" but a word of comment may be necessary concerning "Cruel Coppinger." This is a fantastic pirate story in two scenes the action taking place in 1790. It concerns the character of Captain Coppinger the great wrecker, pirate and murderer and those who unfortunately were thrown in contact with him. As a play it is a masterpiece. The ability displayed by Mr. Roberts in the conception and construction of the play makes it an entertainment that one cannot well afford to miss. Wilfred Clarke & Company who scored such a success last week in "What Will Happen Next" will be seen in a new piece fully equal to the one in which Bostonians have seen him. Mr. Clarke, by the way, in a nephew of Edwin Booth and for many years was Augustin Daley's leading comedian.

PROFIT BY OTHERS' EXPERIENCE

Gray Hair Restored

My hair was getting quite gray and falling out rapidly and I was troubled with a terrible itching of the scalp. My head was full of dandruff, which fell upon my clothes and kept me continually brushing it off. While on a visit to Rochester I heard of your Sage and Sulphur for the hair. I got a bottle and used it. A few applications relieved the itching, my hair stopped falling out and gradually came back to its natural color. It is now a nice dark brown color, soft, glossy and pliable. Several of my friends want to use it, and I want to know what you will charge me for six bottles of it.

Grew Hair on a Bald Head

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is fairly covered and keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

Ex-Valet of Murdered Millionaire Rice May Dispel Deep Mystery

New Orleans, Jan. 21.—Relatives of Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer, who is confined in Sing Sing prison for the murder of William M. Rice, have secured a promise from Charles F. Jones, Rice's former valet, who has turned up here after having been missing for three years, that he will go back to New York and give evidence which it is believed may open up a way for the release of Patrick.

Several times reported dead, Jones appeared here a few days ago, and went to the house of a friend, whom he told he was tired of being chased around the world. He declared that he had returned for the purpose of making a clean breast of it and settling the whole affair.

The testimony of Jones at the trial went a long way toward securing Patrick's conviction.

HEADING OFF EPIDEMIC

Vaccination of Five Hundred Employes In Lynn Shoe Factory

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 21.—The 500 men and women employed in the Mrs. A. F. King shoe factory were all obliged to submit to vaccination yesterday afternoon. One of the smallpox victims, it developed, had visited the factory and the board of health decided to take no chances, fearing an epidemic. The vaccination was done by City Physican Stone and a corps of assisting physicans.

In announcements published in all the newspapers the board of health ordered all residents of Lynn who are not vaccinated or who have not been vaccinated recently to go to the city hall. The work of vaccinating begun today and will continue until Monday. The work will be done without charge.

The four smallpox patients have been taken to the contagious hospital.

War on Plague Squirrels.

While the danger from bubonic plague is declared by experts to be localized, it is admitted to menace other sections if not fought vigorously. "Kill the squirrels!" is the cry, and the United States government biological expert is in California investigating the most desirable and economical bait for this purpose.

"Is there any possibility of the plague spreading beyond the Rocky mountain range?" was asked of the biological bureau the other day.

"No; we won't let it," was the answer. "It might possibly get into Oregon, but we are working hard on the situation and purpose to stop its spreading anywhere, if possible."

ATTENDED A FUNERAL

Delay of Two Supreme Justices Breaks Court Rule of Years

Washington, Jan. 21.—What had been supposed to be an absolutely unbreakable rule was violated Thursday when noon arrived and passed without the supreme court of the United States being called to order. Six members constitute a quorum, but only five were present.

After a wait of eighteen minutes Justices White and McKenna entered the court hurriedly, fastening their robes about them as they took their places on the bench. They had been in attendance at the funeral services of the late Ambassador Nabuco of Brazil.

Novelty In London Club Life.

The fact that in all existing clubs it is against the rule to use the premises for business purposes has suggested the formation of a new club to combine business with social facilities. The proprietors of the institution, the premises of which are in Piccadilly, London, have called it the London club. In addition to the ordinary clubrooms, there will be a "business reception room," where members can discuss business with each other. Boards will occupy the wall space, on which, by permission of the secretary, the details of business propositions in which members desire co-operation will be displayed.

BRIEFS

Mrs. George H. Glover of Lincoln avenue entertained a party Tuesday afternoon at Bridge whist.

Mrs. John F. Merrill of Butler road is receiving the condolences of Quincy friends, her mother dying this week in Newton.

A gymnastic night was held by the Wollaston Boys' club in the vestry of the Congregational church on Thursday evening.

Mr. George Richardson of Botolph street sailed from New York on the Lusitania for a business trip in England.

Thomas Lewis of 44 Kidder street is at the City Hospital where he went for an operation on Tuesday. Mr. Lewis is resting comfortably and his friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Kitson's St. Bernard, William the Survivor, which was entered this week at the Lynn dog show, carried off three prizes; the first prize, the winner's prize, and a special.

All night street lighting and other matters of local interest were discussed Thursday evening at the meeting of the West Quincy Improvement Association. The subject of a banquet was also considered.

The members of the Billiken club attended this week the Park theatre and witnessed "The Man from Home." The club is to be entertained next Tuesday evening by Miss Louise Hinckley of Billings street.

It was necessary to postpone the sleighing party planned for Thursday night by the Christian Endeavor of Atlantic, but the young people hope to avail themselves of the first opportunity with better success.

At the January meeting of the Wollaston Congregational club next Tuesday evening Judge Harvey H. Baker of the Boston Juvenile court will deliver an address upon "The Juvenile Court" which will deal with the modern treatment of youthful prisoners.

At the dress rehearsal for the Chimes of Normandy at Music hall, Wednesday evening, the opera ran through with perfect smoothness and promises to be a splendid production. Thirty members of the Current Events club of Hyde Park, which gave the opera last month, have secured seats for the opening night.

The body of Dr. William L. Faxon will be brought from North Wilmington to Quincy on Sunday. He had had an attack of acute indigestion, from which he was apparently recovering after a few days indisposition, when a heart weakness developed and he passed away suddenly. He was a graduate of the Harvard medical school. The funeral services will be private.

EASY FOR UPLAND ROAD

Defeat West Quincys in Makaria League

The West Quincy team will need a little more practice before they get up against such a strong aggregation as the Upland Road boys in the Makaria bowling league. None of the strings were close, and the second was won by 98 pins. Upland Road led on totals of 177 pins—1226 to 1047. R. Bates was high on single, and G. Eggleton on totals.

The summary:

BRIEFS

Michael E. Cook of Hancock street Wollaston is at Philadelphia for a week on business.

There was a very heavy frost Thursday night, and this morning the ground was white.

A few more days with weather as mild as it has been this week and there will be but little snow left.

The many friends of Miss Rose Cusolito of Bates avenue will be happy to learn that she has recovered from her illness and is able to be about.

The many friends of Mrs. M. Arnold of California avenue will be glad to know that she has recovered from her sickness.

Warren W. Adams, chairman of the Board of Assessors, attended the annual reunion of the 44th regiment association at Young's Hotel, Boston, Thursday evening.

A surprise party was given Thursday evening to Mrs. O. F. Clark of Brewers corner by her sons F. J. and A. Pierson at the home of her daughter, Mrs. O. L. Beverage, 24 Nixon street, Dorchester, in honor of her 70th birthday. A happy renewal of friendships of many years ago was indulged in most heartily by all.

TODAY'S COURT.

Fedele Calderald was arraigned for larceny at Weymouth. Case continued until Jan. 26.

Peter J. Mulvey was fined $3 for drunkenness at Weymouth.

WOMEN OR MONEY

Which Has the More Power Over Man

A banquet and ladies' night was held by the Men's club of the Wollaston Methodist church in the vestry on Thursday evening, a large number of the fair sex attending. Dinner was served shortly after 6 with the young men of the church as waiters. A debate entitled—"Resolved: That woman has more power over man than money," with some of the professional funmakers of the club in the east kept the audience on the qui vive. S. N. Belcher was chosen as judge, while George Taylor and F. G. Bennett argued for the affirmative, and A. B. Cassidy and A. N. Murray for the negative.

President Taylor opened with a broadside, by describing how various members of the club were kept in the straight and narrow path through the influence of their wives.

A. B. Cassidy followed with a mental picture of how alliances are formed between American heirosses and foreign noblemen, not on account of her attractions but because of the dowry she will bring with her.

There are four factors in the case, said F. G. Bennett for the affirmative—woman, power, man and money. He then attempted to prove the greater power of woman.

In a speech which was the hit of the evening, A. N. Murray referred to two sayings "Money makes the mare go" and "Money is the root of all evil," and proceeded to give his version of these. He pointed to his opponents as two of the few living exceptions that go to prove that woman has not more power over man than money.

The monthly edition of the Wollaston Herald was read by its editor-in-chief, J. A. Sedgwick, and contained, beside a number of poetic effusions and bright sayings of the members, strong editorials favoring a new Wollaston schoolhouse and the reduction of the number of express permits for liquor.

Several new members were voted in, and an invitation was read from the Men's club of Christ chu ch, Quincy, inviting them to their next meeting on February 7.

SPORTING NOTES.

It certainly was "let George do it" at West Quincy, when the Coddington school basket ball team defeated the Willard's 22-3. George Finlay secured all the baskets for the Coddington's. Baird Finlay and Acorn played a good game for Coddington, while Nash excelled for his five.

Tammany club of Willard street defeated the Washington Socials at their clubrooms last evening. Forty-five, 26 to 18; cribbage 19 to 14.

At basket ball on Thursday B aintree High defeated the Mechanics Art High of Boston 21 to 20.

Clarence E. Clark of the class of 1908 of the Malden High school, who was captain of the football elevens in 1907 and 1908 died Thursday of consumption.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. first and second basket ball teams will play Hyde Park teams at Quincy Saturday evening.

TEN TEAMS ORGANIZED

For Membership Campaign of The Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. members had such a fine time working together last November on the big $25,000 campaign that they are taking to the membership campaign ideas like ducks to water.

Ten teams have been chosen with Charles W. Bailey of Wollaston, assistant cashier of the Boylston bank, as general chairman. The team captains are:

Team No. 1—Harry Brooks.
No. 2—J. F. Hunt.
No. 3—C. B. Hull.
No. 4—Delcevare King.
No. 5—P. K. Griffin.
No. 6—Samuel Melville.
No. 7—George Craig.
No. 8—George Shirley.
No. 9—William Childs.
No. 10—David Melville.

All the captains are hustling to get their men out for the initial banquet on Saturday, when the scheme will be launched.

The plan is 200 new members in six days, ending Saturday, Jan. 29. The job can be done if every one will do his share, which is only two members each.

With the running track now complete and the swimming pool well underway, this is the time to join and get the unusual advantages offered.

The running track is built for fast work as well as slow, and it is the fastest track anywhere about Boston. It is 32 laps to the mile, built of spruce, inch and a quarter wide bent around. The banks are 18 inches high on the ends, tapering off to 3 inches on the straight away. The fast men are delighted with it, as they can with spiked shoes and a fast pace take the turns perfectly without slacking speed at all. Relay races and timed races are being planned, which will stimulate the use of the track.

The gymnasium is now complete in every respect; up-to-date and sanitary. A new and complete outfit of anthropometric apparatus has recently been purchased for the physical directors' office, thus giving him the opportunity of making full tests of strength both muscular and of the heart and lungs, beside giving all of the measurements of the body.

It is expected the swimming pool will be finished about March 1, at which date all memberships taken out during the campaign will be dated. Fuller instructions and additional inducements will be announced at the banquet Saturday evening, at which Fred H. Retan of the Equitable Life Insurance Company will speak.

BERTHA M. (KINGMAN) FOURTIN.

Mrs. Bertha May, wife of Dr. Edmund R. P. Fourtin, died at her home in Waltham this morning. She was the daughter of the late Mrs. Bertha Kingman of Wollaston, a graduate of the East Bridgewater high school and the Bridgewater Normal, and taught for several years in the Wollaston school. Mrs. Fourtin is survived by her husband and two daughters, Edith and Eleanor; two sisters, Mrs. Fannie Bates of Whitman and Mrs. Edwin L. Emerson of Braintree; three brothers Edward H. Kingman of Somerville, James K. Kingman of Newton, and Howard G. K. Kingman of Wollaston.

MILTON.

Henry A. Wayland of Eaton street died Thursday from injuries received from a fall the day before. Mr. Wayland, who was 73 years of age, started out on an errand. In crossing the street he slipped on the ice and in falling struck heavily on the back of his head. He was taken to his home and a physician summoned; who found that he had sustained a fracture of the base of the skull. But little hopes were entertained of his recovery from the first, and he died Thursday. Funeral services will be held Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bearse are at Brewer, Maine, for two weeks.

Jesse B. Baxter received two first and one second prize for his black Leghorn fowl at the poultry show, and W. E. Beer received two firsts and a silver shield for the best satinet fowl.

Mrs. Libby has moved to her new bungalow on Squantum street.

Dennis F. Crowley is building four houses on Huntington road.

M. A. McDonnell has moved into his new bungalow on Grafton avenue.

John Cashman and W. E. Osgood are running the plant of Maguire & O'Heron for the estate.

BUSINESS OF LEGISLATURE

Quincy Member on Important Joint Committee

Representattive Langelier of this city will be on the joint committee of the Legislature to consider whether the bonds of the Boston Holding Company shall be a legal investment for Savings Banks of Massachusetts as recommended by Gov. Draper. On Thursday by a vote of 132 to 68 on roll call, the House concurred with the Senate in this reference. It is one of the most important measures before this Legislature, growing out of the merger fight of the N. Y., N. H. H. & H. and the B. & M. R. R.

REPRESENTATIVE LANGELIER

Another bill which is petitioned for by Herbert F. Keith and filed in the House on Thursday provides for the establishment of a metropolitan commission, to consist of the chairman of the railroad commission, the chief engineers of the harbor and land and the transit commissions, to acquire the stock of the Boston & Maine railroad now held by the Boston railroad holding company, and also the stock of the Fitchburg railroad now held by the Boston & Maine.

Delcevare King of Quincy and others filed a petition on Thursday, to require the state board of health, to make chemical analyses of cocoaine and other drugs, poisons, medicines and chemicals if the board is satisfied that such analyses are to be used for the purpose of enforcement of the law.

Representative Henebery of Worcester filed a bill to permit boards of aldermen by a two-thirds vote to grant freight and express franchise to street railway companies for a limited period.

Representative Haigis of Montague, filed a bill to provide that one-half the tax assessed upon business corporations shall go to the city or town in which the corporation does business and the balance to the commonwealth to be applied to the state tax.

TALK FOR BOYS.

Every boy in Quincy is invited to the Y. M. C. A. Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. George S. Paine of Brockton will be the speaker and is considered one of the best in the state for boys. He is the author of the stories "Shuttered window," "Bill the Hobo," and many others for boys. His subject is "Ladders" and will be illustrated. This is indeed a rare treat and every boy who possibly can, should take advantage of it.

How to Do.

"A man learns to do by doing," remarked the moralizer.

"Yes," rejoined the demoralizer, "and also by being done."

—With 4,000 pairs of shoes daily to make from now until June the Rice & Hutchins shoe factory is showing some of the other manufacturers how to hustle to get out the orders. The big factory is now one veritable hive of industry an dit looks good to see everything running full tilt. Seems like the good old times once more to see eve ybody working. With the other factories in town busy also, Rockland has very little to complain of in the way of business.—Rockland

YOUNG WOMEN ASSIST AT MINSTREL SHOW

Not An Idle Moment After the Curtain Went Up for Opening Chorus

David L. McIntosh Made a Good Interlocutor.

Music hall was filled to overflowing last evening at the fourth annual minstrel show of the Iroquois club, a social club composed of young men from Quincy, South Quincy and Quincy Point. The show was a little late in starting, but once under way things went along with a snap and vim, so that there was not an idle moment from the time the curtain rose for the opening chorus until it dropped at the close of the grand finale, "Have a drink to Yankee Land.

Andrew J. Dinegan was the director, Andrew Driscoll the stage manager, and Miss Elizabeth Barron the accompanist, and to them is due much of the credit for the success of the show.

When the curtain rose, it disclosed the stage set to represent a Southern plantation on the banks of the Mississippi. In the background were two rows of curly headed colored men looking gay in their bright red and green costumes. As the opening chorus started, the six end men and ten handsomely costumed young ladies entered from the side wings and skipped gaily about during the chorus. This chorus was a winner, composed of a number of popular airs arranged by A. J. Dinegan, opening with "Monkey doodle dandy," and closing with "Now altogether, hip, hip hoo-ray."

The tambos were: Dan Driscoll, Frank Driscoll and Harry McGrath. The bones, Chet Hollis, Ed Desmond and Fred McDonald.

In the chorus who occupied the two rows of seats in the background were: W. Childs, Joe Berlucchi, Ernest Knight, Eben Kerr, George Mullen, Murray Kerr, James McKenzie, Daniel Mullen, Leo Mullen, Ameil Bouchard, William Houston, Peter Fontoni, Alex McKee, William O'Neil, Henry Harkins, Gordon McDonald, Russell McDonald, William Carter, Joseph Driscoll, Daniel Mahon, Arthur Wentworth Arthur Austin, Phillip Gammons, Charles Hebert, Walter Desmond, John Lillie, Edward Bourke, John McIntosh, John Igo, James Mattie, David Curtin, John Neagle, Fred Hayden and Edward Ido.

The program was a lengthy one, for in addition to the songs by the end men, there were: a solo by Master John Reynolds; Dutch song, "Heinz," by James Grant assisted by Thomas Sullivan, Daniel Mahon, William McCarthy and Sylvester Phelan; a specialty by Miss Teresa Wholey and Master Russell McDonald; a solo by Miss Teresa Wholey; and "A little talk and some steps" by Daniel McNevin.

During the performance there were several special features, one of which was the arrival of a special delivery boy from the City Clerk's office, who distributed a number of letters to well known young men, including Mayor Shea. The mystery as to these letters was disclosed as the messenger left the stage with his grip upon which were the words "marriage licenses."

The song of Daniel Driscoll entitled, "Everybody knows it's there," was full of hits every verse containing some well defined shaft. Between the numbers there were the usual number of end men's jokes, and the City Council and well known personages were the parties to whom they were directed.

The club had offered a prize of a gold watch for the best joke submitted and this was awarded to Frank Ogle of West Quincy. The joke was sprung by Dan Driscoll. Dan had a dog which he had named "Entomology" because he picked up bugs and things.

After the performance there was dancing until 3 o'clock, music being furnished by Wilson's orchestra.

DEATH OF YOUNG MAN.

The sudden death yesterday afternoon of Ralph P. Damon, of 97 Mill street, has cast a shadow of gloom over a large circle of friends. The young man who has been connected in business with his father at the store of Sanborn & Damon, has had trouble with his head for some time, the cause being an abcess that had formed. During the past few days his trouble had increased, and the attending physicians found that the only hope of saving his life was in an operation. This was performed Friday afternoon and his death followed shortly after. He was born in Quincy and has always made his home in this city. After completing his education he entered his father's store where he has since been employed. He was 26 years of age and leaves a widow and a three-weeks' old child. Funeral services will be held from his late home Monday

JUNK SHOP CASE.

The case of Louis Grossman for conducting a junk shop without a license came up on continuance in the district court this morning. The first complaint, which charged him with conducting a junk shop without a license from May 1 to Dec. 31, 1909, was dismissed. A new complaint, however, was immediately served upon him. This complaint charged him with conducting a junk shop without a license Jan. 17, and for the three months next preceding. A plea of not guilty was entered and the case went over until next Saturday for a hearing.

MRS. EMMA FOLLETT NASH.

Funeral services for the late Mrs. Louis W. Nash were held Tuesday, afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock at her late home on Front street, Weymouth, Rev. Robert H. Cochrane, pastor of the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree, officiated at the service, and the Lotus male quartet of Boston, consisting of Robert C. Martin, first tenor, H. W. Hicks, second tenor. N. B. Raymond, baritone and E. B. Cannall, bass, furnished the music. The selections rendered were: "The Eternal Goodness," "Abide with me," "Saved by grace," and "Sleep on beloved." The beauty and solemnity of the music made a profound impression upon all who heard it. The many and beautiful floral tributes to the deceased testified to the esteem and affection which were felt by many mourning friends. The interment was in the village cemetery.

Mrs. Emma Follett Nash, who died on Sunday morning, Jan. 16th, 1910, after a long and painful illness, was born in Weymouth July 6th, 1863. She was the daughter of E. Athertaon Hunt of Weymouth and Louisa A. Follett of Quincy. She attended the public schools of Weymouth and Miss Rachel Faxon's young ladies' seminary at East Braintree and also the Weymouth high school, from which she was graduated in 1882. Shortly after her graduation from the high school she was married to Mr. Louis W. Nash of Weymouth, who was one of Weymouth's most widely known business men. Mrs. Nash was the sister of Mrs. Edward Richards, Mrs. Fred Harris and Mrs. C. P. Whittle and her family was one of the oldest and best known in Weymouth, her after being one of Weymouth's prominent shoe manufacturers.

Mrs. Nash was prominent and interested in many activities. She was a constant attendant at the Union church and deeply interested in its welfare. She was a charter member of the Unity circle of King's Daughters and until within a comparatively recent period, was active in the work of th Ladies' Benevolent society of which she was long a member. She was treasurer of the Monday club of Weymouth, from which she resigned about a year ago owing to ill health, and she had many social activities. Mrs. Nash was a woman of strong character and intense personality, strong in her likes and dislikes and absolutely loyal to her friends. She was exceedingly industrious and had great executive ability, and when once interested in a cause would give to it generously of her time and strength. She had many friends in Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy and wherever she went made her forceful personality felt.

She had a deeply religious nature, although she was not a member of the church, and was unswerving in her loyalty to the truth. In her last illness she displayed great fortitude and courage, and although aware for many months that her illness must terminate fatally never lost heart or hope or faith, but continually expressed her gratitude for the many beautiful flowers with which her friends were continually remembering her. Her life was a strong, true life and her patient facing of the inevitable, without murmuring, and in the spirit of sublime faith will long be cherished as a precous memory by those who were permitted to see her during those last triumphant hours.

Mrs. Nash will long be remembered by her friends and her loss will be deeply mourned. For her many lovable qualities greatly endeared her to all who knew her. Her influence will live on after her, for her life, although apparently cut off in its prime and in the midst of its splendid usefulness, was not in any sense lived in vain, but contributed efficiently its strength and influence to make this world a better place in which to live. A strong, brave and forceful life has finished the earthly chapter of its existence. She entered the spiritual life full of an unfaltering faith and hope.

HOLY CITY MUSIC.

At Bethany church Sunday evening all the musical selections with one exception will be taken from the Holy City by Gaul, and will be asfollows:

Organ prelude, "Contemplation."

Solo and chorus, "No Shadows Yonder."

Solo, "These are they."

Duet, "They shall hunger no more."

Solo, "No night shall be in Heaven."

Solo, "Come ye blessed of my Father."

Postlude, "Great and Marvelous."

Soloists Miss Winnifred White, soprano, and Miss Eva V. Steeves, mezzo-soprano assisting a large chorus.

BRIEFS

Some of the Quincy men employed at the Boston navy yard are among the large number laid off. Perhaps they will soon be needed by the Fore River company.

A few sleighs ventured out yesterday morning, but now all the snow has gone, except here and there a patch. There were 27 days of continuous sleighing, more than Quincy usually has in one winter.

District Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler Peter S. McAdams accompanied by a suite of grand officers will pay an official visit to Quincy lodge of Elks next Tuesday evening. The work of the order will be exemplified on three candidates. Caterer Thompson will attend to the wants of the inner Elk after the business of the evening.

Tuesday evening the Men's club and St. Margaret's Guild of Christ church will give the comedy, "Fair Collegians" at the annual fair to be held by Pilgrim church ladies' circle of North Weymouth. On Wednesday evening Weymouth talent will give the drama "A Fisherman's Luck."

Supt. Barbour addressed the Trescott School Parents' Association at Hyde Park on Tuesday evening on "The training of children." The Gazette says: "Mr. Barbour's talk was most instructive and interesting. He spoke particularly of the physical and moral training of the child, and mentioned way in which the parents and teachers could cooperate. Several new ideas were suggested and many old ones emphasized."

OVER 245 TONS PER DAY

Large Granite Shipments During Year 1909

Returns from the two shipping terminals for the month of December show the total amount shipped to have been 10,902,097 pounds. Of this amount 6,441,494 pounds were shipped from West Quincy, and 4,460,603 pounds from Quincy Adams. The total shipments for the year 1909 amounted to 154,094,069 pounds.

HIGH SCHOOL DANCE.

The dancing party under the auspices of the senior class, Braintree high school, was successfully carried out Friday evening in the school hall. The dance was to have been held on the evening of the fourteenth but was postponed on account of the blizzard.

The decorations were in green and white the class colors. There was a large attendance of parents and friends of the scholars and they were charmingly received by Miss Prouty and Miss McLean two of the teachers. The ever popular and reliable Cuff's orchestra furnished the music which as usual was excellent.

Ice cream was served in the draughting room, just off the school hall. Many small tables, each seating four were used and made a pretty effect, being a welcome change from the usual manner of serving refreshments.

There was a good sale of tickets and the class was much gratified as the proceeds are to be used to help defray the expense incident to graduation.

BUILDING HEAVEN HERE.

I propose to you the enterprise of building heaven here. Why not? Why should we forever postpone paradise? Why should we yield the world to evil, without at least making a struggle to assert the right of joy and justice? How do we know that heaven will be any nearer to us in the next life than it is in this? I declare to you that the religious enterprise of the wiser future will be the building of the heavenly city upon the common earth, and the utilization of all the joy and justice possible to the race in the realization of the kingdom of heaven. "Thy kingdom come"—NOW!—All Souls Church.

At the annual dog show of the Lynn Kennel club held in that city Thursday and Friday, the Mayhurst kennels owned by George Haupt of the Fore River had six dogs entered. Each succeeded in winning a first in its class also two winners and two reserve winners; also special for best four in the show; also special of Buffalo Kennel club; special offered by Dr. Daniels for best puppy and silver cup offered by the Lynn club for best bitch owned by a member and won most times during the past.

BOYS' Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE

Quincy Delegate to Take Part in Program

Quincy will send delegates to the 20th annual conference of the boys' department of the Young Men's Christian association of Massachusetts and Rhode Island to be held at Holyoke, Jan. 28, 29 and 30, and great plans are being made for this event by the members of the Holyoke association. All delegates will be royally entertained during their stay in Holyoke and no detail will be omitted to make this the best conference ever held. Th conference theme this year will be "Responsibility of Older Boys Toward Younger Boys," and much important business will be transacted during the three days' session.

The affair is under the managment of the State committee for boys' work, composed as follows: Chairman F. O. Winslow, Norwood; Preston B. Keith, Brockton; A. C. Stone, Chelsea; Frank A. Pease, Fall River; A. C. Day Providence; : William Orr, Springfield State Chairman Lewis A. Crossett, Boston; State Secretary Edward W. Hearne, State boys' Secretary H. W. Gibson.

Roy L. Sidelinger of Quincy will take part in the program speaking Saturday morning on "Has the older boy any responsibility toward the younger boy?"

WHY NOT QUINCY?

Boston papers report that the George Lawley & Son corporation, which has for years had its yacht building establishment and yards in South Boston has sold its real estate and will move shortly to Neponset. The Lawleys have turned out some of the best known boats owned along the Massachusetts coast, as well as many craft for New York yachtmen.

NORTH WEYMOUTH.

Miss Gertrude Bartlett is spending a month with her grandmother Mrs. J. W. Bartlett.

The Men's club of Pilgrim church was addressed Thursday evening by Edwin Mulready of Rockland.

Miss Myra Shaw who has been confined to her home by illness is improving.

A beef stew supper was served Monday night at the January meeting of the Men's club of the Universalist church. It was followed by a talk on Inland Waterways by Frank F. Crane of Quincy which proved of great interest.

Miss Amy Lovell has been visiting her aunt Mrs. Charles Hunt of Quincy.

—Only 119 permits for new buildings and repairs were issued in Milton in 1909.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

We've had two January thaws to date. The second one is at work now. Work hard, Mr. Thaw, and do your work well.

What our friend "Bill" White, editor of the Mansfield News, says this week in "Chats by the Way" is applicable in other cities and towns as well as his. "Why don't you get after the road commissioner? Why don't you jog up the assessors? Why don't you tell the people that this town official and that town official are 'four- flushers?" And so on, continued one of Mansfield's taxpayers as he raved at me Monday afternoon. "I'll tell you what to do," I said. "Write a letter to the editor of the News stating your grievances; sign your name, don't sign, "an interested townsman," or "a taxpayer," or some other meaningless cognomen, but be as brave as you would want me to be and sign your full name for publication. That'll gain some prominence for you and will give you the opportunity you seek." He wouldn't do that, he wanted me to do the punching. I don't like that spirit. Perhaps I'm wrong, but, if a man has a grievance he shouldn't expect the newspapers to satisfy it. Our road commissioner do spendidly for the compensation they receive. You can't expect a man to give his whole time to that which brings him only a small income. Our assessors can't please everyone. They are in a position where they must use their own judgment, not yours or mine. If you have a bone to pick it is pretty good policy to do your own picking."

President Taft's message dealing with the problem of conserving the natural resources of the country is a clear and practical statement. It is squarely in line with the ideas advanced by Mr. Roosevelt and meets the demands for legislation made by Secretary Ballinger and Mr. Pinchot. If the recommendations of the President are enacted into law a great forward step will be taken to protect in the interest of the people the forests, coal lands, water power sites, and other natural resources, which, under existing law, are in danger of slipping from government control into private hands. In his handling of the conservation question Mr. Taft has given added evidence that he is no mere theorist. The keynote of his message was contained in an introductory paragraph in which he said: "The problem is how to save and how to utilize, how to conserve and still develop; for no sane person can contend that it is for the common good that Nature's blessings are only for unborn generations." With this as his text, Mr. Taft takes up each of the problems and suggests methods for their solution. His recommendation that Congress shall proceed at once to deal with the conservation question and shall not lose valuable time by awaiting the outcome of the controversy between the Secretary of the interior and the former Chief Forester is most timely. The Ballinger-Pinchot squabble should not be permitted to obscure the fact that important legislation is necessary fully to protect the public domain of the country from spoliation. Present laws are admittedly inadequate and reform legislation can be enacted without awaiting a finding as to whether Mr. Pinchot ought to be reinstated or Mr. Ballinger dismissed.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST

says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

TEN PERMITS.

Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker has issued the following building permits since the first of January:

To John B. Stone, for a dwelling on Franklin street.

To James M. Nowland, for a dwelling on Edgemere road.

To Cornelius Kiley, for a cottage on Camden street.

To Charles E. Joss, for a dwelling on Kidder street.

To H. C. Smalley, for a stone shed on Penn street.

To Albert Nelson for a dwelling on Carruth street.

To Charles Briggs for a store on Sea street.

To Charles H. Kristen for a stable on Station street.

To A. William Ericson for a dwelling on Glendale road.

To C. F. Brown for a dwelling on Ocean street, Atlantic.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Grover of Winchester celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary on New Year's day in a quiet way. Besides many Winchester friends they entertained friends from Quincy, Medford, Somerville and Woburn. They were remembered with beautiful cut glass blocked crystal, hand painted china, silverware, linen, money, a fireless cooker and beautiful flowers, accompanied by the good wishes of all. During the evening whist, a social good time and refreshments rounded out an evening long to be remembered. Mrs. Grover was formerly Miss Abbie Hodgkinson of Quincy and has many friends in this city.

POLICE BALL.

The fourth annual concert and ball of the Quincy Police Relief association to be held at Music hall next Friday evening, Jan. 28, promises to be fully as great a success as any of the previous years. The committee having the affair in charge, headed by Chief Frank E. Burrell, is leaving nothing undone that will help make the ball a success. Invitations have been sent to many prominent in police circles of other towns and cities and good delegations from these departments are expected to be present.

VESPERS AT FIRST CHURCH.

At the vesper service at First church on Sunday at four o'clock ,the regular quartet assisted by a chorus, will render the following program:

Service Prelude, "Meditation" Silas
Anthem, "Ho everyone that thirsteth" James H. Rogers
Quartette, "Vesper Hymn" Frank Lynes
Offertory Anthem, "King, all glorious" Barnby

NEW CHURCH OF BRAINTREE.

The people of Braintree will no doubt be interested to know that just as soon as the frost leaves the ground. work will be commenced on the new St. Francis church. Father M. F. McDonnell, the pastor, has been untiring in his efforts for a new and more commodious house of worship and his labors are about to be crowned with success.

The specifications have been received and the architects are the well known firm of Brigham, Coveney and Bisbee of Boston, designers of the Christian Science church, Boston, the Rogers Memorial church, Fairhaven, and many other beautiful structures. The church will be erected in the vacant lot at the south of the parochial residence and when completed will be an ornament to the square and an edifice of which Braintree will be proud.

The lower part will be constructed of stone and the remainder of brick. When completed the church will have a seating capacity of about one thousand persons. At present however, only two-thirds of the building will be erected and it will accommodate seven hundred people.

The present house of worship is altogether too small for the increasing membership and a larger building is imperative. Pastor and people have worked hard to raise funds for the new church and it is very gratifying to them to know that they will soon see tangible proof of their efforts.

Wealth In Old Tin Cans.

Old tin cans which find their way to the domestic rubbish heap have been turned to good account by the Liverpool corporation. Last year from this source the health committee realized $1,500. In future the revenue is likely to be increased, because the authorities are engaged in putting in a new plant. It is estimated that at least $6,000 a year might be derived.

FIELD OF WOMAN

Philadelphia Society Bud Wears Man's Garb at Horse Shows. Poet's Bride Tells of Romance. Woman Works Farm.

DR. MARY WALKER, who has worn trousers for forty years, is not the only pebble on the beach of contrary apparel. It has become quite the thing now in certain "horsy" circles for society girls to wear men's clothing at a horse show or a racing meet in the quiet old Quaker City. Miss Kitty Smith, one of Philadelphia's society belles, appears regularly at such events dressed just like a man. Other girls of her set also wear the masculine attire when, according to their notions, the occasion requires it. It will be observed that the amiable Miss Kitty wears real trousers—riding trousers—a long overcoat and a derbyish hat. Her boots are of the pattern worn by male riders. Her collar and cravat are such as the "gents'" furnishing goods stores supply.

Woman With the Silver Tongue.

Some women do original things, and last August Miss Maureen Spring of Dublin, which is in Ireland, married a poet. She is in America now on what she calls her wedding journey, and her name is Mrs. William Watson. Miss Spring met the foremost living British poet only two weeks before their marriage. It was a commonplace romance in one respect, being the result of a summer seashore meeting. The young Irishwoman met the English poet of middle age while she was rusticating at Bath. Evidently the Watsonian wooing was ardent, considering the brief time that elapsed between the meeting and the marriage. After Mr. and Mrs. Watson landed on the American side her husband was a target for reporters and newspaper photographers, and the bride was always present to hear the questioning. When appealed to she always upheld her famous husband's views. When asked if she was a suffragette she put the querist to shame by replying naively, "Do I look like one?" Mrs. Watson does not seek to deny that her romance was a whirlwind one. "I remember our being introduced and our being married," was the way she spoke of it. She said she insisted upon being brought to America for her honeymoon trip, though the voyage was made four months after the wedding. Mr. Watson's poem of "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue" has made quite a stir in both continents, but the reporters say Mrs. Watson herself is the woman with the silver tongue.

Wife Farms, Hubby Keeps House.

Mrs. Serillo Durant Longman—the name sounds as if she might be a sculptress, poetess or some other kind of artist—is a farmer. As a farmer she is an artist, too, by the way, but it is the why and wherefore of her farming that makes the story. Mrs. Longman is the wife of Jacob, but because she is really the head of the family we ought to call him Mr. Serillo Durant Longman if we stick for proper form. Jacob does all the housework. Serillo does all the farm work. They have divided up the labor that way ever since they were married, away back in 1883, and they are a happy couple on their farm in the fertile Ozark hills near Rogersville, Mo. Serillo was one of eight girls and Jacob one of five boys. Serillo was known in her young days as "the boy of the family." Somebody had to help father at the farm work, and it fell to Serillo. Somebody had to help mother at the housework, and it fell to Jacob. So it fell out that these two fell together and were wedded. Serillo heard of Jacob and his remarkable aptitude for making dresses, cooking meals and tidying up the house. She wrote to him, with designs. She wooed and won. When they homesteaded their 160 acres Jacob went out in the woods to help Serillo clear ground, but after half a day she "fired" him, and he went back to the house and baked her a pie that made her mouth water.

MARCIA WILLIS CAMPBELL.

PHILERGIANS.

Jan. 18th a regular meeting of the Philergians was held in Cochato hall, the president, Mrs. Susan J. Avery in the chair. Notices were read of the meeting of the State Federation at Park Street church, Boston. Feb. 1st also an art exhibit to be given by the Brockton Woman's club, Jan. 25-29, at High school, Mrs. Alice F. Dow was reappointed as representative from the club, to assist the Consumer's league in carrying out their work.

Announcement was made that the concert to be given by Mrs. Ruth Thayer Burnham having been postponed on account of her illness, would be given Jan. 24th in Cochato hall. On account of that change of date, the next evening meeting will be held Friday, Feb. 4th at the home of Mrs. Albert E. Avery, 265 Commercial street, East Braintree.

The household management course will begin Jan. 21 at 2.30 when Mrs. Wade will give a demonstration in Delta hall.

There will be a hearing on pure milk, Jan. 20 at State House. The special business of the afternoon was the disposal of $46.80 balance from the Biennial fund. After an interesting discussion on several worthy objects presented by club members, it was voted to make the sum fifty dollars and that money to be given to the library for the children's room. A committee of five was appointed by the chair to expend the $50. Mrs. Gallagher, Mrs. Wales, Mrs. Bill, Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Crathern.

Mrs. Gallagher was elected a delegate to the midwinter federation meeting, Feb. 1. The program for the afternoon was under the management of Mrs. George O. Wales, chairman of forestry committee.

Mrs. Evelyn Waters read an article concerning the much discussed beautiful Hetch Hetchy valley, so much desired for a water supply for San Francisco. Miss Edith Poole of Brockton rendered three songs in a most charming manner, "Last Night," "Thy Beaming Eyes" and an "Irish Lullaby."

Mr. Rane, the state forester having been compelled to leave home, Mrs. Wales introduced as the speaker of the afternoon Prof. Hall, who addressed the club on Forestry giving a good, practical talk on the subject.

He said that in the old countries there was not so much need for the matter to be taken up publicly ,as it was taught by the women in schools and at home and that the first settlers of our country having thus been taught at home came here having respect for trees, but they were obliged to clear the land to use it for crops and soon became reckless in their manner of cutting and this had continued until now, though 35 per cent. of the country is in forest at the present rate of cutting there will inevitably be a lumber famine in 10 or 25. Forests serve a purpose aside from the lumber they produce very important to humanity. They act as wind breaks, equalize the temperature, prevent too co-operation, prevent floods, and increase the rain fall. The value of the annual output of lumber is fifteen times that of all the gold and silver mined in this country, four times the value of the coal mines and four times the value of the wheat crops.

Prof. Hall also gave many interesting facts regarding the growth of trees—and the ways in which the service of forestry is of benefit, not so much in saving trees as in judicious cutting and reforestation of waste land.

Tea was served by the Hospitality committee. Meeting adjourned to Feb. 1.

Feb. 1, Dr. Henry R. Rose will present "Parsifal and the Holy Grail," illustrated with colored slides. The music will be from Wagner's opera of Parsifal. This is an open meting.

—Official returns show that the number of horses in Massachusetts has decreased 5149 during the past year, while there are 3247 fewer cows than in the preceding year. In the former case the decrease is undoubtedly due to same extent to the increasing use of automobiles for business as well as pleasure purposes, but in case of the cows, it indicates a falling off in the dairying business and a consequent curtailment of the milk supply. Our farmers should take lessons from the Illinois woman who recently told at a farmer's institute in that state that she had cleared $12,000 in a year on 60 cows. She ought to be invited to come east and tell how she did it.—Milford Gazette.

CLARK UNION.

The 87th quarterly meeting of the twelve Christian Endeavor societies comprising the Clark Union was held on Tuesday evening in the Union church of Weymouth and Braintree. In spite of the wet and slush and wretched walking nearly a hundred young people and their friends gathered in the banquet room of the church and shortly after 6.30 o'clock sat down to a bountiful supper, which was provided by the Christian Endeavorers of the Union church.

After the supper the Rev. Robert H. Cochrane, acting as toastmaster introduced Rev. C. F. H. Crathern as the first speaker of the evening, who responded to the following toast: "What may any pastor rightfully expect from his Christian Endeavorers?"

Rev. F. B. McAllister of Cohasset, the second speaker spoke upon, "The pledge of a Christian Endeavorer, and the obligation which it implies." Rev. H. W. Kimball of South Weymouth spoke upon, "The way in which my Young People's society differs from the usual society and the helpfulness of the new method." Rev. Edward A. Robinson spoke upon "The blessings which Christian Endeavor societies may bring to every church."

After the supper the company adjourned to the main auditorium of the church for the exercises of the evening. After a brief service of praise followed by scripture reading and prayer by the pastor, and a few earnest words of welcome from Mrs. A. D. Tirrell the president of the Christian Endeavor society of the local church, Rev. J. Stanley Durkee, Ph. D., of Brockton was introduced as the principal speaker of the evening. His subject was, "The Quarry of 1910. What are you going to get out of it?" An eloquent and inspiring address followed which held the closest attention of the large audience to the end. His theme was developed along three lines 1. We need a definite purpose to build well from our quarry. 2. We need material that is lasting. 3. We need a holy enthusiasm.

After the roll call of societies and the business had been disposed of, Miss Adelaide M. Keating's solo was much enjoyed. The banner, which at every Clark Union meeting is awarded to the society having the largest per cent of its members present, was awarded to the Weymouth Baptist society, in a presentation speech by Rev. Henry C. Alvord of South Weymouth. The Baptist Christian Endeavor president responding in a few brief words of thanks in behalf of his society. After a closing hymn and the benediction, one of the best Clark Union meetings ever held in this vicinity was adjourned.

BRAINTREE

A parish meeting of the Episcopal society was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stedman, Cedar street and the board of officers were reelected.

The Samaritan society, a group of young ladies of All Souls church, are clothing a little Italian child in Boston and will give a drama entitled "Lucia's Lover" on Friday evening, Feb. 4, the proceeds of which will be used for that worthy purpose.

Miss Doris Hubbard entertained the Willing Helpers, Tuesday at her home, on Stedman avenue. An election of officers took place, and one new member was initiated into the club. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches cake and cocoa were served by Mrs. Hubbard. There were seven members present.

Mrs. Alfred Ashman of Vine street entertained Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Mr. and Mrs. Will Thayer with their son Robert, all of Boston. The occasion was the anniversary of her mother's birthday. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, who it will be remembered, was formerly a resident of Braintree.

Mr. and Mrs. George Chamberlain of West street entertained at bridge Monday evening. Souvenirs were awarded Mrs. Alfred Hixon and Mr. E. S. Grover for obtaining the highest scores. A very dainty lunch was served. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain proved themselves to be excellent host and hostess.

Delta hall, Braintree, was the scene Thursday evening of a social gathering given by St. Ma y's society of Emmanuel church. The committee of arrangements were Mrs. C. A. Bill, Mrs. J. H. Stedman, Mrs. C. A. Hobart and Miss W. H. Bailey. They provided a tempting supper and seven young ladies of the society assisted at the long table. Their names are Edith and Carolyn Kimball, Bertha Smith, Ada Mack, Helen Muller, Mabel Houston and Ethel Close.

The regular meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the First Congregational church, Braintree, was held in the chapel Wednesday evening, Jan. 19, at 7.45 o'clock. The speaker of the evening was Charles H. Adams, business manager of the Boston Daily Advertiser" and the "Boston Evening Record. Mr. Adams is vice chairman of the state board of charity and gave a very interesting and instructive address on "The State's Campaign against Tuberculosis." Many startling facts and figures were presented and the speaker's remarks called forth great applause.

EAST BRAINTREE.

George M. Pillsbury of Seattle, Wash., has been spending a few days with his sister Mrs. George Remick of Oak street.

Mrs. B. F. Torrey and her daughter Mrs. Fannie Wilson who have been seriously ill with the grip are now convalescent.

Charles Martin of Weymouth is to move to the house on Quincy avenue formerly occupied by Amos J. Loring.

C. B. Edward superintendent of the Fore River Shipyard has been over to New York this week where he went to deliver his lecture on "Turbine Engines."

The officers of Mayflower Chapter, No. 65, Order of the Eastern Star, were publicly installed at Pythian hall, Weymouth, Tuesday evening and nothwithstanding the bad weather about 50 of the members and their friends attended the exercises. A banquet preceded the installation. During the installation vocal solos were rendered by Miss Bessie H. Bates.

SOUTH BRAINTREE.

John Finnegan of Hancock street, who has been convalescent this week from a recent operation at the Quincy hospital is reported to be recovering. He will doubtless resume his occupation as motorman on the electric cars next week.

The members of the Matrons' whist club were entertained by Mrs. F. W. Brett of Summer street, Monday evening. Mrs. N. L. Wood and Mrs. W. J. Tirrell, Jr., made the highest scores.

The engagement of Dallas P. Monk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Monk of Washington street and Miss Hazel Ames of Pepperell is announced.

Little Bernice Simonds who was so badly burned quite recently is getting on as well as can be expected. Aside from scars she will soon be quite well.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Levangie of Franklin street celebrated the tenth anniversary of their marriage, Friday evening by entertaining a family party.

George Wentworth of Granite street fell on the ice last Tuesday evening causing an injury to his back and breaking a finger. He managed to walk to Dr. Brett's office for treatment.

Rev. George H. Parkinson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church was in Cambridge Wednesday evening to deliver an address on "The Laws of Hammusabi," before the Semitic Conference of Harvard University.

Narbert B. Shay of Washington street, who is secretary of one of the fraternities connected with Tufts dental school which he is attending has been chosen chairman and toastmaster at the banquet of the graduating class.

Diphtheria cases have been reported this week. Children in the homes of Edgar N. Beane of Safford street and E. F. Edwards of Pond street are afflicted. It is earnestly hoped there will be no further cases reported.

The Krow Eldeen Society spent a very enjoyable evening with Mrs. Ross of Franklin street Tuesday night. The attendance was small owing to the inclement weather, and Miss Cowles gave an informal talk, very kindly offering to give the one she had prepared at some future meeting when more were present. Next Tuesday evening the meeting will be held at the parsonage with Miss Elsie Young as hostess. A chafing dish demonstration will be the feature of the evening.

GIRL POSES AS SCOTTISH LORD

Is Arrested In New York When Her Sex Is Discovered

IS RELEASED BY MAGISTRATE

Attributes Her Unmasking to Woman Twice Her Age Who Fell In Love With Her and Proposed Marriage—Claims to Be Real Daughter of Late Colonel Hamilton-Grey of Scotland—Wore Men's Clothes For Years

New York, Jan. 22.—"Nobody ever seemed to doubt my pretensions of being a man. I have been in all sorts of company dressed in man's attire, but I was never suspected of being a woman. It is difficult to make the female voice ring with the characteristic strength of that of the man, but outside of that I had no trouble whatever in impersonating the other characteristics of the stronger sex," said Miss Marion Hamilton-Grey, a comely young woman prisoner who was released from custody in the night court by Magistrate Kernochan after her arraignment by detectives who discovered that she was wearing men's clothes.

For ten years this young woman has been traveling in Asia, Europe and America as a man, and her identity was never revealed until two New York detectives arrested her on a charge of disorderly conduct.

In the two hours which followed her arrest and preceded her appearance in the night court the police made several remarkable discoveries of the extent of the young woman's activities since she came to this city from Watertown, N. Y., on Jan. 5.

According to the police, she registered on her arrival here at the Hotel Latham and remained there for five days, during which time she attracted little attention by her appearance. She dressed in a gray sack suit, patent leather shoes, invariably wore a gray overcoat and white silk scarf and completed a boyish aspect by carrying a light walking stick and wearing a soft hat, about which there was a blue band.

"Lord Hamilton-Grey" had all the privileges around the Hotel Latham, it was said, but gave up "his" rooms on last Wednesday. On that day the "lord" made "himself" known to Leonard D. Langley, secretary of the St. George society. Langley was asked about the visit at his home.

"Why, yes, I remember Lord Hamilton-Grey," he said. "He called on me at my office and said he was the heir to the Hamilton dukedom in Scotland and that his remittance, which he had long been expecting, had not arrived. On the young man's statement I paid the bill at the Hotel Latham, which was $10.50, and that is the last I have seen of him.

"He told me he was the son of Lord Hamilton-Grey, an officer in the English army, and that he was born in India while his father was in the service. After his father's death, he told me, he returned to England and was put under the guardianship of an uncle, who placed him in school."

After the visit to Langley, according to the policemen who arrested the young woman, inquiry was made at the British consulate in this city, which revealed the fact that the heir to the Hamilton dukedom, in Scotland, was born in 1903.

When Magistrate Kernochan asked the young woman for her side of the story she said she lived at present at 308 West Twenty-fourth street, that her name was Miss Marian Hamilton-Grey and that she had dressed and passed for a boy since she was 9 years old.

"I have worn men's clothing for ten years," said the young woman when discharged, "and while I was in Newark Valley a few months ago a woman there twice my age fell in love with me and wanted to marry me. Circumstances, of course, forced me to refuse her, and she threatened vengeance. She even threatened to kill me, and when I left there she followed me.

"When I came to New York she learned that I had appealed to St. George society for assistance, posing as the son of Colonel Hamilton-Grey, and she had me arrested for imposition. My only imposition is that I am a daughter, instead of a son, of Colonel Hamilton-Grey."

DISASTER IN TUNNEL

Explosion Hammers Fifteen Men Into Great Bleeding Mass

Fishkill Landing, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Fifteen men were killed by a premature explosion of nitro-glycerine in a tunnel which is to form part of the great aqueduct to carry water from the Ashokan dam in the Catskills to New York city.

Five were terribly mutilated, but were so near the mouth of the tunnel that they were rescued alive.

The other fifteen were found beneath a mass of rock and debris, literally hammered by the force of the explosion into a bleeding mass of heads, limbs and torsos.

It is believed that one of the workmen, carrying a torch, tripped and fell, igniting a fuse and setting off a series of charges of nitro-glycerine, which had been placed preparatory to an exodus from the tunnel.

MAYOR ORDERS UNION PAY

Advance In Wages of Employes of the City of Boston

Boston, Jan. 22.—Mayor Hibbard has "unionized" every branch of the city service through a circular letter sent out to all heads of departments, notifying them to pay the prevailing schedule of wages to all tradesmen and mechanics employed by the city who are members of labor unions.

In his letter the mayor points out that the elimination of "students" from the payrolls has enabled him to make this general advance in wages without making any extraordinary increase in the payrolls. About 200 men will be affected.

Mayor Hibbard declares that he wants Boston to set an example for private employers.

KNOX'S PROPOSITION MEETS WITH DEFEAT

Will Be No Neutralization of Manchurian Railroads

Tokio, Jan. 22.—The reply of the Japanese government to the United States' proposal for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways was handed to American Ambassador O'Brien. It is a polite declination.

The declination to accept the neutralization proposition is said to be based on several grounds, the chief of which are:

The American plan would be of no advantage whatever to Japan.

It would afford no advantage to China.

It would not change the commercial situation in Manchuria, where Japan is adhering strictly to its pledges of an open door and equal opportunity.

The Knox note, which, in brief, provides for the purchase by China of both the Russian and Japanese sections of the Manchurian railroad, the money to be advanced by the powers, was sprung on the unsuspecting world within the month like a bombshell. No intimation of what was coming was given to the two nations most interested, Japan and Russia, who hold their respective sections of the Chinese state only as the result of the expenditure of great blood and treasure. The plan was simply set forth in a circular note distributed to the interested nations with a request for their consideration.

DEER IN CEMETERY

Herd of Six Browsing Within the City Limits of Boston

Boston, Jan. 22.—There was a sightly herd of deer within the city limits to the great astonishment of Florence Lawlor, the custodian of Mt. Benedict cemetery in West Roxbury. When Lawlor saw the animals they were on top of a hill, where the ground is bare, and he counted six in sight at once. One seemed to be a good-sized buck, and the others, which were smaller, does.

It is believed that the deer were driven by the recent storms into the confines of civilization, and that they were finding sufficient grass in the cemetery to keep them hanging about there.

CLUBBED TO DEATH

Bartender Mercilessly Beaten by Four Men After Being Ambushed

Boston, Jan. 22.—Daniel Desmond, aged 25, died at the relief hospital as the result of injuries received in an attack by four men, who ambushed him in a room at 5 Ransome court, and mercilessly beat him with bludgeons. Four men are detained by the police on a suspicion of murder.

Desmond, a bartender, quit work at 11 o'clock at night and went with two waitresses to a house on Ransome court. These women, Ida Musa and Nellie Daley, are detained by the police as witnesses.

ORDERS PROBE OF BEEF PRICES

President Gives Instructions to Department of Justice

MASSACHUSETTS INTERESTED

Legislature Will Have Bill Calling For Investigation of High Prices of Food to Consider—Boston and Other Large Cities Throughout the Country Joining In the Fast Spreading Boycott Against Meat

Boston, Jan. 22.—By direction of President Taft, the United States department of justice is to prosecute the beef trust for alleged operations in restraint of trade.

Mr. Taft believes that this combination of packers with headquarters at Chicago is responsible for the high prices of meat products, and indicated his desire to strenuously push the suit, which will probably be brought under the Sherman anti-trust law.

This national action against the beef trust was announced almost simultaneously with the statement that Representative O'Brien's bill for an investigation of the causes of prevailing high prices of living and labor in the commonwealth was ready for presentation to the Massachusetts legislature.

The O'Brien bill provides for a Massachusetts industrial and fiscal commission, with authority to summons the beef magnates, or other persons with information upon the situation, before it.

Besides the national and state action looking to a remedying of present conditions, it is announced that two mass meetings of protest against the present high prices of meats are to be held in Boston, one in Faneuil Hall tonight and another in Tremont Temple at a date to be announced later—probably some night next week.

It is further announced that 60,000 people in Boston have joined "no meat" clubs and pledged themselves to abstain from eating meat for thirty days, in an effort to bring down prices.

From all over the country come reports of the rapid spread of the "no meat" crusade.

Advices from Cleveland show that the boycott on meat has now been taken up by 100,000, who have pledged themselves to abstain from meat for thirty days, and that all the minor Ohio cities have joined in the movement looking toward lower prices.

The Ohio legislature has a bill before it providing for action similar to that which is proposed in Massachusetts.

The Pittsburg chamber of commerce has made plans to enlist the city government in a municipal market project, the farmers to bring their products in and sell them to the city, which in turn would retail them to the consumer.

A Canton, O., meat dealer announced that four big Chicago packing houses had threatened that in event of meat prices being cut in that state, the trust houses would refuse to sell any more of their product in Ohio.

As a result of the boycott placed on eggs in Cleveland the price dropped from 48 cents to 25 cents a dozen for the fresh variety.

Retail meat dealers of New York city state that their sales have fallen off 50 percent in the last fortnight as a result of the agitation.

In Milwaukee two retail butchers quoted porterhouse and sirloin steak at 10 cents a pound and other meats in proportion. The wholesale price of beef fell off 15 cents a hundred pounds in Cleveland.

Dispatches from Baltimore, Kansas City, Omaha, Memphis and other cities tell of the rapid growth of the meat fast.

FORTY-EIGHT KILLED

Nearly a Hundred Other Passengers Injured In Railroad Wreck

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 22.—Though it is impossible to get names of the dead and injured and details of the Canadian Pacific wreck reported on the "Soo" branch of that line near Espanola, it is asserted here that forty-eight lives were lost and ninety-two passengers were injured.

According to reports, the rear portion of a west-bound train was derailed by a broken rail on the bridge over the Spanish river.

Patrick Asks For Opportunity to Fight Proceedings Against Him

New York, Jan. 22.—Albert T. Patrick, the prisoner lawyer, has stepped into the front again with a somewhat novel addition to the long list of efforts he has made to get out of Sing Sing, where he is serving a life term for the murder of William M. Rice.

ALBERT T. PATRICK

Patrick's application is for a writ of habeas corpus allowing him to appear and resist the action for his disbarment which the Bar association has brought.

Decision on the application was reserved by the justice of the appellate division of the supreme court, to whom it was made.

LYNN COUPLE WED IN DEN OF LIONS

Matrimonial Knot Is Tied In Just Thirty Seconds

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 22.—Some 1600 people gathered in the Lynn theatre last night showed by their silence the anxiety felt when a well known young woman, accompanied by a courageous young man, walked without a tremor into a cage containing four full grown lions, that they might be made man and wife.

The lions' den upon the stage was the place selected for the ceremony. Besides the man-eaters and the contracting parties it contained Marriage Commissioner Bray and Jacob Blann, the trainer who was to keep the great beasts in subjection while Meta Evfer and Fred Taylor were made one.

The lions roared at times to make the thing a bit sensational, the great audience shuddered, but the bride never lost her smile. It took the marriage commissioner just half a minute to complete things.

Taylor received $50 for the part played by himself and bride. He is employed here as an electrician, and his wife formerly worked in a local shoe factory.

NO SPECIAL PRIVILEGES

Banker Morse Being Treated Exactly as Any Other Prisoner

Washington, Jan. 22.—William H. Moyer, warden of the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, was at the department of justice and entered a denial of the published stories that special privileges were being accorded to Charles W. Morse, the New York banker who recently began serving a fifteen-year sentence in that institution.

Moyer says that it is true that after being removed the moustache of Morse has been allowed to grow again, but that was a privilege accorded to all prisoners. Morse, he said, was employed in the library making up a catalogue of several thousand books, which had not been indexed, and was being treated precisely as any other prisoner in the institution.

THREE THOUSAND AFFECTED

Coats Thread Mills to Close on Account of Extensive Strike

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 22.—Because of a strike of the doffers and back boys at mills Nos. 4 and 5 of J. & P. Coats, Ltd., otherwise known as the cotton thread combine, the corporation posted notices at all six of its factories announcing that they will be shut down next Monday for an indefinite period.

From a small strike of boys the trouble extended, until the strikers and operatives forced out by the boys' absence numbered 1000.

The J. & P. Coats corporation has its headquarters in Glasgow. The shutdown order affects 3000 hands.

SEAL QUESTION IS DISCUSSED

United States, England, Japan and Russia Interested

GREAT HERDS ARE DWINDLING

Negotiations Said to Be In Progress For Abolition of Pelagic Sealing—One Company's Lease Will Expire In Two Months and Certain Interests In This Country Are Working to Prevent Its Renewal

Washington, Jan. 22.—Persistent rumors reach Washington from Canadian sources that Great Britain, the United States, Japan and Russia are moving under the surface toward an agreement for the abolition of pelagic sealing.

The latest news comes through the United States consul at Victoria, B. C., who states that the Victoria Sealing company has decided not to send out its sealing fleet this year. The reason alleged by the company is announcement from Ottawa that international negotiations for the prohibition of pelagic sealing are under way.

This may or may not be the actual reason. The company sent out no vessels last year, when no such reason for abandoning operations could have been advanced. It is known that two independent Canadian sealers already have gone out and three more are being outfitted.

The announcement comes at an interesting moment. The twenty-year lease of the North American Commercial company of San Francisco will expire April 30 and a determined effort to prevent its renewal is being made by certain interests in the United States. The department of commerce and labor has been satisfied with the relations of the company to the government and probably would renew the lease if no stronger reasons for not doing so were advanced than any with which the department is yet familiar.

Of late Dr. William T. Hornaday, the director of the Bronx Zoological park and well known as president of the American Bison society, has interested himself in the controversy, which has been carried on for years by Professor Henry W. Elliot of Ohio, and an attempt has been made to have the situation investigated by the senate committee on conservation of natural resources, of which Joseph M. Dxon of Montana is chairman.

The request has been made through the legislative committee of the New York Campfire club. Statistics have been published purporting to show that the seal herd has diminished from about 360,000 in 1900, when an official survey was made by the United States fish commission, to an estimated 30,000 in 1909.

This last figure is seriously at variance with the estimate of the government inspectors who are on the ground every year. They estimate the herd at nearer 150,000. The catch of the North American Commercial company is limited by the government to 15,000 a year, and the full quota is not slaughtered.

Of late years the pelagic, or open sea, catch has been larger than the land catch, and much more injurious to the quality of the remaining herd.

Secretary of Trainmen's Union Says That Strike Talk Is Premature

New York, Jan. 22.—The announcement that the New York Central, the Erie and the Lackawanna railroads have refused the demands of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, including the conductors, is discounted at the eastern headquarters of the trainmen.

Secretary K. P. Williams said: "The railroads and the trainmen are working harmoniously, and all talk of a strike is premature.

"Our demands have been turned down, but each road has expressed a wish for a further consultation, which clearly indicates that more money is coming to the men."

HER NAME NOT DIVULGED

Providence Police Are Looking For the Fiancee of Lorenz

Providence, Jan. 22.—The search for the wealthy young Providence woman said to be engaged to marry Ernest W. Lorenz, under arrest charged with one murder and a score of criminal assaults, is the one goal toward which all the efforts of the police are being directed.

They believe that this woman may enlighten them on several points, particularly as to where Lorenz was on the night Laura E. Regester was murdered.

Lorenz says the girl is the daughter of a prominent manufacturer, but refuses to tell her name.

Crippled Liner Refuses Aid

New York, Jan. 22.—The Wilson line steamer Martello, Hull for New York, is making the best of her way with a broken rudder. She was sighted on Jan. 13 by the Hamburg-American liner President Lincoln, which arrived here yesterday, and declined assistance.

SEQUEL TO DIVORCE SUIT

Hartford Man Puts Three Bullets Into Attorney of His Wife

New Haven, Jan. 22.—Walter R. Newport, Connecticut manager for the Preferred Insurance company, shot Howard C. Webb, in his office, three times. Webb was the attorney of Mrs. Newport, who recently was awarded a divorce. This was declared to be the motive for the shooting. Webb is in a precarious condition.

Newport rushed into the lawyer's office and brushing aside the clerks forced an entrance into Webb's room. After a few angry words Newport fired four shots in rapid succession. One of the shots ploughed through Webb's abdomen and as he sank to the floor Newport fired again. Then he threw the revolver away and was captured as he was attempting to escape.

Mrs. Newport's suit was a surprise to their friends, as it had always been believed that their home life had been happy. She was awarded alimony and the custody of their child.

IRISH IN THE SADDLE

Almost Certain to Hold Balance of Power In Coming Parliament

London, Jan. 22.—The political tide continues to drift toward Conservatism. The Unionists gained ten seats yesterday and the Liberals none.

There is hardly a question that the Irish will hold the whip over Premier Asquith in the coming parliament and that it will be a critical and exciting session.

It is probable that a home rule bill will be introduced, but not pressed, and that the attention of the government will be concentrated on the budget.

OLD SAVINGS BANK CLOSED BY COURT

Expert Will Investigate Books of the Institution

Boston, Jan. 22.—The Southbridge Savings bank, with deposits of $2,578,428.80, was closed by order of the supreme court. An injunction was granted Attorney General Malone preventing the bank from doing further business.

An expert examiner in the employ of the bank commissioner will begin today an investigation of the bank's books because of a discrepancy discovered between the deposit ledger and the statement of deposits as submitted by the treasurer.

This bank is one of the oldest savings institutions in the state. It was incorporated in 1848 and has always been regarded as a strong bank. Its last annual report showed deposits of $2,387,500, with a guarantee fund and profit and loss of $171,400. It paid 4 percent on deposits.

A warrant was sworn out in Southbridge for the arrest of Treasurer Hall on charges of larceny and embezzlement. State Officers Murray and Molt at once started a search for Hall, going first to Southbridge. No trace of him was found there and the officers started west to Springfield, where if no result is obtained, they will proceed to New York, where many people think he has fled.

PUPILS' CLOSE CALL

Overcome by Chlorine Gas While Studying Chemistry In High School

Chicopee, Mass., Jan. 22.—Carelessness on the part of chemistry pupils of the Chicopee high school came near resulting disastrously when the entire class was overcome by chlorine gas fumes in the school laboratory.

Not knowing what they were doing, the pupils used water in cleaning out the flasks, and its use tended to force the gas from the receptacles with the result that the room was soon filled with its deadly fumes.

Coughing and sputtering, two of the boys groped their way to the windows and opened them. The relief was immediate. All of the pupils were instructed to breath alcohol fumes. None were seriously hurt.

CURED TO STAY CURED

How Quincy Citizens Can Find Complete Freedom From Kidney Troubles.

If you suffer from backache—
From urinary disorders—
From any disease of the kidneys,
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills make lasting cures.
Grateful people testify.
Here's one case of it:

C. H. Foster, 180 Thatcher street, Milton Mass., says: "The symptoms of kidney trouble in my case were not serious at first and I paid little attention to them. The result was that before long I found myself firmly in the grasp of this complaint. I became so weak that I could hardly attend to my work and I also suffered from sharp pains in various parts of my body. I lost twenty pounds in weight and could not sleep well. I was very nervous, had no energy and was in such poor health that the doctor told me that I should take to my bed. I did not do this, however, being unwilling to give up. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised. I procured a supply and had only taken part of the contents of one box before I began to feel better. From that time on I improved steadily until I was well." (Statement given May 1905.)

A Permanent Effect.

On June 24, 1908, Mr. Foster added: "My former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills still holds good. I have been free from kidney complaint during the years that have passed since I first took the remedy."

A PEACE PETITION

Requests Pledges That Nations Will Not Increase Territory by Conquest

Washington, Jan. 22.—Representative McCall presented in the house a petition signed by prominent citizens of the United States calling for the adoption of a resolution authorizing and requesting the president to instruct the secretary of state to transmit to the international peace conference an assurance that the United States will not increase territory by conquest and calling upon the other powers to give like assurance.

Among the signers are Edwin D. Mead and R. L. Bridgman of Boston.

Wyoming Sheep Starving

Sheridan, Wyo., Jan. 22.—Sheep raisers in this region have lost many thousand sheep because of the shortage of feed, due to the prolonged unfavorable weather.

Taft Has Stubborn Cold

Washington, Jan. 22. President Taft is suffering from a stubborn cold which he contracted a week or more ago.

Land Committee to Organize

Washington, Jan. 22.—The joint congressional committee appointed to investigate the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy will meet today. It is likely that Senator Nelson will be elected chairman and that plans for conducting the inquiry will be considered.

Chilly Experience After Fire

New Boston, N. H., Jan. 22.—After a heroic rescue from being burned to death in the fire which destroyed their home, Ray Tilman, his wife and 4-year-old child were obliged to walk through deep snow for half a mile in their night clothes to find shelter.

A cold winter has not checked the building boom in the vicinity of the Cranch school, where eight or ten houses a'e being erected at the present time.

Wilbur Richardson, who has been in the hospital for seven weeks undergoing an operation, has returned home, but it will be some months before he is able to walk. He would be glad to have his friends call.

Those who have read John Fox's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" will be interested in the pictures to be shown at the Wollaston Congregational church Sunday night, when the first of seven illustrated talks will be given at half past six. The subject of the talk will be "In the heart of the Cumberlands."

The Women's Guild of Christ church is to serve a supper to the parish next Wednesday evening at half past six. This is the supper promised in connection with the "penny collection," the offerings having been so liberal the Guild wishes to show its appreciation of the generosity. A happy feature will be the burning of the mortgage on the rectory.

Universalists are making up a party in this country to attend the International Congress of Religious Liberals to be held in Berlin, Germany in August. The tour will be of fifty-two days th ough England, Holland, Germany, France and Belgium, leaving Boston, on July 13th. It will be a fine trip as well as an inexpensive one and several Quincy people are interested.

QUINCY MEN ENTERED

In the South Boston A. C. Meet Tonight

Quincy will have its best athletes in the South Boston A. C. meet this evening at the Mechanics building—Marceau, Gram, Bruce and others. The Post says of the mile run:

"Both Ballard and Marceau have shown form in the preliminary meetings, and both are prepared to run the race of their lives. Ballard has run close to the 4:20 mark for the journey, and from the form that Marceau has been showing at the B. A. A. board track on Irvington street local followers are of the opinion that the former Quincy High school crack will take his measure.

C. W. Gram, a Quincy High boy, is representing the B. A. A. in the 40-yard dash handicap, with a handicap of two and one-half yards. About 100 are entered for this event.

Frank Bruce of the Italian-American A. C. is one of 21 entered for the five mile run.

BRIEFS

Rev. John J. Coan has purchased for the St. Frances church at Houghs Neck the Red Lion cottage and adjoining land of George W. Morton.

Administration was granted at Probate court this week on the estates of Jeremiah Sheahan of Quincy, and Thomas J. Shortle of Quincy was appointed administrator of the estate of Thomas H. Shortle late of Sandwich, N. H.

The committee for the banquet of the West Quincy Improvement Association are S. B. Little, R. J. Teasdale, John F. Burke, A .E. LeClair, John Evans, John Casey and Frank Dufour.

Senator Tinkham and Senator Parker are setting the example for all Boston senators of wearing large tortoiseshell spectacles, and Senator Hultman, Quincy, is also one of uplifters, pronouncing this style the most comfortable he has ever known.—Boston Record.

The ladies who have attended social affairs at Alpha hall in the new Kincaide building say that Col. Kincaide must be a most gallant gentleman because of his thoughtfulness of lady patrons as demonstrated by the row of large mirrors along the entrance walls. Ladies do appreciate mirrors when hats have to be adjusted.

—It is asserted by retail grocers who have been interviewed by the New York Journal of Commerce that, taking out butter, eggs, cheese, poultry and meats, the cost of what goes on the table is less now than it was a year ago. Assuming this to be a fact, it is worth noting that the excepted articles might all be lowered in price if more people would cultivate the land and raise in connection with such work more beef and pork-producing stock and more poultry. The time is coming when there will have to be more farmers. Another thing that is worth noting is the assertion that one great reason for high prices is that people are now calling for a higher grade of goods and are using more of the luxuries than they did five or ten years ago. One grocer who was interviewed thought grocery bills would be lower if the women were as keen for bargains in that direction as they are in picking up "snaps" in the dry goods and kindred lines. Certainly every one is entieled to his or her opinion as to what makes the cost of living so high.—Banker and Tradesman.

Why Metal Melts Quick on a Cold Day.

The reason why metal can be melted in a cupola quicker on a cold day is because the draft from the blower usually comes from the outside, where the moisture has been frozen out of the air, says Castings. When cold the air is more dense, and with each revolution of the blower the cupola gets an increased number of pounds of oxygen with less than the usual amount of moisture, conditions which tend to produce a hotter fire and more uniform working.

WATERLOO AT NEWTON

Quincy High Not at Home With Heavy Weights

The first defeat of Quincy High was registered yesterday when the basket ball team journeyed to Newton, the score being 32 to 13 in favor of Newton.

Quincy was ahead 11 to 8 in the first half. Manning attempted to climb up wall and fell over a fellow's shoulder onto the floor. Although he stayed in the game until nearly the end of the second half, he was unable to put up his usual game.

The much heavier weight of the Newton boys began to tell in the second half. One basket was shot in the first part and then the rest of the half was spent vainly trying for another cage and the score stuck at thirteen. Whether because of the number thirteen or not, the boys seemed to have a number of misfortunes during the game. For instance, the local team wanted fifteen minute halves and Newton twenty. On the toss up, those in favor of the twenty minute halves won. Then Billy Manning got nearly knocked out.

Newton put up a very good game, but there were several causes that helped toward the defeat. In the first place, the floor had not originally been planned for such games. Then one of the baskets was much better than the other.

Quincy got the most of her points from this one when she had it in the first half. Newton also made a big jump in her score at this one. Nearly every man on the Quincy team was much lighter. Harmon's man had more than twenty pounds heavier weight. This man with Billy Manning's opponent were Newton's weightiest men. The couplet were able to score more points than the others. So much surpassed in weight, some of the team rather lost their heads.

Mel Chapman undoubtedly played the best game for Quincy. Wood and Cady were the stars for Newton.

The summary:

NEWTON	QUINCY
Cady, rf	lb, Harmon
Osborne, lf	rb, Chapman
Fuller, c	c, Pout, Arthur
Wood, rb	lf, Manning Chapman
Merrill, lb	rf, Bates

Score, Newton 32, Quincy 13. Goals from floor, Cady 6, Osborne, Fuller 2, Wood 5, Bates 3, Manning. Goals from fouls, Cady 4, Bates 5. Referee, MacPherson. Umpire, Gourlie. Scorer, Miller. Timer, W. Smith. Time, 20m periods.

It is expected a return game will be played Feb. 22. On their own floor the boys hope for success, although they recognize that they must put up a pretty classy game. This game will be well worth seeing for it will be a hard struggle.

About thirty went to the game from Quincy.

Manager Smith is trying to get the Lynn team here for Feb. 18. If they accept this will fill up the open dates.

The new officers of the Central Labor Union were installed Thursday night at Wilson's hall. August Seaver, teh editor of the Wage Earner, addressed those assembled.

BASKET BALL AT WOODWARD

Class of 1910 Wins the Series With Class of 1911

The second basket ball game at the Woodward Institute for the perpetual cup, between the classes of 1910 and 1911, was played Friday afternoon and the Class of 1910 was again victorious, winning by a score of 25 to 15. This finishes the series between these two classes. The next two games will be between the Classes of 1912 and 1913, and the winners of this series will play a series of games with the class of 1910, which will decide who holds the cup. The lineup in Friday's game were as follows:

1910—Moorhouse, Bean, Baker, Laing, Murray and Halloran.

1911—Melville, Hardwick, Cain, Mullen, Ekstrand and Curtin.

SPORTING NOTES.

Tonight at the Y. M. C. A. the Quincy first and second teams have basket ball games with the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. teams.

To Make Farmers of Indians.

In connection with the new plan for administering Indian affairs the department of the interior will ask for an appropriation from the present congress with which to establish model farms on all of the reservations where agricultural pursuits are practicable. It is planned to place these farms in the hands of expert agriculturists and horticulturists, who will instruct the Indians in all branches of farming The department already has taken steps to deprive the Indian landowners of direct control of the money derived from renting their holdings to the white settlers by requiring that this money be held in trust by the Indian commissioner, to be turned over to the Indians for such improvements as are deemed advisable. This order was made to suppress the leasing system on reservations and to compel the Indian to cultivate his own land.

Superior Court Norfolk, ss.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk.

Respectfully libels and represents Giovanni Corti of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, that he was lawfully married to Guiseppina Maraggio Corti now of Providence in the State of Rhode Island, at Boston on the ninth day of November A. D., 1902, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Guiseppina lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Boston, Quincy and Milford, New Hampshire; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Guiseppina Corti being wholly regardless of the same at Milford, New Hampshire on the eighth day of September A. D. 1903 utterly deserted your libellant, and that said utter desertion has continued to this day, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Guiseppina Corti.

Dated the eighteenth day of September A. D. 1909.

THE QUINCY DAILY LEDGER

PUBLISHED IN THE CITY OF PRESIDENTS

Vol. 24 No. 20 QUINCY, MASS., MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 24, 1910 PRICE TWO CENTS

$22,000,000 CONTRACT

Quincy Firm Successful in Securing Two Argentine Battleships to Build

Rah for Quincy!

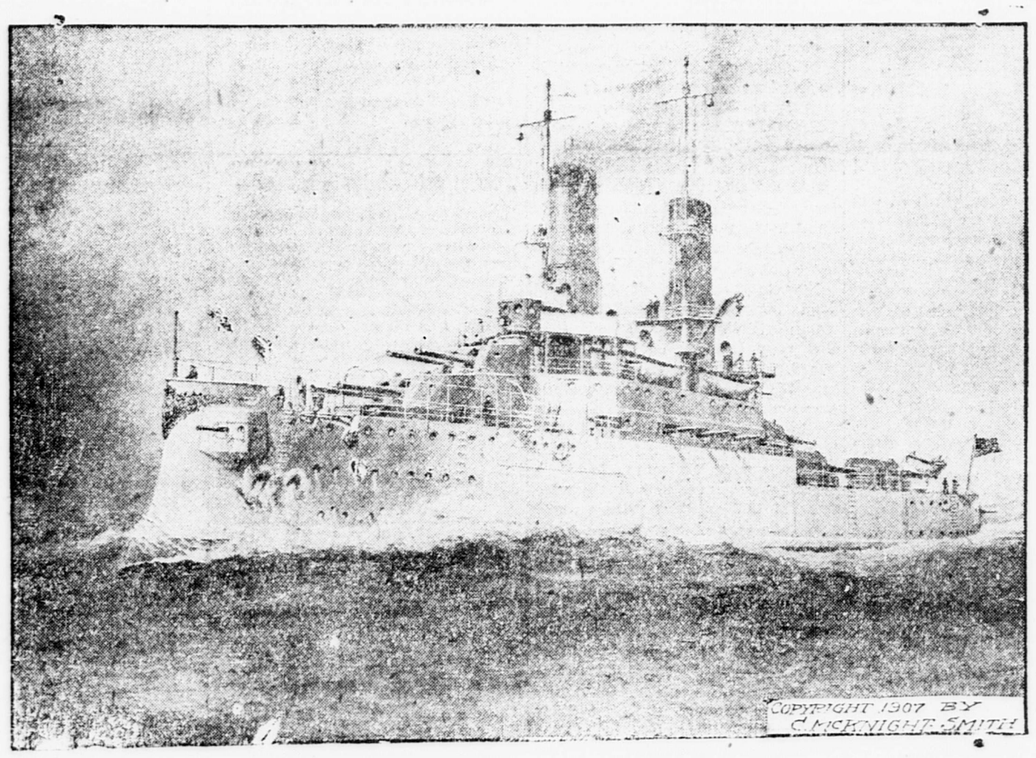
Rah for the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.!

Rah for America in competition with foreign skill and labor!

The good news is confirmed!

It is now a certainty that the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., has been awarded the contract to build the two 28,000 ton battleships for the Argentine Republic. Confirmation of the expected award of the contract was received by Secretary S. T. MacQuarrie early Sunday morning in a cablegram from President Francis T. Bowles, in London, and he immediately notified the Daily Ledger.

Aside from the award of the contract for building the two largest battleships in the world it is quite a feather in the cap of the Fore River Company that its designs and bids were given the first place in a world-wide competition. As the vessels must be completed in two years it means steady employment for this period of a large number of men. Just how much of an increase in its present force cannot as yet be told, but doubtless it means a material increase. As soon as the cablegram was received Mr. MacQuarrie lost no time in notifying the officers of the company and the newspaper men of the city, and his telephone line was kept warm for a time. The cablegram stated in addition to confirming the award that the contract would probably be signed on Tuesday.



BATTLESHIP NORTH DAKOTA

QUINCY DESIGNS.

The designs and machinery for both ships will be made at the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., but the hull of one vessel will be sublet to the New York Shipbuilding Co., of Camden, N. J.

The naval commission of the Argentine Republic had recommended that the Fore River Shipbuilding Company be awarded the contracts, on account of the plans presented and the bid submitted. The council of ministers later ratified the recommendation of the commission.

VERY SHORT TIME.

The contract calls for the completion of both ships in 24 months' time, and this manner of subletting one ship will guarantee that part of the contract.

Both ships will be equipped with Curtis turbines. These will be built at the Fore River works. They will have three shafts and three propellers, instead of two, as the Curtis turbines have previously had. The engines will have an indicated horsepower of 40,000 and are expected to develop a speed of 22 1-2 knots an hour and a steaming radius of 4000 miles at a 15-knot speed.

MANY PLANS.

When the proposal came the Fore River Company was asked to submit plans for a 20,000-ton battleship and these plans were prepared. Later the Argentine Republic government desired plans for a 28,000-ton ship and the plans were completed in one week's time.

President Bowles went to Buenos Ayres in July last and from there to London, where the Argentine Republic naval commission was sent to get bids from European ship builders Plans and bids were submitted by 25 English, French, German and Italian firms.

NATIONAL IMPORTANCE.

The award to an American company is an event whose importance cannot be valued without an understanding of the fact that it is the outcome of perhaps the sharpest and most prolonged competition ever made for a big warship contract, and that it was won after the foremost foreign builders, who had a practical monopoly of such contracts, had tried and failed to equal the American plans or the American prices.

BIG LABOR ITEM.

Incidentally, this contract is no slight item to the labor interests of this country. Of the $22,000,000 to be paid for these ships, not more than 10 per cent, will be paid out for raw materials. Nearly $20,000,000 will go to workmen preparing the materials. Differently put, the labor cost of these ships will be equivalent to three years' work for about 10,000 men at $2.25 a day.

How keen the fight was, first in London, where the Argentine naval commission received the first bids early in March, 1909, and later in Buenos Ayres, where the representatives of the bidders besieged the Argentine ministry of marine was outlined by Manager Smith. The first set of bids was competitive, each bidder offering his own design and price. As a result of the competition the Argentine naval commission gave first preference to the design of the Fore River company and announced that all American bids were for lower prices than those of the European bidders.

EQUAL TO EMERGENCY.

The plans were then worked over by the ministry, which issued detailed specifications and called for new competitive bids, to be opened in October, and after the October bids were in the best plan from the bidders in each country, making five in all, were selected by the commission for special consideration. All but three sets of plans had been eliminated at the time the last bids were asked for, and at the end of the contest the Fore River plans and prices were again reported best, and the commission recommended the giving of the contract to that company.

A movement has been started to give a public reception to President Bowles upon his return from London, because he has brought to Quincy the largest contract ever received in this city.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

If it was some towns and a $22,000,000 contract had been received there would be the booming of cannon the ringing of bells, burning of red fire, and a general holiday of rejoicing. Not so in Quincy. Somehow we in Quincy seem to lack the energy to enthuse much over anything.

It is reported that a movement has been started to give a public reception to President Bowles of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company on his return from London. Some such recognition is certainly due to Admiral Bowles who has with great tenacity followed up successfully the big contract of the Argentine Republic. The reputation of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company in building the battleships Rhode Island New Jersey, Vermont and North Dakota; the high reputation of Admiral Bowles while in the United States navy; the great success of the Curtiss turbine engines, the gua antee of the company to complete the construction in 24 months, the kind offices of Secretary of State Knox, etc., etc., all helped to secure the $22,000,000 contract.

The Fore River Company had previously given Quincy considerable National if not world-wide prominence, but what shall we say now! President Bowles has set all the world to thinking, and captured a grand prize. Quincy should rejoice, for the shipyard will be a greater bee hive of industry than ever. Before the year is out the company expect the contract for another Dreadnought for Uncle Sam.

MODERN HAIR DRESSING

has played havoc with the tresses of the fair sex, and druggists everywhere comment on the fact that they are selling large quantities of sage for making the old-fashioned "sage tea," such as was used by our grandmothers for promoting the growth of their hair and restoring its natural color. The demand for this well-known herb for this purpose has been so great that one manufacturer has taken advantage of the fact, and has placed on the market an ideal "sage tea," containing sulphur, a valuable remedy for dandruff and scalp rashes and irritations. This preparation, which is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

DELIVERY OF LIQUOR

Lynn Judge Fines Teamsters of Boston Saloon

(From Lynn Item, Jan. 21)

Title to liquors purchased of Boston wholesale dealers and delivered in Lynn does not pass to the purchaser until delivery has actually been made, was the finding of Judge Lummus today, when he adjudged John Moshillo and Recco Nowello, teamsters in the employ of Filippo Bruno of 322-328 North street, Boston, guilty of illegally selling and illegally keeping liquor. On Jan. 25, when sentence will be imposed, Moshillo will be fined $150 and Nowello $100. There are three complaints against Moshillo, two for selling and one for keeping, while against Nowello are two complaints, one for each offence.

Atty. Richard L. Sisk will appeal from the decision of Judge Lummus, and, if necessary, the cases will be taken to the Supreme court of Massachusetts in the event that a decision in a parallel case now pending before that tribunal is not handed down before the Lynn cases are reached in the Superior court. H. R. Mayo represented the government.

Judge Lummus finds that the fact that the liquors purchased in Boston are delivered in Lynn, without additional charge, does not affect the question at issue, but concerns the question of transportation. The consummation of the sale does not occur, he finds, until delivery is actually made, and upon the opinion he adjudged the defendants guilty. His decision in full is:

JUDGE LUMMUS' DECISION.

Commonwealth vs. John Moshillo and Rocco Nowello. These are complaints charging the defendants with selling intoxicating liquors in Lynn and with exposing and keeping such liquor for sale in Lynn. The defendants are teamsters employed by one Bruno, a licensed liquor dealer in Boston. It is conceded that if the transactions hereinafter described were illegal, the defendants so participated in them as to insur liability. Com v Eggleston, 128 Mass. 408.

It was shown that the defendants carried into Lynn and delivered to various customers of said Bruno a large quantity of liquors appropriated and marked for said customers in a wagon belonging to said Bruno, marked "free delivery." Bruno sent some of these liquors in response to letters mailed in Lynn to him in Boston, enclosing payment which read substantially like the following: "Please find $2 in this letter and send me one-parter kego f ale at 60 pleasant street, Lynn."

Some of the liquors, however, were ordered and paid for in Boston by the customers in persn and the customers requested Bruno to send the liquors to Lynn by the defendants, which was done.

In the case of Com. v Carahar (May, 1908) in this court, I had occasion to consider St. 1906 c 421 and St. 1907 c 517 as to transportation "for hire or reward "into a no-license city. I came to the conclusion that a servant transporting liquors for a master, who had a right to transport them personally, did not violate the statutes against transporting for hire or reward, merely by the receipt of weekly wages (a point now before the Supreme Judicial court in Com v Raddochia;) but that the liability of the master and of the servant as well was to be tested by the question whether the master was engaged in t ansportation "for hire or reward" for another.

Where the master transporting the liquor is also the seller of the liquor if the title to the liquor can be conceived to have passed lawfully to the purchaser in a license city, the question whether the transportation by the seller to the purchaser in a no-license city, without any payment in addition to the purchase price, is transportation "for hire or reward" without permit and therefore illegal, depends upon whether the contract and fair understanding of the parties is that the price paid for the liquor alone, or the liquor plus transportation. That question is not necessarily settled by the form of language used which may be found to be a sham, and not to represent the real intent of the parties.

The present cases, however, raise no such question. The prosecution in these cases must prevail, if at all, upon the theory that the sale was not completed and title to the liquors did not pass until delivery to the purchasers in Lynn. On this theory Bruno and his servants were transporting Bruno's own liquors not for hire, but for Bruno's own benefit. The defendants contend that the title to the liquors passed to the purchasers in Boston when they were appropriated there to the filling of the orders, that the liquors were the property of the purchasers and at their risk from the time they left Boston, and that the delivery in Lynn was a voluntary act on the part of Bruno, not called for by the contract or understanding of the parties as a condition precedent to the passing of title.

While the completed sale of liquors in Boston and a subsequent voluntary and gratuitous transportation of them by the seller to the purchaser in Lynn is legally conceivable, there is nothing in the facts of the present cases to justify me in inferring that such was the intention of the parties. The written and oral orders of the purchasers to Bruno all contemplated delivery in Lynn, and the presumption is under the common law and under the sales of goods act that the title was not intended to pass and that the goods were not to be at the risk of the buyer until delivery in Lynn. Com v Greenfield, 121 Mass. 40; Com. v Eggleston, 128 Mass. 408; Com v Burgett, 136 Mass 450; Com v Huga, 164 Mass. 157; St. 1908 c 237 sec 18, rule 5.

To overcome this presumption it must be shown that both the seller and the buyer really intended the title to pass in Boston, so that all the consequences of such passage of title would follow. The general hope or desire on the part of Bruno to avoid illegal conduct is wholly insufficient to overcome that presumption and there is little or nothing more in the case. The words "free delivery" on Bruno's wagons indicate nothing as to the time of passing title, but only that the price is the same whether the goods are to be delivered or not—a point that might be material in a transportation case, but that has little tendency to show a passage of title before delivery in Lynn.

Defendants found guilty and fined $50 on each complaint upon Jan. 25, to which time the cases are continued.

LARGE SIX-MASTER GOES TO PIECES

Captain, His Wife, and Crew Rescued by Brave Fishermen

Edgartown, Mass., Jan. 24.—Schooner Mertie B. Crowley, one of the few six-masters flying the American flag, is a total wreck on the reefs off the southeast end of Martha's Vineyard island.

Already the Crowley has broken in two and great seas are fast making smithereens of her once stout timbers. She was bound from Baltimore for Boston, with coal.

Mrs. Haskell, Captain Haskell and the crew of thirteen of the Crowley were rescued in the most daring manner by Captain Levi Jackson and his stout-hearted crew of four men on the fishing boat Priscilla from Edgartown. Using both steam and auxiliary motor, and luffed by the Viking, another local fisherman, the boat was forced through the heavy seas that had beaten back other would-be rescuers, and upon reaching the Crowley's wreck the dories were launched, each rowed by one man. Into the dories Mrs. Haskell and the others sprang from the schooner's side, and all were safely taken aboard the Priscilla.

The skipper's brave wife, like the others, had been lashed for ten hours to the rigging of the battered schooner, the hull of which was entirely submerged and broke in two.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST

NOT GOOD REASONS

Why Montclair Should Not Have a Schoolhouse

Editors Daily Ledger:

I was somewhat amused in reading in the Ledger of Tuesday, January 18, the column under the heading of "Letters of Public Interest," in which Rufus B. Tobey, chairman of the Wollaston School House Committee, sets forth his views on why Wollaston should have a schoolhouse, and Montclair should not. I say his views, because I do not believe that he is voicing the sentiments of Wollaston when he is be-littling Montclair, and not setting forth any reasons why Wollaston should have a schoolhouse.

The writer bases his argument,—first on a mirror and a hammer and a four-room schoolhouse; second, on ancient history; third on sawdust and shavings; fourth "Wollaston must have a schoolhouse;" fifth, cast-off clothing.

Are these reasons why Wollaston needs a schoolhouse? In answer, I will say, "No," even though the chairman of the Wollaston Schoolhouse Committee says so, but I will say again that he is not representing his people when he is basing his arguments on these facts.

In answer to his first argument, I would say that the hammer is used in the construction of a schoolhouse, and a mirror is placed there after the building is completed, hence no reason for the schoolhouse.

In answer to his second argument, the wants of ancient history is not a reason.

In answer to his third argument, If he has been using sawdust and shavings for his diet, is also no reason.

Fourth, "Wollaston must have a schoolhouse"; no reason given by him.

In answer to his fifth argument, I would say that we have never asked for any garments which he has in his "well kept family," as he terms it. We can take care of our own garments.

Now, to the people of Quincy, I would say we have no motive in getting a schoolhouse any larger than that recommended by the School Board, who say that the twelve-room school is necessary to take care of the overcrowded condition at the Atlantic, Wollaston, and Massachusetts Field schools.

What would Wollaston do if a schoolhouse were to be built there before one in Montclair? Where would they take care of the children while the one was being re-built in Wollaston? The answer is very simple, house, them in the Montclair school.

It is not my intention to criticise the want of a schoolhouse in Wollaston, or that of any other section of the city, but rather to favor it, because of the unsanitary condition due to age, and not from any reason set forth in Mr. Tobey's letter, and I voice the sentiment of Montclair in saying what I do.

In no sense of the word do we want to use criticism against the people of Wollaston, as Mr. Tobey has at Montclair.

People of Wollaston, you certainly deserve congratulations on the work you have undertaken, and I heartily believe you have been misrepresented through your chairman in the ridicule he has placed upon urgent and just needs of our community.

Frederick J. Kessler,

Chairman Montclair Improvement Association.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Evangelistic Meetings Opened by the Presbyterians.

The first of the special evangelistic meetings to be held at the Water Street Presbyterian church during the next two weeks was held Sunday morning. The services are being conducted by Rev. C. T. Schaeffer, one of the J. Wilbur Chapman evangelists, Rev. M. Schaeffer is not only a powerful, but an interesting and convincing speaker, and large audiences are sure to greet him during his stay in Quincy.

Meetings are to be held every afternoon at 4 o'clock for boys and girls. In announcing these meetings Sunday morning the speaker said the question had often been asked as to the age limit for those attending these meetings. There was an age limit. Everybody from knee high to a grass hopper 116 years was welcome.

C. T. SCHAEFFER.

The opening was conducted by the pastor, Rev. James Matherson, who in introducing Rev. Mr. Schaeffer said he was an old friend. Rev. Mr. Schaeffer read the scripture lesson from the 3d chapter of First Corinthians, and his text was the eleventh verse of the same chapter—"For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ."

He said he thought he knew what God meant when he spoke about foundation and geology, but he never appreciated it until he visited Colorado, when climbing the lofty mountains he looked down into the bowels of the earth. Then he said God surely laid the foundation. What a glorious sunshine there was in Colorado for 365 days every year. All cannot go there, but all can live with God Almighty, where ever you are. He told of climbing the mountains in Colorado and of the dark nights and the awful stillness of these nights. Has there not come dark nights to you as you have stood by the open grave, and you have said, there is no more sunshine for you. We cry, Oh! God how long, and the voice in the soul answers, "The Morning Cometh." There has never been a night that there has not been a breaking. The coming of the morning on these mountains was beautiful. No matter where you go or what you do it is God everywhere. Yet how many are there in Greater Boston who are living as though God did not exist. How many are there today at home reading the papers or sporting as though God did not exist. There are those who act as though God had gone a long way off and had forgotten them. There are those in Quincy whom we call respectful, honest and moral who today are looking into the face of God and saying, "You go away back and sit down."

The great Brooklyn bridge was built on the foundation God had laid. Do not ask people to join the church. We want to ask them to join Jesus Christ. This idea of lassoing a man or woman into the church for social prestige is wrong. We want them to come by the grace of God. Why is it we are not after the practical things in religion. It is a shame we do not pay God's teachers in the schools more for their work. A child in school must begin at the foundation. That's just what we are talking about. Begin with the A B C. They do not do so now. That is the reason so many High school pupils cannot spell. You must begin at the beginning and grow up step by step. So it is with religion. We must begin at the foundation and grow step by step. May we go forward day by day, studying the great book into glorious higher things. If you find your life pointing the wrong way I beseech you to change your sign board.

A special service for boys and girls was held at 3 o'clock, and a general service in the evening. The evening service was preceded by a short song service at which the Alexander hymns were used.

AT ST. MARYS.

Masses were said at St. Mary's church at 6.45, 8.00 9.15 and 10.30. Sunday school at 2 P. M. Masses were said by Rev. Fr. Grady and Rev. Fr. Duffy, aided by the regular choir. At the 9.15 Mass Rev. Fr. Duffy gave a short sermon. He said: When in years ago the Lord of the vineyard went forth looking for men to work in his vineyard he came at the first hour among many idle men. He said, "Go ye and work in my vineyard and ye shall receive one penny for your work. Then at the third hour he went forth and he saw men idle and he said, go ye to my vineyard and work and you shall receive a penny.

And so at the eleventh hour he did the same, and when work for the day was done he paid each man his penny, and the ones who were hired at the third and eleventh hour received the same as those who were hired at the first. One man among them, said, "My Lord do you think this is fair to give to him the same as was given to us after we labored all day, and the Lord said, "Did you not agree to work for one penny?" Well so did they, for many are called but few are chosen. So you see, dear brethren, in today's lesson, God has shown us that if those who are in sin today can get in grace with the Lord and receive as much as those who never committed sin, and I ask you to beware, for we know not when we will go and if you are not in grace with the good Lord you shall not receive the kingdom of heaven. Remember ye well these words: "Many are called but few are chosen."

The Ladies' Sodality will meet Tuesday evening at 7.45.

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg took for his text, Sunday morning: St. Matthew 5:14—"Ye are the light of the world." According to the Gospel of St. John, Jesus was the light of the world. But Christ could not remain in the world always, He must go back to the Father. Yet His work of saving souls must go on. How was the work to be done? By giving to the disciples a portion of His light. So Christ illumined the minds of His followers, made it possible for them to represent Him in the world. When He had made the disciples aware of His purpose, aware of His mission, He tells them that they are the light of the world. They are small reproductions of Him. If they truly show forth to the world His death until He comes then they are lights indeed.

There are many in our time who come into the church and become illumined with the true light, that lighteth every man that cometh in to the world. But there are a certain number ofevery hundred who allow their light to go out. The world does not get from some of God's professed followers the light that comes only thru Christ's worthy followers. St. John Baptist was a burning and a shining light. He knew God's work and he did it. There are many today in the church of God who cannot be called burning and shining lights. They have allowed their lights to go out. They have ceased to be agents thru whom the blessed Lord could shine. You must believe in Christ ,that He came out from the Father, that He came to save us from our sins; you must feel the need of such a Christ. Believing these things and knowing these things you must endeavor each day to live the life that He lived. When you begin to aproach this life then you will be the light of the world."

At the evening service the rector gave the seventh address in the course of addresses on the life of Christ, subject: "The miracles of Christ."

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

The annual business meeting of the Wollaston Unitarian society, organized Jan. 31, 1888, will be held in the vestry this evening. Supper will be served at 6.30, to which all the present members and all that will be voted in at this meeting are cordially invited.

Contributions placed in the boxes in the pews will be used for the running expenses of the church.

At the meeting of the Wollaston Y. P. R. U. Fred M. Rollins spoke on "Truth, worship and service." Vocal solos by Mr. Frauenfelder accompanied by Mrs. Moulton were enjoyed. Miss Dorothy Fay was in charge of the evening. The society is making plans for a neighborhood meeting at an early date.

The midweek service of worship at King's chapel (Boston) Wednesday, Jan. 26 at 12 o'clock will be conducted by the Rev. Charles E. Park.

The New England Associate Alliance will meet in the Channing church Newton, Mass., Thursday, Jan. 27. The morning session will open at 10.30 o'clock with greeting by the Rev. Albert L. Hudson. "Personal Responsibility "will be discussed and reports of the National Alliance departments given. At the afternoon session Rev. Theodore L. Bacon, Salem will give an address on "Our responsibility as mediators "and an address on "Freedom and responsibility "will be given by the Rev. Robert F. Seavens of Fitchburg.

TREAT FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Final Rehearsal of the Chimes of Normandy

The first production of "The Chimes of Normandy" by the Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, will be given tomorrow night in Music hall and all the final arrangements for the affair have been completed. Yesterday afternoon the final rehearsal was held and the finishing touches put on by the principals and chorus. After several weeks of rehearsing the opera has come into excellent shape, and as it is a musical composition of the highest order it is sure to be a treat for the music lovers of the city.

The scene of the opera is laid in France and the plot while rather complicated at times, is easy to follow if closely observed. The customs of the French peasants of years ago are depicted in the production, and present many interesting characters. John McGowan and Edward J. Sullivan will have the leading male roles, while Miss Helen Galvin and Miss Mary Lyons will take the principal female parts. All have had considerable experience in their line and are sure to be appreciated. William Wilson and Marcus Mahon will have the second male parts. They will be assisted by a mixed chorus of forty voices.

Tickets are on sale at all the drug stores of the city and will be on sale at the box office on both evenings of the performance. The first performance is tomorrow night and the second the night after.

Following is the cast of characters: Serpolette Miss Helen Galvin; Germaine, Miss Mary Lyons; Gertrude, Miss Josephine McCarthy; Jeanne, Miss Rina Bizzozero; Mannette, Miss Gertrude Reardon; Suzanne, Miss Gertrude Crowley; Henri, Edward J. Sullivan; Jean Grenicheux, William Wilson; Gaspard, John McGowan; Bailli, Marcus Mahon; Notary, Harry McGrath; Registrar, John Heaney; Assessor, Henry Magee.

John Mahon is the accompanist and he will be assisted by a full orchestra. Daniel E. Bowen of Boston is the director of the production, and his success with "The Mikado" last spring is good evidence that this production will be a success. Edward P. Histen is looking after the stage effects and the business end of the show, and he has considerable experience in this line, which is standing him in good stead.

LAND FOR INDIAN BABIES

Agent Webster Says It Has Resulted In Increase In Birth Rate

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 24.—"Everything is running along smoothly on the reservations and all the Indians are in unusually good health," said Indian Agent Webster of the Spokane-Colville reservation, stationed at Fort Spokane.

"Since the scheme for the allotment of lands went into effect the birth rate among the several tribes has increased markedly. Every Indian baby at birth is allotted either eighty acres of plough land or 160 acres of grazing land, and this fact seems to have spurred the Indians to take up the Roosevelt idea of anti-race suicide."

HEINZE BILL FOUND ILLEGAL

Expert Accountant Was In Jury Room Without Right

COURT QUASHES INDICTMENT

Decision Considered Important, as Morse and Walsh, Bankers Now Serving Sentences, Were Convicted Under Circumstances Which May Have Been Prejudicial to Rights of Defendants In Two Noted Cases

New York, Jan. 24.—Judge Hough, in the United States district court, sustained the demurrer filed by John B. Stanchfield in the case of F. Augustus Heinze, and quashed the indictment against the banker, who was charged with misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National bank. Judge Hough said:

F. AUGUSTUS HEINZE.

"The common law is that a grand jury, while deliberating, shall listen to witnesses who give testimony, and to no one else, except the authorized law officers of the commonwealth.

"When this indictment was under consideration in the grand jury room, John P. Fernster took part in the proceedings to the extent of asking some technical questions of other expert accountants, and throughout suggested the method of examining expert witnesses thought to be allied with the defendant."

Fernester is an expert accountant, not a lawyer, and was not retained by the prosecution as counsel.

"This may be a good system," continued the court, "but it has not been adopted by law. It has never been urged before that counsel is entitled to have at his elbow in the grand jury room an expert assistant."

The decision is considered important, inasmuch as this same accountant or another, equally disqualified under this decision, was, it is reported, employed before the federal grand juries which indicted Charles W. Morse and John R. Walsh, the convicted bankers.

The ground for the court's action was that mainly urged by Heinze's counsel, that the presence in the grand jury room of John P. Fernsler, an expert accountant, in any capacity except that of a witness was prejudicial to Heinze's legal rights.

After Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Morse, had read Hough's decision, he said:

"It has been brought to my attention that the method by which the indictments (against Morse) were procured included the service before the grand jury of a non-professional official, designated by the federal government.

"If I can establish similar facts in the case of my client, I shall move that no valid indictment was found against him.

"But whether I can establish such facts or not I expect within thirty days to apply to the federal court in Atlanta for a writ of habeas corpus."

Taft Wants New Battleships

Washington, Jan. 24.—At a conference with Chairman Foss of the house committee on naval affairs and Representative Roberts of Massachusetts, a member of the committee, President Taft announced that he favors a provision for two new battleships of the improved dreadnought or "all-big-gun" type, in the forthcoming naval appropriation bill.

Root to Represent Uncle Sam

Washington, Jan. 24.—Senator Root of New York will be the leading counsel for the United States in the Newfoundland fishery arbitration case, which will come up for argument before The Hague court next June.

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water.

Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.

Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . .

at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

MEAT BOYCOTT IS PROCLAIMED

Will Begin In Boston at Midnight Next Saturday

ENTHUSIASTIC MASS MEETING

Representatives of Great "Middle Class" Gather In Such Numbers That Old Faneuil Hall Proves Too Small to Hold the Crowd—State and National Action to Reduce Prices of Food Urged In Resolutions

Boston, Jan. 24.—The beef trust was rocked in the "Cradle of Liberty" and roasted to a finish. Ancient Faneuil hall was packed to the doors with indignant citizens protesting against the high price of food.

An enthusiastic crowd, obviously of ordinary conservative nature, hurled protesting jeers at the beef trust and applauded thirteen ringing speeches of denunciation.

Resolutions were adopted, by every man and woman rising, demanding that the state and national governments act to reduce the cost of living to "a reasonable level" and enforce the criminal and civil laws against monopoly. At the very end the audience voted to begin a meat boycott in Boston at midnight next Saturday. A committee was appointed to carry on the war to the end.

The meeting was spontaneous. It was called as late as Friday afternoon by a committee of citizens. The announced purpose was a revolt against the excessive cost of the necessities of life. But the entire crowd turned loose its batteries upon the beef trust..

The people were in deadly earnest. While dozens were fighting to get the floor, every speaker had a respectful hearing. The program of speeches was smashed. So many clamored to be heard that those who finally got the platform were partly men whose names had not been on the original program.

In advance a committee of citizens had determined to have a meeting which would be expressive of the real level-headed sentiment of Boston. Their idea carried well. The audience was representative of the great "middle class," sprinkled here and there with men and women pathetically poor. It was a great, patient American gathering. Its resolutions were of the kind to compel attention.

An hour before the meeting the hall was half full. A quarter of an hour before it was due to begin, Max Mitchell, who presided, saw that few more could be seated and immediately decided to begin proceedings. Before he had fairly started, men were standing in the rear and at 8 o'clock people were streaming away from Faneuil hall because they could not get inside.

The result of the meeting was the adoption of the resolutions asking for action by the state legislature, the appointment of a committee of nine for the future conduct of the "beef strike" campaign from Faneuil hall as a base of operations, and the declaration of a boycott "against the eating of meat," which shall begin at midnight Saturday, Jan. 29.

Those who spoke included James B. Connolly, the novelist; Mrs. Susan W. Fitzgerald, secretary of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage league; Patrick H. Kelley, ex-Representative James A. Watson, M. H. O'Brien, vice president Boston Central Labor union; William N. Osgood, Rev. George L. Cady, pastor of Pilgrim Congregational church, and Thomas Riley, representative from Malden.

The committee appointed by the chairman to supervise future action and organize the movement for investigation of prices and advocate legislation, if necessary, is as follows: Samuel Hubbard, Meyer Bloomfield, W. H. O'Brien, John L. Bates, James P. Magennis, Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., Robert Woods and Edward H. Chandler.

Indictments Are Expected

Washington, Jan. 24.—Active preparations are under way for the presentation to the grand jury at Chicago of the government's case against the beef packers.

Without disclosing the exact nature of the acts questioned by the government it is authoritatively declared that there are three methods of attack which may be made against the packers. The ways are:

Criminal prosecution for violation of the anti-trust law; civil action for the dissolution of the National Packing company and contempt proceedings for alleged violation of Judge Grosscup's injunction restraining them from fixing prices in restraint of trade.

It is expected that the criminal prosecution will be taken first in view of the proposed grand jury investigation.

Head Crushed In Fall

Holyoke, Mass., Jan. 24.—Slipping while descending a staircase in a partially finished house George E. Bullock, 24 years old, fell the length of the staircase, carrying down with him several blocks of concrete. One of these crushed his head, killing him instantly.

BURNS ELUDES POLICE

Haunts Section of Boston In Which Active Hunt Is Being Pursued

Boston, Jan. 24.—Bennie Burns is the bogie man of the South End police. He is wanted on a charge of the murder of his pal, Jack Hurley, in an alley off Dover street two weeks ago. The police searched for him in all his haunts and reported that he had left the city.

But Bennie Burns or his ghost is walking the streets of the South End after nightfall. A man in the last stages of consumption, he is said to have declared that he will not be taken alive. He is supposed to have two guns.

Saloon keepers have served him drinks. Restaurant keepers admit that he has come in for food. And yet when the police go after him he is not to be found.

Burns and Hurley quarreled about a girl. The girl has fled the city, fearing a meeting with Burns.

DOES NOT MEET APPROVAL

Knox's Manchurian Proposition Rejected by France and England

Paris, Jan. 24.—After exchanges between the two cabinets, both France and Great Britain have decided to conform their answers to Secretary Knox's Manchurian proposition to those of Russia and Japan.

The two latter countries have declined the proposal for the neutralization of the Manchurian railways.

Although both Russia and Japan make reservation regarding the Aigun-Tsitsihar proposition, The Temps insists that the concession would be a violation of the Anglo-Russian convention of 1899 and the Chino-Japanese convention of 1905 and 1909, and consequently is certain of ultimate rejection.

FUNERAL POSTPONED FOR A FEW HOURS

Woman Comes to Life as She Is About to Be Buried

St. Paul, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Charlotta Willner, to all appearances, died in a dentist's chair. The body was taken to Jacob Rockstruth's undertaking establishment. The funeral was set for 3 p. m. two days later, but just before that hour she was pronounced alive by Isaac Deverman, undertaker's assistant and amateur hypnotist, who said he had brought her back to life by massaging her heart and by directing his will.

He proved to assembled friends of Mrs. Willner the reappearance of life by placing a mirror before the lips of the prostrate woman. The hearse and thirty carriages were dismissed suddenly by Mrs. Willner's friends, who had been summoned to see the signs of life.

Physicians were summoned to the undertaking establishment, and by dint of strenuous effort for the woman's resuscitation, her lips were seen to move and she muttered unintelligibly. Electrical instruments were applied. Flushes were seen to form beneath the electrodes, but this beneath the electrodes, but this soon ceased, and at 6 o'clock physicians announced that the woman was dead.

TO SIFT ALL CHARGES

Nelson Made Chairman of Ballinger-Pinchot Investigating Committee

Washington, Jan. 24.—Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Representative McCall of Massachusetts were elected chairman and vice chairman respectively of the joint congressional committee charged with the investigation of all the facts in the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy.

Authority was given to Nelson to confer with all of the principals thus far involved in the charges as to the scope they desired the inquiry to take and make arrangements for their representation by counsel.

The chairman announced also that all charges from a responsible source would be gven careful consideration.

HALL'S FRIENDS REMAIN LOYAL

Interest Centres In Disappearance of Bank Treasurer

"ANGEL" WAS HIS NICKNAME

Enjoyed Unbounded Confidence of Solid Business Men of Southbridge—Larceny of $21,000 Charged In Warrant In Hands of Police—Said to Be Mentally Weak and to Have Taken to Liquor Drinking

Southbridge, Mass., Jan. 24.—General interest in the affairs of John A. Hall, the missing treasurer of the Southbridge Savings bank, has changed from the bank's condition to the whereabouts of the man.

Those who enjoyed confidential relations with him declare they knew for some time that his mental condition was weak, his trouble being diagnosed as nervous prostration, but they believed he was recovering, although for a year or so they say he was in the habit of drinking secretly, and of late did not try to conceal it.

A local expressman says that last year, when the town was no-license Hall received a weekly consignment of liquors worth $25.

The state police have turned over the warrant charging him with larceny of $21,000 to the local police.

Those who believe the missing treasurer did not contemplate suicide find apparent support for their belief in the statement of Dr. Nunan that Hall submitted to a painful tooth treatment the day before he disappeared. He said at the time, Nunan says, that he was "going away for a day or two."

So far as the investigation of the town's books has gone, not a scintilla of evidence of the missing treasurer's dishonesty has been uncovered. While his methods have shown carelessness and conditions that admitted of dishonesty were he so inclined, nothing has yet been found to show that Hall misused the town funds.

Unless Hall used a system too deep for the average accountant to uncover unless after a long investigation, the town of Southbridge will lose nothing by the flight of its treasurer.

Although on the face of the situation, Hall's flight is construed as a confession, one rarely is confronted with such united confidence on the part of a man's friends.

"Angel" Hall they called him and openly used the nickname. They meant it as a term of respect. Hard-headed business men who have made their hundreds of thousands (and this town has quite a few of such men) still protest the treasurer's innocence.

ON EVE OF GRADUATION

Three Middies Dismissed From Naval Academy For Intoxication

Washington, Jan. 24.—President Taft has approved the recommendation of Captain Bowyer, superintendent of the naval academy, dismissing three more midshipmen on the charge of intoxication. The three dismissed men are first class men, practically on the eve of graduation. They are James M. Whitehead of New Jersey, Scott Lynn of Utah and Grover C. Clevenger of Missouri.

An extraordinary feature of the case is that the trio recently joined with the other first class men and proposed to Bowyer that they be permitted to work for the prevention of intoxication among the midshipmen.

ENGLISH PARTIES TIED

New Cabinet May Find Itself In Minority Within a Year

London, Jan. 24.—Never in the recollection of the oldest politicians have the British parties been in such a perplexing position as they find themselves today and are likely to face when the next house of commons is organized.

So evenly divided will be the membership of the next house, and so close in the popular vote, that the result of the elections for all practical purposes may be considered a tie.

All the prophets make the prediction that the new cabinet will find itself in the minority within a year, and that the country will plunge into another general election.

Found Dead In Bed

Boston, Jan. 24.—Frank D. Allen, a former United States district attorney, at one time a member of the Massachusettts legislature and later of the governor's council, was found dead in bed at his apartments in a Boston hotel. The medical examiner said heart failure caused his death. Allen was born in Worcester in 1850.

CORBETT IS FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

He Is at Once Arrested as a Fugitive From Justice

Providence, Jan. 24.—Joseph P. Corbett of Boston and Seekonk, Mass., was acquitted of the charge of killing Charles E. Randall, a money messenger of the Glenlyon Dye Works, one year ago and an attempt to get the factory payroll of $5000 in cash.

It was a highwayman's job, two men armed with shotguns holding up Randall and Miss Emma Dodge at Phillipsdale while they were riding in a sleigh with the money in satchels at their feet.

As soon as Corbett had been found not guilty by the jury, after a trial lasting a week, Deputy Sheriff Colvin arrested him as a fugitive from justice from Massachusetts.

He was arraigned in the district court and, pleading not guilty to being a fugitive from justice, was held in $3000 for future appearance. Bonds were furnished.

Detective Hodges stated that Corbett is wanted in Massachusetts on the charge of attempted arson in setting fire at 2 o'clock at night, Sept. 23 last, to the dwelling of Galvin Cady at Seekonk, Mass.

THAW DECLARED BANKRUPT

Property Valued at $40,000 to Pass Into Hands of His Sister

Pittsburg, Jan. 24.—That Harry K. Thaw is a bankrupt, and that his estate is subject to the United States bankruptcy law, is held by Referee Blair, who handed down an opinion upon the petition of Roger O'Mara, trustee of Thaw's estate, for leave to sell the bankrupt's real and personal property to his sister, Alice C. Thaw, at private sale.

The petition on hearing was opposed by New York creditors. O'Mara can now sell to Alice C. Thaw her brother's property, consisting of some real estate, scarf pins, books and old pictures, for the petitioned sum of $40,000.

LADY LYTTON QUITS CELL

Served a Week In a Liverpool Jail For Smashing Windows

Liverpool, Jan. 24.—Lady Constance Lytton, sister of Lord Lytton, who has served a week of a two weeks' sentence in Walton jail under the name of Jane Warton for smashing the jail windows, was liberated Sunday.

Lady Constance compelled the authorities to imprison her, so that she might prove her assertion that Home Secretary Gladstone's recent action in releasing her from New Castle jail on the official ground that she had a weak heart was really on account of her social position and the agitation aroused by the treatment of the women prisoners.

Old Baseball Player Dead

Akron, O., Jan. 24.—Sam Wise, aged 52, well known former league umpire and player and a member of the Boston National league club when that team won the National league championship in 1883, died at his home here from appendicitis.

Thought Metal Polish Was Liquor

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 24.—Thinking he was getting a taste of whisky, Henry Normandian, 13 years old, drank from a bottle of liquid metal polish and died soon after.

WEDDED AT FOURTEEN

Girl Wife's Husband Deserted Her and Eloped With Old Woman

Voluntown, Conn., Jan. 24.—The granting of a divorce to Mrs. Jennie Frebut, aged 17, has brought to light a most peculiar and unusual instance of the fickleness of man's affection.

On March 16, 1097, Miss Jennie Button, then aged 14 years, was married to Nelson Frebut at Centreville, R. I., and went immediately to work in a mill.

Just fifteen days later Mrs. Frebut went home from work and found that her husband was missing. She finally located him living in an adjoining town with a woman 82 years of age, with whom he eloped when he deserted his girl wife.

A score of well known people testified to the circumstances and the decree was granted on the grounds of desertion.

HUNDREDS ARE HOMELESS

Damage by Floods In France Promises to Be Very Expensive

Paris, Jan. 24.—The floods exceed all records and are fast assuming the proportions of a national disaster. In the north, east and west, hundreds are homeless and ruined.

At Paris, the Seine registers 7.40 metres. The normal height of the river at this season is 2.48. The torrent almost touches the arches of the beautiful bridges, threatening the destruction of these works of art. The Pont de l'Alma is in momentary danger and is guarded by police.

The sharp cold of Saturday led to the hope of abatement of the floods, but yesterday a heavy snowstorm set in, turning in the afternoon to rain, which is still falling. This aggravated the situation and caused great suffering to the victims.

THE SCHUMACHER MURDER

Naval Prisoner Says That He Can Throw Light on Mystery

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 24.—Although the New York authorities, District Attorney Wiedener and Sheriff Gillett are here with the necessary papers to take James E. Hall, a naval convict, back to Rochester, N. Y., in connection with the murder of Anna C. Schumacher, they failed to make the necessary arrangements with the government and must now wait till the secretary of the navy sees fit to release him.

Hall has three motives in notifying the Monroe county officers of the murder. He seeks to gain his release from the navy prison, to clear himself of the crime in Rochester cemetery and to get part of the reward of $500 which is offered for the arrest of the murderer. This he made known to the county attorney in a letter.

NEW LAW RECOMMENDED

Sentiment In Favor of Open Time on Deer In Massachusetts

Boston, Jan. 24.—Unless all signs fail deer may be legally shot in Massachusetts before the end of the present year. The legislature will be asked to consider a bill, or bills, providing for an open season on deer. Such legislation has been recommended by the two state boards most interested, that on fisheries and game and that on agriculture.

The two boards are of one opinion as to the need of reducing the number of deer in the state, which, through many years of protection—since the 60s—have multiplied until they number thousands and are a serious menace to crops and orchards.

Rev. C, E. Rydstrom of this city attended on Sunday the dedication services of the Swedish Methodist in Lynn, where he was formerly pastor. Ministers to take part in the services were: Rev. C. J. Wigren, Rev. C. E. Rydstrom and Rev. Samuel L. Carlander.

Quincy friends of Dr. and Mrs. A. Edward Logie of Millbridge, Maine, are extending congratulations to them, a son being born to them on Jan. 20. Mrs. Logie before her marriage was Mabel Ripley of West Quincy and the grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Ripley are sharing the congratulations.

Mrs. Vernon S. Brokaw is convalescing rapidly at the Elliot hospital, Commonwealth avenue, Boston, and is expecting to return to her home on South Central avenue this week. Many flowers have been sent her and she appreciates very much these tokens of affectionate thought.

Miss L. Buckley of Buckley street was on her way home from church Sunday and while walking along she came upon a short strip of ice on Crescent street. She slipped and received a bad fall which bruised her considerably. She was aided home by two women who were also on their way home from dent.

TWO STEAMERS LAUNCHED.

The two molasses boats, the Fife and Giezielo, built for the Porto Rico Mercantile Co., were successfully launched at the plant of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co. this morning. The first boat was sent over about 10 o'clock, and the other a few minutes later. There was no function at the launching and was witnessed only by the workmen. Neither boat had any sponsor. Some little difficulty was experienced in getting the boats off, as the block stuck and had to be split away with wedges before the boats could be launched.

BEQUEST OF $30,000

Quincy Woman Remembered by Her Uncle

Good fortune has come to Mrs. Sydney E. Gates of Town Hill and her daughter Mrs. Nellie Smith, now of New York as they are to benefit by the will of Mrs. Gates' uncle, who died at Kingston, N. Y., several weeks ago and generously remembered relatives and friends. Her uncle was a well known New York broker and was immensely wealthy. Mrs. Gates had not seen him for nine years and although she heard of his death she had no idea that she was to be benefited by his will until a few days ago, when she received word that she had been remembered. The news seemed too good to be true and she could hardly believe it until last week, when she received a letter from a New York lawyer confirming the story. The letter stated that the sum of $30,000 had been left to her and her daughter. Both are very happy over the receipt of the letter.

POLANDER WEDDING

Pecular Customs Result in Two Arrests

Antonio Dartznitz and John Ruliniti, two Polanders, residing in colony of Poles at Bradleys, North Weymouth, were arraigned in court this morning for assault on one John Mecubski. It appears that there was a wedding at the colony Satu day night which as usual ended in a row.

The wedding was to have been held a week ago, but the stormy weather prevented the beer from arriving and the wedding was postponed. The beer arrived in time this week however and the wedding was pulled off, and the usual row followed during which the head of Mecubski was split open with a glass. It is claimed that the two men arrested did the job.

They have a peculiar custom at Polander weddings which probably accounts for the row at the end. One of these customs is that every man who breaks a plate has to give the bride a dollar. In this case the bride netted $700. Another custom is to fill a tub with beer out of which the men drink as the beer is poured in. If the drinker allows the beer to spill on the floor he must contribute $10 toward the bride's present.

A man must therefore drink fast and long to keep the beer from overflowing. The result is that all get drunk, and when the beer is in the fighting instinct comes to the top and a fight ensues. This was the case Saturday night, and in this case the defendant named was the victim.

It is very difficult for the police to get evidence in these cases for the Polanders at Bradley's live in a colony by themselves, this section of the land being exclussive for themselves and no one but one of their nationality is allowed to enter the enclosure. When a row takes place unusual precautions are taken to prevent the police from being notified. In this case the shoes and clothing of one of the women were taken from her to keep her at home. The notice to the police finally came from a man who made his escape barefooted. The men were fined $25 each.

MIDNIGHT ASSAULT.

Frank Bandrick and Alfred Knight were arrested by Officer Crooker late Sunday night for threatening to assault Margaret G. Garrity. According to the story of the Garrity woman the two men came to house at 29 Brook road between 12 and 12.30 A. M. and inquired for Joe Garrity. She told them he was not at home. She says that they then threatened to kick the door in and to assault her and also called her bad names. Sunday morning she visited the police station and told her story and a warrant for their arrest was issued and given to Officer Crooker to serve. The two men were in court when the case was continued until Feb. 2.

—Mr. and Mrs. William F. Merchant of East Weymouth observed their golden wedding on Saturday.

MARCAEU WON MILE RACE

Good Work Also by Gram and Elcock

Quincy athletes took an unusually prominent part in the indoor games of the South Boston A. C. at the Mechanics Building on Saturday evening. F. R. Marceau won the mile run, Joe Elcock was in the semi finals of the 40-yard dash, and Gram made a sensational finish in the relay race.

The Globe says of the mile event: It was a good race for the entire final lap, and young Marceau did a fine bit of running to get by his sturdier rival. He went by on the pole, but there was plenty of room and he won by six yards, pulling up. Madden ran his race out.

On the second relay Harvard again showed to the fore, but a B. A. A. man was in the van at the end of the third relay. With a lap to go on the last relay, Merrihew, the Harvard man, set out determinedly after Gram and caught him on the first corner. Gram ran a bit wide and Merrihew tried to take the pole, and they both went down. Merrihew's momentum was the greater, and when both scrambled to their feet the Harvard runner was first under way and won by a scant five yards. The time, 3m 13 2-5s. closely approached the record, and had both runners kept their feet to the finish the old record would have been in danger.

The sensation of the five-mile race was created by William J. Hackett, winner of the Brockton marathon race, who, toward the end of the third mile, began running in a fashion that would indicate there was something wrong with his mental outfit. He staggered along, running all over the track, and when finally pulled off the track by the officials protested vigorously and gamely insisted upon finishing the race.

No one excelled the time of Joe Elcock in the trial heats of the 40 yard dash.

Y. M. C. A. VICTORY.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. basket ball five put up a fast game Saturday evening and won from Hyde Park 42 to 14.

The Quincy second team also defeated the Hyde Park seconds 41 to 15.

SPORTING NOTES.

At basket ball on Saturday the Milton Gym five defeated the Filene team 32 to 12.

Milton A. A. team lost to Fort Warren 11 to 7.

The game between the Madison A. C. of Charlestown and the Bryants was cancelled on account of the Bryants playing the night before and Cronin thought that it was to much on his men to play two nights in succession. There will be no game for the Bryants until Saturday night, when they will meet the Y. M. C. A. at Quincy.

The members of the Bryants certainly stood loyal to their member James O'Brien Saturday night in the prize waltz, when every man of the club went to Alpha hall and worked for him. He received in the neighborhood of 200 votes.

BRIEFS

Michael Curry of 8 Ashland street will propably lose the sight of one eye and it is possible that the other may not be saved. Mr. Curry was working on a stone and a steel chip flew from the chisel and went into his eye. He went immediately to the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

Supt. John T. Conway attended the ninth annual concert and ball of Brockton Division 235 of the Amalgamated Railway Employees of America, held in Brockton Friday night. President John Faircloth of the Quincy association was also present. Assistant General Manager H. E. Reynolds was ill and unable to attend but sent greetings.

In trading at home one knows the standing of those he is trading with and is sure of honest dealings. Honesty in make is what the buyer of an automobile wants and that is what he will get if he calls on S. Scammell & Sons, one of Quincy's oldest and best firms.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN

Two Hundred Members Wanted in 6 days

The Young Men's Christian Association of Quincy is keeping open house every day, this week, that all the men and boys of the city may see what the association has to offer. On Saturday evening a campaign to obtain 200 new members in six days was inaugurated, amid a like enthusiasm which started the campaign to raise the $25,000, and which promises to be as successful.

Ten teams of ten men each have been organized by the Young men now enrolled as members and Saturday evening they met for the opening supper. Each team had a table reserved for it, and soon there was a pleasant rivalry among them. The blessing was asked by Secretary Gay. The Ladies Auxiliary can always be depended on to help and a committee in charge of Mrs. E. R. Johnson served an excellent supper.

Charles W. Bailey of Wollaston is the general chairman. He considered more important than the raising of funds the interest enthused over the Y. M. C. A. among men of Quincy.

We were not fulfilling our mission, however, unless we go out for the ther fellow. This was what is now proposed in seeking 200 new members.

Secretary Gay said there was going to be fun in this campaign; the men had it, and the boys would too. We are out for a big thing. We believe in the Y. M. C. A. It is good for us; it is good for the other fellow. The Quincy association now has a fast running track and has started its swimming pool. These were described at length.

The speaker of the evening was Fred H. Retan of Newton, who had taken part in the campaign there. He regarded the association as one of the greatest up-lifts for men God ever permitted. It was particularly adapted for America. The wealth of the nation is in its men. They are the assets. He spoke at length of the duties of the association and possibilities of cooperation. It is the purpose to discover men and put them in higher relationship. To interest them; to build them up.

The captain of each team was then introduced and spoke briefly. The enthusiasm of D. King was contagious, and he aroused all present. On the wall back of the platform was a large clock to record the progress in obtaining memberships. Brooms were on platform to go to members of the team making the best showing on Tuesday evening, to be transmitted on Thursday night to the leaders, and so on. On Saturday night a big broom will be given to the successful team and also a beautiful silk and gold banner suitably inscribed. Buttons with the figures "200" will also be worn by the hustlers. Members of several teams got busy Saturday night and good reports are expected at the next supper on Tuesday evening.

BRIEFS

Mrs. Walter T. Babcock of Presidents hill returned Saturday from a visit of several months in the west.

The Barre Manufacturers' Association has rearranged its conference committee by making it all Barre men. A conference was held Saturday afternoon at which the cutters presented a new bill to extend over a period of five years.

John F. Sullivan of Copeland street who has been laid up with pneumonia for the past month is slowly recovering and will probably be out again soon.

Bartlett Beman, a Harvard class mate, was the guest over Sunday of Lucian H. Thayer of Willow street.

If you have not seen the comet look for it tonfght. It will be found in the western sky just to the right of the evening star Venus. The best time to see it is between 5.15 and 6 o'clock.

Quincy dogs were winners at the Lynn dog show last week for beside those already noted were: first Glover Derby, exhibited by Gustavus Glover; reserve, Marathon Miget, Mrs. F. E. Drake; third, Marathon Miget. Mrs. F. E. Drake; and first, Marathon Boy, Fred E. Drake.

Among the petitions offered in the House at the State House last week was one of the Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association to provide that a married woman shall be jointly liable with her husband for necessaries. This is an important bill for grocers.

THE JOYS OF BOBSLED RACING

An Exhilarating and Fascinating Sport Indulged In by Many.

WONDERFUL FAST TIME MADE

The Yankee, Winner of Race at Huntington, N. Y., Went a Mile In 37 4-5 Seconds—Switzerland the Ideal Place For Great Winter Sport.

In an early day, some time after the landing of the pilgrim fathers, but before one's waistband grew permanently great, there was a simple outdoor amusement known as "slidin' downhill." At that day sleds were roughly of two kinds, high sleds for girls and mollycoddles, who sat tremulously on the seat while some one started them with a gentle push, and low sleds for boys who took the hill with a run and flung themselves down on the sled. "Belly bumper" was the word to describe this method of descent. There were, of course, many variations of the simple sled.

What genius first got the idea of connecting two small sleds by a long plank history does not record. We are told that a bobsled is "a sled consisting of a body resting on two short sleds, called bobs, one behind the other."

In its early stages the bobsled was still crude. Often it was made from two old sleds and an ordinary board, and the carpeting of the plank was regarded as bordering on the effeminate. Even with these crude materials the simple sport of "sleddin' downhill" becomes exciting and even dangerous.

The real refinement of the bobsled has come in late years with the increase in the number of winter resorts whose attraction is cold fresh air and not warm fresh air. Switzerland makes a specialty of them, and in Switzerland the bobsled is a highly developed speed machine.

No longer is old fashioned foot and rope steering gear in use. That did well enough for the old timer, which was well loaded with half a dozen venturesome boys and girls. The new machines have steel bobs made for that purpose, with a specially arranged connecting board, which seats between sixteen and twenty-five, and it is steered by a wheel like an automobile. Even a searchlight has been added by one builder eager for novelty.

Races for these elaborately made sleds are a regular feature of the winter carnival at many resorts. In the east Huntington, N. Y., is the center of the sport, and there each year contests for speed and for the sled with the longest "fetch" are held. In fact, a big carnival is planned to be held in Huntington Jan. 27. Several prizes are offered, among them a gold cup valued at $250. The Yankee, owned by S. F. Townsend of Oyster Bay, N. Y., captured last year's event and established a record for a mile that will probably stand for some time, that of 37½ seconds.

In Huntington the course is especially prepared for the races. Water is sprinkled along the hilly road chosen for the contest, and it freezes until the route is glare ice. Start on a heavy grade over a course of this kind a sled built for speed and manned by a crew of sixteen taught to act as one, and you have the iceboat's greatest rival.

Owing to the inconsistency of the weather in this country a majority of people know very little of the possibilities of the sport. It is not until one gets over in Switzerland, in one of the valleys of that mountainous land, that one finds the sport of coasting carried to the highest point of perfection. It is there in the valley with the poetical name Engadine, at St. Moritz, that coasting becomes an art. In this valley, its floor as high above the level of the sea as the crest of Mount Washington, where winter reigns for half a year and people go to regain health, there is a slide nearly a mile long which has a descent of 550 feet. At some points in the course the sleds travel at the rate of eighty miles an hour. There is sport!

Skill has greatly reduced the time in which the course can be covered. In the early days the average speed was about thirty miles an hour. Recent winners of the contest have averaged, however, more than forty miles. On the straight run at the foot of the course a speed verging on eighty miles has been attained. The same kind of sport may be had with bobsleds, but the single racing sled is the favorite for coasting at St. Moritz. The sweep of a bobsled loaded with several persons around one of the curves is an exciting spectacle. The man at the helm, with eyes fixed ahead and muscles at high tension, keeps the front bob in its course. Those behind lean toward the inside of the curve, two or three of them digging into the snow with sticks, which throw up the snow behind like a cloud of dust. Like an express train it sweeps around the curve and is gone.

Indian Wrestler After Gotch.

John Middle Sky, a full blooded Indian, is the latest candidate for the world's wrestling honors now held by Frank Gotch. Middle Sky recently arrived in New York and announced that he wants a crack at the title. The Indian has done considerable wrestling in the last few years and has never lost a contest.

DAIRYING IN CHINA.

The Water Buffalo Leads the Cow as a Milk Producer.

The buffalo is China's best dairy animal. The Chinese cow is bred as a worker rather than for milk and beyond feeding her calf has almost lost her claim to being a dairy animal. A cow in China is seldom milked without the help of the calf. In Fuchau, a city the size of St. Louis, the few who would have pure cow's milk are supplied by a walking dairy.

The milkman leads his cow to the front door of the customer's house and in the customer's presence there milks the required measure. The ordinary customer takes no more than about a third of a pint. After one is supplied the cowman leads his cow and calf to the next customer and thus supplies his customers until his dairy's limited supply is exhausted. There are probably no more than half a dozen such dairies in Fuchau.

The water buffalo is used primarily for farm purposes, but it is milked to a limited extent and is China's best milk producing animal, with a milk fairly rich in fats. The Amoy foreign communities' demand for fresh milk is only partly supplied by several native so called dairies, each of which has two or three cows and several water buffaloes. The black goat probably furnishes the largest amount of fresh milk for the Chinese. White goats are scarcer in China than black sheep in America.—Chicago Tribune.

block of wood two inches thick, six inches wide and twelve inches long. The skate runner is adjusted to the proper height by one-half inch set and thumb screws. The block of wood holding the clamp and skate can be pushed along on the emery wheel table in front of the revolving wheel.

If properly adjusted a slight concave or hollow can be made full length of the runner true and uniform.

Great Interest Taken in Annual Meeting of the Parish Last Evening.

Advanced Recommendations Are Made by the Minister.

At the annual parish meeting and supper of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Monday evening the following officers for the ensuing year were elected:

President—Charles S. Adams M. D.
Clerk—Nathan S. Robinson.
Treasurer—Walter J. Wellington.
Parish Committee—Newell O. Parker, Edward J. Cummings, Rufus F. Leach, Roy C. Baker and David T. Whiton.

The church is in a most flourishing financial condition, the past year having seen the mortgage paid off and stands at present with a goodly cash surplus in the treasury and all debts paid.

The president, C. S. Adams, in his report spoke of the improvements and repairs since the last meeting and mentioned the necessity for revising the present constitution which has been in force since the society was organized 21 years ago.

Walter J. Wellington, who has been treasurer since the society was organized, read the report of that office, and Charls T. Baker answered for the mortgage fund. As chairman of the flower committee, Mrs. W. E. Rowe told of its work, and said that the past year, beside decorating the pulpit the flowers had gone into the homes of 47 different families. She also outlined the future plans of the committee.

The "Dial" the church organ of the society, was reported for by its editor, Mrs. E. J. Cummings. It was started in 1903 and now goes to 180 families in Wollaston.

Mrs. Frank A. Page spoke for the Earnest Workers Lend-a-Hand club, and told of the benevolent work it had accomplished since the last parish meeting.

Two reports were received from the Sunday school. The first by Frank A. Page gave statistics of the school which was well attended and has a competent teacher for every class. He put in a special plea for good attendance at the young men's class, the young ladies class and the kindergarten. Fred M. Rollins said that the school's standard of efficiency had been increased, and that the finances were in excellent shape. He told of the charitable work accomplished by the birthday money received from the scholars.

J. Harry Hooper, president of the Young People's Religious Union, read the report of that body. He told of its work the past year and of its plans for the future.

Miss Harriet E. Turner spoke for the Ladies Aid Alliance, and mentioned the excellent results that had attended the efforts of the ladies in a financial, benevolent and social way. She touched upon the death of one of its members, Mrs. Frank E. Parlin.

The minister, Rev. Carl G. Horst, gave a comprehensive outline of his work in the parish since coming from West Upton last January. Besides officiating at the regular and other services of the church, and parishioners he has presided and spoken at other public meetings and had served as chaplain of the National Sailors' Home. He recorded the loss to the society, the past year of the following members: Levi Carlton Ela, Mrs. Annie Catherine Field, Mrs. Martha D. Frost, and Mrs. Frank E. Parlin.

Mr. Horst submitted an important recommendation for the uplift of the community. "While I am fully persuaded," said Mr. Horst, "that primarily it is not the business of the church to carry on work of political and social reform, yet I do believe that our church, which stands not only for the worship of God but also for the service of man, should take a deep interest in whatever concerns the social welfare of the community. A church may not ally itself to any particular party, but what is to hinder it from appointing committee s on temperance, child labor, good citizenship and the like which can keep the society informed of what is being done in the way of social and public service."

Mr. Horst recommended the appointment of these committees, and that any others that desired to help should be invited to associate themselves in the work of any committee in which they are especially interested. "Each committee, said Mr. Horst, "should arrange at least one public meeting a year with a view to developing an intelligent public opinion, which is always the most effective weapon with which to correct civic and social abuses and bring about better conditions."

It was voted to refer these and other recommendations to the parish committee with the advice that favorable action be taken upon the same.

Fred M. Rollins was appointed the member of the executive committee of the Sunday School from the parish, and Mrs. W. E. Simmons and Mrs. C. S. Comins delegates to the American Unitarian Association. Important changes were made in the constitution of the society and a new set of constitution and bylaws substituted for the old.

Eugene H. Sprague moved the appointment of a committee of six by the chair to look into the feasibility of building a parish house or parsonage.

Preceding the meeting an excellent roast beef dinner was served. The blessing was asked by the minister. The folowing were the ladies serving: Miss Helen Foster, Miss Jennie C. Foter, Mrs. W. A. Bense, Mrs. H. C. Seymour, Mrs. George R. Thompson, Mrs. Samuel Chapman, Mrs. H. A. Boynton, Mrs. A. C. Armstrong, Mrs. Joseph M. Smith, Mrs. Clifton Baker, Mrs. Walter Baker, Miss Almira E. Simmons, Mrs. Nathan S. Robinson, Mrs. Roy C. Baker, Mrs. Newell O. Parker and Mrs. Rufus F. Leach.

LARGEST IN WORLD

Argentine Battleships to be 575 Feet Long

Both of the two great battleships for the Argentine Republic will be built on plans submitted by the Fore River Co. Each vessel will have three Curtis turbine engines. They will have an indicated brake horse power of 40,000, and will develop a speed of 22 1-2 knots an hour, and give the ship a steaming radius of 4 000 miles at 15 knot speed. Each ship will carry 4,500 tons of coal.

The new battleships, easily the largest in the world, are 575 feet long, 97 feet beam, and have a draft of 30 feet. They will carry twelve 12-inch guns, so arranged that eight can be fired ahead or astern at one time or all twelve can be fired as a broadside.

Some idea of how much larger these vessels are than the North Dakota is had when it is recalled that the North Dakota is but 510 feet long and 85 feet beam and has a draft of 27 feet.

LARCENY CASE.

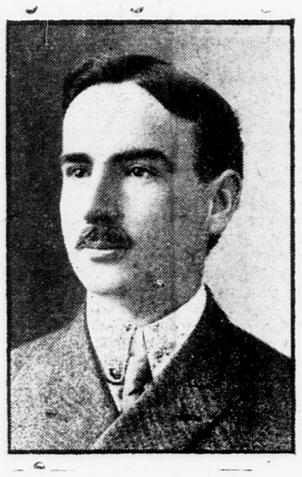
Abel D. Brown was arrested at Houghs Neck by Officer Phillips, Monday night for the larceny of a flight of steps, the property of Hazen E. Ricker. The steps were attached to a house at Post Island and were washed away by the recent storm and were found by Brown on the beach. He loaded them onto his team and was carrying them off when intercepted by Frank Nightingale. He refused to give them up, and his arrest followed. In court the case was continued until March 1. In the meantime the steps are to be returned and the costs of the complaint paid by Brown.

In a Montana hotel there is a notice which reads: "Boarders taken by the day, week or month. Those who do not pay promptly will be taken by the neck."

BRAINTREE COUNCIL

New Lodge of Knights of Columbus Organized

Braintree added another organization to its many Sunday afternoon when a council in the Knights of Columbus, to be known as Braintree council 1462, was instituted in the Town hall, in the presence of State officers and visiting members of the order, by Joseph P. Kelleher, D. D. S. G. K., of Randolph.



DR. SULLIVAN.

Braintree has long felt the need of a council in this well known order, for several residents who desired to join have had to secure membership in Randolph, Quincy or other towns. Dr. C. A. Sullivan, one of the leading physicians of Braintree, who is also secretary of the board of health, interested several residents who are members of out of town councils, and it was decided to form a council in the town.

A meeting was called for Sunday afternoon and the Town hall proved a mecca for visiting knights. During the afternoon twenty members were initiated and these with the transferred members will give the council a charter list of 50.

The first degree was exemplified by Grand Knight Henry Dunphy of Vera Cruz council of Randolph, assisted by Peter F. Hart, D. G. K.; James F. Kenney, chancellor; James E. Foley, warden; James F. Long, financial secretary, J. E. Rudderham, standard bearer, and Timothy J. Flannagan, Thomas McOsker, John F. Forrest and Charles Mahoney guards. The second degree was exemplified by Thomas A. Doherty of Avon assisted by the same officers.

After the degrees had been concluded addresses were made by State Deputy O'Brien, State Secretary Watson, and District Deputy Kelleher. Luncheon was served in lower Town hall by members of new council.

The headquarters of Braintree council will probably be in South Braintree. Dr. C. A. Sullivan is chairman of the organization committee and Edward Shay is chairman of the membership committee. Sunday the third degree will be worked on new members.

TODAY'S COURT.

Lucius Whitman was sentenced to three months in the house of correction for drunkenness at Quincy. Sentence suspended until July 1.

Charles Faxon was arraigned for a statutory offence at Quincy. Case continued until Feb. 15.

Abel D. Brown was arrested for larceny of a flight of steps at Quincy. Case continued until March 1, and the steps to be returned.

KILLED ON RAILROAD

Victim a Resident of Norfolk Downs

Clarence M. Tobin of 24 Rawson road, Norfolk Downs, was struck by the last inward train near the Norfolk Downs depot Monday night and instantly killed. The body was found by the train crew, who left it in charge of a brakeman. The train then proceeded to Atlantic where the station agent was notified.

From what can be learned the young man left his home to meet his sister, who was due to arrive on the last train from Boston. The inward train due to leave Quincy at 11.20 was late, so that it was about 11.40 before it reached the Norfolk Downs station. The night was very thick and foggy and it is supposed that the young man started to cross the track to the outward platform of the depot and on account of the fog did not see the approaching inward train. If he heard it he supposed that it was the outward train that was about due.

The point where the young man was struck was about ninety feet south of the street crossing, and the body was carried by the train to the northerly end of the station. As soon as the train was stopped the train crew pulled the body from beneath the tracks and placed it on a stretcher, and then went on to the Atlantic station, where the station agent was notified. There was no agent on duty at the Norfolk Downs station at that time.

So thick was the fog that the engineer of the inward train did not know that he had struck a man, and the fact of the accident was not discovered until the train came to a stop. The agent at Atlantic notified the police, and Medical Examiner Jones and the latter ordered the body removed to Hall's undertaking rooms.

Efforts were made Monday night to identify the man, and from two membership cards of the Squantum Yacht club found in his clothing it was supposed to be J. Clarence Tobin who resides at 24 Rawson road, a son of John F. Tobin, the well known Brockton labor leader.

This morning an uncle of the young man visited Hall's undertaking rooms, and while he did not view the remains he stated that there was no question but the young man was his nephew, Clarence M. Tobin. Arrangements were made to have the body removed to his late home. It is understood that the young man's father is in the west at the present time and he will be notified by telegraph. The young man was 19 years of age. The body was badly mangled.

Young Tobin was graduated from the Quincy High school in the Class of 1909 last June. He was a chum of Edward Poland and they were almost inseparable. The fatal accident was a crushing blow to his brother Alexander, who went out to investigate when his sister returned alone at midnight.

Also to his mother, two brothers, four sisters and an uncle. The father was in Wisconsin at the time, and has notified the family he will be home on Wednesday. Clarence was the youngest son.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

How many of the Daily Ledgers of Monday, announcing the contract for battleships, did you send to out-of-town friends? Why not spread the glad tidings?

The 29th of January will be the 68th anniversary of the birth of William McKinley, and "The Carnation League of America" will again do honor to this distinguished son of the Republic, and as a tribute to his memory will wear his favorite flower upon this, his natal day. There are cycles in the history of nations and of men, and forever associated with the name and fame of this republic will be the names of the three great martyrs to the cause of human and civic liberty, Abraham Lincoln, James A. Garfield, and William McKinley. Their lives are bright and illustrious with work and achievment, and they most fittingly exemplify the possibilities in the land of universal liberty.

There is a report that the Bethlehem steel plant will get a large slice of the Quincy contract for Argentine Republic battleships, but that is inevitable. Material which enters into the construction of any vessel is a large item, probably one-half the cost. But aside from the cost of material and the payment of $3 000,000 to the New York Shipbuilding Company, there will be $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 to be paid for Quincy labor in two years, about $10,000 per day. That in brief is what the Argentine contract means for Quincy and vicinity. There is immediate need of a large number of new houses in Quincy, if the city is to house the mechanics and obtain the full benefit of the big contract. Houses will be in great demand in a few weeks, and all lines of business will soon feel the benefit of the big contract. The United States will in a few months award contracts for two more Dreadnoughts.

It is important when a new basis of apportionment is to be made for Metropolitan imp ovements that Quincy should be prepared and take vigorous stand for justice. The nearer the basis keeps to the valuation of the different municipalities, as all taxes should be levied, justice will be done to all concerned. But in the past the rich towns like Brookline and Milton have introduced new issues, and have been successful as financiers. As a result when the assessments are levied there is a reduction in the rich towns and an increase in the less favored cities and towns. It is not the rich towns that should be favored if any discrimination is to be made.

These comments are prompted by a petition filed in the Supreme court Saturday by the Metropolitan Park Commission asking for the appointment of three Commissioners under Chapter 499 of the Acts of 1899, to determine the apportionment of the cost of the maintenance of the park system by the cities and towns benefited thereby for the period of five years from 1910 to 1915. An order of notice returnable April 5 was issued. The assessments will be levied on Boston, Cambridge, Chelsea, Everett, Lynn, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Newton, Quincy, Somerville, Waltham, Woburn, Arlington, Belmont, Braintree, Brookline, Canton, Dedham, Dover, Hingham, Hull, Hyde Park Milton, Nahant, Needham, Revere, Saugus, Stoneham, Swampscott, Wakefield, Watertown, Wellesley, Weston, Weymouth, Winchester and Winthrop.

FLOODS ARE RECEDING

Trail of Ruin Marks Their Wake In the Pine Tree State

Boston, Jan. 25.—Reassuring reports come from the many New England cities and towns which have been menaced by freshets of unusual volume. Everywhere the rivers are steadily falling. In New Hampshire the Merrimac is back nearly to normal height.

In Maine, however, where the floods were worst, the recession of the waters is plainly marked by their trail of ruin. The damage caused in this one state will reach well into the tens of thousands. The danger point, however, seems to have been passed everywhere.

Big Milk Firm Weakens

New York, Jan. 25.—The Alexander Campbell Milk company, one of the largest milk distributers in the city, announced that on Feb. 1 the price of milk would be reduced from 9 to 8 cents a quart.

Lynn to Have $225,000 Filter Plant

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 25.—The city council voted to adopt the report of the water board recommending a system of chemical mechanical filtration of the water supply, estimated to cost $225,000.

Bomb Throwing In Calcutta

Calcutta, Jan. 25.—Shamrul Sielma, a police officer who was prominent in unearthing the Midnapur bomb conspiracy, was shot dead in the high court here. The murderer, a young Bengali, was captured.

Life Preservers For Motor Boats

Washington, Jan. 25.—The senate passed the bill requiring all motor boats to carry life preservers. The bill provides a penalty of $100 for each omission.

War Wastes the Nation's Best Men.

By DAVID STARR JORDAN, President of the Leland Stanford, Jr., University.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN said: "Wars are not paid for in wartime. The bills come later." I will not dwell on the financial cost of war. I want to dwell on the effects of war on the human race.

IF OUR HEROES ARE KILLED OFF IN WAR THEY CANNOT BREED FAMILIES. THEREFORE WAR CAUSES REVERSAL OF THE PRINCIPLE OF NATURAL SELECTION.

* * *

When the BEST men are selected for destruction in war the CHILDREN OF THOSE LEFT BEHIND ARE NATURALLY WEAKER. While war does not affect women directly, it has its effect in another way, because a FIRST CLASS WOMAN WILL NOT MARRY A SECOND CLASS MAN after the first class man has been sacrificed.

* * *

THE FALL OF ROME WAS DUE TO THE WARS THAT KILLED OFF THE ROMANS. And the same can be said of the downfall of Greece and many other nations. France would have been greater today had the Napoleonic wars not been fought. Look at the decrease in stature of the French people today over the French people before the first consul offered up so many men as the price he was willing to pay to gain his personal ambitions. England suffers less than the other nations in this respect because her sons have gone all over the world and renewed the race in other climes. The wars fought in this country have LEFT THE MARK ON THE PEOPLE.

Guizot once asked James Russell Lowell how long the republic would endure, and Lowell, answering, said, "Just so long as the principles of the founders endure." To this I would add:

THE REPUBLIC WILL LIVE JUST AS LONG AS THE BLOOD OF FREEMEN RUNS IN THE VEINS OF THE DOMINATING SECTION OF THE POPULATION.

WHO WILL GET BROOMS?

Y. M. C. A. Boys Hard at Work in Campaign

The teams of the Y. M. C. A. will meet tonight to make their first reports in the six-days campaign to secure 200 new members and there is much rivalry between the teams. Supper will be served by the Ladies Auxiliary at 6.30, Mrs. W. G. Shaw being chairman of the committee.

The Y. M. C. A. swimming pool is figuring as the special big attraction in the membership campaign this week. It is now well under way in point of construction and will be a beauty. It is situated in the basement in the front part of the building adjoining the locker room. It will be 32 x 18 feet in its surface dimensions and 6 feet deep at one end and 4 feet at the other.

The pool itself will be constructed of white enamel brick sides and tile bottom. It will have the latest and most approved overflow gutter, which gives perfectly safe edges and walls. No pipes or rails will appear anywhere all heating and supply pipes being concealed.

The heating apparatus is of the most approved system, guaranteed to bring the water to an even temperature of 76 degrees.

From the standpoint of economy as well as cleanliness the water will be filtered through the best filter on the market, giving the water in the pool a perfect transparent appearance.

The filter and pump will be run by an electric motor which will be operated daily so changing the water completely each morning. The walls and ceiling of the room will be pure white and the walks about the pool of white granolithic. The overflow gutter acts as a life rail.

This pool will be a great ornament and a very valuable accession to Quincy's attractions, and should prove a great help to the association membership.

The make-up of the teams follows, the first-named being captain:

Team No. 1—Harry Brooks, Arthur Sylvester, John Gordon, Harry Glover, F. V. Abbott, Stanley Bates, Sam'l Kay, J. F. Phalen, Oscar Dahl, Wesley Ganzel E. S. Jenkins.

Team No. 2—John Hunt, C. W. Sherburne, Joseph Francis, Stewart Dineen, Luther Hanson, H. C. Hallowell, H. B. Tourtellott, Samuel DeForest, Charles Grassick, C. A. Randall, L. B. Doane, Byron Miller, Arthur Stetson, C. E. Pierce, C. P. Fox.

Team No. 3—C. B. Hull, J. A. Sparrow H. A. Burgess, N. C. Drew, A. T. Leavitt, Ralph Atkins, L. H. Brown, C. K. Bodine, W. H. Chudleigh.

NO MORE GRAY HAIR.

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hair before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

TWOMBLY'S LOVE OF BEAUTY

How Late Millionaire Banker Showed It at His Country Estate.

Hamilton McKown Twombly, millionaire banker of New York and brother-in-law of William K. Vanderbilt, who died recently at his country home, Florham Park, at Madison, N. J., was born in Boston and received his schooling there. He went to Harvard and was graduated with the class of 1871.

For a great many years Mr. Twombly, who was a director of many companies, took a lively part in the affairs of both business and society. He put a great deal of his energy and his love of the beautiful into his estate at Madison, with its model farm. He had several children, the oldest of whom, a girl, died at the age of sixteen, fourteen years ago; Florence, who married William A. M. Burden in 1904; Ruth, who made her debut three years ago, and a son, who is named for himself. It was largely to give these children an outdoor life that he designed the place, but the farm he planned chiefly for the interest of his boy.

Florham covers almost 400 acres. It is a great park, laid out in gardens, dotted with hundreds of specially transplanted trees and crossed in all directions by stone ballasted avenues. The house, standing at the head of a gracefully terraced lawn, resembles closely Hatfield House in England, the home of Lord Salisbury. The farm, its stables and spotless dairy, brought in at one time from the sale of its milk alone an average of $2.000 a year. The milk came from a herd of Guernseys, the first of them imported, among which are many ribbon winners. The milk, it is said, was peddled from a $1,200 wagon, drawn by a pair of thoroughbreds, worth $1,500, in gold mounted harness. The farm wagons, too, were drawn by thoroughbreds.

From his flowers—he specialized in orchids and chrysanthemums—there came yearly some $25,000. All of them were raised in the most scientific way in elaborate greenhouses, of which the most notable was the palm house, standing sixty-four feet above the ground ,and topped by a mammoth dome.

But Mr. Twombly lost interest in these things, and in his business, too, in the summer of 1906, when the thing happened which is largely accountable for his death. His only son was spending a few months at Big Squam lake, near Ashland, N. H. He was eighteen years old, had just been graduated from Groton school and had elected to spend his last vacation before entering Harvard in helping to run the camp managed there by Groton boys. On July 5 the boys started to swim to Carn's grove, a mile distant from camp. He had gone but a few hundred yards when he sank. No one could reach him in time to help him.

The news of the boy's death was a great shock. The father's friends say he never recovered from it at all. At all events, it was not for a year or two that he returned to Madison, the place so closely associated with his children, and when he did it was not with the old interest. About that time, too, he began gradually to withdraw from the active business enterprises in which his great fortune had interested him.

Mr. Twombly was a stickler for details. For one thing, he could not bear to be late at any engagement. It is related of him that once in the summer of 1905 to keep a dinner engagement at Newport he chartered a special train in Springfield, Mass., made the 100 miles intervening between there and Boston in 103 minutes and easily caught the train he had to take from there to Newport.

SUNSHINE JAIL FOR CHICAGO.

Glass Roof Giving Light to All Cells, Which May Kill Crime Germs.

Chicago is to have a new city jail that will be a model for all jails, according to plans now in the hands of Assistant Chief of Police Herman F. Schuettler.

Instead of being in the damp and insanitary basement all the cells, 150 in number, will be on the top floor of the building. Then instead of the regulation dark roof Chief Schuettler has provided for a heavy glass roof, so that every cell will be bathed in sunlight, making the cells cheerful and sanitary instead of breeding places for disease.

"Sunshine kills crime germs," he declares.

The roof of the building instead of being a waste space is to be devoted to an exercise room for prisoners. The roof will be flat, with a sufficiently high wall to warrant safety, and will be divided into departments for those held on different charges.

Body From the Palmer Picked Up

Boston, Jan. 25.—The first grim evidence of the drowning of the entire crew of the schooner Davis Palmer during the Christmas blizzard came to light when the body of a man picked up in the harbor was identified as Hugh Blair, the engineer of the schooner.

Death List of Thirty-Two

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Thirty-two dead, two missing and forty-six injured is the total toll of the Spanish river wreck. Both coaches have been raised and the dead removed.

PROSECUTION OF PACKERS

Federal Grand Jury Convenes With That Object in View

Boston, Jan. 25.—The centre of interest in the so-called anti-meat war has suddenly shifted from the cities which have joined the boycott campaign to Chicago, where the government is about to begin a vigorous prosecution of the big packers. A special grand jury has already been empanelled to weigh the evidence and determine if the testimony warrants indictments charging conspiracy to control the prices of food.

Incidentally the concerted movement to reduce the cost of living continues. A score or more cities are now involved in the fight. It is impossible to state the number of persons actively engaged, but one million is not a wild estimate. New York is now in the thick of the fray. A grand jury investigation into the whole problem is pending.

Prosecutor's inquiry into the cold storage situation has been inaugurated and the abstinence pledges are being freely signed.

Senator Bristow of Kansas sounds a popular note when he says: "Revolutions have been started by less than the American people are suffering now. Meat foots up to a quarter of the average household expenses and it ought to be cheaper today instead of dearer than it was twenty-five years ago, because of the greater economy in its preparation and sale. When I was a boy, 25 percent of the carcass went to waste. Now, nothing goes to waste—not even the blood."

Thus far the meat boycott has met with greater success in the west. Other sections of the country are not yet decided that the proper remedy is being applied, and the fear is often expressed that boycott, though effective as a protest, does not hit the mark at which it is aimed. In other words, it will be the small dealer and not the packer who will suffer. This may be said to represent the position of many labor unions.

There can be no doubt, however, that the movement has focussed the attention of the nation upon the need of economy. President Brown of the New York Central lines says: "The most portentous cloud on the political or economic horizon is the steady, relentless increase in price of everything that goes to make up the cost of living."

Cities where the boycott has been in operation report a large decrease in the consumption of meat, some drop in prices and many small dealers forced to the wall. There will be a mass meeting in Boston either Friday or Saturday to discuss the whole situation.

TO TREAT CANCER BY TRANSFUSION

Science on Eve of Great Discovery, Says Dr. Ewing.

NEW BLOOD TO EXPEL GERMS.

Experiments on Dogs Made at Cornell Medical College Lead Expert on Pathology to Believe That Human Victims of Scourge Can Be Benefited.

Experiments recently made on animals has convinced Dr. James Ewing, head pathologist of Cornell Medical college and president of the American Society For Cancer Research, that science is on the eve of discovering a curt for cancer in the human body. Such a forecast recently made by Dr. Ewing is especially cheering in view of the recent assertion of Dr. Harvey R. Gaylord, chief of the State Cancer hospital at Buffalo, who said:

"The increase of cancer in the state of New York is little short of appalling. It now takes half as many lives as tuberculosis."

In speaking of the laboratory study of cancer at the Cornell Medical college Dr. Ewing said:

"Many tests were made upon dogs, with the result that animals which had been suffering with malignant cancer were positively cured. The method pursued was to bleed a dog afflicted with the disease until it was nearly lifeless, then connect its veins with a healthy animal and fill them with new blood. Some of the animals treated have been watched for over a year after the operation, but none showed any recrudescence of the disease.

Tests Confined to Animals.

"Whether or not man could be cured of cancer by blood transfusion is, of course, a matter of conjecture. This test has never been applied to any human being. Furthermore, the experiment brings the patient so near death that for ethical reasons no physician would care to advise this sort of treatment for a human patient. Yet I see no particular reason why a man suffering from cancer should not be benefited by the re-establishment of a new blood supply as is a dog.

"I am prompted to speak freely because of the fact that in spite of the enormous progress science has made in the study of cancer the cry has been raised that vivisection or animal experimentation should stop. If these people who oppose us would themselves stop to learn how much good has already been accomplished for the human race as the result of the work they decry they would cease trying to oppose us.

End of Problem May Be In Sight.

"Although it may be unsafe to make any predictions, it is certainly legitimate to claim that the therapeutic principles established by experiments on lower animals will prove applicable in some form to man for cancer as for diphtheria. We may therefore assert that the end of the cancer problem is in sight.

"By pursuing the principles discovered in the laboratory we may confidently hope to prevent the occurrence of some cancers, to bring others to a standstill and greatly to reduce the incidents and mortality of the disease.

"In the study of cancer, more than any other disease, it has been proved that the investigator should be permitted absolute freedom in animal experimentation. For more than a century all efforts to transplant tumors from one animal to another proved fruitless. Then at last it was accomplished and new experiments made possible to test or try for a cure.

"It later was proved that in animals into which cancerous growths were transplanted a self agent manifested itself which effected a spontaneous cure. Thereafter these animals were immune. It was dogs that had been thus rendered proof against cancer that were used in furnishing the blood for those that were cured of the disease."

Dr. Ewing said that in combating the disease it was of prime importance to seize it early. The use of the knife was sufficient oftentimes in incipient cases to ward off the disease, if not actually cure it.

Feature of Chicago Automobile Show.

An expenditure of more than $75,000 is to be made for decorations for the Chicago automobile show to be held Feb. 5 to 12 in the Coliseum and First regiment armory under the auspices of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers. The scenery is now being prepared by a large force of artisans under the direction of Manager Samuel A. Miles. The largest piece of canvas painting ever displayed at an exhibition of any kind in the United States, according to Mr. Miles, is to be hung in the roof of the Coliseum during the show. The scene depicted on the canvas is a thickly wooded forest with a blue sky. The whole piece will be 300 feet long by 150 feet wide and on account of its huge dimensions is being built in sections.

Move to Standardize Drugs.

An effort to have the federal government standardize all agents used as medicines and then compel importers and drug manufacturers to follow its standard is being made through a bill lately introduced in congress by Representative Coudrey of St. Louis to amend section 7 of the pure food and drugs act of 1906.

SUNDAY SERVICES

HALL PLACE CHURCH.

The services at the Hall Place M. E. Church on Sunday, were well attended. The pastor, Rev. Carl H. Raupach took for his morning subject "The souls rest." Sunday School was held at the close of the morning service, with a fair attendance. No Junior League service was held in the afternoon. At 3 P. M. Rev. John Galbraith, district superintendent, held the fourth quarterly conference. Nearly all the members of the official board of the church were present as well as members of the congregation.

Joseph Francis was confirmed as superintendent of the Sunday School and also as president of the Epworth League, he having been reelected since the last quarterly conference. A full report of the work was given by the pastor and same was accepted. Reports were also given by the president of the Brotherhood, Richard H. Moyle, supertendent of the Sunday School, J. M. Francis president of the Epworth League, and the president of the Ladies Aid, this last report being read by Mrs. C. H. Raupach in the absence of the president. These reports were all approved by the conference.

The following stewards were appointed by the pastor for the coming year: Chas. Goucher, C. S. Jose, F. W. Fuller, R. H. Moyle, R. Newcomb, J. M. Francis, J. J. Nichols, J. Pierce, H. C. Johnson, Ernest Williams and M. P. Fuller.

The board of trustees of last year were re-appointed. The pastor also appointed the different committees on the various branches of the church work, at this time. By the vote of the conference the district superintendent was requested to return the present pastor, Rev. C. H. Raupach, to West Quincy for the next conference year. The conference adjourned at 4.15 subject to the call of the district superintendent before the annual conference.

The Epworth League service was held at 6.15 in the vestry. The evening praise and gospel service was held at 7 o'clock.

WOLLASTON BAPTIST.

The sermon Sunday morning was preached by Rev. Edward A. Chase of the Congregational church, in exchange with the pastor; Subject: "The Fruit of the Spirit"—Gal. 5-2.

Mr. Chase observed his usual custom of preaching a few minutes to the children. He referred to Christ as a child who was about His Father's business, and urged the children very strongly to do something worthy of the love of their Heavenly Father.

In conection with the subject, "The fruit of the spirit," Mr. Chase said as Jesus went about He found men idle and careless and enjoying very little of real life, adding that Jesus wants to give life and give it abundantly. In referring to the vine and the branches the preached urged his hearers to allow the substance of the vine Jesus Christ to sustain them as branches of the vine, with this life and strength in us we can say with Paul, "I can do all things through Christ." The following "fruits," were mentioned and commented upon: goodness, joy, self control, peace, kindness and endurance. In conclusion a strong appeal was made for all to do the thing that Christ came into the world to do.

The sermon of the evening was preached by the pastor, Rev. Joseph Walther subject—"How a man nearly missed a great blessing." The man referred to proved to be Naaman the Syrian who was the only one cleansed of a large number of lepers, Christ was magnified as the great healer. Mr. Walther spoke very impressingly on the following topics: "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" "No place so hard but that we may shine for God." "Strive to enter in at the straight gate." "Whosoever will may come." "Whatsoever He saith unto you do it."

The Walther class for men and Mr. Albee's class for women who have been having a pleasant rivalry for attendance, each had thirty-four present today.

Tuesday evening at 7.45 a cottage prayer meeting will be held at the home of H. J. Grass, Montclair. H. J. Christopher will lead.

WOLLASTON M. E.

Officers of the Wollaston M. E. church were elected at the fourth quarterly conference held in the vestry of the church at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Rev. John Galbraith, D. D., superintendent of Boston district, presided, and preached at 10.45 o'clock on "The supremacy of the name of Jesus." He said the name of Jesus was supreme in civilization in history in business, in literature, in philanthropy and in satisfying the needs of man.

The Sunday school reached the high water mark. J. A. Sedgwick the superintendent was in charge and gave an interesting summary of the lesson, using the blackboard to fix the points in the mind of the scholars.

At 4 o'clock Miss Rena M. Chamberlin took charge of the Junior League. An unusual large number were present, and some of the parents were present to show their interest in the good work being done.

At 6 o'clock Miss Sadie Teed led the Epworth League service. Miss Ethel Smith had charge of the praise service, and Miss Bessie Wilbur was the pianist.

The evening service at 7 o'clock was in charge of the pastor who preached from the text found in John 9-3.

MISS GILDER'S VIEW

Believes That Suffragists Are Worst Enemies of the Working-Woman

Miss Jeannette Gilder, in the New York Times, recently gave her views "as one working-woman sees it," thus:

"I am an anti-suffragist because I have never heard a single argument advanced for the cause of suffrage that seemed to me convincing.

"I resent the assumption of the suffragists that they represent the working-woman and that they are her best friends. They do represent a large element of the working-women, but not all; nor are they her best friends. They believe they are, no doubt; but I believe that they are her worst enemies, because they teach her discontent and hold out golden hopes to her that can never be realized.

"I am just as much of a working-woman as Mrs. Kelly or Miss O'Reilly. I began at fourteen and have been at it ever since and expect to be at it till I die. I have worked hard and had as many responsibilities and discouragements as though I had rolled cigars in a factory or worked at a loom in a mill, and I have just as much right to speak for the working woman as they; and I wish to say right here, as I have said elsewhere, that I cannot see that the ballot would have helped me one iota in getting on in the world or have made the rough places smooth.

"I believe not only that the ballot in the hands of women would be a calamity, but I believe that it would prove a boomerang."

PECULIARITIES OF POLITICS

Men Please Themselves and the Women Generally Please the Men

A recent number of the Woman's Home Companion has an illuminating article on the value of women's vote in Colorado, written from the standpoint of a woman politician. The lady voter writes as follows:

"It was a decided mistake to give women the right to the ballot, but now that they have it, in my belief it is as much the duty of a women to exercise that right as it is for her to observe her religious duties or to take proper care of her home. The average woman is better than the average man. At least that is my observation. The average woman politician is as bad as the average man politician—only she is worse! If the rank and file of women would join in one concerted movement to unseat both the professional man and the professional woman politician, then the right of franchise vested in women would prove a boon of inestimable value.

"Like many another woman, I entered politics with the idea of purifying the political atmosphere. Since then it has been a constant struggle on my part to keep my skirts clean. It is much the same thing as a woman marrying a man to reform him. In nine cases out of ten he draws her down to his own level instead of being lifted to hers.

"Women, generally speaking, vote to please the men. There are those who will take issue with this statement, but it nevertheless true. Perhaps it may be different after the women are better educated in political affairs, if that time should ever come, but under existing conditions the women vote as the men suggest. Left to themselves and uninfluenced by the men, the woman vote would be chaotic. We wouldn't know where we stood in an election till after the votes were all in, because women are influenced by all manner of things the ordinary mortal would not reckon with. By the way of example, a really handsome man is a strong asset for any political ticket in Colorado!

"Women are by nature of a trusting disposition in everything save love affairs. It is therefore an easy task for the men to control their votes. For that reason in planning a campaign we decide upon candidates and principles that will appeal to the men and then leave it to them to win their wives, mothers, sisters or sweethearts over to their views."

Universal Cement.

Four parts alabaster plaster and one part of finely pulverized gum arabic mixed with a cold saturated borax solution into a thick paste make an unequaled all around cement for stone, glass, bone, horn, porcelain and wood, which becomes hard as marble and possesses the agreeable quality of not solidifying immediately after mixing, but only after twenty-four to thirty hours.

his plans and his view of the prospects of beating the new records made abroad.

"Can you do better than Latham?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes. That is why I came."

"He flew higher than 3,000 feet the other day. Can you beat that?"

"Yes," Paulhan answered.

Then, pointing toward the snow clad Sierra Madre, gleaming in the sun above a curtain of clouds, he asked:

"How high is that?"

"More than 4,000 feet," he was told.

"Well, I'll fly over that."

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water. Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.

Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

HALE AND HEARTY AT 101

Old Teamster Is Unmindful of Fall From His Wagon

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 25.—Daniel Short of this city, still engaged in active labor at the age of 101 years, and probably the oldest workingman in the country, was thrown from his wagon last night when his team collided with another.

Calmly picking himself from the pavement, the old man mounted again to the seat and drove to the relief hospital.

Unmindful of the blood which streamed from a cut over his eye, he entered the building and sat patiently while a surgeon dressed his wounds. When the operation was complete he returned to his team and drove home as if nothing had happened.

Short was born in Ireland and for ninety years has been engaged in strenuous labor. He is at present employed as a teamster for the National Biscuit company.

BOSTON VESSEL WRECKED

Crew of Eight of the Henry B. Fiske Undoubtedly Drowned

Boston, Jan. 25.—The use of wireless apparatus brought news concerning another disaster in which the Boston four-masted schooner Henry B. Fiske figures as being found by the revenue cutter Gresham in the condition of a battered derelict, floating bottom up off Nantucket, with her crew of eight men missing.

The ocean was swept upon every side for boat or vessed that might give some inkling as to what had become of the eight men who had sailed out of the port of Boston just one week ago today for Jacksonville, Fla. The men of the Gresham, launching their own ship boat that they might secure a towing hawser to that hulk, realized that all who had sailed upon the craft they would convey to port had perished to a certainty.

BANK FUNDS MAY BE FOUND INTACT

Hall's Friends Think He Was Mentally Deranged

Southbridge, Mass., Jan. 25.—Two searching parties which scoured the woods in this vicinity failed to find any trace of John A. Hall, the missing treasurer of the Southbridge Savings bank, which closed its doors last Friday. That Hall was mentally deranged and that he has wandered away and probably committed suicide is now the general belief of his friends.

That the deposits and other funds of the bank will be shown to be intact and that the affairs of the missing treasurer, although badly tangled, are not criminally involved, is the belief.

If Hall has committed any criminal irregularities in the books of the town, of which he was also treasurer, he has done so within the past year only. All previous accounts have been examined by experts within the past six months and although signs of neglect have appeared, nothing has developed to indicate a shortage.

Indefinite Suspension as Result of Trouble With Back Boys

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 25.—Twenty-five hundred textile workers were thrown out of employment when the thread mills of J. & P. Coats, Limited, were shut down for an indefinite period.

Originating in a strike of 125 boys, employed as backboys and doffers, the trouble was turned into a lockout. Most of the adult employes are indignant at the boys' action.

The boys went out when they found that under the operation of the new fifty-six-hour law they were to receive pay only for the fifty-six hours' weekly work actually performed. Previously they had worked fifty-eight hours a week and had received pay for sixty hours.

Quarter of a Million Parisians Brave Drenching Rain

SEINE CONTINUES TO RISE

River Presents Awe-Inspiring Spectacle, While Firemen, Police and Troops Work Desperately to Keep Bridges From Being Carried Away by Flood—Streets In Many Villages Completely Under Water

Paris, Jan. 25.—A fourth of France is under water. Snow and rain are adding to the floods, which are unprecedented in the history of the present generation.

The Seine continues to rise and the situation in this city grows worse hourly. Water has drowned out the electric plant in the chamber of deputies and the deputies met by lamplight. Premier Briand introduced a bill appropriating $400,000 for the relief of flood sufferers.

It is estimated that 25,000 laborers have been thrown out of employment. An enormous amount of live stock is reported to have been drowned in the departments of Marne, Aube, Aisgne and Meuse.

The rivers Rhone and Loire are reported to be falling, and the situation accordingly improved at Lyons, Limoges, Troyes, Annecy and Auxerre.

The dyke at Saone au Doubs broke, inundating ten villages. The streets of Chalons are under water and two persons have been drowned. Hundreds of persons are on the roofs of their nearly submerged homes crying for help.

The Seine presents an awe-inspiring spectacle. A quarter of a million people, in a drenching rain, throng the stone parapets and quays, watching the yellow tide, which is crowded with driftwood, wine casks and other wreckage. The water now is almost flush with the arches of the bridges.

Firemen, police and troops are working desperately at all the bridges, disentangling blockades resulting from the floating debris, and it is hoped that all the bridges will be saved. Traffic on several of the frailer ones, however, has been stopped.

All of the cellars along the quays are filled with water. One of the chief dangers is the weakening of the foundations of the buildings along the water front by the seeping waters. The retaining walls of the foreign office are surrounded by water, and the beautiful garden in the rear of the building is a veritable lake. The streets around the chamber of deputies are considered unsafe and traffic in these thoroughfares has been forbidden.

The tunnel between the Quai d'Orsay and the Quai d'Austerlitz stations is a rushing stream. The partial crippling of the water supply threatens the capital with a water famine.

The situation of suburban places up and down the river is deplorable. The lower quarters of all the towns on the river below Paris are under water, the streets of Auteuil resembling those of Venice.

A dyke near St. Germaine broke, flooding the valley as far as Malmaison.

The lower portion of Bois de Boulogne is a blanket of water, reaching to Bagatelle. Judging from reports received from the provinces a quarter of France is under water.

Lodge Reintroduces Bill Important to Bay State Builders

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senator Lodge reintroduced the bill of last year providing that any person furnishing repairs, supplies or other necessaries, including the use of dry dock and marine railway, to a vessel, whether foreign or domestic, upon the order of the owner or owners of the vessel, shall have a maritime lien upon the vessel which may be enforced by a proceeding in rem, and it shall not be necessary to allege or prove that credit was given to the vessel.

The bill is of much importance to Massachusetts shipbuilding and repairing concerns.

Will Try to Indict Heinze Again

New York, Jan. 25.—Judge Hough denied application of counsel for F. A. Dstirict Attorney Wise said he would make new presentments to the grand jury.

Bank Wreckers Leave Prison

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Paul O. Stensland, broken, aged and wrecked by a fearful cough, and Henry W. Hering, well and happy, arrived in Chicago from the Joliet penitentiary, from which they were released on parole. They were convicted of wrecking the Milwaukee Avenue State bank of this city.

TRAIN HAS CLOSE CALL

Flagged Barely In Time to Avert Plunge Into a River

Lewiston, Me., Jan. 25.—The cool head of Herbert L. Pettingill averted a serious train wreck near Lisbon village. Seeing the "blind" railroad bridge crossing the Sabattus river piled high with ice, he flagged a train in time to stop it within a few feet of the stream.

Pettingill was a passenger on a trolley car and a short distance below Lisbon village both lines cross the river on separate bridges. While the trolley bridge was clear, Pettingill noticed that the railroad bridge was covered with great cakes of ice, and ice was piled high at either end.

He jumped from the car and was able to get to the railroad track just in time to stop the train, which was brought to a standstill only a few feet from the bridge.

At this point the Maine Central track swings around a curve to this "blind bridge" and Pettingill's cour- "blind bridge" and Pettingill undoubtedly averted a serious wreck.

OWES $2980 FOR CLOTHING

Katherine Gould Sued by a New York Millinery Firm

New York, Jan. 25.—Katherine C. Gould, who last June obtained a decree of separation from her husband, Howard Gould, with alimony of $36,000 a year, appeared in court Monday as defendant in a suit to recover $2980 for the Lichtenstein Millinery company.

Mrs. Gould denied her liability on the ground that at the time the goods were purchased she was entitled to the support of her husband. The articles eumerated were a sealskin coat, $675; a black caracut skirt, $700; a blue cape, $250; a white crepe de chine waist, $100, and a white liberty waist, $95. All, she averred, were necessaries of life.

FOUGHT INCOME TAX TO HIGHEST COURT

Admiral Dyer Loses In Contest With City of Melrose

Washington, Jan. 25.—The United States supreme court affirmed the decision of the Massachusetts supreme court, holding that Rear Admiral N. M. Dyer, U. S. N., retired, must pay the tax assessed against him by the city of Melrose, Mass.

Rear Admiral Dyer was second in command at the battle of Manila on May 1, 1898. Four years ago he refused to pay a tax of $40 assessed against $2000 he had in the Melrose Savings bank. Dyer was a resident of Melrose from the time of his retirement on account of age. His reason for refusing to pay the tax was that the money on deposit was part of his salary, and that the salary of an officer of the United States navy could not be taxed.

The city of Melrose brought the case before the municipal court, where it was decided that the admiral must pay. Dyer took the case through all the courts to the United States supreme court.

DIRECT NOMINATIONS

Clash In Bay State Legislature Over Two Opposing Bills

Boston, Jan. 25.—Charges of bad faith are being hurled at each other by Speaker Joseph Walker of the house and Representative Grafton Cushing of Boston, Republican leader and official of the Lodge forces in the lower branch of the legislature. The fight comes over the question of direct nominations.

Walker says that Cushing is fighting in secret and doesn't dare to come out in the open. Cushing says that Walker is trying to get through his own direct nomination bill on his prestige as speaker of the house. He expressed surprise that Walker wants to have the fight in the open, and says that the speaker was satisfied to have the Cushing bill presented in its present form.

French Count Refuses to Divulge Name of His Wife-to-Be

New York, Jan. 25.—The French liner Touraine from Havre had among her passengers Count de Saint Legier, who is himself sponsor for the statement that he comes here to win an American bride. No amount of persuasion, however, would induce him to tell who she is or to give any details in regard to his romantic affairs.

Another French nobleman aboard was Count Christian de Malherbe, who has orange groves near Jacksonville, Fla.

John Winslow's Surrender

How a Young Man Saved a Fortune and Got the Girl.

By HELOISE BRAYTON

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

John Winslow, head of the house of Winslow & Co., one of the largest and wealthiest engineering firms in America, while sitting at his desk in his private office was handed a telegram, which he read eagerly, and his eye sparkled with joy. He had been bidding against the Eureka Bridge company for the building of a large section of a western railroad, and the message was an announcement that his bid had been accepted. He expected through this contract to double his fortune.

His first thought was to communicate the good news to the person he loved best—the only one he loved in the world. Mr. Winslow was a widower with one child, a daughter.

"Kennedy!" called Mr. Winslow, tossing the telegram on his desk.

A young man responded to the call to find his employer scratching a note. When finished Mr. Winslow handed it to him, telling him to send it to his daughter at once. Kennedy went outside and looked for an office boy to carry the note. Not finding one, he put on his hat and went with it himself. His ring was answered by a maid, who told him when he said he had a note for Miss Winslow that he would find her in the drawing room. She was practicing at her harp.

A pretty girl sitting at a harp is an attractive sight. Ned Kennedy was at an age to be affected by such a sight and possibly magnified its beauty. At any rate, he saw the vision of his life. Years have passed since then, but to this day he treasures it in his heart—the heart that in a twinkling passed to the girl at the instrument.

And she? Before her stood a youngster a few years her senior, with a bright, honest face, a pair of ruddy boyish cheeks and a smile that seemed to her entrancing. He was holding out a note to her. She arose, took the note, recognized her father's writing, opened it and read his announcement that he had secured the contract on which he had spent most of his time for the better part of a year.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" she exclaimed. "But pardon me. Won't you be seated?"

"No, thank you. I must get right back to the office."

"Did papa tell you he'd got the contract?"

"Oh, no; he doesn't tell me things. I'm only his employee. But I'm very much pleased to hear that he has succeeded. I've done a lot of figuring for him on that contract."

"Are you an engineer?"

"Yes. I was graduated last year in the scientific school. Your father applied for one of our class, and I was assigned to him."

The young man looked happy, and the girl looked happy and tried to think of some more pleasant things that her father had said about him. Though he declined to be seated, he asked her if she would not play just one piece on her harp, and she did, or, rather, she sang "Annie Laurie," accompanying herself on her instrument. Any one who has heard that song accompanied by a harp knows of the depth of feeling there is in it. From that moment to Ned Kennedy "Annie Laurie" was none other than Elsie Winslow.

When the engineer got back to the office he discovered that he had been with the young lady an hour, thinking he had been with her ten minutes, and his chief was impatiently awaiting him. Mr. Winslow asked him where he had been so long, and he replied that he had carried the note himself since none of the boys was at hand. Then he threw out a danger signal in a blush, but his employer failed to understand it.

Three months was the time specified for the beginning of the contract work. During this period Winslow & Co. spent a fortune in materials and other preparation. While this was going on Ned Kennedy and Elsie Winslow were making all sorts of excuses to meet, and within six weeks a mutual confession had been made and the lovers were in terror lest Elsie's father should discover the extent to which matters had gone, for Elsie knew that she would not be permitted to marry any one, especially a poor young engineer earning $25 a week.

Such cases always run the same course. The lovers think they are enduring no end of excruciating torture, but they are not. When love tortures end prosaic marriage begins, and as husband and wife the couple take infinite pleasure in reading of other couples' love tortures. The denouement came in time. Ned Kennedy sent a note to his ladylove, not knowing that her father was at home. Mr. Winslow received it and took it to his daughter. This time the danger signal was interpreted. Then Elsie threw herself into her father's arms and confessed all.

No one likes to be deceived. The father should have realized that stolen fruit is the sweetest and had compassion. Instead he blamed his employee for what he termed dishonorable conduct and blamed his daughter for keeping from him such an important matter. She tried to excuse herself on the ground that she was afraid to tell. She really thought this was true. It was not. She did not tell of her love because she took pleasure in it, indulged clandestinely.

Mr. Winslow was so irritated with Kennedy that he paid him his salary and discharged him. He supposed his action to be based on the young man winning his daughter's love without permission. He forgot that he had won the girl's mother in the same way. The true reason was that he was irritated because he had been stupidly ignorant of what was going on.

The day when a commencement on the contract must be made drew near. One morning Mr. Winslow while perfecting his plans to make sure of the smallest details had all his formula spread out before him on a table. The weather was cold and blustery, and a fire of logs blazed on a hearth near which he had drawn his table for warmth. Opening the door to leave the room for a moment, he met a brisk current of air. When he returned his papers had disappeared from the table. Terrified, he looked about for them on the floor. Then in the fireplace he noticed several bits of half burned paper. Taking one of them out, he found it to be a part of his formula. Everything had been burned.

In one week he must begin work or forfeit his contract. If it was forfeited he would lose not only the splendid profit he had expected, but thousands upon thousands that he had expended in preparation would be almost a total loss—a loss that would bankrupt him. There was but one thing to do—he must reconstruct his plans. There was no time to make new ones. The old ones must be set down from memory. He was no longer young. Indeed, he had reached an age where memory is grown defective. He hurried a message to the telegraph office asking for an extension of time. No reply came till the next day, when he was wired that it would be impossible to grant his application.

When Elsie saw her father come in at the front door that evening she thought he was some broken down old man she had never seen before. Taking him in her arms, she supported him to the library, where he sank into a chair, while she knelt beside him with her arms about his neck. She knew what had happened to his papers and inferred that his application for an extension had been refused.

"Father," she said, "I've something to tell you. Listen. I wrote Ned Kennedy of this misfortune. This afternoon I received a reply, which said:

"'I can reconstruct the formula.'"

It seemed to Elsie that an electric shock had been infused into her father's frame. With a bound he sprang from his chair.

"Can he?" he exclaimed.

There was no room for wounded pride, no words of regret at being obliged to humble himself by asking a favor of the man he had discharged from his service.

"Where is he? Can you get him now?"

Elsie sprang away to a telephone, in a few minutes was in communication with her lover, and in twenty minutes more he was with them.

"Elsie says"— began her father.

"I know it," interrupted Elsie, rubbing her hands gleefully.

"I have a good deal of the work I did," said Kennedy, "in my room, where I worked nights, odds and ends of figuring. These will assist my memory, and I am sure I can recall the whole formula."

Mr. Winslow stood looking at the young man in a dazed way for a few moments, then caught him in his arms and hugged him.

"You can! You can! I know you can! That memory of yours! It's wonderful! When can you begin?"

"I'll go to my room and begin at once."

"No, no; not there. Bring any figuring you may have here. Stay right here till the work is finished."

Ned was followed to the door by Elsie, where several minutes were lost in a clinging embrace, prolonged in the knowledge that from that time forward they had the upper hand. Then the lover ran all the way to his room, snatched up a roll of papers he had collected with this very purpose in view and ran all the way back. He found Elsie and her father about to sit down to dinner and joined them. Mr. Winslow was absorbed in the matter of the formula. He said nothing, except to interrupt Ned and Elsie occasionally, who kept up a constant gabble, the old man asking if Ned thought he could supply this detail and that detail, and Ned always assured him that he could, though with regard to some of them he was not altogether certain.

After dinner Ned was given a desk in the library, with plenty of stationary. Mr. Winslow insisted on helping him, but Ned declared that he could get on better alone. So at 9 o'clock Elsie insisted on her father going to bed to recuperate from the strain he had been under and carried him off upstairs. As soon as she had tucked him in bed she went down to her lover.

There are youthful idiosyncrasies, one of which was illustrated by the young couple. One would suppose that they would both appreciate the necessity of Ned at once getting at a work of such vital importance to all concerned. What did they do? Sat in the same chair in each other's arms till 2 o'clock in the morning. And what did they say? Let those who have spent hours under the same circumstances tell—if they can remember. At 2 a. m. Elsie went to bed, and Ned worked till breakfast was announced.

Nevertheless within two or three days the formula was reconstructed. Ned married Elsie and is now at the head of the Winslow company.

Model at Work Shown to Railroad Men In Brooklyn.

PERFECT BALANCE MAINTAINED

Spinning Tops, Making 8,000 Revolutions a Minute, Kept the Machine on Its Single Rail—No Tilting and No Reduction of Speed at the Curves.

With a whirring of motors that sounded like the hum of a buzzsaw, a gyroscope monorail car of the German type was piloted around an oval track in the Clermont rink, Brooklyn, the other morning before a crowd that included several engineers and railroad men. It was the first exhibition of the car in the United States, and the group of experts who viewed it appeared to be greatly interested in the working of the white, boat shaped contrivance as it circled the rink, supported on one small rail.

The noise was made by two steel tops lodged at either end of the car, which revolved at the rate of 8,000 turns a minute. They were incased in a steel covering and could not be seen, but it was these two spinning tops which kept the car from toppling over. Had they stopped suddenly—which, it was said, was next to impossible—the car would have lost its balance. According to those in charge of the demonstration, nothing could make the wheels stop except cutting off the electric current, and even then they would go on revolving for nearly an hour at sufficient speed to hold the car in an upright position.

Richard Scherl, the German inventor who designed the car, was not on hand when the demonstration began, but a squad of assistants and mechanics set the gyroscope going so that the visitors could see the latest wrinkle in car building in operation. It was the same car which had been exhibited in Berlin, but it differed in many respects from the Brennan or English type of monorail car recently shown in England.

No Passengers Carried.

No passengers were taken on board during the preliminary trials, although the car was built to accommodate from six to ten persons. The only man who actually rode in it was the mechanician, who operated the levers. Sometimes he dismounted and allowed the car to go its way with no one at the helm. It never made very high speed, however, and, as the operating levers were all within reach of any one standing near the track, the motorman could bring the car to a stop simply by touching the right lever as the car rolled by.

What seemed to interest spectators the most was the way the car took the turns. The track was oval, and the turns were sharp—sharper by a good deal than the general run of curves in the subway in New York, for instance. But the single track car took them with only the slightest tilt and without reducing its speed. It traveled at about eight miles an hour most of the time. Whether stationary or moving along the rail, the car kept its balance perfectly.

A Queer Feat.

One of the queer feats of the gyroscope was shown when five men climbed up on one side of the car while it was standing still. The car, instead of tipping toward them, leaned in the opposite direction. The tendency of the gyroscope, it was explained, was to preserve equilibrium under all conditions, and, no matter how the passengers might be seated, the car would always preserve its own balance.

It was a small car that was used in the demonstration, built only for experimental purposes. Its dimensions were eighteen feet in length and four feet in width. It rested upon four wheels set in a straight line, each having flanges on both sides.

The track stood about three inches high and measured one inch in thickness at the top. On each side of it was strung a wire which carried the current. There were four motors in the car, two of one horsepower each for propelling it and two of one-half horsepower each, which operated the gyroscope attachment. The car itself weighed two and one-half tons and the gyroscope about one-twentieth of this. It was explained that this proportion would have to be increased if the gyroscope were to be applied to a heavy car of the Pullman type. To preserve balance in a Pullman car it would be necessary to have a gyroscope weighing about 9 per cent of the total weight of the car.

Tops In a Vacuum.

It was explained also that the two revolving tops would keep right on revolving for a long time after the current gave out, because they were spinning in a vacuum where there was little friction.

In case of an accident, it was explained, there would be plenty of time for the passengers to get out before the gyroscope slowed down and the car toppled over. In the meantime it would be possible, according to the demonstrators, to lower the supports on either side of the car, and this would prevent its falling. The car used in the demonstration was equipped with this safety device, which could be operated by the motorman. It was said that the supports could be so constructed that they would fall to the ground automatically in case the power gave out.

VICTIMIZED BY TWO WOMEN

New York Man's Politeness Costs Him Snug Sum of $28,000

New York, Jan. 25.—Warner M. Van Norden, president of the Van Norden Trust company, went to the theatre and stopped in at the Waldorf after the play to write some letters. He carried his wallet in the pocket of his dress coat. It contained $28,000 in $1000 bills, and $900 in four $100 bills and one $500 bill. His letters written, he stepped to the street, undecided whether to walk home or call a cab.

As he stood hesitating a well-dressed woman passed him, and, as she passed, dropped her handbag. Van Norden stooped and picked it up. As he stooped a second woman stumbled on his feet and, in regaining her balance, threw her arms about his neck. There was a moment of confusion, many apologies and then all three went their several ways.

When Van Norden changed his clothes he found the twenty-eight $1000 bills were gone. He reported the robbery to the police and two arrests followed.

The prisoners are: Bessie Roberts, who is No. 876 in the Rogues' Gallery, and May Williams, No. 9201 in the Rogues' Gallery. Both women are from Chicago.

BERNHARDT IN VAUDEVILLE

Salary of $5000 a Week Proves Too Great For Actress to Resist

London, Jan. 25.—The announcement is made that Sarah Bernhardt has signed a contract to apper in the London Coliseum next fall. She will bring with her a small company of her own, and the engagement is to last four weeks.

Those who persistently scoffed at the idea that she could possibly be induced to appear in vaudeville are now reduced to silence. The attraction that finally won her consent is said to be a weekly salary of $5000.

NATIONALISTS HOLD ABSOLUTE POWER

American Money and American Advice Will Rule England

London, Jan. 25.—For some time to come, until the next general election at least, the English government will be run by America. The Nationalists, with their eighty votes, hold absolute power, and so close is the equalization of the old parties that the power of votes is tremendous.

No matter what Asquith does or Lloyd-George does, the little band of Nationalists from Ireland are in the driver's seat. Swinging many votes, they can not only affect any measure on either side they support, but they have power to initiate legislation, and by trades with the old parties can pass it.

The Irish party is financed in America and naturally the Nationalists are governed by American advisors.

John Redmond will be unofficial premier of England until another election. The Irish party is in the best strategical position in its history.

EARTHQUAKE UNDER WATER

Steamship Tossed About Like a Cork While In Disturbed Zone

Boston, Jan. 25.—Sailing over an earthquake while the sea all round was quiet is the experience reported by Captain Cronin of steamship Caledonian, from Manchester and Liverpool, three days late.

"When about 300 miles from this coast we met a tidal wave," said Cronin. "It was a series of giant seas which broke upon us while all else around us was still. There was no wind and all the rest of the sea was as quiet as a mill pond. The ship tossed about like a cork. The waves washed over us and for a while we were in real danger."

Date For Hearing Labor Case Appeals

Washington, Jan. 25.—The appeals of the officials of the American Federation of Labor to the supreme court of the United States, growing out of the suit of the Bucks Stove and Range company against them in the District of Columbia, were ordered consolidated by the court, and set for hearing next October.

Some Pointers on Agriculture

Washington, Jan. 25.—"The worst farming in this country is done east of the Allegheny mountains, and agricultural land is cheapest in that locality in consequence," says Secretary Wilson. "The boys have left the farm, and the scarcity of labor is now the greatest concern of the agriculturalist."

Maine Fishery Statistics

Portland, Me., Jan. 25.—Employment was given 12,000 men, whose boats and gear represented a total valuation of nearly $4,000,000 by the sea and shore fisheries of Maine the past year. The value of the production is estimated at $4,000,000.

Link In the Grand Trunk

Winnipeg, Jan. 25.—The Grand Trunk Pacific railway has completed the prairie section of its transcontinental line, steel being laid to Wolf Creek at the foot of the Rocky mountains, where the mountain section begins.

UNCLE JOE'S RETIREMENT

Indications That It Will Not Be Much Longer Delayed

A MATTER OF PARTY POLITICS

Stanch Friends Think That Old Warhorse Must Vacate Speaker's Chair In Order to Keep House From Going Democratic—Elimination of Seniority Leaves Speakership Field Open For Progressive Candidate

Washington, Jan. 25.—Speaker Cannon's announcement of his intention to retire from the chair, even though delayed until spring, is confidently expected here. His own friends are now coming into the open and admitting that he should retire for the good of the party. They yield nothing of their loyalty to Cannon, and have no personal sympathy with the attacks which have been made upon him, but they realize that the control of the next house is likely to depend upon the states which are so throughly anti-Cannon in their local sentiment that Cannon is bound to lose the chair anyway; by the defeat of the party, if not through his own withdrawal.

With Cannon still in the field, a couple of dozen of other stanch Republicans would be in danger of their own seats, hence the "courage" which is prompting these hitherto loyal patriots to advise the speaker to retire.

The middle west is attempting the difficult feat of retiring a speaker from the middle west and putting in another from the same section. The program has its difficulties. Already a move has been made by Pennsylvania and New York to wrest the speakership from the west and retain it for the industrial east, including such states as Illinois and Indiana as within that boundary.

For the practical purposes of the speakership, it would make little difference whether the candidate lived in Ohio or New England. The great interests which have been accustomed to find the speakership useful will take no chances among the wild western insurgents, even though these insurgents have stirred up sentiment enough to pull Cannon from the chair.

The break of the Ohio delegation with the speaker is thought to be the beginning of the end of Cannon's power. Most of Illinois is equally disturbed. In addition to the professional insurgents, the anti-Cannon band is now understood to include such sturdy regulars as Lafean and Moore of Pennsylvania, Martin of South Dakota, Bennet, Foelker and Driscoll of New York, and others who really love Cannon for the enemies he has made.

The anti-Cannon movement becomes a serious party question the moment men of this class align themselves with it. The movement is primarily for new blood and a complete overturn of the regime of legislatively aged men, like Payne and Dalzell, who have managed the house for a decade or more. It is anybody's fight now. Seniority as an asset is at a discount. Its elimination leaves the field open to a type of candidate that would inevitably be progressive.

The talk of course all runs that a middle western man finally will be selected, but in its real relation to the speakership the phrase "middle west" simply embodies the eastern conception of a speaker who is not a revolutionary radical. If the Republicans could unite early upon a candidate whom the country would indorse, they would go a long way towards assuring the control of the next house by their party.

BIG POLICE SHAKE-UP DUE

"Third Degree" Methods Said to Be Doomed In New York

New York, Jan. 25.—There is a feeling of uneasiness throughout the entire police department, for it is admitted that after the conference between Mayor Gaynor and Commissioner Baker today or tomorrow there will be one of the biggest shake-ups the department has received since Baker took charge.

The shake-up is due primarily to the mayor's opposition to "third degree" methods or other means of forcing confessions from prisoners by illegal means. The mayor also is opposed to the idea of leaving captains too long in the same precinct.

MAKES RAPID HEADWAY

Add This Fact to Your Store of Knowledge.

Kidney disease advances so rapidly that many a person is firmly in its grasp before aware of its progress. Prompt attention should be given the slightest symptom of kidney disorder. If there is a dull pain in the back, headaches, dizzy spells, or a tired, worn-out feeling, or if the urine is dark, foul-smelling, irregular and attended with pain, procure a good kidney remedy at once.

Your townspeople recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the statement of this Quincy citizen.

P. J. Garrity, 367 Granite street, Quincy, Mass., says: "Some time ago I suffered so severely from kidney disease that I could hardly get about. I was restless at night and could not find any position that was comfortable. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained a heavy sediment at times. I was rapidly growing worse and was at a loss to know what to do, as the many remedies I tried failed to help me. Finally Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me and I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store. After I had taken the contents of four boxes I was in good health. I highly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

BRIEFS

The Wollaston Boys' club will have a dramatic night at their meeting on Thursday, when the members of the South Quincy club will present two plays.

Thomas Lewis of 44 Kidder street, who was operated on at the City Hospital last week, has returned to his home, and is slowly regaining his health.

A regular meeting of the School Committee will be held tonight, at which time Chairman Miller will announce his sub-committees. The annual budget will probably come up for consideration.

The fourth quarterly conference of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church will be held in the vestry of the church on Wednesday evening, with the Rev. Dr. John Galbraith superintendent of the Boston district, presiding.

The Ward Six Republican committee organized at the residence of Herbert S. Barker on Monday evening as follows: Chairman, Herbert S. Barker; Secretary, Ernest E. Sodergren; Treasurer, Horace P. Jenkins, Jr. Mr. Barker served refreshments.

An old fashioned spelling match will be held in the vestry of the Universalist church on Thursday evening at 7.30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Murray club. The captains of the teams are Mrs. Cora Carman and Chester D. Brown, while the school teacher will be Miss Mabel Damon.

The funeral of Ralph P. Damon was held Monday afternoon from his late home on Mill street, and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. Edwin N. Hardy of the Bethany church conducted the services, and the burial was at Mt. Wollaston. The flowers were many and beautiful.

The Women's Bible class of the Wollaston Baptist church will hold a social at the home of Mrs. Wellington Record of Newport avenue on Thursday evening. Mrs. C. D. Young will be in charge of a musical and literary entertainment. Refreshments will be served.

Miss Averill and Miss Raines, medical nurses from the hospital of the New England Deaconess Association in Boston were present at the Sunday evening service at the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Averill gave a very interesting talk on the Deaconess work in Boston. It will be remembered that Miss Raines worked one year in the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church.

The large elm tree at the corner of Hancock street and Hancock court was cut down this morning. The tree was found to be badly decayed at the core. In falling it crashed through one of the windows of Berman's tea store. As soon as the tree fell the local barber got busy with the result that he will not have to buy any fuel for some time to come.

BIRTHS.

CATARIUS—In Houghs Neck, Jan. 24, a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Catarius of Hotel Midland.

CHILDREN INTERESTED

In the Afternoon Evangelistic Meetings

Over 200 boys and girls attended the evangelistic meeting at the Water Street Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, and were much interested in the talk by Rev. C. T. Schaeffer on the "Cup of Life."

The evening meeting of adults was also largely attended, and there promises to be a great revival.

BRIEFS

The West Quincy Improvement Association is pushing the all-night street lighting question.

Miss Emma Spaulding has succeeded Miss Dulah Miller as stenographer for the Y. M. C. A.

The new officers of the Willard Associates have been installed. Jeffrey De Coste is the new president.

Miss Boutilier will hold her regular whist party on Wednesday evening at 45 North aPyne street.

City men were at work in City Square with picks this morning, breaking up the thick ice that had formed in some places in the street.

Mrs. Celia Goodwin of Holmes street, underwent an operation at her home on Saturday. She is reported to be as comfortable as can be expected.

Francis Howley was entered in the meet at the Mechanics building as a representative of Boston college, and took second place in the 600 yard run.

An all day sewing meeting of the Ladies' Benevolent society of the Wollaston Congregational church will be held in the vestries on Wednesday. A lunch will be served at 12.30.

Montclair wants a new schoolbuilding, Wollaston wants a new school building, Bigelow park wants a new school building. If there are any more please come forward and make your wants known. Now is the accepted time.

Friends of Mrs. William J. Heath, wife of Rev. Mr. Heath, pastor of the Atlantic Methodist Episcopal church, will be pleased to hear that she is recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia, at her home on Atherstone street, Dorchester.

Knights of Columbus opera Chimes of Normandy tonight. There are plenty of good seats still unsold and they may be had at the drug stores or at the hall.

A number of members of the Henry H. Faxon Memorial lodge, No. 159, of the International Order of Good Templars, of Atlantic, will attend a district lodge meeting in Boston Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George K. Tudhope and family of Webster street left Monday for a three weeks' visit in North Hero, Vermont, the home of Mr. Tudhope's parents.

Judge A. E. Avery and Chief of Police Burrell will be guests of the Wollaston Congregational club this evening when Judge Harvey H. Baker of the Boston Juvenile court will be the speaker.

Patrick Caven of Bates avenue, a member of the Bryant A. C., is now home every other day, and can be found at the club rooms until the North Dakota is ready for active service when he will be transferred from the battleship New York. He is, in the meantime serving on the Wabash, which is now at the navy yard, Boston.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

MR. TOBEY APOLOGIZES

Sorry to Have Offended Anyone in Montclair

Editor of Daily Ledger:

In reply to the article in Monday's issue, where I have been brought into undue prominence, I have only to say that, read in the light of the history of Wollaston, my previous statement would not have been misinterpreted. One might infer from the reply that a single section, of our city was the target aimed at. As a matter of fact the older residents saw in it a fair criticism of the attitude of Quincy as a whole in reference to various requests of Ward Five in times past. There was only a mere suggestion that one more section had added its voice to the previous demands that Wollaston should continue to remain on the waiting list. So that the analysis of my former letter misses the mark.

I do regret, however, that my clumsy attempt at a bit of pleasantry gave any offence. If I had dreamed that it would be taken seriously I would not for the world have atempted it. But since it has offended, I here and now publicly apologize for it, expressing deepest regret that it was not omitted from the former communication.

As to the statement that Wollaston neither needs nor wants a new schoolhouse, those who may be inclined to believe this are respectfully referred to another column of this issue where same facts are given.

PULL OUT A VICTORY

Employed Boston Defeat Boston Day School

One of the best games of the season took place Monday night at the Quincy Y. M. C. A. between Boston Day school and Quincy Employed Boys. At the end of the first half with the score 10 to 7 against them, it looked rather doubtful for Quincy, but with that employed boys grit that they always exhibit, won out by the score of 27 to 12.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Bryant A. C. was a scene of great excitement Monday night on account of many boxing bouts which were pulled off. Those who took part in the bouts were Farrell and Miller, 3-3 min. rounds; Elexson and Farrell 3-3 min. rounds; and Belanger and Kerr 3-3 min. rounds. Timer, Fitzgerald.

Joseph Buckley of Bates avenue is now able to be about after being confined to his home on account of an accident which broke two of his toes. He will not be able to play basket ball Thursday night with the St. Marys, who are going to meet Co. G of Gloucester. The St. Marys second are to play Co. G seconds at St. Mary's hall.

WILLARD VICTORY.

The Willards fairly out classed the Commons Stars at basket ball on Monday at the Willard school to the tune of 16-4, after a very fast game.

SCHOOL LOT WITH STRING

A Restriction When Given to the City

Editor of Daily Ledger:

The Wollaston Schoolhouse Committee begs the use of your columns for a brief resume of the situation with some additional light. The question of a new schoolhouse for this section was agitated before Quincy ceased to be a town. The chairman of the School Committee at that time recommended and urged the erection of a new structure instead of an attempt to enlarge the old building. While the first Mayor of our city endorsed this recommendation, enough opposition was developed to compel the acceptance of an addition instead of a new school building.

It is well known to the old residents of Quincy that from time to time this ward was asked for certain rights and privileges which have been refused because it was claimed that other parts of the city had more pressing needs. Less than a decade ago the schoolhouse problem again vexed us, and the money then expended upon an expedient was like putting new cloth upon an old garment. This experiment ought not to be repeated at this juncture.

A new schoolhouse has been "in the air" for some months past. Independent of each other several organizations were discussing this need. Mr. Nichols put it in his platform, and Mayor Shea recommended it in his inaugural. Mr. Loud had planned to present a bill to the Council, ignorant because of an extended absence from home, that a movement to the same end had already taken shape.

It needed but a single move to bring together in cooperation all interested organizations. And when an official from outside the ward urged us to act and spurred us on, we found as a basis for action the splendid work of the ladies of the Child Nurture Club. Believing after careful inquiry and investigation that a new schoolhouse was necessary, they obtained an inspection of the present structure in company with certain officials. This data became the property of the combined committee on which they are represented by Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Pinkham.

That the people of our ward were anxious for the new building in evidenced by the alacrity with which the voters signed one set of petitions and the ladies another set. The School Committee will have before them tonight a list of 350 voters and 300 mothers which could easily have increased had time permitted.

Wollaston was assessed on $5,229,750 in 1909. Compute the amount of taxes we pay at $20.50 per thousand. with 1430 polls at $2.00 each added. Haven't we a right to ask something in return? And it is only natural that we feel inclined to resent the invitation to send a part of the children to school in another district.

Our committee did not feel called upon to consider the question of location but this has been forced upon us. The present site is still the natural centre of population. Our growth is now out on Beale street towards East Milton and on Third Hill. Besides the present school lot cannot be sold and the proceeds applied to the purchase of a lot in another locality. Mr. Safford's gift deeds say that where the lot is not used for schoolhouse purposes it may be sold and the income (not the principal) may be used for educational purposes.

Chairman Wollaston School Committee.

CANALS NOT FAVORED

National Waterways Commission Makes Report

The preliminary report of the National Waterways Commission was made to Congress on Monday, and seems to have overlooked the Brockton canal.

Construction of artificial canals adapted to seagoing ships, according to the commission, will be profitable only where, first ,they would connect navigable waters near each other between which large traffic would naturally exist but for rapids or comparatively narrow strips of land, as in teh cases of Sault Ste Marie, Welland and Lachine canals ;or second, where comparatively shorts canals would save a very great sailing distance ,as in the cases of the Suez, Panama and Kaiser Wilhelm canals; or, third, where canals from the sea would extend to large cities near the coast where large communities have become great freight consumers, as in the cases of the Manchester canal and the Belgium system. The commission cites many obvious disadvantages of these canals, says it is conceivable the disadvantages might be lessened somewhat, but makes no recommendation.

Improvements not essential to navigation should not be undertaken by the Federal Government, the commission thinks, and improvements in rivers and harbors should not be made unless sufficient assurance is given that proper wharves, terminals, etc. shall be furnished ,on reasonable charges, by municipal or private enterprise. The commission recommends avoiding undue multiplication of ports, making harbor improvements useful to the largest number, a proper dividing line between work under Federal and under city and private appropriations, and measures for the greatest possible protection of property abutting on navigable and non-navigable streams with due regard to the probable quantity and value of land benefited. The commission is unwilling to recommend the construction of wharves and docks by the government.

BRIEFS

Joseph Gibbs of Bates avenue gave his right knee a very hard wrench while playing basket ball at the old Powder house and is not able to be at work.

John Lavells of Quarry street extension a member of the St. Mary's C. T. A. is ill with pneumonia. He is attended by Dr. Armeno and Dr. Dion.

On the committee in charge of the reunion of the classes of '04 and '05 of the Massachusetts Field school are the following: Guy Sass, Charles Staples, Fred Croucher, Fred Davis, Ralph Green, Ernest Pletsch, Clarence Tobin, Miss Hazel Jones, Miss Mary Sass, and Miss Eva Weymouth.

A musical and literary program will be given at the Wollaston Congregational church in February to include, Miss Mildred Sheldon Bass, reader, Miss Edna Goodell, soprano, and Ernest Harrison, pianist.

The Nine Dollar Hog.

[Market Report.—Hogs are selling at $9 a hundred on the hoof. P. S.—A hundred pounds, not a hundred hogs.]

Oh, say,
Make way
For the nine dollar hog!
Don't clog
The passage
Of his imperial sassage!
No longer now is swill the stuff,
And slops no more are good enough.
Nor does he wallow in the muck
He loved before he called his luck.
Behold him in a gilt edged pen,
A marble trough, with silver lining,
Which holds the rare ambrosial food
That satisfies his dainty dining.
He sips the nectar of the gods
In elegance and plenty,
And on a persian rug he takes
His dolce far niente.
The odors of his erstwhile sty
Are changed to breath of roses,
And on a silken pillow now
His partly jowl reposes.
The splendors of his present state
Enchant the finer senses,
And common people everywhere
Must settle his expenses.
My land.
Ain't he grand?
And, say,
It's dog.
Not nine dollar hog.
That's in the sausage today!
What?

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Mrs. Lucy O. Perkins, now an expert guide at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, has been on the regular staff of the museum for several years.

There is one woman student at the Missouri School of Mines, Miss Eva Hirdler of St. Louis. Miss Hirdler, who is in the junior class, is working for the degree of mining engineer.

England has a mounted ambulance corps of women. The first six months of the course are devoted to first aid and nursing. After that attention is paid to shooting and riding. The corps is increasing in numbers.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, says that during her recent visit to the isthmus she found eighteen clubs in the canal zone doing work which compares most favorably with that of clubs in the United States.

The bureau of education in Manila has established a training school for nurses. Miss Malvina M. McKeever of Roxbury, Mass., who served as a nurse in the Spanish war and later a matron in the civil hospital at Manila, is to have charge of the new undertaking. The students will be Filipino girls.

Miss Lizzie L. Johnson of Casey, Ill., during the twenty-seven years that she was confined to her room by illness is said to have raised $17,000 by making and selling bookmarks. Besides giving a large amount to foreign missions, Miss Johnson assists several native Christian workers in the orient. She is said to have carried on the large correspondence connected with her work without assistance.

Miss Ruhama Skidmore, who has been re-elected foreign secretary of the United States Geographical society, has held office for twenty years. She represented the society at the international congress held in London in 1897. Miss Skidmore is keenly interested in all geographical questions, and she is an authority on books on arctic exploration. Her mother is prominent in the American colony in Yokohama.

When "Mammy" Was Stylish.

The daughter of a former famous southern general who married a wealthy New Englander and came north to live has in her home the old negro mammy who "nursed" her in her young days. Mammy is large and slow moving, as one pictures all good mammies ought to be. Her proportions are ample and comfortable, as the two little children now in this home well know. Recently the southern mother was making preparations to go with the two little children and mammy to visit some of the "in-laws." She decided to dress mammy up, so she bought her a "straight front" corset, laced up shoes, a fine black dress, frilly apron and cap. Mammy's misery was so complete that bending over and stooping were impossible. "Miss Lella," she moaned, "strop me up so tight and make me so stylish I couldn't do a thing. Miss Lella she had to wash and dress dem chilluns all de time we was dar, and all I done was jes' walk around and look proud."

PRESERVING TIMBER.

To Achieve Best Results the Bark Should Be Removed.

Before timber is subjected to preservative treatment it is customary to remove the bark. Unless this is done very thoroughly, however, patches of the inner bark will remain on the wood. Until recently it does not seem to have been realized that this bark presented a very effectual hindrance to the penetration of creosote. The same thing was discovered by the management of one of the large creosoting companies in the south, and steps were immediately taken to see that every particle of bark was removed from piling and other timbers.

While it is probable that the bark of all species is not as resistant as that of pine, it is not known how the different species rank in this respect. In the creosote treatment of timbers it is rarely that the entire stick is penetrated by the preservative. The value of the treatment consists largely in the creating of an exterior antiseptic zone around the untreated interior portion. If this outer zone be broken the value of the treatment is to a large extent lost.—Scientific American.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE RECEIVE PETITIONS

And Recommend That Twelve-Room Schoolhouse Be Built at Wollaston.

Chairman Miller Appoints the Standing Committees.

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening, all members being present.

ESTIMATES FOR YEAR.

The annual budget for the year was discussed and adopted and will be forwarded to the City Council.

HALF FARES.

A communication was received from the City Solicitor in reply to an inquiry of the School Committee, in regard to half fares for pupils of the evening schools. The opinion of the City Solicitor was that the half fares on the street cars did not apply to pupils of the evening schools.

COMMITTEES.

Chairman Miller announced the following sub-committees which were ratified:

High school—Miller, Curtis and Newcomb.

Adams—Newcomb, Miller and Burke.

Coddington—Hunting O'Hara and Wadsworth.

Clark—Newcomb, Bushnell and Hunting.

Dudley Bryant—O'Hara, Burke and Miller.

John Hancock—Wadsworth, Bushnell and Burke.

Lincoln—Wadsworth, Burke and Hunting.

Transportation—Burke, O'Hara and Barker.

Evening schools—Wadsworth, Hunting and Burke.

Special Subjects—Bushnell, Newcomb and Miller.

Rules and Regulations—Barker, Curtis and Newcomb.

Teachers—The Chairman, Hunting, and O'Hara.

Finance and Salaries—The Chairman, Barker and Burke.

NEW TEACHER

Miss Grace J. Elcock was elected a teacher at the Coddington school.

SCHOOLHOUSE PETITIONS.

Two petitions were received from Wollaston relative to a new school building in that section, one signed by 352 voters and the other by 283 mothers. It was voted to refer petitions to the City Council and recommend that a twelve-room school building be erected in Wollaston.

It was voted to ask the city solicitor what power the School Committee had as engaging an architect to prepare plans for a school building without competition.

It was argued that in the matter of plans for school buildings the best architects would not enter into competition.

It was voted to call the attention of the City Council to the need of drinking fountains in the school buildings not now supplied.

FINANCES.

The expenditures of the department to date were reported as follows:

Salaries	$11,528.45
Janitors,	779.14
Books, supplies and sundries	332.25
Fuel,	3,908.09
Transportation	40.00
Rent,	30.00
Evening school
Total	$16,617.93

DANCING PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Kincaide entertained a large party of friends Tuesday evening at an informal dancing party at Alpha hall. They were present from Quincy and Braintree and the party was one of the prettiest held in Quincy for sometime. The decorations of the hall were confined to the platform and consisted of palms and potted plants. Dancing was continuous from 8 until 12 o'clock save for a brief intermission during which refreshments were served in Union hall. The decorations here were red carnations and the hall looked very attractive.

CHIMES OF NORMANDY

Successful Production of Knights of Columbus

"Ding-dong, ding-dong, ding-dong,
Ding-dong, ding-dong bell;
So the legend runneth, so the old men tell;
Ding-dong, ding-dong, ding-dong,
Ding-dong, ding-dong bell
When the long lost heir returneth, will ring the bell."

That tuneful melody, "The Chimes of Normandy," was presented in grand style at Music hall on Tuesday evening under the auspices of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus. It drew a large attendance of music lovers, who freely showed their appreciation of the efforts of the company by repeated encores so that it was nearly 11.30 before the curtain dropped at the conclusion of the last of the three acts.

The opera was staged under the personal supervision of Daniel E. Bowen of Boston, who also staged the "Mikado" for Quincy council a year ago. The success which attended that production was repeated again Tuesday night, and the smoothness with which the opera ran showed the result of the weeks of training. O'Dell's orchestra furnished the musical accompaniment.

The scene is laid in one of the old-fashioned Norman villages of Corneville, in the seventeenth century. The first act shows a group of village gossips discussing scandal and small talk and Serpolette. She comes in just in time to change their taunts into expressions of rage. Gaspard, the miser, who has been charged by the Marquis to bring up Germaine, the Marchioness, as a peasant, in ignorance of her social position desires to marry her to the Bailli. Germaine, objects, and to escape becomes the servant of the Ma quis. The second act is taken up with the supernatural visitors who have long made the castle an object of dread. Henri, the Marquis, determines to find out the real character of the ghostly appearances, and discovers it to be Gaspard, the old miser, who has concealed his treasures there. The discovery drives Gaspard crazy, especially when he hears the bells ringing for the first time since the flight of the old Marquis. In the meantime papers have been found which Serpolette uses to substantiate her claim as a marchioness, the lost heiress. Gaspard recovers his reason in the final act and shows that Germaine is the true marchioness, and a love duet between her and Henri brings the romantic story to a close.

It would be hard to single out either one of the principal characters and say that they excelled, but especial mention should be made of the work of Miss Helen L. Galvin, as Serpolette, and Miss Mary R. Lyons, as Germaine. The work of Edward J. Sullivan, as Henri; William Wilson, as Jean Grenicheaux; John A. McGowan, the miser, and Marcus Mahan as the Bailli, were all worthy of more than a passing notice.

The chorus was an exceptionally strong one, and rendered good support to the principal characters in their solos. The opera was brim full of musical numbers, many of which were roundly encored.

The cast of characters were:

Serpolette, the good-for-nothing,	Miss Helen L. Galvin
Germaine, the lost Marchioness,	Miss Mary R. Lyons
Gertrude, village maiden,	Miss M. Josephine McCarthy
Jeanne, village maiden,	Miss Rena Bizzozero
Manette, village maiden,	Miss Gertrude Reardon
Suzanne, village maiden,	Miss A. Gertrude Crowley
Henri, Marquis of Corneville,	Edward J. Sullivan
Jean Grenicheaux, a fisherman,	William Wilson
Gaspard, a miser,	John A. McGowan
The Bailli,	Marcus Mahan
Registrar,	John H. Heaney
Assessor,	Henry F. Magee
Notary,	Henry A. McGrath

In the chorus which made up the villagers and attendants of the Marquis were Miss Mary J. Dunn, Miss Mary A. Geary, Miss Louise Halloran, Miss Helena Monohan. Miss Lulu I. Crowley, Miss Elizabeth M. Dunn, Miss Annie W. McGilvray, Miss Helena Moynihan, Miss Teresa H. Keating, Miss Cassie T. Larkin, Miss Lillian Lyons, Mss Ethel E. Blair, Miss Josephine T. Colligan, Miss Julia B. Poader, Miss Elizabeth A. Lyons, Lawrence W. Lyons, George W. Berry, Daniel P. Donovan, John H. Heaney, Henry F. McGee, Alex D. Thompson, Charles E. Mills, Joseph M. Larkin, Raymond L. Brown, Frank J. Duffy, Andrew M. Driscoll, John H. Ronan, Harry H. Heffernan, John P. Thayer and Michael T. Walsh.

Edward P. Histon was the stage manager and the costumes and scenery were from well known Boston houses.

The opera will be repeated again tonight and a packed house is assured.

MEN'S CLUB ENTERTAIN.

A very entertaining program was presented at Bethany chapel Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Men's club. Col. Aurion V. Chevers, the vocal flute soloist and whistler, had something original to offer and was great. Miss Carrie L. Aiton is one of the finest violinists, and Mrs. Alexina Carter-Barrell is a clever soprano soloist. T. Everett Wallace in humorous sketches, and Mrs. W. Waldo Nichols as pianist completed the list of artists, and helped to make the evening a success.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The members of the newly formed Braintree council, 1462, Knights of Columbus, met Tuesday evening in the lower rooms of the St. Francis church and elected officers and discussed other matters of importance. The following were elected:

Grand Knight—Dr. C. A. Sullivan.
Deputy Grand Knight—Edward V. Heffernan.
Chancellor—Mosses H. McGaughey.
Warden—John F. Madden.
Recording Secretary—J. Raymond King.
Financial Secretary—John F. Kelley.
Treasurer—James G. Cuff.
Inside Guard—Frank Lane.
Outside Guard—Alfred DeCoste.
Trustees—Edward Shay, Paillip H. Sullivan and John H. Sullivan.

A committee consisting of J. Raymond King, John Mulcahy and Moses H. McGaughey were appointed to arrange for installation to take place at some early date.

On Sunday the new council expects to entertain 1,000 visiting knights from all parts of the State and the third degree will be worked on new members in the Town Hall.

VISITATION TO ELKS

District Deputy McAdams Had A Large Suite

District eDputy Grand Exalted Ruler Dr. Peter S. McAdams of Somerville and suite paid an official visit to Quincy lodge of Elks at its meeting Tuesday evening, and the occasion called out a large attendance of brothers and visitors.

On the deputy's suite were Charles A. Kelley of Boston lodge as grand esteemed leading knight; James J. Meagher, exalted ruler of Somerville lodge as grand esteemed loyal knight; Capt. Thomas C. Evans of Boston lodge as grand esteemed lecturing knight; John J. Corkery of Somerville as grand secretary; Richmond G. Stoehr of Boston lodge as grand treasurer; Charles T. Graham of Everett as grand chaplain; John J. Fallon of Winthrop lodge as grand trustee; F. Temple Scott of Somerville as grand inner guard; and Granville P. Rogers of Somerville lodge as grand esquire.

The grand officers were received with due honor by Exalted Ruler William J. Coleman and officers of Quincy lodge, and after the formalities of the visitation were over they witnessed an exemplification of the work, which was performed in a manner that drew from the visitors many words of commendation.

Following the business of the evening there were addresses by the deputy and several of his suite, after which an adjournment was made to the rooms of the Elks club on Foster street where Caterer Thompson served a banquet, the menu including lobster, chicken and potato salads, escalloped oysters, rolls, coffee, cake and ice cream. It was an evening long to be remembered by the members of Quincy lodge.

HOUGHS NECK CASE.

William Hanrahan went on the warpath at Houghs Neck Tuesday evening and for a time things were lively. From what can be learned Hanrahan visited the big city during the day time and looked long and unwisely on the wine when it was red in the cup. Arriving back at Houghs Neck in the early evening he was fully decorated with war paint. He had some grudge against one Victor J. Jarvis, and meeting him on the street it is alleged that he drew a jack knife and brandishing it in the air threatened to do him bodily harm.

Jarvis is somewhat of a sprinter and lost no time in making a hasty retreat with Hanrahan hot on his trail. The chase led into Powers barber shop where Jarvis took refuge and from which Powers ejected Hanrahan.

In the meantime Officer Phillips was notified and he found Hanrahan near the fire station hatless. He gathered him in and took him to the police station, where he was locked up on a complaint charging him with assault and battery and with drunkenness.

The cases came up in court and were continued until Feb. 2 under $200 bonds.

QUINCY MUSIC HALL

THE HIGHEST CLASS OF LICENSE—A THEATRE LICENSE, is now issued to Music Hall. Last year the fire exits and facilities for fire prevention were ample for a Hall License, but to obtain the present highest class of License, the whole main exit has been torn down and made absolutely fire-proof, large automatic smoke and fire vents have been constructed over the stage, all scenery has been made fire-proof, and the previous generous exit facilities have been very greatly increased. There are now ten (10) doors opening from the Hall, and six (6) separate exits, 2 of 8 feet each, 1 of 7 1-2 feet, 2 of 5 feet each, and 1 of 3 1-2 feet, a total of 37 feet of exit. All exits are lighted continually by both gas and electricity. There is an asbestos curtain, just specially rehung, by which the stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are chemical fire extinguishers, and fire pails throughout the Hall.

The Location is in the heart of the city. The street cars with double tracks pass the door.

The Elaborate, Permanent Decorations which have recently been put up are most attractive, and add much to the appearance of the Hall.

The Electric Light Festoon over the entrance way, flashing first red, then white, is a unique feature of much value.

The Moonlight Effect obtained by having the electric light come through Japanese lanterns is a pleasing novelty.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded Hall.

The Hall Is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a switchboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a particularly generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards are valuable.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish an absolutely safe and large and really first class Hall.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Fore River Co., have the right man to lead them on. He goes to London and easily "Bowles" over all foreign competitors.

Many who are elated over the prospects of a big year for Quincy in all respects wonder if that Philadelphia shipbuilding company have the "Cramps."

Senator Teeling's bill offered in the Senate last week to make Oct. 12 a legal holiday to be known as Columbus day, meets with favor as many would like a holiday about every month.

Quincy has not yet come out against paying such enormous prices for meat. Is it because we get it cheaper or have our eyes glued only on the future and that money from Argentine Republic?

When the news reaches far away Africa that the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., was successful in securing the Argentine battleships to build, it is safe to predict that ex-President Roosevelt will say more than, "delighted."

Would it not be a good idea for the local merchants, now that they have organized to plan for a Merchants' exposition to be held in one of the larger halls of this city? We believe the merchants would secure the co-operation of all in and out of town buyers and in this way interest not a few residents who go out of town to spend their earnings. The Daily Ledger stands ready to do its share on any idea of this kind and asks interested parties to carefully consider the feasibility of waking Quincy shoppe's in this manner.

The number of violent deaths in Quincy is appalling. In our industries and upon our railroads they occur with remarkable frequency, scarcely a week passing without one or more to record. The jud.. of the district court recently held three inquests in one day. No part of the city seems to be free from these accidents. Fatalities during the last few months can be recalled near the railroad stations at West Quincy, Quincy Adams Quincy, Wollaston, Norfolk Downs and Atlantic. When these are supplemented by the accidents at the shipyard and quarries and by electric wires and drowning, the list becomes lengthy, and statistics for the year 1909 would surprise many. Usually these accidents are due to carelessness of the individual, showing that greater care should be exercised at all times.

NEPONSET BRIDGE.

It is reported that the electric cars will be run over the Neponset bridge this week. People using the electric cars will greatly appreciate this. The public have, however, been extremely patient under the conditions imposed upon them. It seems as though it would have been only the fair thing to do for the Electric Railway Company to have kept a car on the bridge to be used as a waiting room by its patrons. In the bad weather for the last few weeks it has been not only uncomfortable, but absolutely unsafe for people who have to wait on the bridge for cars which were hardly ever there when due. The starters, moreover, seem to take pleasure in blowing their whistle to start the cars before the last few persons were able to get to the cars, often leaving old people behind. Everyone will be glad when these conditions are improved.

Eight Cases of Diphtheria on Board the Ranger

Boston, Jan. 26.—Eight cases of diphtheria have been reported on the United States training ship Ranger. The rest of the 300 students have been sent to their homes. At present the ship is in quarantine off the North End park.

Last night one of the officers said: "It is impossible to say how the students contracted this sickness. Eight of the boys are at present confined to the hospital section of the boat, while the commander believed it advisable to send the rest of the men home, until these eight get well."

Postoffice Department Puts Free Mail Ban on Seed Labels

Washington, Jan. 26.—A question having been raised concerning the right to transmit labels for seed packages through the mails under congressional frank, the law officer of the postoffice department has ruled that such labels are not public documents within the meaning of the law, and that, therefore, they cannot be mailed free of charge.

This appears to be a very simple ruling; but, as a matter of fact, it will affect a good many members of congress, who have been sending to postmasters in their districts seed labels with instructions to mail the seeds, also sent free in packages to those who desired them.

PERSIANS MASSACRED

At Least Fifty Killed Since Religious War Started at Bokhara

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—The religious conflicts at Bokhara between the Sunnites and Shiahs, which have been going on for several days, were renewed Tuesday. The Sunnites declare their intention not to desist so long as a single official of Persian origin remains in office.

Even the arrival of a company of Russian cossacks from Samarkand proved inefficient to restore order. The massacre of Persians continues unchecked. At least fifty persons have been killed and many times that number wounded.

Votes For Women

(From the New Bedford Mercury)

I had a Christmas postcard from a
dear misguided friend,
The stamps aroused my wonder and my mirth;
For "Votes For Women" flourished
there below "Good-will to Men,"
And kept company beside with
"Peace on Earth."

The suffragettes smash windows, lash
prime ministers with whips,
And when they get the vote they'll do the same.
When party wrath is rising they will
lash and smash again,
Why not? What's "Peace on Earth"
to such a dame?

MEN'S CLUB OF WOLLASTON

Learn of Juvenile Court and Discuss Schoolhouse

At the meeting of the Wollaston Congregational Men's club on Tuesday evening Judge Harvey H. Baker of the Boston Juvenile court spoke on the "Juvenile court."

The conditions with which the court has to deal, said Judge Baker, are due largely to two classes of things, the relation of the foreign boy to his parents, and the broken home.

In the ordinary American home the child looks to his parents, but in the foreign home, in most cases, the parents have not learned the language and the parents turn to the child for everything. Thus it is that the foreign boy of from 12 to 18 knows no parental authority. For this reason the probation officer has to provide the balance power instead of the home and as an agency of assimilation does a large business.

The one practical difference between the juvenile court and the session for juvenile offenders, is in the time spent on each case by the court. With its large proportion of cases in comparison to its number of officers the latter is unable to spend as much time as the former. In the juvenile court it is the endeavor to obtain the truth from the boys themselves instead of from witnesses. This, although it takes much more time, is done for three reasons: First, to make a proper disposition of the case Then to obtain the cooperation of the parents which is no small help in keeping the child straight. Lastly, to be able to handle the boy if put on probation, as it is much easier if the boy is prevailed upon to confide in the judge and probation officer. Mr. Baker told of the help of churches and charitable institutions in the investigation and disposition of certain cases.

He referred to the probation officer as the arms, ears, eyes and brain of the court and told of the good work being done by good men.

In closing he asked for the moral support of the club and their assistance in all kinds of local preventive work such as boys' clubs, Y. M. C. A's, settlement work, and the like.

Judge Avery of the local court, who was an interested guest of the club, when called upon, gave a resume of the progress of the juvenile court and the probation system since their institution. He also quoted some interesting facts regarding court work in Quincy. During the year 448 were placed on probation. Of these 48 were arrested again. While on probation 18 were arrested. Of 39 cases defaulted in 1909 20 left the city. Out of the total number of cases, 16 did not live in this district. Last year the money collected and turned over amounted to $2273.20.

Rufus B. Tobey reported progress for the schoolhouse committee and spoke of the steps that would have to be taken.

Charles R. Sherman spoke at length on the schoolhouse question and stated that there was a difference of opinion as to where the new school should be located.

The usual roast beef supper was served, Rev. E. A. Chase asking the blessing.

Detroit, Jan. 26.—Hugh Cannon, composer of the ragtime classics "Goo-Goo Eyes," "Bill Bailey," etc., has been admitted to the poorhouse.

SACE FOR DARKENING THE HAIR.

There is nothing new about the idea of using sage for restoring the color of the hair. Our great-grandmothers kept their locks soft, dark and glossy by using a "sage tea." Whenever their hair fell out or took on a dull, faded or streaked appearance, they made a brew of sage leaves and applied it to their hair with wonderfully beneficial effect. Nowadays we don't have to resort to the old-time, tiresome method of gathering the herbs and making the brew. This is done by skillful chemists better than we could do it ourselves, and all we have to do is to call for the ready-made product. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, containing sage in the proper strength, with the addition of Sulphur, another old-time scalp remedy. This preparation is sold by all first-class druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

FLYER'S CREW KILLED

Engineer Perhaps Responsible For Locomotive Leaving the Track

St. Johnsville, N. Y., Jan. 26.—Two men were killed, another severely hurt and scores of passengers hurled from their berths to the floor, as the locomotive of the Twentieth Century Limited train on the New York Central railroad, flying eastward at sixty miles or more an hour, jumped the track a mile west of here, turned completely over and slid along for 300 feet. The rest of the train was jerked partly from the track, but remained upright.

The dead are John Scanlon, engineer, and Melvin J. Handville, fireman. William Hyde, a mail clerk, was the man injured.

The blame for the wreck is believed to have been a mistake of the engineer as to the rate of speed the train was running. The man is dead and there is no one who can explain it otherwise.

DERELICT ABANDONED

Revenue Cutter With the Fiske In Tow Driven on Shoals

Boston, Jan. 26.—The tug Underwriter left port last night in response to a wireless call for help from the revenue cutter Gresham, which was owing the hulk of the Boston schooner Henry B. Fiske, made a derelict off Nantucket Saturday, to the nearest port.

The Gresham reported having made but forty miles in thirty hours, and that she was driven with her tow on Nantucket shoals, and that the schooner stuck amid the breakers and had to be abandoned last night.

The overturned hull is supposed to contain the bodies of some of the crew of eight men.

STRIKE SITUATION GROWING SERIOUS

Employes In Two Fall River Mills Quit Work

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 26.—Seven hundred operatives in the textile plant of the Barnaby company were made idle by a strike of quillers, beamers and slasher tenders, which threw out 175 weavers and 20 loomfixers.

A general strike is threatened at the Borden plant, where 100 weavers in No 2 mill went out.

The outlook is regarded as serious and the strike sentiment seems to pervade the ranks of the workers in all mills.

The beamers, quillers and slasher tenders demand a guarantee of $12 a week. The Barnaby plant weavers say they are satisfied with the wage scale, but demand better warp and filling material. They say that unless material is of better quality they cannot maintain speed at the looms.

ATHLETE STRICKEN

Collapses on Edge of Swimming Tank at Brown University

Providence, Jan. 26.—Harold A. Baines, a Brown freshman and the captain of last year's Exeter baseball team, suffered a complete collapse on the edge of the swimming tank at Brown, fell into the pool, and when pulled out was found to be unconscious and in agony. He is in a critical condition.

Whether the cause of illness is acute poisoning or the effect of water getting into the lungs, physicians have not determined. The theory is entertained that Baines is suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

FERRON DECLARED INSANE

Slayer of Lowell Woman Committed to an Asylum For Life

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 26.—Henri Ferron of Lowell, aged 29, was given a life sentence in the Bridgewater asylum for the criminal insane, by Judge Bond. Ferron was charged with murder in the first degree, but was recently adjudged insane by a lunacy commission. On July 1, 1909, at Lowell, he killed Flora Rivers in a tenement house with a knife.

Death of Lotta Faust

New York, Jan. 26.—Lotta Faust, well known as a singer in musical comedies and light opera, died here of pneumonia. Miss Faust was born in Brooklyn in 1880. Before going on the stage she was a cash girl in a Brooklyn department store.

Held For Policeman's Death

Boston, Jan. 26.—Henry J. Leavey was held for the grand jury on the charge of murder in killing Patrolman Daniel J. F. Donovan at the corner of Beach and Hudson streets on Jan. 13. He was remanded without bail to jail.

Grieved Widows Seek Sympathy

Madrid, Jan. 26.—A touching scene took place at the palace when Queen Victoria received in special audience five widows of superior officers killed at Melilla. Each widow was received separately and told her tale of grief and misery.

Lawrence Mill Strike Settled

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 26.—Differences between the management and employes of the Atlantic cotton mills in this city, which resulted in a strike of about 350 operatives, were adjusted last evening.

DRIVEN FROM THEIR HOMES

Thousands of People in Paris Are Suffering From Floods

Paris, Jan. 26.—The river authorities this morning announced that the Seine would continue to rise until Thursday, and would exceed the high record of 1802.

The Lyons Railroad company sent out a notification that all service out of Paris has been suspended.

The great bonded warehouses at Bercy appear to be doomed to destruction, involving an immense loss. The merchants are hurriedly removing what they can.

At Colombes the Seine threatens momentarily to mount the parapet and flood the populous working class suburb of Genhevilliers, six miles northwest of the center of Paris. This place has a population of about 7000.

Telegrams have been sent by the military authorities to the generals in the provinces to hurry pontoons, bedding and sappers to the points where the floods are most severe.

The minister of marine has ordered the authorities of the ports to dispatch lifeboats and crews to Paris.

A steamboat pontoon broke from its moorings this morning and was swept against one of the arches of the Pont de l'Alma, completely obstructing the river at that point. It probably will have to be blown up.

Floods have now broken out in the south, the rivers Gers, Charcate, Adour and Dordogne having overflowed their banks. Fierce storms are raging along the coast, filling the ports with shipping in distress.

At Conflans fourteen houses collapsed. The Aube canal has burst, flooding St. Just and several other villages.

The victims of the flood number more than 100,000 and the monetary loss is incalculable. Thousands of poor are hopelessly ruined and are fleeing to Paris.

The government by urgent measures has requisitioned army and navy material to house the sufferers, and boats for the rescue of the stricken as well as those imprisoned in the houses in the flood centers on all sides of Paris.

The region of inundation is steadily enlarging, and villages in scores of places are completely submerged, the people fleeing for their lives and abandoning everything.

In many cases the soldiers have been obliged to use force in compelling the inhabitants to evacuate their homes. Hundreds of them refused to leave, clamoring only for food and water.

In Paris the situation is rapidly becoming worse, the floods sparing neither the rich nor the poor. The flood is insidiously invading the compactly built area on either side of the winding Seine, undermining the residences and public buildings and forcing the evacuation of many houses. All the streets in one arrondissement in the southeastern section are running rivers.

Every hour helps to complete the tie-up of the telephone, telegraph and railroads. The subway and train services are diminishing, and in every section gas and electric lights are failing.

Paris is practically cut off south and west, and if the present conditions continue the question of food supplies will become menacing. The senate unanimously adopted an appropriation of $400,000 for national relief, and various societies are sending out calls for aid. The public fund for this purpose is swelling.

The entire population of Ivry-Sur-Seine and adjacent places, which are completely covered with water, are in a desperate state. Only the tops of the houses at Alfortville are visible, the water averaging twelve feet in the streets.

Lightning Reveals Riches

Dalhart, Tex., Jan. 26.—Mrs. Joseph Pettis declares that a bolt of lightning struck the ground on the mountainside near her farm house and uncovered a spring of crude oil, which is now producing 200 barrels daily. Previously the land had barely yielded enough to support her.

Taft Favors Two New States

Washington, Jan. 26.—Governor Sloan of Arizona had a long talk with President Taft regarding statehood for Arizona and New Mexico. Taft assured Sloan that he would use his best efforts to see that a separate statehood bill of some sort was had at the present session of congress.

The January meeting of the Hospital Aid Association will be held tomorrow afternoon at three o'clock with Mrs. Wilson Tisdale, Hancock street. At the annual meeting the old board of officers was reelected but the association is considering disbanding. It is hoped there will be a large attendance tomorrow and that new interest will be created.

Mrs. W. E. Alden of Chestnut street is hostess this week for the Friday club. The club misses this season several of its old and faithful members among them Mrs. Otho A. Hayward and Mrs. Zenas S. Arnold, both of whom are ill and unable to enter into active club life.

• • •

• • •

The committee on music of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's clubs has many interesting programs, cantatas and musical sketches, which may be obtained by applying to the chairman; also papers on the lives of composers, and their works, which have been kindly offered. The committee will gladly do all they can to assist clubs with their musical work. Mrs. Elizabeth Rowan, chairman, Watertown, Mass.

• • •

The Philergians of Braintree present a program of unusual merit at their next meeting on Feb. 1st. It will be the annual musicale and "Parsifal and the Holy Grail" will be given illustrated with colored slides.

• • •

The Wollaston Alliance is to have its annual gentlemen's night o evening meeting on Wednesday of next week, when Rev. Joel H. Metcalf will lecture on "Astronomy" with illustrations by the stereopticon.

• • •

Mothers' Association closes its year's program on Wednesday afternoon at Bethany chapel, meeting at three o'clock as usual. Mrs. H. H. Hill will conduct the devotional exercises and a paper "Child Culture—the old way and the new" will be read by Mrs. L. E. Wetherell. Miss Gladys Pontifix will be the soloist.

• • •

The American Forestry association which recently met in Washington for its 29th conference adopted resolutions accepting the cooperation of the National Federation of Women's clubs. This means that 800,000 women will interest themselves in the campaign for forest preservation.

• • •

Miss Lottie Crabtree who recently purchased the Faxon house on Hancock street, corner of Beale, has made application for membership in the Professional Woman's club of Boston, which already has a few members from Quincy.

• • •

The Old Colony club of Weymouth presents Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell" at Fogg's Opera house tomorrow afternoon, for ladies only. It is to be given under the direction of Mrs. Henry B. Reed and the cast is a strong one.

• • •

Quincy Day Nursery Association meets next Tuesday afternoon at the Women's clubhouse for its regular monthly meeting. The committee on the Valentine dancing parties for the benefit of the Nursery report good success and many subscribers. The dances are to be held at Music hall Feb. 11 and 12.

• • •

The Westland Quartet which will appear at First church chapel Friday evening, includes Miss May Belle Grace Dadmun, soprano, and Mrs. Dorothy McTaggart Miller alto, both of Boston, Mrs. Emma Schufeldt Moore and Mis Alice Gertrude Coe of this city. All of these ladies are well known solo singers and in ensemble work they are not only a delight to the ear, but to the eye as well. Their concert will be a very pleasant ending to this season's Alliance course of entertainments, the first which has been offered in several years.

Ex-Governor Guild will address the State Federation of Women's Clubs Tuesday, Feb. 1, in Park Street, Boston, his subject to be "The Preservation and Use of Some of the Natural Reou ces of New England." An interesting feature of the day will be the presence of the New England Federation presidents who are to speak.

• • •

The annual meeting of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Universalist church wa held Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. Jennie Holton, Edwards street. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Thomas A. Addison; vice president, Mrs. Robert G. Reed; secretary, Mrs. George E. Sprague and treasurer, Mrs. Frank A. Hobart. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George E. Sprague, Washington street, Tuesday, Feb. 1.

• • •

Mary Elizabeth Granger, granddaughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank Granger of Randolph, who this week became a member of the Junior Sons and Daughters of the Revolution, is the youngest junior in the state, being only two months old.

QUINCY WOMEN'S CLUB.

It was an overflow meeting of the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday afternoon, not only the seating capacity but all available standing room being used. It was the annual musicale the most popular in the year's program and always draws out the club membership and many guests.

Promptly at half past two Mrs. Gurney, president called the meeting together for the business session. The secretary's report was followed by announcements from various committees

Mrs. Tenney for the Arts and Crafts committee said her committee had been very busy holding seventy lessons weekly and invited club members to view some of the work after the meeting. New classes were to be started late in February and any wishing to join could hand their names to her committee.

Mrs. W. G. Shaw for the Civic committee expressed the thanks of her committee to the merchants, press, post office officials and all who helped so generously with the Red Cross stamp sales at the holiday season. $256.23 was raised by the sale of stamps for the tuberculosis work in Quincy.

Mrs. John Mackay for the Education committee said after conference with Supt. Barbour it was thought best for her committee not to undertake the work of providing lunches at the High school as the matter was being looked into by the School Committee with a view of taking up the work.

Mrs. Charles Beckford for the Art and Literature committee announced that another group was being made up to visit the Boston Art Museum on Wednesday Feb. 2 at 10.30 A. M. Twenty-five could go. Names of those wishing to join group should be handed to Mrs. Bickford.

Mrs. W. W. Whitcher for the Visiting Nurse committee said funds enough had been contributed to care for Nurse's expenses until fall. Contributions had been received as follows: $50 from Dr. Brackett, $50 from Unity Circle King's Daughters, $10 from the Ladies Catholic club and other personal gifts. Mrs. Whitcher wished each club member would give $1 a year, making the contribution in February.

Mrs. Wilson Marsh presented a matter which had been suggested to her that treasurers of organizations be given the use of the clubhouse for the annual collection of their dues.

Mrs. H. J. Gurney and Mrs. Walter S. Pinkham were elected delegates to the Federation meeting at the Park Street Church, Boston, and it was hoped club members would also go. Tickets could be obtained of the corresponding secretary Mrs. Tirrell.

The by-laws were taken up for the discussion of the Standing Rules, which included, membership, tickets department work, etc. The e was not much discussion except on the one relating to the removal of hats at club meetings. The debate was animated, for and against and resulted in the vote to have hats removed except by ladies on the platform or those sitting where their hats would not obstruct anyone's view.

Mrs. Gurney then introduced Mrs. William H. Doble, chairman of the Music committee who in turn gracefully introduced the artists of the afternoon.

The Carolyn Belcher String Quartet: Carolyn Belcher, first violin; Anna Eichhorn, second violin; Sara Corbett viola and Charlotte White, violin cello; assisted by Elsie Leighton Livermore in original monologues, gave the following prog am:

Allegro Giusto, G Major Quartet	Bazzini
A Parish Call Miss Livermore.	Original
Andante Cantabile, D Major	Tschaikowsky
Valse Noble	Nedbal
Folksongs Quartet	Konzak
A Sidewalk Conversation Miss Livermore	Original
A Flat Major: lenta molto cantabile and molota vivace Quartet	Dvorak

The program was a most enjoyable one and appreciation was shown in the numerous encores. The smoothness and rythm of the playing of the quartet was a pleasure. Each interpreted understandingly, the whole being complete artistically. One of the most enjoyable numbers was the Andante Cantabile from quartet in D major.

Miss Livermore was an instant favorite being heartily received and always encored. Her monologues were new and original. Her success is due in a great measure to her ease and naturalness of delivery and pose, combined with a pleasing personality. In the readings with piano accompaniment the musical quality of her voice was brought out to great advantage.

Following the program refreshments were served by the Hospitality committee the hostesses for the afternoon being Mrs. Russell C. Low, chairman of the committee, Mrs. Jesse I. Litchfield and Mrs. J. F. Andrews. Hot coffee tea and sandwiches were served The pourers were Mrs. J. Henry Emery, Mrs. Samuel E. Ames, Mrs. Richard Harding and Mrs. Horace G. Crocker. The assisting committee were club members whose names begin with C. D. E. and F. The committee donated the delicious sandwiches.

The next meeting, Feb. 8 will be at First Church chapel when Henry Turner Bailey will speak on "A More Beautiful Quincy." It is hoped members will bring men guests to this meeting.

QUINCY ALLIANCE.

The Alliance met in the ladies' parlor of First church, Monday afternoon at three o'clock with the president, Mrs. E. B. Marsh, in the chair. After the devotional exercises the reports of secretary ,treasurer, Post office mission and cheerful letter committees were read. A plea was made from Wellfleet for books for the library there, that was recently burned. The corresponding secretary gave a report of the Alliance meeting, held in Brockton the fourteenth of this month.

Miss Austin of Cambridge, then sang a very pleasing solo "Hold Thou my hand."

Mrs. Marsh introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. James Huxtable, of South Boston, who spoke most inspiringly on Tolstoi.

He prefaced his talk by giving some beautiful thoughts of his idea of the purpose, the aim, the wherefor of life. This great question, "what is the purpose of life," he said, was the thought of Tolstoi's teachings.

In telling of Tolstoi's early life, Mr. Huxtable said, he was brought up in society and later on grew to hate the pretense, the sham and the emptiness of this same society. The "purpose," of life as was taught him then, consisted of four fundamentals; to speak French fluently, to keep his fingernails well pared and shaped to make a model bow and dance, and to culti-

KERESEY, FRIEND OF HOMELESS.

Altruist Ex-Policeman Who Adopted Would Be Suicide.

THE FATHER OF TEN CHILDREN

Promised to Show New York Orphan Nobody Wanted That Life Is Worth Living—Took Him to His Farm to Make a Man of Him.

When William Van Hove, an orphan, sixteen years old, was taken to the Yorkville police court in New York city the other day and charged with attempted suicide he said to Magistrate Krotel:

"W'at show has a kid like me to get along? Nobody wants me. Me married brudder puts me outer his home 'cause I couldn't get work."

"What do you work at when you do work?" the magistrate asked.

"I can work as a grocer's boy or a butcher's boy or run errands or almost anything, but me clothes are full o' holes, an' I couldn't get a job. I'm on'y in the way, an' a kid like me's better off dead," the boy said.

Policeman Haverty of the East Fifty-first street station told the court that on Friday, Jan. 7, the boy went into a restaurant at 462 Sixth avenue and with his last nickel got a cup of hot coffee. After he drank the coffee he was drinking iodine from a vial when a waiter interrupted him. He was taken to Flower hospital, where he remained until taken to the Yorkville police court.

Found a Friend In Court.

A tall man in a fur overcoat stepped up on the court bridge and said to his honor:

"If you will turn this boy over to me I will give him a home and make a man of him. I'll be grateful to you if you will give me the opportunity of befriending one in trouble. I am interested in the down and outs, and I have another unfortunate New York boy on my farm. For reference I may inform you that Brother William, the director of the Catholic protectory in Westchester, N. Y., is my brother-in-law."

"Who are you?" Magistrate Krotel asked.

"I'm Redmond P. Keresey, a retired policeman. You may have heard of me and my mount Pompey when we did duty in the Bronx and along Seventh avenue. He was a fine horse in stopping runaways and often got his and my name in the papers. He's with me now on my farm at Rye."

Keresey said that after twenty-two years in the New York police department he retired four years ago and went to live on his farm.

"The wife and I have brought up ten children, and she and I find comfort and happiness in them. I think we have had our share of luck in this world, and I attribute it to holding out a helping hand to those that need help. Three homeless boys that I took home are now doing well. One is in Wall street in a small way, and another has been successful in business."

Companions For Many Years.

Keresey went on to explain that the police department bought Pompey in 1888 when he was six years old. Keresey got him then, and the two were companions for eighteen years. In 1902 the department pronounced the horse too old for police service and put him up at auction. Keresey bought him and took him to his farm, where he had plenty to eat and no work to do. Pompey is now twenty-eight years old.

"Do you want to go with this man who offers to give you a home?" the magistrate asked the boy.

"Yes; I'll go, and thanks," the boy responded.

"You won't try to kill yourself again?"

"S' long as I have a home and work I don't want to die."

The magistrate discharged the boy, who left court with the former policeman and took the next train for Rye.

It was one of Keresey's own boys who had pointed out the newspaper paragraph telling about the youth's attempted suicide. This had suggested his action in trying to help the boy.

—John T. Sullivan, chief of the police department of Spokane has accepted the recommendation of Mrs. B. H. Mason, assistant state labor commissioner in Washington, and will appoint a woman as a police officer to take care of juvenile cases visiting parks, theatres and dance halls. The new officer will have a star and power to make arrests, but she will not be obliged to wear the regulation uniform or carry a night-stick. Knowledge of conditions, tact and alertness, it is announced, will count for more than size and strength, but it is expected that the candidates for the job will have to pass the civil service examination. Twenty years' service entitles the officer to pension at half pay during the remainder of her life. This pension is also paid to male officers for similar service. Chief Sullivan says if the eagerness to get on the police force in Spokane is anything like it was at Seattle and Tacoma, which have women on their staffs, the rush will be greater than any bargain-counter combat ever pulled off in any city in the commonwealth.

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water. Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.

Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

REGULARS FARE BADLY

Over a Thousand Killed and Wounded In Battle In Nicaragua

Bluefields, Jan. 26.—Four hundred killed and wounded was the price the insurgents paid for a victory over the Madriz government troops near Acoyapa and the regulars lost over 1000, according to the report of General Chamorro, rebel commander.

Worked by Americans, the insurgents' machine guns covered the retirement of the rebels after they had sharply defeated General Vasquez, but had themselves suffered severely.

As the result of his defeat, Vasquez has demanded immediate reinforcements from Managua. According to information supplied by insurgent spies, Madriz has no troops in reserve, and his position as president is untenable.

HALL'S STORY DOUBTED

May Have Been Told to Escape Service In the Navy

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 26.—James E. Hall, self-confessed murderer of Anna Schumacher, reached here last night in charge of Sheriff Gillett, who appears to have some doubt about the sensational confession made by the man, who has recently been a naval prisoner at Portsmouth, N. H.

Hall has never concealed his dislike of the navy, from which he was dishonorably discharged Monday after his confession. If his story of the murder now proves to have been false, the civil authorities will have to release him, and the government, having discharged him from the service, can have no further claim on him and he will have made a novel escape from the duty he disliked.

The Pickwick club meets next Wednesday evening with Miss Marjorie Fay of Wollaston Park. Mrs. William E. Alden and Mrs. George L. Badger will edit the "Pickwick Magazine."

C. F. Doble of the class of 1911 at Technology will accompany the allied musical clubs of the institute on their tour next week, which includes concerts at Buffalo, Detroit, Chicago, Rochester and New York city.

William Butler Yeats will be the subject of a talk by Herbert Arnold Sunday evening at the meeting of the Y. P. R. U., in First Church chapel. There will be special music by Miss Minnie Packard. Mr. Arnold has been several months in Greece since he last addressed the Union.

Mr. H. Lambert Murphy, who will sing the tenor part at the Messiah concert on Feb. 15th has succeeded in attaining a very high place among the professional singers of Boston in his two years residence there. His success in so short a time is the best criterion of his ability. In last season's announcement the Choral Society presented him as a young singer just beginning to be well and favorably known in our large cities; but in one year's time this is changed indeed, for at the present moment he is announced as the tenor soloist for the Handel and Haydn concert, in conjunction with Mrs. Kileski Bradbury soprano, and Mr. DeGogorza of New York, baritone. His success, based on pure merit alone, should be an impetus to some who are inclined to believe that real worth can not win its way in these latter days of musical trusts and unions.

Mothers find Perry Davis' Painkiller invaluable in the nursery, and it should be kept at hand in case of accident. If the milk passages are clogged, from cold, or other causes, bathing in the Painkiller will give immediate relief. Ask for New 25c. Bottle.

THREAT ISSUED BY GERMANY

To Apply General Tariff to Our Exports After Feb. 7

UNITED STATES IN DILEMMA

Has Too Little Time to Negotiate For Terms With Countries With Which There Has Been a Hitch—Propositions of German Goverment Not Rejected Because of Meat Question—One Side Must Retreat Ungracefully

Washington, Jan. 26.—Germany is playing a desperate game to try to force the hand of the United States in the matter of the tariff controversy. She has made peremptory demand that the United States decide this week whether German imports shall be received here under the minimum tariff, under threat to apply her general tariff to American exports after Feb. 7.

This is the real situation of the great controversy. The United States has been misrepresented as holding out exclusively on the cattle question and making the admission of live cattle to Germany the sine qua non of its position with reference to the application of the Payne-Aldrich maximum.

While this is regarded by the administration as a very important consideration, it is one which perhaps might have been waived were it the only thing standing in the way of a satisfactory termination of negotiations.

As a political proposition the cattle question is a loaded one in this country, for with the popular feeling against the beef trust and the frenzy of the country over high prices, the government might well hesitate to assume the responsibility of a tariff war with Germny merely to provide another market for the products of the American live stock interests or cattle-raisers.

For this and other reasons the report that Secretary Knox has rejected all the propositions of the German government on the ground that they did not make satisfactory concessions to American meat is untrue. Although no official statements on this point are available, it seems apparent that Germany is trying to take advantage of the embarrassment of the United States in having too little time in which to negotiate for terms with countries, like Germany, with which there has been a hitch.

Some months ago the tariff board unofficially expressed its doubts of being able to deal with all situations which might arise in the limited time between them and March 31, when the maximum rates will go into effect towards all countries not exempted by proclamation by the president. It was seriously proposed that congress should extend the limit, but no effort was made to obtain legislation, chiefly because of the reluctance of the leaders to reopen any phase of the tariff situation.

Now Germany has sent across a defiant ultimatum, and the state department finds itself in exactly the dilemma which had been predicted. It cannot yield on any demand made by Germany without incurring the criticism that it has been beaten in a diplomatic game, and it has no time to make a peaceful arrangement by negotiation. The German government faces the same difficulty as our own, in that it is unwilling to throw the tariff question into the reichstag, where the agrarians control. These rich landholders are determined to supply Germany with their own meats at the highest prices they can get, and as the question is one of dollars and cents with them, it admits of very limited discussion.

The course of the American state department has been conciliatory and adopted with the express purpose of avoiding a tariff war if possible. It is evident that the German government has been forced into the position from which either one side must retreat ungracefully, or both sides determine that a tariff war must ensue. As negotiations with two other great countries—France and Canada—are also hanging fire, the seriousness of the situation may be appreciated. Germany is the second largest customer of the United States in the world, and Canada the largest for our manufactures.

FOOD PRICES TUMBLING

Recession All Along the Line Shows That Boycott Is Effective

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Chicago is beginning to feel the effects of the agitation against the high price of meat, reductions in the cost of eggs, butter, potatoes, pork, beef and grain showing that the nation-wide boycott is bearing fruit.

The abstinence movement, it is conceded, is still in its infancy. Before its course is run it is believed that the public at large will save a vast sum owing to the reduced cost of living.

With official investigations started in New York and Ohio, and with many other states practically certain to take similar action, the general feeling here is that the anti-trust movement is not a flash in the pan, but that it will have a permanent effect for the public good.

FACING DIFFICULT TASK

British Liberals Cannot Be Independent of Laborites and Nationalists

London, Jan. 26.—The announcement of Unionist gains continues with unbroken regularity. Out of thirty-three results declared during Tuesday the opposition had nine gains, of which one was in Scotland and one in Ireland. Against these the Liberals were only able to get two gains in Scotland.

The elections will continue throughout the week, but the chances of the Unionists obtaining a majority, or of the Liberals securing enough seats to render them independent of the Laborites and Nationalists, have now disappeared, and it beomes a most interesting question as to how the Liberal government is going to meet the difficult task before it.

PRESIDENT CHECKS DECLINE IN STOCKS

He Denies Drastic Action Against Big Corporations

New York, Jan. 26.—President Taft was forced to declare his attitude toward the large interests in the stock market to check a decline which had reached proportions of a panic.

His denial of intention to take immediate or drastic action against corporations, especially steel, but is after the food trusts, restored the market, but not until nearly all the leading stocks had suffered a slump.

There was an enormous volume of stock hurled into the market and a heartbreaking melting of prices. Wall street saw the first semblance of panicky conditions since Nov. 21, 1907. The selling came from everywhere.

HALL NOT YET FOUND

Sympathy For Missing Bank Treasurer Turns In Opposite Direction

Southbridge, Mass., Jan. 26.—No new clue as to the whereabouts of John A. Hall, alleged defaulting treasurer of the suspended Southbridge Savings bank, has reached the police.

The sympathy of the public, which has been drifting towards Hall in the belief that his alleged irregularities were not of a criminal character, shifted in the opposite direction when an official of the bank stated that the discrepancy in the accounts of the institution would reach a high figure.

The expert accountants are still examining the bank books, but no statement will be made as to the size of the shortage until the work is completed.

POLE HUNT UNDER THE SEA

German Inventor to Build a Submarine For That Purpose

Berlin, Jan. 26.—The old idea of reaching the North Pole by submarine, as was so graphically set forth in Jules Verne's story of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," has been revived by the announcement that Dr. Anschutz Kemp, the inventor, has resolved to make the attempt.

It is said that he has been working for a decade upon the project, and that he will build a submarine of his own design. It will be capable, it is asserted, of remaining under water at a great depth for a long period.

ENJOYING SPRING WEATHER

Newfoundland People Are Discarding Their Winter Garments

St. John's, Jan. 26.—Newfoundland has experienced extraordinary weather conditions during the past week. Few spring days could surpass for equable pleasure and comfort the conditions of the past seven days.

There has been absolutely no snow, the temperature is of the mildest, without humidity, and nearly everyone has doffed winter garments in favor of those usually worn in spring.

vate a contemptuous weariness for anything good.

Mr. Huxtable then gave a brief outline of the chief events of his life, of his joining the Russian army, and while in that of his first writings, and of his return to his estate and from that time on his study and life among his peasants.

As he grew older, Mr. Huxtable said, he began to grow morbid and could seem to find no ease of mind, and simply because he could find no satisfactory answer to questions such as these; what does it all mean? why am I? where am I going? what is the purpose of life? He turned to religion to be answered, but here he found in the church, at least, as he called it, the churchianity not Christianity and that did not help him. Science dealt with things and Philosophy with what was abstract therefore they did not contain the answer. He again turned to the New Testament and there in the sayings of Jesus, especially in the Sermon on the Mount he he found light.

Mr. Huxtable's entire talk was stirring and inspiring and beautiful thoughts and suggestions were again and again brought out from the life and thoughts of this great philosopher.

Miss Austin's solo "Just for today" closed the meeting after which cocoa, crackers and pickles and a social time were enjoyed, the hostesses being, Miss Lucy Spear and Miss Mary Holden.

JUNIOR ALLIANCE.

The Junior Alliance met in the ladies' parlor of First church Monday with a very good attendance of members and guests. The first business of the evening was to elect a flower committee for February. Miss Elizabeth Rogers and Miss Ruth Packard were elected on this committee. The dramatic committtee reported that they had an operetta in mind and that Miss Minnie Packard had consented to take charge of it.

Miss Priscilla Whiton, superintendent of the Winchester Unitarian Sunday school told informally and instructively of Sunday school work. She said the aim was to train the moral and spiritual life of the child She then told of the importance and help to a teacher to be familiar with the Bible and then of the importance to have promptness, good attendance and above all reverence in the Sunday school.

Mrs. Montgomery, a mother of the street, as she said she had lately been called, then told most interestingly of her work as a member of the society for the prevention of cruelty to children. She told of the jails, and the peniteniaries and said they always appeared to her to be monuments to blunders, blunders that in many cases could be obviated had the children of the street been protected and carefully trained early in life. She then told of her own experiences, pathetic scenes and ways of helping wretched little boys and girls. Mrs. Montgomery's talk was one that made one feel how insignificant their work was and how grand it must be to do such great good work as she is doing.

MAKING A PLAYGROUNDD.

Members of the Quincy Women's club and of the Y. M. C. A. who did such good work last summer in starting a playground will be interested in the work at Pittsburg, Pa.

In 1896 the women of the Civic Club of Pittsburg made the discovery that Pittsburg children did not know how to play. Every inch of land in the great "workshop of the world" had been given over to work. There was not a playground in the city. A committee headed by Miss Beulah Kennard went before a local school board and asked permission to open a few school yards, offering to pay all the expenses themselves. Their request was refused. They hunted up political influence, and waited on a second local school board. This time they got what they wanted.

That first year the women opened three school yards equipped them with play apparatus and placed a kindergartner in charge of each. The next year, and the next, they opened more. The fourth they got an appropriation of $1500 from the school board. The fifth, the other women's clubs of the city formed a joint playground committee and came into the work. In 1908 the city's appropriation was $100,000.

HIS CONVERSION.

A Man Who Did Not Believe In Woman's Standard of Honor.

By KINGSBURY WELCH.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"Girls," said Miss Spencer at afternoon tea, "what do you suppose I've heard about Harrington? He has openly avowed himself a woman hater. Let's cut him."

"Let's," said Miss Hunter.

"Let's," said every girl in the room but one.

"Are you sure you'll all keep to the agreement?" asked Miss Emerson incredulously.

"What do you take us for?" said Miss Hunter. "You're as bad as Harrington."

"Well, I'll agree," drawled Miss Emerson, "but I don't want any shirking."

"All who agree," said Miss Spencer, "hold up a hand."

Every girl except one held up a lily white hand, with some sort of bangle or bracelet dangling at the wrist. The exception was Miss Emerson.

"Aren't you with us, Emmy?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I don't believe in judging any one unheard, and I don't believe in conspiracies."

"Very well; do as you please."

That Miss Spencer was determined to keep faith in the matter is proved by the fact that she did not wait for an accidental meeting with the tabooed man. She brought about one the next day. Harrington was accustomed to walk past her home every morning on his way to his office. She had often stood at a front window purposely to get a bow from him, but after the first he did not deign to see her there. On the morning after he had been boycotted Miss Spencer went out on the street a short time before his accustomed passing, met him face to face and cut him dead.

HE WAS OBLIGED TO CATCH HER TO PREVENT HER FALLING.

The next morning Harrington walked by the house as indifferently as before. Miss Spencer was watching for him from behind a curtain. For three successive mornings she was at her post and saw the same indifference. Then she wrote a note to Mr. Harrington telling him that she had declined to speak to him because she had heard something about him to his discredit. If he would call on her she would tell him; she didn't wish to do him an injustice.

Harrington called the same evening. Miss Spencer wore her most becoming costume. She was a pretty girl and had never looked prettier. There was no convenient place for him to sit except next her on the sofa. She told him that some one had maligned him; had said he hated women. He replied that he was not in a position to deny the charge, for he had made such a remark a number of times.

"But you didn't mean it," she said. "Don't say you did, for I know you are a gentleman, and none such would attack the weaker sex."

Harrington saw a pair of beautiful blue eyes looking into his. He felt complimented, and he felt drawn toward Miss Spencer.

"The reason why I condemn women," he said, "is because of their standard of honor, which is far beneath that in vogue among men. But I am open to conviction. If within three months you are able to convince me that women are as honorable as men I will renounce my opposition. Meanwhile I shall see you frequently, and we will go out together."

"Agreed," said Miss Spencer.

Harrington kept his word. He called often and invited her to go out with him. She declined his invitations for places of amusement for fear she would be seen by some of the girls with whom she had made the compact. She knew very well what she would say to them when the time came to say it, but the time had not come.

One day Harrington was about to get off a trolley car. A young lady on the platform blocked his way. She was about to step down into the street when Harrington put a hand on her shoulder and held her back. A second later an automobile driven by a drunken chauffeur grazed the trolley car. Had the girl stepped off, as she intended, she would have surely been killed. The auto having passed, Harrington escorted her to the sidewalk. She seemed quite unconcerned till she reached it, then was all of a tremor. He was obliged to catch her to prevent her falling.

Harrington called a carriage and took her home. Before his departure from her house she had quite recovered and asked him for his address that she might send him some more formal acknowledgment of the obligation than verbal thanks. He gave her his card, at which she stared, stammered something, then bade him good day. She sent him a token of her gratitude—a dozen cambric handkerchiefs with his initials embroidered in the corner by her own hands.

At the time of this episode Harrington had spent two of the three months allotted for his conversion under Miss Spencer's influence and had quite lost his antipathy for women. Indeed, he was beginning to feel that with her for a helpmeet life would assume a rosier hue. He had about made up his mind to tell her so when the trolley car incident occurred. But suddenly Miss Spencer noticed that he was becoming indifferent to her.

The truth is that, being on excellent terms with two women, he was enabled to contrast the one with the other. His trolley car lady appeared friendly, but otherwise indifferent. This revealed to him the fact that Miss Spencer was trying to catch him. The latter redoubled her efforts, but this only tended to make them more apparent and rendered him more appreciative of the girl whom it piqued him to believe felt for him only a natural gratitude for having been the accidental cause of saving her life.

And so it happened that the man who had given a woman an opportunity to prove to him that woman's standard of honor was equal to that of man found himself in an equivocal position. He had gone so far with Miss Spencer that he doubted if he were not in honor bound to go further. At any rate, he shrank from what he considered a backing out. When the end of the three months he had given Miss Spencer to convert him came round she had made the conversion, but he had fallen in love with another girl.

Harrington decided to make a clean breast of it to the girl he loved. He told her that he loved her, but before meeting her had become entangled with another girl. Then he confided to her his affair with Miss Spencer. His confidante manifested no surprise. Indeed, she seemed to be cognizant of the whole affair. But she astonished Mr. Harrington by telling him that she could not accept a proposition from him because such a course would place her in an unfortunate position. When he asked her what that position was she declined to inform him on the ground that she could not honorably do so.

Mr. Harrington was astonished. That a woman should decline an offer of marriage on the ground that it would place her in a false position and decline to give that position through motives of honor opened up to him a new thing in the world of morals. He had not been insensible to woman's charms, which he had considered marred by their want of a high sense of honor. Here was a woman with charms and scrupulously honorable. He begged her to put him in the way to get the desired information from another, but she said that such a course would be only a subterfuge and no more honorable than telling him herself.

Nevertheless the information came. Miss Spencer was met one day by Miss Hunter walking with Mr. Harrington, and, looking up at him in the fashion of a woman who means to be seductive, Miss Hunter at once invited the members of the cabal to meet at her house the next day at afternoon tea. Miss Emerson, having declined to cut the victim, was not notified. When they were assembled the hostess announced the perfidy of Miss Spencer.

Great was the indignation of the "signatory powers." Miss Wadsworth declared that Mr. Harrington should be saved from the wiles of such a girl, and after much deliberation it was decided to send him an anonymous note stating that for the protection of the sex certain girls had decided to cut him. Miss Spencer having made the proposition. The decision had been unanimous except for one girl. The note having been mailed and tea having been drunk, the girls separated.

When Harrington received the note he took it at once to Miss Spencer, telling her his opinion of women who could write such a note. Miss Spencer showed unmistakable signs of guilt and finally in tears confessed her part in the matter.

"Will you inform me," asked Harrington, "who was the girl who declined to enter upon this—conspiracy?"

"Irene Emerson," sobbed the culprit.

"Irene Emerson!"

"Yes. Do you know her?"

"I didn't when this boycott was decided on. I had never seen her. Since then it has been my good fortune to have been the accidental cause of her avoiding a serious accident, and in that way I made her acquaintance. I have been converted to the fact that a standard of honor may be lived up to by persons irrespective of sex, but I regret to have to tell you that my conversion has not come through you, but the girl who, though she had never seen me, declined to join the conspiracy that you instituted. I beg to bid you good day."

Mr. Harrington called on Miss Emerson as soon as he could reach her after leaving Miss Spencer.

"The secret you were too honorable to betray," he said, "has been revealed to me. I have come to thank you for the noble part you have played and for re-establishing in me that reverence for women which all true women deserve."

There are men friends of Harrington—crusty old bachelors—who are mean enough to insinuate that Miss Emerson played a deep game.

NEW LIGHT ON TRANSACTION

Pinchot Defends His Course In Education of Rangers

HOLDS IT WAS NOT ILLEGAL

Should It Be Found Otherwise He May Reimburse Government Out of His Own Pocket—Schools of Instruction Proved Most Beneficial to Forestry Service and Had Approval of Its Legal Advisers

Washington, Jan. 26.—Gifford Pinchot, the ousted United States forester, does not intend to let go unchallenged the assertion that he committed an unlawful act by having forest rangers take instructions at certain universities and colleges in the west. The ex-forester will, it is understood, make a statement within a few days, which, his friends say, will put the transaction before the public in an entirely new light.

Some of Pinchot's friends are authority for the statement that he feels keenly the imputation that he made a wrongful use of the government funds in educating rangers, and they would not be surprised if he should reimburse the government out of his own pocket if it should be finally held that his action was unlawful. But his friends seem confident that he will be able to justify the action complained of.

It is pointed out that the insinuation or intimation has gone out that the forest service picked up bright young men here and there and educated them for the forest service at various colleges and universities. No such thing was done, according to persons who are in position to know the facts.

Ever since the forest service was established, or at least since it became an institution of any consequence, it has been the practice to have the forest rangers of a particular state or forest district gather once a year for instructions, or for what might be called a general exchange of views and experiences. After the forest reserves were divided into six districts the plan of conducting a school of instruction for a few weeks each winter in each of the forest districts was adopted.

The experience of the bureau here in Washington was that while it was always possible to employ men for the ranger service, it was not always possible to get men who possessed the desired technical knowledge. So it was that for the good of the service, as Forester Pinchot saw it, these schools of instruction were established. They brought together in each district the supervisors, the technical men as well as the rangers, and the result was, according to persons who have been many years in the forest service, most beneficial.

The schools of instruction were held during the dull season, either late in the fall or during the winter. The bureau regarded the schools as a part of the system, and the traveling expenses, as well as the expenses of the rangers and other employes of the service while attending the meetings, were paid out of the government fund.

It so happened that colleges or universities in four of the six forest districts established in the cities in which the forest service had been in the habit of having its rangers meet once a year for instruction from the supervisors and technical men.

On investigation, so it is asserted, the forest service ascertained that it would be cheaper to have the rangers take instruction at these institutions of learning than to call together the old style meeting for instruction. And so it was that in four of these districts the plan of having the rangers in that district report once a year for a short course of instruction was adopted. It is asserted that in no instance did the forestry service undertake to educate young men for the service in the sense of sending them to any college or university for a regular period of time.

Actual experience, so it is asserted, demonstrated that the plan was cheaper than the old one. It is asserted that the arrangement was approved by the law officers of the forestry service and had the approval of Secretary Wilson. Not until after Pinchot had been dismissed did anybody in the agricultural department object to the arrangement.

Peary Club's Heavy Expense

Herring Catch Greatly Increased

St. John's, Jan. 26.—Despite the claim of fishing captains that the West Coast herring fisheries are becoming depleted, the total catch for the winter season shows an increase of 20,000 barrels over last year.

Flying to Pole Is Possible

Dayton, O., Jan. 26.—Aeroplaning to the North Pole was pronounced a reasonable feat by Commander Peary in a discussion here with Wilbur and Orville Wright.

MRS. GOULD MUST SETTLE

Jury Decides That She Is Responsible For Big Millinery Bill

New York, Jan. 26.—Mrs. Katherine C. Gould lost the suit for $3,185.06 brought against her by the Lichtenstein Millinery company. The jury was out thirty minutes. The goods were ordered in 1906, when she was living apart from Howard Gould, but before she brought her suit for separation.

While waiting for the verdict Mrs. Gould announced that she would fight the suit of "Big" Hawley, who has sued for $2400 alleged to have been loaned her.

The estate of Edgar Field on Newport avenue, together with the household furniture was sold at auction Tuesday afternoon.

City Treasurer Curtis has advertised for bids for temporary loan of $65,000 to mature Jan. 27, 1911. Bids will be received up to 12 o'clock tomorrow, Thursday.

Most of the schoolhouses of the city have received a visit and inspection from John L. Miller, the new chairman of the School Committee, much to the surprise of janitors and teachers, as it has not been the practice of late.

Arrangements are being made to have Capt. Robert Bartlett come to Quincy and tell of his experiences in the far north with Commander Peary on his trip to the North Pole. The lecture will be illustrated and will be given at Alpha hall, Feb. 10. Details will be given later.

Representative Underhill of Somerville introduced in the House on Tuesday Senator Eugene C. Hultman's bill to increase the salaries of the gas and electric light commissioners from $4000 for the chairman, and $3,500 for each of the other members, to $6000 for the chairman and $5000 for the others.

Supervisor Gettemy has 5000 applicants from whom to select 1992 census enumerators. In most of the cities there are three or four for every appointment, but in small towns the places go begging. Probably twelve or more will be appointed in Quincy, who must complete their territory in fifteen days, beginning April 15.

After a series of good bargains all through the month H. L. Kincaide & Co., are now having a special January sale.

BRIEFS

Whist tournament at the rooms of the Granite City club this evening.

Alexander Fryer of Boston will give an address before the Quincy Masters' club at High school hall on "Individualism" tonight.

Col. Edward Anderson spoke at the Algonquin club, Boston, before the Merchants' club, Tuesday evening, on "The New South."

Mary Park of this city filed a libel for divorce in the Norfolk courts on Tuesday from Joseph M. Park. They were married in South Shields, Eng., Oct. 8, 1888, and have four children.

The Sodality of St. Mary's church elected the following officers at their meeting on Tuesday evening. Perfect, Mary McDonald; assistant perfect, Helen McNeally, treasurer, Louise Mahoney, secretary, Sadie Monahan.

William S. Allen and Miss Emma Blaser of Foxboro, who were married on Sunday by Rev. Hardy of Bethany church, were given a reception by Mr. Allen's aunt Mrs. William Sweet, at her home 120 Woodward avenue.

At each of the evangelistic meetings at the First Presbyterian church there is an increased attendance and deeper interest. A contest has sprung up at the afternoon meetings between pupils of the Lincoln and John Hancock schools.

Children of First church Sunday school meet in the chapel of the church Friday afternoon at four o'clock to practice the Easter music. They will sing the carols for half an hour and will then be entertained with games by some of the older members of the school.

The No-License League is circulating petitions in the churches and various societies to have the express licenses limited to 12. It is expected that a monster petition will be presented to the City Council as those having the interests of the city at heart are eager to sign the petition and work for the cause.

Representative Langelier has brought the other members of the Committee on Harbors and Public Lands to his way of thinking, that the general appropriation of $100,000 per year for harbor work by the comprevent the consideration by the committee of bills for specific improvements. Chairman George E. Smith of the Harbor and Land Commission at a confe ence on Monday agreed with him, and hearings will be given.

LABOR LIFTS.

Cream cheese mixed with canned currants or jellied cranberries makes a good sandwich filling.

Small cold cream jars and the like, if scalded, make excellent containers for jelly which at some time or other you will desire to place in a lunch basket.

If you are beginning to have trouble with your feet, bathe them often, powder them freely, rub alcohol on them occasionally. Give them careful attention until you discover the sort of treatment they respond to.

Never remove a child from its bed at night and carry it about the room because it cries, for, besides being a bad habit, this is likely to give the child a cold, and if a child once knows it will be allowed to get up if it cries peace will be banished from the bedroom.

The purple stains caused by handling a typewriter ribbon may be removed from the hands with a cloth wet with pure alcohol. This treatment saves the necessity of a prolonged scrubbing and is far less injurious to delicate fingers. What a comfort this knowledge will be to the stenographer whose ribbon must always be changed just about the end of the day!

You do not have to rip the garment to be dyed, except in the case of lined coats. Place the clothes in cold water, bring to a boil, change the water several times as the old color comes out, then, having previously brought the dye to a boil in the wash boiler, as directed on the package, wring out and immerse the garments and boil for from fifteen to thirty minutes. Where your cloth is silk and cotton mixed, use first the dye for cotton, then that for silk. Rinse in cold water, wring gently by hand and iron before quite dry. Needless to say, have your clothes line in the shade.

If overalls become very much soiled with paint, place a pound of salsoda in a bucket partly filled with hot water and place the garment in and fill up with water. Allow this to remain so for, say, two days, when the overalls may be examined and scraped at the part most soiled, and if it's soft to the cloth remove to clear water and rinse out, after which place on a board and lay the legs flat. Then with clear water and brown soap and a scrub brush scrub until all the paint is removed, though a stain may remain. By this method the dirtiest overalls, some that will stand alone, may be made very white, and the cloth will not rot at all. The process may be repeated many times.

NEW MEMBERS REPORTED

Y. M. C. A. Teams Get Together for Another Supper

The first report of the teams engaged in the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign was made Tuesday night at the scheduled supper. What the teams lacked in tangible results was made up in enthusiasm. Cheering of teams and individuals, spelling W-O-R-K, and waving brooms, gave evidence of the real feeling and courage which the young men have.

The teams are necessarily handicapped by the terms of the campaign, which require the price of a "Limited" membership at least to accompany the application. A higher class may be taken on "easy" terms.

The total report of the teams showed 12 members of all classes secured. This in no way indicated the probable outcome of the campaign, as it takes several days and possibly a payday with some to induce the final decision.

Several teams have more than twelve promised and all have them on the line and expect to land them either Thursday or Saturday.

An exhibition of pictures of swimming pools may be seen at the building. The pictures are loaned by the American Enamel Brick and Tile Co., who are to furnish brick and tile for the pool.

The time is short to finish winners but the committee feel it can be accomplished when the teams really get down to work and the young men really realize the splendid opportunity and generous conditions offered.

In all associations about Boston the price where pools are a part of the equipment is $10 or more. Here, we are offering it for $8 and a month additional time.

SPORTING NOTES.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club will be held in Colonial hall Thursday evening, Feb. 3, at 8 o'clock. Aside from the reports of committees and election of officers the only other business in the call is to see if the club will make honorary members of the original charter members.

The Old Colony bowling teams clash tonight when the Granites or Quincys visit the lowly Braintree five at Braintree. Norfolk Downs will go to Weymouth and try to stop the runaway race the Weymouth boys are making of this race. Although the race is only about one-half over it looks like Weymouth for the bunting and that bunch of prize money.

FINE TOILET TIPS.

Creams and Lotions That May Be Made at Home.

Any girl can have the very best toilet articles if she will make them herself, and many of them offered for sale at the stores will often do a permanent injury to a delicate skin. Should a lotion be needed for perspiration stir one ounce of hydrate of chloral in one pint of soft boiled water and keep in a bottle. Apply with soft old linen and allow the lotion to dry on the skin. To keep the hands in good condition have a preparation of vinegar and cornmeal ready for use, and after washing clothes or doing any work that soils the hands wash them in warm suds, rub the hands well with the cornmeal mixture, then dry and rub a few drops of honey and water well into the skin. An excellent and safe face powder is made by sifting half a pound of pure rice powder eight or ten times and then adding a few drops of oil of rose and a little carmine if you want the powder tinted. One of the best cucumber creams is made by cutting up two large cucumbers into half a cupful of water and allowing them to simmer for half an hour; then strain, add a cupful of boiling water, ten grains of powdered borax and enough tincture of benzoin to make the water look milky and bottle when cool. The skin may be kept in fine condition by using a little borax in the water every time the face and hands are washed and then rubbing this lotion well into the skin. An excellent fluid for keeping the scalp clean and free from dandruff is made with half a teaspoonful of the borax powder, a small piece of gum camphor and half a pint of soft water, and one of the best and safest washes for the mouth and teeth is made by adding one ounce of the powder to one pint of boiling water and then before it is cold adding half a teaspoonful of spirits of camphor. The hair tonic should be rubbed well into the scalp once a week. About two teaspoonfuls of the mouth wash in half a glass of water is the proper proportion, and the fluid whitens the teeth and keeps the gums in a healthy condition.

BOSTON'S ATHLETIC MEET.

Annual Indoor Games Scheduled to Be Held Feb. 12.

The annual games of the Boston Athletic association will be held in Mechanics' building on Feb. 12, and besides the usual Harvard class relay championship races it is planned to hold similar contests between eastern colleges. Invitations to enter relay teams have been sent to Amherst, Bates, Boston college, Bowdoin, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, Holy Cross, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Maine, University of Pennsylvania, Wesleyan, Williams and Yale; also to the Chicago Athletic association, Irish American Athletic association and New York Athletic club.

The other events will be as follows: Five mile run, scratch; invitation 40 yard dash, scratch; invitation putting 12 pound shot, scratch; 40 yard dash, 9 foot limit; 600 yard run, 30 yard limit; 45 yard high hurdle race, 3 flights, 3 feet 6 inches high, 9 foot limit; 1,000 yard run, 50 yard limit; one mile run, 60 yard limit; putting 16 pound shot, 6 foot limit. Competitors must show that they have put the 16 pound shot 38 feet and high jumped 5 feet 3 inches in competition in order to qualify for these events.

BIG CHESS MEET COMING.

Two International Master Tournaments to Be Held at Hamburg.

Baron Albert von Rothschild of Vienna has started the ball rolling on behalf of the congress of the German Chess association to be held in Hamburg some time in March. The program will include two international master tournaments. The Austrian nobleman, who is an admirer of the old school of chess, has offered 500 marks to be distributed as brilliancy prizes.

There will be a championship tournament to which the strongest masters available will be invited, and it will have no fewer than four or more than seven contestants. All other players recognized as of master rank will compete in the regular one round master tournament. In addition, there will be held two tournaments, the winner of which will acquire mastership, and three minor events.

America in all likelihood will be represented by Jose R. Capablanca, Frank J. Marshall and Paul Johner. All three contemplate entering.

MAY STOP GRIDIRON GAME.

Football at Government Indian Schools Likely to Be Abolished.

A rumor has it that the Indian service of the department of the interior of the national government is apt to abolish football at the government Indian schools. Such a ruling would affect Carlisle, Haskell Institute and the Grand Junction school at Sherman, in California. The loss of Carlisle would leave a big vacancy on some of the most important schedules in the country.

That the Indian service contemplates abolishing football in its jurisdiction is not only a new phase of the universal crusade against the game, but it is understood that the trouble over the Pennsylvania-Carlisle game and the death of a Haskell substitute from injuries in a Kansas game have something to do with the rumored agitation.

Columbia to Row Navy May 7.

Announcement has been made that Columbia university will hold a dual track and field meet and a crew race with the United States Naval academy at Annapolis May 7. Owing to the financial condition of the crew at the Morningside institution, only the varsity eight will be sent to row against the middies.

Christy Mathewson an Author.

Christy Mathewson, the famous pitcher of the New York Nationals, has just completed the manuscript of a baseball story for boys of all ages, which will be ready for delivery in February. This will be the first of a series of boys' stories on sports to be known as "Matty Books."

Hoppe and Morningstar Billiard Match.

Willie Hoppe and Ora Morningstar will cross cues in Pittsburg Feb. 2, 3 and 4 for a chance at the 18.2 billiard title, now held by Calvin Demarest of Chicago. The match will be at 1,500 points, played in blocks of 500 each evening.

$240,000 In Motorboat Prizes.

The Monaco (France) motorboat carnival, April 1 to 4, will distribute $240,000 in prizes.

COMING SPORT EVENTS

The Scotland-England international golf match will be played June 18.

The eastern intercollegiate regatta is set for Wednesday, June 22, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., on the Hudson river.

It is proposed to hold an all Indian hockey tournament at Allahabad, India, during the week of Feb. 21 to 26.

The University of Missouri will enter a team in the two mile race at the University of Pennsylvania relays to be held in Philadelphia April 30. It will be the first time an institution west of the Mississippi has entered a team in the meet.

The Bombay open polo tournament for 1910 will be held in Bombay commencing on Feb. 17. Entries close Feb. 1. The Bombay junior polo tournament, the trophy for which is the Idar challenge cup, is to be played at Bombay beginning Feb. 1, the entries closing on Jan. 16.

NEW ORLEANS AUTO CARNIVAL

Two Day Meeting Planned to Be Held In February.

CRACK DRIVERS TO COMPETE

Strang, Oldfield, Robertson and Burman Among the Many Who Will Be on Hand—Long List of Races on Program.

Now that it has been definitely decided that there will be no Florida beach races this winter nor any in Savannah, Ga., the only big meeting scheduled to be held will take place in New Orleans on Feb. 5 and 6. The two day carnival will be held during Mardi Gras week and gives promise of furnishing some of the best exhibitions of motor speed contests the Crescent City has witnessed since the inauguration of the automobile carnival, which terminates the great French festivities.

The program, which has just been announced, heralds sensational racing, and the events are sufficient in number enough to attract the motor world. The race list is made up of twelve events. But only one of them may be classed as even a near long distance race. That one is the fifty mile race, open to all stock chassis classified as to piston displacement.

The other events are of the sprint variety, ranging from five miles to twenty-five. Several other contests will likely be added to the program before the opening day of the meeting. The second half of the card will be concluded on the following day.

While the distances of the events are in no way near those held at auto races in the north, that fact does not have a tendency to decrease the interest among speed pilots over the approaching competitions. New Orleans can boast of only a small track, and many enthusiasts claim that auto track meetings are much better than road races as far as the spectators are concerned. In an inclosed track the spectators say they can see the contestants in action all the time, where as in a good road contest the cars are lost to view most of the time.

The program includes the following events:

Feb. 5.

Five miles, for stock chassis, 161 to 230 cubic inch piston displacement.
Ten miles, for stock chassis of all kinds, open only to amateurs, chauffeurs, mechanics and nonprofessional drivers.
Twenty miles, for stock chassis, 301 to 450 piston displacement.
Five miles, free for all.
Ten miles, free for all handicap.
Twenty-five miles, for stock chassis, in three classes—161 to 230 piston displacement, 301 to 450 piston displacement, 451 to 600 piston displacement.

Feb. 6.

Ten miles, stock chassis, 301 to 450 and 451 to 600 piston displacement.
Five miles, amateurs, stock chassis.
Twenty miles, free for all.
Five miles, New Orleans championship, open to local cars.
Ten miles, free for all handicap.
One hour or fifty miles for all stock chassis classified as to piston displacement.

Dealers' purse to first three men in two days' racing; decision on points, each first counting five, seconds three and thirds one.

Each year the manufacturers have appeared to take an increasing interest in the races, but the carnival is held more for the spectators' pleasure than from an automobile advertising viewpoint.

Among the famous drivers who are expected to take part at the two day meet are the following:

Barney Oldfield, Lewis Strang, Louis Chevrolet, Bob Burman, George Robertson, Ray Harroun, Jack Aitken and Charley Merz.

Anti-Suffragists

While in New York state one of the most significant aspects of the fight that women are making for the franchise is the alignment of men of prominence in the journalistic and literary worlds favorable to the cause, here in Massachusetts the anti-suffragists seem to have been most active of late in putting on record substantial leaders in the educational, religious, business and legal worlds. The list of business men throughout the commonwealth who believe it would be prejudicial to its best interests to grant further extension of suffrage to women is one that includes many men far from conservative in temperament or in their general attitude toward social evolution.—Boston Herald.

Fifteen Years to Make a Table.

An inlaid table of painstaking workmanship was recently exhibited by A. F. Stevens in New York city. The table contains 125,000 pieces of wood inlaid and is the result of fifteen years of labor. It was made by Frank Duprat of Schenectady, N. Y. The top is three feet square and contains 50,000 pieces of wood, and the base is a composite of different designs. The wood used in the making came from all parts of the world. There are also pieces taken from the Royal Savage, a gunboat of 1812; the battleships Maine and Oregon and the charter oak of Hartford, Conn. Some of the rare woods include rose, maze, boree, ebony, belah, cork oak, teak, laurel, chincona and sandal. Many of the inlaid pieces are no larger than one thirty-second of an inch square.

MORTGAGE BURNED AT CHRIST CHURCH

Prosperous Year Reported at Annual Meeting of the Parish

Rector Recommends Committee On new Parish House

The annual meeting of Christ church parish was held Wednesday evening and was largely attended. The meeting was in the nature of a jubilee, for just previous to the meeting the mortgage which had been hanging over the parish house was burned. Much credit for the final payment on the mortgage was due to the efforts of the Women's Guild, who were successful during the past year in helping to cancel the debt of $470.

In honor of this event a parish supper was served by the Guild at 6.30. The menu was excellent and included cold meats, salads, rolls, coffee etc. At its conclusion Rev. Richard Armstrong, the rector, spoke of the pleasure it gave him and the parish that the debt on the parish had been liquidated, and he then took the mortgage in his hand and tore it assunder. He then passed the pieces to C. Theodore Hardwick the senior warden, who consigned them to the flames.

The parish meeting was held at 8 o'clock and was presided over by the rector. After the roll call of members entitled to vote, the call for the meeting was taken up.

The report of the treasurer showed the receipts of the year to have been $3,992.71, and the expenditures $3,911.-23, leaving a balance on hand of $81.-48.

While the tellers were counting the ballots, reports were made by the secretaries of the various organizations, clubs and guilds connected with the church.

W. L. Thomas superintendent of the Sunday school made a lengthy report showing the work of the school during the year, its receipts and disbursements. The enrollment of the school was 284, including 24 officers and teachers, and the average attendance had been 207.

The reports of the Women's guild, Men's club, St. Margaret's guild, Galahad club, and the junior organizations showed all to be in a flourishing condition, and doing good work along their different lines. The reports went into the work in detail, showing that much had been accomplished.

Rev. Richard Armstrong told of his work since he had assumed the rectorship May 1. He had found the parish fully organized and well adapted to carry on the good work. How staunchly they were organized was demonstrated while the parish was without a rector as they had learned how to carry on the work. He had asked them to go on under their own leadership and he wished to thank them for so doing. He also desired to thank the officers and teachers of the Sunday school for the high standard of attendance and good order. All work of the school was planned and systematically carried out by the superintendent and officers.

He believed there should be a division of leadership between the parish and rector. The rector should not be obliged to appeal for funds, especially when the largest item of expense was his own salary. We must not overburden the vestry and he urged the parish to help with funds.

The need of a new parish house became more urgent every year. We are new cramped for room and he would recommend a committee of five be appointed to present plans for a new parish house either at the next annual meeting or at a special meeting.

During the time he had been rector of the church there had been 52 baptisms, 45 confirmations, 9 marriages and 12 burials. 121 services had been held. He had made 641 visits and had received 84 visitors. Prolonged applause greeted the remarks of the rector and the reports made.

The budget as recommended by the Vestry for 1910 was $4,999 which was adopted.

The balloting for officers resulted in the election of the following:

Warden—C. Theodore Hardwick.
Clerk—James Smith.
Treasurer—Walter E. Burke.
Vestrymen—James H. Stedman, William H. Deacon, Melvin T. Holbrook, William H. Haslett and Archibald MacLeod.
Delegates to Diocesan convention—Elisha Packard, William L. Thomas and Weston W. Osborne.
Delegates to Arch-deaconary convention—Weston W. Osborne, William H. Deacon and John L. Hodgson.

In connection with the election of Elisha Packard to the Diocesan convention, it might be stated that he has held office in the parish continuously for 42 years.

Before the meeting adjourned a vote of thanks was extended to Elmer E. Ricker the retiring treasurer.

REMARKABLE CURE.

It is not often that a man unfortunate enough to have his back broken, lives to tell the story, yet Henry Mangold, who was thus injured at the Fore River Dec. 29, has so far recovered that he was able to start today for his home in East Bethlehem, Penn.

Mr. Mangold was one of the foremen of the Bethlehem Steel Co., and was in Quincy superintending the installation of the amunition hoists in the battleship North Dakota. The work of installing the hoist was practically completed, ready for the final test. Mr. Mangold was at the base of the turret examining the hoist when by some mistake the motor was started and the heavy car pinned him to the floor. He was hurried to the emergency hospital in the yard, where it was found that his back was broken. It was therefore deemed unadvisable to remove him and he has been at the hospital ever since. He has been in the care of Dr. Blanchard and a Boston specialist and a remarkable cure has been accomplished. Not only has Mr. Mangold fully recovered from his injury, but he is practically as well as ever, except that his back may be a little lame for a time. Probably he will not be able to lift any more heavy weight. Mr. Mangold left Quincy on the noon train and left Boston on the 1 o'clock Colonial express on which a special section had been reserved for him.

MYSTERIOUS YOUNG WOMAN

Given Lodging at Police Station Last Night

A comely French Canadian young woman in blue approached Officer Reiley at Wollaston early Wednesday evening and asked for a lodging. The officer being a gallant man sent her to the police station for the night. There she was questioned by Sergt. Barry, who, however, was unable to make much out of her story. She first gave her name as Mary Sullivan, and later changed it to Josephine Selvin. She said that her home was in Montreal, but that she had been employed in Boston for the past two months.

Wednesday she went to Providence to see her sister and in the afternoon boarded a train for home. She did not leave the train she said until she reached Wollaston. She, however, could not explain how she got into the Wollaston train without changing cars. With her on her trip to Wollaston was a resident of that section of the city whom she knew but whose name she did not divulge. Arriving at Wollaston she applied to the officer for a lodging.

In the bag which she carried were a number of skeleton keys and a flat Yale lock key made of sheet lead. This morning she was taken to court but as there was no complaint against her the court turned her over to Probation Officer Spear. The probation officer is ordinarily a good talker but while in conversation with her he was unable to get a word in edgeways. After numerous fruitless attempts to get a connected story from the girl he told her to go her way in peace.

The police tried to get some statement from her in regard to the keys but in every case she evaded the question. The last seen of her she was headed for the Quincy depot.

HOUGHS NECK GETTING HOT

Want Improved Street Railway Service

Street railway accommodations were the principal matters under discussion at the meeting of the Houghs Neck Associates on Wednesday evening. Thirty-five members were present and indignation was expressed by all the speakers because the street railway ignored their requests. During the discussion the president of the association took the floor and severely criticised the company. It was voted to take the questions of accommodation to the Railroad Commissioners, and to employ counsel to push their claim before the commission.

What the association wants is 15-minute service during the summer months, and half-hour service in winter. The original demand was for ten minute service in summer, but this was modified so that 15-minute service is now asked for.

Reports were received from several committees and 5 new members were admitted.

It was voted to appoint a committee of three to arrange for the annual banquet and ladies' night to be held Feb. 22. The committee are: Elmer Piper, David Senner and John Gratto.

The post office clerks of the Boston postal district, of which Quincy is a part, will hold their eighteenth annual reunion next Tuesday evening, in Mechanics' building, Boston. Many of the clerks of the Quincy office will be present. Daniel J. Ring of the Boston office who resides in this city has been selected floor director and George A. Sullivan of the Quincy post office will be on the executive committee.

PARISIANS HAVE HARD BATTLE WITH FLOOD

People Working Under High Pressure to Save City From Destruction

New Areas Are Inundated--Loss Estimated at $200,000,000

Paris, Jan. 27.—The Seine is still rising, and Paris, like a doomed city, is holding its breath in terror. Galloping orderlies are bearing instructions which can no longer be sent by telephone. The army of police, firemen and soldiers give the appearance of a city fighting for its life.

This morning the waster is rising rapidly and has reached to within a few inches of the parapet of the quay at the Louvre.

The flood threatens momentarily to inundate the sculpture gallery where are kept the Venus de Milo and other priceless art treasures. The danger to the Louvre is increased by the presence at this point of a big sewer, which it is feared will burst.

A gang of masons was hurriedly assembled and are working under high pressure, building up a concrete wall to keep out the water.

Every minute brings grave dangers. New areas are being inundated, quays are collapsing, yawning chasms appear in the streets. The water of the Seine has invaded the entire labyrinth of underground passages. It threatens ruin and destruction everywhere.

What new disaster will come to the waterlogged city before the Seine begins to fall no one can predict. Already the damage is officially estimated at $200,000,000, and every hour adds millions more. The catastrophe promises to exceed the limits of a national disaster and become international.

The death roll is growing at a frightful rate, and when the epidemic, which now appears inevitable, breaks out it will run into thousands. Already scarlet fever has appeared among the refugees at Ivry.

Among the superstitions there is talk of the destruction of Paris as a result of the appearance of Halley's comet, but it is not unusual the world over to associate a visitation of this kind with the movements of the heavenly bodies.

The authorities are facing the situation with brave hearts and are bending their energies to the rescue of the imprisoned and the succor of the homeless. The public subscriptions opened by the newspapers have reached nearly $100,000, while the Red Cross and other relief societies have gone nobly to work.

The extent of the floods in Paris may be judged by the fact that about half the length of the quays within the city are under water, which is pouring into the streets, and thousands of laborers and soldiers are working like mad to build cement walls to hold back the current.

The foreign office and the Hotel Palace d'Orsay have been abandoned, as the cellars are full of water. The Contnental hotel and many residences in the aristocratic quarter are rapidly being evacuated.

There is ten feet of water in the subway station in front of the Gare St. Lazare, and the sinking of the square threatens to carry down the adjacent buildings.

Reports received here from Rouen say that the quays and fields for many miles are under water. Half the town of Plaisance is submerged and hundreds of refugees are making their way to Paris.

Extensive floods have occurred in Gironde, where the rivers continue to rise at an alarming rate.

Paris is beginning to feel the pinch of hunger. The supply of fresh meat and vegetables is failing and prices are soaring to famine figures. Avaricious bakers who attempted to double the price of bread were roughly handled and two of them were thrown into the Seine at Charenton.

Five hundred sailors from Dunkirk, Havre and Cherbourg arrived here to aid in relief work. The water has reached the top of the presidential tribune at the Longchamps race course. Six square miles of the Bois de Boulogne are submerged.

General Delsein, military governor of Paris, divided the city into five sections for military control at the direction of Minister of War Brun. This was done to regulate and expedite the campaign of relief.

The whole of France is still in the grip of an unprecedented storm. Rain, snow and hail are falling everywhere, the coasts are stormbound and ships are fleeing to the harbors for refuge.

A blinding snowsorm raged in Paris and, coupled with the bitter cold, added to the general consternation, suffering and misery of the poor and homeless. The snow ceased to fall last night.

The flood invaded streets are filled with rowboats, the owners of which demand fabulous prices for the removal of furniture and valuables to places of safety.

Whole streets have been roped off as unsafe. All of the bridges over the Seine are still standing, but traffic over more than half of them has been closed.

Another serious phase of the situation is that Paris is becoming rapidly isolated, telegraph and telephone wires being "drowned or grounded." Wire communication is failing in all directions.

Venice Unharmed

Venice, Jan. 27.—The report that Venice had been swept away by a tidal wave is entirely without foundation. Venice has been very little affected by the storms which have done so much damage elsewhere, and the only result of the recent rains has been a rise in the canals.

Tiber Rises Forty Feet

Rome, Jan. 27.—The weather has been stormy throughout Italy for several days, causing considerable damage. The Tiber rose forty feet, flooding the country, while many trees and walls were thrown down, a number of persons being injured.

Along the Mediterranean coast the damage is even more serious. Several boats were driven ashore. In the south there have been serious floods and numerous earth shocks have occurred.

—The accommodation provided for many dogs is most unsuitable for the inclement weather of the winter months. To allow a dog to lie close before a hot fire during the day, and then to turn him into a cold place at night, is the way to court pneumonia or bronchitis.—Country Life.

QUINCY MUSIC HALL

THE HIGHEST CLASS OF LICENSE—A THEATRE LICENSE, is now issued to Music Hall. Last year the fire exits and facilities for fire prevention were ample for a Hall License, but to obtain the present highest class of License, the whole main exit has been torn down and made absolutely fire-proof, large automatic smoke and fire vents have been constructed over the stage, all scenery has been made fire-proof, and the previous generous exit facilities have been very greatly increased. There are now ten (10) doors opening from the Hall, and six (6) separate exits, 2 of 8 feet each, 1 of 7 1-2 feet, 2 of 5 feet each, and 1 of 3 1-2 feet, a total of 37 feet of exit. All exits are lighted continually by both gas and electricity. There is an asbestos curtain, just specially rehung, by which the stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are chemical fire extinguishers, and fire pails throughout the Hall.

The Location is in the heart of the city. The street cars with double tracks pass the door.

The Elaborate, Permanent Decorations which have recently been put up are most attractive, and add much to the appearance of the Hall.

The Electric Light Festoon over the entrance way, flashing first red, then white, is a unique feature of much value.

The Moonlight Effect obtained by having the electric light come through Japanese lanterns is a pleasing novelty.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded Hall.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a switchboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a particularly generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards are valuable.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish an absolutely safe and large and really first class Hall.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Quincy is a rural enough city to follow out Gov. Hadley's solution of the cost of living problem, that is every family keep a cow and chickens. It may be some noisy in the early morning but think of the money saved.

If you have not seen the comet you had better hurry for it is said to be traveling 120 miles a second and by the end of the month will be 160,000,000 miles away, which would be something of a strain on the eyesight.

If cities, towns, banks and business houses would follow Uncle Sam's example there would be fewer defalcations. The government requires bonds big enough to cover all loses. It may be harder to get bondsmen but is a sure preventive.

The new census of 1910 to be taken in April will be watched with interest. It will show not alone how the city as a whole is growing, but also how the wards and precincts are growing. In 1905 Quincy stood No. 21 among the municipalities of the States, and expects to move up to No. 20, but it is not easy to pass other cities in a relay race of this kind. At the last census Quincy had 761 more males than females, being an exception among Massachusetts cities and towns in this respect, as females generally predominate. Ward Three was the largest ward, while the largest precinct was precinct two of Ward Three. It is important to Quincy that the census shall be complete.

It is hoped that when that monster petition being circulated by the No-License League reaches the Mayor and City Council it will receive the attention it deserves and fewer licenses will be granted to express companies. When a city votes no-license each year as emphatically as Quincy does the voice of the people should be heeded. Quincy does not want liquor saloons on wheels or otherwise. If licenses must be granted to express companies they should be limited. Twelve as asked for by the No-License Leagues seems more than enough. And furthermore these licenses should be granted to those doing a legitimate express business and whose names appear in the express directory and not to every little shop keeper who does his trucking in and out of Boston. This doing his own carting should not make him an express with the right to peddle liquor. A thorough investigation of each applicant should be made; the books examined and see if the books show expressing other than liquor.

The Essex County board of trade has hit upon a novel plan to bring out the voters at elections, a duty now missed by a large percentage. As outlined by the Lynn Item, their plan is to have the poll tax raised from $2 to $10, and an abatement of $4 allowed to those who vote at a State election, and $4 more for voting at a city or town election, making the poll tax to voters no more than it is at present. The voter whose name appears on the official voting list, as having cast a ballot at the election, will have his poll tax abated by the assessors, and, if he takes part in two elections his poll tax will be the same as it is now. Thus a premium of $8 is practically paid to every citizen who performs his duty as a patriotic member of the body politic. To the man who does not care enough for the public business, which it is his duty to participate in ,to go and vote for men who are to administer the affairs of the town, city or State, an extra $8 will be demanded of him as a penalty for his neglect. The scheme looks good. It will be threshed out in the committee and in the Legislature ,and during the process will command more attention than any bill that has been offered for some time. Everybody admits that something should be done to induce the laggards to come out and bear their part of the burden that is laid upon the voters. The Essex Boards of Trade bill offers a good foundation upon which something may be built that will be of immense advantage to Massachusetts as a State, and to the various sub-divisions.

HOSPITAL FIGURES.

While the figures of the Quincy Hospital are fresh in mind it will be interesting to compare with a year's work at Brockton, just reported, as follows:

Number of patients admitted during 1909 was 676, which, with other cases which received attention, made the total number receiving treatment during the year 833. Of these 141 were from other towns, increase over total in '08, 140.

Operations performed, 389.

Accident cases, 55.

Patients discharged as cured, 402; discharged as relieved, 191.

Total deaths during the year, 55.

Births during the year, 22; of these 11 being boys and 11 girls.

Largest number of patients in a single day, 49; smallest number, 20; average per day, 34; average number of days spent there by each patient, 16.

Average maintenance cost, $12.53 per week.

Free patients, 247; paying patients, 395; part paying, 56.

Receipts for the year, $25,422.99; expenditures, $24,091.43.

Hospital entering on its 15th year. Central "emergency room" recommended as the urgent need.

The endowment fund of the Brockton hospital is $27,450, less than one-half of the Quincy Hospital endowment of $66,915.33. Quincy had 333 patients, and expended less than $15,000.

ARGENTINE AWARD.

The Christian Science Monitor prints a London dispatch which says:

Efforts are being made in the English press to attribute to American diplomacy the award of the contract for the construction of two Dreadnoughts for Argentina by American shipbuilding firms, and it is described as a triumph of the Pan-American idea.

The Times prints a Buenos Aires special saying it is believed that in return for the placing of the order the United States government assured Argentina of its protection until the delivery of the battleships.

INCREASE OF TWO CENTS.

Quincy folks who have occasion to send away registered mail from time to time, with either domestic or foreign destination, would spare themselves, as well as the postoffice officials, inconvenience if they would only take cognizance of the fact that the price of the registry fee has increased two cents. The new price of registry fees went into effect Nov. 1 1909.

Previous to this time the registry fee was eight cents, but at this rate the postoffice department found that the deficiency at the end of the last fiscal year in the registered mail division was $3,878,524.61. The postmaster general's order, No. 2617, Nov. 1, 1909, inc eased the fee on registered mail with either foreign or domestic destination, from eight to ten cents for each letter or parcel, in addition to the regular postage. Twelve pennies, therefore, must be dug up before one can send away a registered letter.

With the advance of two cents for each letter the postoffice officials believe that the deficiency in this particular division will be increased this fiscal year $1,000,000.

—Seven bright newsboys, each carrying two juicy lemons, started a small riot in First Baptist church of Spokane, where Rev. Dr. J. W. Kramer, pastor, introduced a novelty by having the congregation whistle the airs of the religious hymns, instead of depending upon the choir. The minister called for the hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour," and 700 members of the congregation and a couple of hundred visitors puckered their lips and went to the heart of the composition. Just then the small boys, stationed at places of vantage brought forth the lemons and bit into the yellow skins in an endeavor to extract the juice. A titter ran over the auditorium and then there was a noise not unlike the exhaust of a pair of blacksmith's bellows. Some of those not in range of the sight of the boys with the lemons kept bravely on, but they took notice in a short time and one o fthem grabbed for the boy nearest to him. The youngster escaped and his get-away was a signal for the six others. Dr. Kramer tried to rally the whistlers, but the sight of the lemons had taken out all the pucker and the rest of the hymns were sung.

LAND INQUIRY GETS STARTED

Glavis Is the Central Figure at the Opening Session

FIRST TO MAKE CHARGES

Says His Attention Was Directed to Ballinger While Investigating Claims of Coal Company, During Which He Found That Ballinger Was Party to Agreement to Acquire Claims by Fraud—Name Was Later Omitted

Washington, Jan. 27.—The direct manner in which the Ballinger-Pinchot congressional committee of inquiry proposes to deal with its work was evidenced in the summoning of Louis R. Glavis as the first witness to give testimony.

LOUIS R. GLAVIS

Glavis is the dismissed field agent who preferred charges against Secretary of the Interior Ballinger in connection with the Cunningham coal claims in Alaska. He sent the charges to President Taft and the latter, after considering them, wrote a long letter to Ballinger declaring that he had been unjustly attacked and that Glavis should be separated from the service. Since his dismissal Glavis has carried on an unrelenting campaign against Ballinger by means of interviews and signed articles in various publications.

All the members of the committee were present, with Senator Nelson presiding. Gifford Pinchot, with his attorney, George Pepper, was present. Ballinger was not in the room when the hearing began.

Senator Nelson asked Glavis to make a statement of what he knew regarding the matters to be investigated. Glavis replied that he could not tell all about the matter unless it was explained fully.

He said that his attention was first directed to Ballinger while investigating the claims of the Wilson Coal company of Washington. Watson Allen of Seattle wished to purchase four claims. Ballinger was his counsel. An agreement was drawn up in escrow and deeds placed in the hands of Ballinger. The substance of Glavis' testimony was then to the effect that Ballinger as counsel was party to an agreement to acquire the claims mentioned by frand.

He then went on to show that the statement was prepared concerning the agreement and that later a deposition based on it was made in which Ballinger's name was omitted and he was referred to only as "counsel."

The effort on the part of Glavis apparently was to show that where Ballinger had been a party to the alleged fraudulent agreement his name had been omitted from a deposition taken six months later, or in the meantime he had become commissioner of the land office.

FEET FROZEN FIVE DAYS

Unfortunate Man Crawled Unseen Into Hotel and Went to Bed

Warren, R. I., Jan. 27.—With both feet so badly frozen that they will probably have to be amputated, George McLean, aged 25, was found in bed at a local hotel by a chambermaid.

McLean said that he had been in a barn and had crawled unseen on his hands and knees up two flights of stairs to where he was found. McLean was formerly employed at the hotel.

A physician who examined McLean said that the man's feet had been frozen for at least five days.

Idaho Local Option Law Upheld

Boise, Ida., Jan. 27.—The state supreme court handed down an opinion declaring constitutional the local option law which has been attacked on almost every provision since its passage.

Pullman Estate $36,000,000

London, Jan. 27.—The will of the late George M. Pullman of Chicago, probated here, leaves an estate of $36,000,000. Pullman died in 1897.

Senator Daniel Re-elected

Richmond, Jan. 27.—In joint session the legislature re-elected John W. Daniel for the sixth time to the United States senate.

BIG ESTATES IN PROBATE

Norfolk Registry Ftgures for 1908 and 1909

The Norfolk Registry of Probate had a busy year in 1909. Although there were 38 less instruments recorded, there never was a year when there were so many million dollar estates to be administered. The number of wills, administrations and other documents recorded by John D. Cobb, the register, was 1,089, the big months being Mrach, January and April. Two years are compared below:

	1909	1908
January	108	125
February	97	109
March	118	105
April	102	86
May	97	116

STRIKING WEAVERS RETURN TO WORK

Conditions In Borden Mills Are to Be Improved

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 27.—The weavers who were out on strike at the Richard Borden mill No. 2 voted to return to work. The promises made by the superintendent to improve conditions were satisfactory to the strikers, and after a long discussion it was voted to return to work this morning.

Another meeting of the weavers will be held on Feb. 11, by which time it can be determined whether or not the promises to improve conditions have been kept.

At the Barnaby mills, where the beamers and quillers went on strike, the mill is running all right. The beamers, about twenty in number, are still out, but the rest of the help are at work.

RETRACTS "CONFESSION"

Hall Denies That He Was Slayer of Anna Schumacher

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 27.—James E. Hall, brought here from the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard, to be tried for the murder of Anna C. Schumacher, retracted his confession after the crime had been reenacted in the Holy Sepulchre cemetery, where the girl was killed last August.

Hall was put through the third degree and finally taken to the scene of the crime. There he denied that he had ever been near the spot before. It is intimated that the alleged confession was a ruse to escape from the navy, from which he was dishonorably discharged.

SAILORS' TERRIBLE FATE

Sixteen Out of Shipwrecked Crew of Forty Perish From the Cold

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 27.—The news that eight Japanese out of forty who survived the wreck of the schooner Koseuku Maru were frozen to death while eight others were left to a like fate in the Kamchatkan wilds, was brought by the steamer Aymeric.

After the wreck the forty men began a march without food, losing eight in the first two days, while eight others were abandoned, their feet and faces being frozen. The remaining twenty-four made only twenty-five miles in, but were finally rescued by the Russian steamer Aitung.

Women Held For Robbery

New York, Jan. 27.—May Williams and Bessie Roberts, the two women charged with robbing Warner Van Norden, the banker, of $28,000 in front of the Waldorf, were held in $30,000 bail each for the grand jury.

AN OLD-TIME PRESCRIPTION

in a modern product. From time immemorial sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost every one knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair and making it grow. In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready to use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. Such a preparation is Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, which is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or which is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

WALKED INTO RIVER

Patient In Providence Insane Hospital Meets Tragic Death

Providence, Jan. 27.—The body of Miss Elizabeth C. Babcock of the fashionable East Side section of Providence was found head downward in the mud at the foot of the coal wharf adjoining the Providence dry dock. Miss Babcock was 63 years of age and had been a voluntary patient at an insane hospital, where she was being treated for nervousness.

She suddenly disappeared after lunch. It is supposed that she walked into the Seekonk river behind the hospital grounds. Workmen returning from their lunch discovered the body.

Kernochan Weds Society Girl

New York, Jan. 27.—Magistrate Frederick Kernochan, descendant of one of Manhattan's blue blood families, married Miss Elizabeth Howland, a society girl, at the Little Church Around the Corner. Kernochan, Spanish war veteran and Yale '98, is prominent socially.

HAPPY WOMEN

Plenty of Them in Quincy, and Good Reason for It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest,
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Quincy reader should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. George L. Nott, 99 North Street, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have every reason for holding a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled a great deal by headaches and dizzy spells which were so seaere at times that I had to grasp something for support to keep from falling. My sight was also affected, spots often appearing before me and my back ached intensely. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at the Cox Drug Store and began their use. I was helped from the first and after I had taken the contents of five boxes, I was cured. Other members of my family have used this remedy with equally good results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water. Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.

Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

Charles Sayward at Brown.
Roy Sidelinger at Tech.
Reginald Sprague at Dartmouth.
Elizabeth Torrey at Bridgewater Normal.

Stanley C. Sherman of Greenleaf street, who was unable to return to his studies at Amherst where he is a sophomore, on account of a severe attack of catarrhal fever, is able to be about and expects to return to college on Saturday.

The class of 1912 of the Stetson High school at Randolph presented the one act playlet, entitled "The man from Texas" last week. The program also included several musical numbers.

The pupils of the Bridgewater High school have revived the Sophomore Bugle which made its appearance this week.

This did not happen at the Quincy High. Teacher—"Why did Lady Jane Grey request the executioner to wait a minute before he struck the fatal blow?" Pupil—"She probably wanted to stick her chewin' gum under the edge of the block."

Several of the seniors of the Sumner High school at Holbrook accompanied one of the teachers to the State House, when courtesies were extended by Representative Mellen of Braintree.

Somerville High School won the debate from Malden High last week. The question was, "Resolve, That United State senators should be elected directly by the voters." The Somerville team took the affirmative, and was represented by Edward H. Cole, Ruth L. Bowler, Hyman Lipishires and Jacob Golden. On the negative the Malden speakers were Amos E. Carle, Walter B. Clark and Roy F. Robinson.

The Wakefield High school has introduced the practical study of wireless telegraphy in its scientific course. A wireless station has been constructed at the school building by the teacher of physics and chemistry. Ralph C. Bean, assisted by Roland Burdett and Elden Staples, members of the senior class. Aerials have been strung from the cupola to one of the rear chimneys, and the receiving and sending apparatus has been set up in the physical laboratory.

RECEPTION TO MASTER

Committees Appointed by Four Classes

A grand reception is planned to Leslie L. Cleveland, the retiring headmaster, tomorrow evening. Committees of three were appointed by the Seniors, the Juniors, the Class of '08 and the Class of '09. The reception will be held at High school hall from 8 to 10.30. It will be reported in detail in the Daily Ledger of Saturday.

The "Rose Maiden" was given in Symphony hall last week by the People's Choral Union of Boston. The singing class is studying this cantata with the purpose of presenting it in the spring at a concert. It bespeaks well for the class and its instructor Mr. Fouche, that a work of such nature is undertaken.

A sleigh ride through Milton was enjoyed by twenty-four Wollaston young people Friday evening. The party was chaperoned by Miss Brown and Miss Salsman, two popular teachers at the school.

In vitations have been issued for a Valentine Dance to be given in Colonial hall Monday evening, Feb. 14, by the Delta Sigma Club of '09 girls. The next meeting of the club is Monday evening at Miss Lillian Sutherburg's.

The Masters' Club met Wednesday evening at High School to listen to an address on "Individualism" by Alexander Fryer of Boston.

Much regret is felt because of the fatal accident to Clarence Tobin. He was a popular member of the class of 1909.

Roy L. Sidelinger, '10, speaks Saturday morning on the subject "Has the older boy any responsibility toward the younger boy?" at the 20th annual conference of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Holyoke.

The Goldenrod editors met a week ago Wednesday and selected the compositions for the Goldenrod, "Kisses" "Opium Dream," by Dorothy Darling; "The Colonel Jr.," by William Northrop; "Greater Love hath no man" by Margaret Hall; "The Lady in Black" by Charles Sayward; "An Adventure" by Daniel L. Sullivan.

Russell Tupper a former High student and pitcher on the baseball nine, leaves this week for a factory a few miles from Quebec, Canada, where he will be assistant manager for the same company he has been working for at Needham this past year.

The girls could not meet for basket ball practice their usual date this week because of the Melrose game.

A debate will be held next week in the fourth year English college Division. "Resolved—that Shylock's punishment is out of proportion to his offence."

The German club holds its January meeting today in the gym at 4 o'clock.

The required eye and ear tests were held Tuesday, the sixth and seventh periods, and a part of the first period Wednesday.

The school is fortunate in having a runner who can enter a meet and win a mile race over twenty starters, many more seasoned, as Franz Marceau did Saturday at the South Boston A. C. His time was remarkably fast, the mile being run in four minutes, thirty six and two-fifths seconds.

The Brockton High school has had quite an experience in cancelling an old debt, which should be a warning to pupils of other schols. The Brockton Enterprise of Tuesday said: "A sum well over the $200 mark and fully large enough to cancel High school debts with the possible exception of the Brocktonia deficit remaining from last year was cleared by the recent successful McMillan lecture held underd the auspices of the junior class. Over $150 as a deficit on the football season, and a $30 debt on last years' series of concerts, will be more than paid and a goodly sum to help wipe out the Brocktonia debt will remain. The drama, "As You Like It," to be presented by the Amherst Dramatic Association, in the High school hall, Feb. 21, will, it is expected, much more than pay off the small remaining Brocktonia debt and leave a surplus to the good. The various debts thus cancelled are the accumulation of deficits of several years incurred by various school activities. It is now considered likely that a graduation number of the school paper "Brocktonia" will be isued this year. No issue of Brocktonia has been published for two years."

The schedule of the basketball games for the class championship has been decided. Each team will play every other team two games; and each member of the winning team who takes part in at least four of the six games will be awarded class numerals. The dates are:

Jan. 26—1910 vs. 1911.
Jan. 28—1910 vs. 1912.
Feb. 4—1913 vs. 1911.
Feb. 8—1911 vs. 1910.
Feb. 11—1912 vs. 1913.
Feb. 16—1910 vs. 1913.
Feb. 18—1911 vs. 1912.
Feb. 21—1911 vs. 1913.
Feb. 25—1910 vs. 1912.
March 1—1911 vs. 1913.
March 4—1910 vs. 1913.
March 8—1912 vs. 1913.

Mr. Pierce, sub-master of Roxbury High, a former teacher at High was at school on Wednesday meeting his friends again and staying for the basketball game.

Mr. Howlett, who will be the headmaster after this week, was at school on Wednesday. Those who remember him when he was a sub-master six or seven years ago consider the school very fortunate in securing him. He seems clean cut and easily meets people. The impression is given that he is able to cope with any need that may arise. Of such a type he appears well suited for Quincy High. Although the school regrets the loss of the present able administrator, even though Mr. Cleveland goes to a larger opportunity, it believes Mr. Howlett will be a worthy successor. Plymouth is very loath to lose its head master; this augurs favorably for Mr. Howlett.

No one visiting the school would divine that a change of administration is taking place. Mr. Cleveland is calmly doing his work as faithfully as ever. It seems as if there will be no rupture of the work during the transition.

Chairman John L. Miller, Dr. W. G. Curtis and Arthur W. Newcomb are the new sub committee of the School Committee for the High school.

The Dedham High football team gave a banquet last week to the Hyde Park High team.

Carl Gram, a Quincy High graduate, will be a member of the B. A. A. relay team which will compete in New York Friday evening in the Pastime A. C. games.

A good report of the basket ball game of Wednesday will be found on page six of the Daily Ledger.

WEST QUINCY WEDDING.

One of the prettiest weddings that was ever held in West Quincy, took place Wednesday in St. Mary's church when Miss Lucy Morrissett and James Raftus were married by Rev. Fr. H. T. Grady at a nuptial mass. Miss Morrissett is well known in West Quincy, being a member of the Ladies' Sodality, and Mr. Raftus is well known in South Boston, as he has been on the ward committee for years. Alex Rogers of Haverhill, a cousin of the bride, presided at the organ, while Joseph, Peter and Paul Morrissett sung the wedding hymns. After the marriage ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Morrissett, parents of the bride, gave a wedding breakfast which was served by a Boston caterer. After spending the forenoon in much joy, the couple left for their home, which will be at 147 F street, South Boston. The ushers were Cyril Morrissett, Jr., Albert Morrissett, D. J. Raftus and Peter Raftus.

BUSY AT Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. building was a busy bee hive Wednesday evening. The usual employed boy gymnasium class met, a basket ball game between the Fore River Apprentice team and an employed boys' team was played; one of the Makaria match games on the bowling alleys was rolled; and representatives from several of the membership teams were on the floor looking out for men whom they expected to meet to show the building. The teams are all working and a good report is expected tonight.

TODAY'S COURT.

Edward Madden of Quincy was fined $10, Owen Teevins of Quincy $3, and George B. French of Weymouth $15 for drunkenness.

GETTING INTO FIGHTING TRIM

Republican Leaders Trying to Push President's Program

LAW REGARDING CORPORATIONS

Trusts Which Conform to It Have Nothing to Fear, but Others Must Suffer—Federal Incorporation Act Undergoing Revision — Crusade Against High Prices Has Tremendous Effect Upon Congress

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Root's advice to the New York Republican delegation to "get together," as expressed by him at a complimentary dinner, is eloquent of the anxiety among the Republican leaders to whip the party into fighting shape for the fall campaigns. It supplies the key to the situation in congress, which apparently has been confused, and explains why the leaders of that body are so energetically trying to put through the president's program.

When Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania, a regular of regulars in the senate, can be induced to report out a postal savings bank bill, and when Stephen B. Elkins of West Virginia, a great railroad owner, is found warming to a plan to perfect government control of railroads, more powerful influences than mere "pressure from the White House" are at work.

The president has been irritated by the more or less common assumption in certain circles that, while pledged to the continuance of the Roosevelt policies, he would give the country only their form and not their substance. His impatient note from the White House was issued to affirm the position that as far as the trusts are concerned he would protect the beneficent ones which conform to the law and would go after the bad ones.

The president resents the assumption that business prosperity depends upon his own attitude toward the corporations. Rather, he believes it depends on the corporations themselves, who have nothing to fear from him if they obey the law and sell goods and transportation at reasonable prices.

The federal incorporation act was inadvertently made public before it was finished. It is now undergoing important revision, especially relative to its interference with state taxation and the danger the law might offer of inducing corporations to surrender their state charters and take out charters at Washington.

The flurry in railroads stocks may be attributed not to any genuine fear that the president will upset the business of the country, but to the efforts of some of the great railroads to acquire control of other roads before the amendments to the interstate commerce act became law. These would obviously validate existing issues and perpetuate certain mergers whih apparently are contrary to the anti-Sherman act.

No doubt strenuous efforts will be made to emasculate both the railroad and the postal savings bank bill before they are permitted to become law, but President Taft is taking only the chances every president must take that his own ideas will be modified somewhat by congress. Whatever may happen to the administration bills, they are bound to be enacted in very nearly their original form. They are demanded, in their essentials, by the country, and as Senator Root has hinted, the Republican party must get together in support of them.

The crusade against high prices has had a tremendous effect upon congress, and has caused the leaders to take thought of political consequences where they might have been indifferent were the public less concerned. It is even possible that a determined demand for the repeal of the duties on cattle, meat and other foodstuffs will reopen the tariff question, although such a contingency is remote.

The tariff is still a subject to be watched, for no such upheavel of public opinion has been noted in the United States since the Civil war as that now disturbing the country over the prices of food.

Rare Rug For the White House.

A very rare Persian silk rug was recently added to the White House collection. It is is the gift of H. H. Tobakyan, the Persian consul general in New York, presented to the nation through President Taft. It is the same sort of a rug as the Persian consul general presented to the White House during the administration of President Roosevelt, except that it is not jewled. The size of the rug is 6½ by 4½ feet, the background is a rich tan, and the pattern is a floral one of unusual beauty and color. The inner and outer borders are of tan and light crimson. The rug is one which has long been admired and sought for by collectors.

OF INTEREST TO GRANITE MEN

Bill Relative to Erection of Soldiers' Monuments

Representative Campbell has introduced the following bill, accompanying the petition of Charles G. Chick, Esq., for legislation relative to the erection of soldiers' monument, by towns, and it has been referred to the Committee on Towns:

Section 1. Paragraph thirteen of section fifteen of chapter twenty-five of the Revised Laws is hereby amended by striking out in line thirty-four the words "credited to its quota;" by striking out, in line thirty-eight, the words "its;" and by striking out, in line forty, the word "its," so as to read as follows:—For erecting headstones or other monuments at the graves of persons who served in the war of the revolution, the war of eighteen hundred and twelve, the Seminole war, the Mexican war or the war of the rebellion, or who served in the military or naval service of the United States in the Spanish-American war; for erecting or dedicating monuments in memory of soldiers who died in the service of the country in the war of the rebellion, or of soldiers or sailors who died in the service of the United States in the Spanish-American war; and for keeping in repair or decorating graves, monuments or other memorials erected to the memory of soldiers or sailors who died in the service of the United States, or to the memory of its firemen who died from injuries received in the performance of their duties in the fire service, or for other memorial observances in their honor. Money appropriated in honor of such firemen may be paid over to, and expended for such purpose by, any veteran firemen's association or similar organization.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

SAYS THAT SLAVERY EXISTS IN MEXICO

Refugee Sees No Hope For the Lower Classes

Spokane, Jan. 27.—L. Guiterraz de Lara, a political refugee who was held by the federal authorities at Los Angeles on complaint of the Mexican government, charged with promoting resistance to the rule of President Diaz, declared in a public address here that slavery acutally prevails on the plantations in Mexico and that the term "Barbarous Mexico" is mild to one who fully understands the situation, adding:

"Americans are not being persecuted in Mexico. It is the lower class of Mexicans that is being trampled under the iron-shod foot of the upper class, under the rule of that brute Diaz."

De Lara also said there will be no hope for the peons until there is government ownership of everything and an international organization of labor that will wipe out country boundaries, adding that the lower class in Mexico was driven down to slavery and that the people are now simply making a fight to break the bonds.

White Slave Bill Passed

Washington, Jan. 27.—By a viva voce vote the Mann "white slave" bill was passed by the house practically as introduced by Mr. Mann.

LETTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST.

MONTCLAIR NOT SELFISH

Would Locate Schoolhouse to Benefit All

Editors of Daily Ledger:

In answer to the communication in Monday's Ledger from F. J. Kessler, chairman of the Montclair Improvement Association, we do not see the point to his remarks, whether they are meant to be witty or telling argument, we have been unable to make up our minds. We should say that the same criticism would apply to this correspondent which has been applied to the Rev. Rufus Tobey. Mr. Kesler fails to give any reasons why Montclair should have a schoolhouse or why Wollaston should not have one. At the outstart both correspondents, however, seem to be talking off the subject, for the proposed school lot, is not in Montclair, to begin with, but in a section midway between Wollaston and Montclair and at one end of Atlantic, hence invalidating these arguments, Montclair vs. Wollaston.

Montclair people are not so unreasonable or selfish as to insist upon a schoolhouse which would be of no benefit to the other sections roundabout. If Wollaston was to have a new school house, would they not have it in the northern section of the ward that part which is the furthest away from a school? If this is true and it really is so, the proposed Montclair lot for the new school house would just suit their purpose as it is a very short distance not more than five minutes' walk from their northern boundary. Montclair children would have about the same distance to go. Moreover a more desirable place for a schoolhouse could not be found than proposed lot since there are few buildings in the immediate vicinity, giving the children a fine healthy playground, absolutely safe from electric cars or teams which would be unparalled and unequalled by any other school section in the city. Who is there who has the welfare of their children at heart who would not make considerable effort to live in the vicinity where such school conditions would exist?

As to the suggestion that a small tract of land be bought near Montclair and a two or three room school house be built to accommodate this section of the city, is not worth mentioning as such action would be nothing but a waste of the city's money. Such a building would not anywhere near accommodate the children in Montclair, and it would be false economy in the end. Eventually more land would have to be bought, and it might not be possible to get it in the same place or if in the same place, since land in this section of the city is rising in valuaton continually, it would not be possible to get it at the same price. Secondly, another building would have to be built making an extra, useless expense ,and thirdly, would it not be a disgrace to the city of Quincy with its boasted school system to house its children in a building which is nothing more or less than that of a common district school? Progress.

GOOD JOKE.

Editor of Ledger:

I was much amused at a conversation I overheard the other night while standing on the steps of the Post Office. A lady called to a newsboy and the following dialogue took place:

What papers have you?

Three good ones the Boston Transcript and Globe and the Quincy Daily Ledger.

I already have the Ledger. How much is the Transcript?

Three cents.

Do they ask three cents for it?

Yes. It must be a pretty sporty paper to get that. The Globe and Ladger are only two cents.

The lady bought the Transcript, rather amused at the term "sporty" applied to the Transcript.

Bystander.

INDIGNATION AROUSED

Norfolk Downs Councilman Has Many Grievances

Editor of the Ledger:

The distressing accident which occurred at the Norfolk Downs station last night by which the life of a promising young man of fine family was snuffed out, serves again to bring forcibly to public attention the miserable conditions which a large and patient patronage o fthe New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad have permitted and suffered for the past few years.

The circumstances surrounding the death of the young man are so confusing and mysterious that I believe they warrant a searching inquiry and investigation on the part of the officials of our police department.

From such information as I have been able to glean, the depot was not open on Monday night at the time of the arrival of the 10.40 train from Boston, nor during the time between its departure and the arrival of the train that leaves Boston at 11.27. Not an official in any way connected with the station could then be found upon the premises, nor were the police in evidence, nor had direct communication with the police been obtained until I went to my home and by telephone informed Sergeant Barry of the location of the body of the young man and the probable cause of his death.

One small incandescent lamp on the easterly side of the inward track shed its lurid light on the ghastly scene, and only by the aid of lanterns and matches could those present proceed with the matter of identification.

I am informed on good authority that the young man was on the platform of the station on the arrival of the 10.40 train from Boston, and if the statement of Conductor Roberts of the train that is supposed to depart from Norfolk Downs to Boston at 11.25 and whose crew took the body from between the rails, is correct, the young man came to his death between 11 and 11.25 o'clock.

Had the station been open, and the station and its platform properly lighted as they should be, and never are, I venture to say the accident would not have happened.

The way and manner in which patrons of the railroad using this station have been neglected, insulted and abused have been for so long a time the subject of conversation with and complaint to the proper officials that it would seem the corporation is totally indifferent to the conditions as they now exist.

Night after night, late trains come in and depart from the station without a light being turned on in order to facilitate their arrival; many passengers are compelled to alight not on the platform but in the mire and slush and, after gaining the platform, are, in common with others, compelled to grope their way across the tracks in darkness.

During the past few weeks, snow was allowed to accumulate on the platform and about the premises and ice from one to six inches in thickness formed and was not removed, but allowed to melt away.

During the last week, in order to gain the platform, patrons residing on the easterly side of the road have had to wade through a veritable pond.

Time and again passengers have been greeted by the men in charge of the station with words of insult and abuse, and refused the consideration that kind mortals would not deny a dog.

Could you afford the space, and had I the time, much more could be stated, and all in addition to the above.

It is high time that concerted and determined action is taken to alleviate and remedy what is now flagrant and outrageous treatment, and I sincerely hope the good people of this community will rise to the occassion.

John Moi'.

RAILROAD MEN APPRECIATED.

Editors of Daily Ledger:

It is eminently fitting at this time, when our real estate and representative men of Atlantic are doing so much to further develop this beautiful suburb of Boston, as a desirable place of residence or sojourn, that the very gateway to this natural resort for the work-worn people of the greater metropolis, should be inviting, and attended with vigilance for the safety and comfort of all. The faithful sentinels, Arthur Poquett and Edward Fisher (the latter an old oldier of the railroad, as of the Republic) at Atlantic station should have honorable mention for their fidelity and achievement, especially as prior to their being appointed to the positions by the railroad authorities, much loss of life had taken place, in the years when an unsightly and insufficient station remained; and little consideration was bestowed upon the resident population going to and returning from Boston, or visitors desirous of seeing friends or relatives or viewing a reported "pretty place."

Now the daily traveller, to and fro, is greeted and treated courteously, welcomed to a tidily kept, protected interior which is well ventilated and comfortable. The new-comer is cordially assisted with information and direction, which is so likely to be sought upon alighting from a train. The two agents who carry the U. S. mail from the station to the post office and the return mail also, are in touch with the centre of local interest and observation. These officials have much in their keeping and with a thorough knowledge of railroad affairs as of civility and address, the public accord them that mead of praise so justly due and so modestly unsolicited.

GENERAL RATE WILL NOT BE DEFERRED

Germany's Reply to Our Request Concerning the Tariff

Berlin, Jan. 27.—The reply of the foreign office to the request of the United States that the application of Germany's general tariff to American imports be deferred until March 31 is understood to be a non-acceptance of the suggestion for delay. This means that general rates will be applied on Feb. 7.

The reply, however, will represent that the German government feels that no obstacles to a complete agreement exist that cannot be overcome by Feb. 7, the date upon which the general schedules would apply automatically. Germany holds that the points at issue have been considered sufficiently to enable both sides to reach a decision at this time.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Arrival of Brand New Baby Keeps Her Father Out of Jail

North Adams, Mass., Jan. 27.—Because a baby girl made her advent into the family of William Sackett, Sackett was late for his trial in the superior court in Pittsfield.

He was on the stand all day Tuesday, having been indicted for larceny, and came up for sentence yesterday. When he did not answer to his name he was ordered defaulted.

He appeared later, and when he had told the court the reason for his non-appearance the default was removed, and the judge ordered that no formal record of sentence be entered.

The court shook hands with Sackett and sent best wishes to Mrs. Sackett and the little one.

Portland Man Nearly Smothered Under Four Feet of Wheat

Portland, Me., Jan. 27.—The men employed in dressing the cargo of steamer Dominion heard faint cries from under the grain in No. 7 hatch. They followed the sound and at last found Thomas O'Donnell buried under four feet of wheat, representing nearly 4000 bushels.

He was apparently dead when taken out, and remained unconscious for nearly thirty minutes. His recovery seems probable. He was caught in the wheat Tuesday night, could not get out, and was buried under it until yesterday.

The bonds were sent to the bondholders' committee of New York by special messenger this morning.

AMERICAN VICTORY

Argentine Contracts An Object Lesson

The Boston Herald says editorially:

"Later reports from Buenos Ayres show that not only do contracts for two Dreadnoughts, to cost approximately $22,000,000, come to the Fore River Work at Quincy, but the Bethlehem Steel Company is to furnish one million dollars' worth of ordnance for torpedo boats now being built in Europe.

"Satisfactory as these important facts are to American pride and prophetic as they are o fa new day for the United States as a factor in Latin-American affairs, their effect will be far from pleasing in Great Britian, where, hitherto, most of the shipbuilding for those countries has been carried on. The disappointed English bidders refuse to acknowledge the superiority of their American competitors and give credit for the contracts to the diplomacy of former Secretary Root, which has been supplemented by efforts of Secretary Knox. It is reported also, that the free admission of hides under the recent tariff bill counted with the Argentine Republic in the award of the contract.

"Probably all of these elements entered into the American victory. Certainly credit must be given to the management of the Fore River Company for the determination, persistency and enterprising effort with which it went after the contract. When such effort characterizes all our seeking for foreign business, we shall have a greater export trade and a heavier balance of credit to our account.

"Diplomacy no doubt played its part, and there is still a rich reward coming for Senator Root's splendid work for international friendship. Reciprocity for the removal of the hide duty was due, and the Argentine did not begrudge it, which is good argument for more of the same sort of tariff policy, with neighbors to the North and across seas as well as with those to the South of us.

"The capture of these important contracts is encouraging, not simply because it means more immediate business for American employers and workingmen. That is a small estimate of the value gained. It is a demonstration of what the United States can do, and how it can be done. As an object lesson to private enterprise and to Federal legislators and executive officials it has a value, to be limited only by the extent to which its example is followed."

MEMORIALS TO SOLDIERS.

Hon. A. S. Roe of Worcester during his term of services as department commander of the G. A. R in this State, made an exhaustive inquiry as to the monuments, tablets and other memorials of the service of Massachusetts soliders in the Civil War. The result of his investigation has been carefully prepared but it was not completed until after the publication of the annual report of the G. A. R.

A resolve has been offered in the Senate to authorize its publication as a supplement to the journal of the 43d encampment of the G. A. R. A hearing was had before the committee on military last week. Ex-Senator Roe presented his report, and explained its contents ,and the benefits that would follow its publication. It will be the only definite and complete statement of what the Commonwealth has done by way of memorials, and the book will be much sought for in the public libraries for the information it will contain.

Department Commander John L. Parker endorsed the plan. No other State has taken such a step and Massachusetts would lead in this, as she has in everything connected with the Civil War. Past Department Commander W. A. Wetherbee also favored the publication. Department Assistant Adjutant General Israel H. DeWolf urged the adoption of the resolve as without it the work of the State for the soldiers would be incomplete.

At the suggestion of Senator Denny, chairman of the committee, Mr. Roe will add to the manuscript an account of the monuments erected by the Commonwealth on the battlefields of Winchester, Chickamauga, Antietam, Newburn and other points in several states where Massachusetts valor was displayed.

$1,185,000 IN FORGERIES

But $320,000 of Framingham's Bad Notes Now Outstanding

South Framingham, Mass., Jan. 27.—The total amount of forged paper attributed to former Town Treasurer John B. Lombard of South Framingham is $1,185,000, according to a report made public by the expert accountant who has been going over the books.

The same report adds that the total amount of forged paper in existence on Oct. 16, 1909, amounted to $320,000. Lombard is at present under indictment by a Middlesex grand jury for forgery of town notes.

The expert's report was given to the members of the South Framingham board of trade before it was issued to the voters. The board of trade members were astounded by the total figures involved, as told them by the expert.

Mother Does Not Want Blood of Suspect on Her Daughter's Head

Granite City, Ills., Jan. 27.—Yielding to the pleas of the mother of an 11-year-old girl who had been attacked, Judge Rigg ordered the release of a man held as a suspect in the case. A mob was gathered about the jail at the time, bent on hanging the man.

When Mrs. Hendricks heard of the threatened lynching she ran to the jail and begged that the suspect be released, saying she did not want the man's blood on her daughter's head.

New York World Freed by Decision In Panama Canal Case

New York, Jan. 27.—The federal government's prosecution of the publishers of the New York World was stopped by the federal court here, Judge Hough quashing the indictment against the Press Publishing company, publishers of The World; for alleged libel in connection with publications concerning the Panama canal purchase.

The indictment was thrown out on the ground of lack of jurisdiction of the court and for other reasons which Hough announced would be stated in a memorandum to be filed later.

FOOD PRICES STILL LOWER

Beef Will Soon Be Cheaper Than It Has Been For Many Years

Chicago, Jan. 27.—A further and more marked decline in the prices of foodstuffs is the latest development in the war which the nation is now waging against the prevailing high cost of living. Dealers agree that the recession is real, but are not ready to say when or where it will reach its limit.

It is recognized that it cannot continue for long. When the present over-crowded markets begin to find relief as a result of lower prices, the down movement must stop. One New York city wholesaler declares that by Saturday beef will be cheaper than it has been for years.

Several more states have interested themselves officially in the popular campaign and are contemplating investigations of various sorts.

The federal grand jury in Chicago has begun work on the packers' cases.

The annual meeting of Bethany church was adjourned to Friday night at 7.45, to complete unfinished business and hear reports of the various church organizations.

Mrs. W. E. Simmons of South Central avenue returned Wednesday from a pleasant visit with friends in Worcester. W. E. Simmons and his son John Simmons returned Monday.

At the second lecture in Missionary Astronomy for the Junior Christian Endeavor meeting Friday afternoon, at 4.15, Prof. Bishop will review the first and teach an advance lesson.

Great interest is being taken in the masquerade to be held at the clubhouse of the Wollaston Yacht club on Saturday evening. It is expected that many unique costumes will be in evidence.

Rev. Carl G. Horst will attend a reception in West Newton on Friday evening to be tendered Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his installation and ordination as pastor of the church there.

Walter Lacey of Grand View avenue, a sophomore at Harvard University is retiring today from Stillman Infirmary, Cambridge, where he has been recovering from a successful operation for appendicitis, performed last week. It is probable he will be confined to his home for a few weeks.

Mrs. H. A. Stevens of Wayland street, chairman of the committee on cheerful letter work for the Wollaston Ladies' Aid Alliance, read a paper on the work before the New England Associate Alliance at their meeting in Channing church, Newton. Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Quincy is president of this body, and Mrs. Alice D. Sanborn of Quincy secretary and treasurer.

BRIEFS

The Democratic City Committee will organize this evening.

Mrs. Maybury of 15 Faxon avenue fell Wednesday afternoon and broke her hip.

Dr. and Mrs. John F. Welch entertained their whist club on Wednesday evening.

Patents were issued this week to R. C. Hilton and H. H. Hall of this city.

Pickpockets are at work in the Boston Terminal station. Look out for them.

James Duncan, H. G. Smith and others attended the annual meeting of the Civic Federation in Ford hall, Boston, on Wednesday evening.

The Westland Ladies' quartet give a concert tomorrow evening at First Church chapel, the last in the series of entertainments in the Quincy Alliance series.

The steam lighter Miguelito, which was recently launched at the Fore River, had her trial Wednesday. Her contract speed called for 7 knots, but during the trial she developed 10 1-4 knots, thus exceeding her contract speed by 3 1-4 knots.

The Old Colony Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association held their annual meeting and banquet Wednesday evening at the Quincy House, Boston. Nahum Reed of Whitman was elected president. Speaking followed the banquet.

Mrs. Richard H. Moyle of Nightingale avenue, has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the death of her brother-in-law at Westerly.

The society of Milton attended on Wednesday evening a song recital of Miss Annie Roberts of the Boston Opera Company at the Town hall.

The Civic Betterment club organized by the Y. M. C. A. met Wednesday evening and discussed informally the matter of civic betterment. It was voted to invite the several men's clubs of the city to send delegates to a conference.

The Wollaston school lot on Beale street contains over an acre of land, 29,236 square feet, extending from Winthrop avenue to Prospect avenue. It has a frontage of over 300 feet on Beale, 187 on Winthrop, and 150 on Prospect.

The regular monthly social of the Young Women's club will be held at the Women's club house, Goffe street Saturday evening from 7.30 to 9.45 o'clock. The report of the Committee on Constitution and by-laws will be given and submitted to vote. An interesting program will be presented.

There will be an adjourned meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association Saturday evening, Jan. 29, at 7.30 o'clock, following the membership supper. The purpose of this meeting is to listen to the report of the nominating committee and elect an advisory board which was provided for at a recent meeting of the cooporation.

The attendance at the second night of the opera "Chimes of Normandy" under the auspices of Quincy council, Knights of Columbus, at Music hall was more largely attended than on the opening night. The opera ran fully as smoothly as on the first night and the solos were frequently applauded so that there were many encores.

Jack Horner Pie For Bridal Luncheon

Done in white crape paper is this Jack Horner pie in the form of a shoe. It is designed for a bridal luncheon, as the orange blossom decoration shows. The gifts are attached to the ribbons and may be as costly as the bride can afford. Clever bride and groom place cards are seen down by the heel.

Advertising to Fill a Church.

Advertising will fill a church the same as it will a store is the verdict of St. Lawrence Chandler. He advertised a few days ago for lonely Christians to come to South Park Methodist Episcopal church in Chicago and received forty-five replies. Twenty-five of his correspondents shook hands with him at the church on a recent Sunday morning, and Mr. Chandler says he will advertise again.

☞ The circulation of the Ledger is right on the jump these days not only by boys and agents but new subscriptions are coming in each day. One lady said: "Please send me the Ledger each day; one seems to be almost out of the world without it."

MELROSE WINS 19 TO 13

Defea's Quincy High in a Sharp Contest

For the second time this season Quincy High loses, first at Newton and Wednesday to Melrose. The score was 19 to 13 in favor of the visiting team.

Melrose has a heavy team and a fast one. It will be remembered that they won last year with their weighty team. They put up a good contest, although at times they were somewhat rough.

If Quincy had about twenty pounds more weight per man to match up with the Melrose fellows, or the Newton ones either we would have won easily with our fast team. The home five battled hard and showed its skill, but it could act only on the defensive, holding down the visitor's score, for the most part of the time. The lightness was a great handicap, for some of the home men were lifted, literally off their feet time and time again, so little opportunity was given for shooting the baskets.

Quincy, and Melrose also, won most of its points in the first half. The contest waged fiercely and each member of the teams was unquestionably onto his job.

The second half was one long strife. Some hopes were entertained that the home quintet would turn the tables and change the proposition of sixteen to five of the first half with advantage for Melrose into her favor. But both teams held each other down so that the expectations were not realized.

Time was called several times for a few minutes because of mishaps to some on the home team, caused by unnecessary roughness on the part of Melrose men.

All the Quincy Players did good work. H. Prout played well for his second game this season. Possibly the defeat may be a good thing if it keeps the boys from being too self-confident and showing there is yet opportunity for improvement. The experience gained in meeting two heavy fives like Newton and Melrose should prove advantageous if they later meet teams which place such odds on them.

A side contest was waged between the Senior and Junior teams. This had a number of amusing features, although after they got down to business it was a pretty good game. The Juniors won this time. Thus the victory of a little while ago for the Seniors in evened up. Knapp and Ford helped the Seniors much, while the Cranshaw brothers did the trick for the Juniors although a number of the others played well.

MISSIONARY ENTERTAINMENT.

A pleasant entertainment was given Wednesday evening in Bethany chapel by the Woman's Missionary society of the church. First on the program was a duet by Gladys and Margaret Hunt, which was followed by selections by a group of four girls, Dorothy Lowe, Miriam Miller, Margaret Hunt and Dorothy Sweetland, with Gladys Hunt at the piano.

Mrs. Eben W. Sheppard read a paper on "Children in far away lands," which was illustrated by the stereopticon. Mrs. Sheppard told of the great work the missionary women were doing for little children of Spain, Turkey, China India, Japan, Philippine Islands and in Africa. The entertainment closed by all uniting in singing.

A cake and candy sale held after the entertainment by the King's Daughters was a financial success.

FUNERAL OF GEORGE WELSH.

The funeral of George Morris Welsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Welsh of 23 Rawson road, was held this morning from the church of the Sacred Heart. A requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. John P. Cuffe, the regular choir furnishing the music of the mass. On the altar were Rev. John J. Coan of St. John's church, also Rev. Dr. Tracey and Rev. Fr. Hickey of the Brighton parish. Seated in the body of the church were four sisters from the Brighton seminary. There were many beautiful flowers. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

WOLLASTON VICTORY

Defeat West Quincy in Makeria League

The Wollastons took all three strings from the West Quincys on Wednesday evening and led on totals by 131 pins. Miller was high on singles, and Morris on totals. The Wollastons scored 460 on their second string.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Quincy Y. M. C. A. basket ball team is scheduled to play the Normal five at Bridgewater on Saturday evening.

The Thayer Academy basket ball team continued their winning streak and unbroken victories Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Middleboro High school quintet by a score of 82 to 34 thus establishing a new record for largest score of the season. Willard threw 16 baskets from the floor, Avery twelve and Alden 9. Gammons played well for the losers. Thayer boys come to Quincy Feb. 11 and a warm game is sure to result at the High school.

The young men of Quincy who are not aware of the benefits to be derived from becoming a member of the Y. M. C. A. only have to visit the local branch before they become enthused and apply for membership. It is a grand idea for the young man who is growing both in body and mind and the campaign now going on should bring many needy ones into the fold. The swimming pool and running track offer fine inducements to all who are training for any branch of sports, and the sooner you apply for membership the better it will be for you.

The Holy Cross baseball squad is already at work in their cage at Worcester. Among the candidates for the varsity nine is Sweeney, the crack little backstop who has caught here for Rockland in Old Colony league, and Foley the Canton boy who did occasional twirling for Stoughton last season. Bernie Spillane the North Easton lad is also out to make the squad. "Red" as he is known played here a few times and made a big hit with the local rooters.

Quincy checker players will take part in the contest between Norfolk county and Wells Memorial men in Boston next Monday evening.

Braintree High was defeated at basket ball on Wednesday by Bridgewater High, 19 to 8.

County Commissioner John F. Merrill and Deputy Sheriff George H. Field won the top scores at the weekly whist tournament of the Granite City club Wednesday evening. Each won 36 points and lost 16, which gave them 69 2 percent. Thomas G. Smith served a Dutch lunch at the conclusion of the tournament.

William J. Hackett of the Fore River apprentices, who won the Brockton fair Barathon race last fall, is entered in the twenty-mile invitation run to be held under the auspices of Co. A of the Naval brigade at the East Newton street armory on Saturday, Feb. 5.

EDUCATIONAL COURSE.

A very interesting lecture was given at Union hall Wednesday evening by Charles H. Johnson, his subject being "Historic Quincy" which he illustrated with stereopticon views. The lecture was the second in course of educational lectures held under the auspices of the Engineers' Union. Robert McVitie chairman of the committee opened the meeting, and introduced Mr. Johnson. After the lecture the chairman announced that the next in the series would be held the fourth Wednesday in February, the subject and place to be announced.

OLD COLONY LEAGUE

Weymouth Unable to Make Clean Sweep

In the Old Colony bowling league Wednesday evening, Weymouth defeated Quincy 3 to 1, while the other game was postponed. The league standing is:

	Won.	Lost.
Weymouth	27	5
Norfolk Downs	14	14
Quincy	13	19
Braintree	6	22

WEYMOUTH GAME.

Weymouth as usual took three out of four games on their own stamping grounds Wednesday evening, the Quincy quintet falling before them this time. Morton of Quincy was high man of the evening with a single string of 108 and Smith of Weymouth captured the three string total with 278.

The summary:

WEYMOUTH
C. Connell	86	78	92	256
Guertin	105	75	81	261

BRAINTREE-DOWNS.

The league games scheduled for Braintree Wednesday evening were not rolled, the Downs team cancelling early in the evening giving as their reason for not appearing sickness of two of the bowlers. The games will be rolled off in a near future when it is agreeable to both teams.

AERIAL EXPOSITION.

The latest exhibition, and one that will serve to intensify an interest that holds the mind of nearly everyone in New England at the present time is the announcement that February 16-23, at the Mechanic Building, Boston, will be held the first National Aerial Exposition ever devoted exclusively to air craft. This will be held under the personal direction of Chester I. Campbell of Auto Show fame and under the sanction of the New England Aero Club of America.

Among the many notable ships of the air that will be on exhibition is Capt. Thomas Baldwin's immense 105 foot dirigible the one that made the successful flights during the Hudson-Fulton celebration and a replica of the one sold to the U. S. Government. There will also be shown a Zepplin, A Herring Curtis, A Wright model, several Bleriots an Antionette, a Latham and many "freaks" yet to fly.

Hundreds of models of every conceivable description will be sent by the West Side Branch New York, Junior Aero Club of New York, Columbia, and Harvard Universities and many individual exhibitors and inventors. it will afford the public an opportunity of seeing at close view a most remarkable collection of balloons dirigibles, air ships, kites, etc., and one ensembled at great expense.

Boston Automobile Show.

As the annual antomobile shows in New York are a thing of the past, the great interest now centers in the coming show of the Boston Automobile Dealers Association which will be held in Mechanics Building, Boston, March 5-12.

It can be asserted with positiveness that Boston motor enthusiasts have a surprise awaiting them when the show opens. Manager Chester I. Campbell has long had the reputation of presenting the biggest and best show in the country even excelling in number of exhibits and artistic decorating scheme the New York and Chicago shows. This year the result will surpass anything seen before. Not only will racing cars be seen in great numbers, but beautiful finished pleasure and business vehicles that mark the progress in the automobile industry. A number of the new lower priced cars will be shown and the great display of accessories will embrace practically every known device that adds to the comfort and convenience of the motorist. Every available inch of space will be used in the great Mechanics Building, and even that is inadequate as hundreds of would be exhibitors have learned to their cost.

BRIEF PARLIAMENT LIKELY

Unionists Have Lost All Chances of Controlling Government

London, Jan. 27.—The combined strength of the Liberal, Labor and Nationalist coalition has reached 345, or more than half the number of members of the house of commons.

A Unionist government, therefore, is out of the question, and the only point still undecided is the exact strength of the coalition majority.

But as an independent Liberal majority is equally out of the question, only a short life can be predicted for the incoming government.

The party organizers have already been instructed to keep up an unceasing vigilance, and to be prepared for an appeal to the country at any moment.

With the return of Premier Asquith and War Minister Haldane, all the cabinet ministers have now been re-elected.

WOULD CLOSE CHURCHES

Bill Before Senate Bars Sunday Preaching In Washington

Washington, Jan. 27.—If the Sunday observance bill now before the senate passes congress, preachers will be prohibited from pursuing their calling and the churches forced to close, declared Senators Dixon and Cummins in discussing the measure.

The bill provides for the observance of Sunday as a day of rest in the District of Columbia.

It was asserted in the senate debate that the national capital was the only considerable territory in the United States in which the Fourth Commandment has been ignored.

The bill was opposed largely because it excepts from its operations Jews and Seventh Day Adventists, who observe another day as the Sabbath.

ROBERT BURNS ANNIVERSARY

Clan McGregor and Loyal Ladies Celebrate With Grand Banquet.

Address on Burns, Scotch Songs and Dancing.

The Loyal Ladies and Clan McGregor, No. 5 O. S. C., celebrated the 151st anniversary of the birth of Scotland's National poet, Robert Burns, Tuesday evening with the annual banquet, which has become a feature of Quincy's social season.

Thompson's union orchestra opened the entertainment with a medley of Scottish airs; excellently rendered. Chief James Birnie welcomed the guests in the name of the organizations, Peter Kerr, Royal Secretary of the O. S. C., gave an address on the birth and genius of Robert Burns.

The singing of James King and Miss Mary MacLeod was great, the audience listening with eager attention to the old familiar songs of the mother land. The humorous selections of Mr. Kendall and the dancing of Misses Frances McLaughlin and Edna Boyd were fine, and certainly took the house.

One of the features of the evening was the rendition of an original poem by W. W. Whitcher, which showed that the gentleman has made a study of Burn's poems, and has an excellent conception of the philosophy of the poets masterpieces.

At the close of the entertainment, the guests did ample justice to the excellent repast; fully six hundred sat at the tables and it must have been gratifying to the committees in charge to see the culmination of their labors so heartily appreciated.

After supper about one hundred and fifty couples participated in the grand march, and it was inspiring to the Scotsman's heart to see the flash of the MacGregor tartan as the different figures of the march were evolved. The dance was continued until 3 A. M., and every minutes of the time was thoroughly enjoyed by everybody present.

When those who attended the banquet think on the excellence of the affair they will agree with Burns when he wrote:

"Pleasures are like pop, ies spread
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed
Or like a snowflake in a river
O e moment white then gone forever."

There can be nothing sad about the memories which cling about such an affair, but there is an inspiration for the orders interested, to try if possible to attain the degree of excellence reached, when they are preparing to celebrate the 152d anniversary.

The Loyal Ladies and Clan MacGregor are powers for good in our community, and do their work in a quiet unassuming manner, alleviating suffering, no matter how caused. Whatever these organizations take in hand, is done well as attested by the banquet and everyone who in the least contributed to the success of the affair deserve credit for the success.

NEW PASTOR CALLED

Rev. W. D. Ayres Wanted at Park and Downs

The Park and Downs Congregational church at a special meeting Thursday evening voted to extend a call to Rev. W. D. Ayres of Cape Vincent, N. Y., who recently finished a special course of study at Andover Theological school. The church has an assurance that he will accept.

G. F. BURKHARDT DEAD.

Edward Burkhardt of Billings street Atlantic, mourns the loss of his father, Gottlieb F. Burkhardt who died on Thursday at his home on Centre street, Jamaica Plain. He had been confined to the house since Christmas. Since the death of his father some years ago he had been at the head of the large Burkhardt brewing business at Roxbury. He also took a great interest in the Martin Luther home established by his father for orphan boys and girls. He was a life member of the Trinity Lutheran church, where the funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon.

He leaves a widow and six sons and daughters.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Thursday evening Feb. 3 at 8 o'clock in Colonial hall. The usual business will be transacted and officers elected for the ensuing year. About the same list of names is presented to be voted for as follows:

Commodore—Herbert W. Robbins.
Vice Commodore—Ira M. Whittemore.
Rear Commodore—Frank F. Crane.
Secretary—John O. Hall.
Treasurer—George S. Morse.
Measurer—Ralph E. Winslow.

WHITMAN KNIGHTS

Exemplify Malta Degree for John Adams Commandery

John Adams Commandery initiated four members in the Malta, the first degree of the order Thursday evening. The crack Malta team of Mount Herman Commandery of Whitman worked the degree as only that team can. The members of the team being large presented a beautiful sight in the ancient Knightly robe. The accuracy and precision of their military technique being grand eliciting admiration and praise from new and old members alike. Following are the names of the team members:

Commander—Charles E. Cole.
Generalismo—J. W. Thayer.
C. G.—George Webster.
Prelate—A. W. Chapman.
S. W.—John Tylor.
J. W.—A. P. Flagg.
Sword Bearer—J. C. Bryant.
Stan B.—R. O. Stanton.
F. G.—A. W. Harriman.
S. G.—L. E. Golden.
Warder—W. C. Joslin.

Instructor—A. C. Tucker.
Pianist—R. T. Blanchard.
Speaker—Bela Alden.

There were present visitors from Middlesex Commandery, Lexington Boston Commandery, Boston; St. John's Commandery, Brockton; and from Everett Commandery.

Seventy-nine enjoyed a supper that reflected great credit to the caterer P. C. Com. Frank Melville, after which cigars were passed and everybody enjoyed an informal good time in speech making and story telling until just time enough to catch the last t ains.

Several applications for membership are on the way and the working members of John Adams commandery are smiling and feeling fine over the prospects for the future.

QUINCY BOYS OFF.

Eleven boys left Quincy this morning from the Boys' department of the Young Men's Christian Association as delegates to the 20th annual conference boys' departments of Young Men's Christian Associations of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Holyoke. The conference lasts three days and the boys will return on Monday. It is considered a rare privilege to be selected as a delegate, and every fellow who is attending, feels the responsibility and the opportunity that is given him. Some of the best men in the country have been secured as speakers. The boys attending from Quincy were: Alex Mundie, Howard Pratt, Charles Bishop, Howard Cantley, Sturgis Hunt, Harold Ruxton, Charles Holmes, Clarence Cassidy, Roy Sidelinger, Henry Trask and Alex Robertson.

MONUMENT DEALERS.

The Retail Monument Dealers' Association of Massachusetts held their annual convention and banquet at the Quincy House, Boston, on Thursday. Members weer present from all sections of the state. This association is less than year old, but is in a most flourishing condition. Business of great interest to their trade was transacted. J. L. Miller of Quincy was unanimously reelected president and P. T. Fitzgerald one of the executive committee. It was unanimously voted to affiliate with the National Association of Retail Monument Dealers with headquarters at Chicago. Mayor elect Fitzgerald made a call and shook hands with many of the members.

Those well versed in waterfront and canal matters think the preliminary report of the National Waterways Commission most favorable as substantiated by the two paragraphs reported in Tuesday's Ledger as indicating what will be done if cities and states do their share of the improving and prepare the way. The heading "Canals Not Favored" was misleading as was found on reading the article.

HALL IS HELD IN $50,000 BAIL

Savings Bank Treasurer Pleads Not Guilty of Larceny

He Voluntarily Surrenders--Gigantic Shortage Probable

Webster, Mass., Jan. 28.—After keeping in hiding for more than a week, John A. Hall, treasurer of the Southbridge Savings bank, who is charged with the larceny of $21,000 of the bank's funds, surrendered himself to the state police at Worcester and was brought here for a hearing in the district court.

Hall waived examination and pleaded not guilty to a specific charge of grand larceny. Judge Clark ordered him to furnish $50,000 bonds or be taken to jail. Satisfactory bonds were furnished and Hall was released. The bondsmen are Albert E. Wells, Alfred Cole, Fred Dakin and L. E. Bradley, all of Southbridge, and Stuart Martin and S. F. Martin of Boston.

Hall's whereabouts have been known to the Martins, who are members of his wife's family, and it was arranged that the Martins should take him to State Police Officers Murray and Molt at Worcester.

The arrival of Hall at his home in Southbridge, following his surrender of himself and release from custody, caused great excitement in his home town. A town official of Southbridge, who is in close touch with the savings bank situation, declared that the shortage might reach the gigantic sum of $650,000.

Lawyer Gaskill, retained as Hall's counsel in Southbridge, issued a statement in which he said that Hall had voluntarily returned from New York of his own free will, and that he had written to his brother-in-law, Stuart F. Martin of Boston, to meet him and accompany him back.

Hall's case will be considered by the grand jury in May.

The Southbridge Savings bank was closed last Friday by order of Bank Commissioner Chapin. There are over 6000 depositors. The deposits amount to over $2,000,000.

There was great excitement when it was learned that a warrant had been issued for Hall, who was also town treasurer and treasurer of the Y. M. C. A. It was charged that Hall had stolen $21,000. A search was made for Hall and for a time it was thought that he might have killed himself. Mrs. Hall, however, did not share this belief.

BANQUET IN FEBRUARY

West Quincy Improvement Society Appoint Committees

A very largely attended meeting of the West Quincy Improvement association was held Thursday evening at St. Jean hall, President Stephen B. Little presiding. There was an animated but informal discussion on the all-night street lighting question but no definite action was taken. Other matters of general interest to the ward were also discussed by those present.

John D. Smith, chairman of the committee on street railway accommodations reported that he had held a conference with Supt. Conway in regard to the crowded condition of certain of the morning and evening trips, heating of the cars, and other matters, and that he had promised to investigate the same and remedy them.

It was voted to appoint a committee of five to meet with like committees of the East Milton and Montclair associations, in regard to the extension of the street railway line from East Milton to connect with the Adams street line of the Elevated in Dorchester. The committee appointed were James H. Elcock, W. F. Lakin, John D. Smith, Dr. John H. Ash and William H. Teasdale.

It was voted to hold a grand banquet at Farnum's hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 24, at which time several speakers will be present. The committee appointed to have this in charge were John Evans, John Casey, Joseph DeFoy, Robert J. Teasdale, Joseph Walker, Dr. John H. Ash and Edward J. Sandberg. The banquet promises to be a great success as over ninety tickets for the affair were disposed of at this meeting.

BUILDING PERMITS.

Among the recent building permits issued are the following:

Anti-Tuberculosis Association for hospital building on Faxon Park road.

James H. Broughton for a dwelling house on Safford street, Wollaston.

Edward Healan for garge building on Sea avenue, Houghs Neck.

FOREMAN BRINGS SUIT

Claims Not Legally Discharged by the City

John M. O'Brien of West Quincy has entered suit against the city to recover salary as foreman in the public works department from February 1908, up to the present time. Mr. O'Brien was appointed to the position as foreman, under the civil service rules by Commissioner Burke, May 31, 1907. He continued in the employment of the city until February 1908, when he was discharged by Commissioner Bainbridge, the work for which he was employed having ceased at that time. When work was resumed in the department some months later, he was not employed. O'Brien's claim is that having been appointed under the civil service rules he should have been given employment when work was resumed as he had not been legally discharged from the employment of the city. He now seeks to recover pay from the time of his discharge.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Gallagher and Charles Keefe of Braintree were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

QUINCY MUSIC HALL

THE HIGHEST CLASS OF LICENSE—A THEATRE LICENSE, is now issued to Music Hall. Last year the fire exits and facilities for fire prevention were ample for a Hall License, but to obtain the present highest class of License, the whole main exit has been torn down and made absolutely fire-proof, large automatic smoke and fire vents have been constructed over the stage, all scenery has been made fire-proof, and the previous generous exit facilities have been very greatly increased. There are now ten (10) doors opening from the Hall, and six (6) separate exits, 2 of 8 feet each, 1 of 7 1-2 feet, 2 of 5 feet each, and 1 of 3 1-2 feet, a total of 37 feet of exit. All exits are lighted continually by both gas and electricity. There is an asbestos curtain, just specially rehung, by which the stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are chemical fire extinguishers, and fire pails throughout the Hall.

The Location is in the heart of the city. The street cars with double tracks pass the door.

The Elaborate, Permanent Decorations which have recently been put up are most attractive, and add much to the appearance of the Hall.

The Electric Light Festoon over the entrance way, flashing first red, then white, is a unique feature of much value.

The Moonlight Effect obtained by having the electric light come through Japanese lanterns is a pleasing novelty.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded Hall.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a switchboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a particularly generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards are valuable.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish an absolutely safe and large and really first class Hall.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

Poor old "Gay Paree."

Have you joined the Y. M. C. A.?

The shoe dealers are wearing a broad smile these days.

Remember, February gives us only 28 days so don't make any appointments for Feb. 29th this year.

Those January thaws arrived on schedule time all through the month. Thanks.

If you think Quincy is a "one hoss Shea" city just drop in to a council meeting sometime. You will soon see your mistake.

Quincy's 400 are out of sight for the present. The local Y. M. C. A. with their campaign for 200 occupies the centre of the stage.

There have been appearing in these columns of late, sketches of Quincy in the past. Who will volunteer to inform us what Quincy will be in the future?

That the episcopal churches in the city are more than holding their own and steadily growing in influence and numbers is shown in the reports of the annual parish meetings. At St. Chrysostom's last week the meeting was one of rejoicing because of the burning of the church mortgage and again this week at Christ church a mortgage was burned, all of which indicates prosperity. Christ church is one of the oldest in the city and all residents are interested in its welfare.

As on numerous former occasions when internal strife theatened to temporarily disrupt the Republican party some strong man has arisen who was able to command peace. Thus in what promised to be a disastrous situation, when regulars and insurgents were struggling with might and main against each other, President Taft appeared in the field of strife and presented a treaty of peace which was eagerly signed by the combatants. From now on the internal struggles will cease until the President's legislative programme has been enacted and the party has a firm platform upon which to stand before the country in the coming Congressional elections.

The rush to cities, or at least, the inclination to develop great cities, evidently prevails in Germany as well as in Great Britain and America. Formerly Germany had no great metropolis and no large cities while the overwhelming masses of the people lived outside of the cities and large towns. A century ago there were only two considerable places in Germany namely, Berlin and Hamberg—neither of which has as many as 200,000 inhabitants, including its suburbs, while Paris had 600,000 and London more than 1, 000,000. In those two places dwelt only about 1.25 per cent of the German people. Now there are no fewer than 37 large cities or towns in the Empire of more than 100,000 inhabitants each, embracing some 20 per cent of the population of the Empire. In the first year of the present century Berlin had grown to 2,469,000. The causes of this remarkable growth of Berlin are various. The enormous growth of the German industries has probably contributed most largely to the condition which has made the country more potential abroad but less self-sustaining at home.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The equipment of our coast defense forts is one of the most remarkable evidences of military progress in America. The immense search lights which reveal the enemy the moment he appears, even on the darkest nights, the wireless telegraph stations that can catch his message, the system of fire control whereby the position of the enemy is determined, and the efficient system of mining that has been developed, all indicate the woe that will betide the hostile fleet that essays to pass the line of defense. It is said that Uncle Sam has worked out the best system of harbor mining that exists in the world. Furthermore, every harbor from Maine to Washington can be completely mined at a cost less than it required to build a single battleship. The coast defense of the United States proper are now about three-fourths completed and about one-third of the work has been done in the insular possessions. When those of the United States proper are finished the chances of an invasion of the country, unless it be through Canada or Mexico, will be decidedly remote. When they are completed Boston and New York will be about as safe from the shells of an enemy as if they were inland cities.—Haverhill Gazette.

ROBERT LUCE COMING.

Hon. Robert Luce of Somerville will address the Men's Club of Christ church, Monday evening February 7 at 8 o'clock, at the parish house, Elm street, on the new Canadian Law relative to the investigation of industrial disputes. His honor the Mayor as well as the different Men's Clubs of Quincy have already accepted invitations to be present. Invitations have also been sent to the Granite City Club, Board of Trade, Merchant's Association and many prominent individuals. The Christ Church Club realizes the importance of the visit of ex-Representative Luce and are making every effort to make it an important civic event. The topic under discussion is one that vitally interests all classes, employer and employee alike, and a large meeting is expected.

MILTON.

The East Milton Improvement association will meet tonight at Ellsworth hall. Local town affairs will be the subject for discussion.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Bearse returned this week from a visit to Brewer, Me.

The semi-monthly social dance at the Cunningham gymnasium was held Wednesday evening and was largely attended. It was a very enjoyable affair.

The regular weekly meeting of the Thursday evening club was held this week when whist was enjoyed.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., has built a board fence along the easterly side of the tracks near the East Milton depot, thus eliminating a source of danger. People hurrying for trains have been in the habit of crossing the tracks all along this stretch, and there have been many narrow escapes from serious accidents. With this fence people will be obliged to go to the regular crossing.

Considerable opposition has developed to the candidacy of Austin W. Greene for selectman from the East section of the town, and there seems to be an organized effort to defeat him at the polls. It is expected that his candidacy will come in for considerable discussion at the meeting of the Improvement association at its meeting tonight. The association was formed that this end of the town might have an equal representation among the town officers.

The warrant for the annual town meeting is not out as yet, but it is expected to contain an unusually large number of articles.

Petrified Dog In a Tree

Manassas, Va., Jan. 28.—John O'Neal, while hunting in a dense forest a few miles south of this place, found a petrified dog in the forks of a tree near the ground. The supposition is that the dog in springing for prey was caught as found and slowly turned to stone.

Body Found After Eight Months

West Tisbury, Mass., Jan. 28.—Horace H. Lovell's disappearance of eight months was explained when his body was found lying in a pool of water near the schoolhouse at which he had taught for many years. Death was due to suicide by drowning. He was 62 years old.

—It seems inconceivable that two men can be kept steadily employed the year round making checkers. Yet that is what is done in a mill at Bethel. The average output of checkers from this mill is 800 barrels. It has been as high as 1,000 and down to 600, but 800 is the average. This does not sound very large, but when the figures are worked out it is found to be a lot. In every barrel shipped there are 30,000 checkers of the ordinary size, while in 800 barrels there are 28,800,000, or 1,200,000 sets of twenty-four checkers each. That is to say, with the output of this Maine mill 2,400,000 persons could be playing checkers at the same time.—Kennebec Journal.

YELLOW TIDE CREEPS HIGHER

Brings Terror to Hearts of Stricken People In Paris

Paris, Jan. 28.—The flood conditions became considerably worse this morning, particularly in the south and east sections. In the sixth arrondissement, the old Latin quarter, the situation is critical.

The sidewalk of the Quai des Grangs-Augustin collapsed and fell into the Orleans company's tunnel beneath, further extending the flood through the ancient streets. Another bad cave-in occurred in the Rue de Tournon.

The Seine's inexorable yellow tide creeps slowly higher, each inch of water widely extending the area of destruction, desolation and ruin.

Although the barometer is rising rapidly, and bright sunshine has succeeded the raging storms, a feeling of consternation bordering on panic prevailed when the authorities, who had promised the maximum of the flood for Thursday, announced that this would not be reached until today.

Official figures of the stage of the water are difficult to obtain and the city council, at a stormy session, charged M. Lepine, prefect of Paris, with withholding the true gravity of the situation. The prefect defended his attitude by saying that he was governed by the necessity of not unduly alarming the people.

In the meantime, what is happening is enough to strike terror to the hearts of all. The very crust of the city seems ready to sink into the flooded subterranean labyrinth beneath.

Every hour drains are bursting in new localities, causing a subsidence of the streets, or bulging them up feet above their normal level, while the overflow of surface water from the river is transforming the inundated districts into formidable lakes and the streets into canals.

In the Bercy quarter the water is six feet deep in the streets, and the entire left bank of the Seine, from above the islands to Auteil, comprising the law court institute, the fashionable St. Germain district, the foreign office, the chamber of deputies and the Champs-de-Mars, is submerged under from one to ten feet of water.

Some of the deputies left the Palais Bourbon last night in rowboats, others on the backs of attendants. The walls of the Invalides station are crumbling, and both that structure and the wing of the foreign office opposite are in danger of collapse.

The streets surrounding the St. Lazare station have sunk three feet, and the situation there is regarded as desperate. It is also feared that the foundations of the two big neighboring department stores are being undermined.

The overflow of the broken sewers into the flooded basements menaces the health of the occupants, and the smell of sewerage is already permeating the buildings.

The police notified householders, especially those of the wealthier class, who are using automobile engines for pumping purposes, that they must exercise the greatest care, as the removal of the water pressure would likely cause of the foundations to sink or collapse.

Soldiers are working desperately disentangling driftwood above the Solferino and Henry IV bridges, while large forces of men are still engaged in constructing dams to divert the course of the swiftly moving currents.

In spite of the crippled water supply the authorities say that the reservoirs are intact and that there is no danger of a famine if the water is husbanded carefully and confined strictly to drinking purposes. At the same time a warning is again issued that the water should be boiled.

Owing to defective communication with the provinces few dispatches have been received here, but these report a general improvement. The weather everywhere throughout France has ameliorated and it is believed that the worst of the floods is past.

AN EASY AND HARMLESS WAY TO DARKEN THE HAIR.

Who does not know of the value of sage and sulphur for keeping the hair dark, soft, glossy and in good condition? As a matter of fact, sulphur is a natural element of hair, and a deficiency of it in the hair is held by many scalp specialists to be connected with loss of color and vitality of the hair. Unquestionably, there is no better remedy for hair and scalp troubles, especially premature grayness, than sage and sulphur, if properly prepared. The Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, put up an ideal preparation of this kind, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. It is sold by all leading druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the manufacturers upon receipt of price.

PATRIOTIC DAY.

Paul Revere Corps 103 and Post 88 will observe McKinley's birthday Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Annie T. Morrison, 192 Washington street. All patriotic orders and the public are invited. Let everyone that has a flag display it on Saturday as they would on Lincoln's or Washington's birthday, and let everyone wear a red carnation to show their respect to our martyred president.

POLICE BALL TONIGHT.

The Quincy Police Relief Association seem likely to have a fine night for the annual ball which means that the capacity of Music hall will be taxed to accommodate those who desire to attend. The association has been somewhat unfortunate as regards weather in years past for a snow storm usually arrives on the day set upon, and it will be a welcome inovation to have a pleasant night. The committees having the affair in charge have been hard at work on the arrangements for sometime and nothing has been left undone that will add to the pleasure and comfort of those who attend. As many of the regular officers as can find specials to take their places on the beats will be present. Many representatives from out of town departments are also expected.

DEATH OF ADMIRAL DYER

Served With Farragut and Won Fame at Battle of Manila

Melrose, Mass., Jan. 28.—Rear Admiral N. Mayo Dyer, U. S. N., retired, who served with distinction under Farragut during the Civil war and commanded the U. S. S. Baltimore at the battle of Manila Bay, died at his home in this city last evening, aged 71 years.

Dyer had just returned home from Washington, where he went last Friday to learn the result of a unique suit brought by him against the city of Melrose to recover taxes paid under protest on the bank account of the admiral, the funds of which he declared constituted the salary given him by the government.

He had taken the case to the full bench of the United States supreme court, and after learning that this court had decided against him, reached his home Wednesday.

Yesterday morning he was attacked with severe pains in the stomach, and gradually sank. An autopsy was performed and the cause of death determined as cancer of the intestines.

Rear Admiral Dyer lived with a sister and a niece. He was a native of Provincetown and never married.

WITH BROAD EXCEPTIONS

Senate Makes Sunday a Day of Rest at National Capital

Washington, Jan. 28.—The national capital hereafter will observe Sunday as a day of rest, if a bill passed by the senate becomes law. With broad exceptions, the measure makes it unlawful for any person or corporation to labor at any trade or calling on that day.

Among the exceptions are housekeepers, public service corporations and sacred concerts. Jews and Seventh Day Adventists and others who observe another day of the week are also exempted. A penalty of fine and imprisonment is provided for violators of the law.

RACE RIOT IN MILL

Due to Greeks Taking Places of Armenian Makers of Rugs

Amesbury, Mass., Jan. 28.—A race riot, started by Greeks and Armenians in the Merrimac Hat company here, resulted in the arrest of half a dozen Greeks and the removal to the hospital of three others.

The trouble grew out of the alleged supplanting of Armenian workmen by Greeks in the rug department of the factory. Up to a short time ago there were practically all Armenians in the department. When the trouble started yesterday there were only two Armenians in the department and ten Greeks.

The trouble has been brewing, it is said, for some time, so that the fight started with very little provocation.

THE FISKE ABANDONED

Wrecked Schooner Is Left to Mercy of Wind and Wave

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 28.—The schooner Henry B. Fiske, which in capsizing about a week ago probably threw her crew of nine men into a watery grave, has again become a derelict, after grounding on Davis shoal, while in tow of the revenue cutter Gresham, which picked her up.

The Fiske is not within several miles of the place where the Gresham was forced to abandon her. Unless the Fiske, in its journeys at the will of the wind and wave, is again brought within the path of shipping, and beomes thereby dangerous to navigation, no further effort, probably, will be made to save her.

Bucket Shop Men Fined

Boston, Jan. 28.—Henry C. Wilson and J. W. Beals, brokers, pleaded nolo contendere in the superior criminal court to an indictment accusing them of keeping a bucketshop. Each was fined $100, which he paid.

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water. Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.
Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

NUMEROUS TRIBUTES OF BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

At Funeral of Clarence Tobin, Victim of the Railroad Accident.

Many Telegrams of Sympathy Also Received.

Seldom is there seen in Quincy such a large and beautiful display of flowers as on Thursday at the funeral of Clarence M. Tobin, the victim of the railroad accident at Norfolk Downs. There were forty to fifty tributes many of them set pieces of choice flowers, completely filling the room in which the casket was placed.

The services were very largely attended as the young man was very popular and his father is prominent in the National Boot and Shoe Workers Union. There were classmates, friends neighbors and others who sympathized with the family in their sudden bereavement.

Rev. John P. Cuffe, the pastor of the Sacred Heart church, officiated. The pall bearers were Edwin A. Poland, Leo W. Cochrane, Harry Ewing and Harry Hendrickson. The burial was at Mount Wollaston.

Among the floral tributes were:

Reclining wreath of violets and lilies of the valley from "Brockton friends."

Pink roses and lilies of the valley, from Thomas O'Hare, C. L. Baine, C. J. McMorrow.

White roses, from "The Girls" of the United Shoe Machinery Co., Boston.

Pink roses, from H. J. Skeffington and family, Revere.

Spray of carnations, from Uncle Tom.

Two wreaths of white roses and violets, from W. L. Douglas Shoe Co., Brockton.

Standing anchor "Clare," from the family.

Spray of carnations from the Misses Arvidson.

Standing crescent "Associate" carnations, sweet peas and narcissus from Hugh McDonald, Frank Doring, Arthur Axberg Will Flahive, E. Finnigan.

Carnations from Miss Nellie Dorsey, Marlboro.

Standing wreath of roses, lilies and carnations, from Wollaston, Neponset and Norfolk Downs friends.

Spray of red roses from John Daly, Brockton.

BOSTON'S NEW MAYOR.

John F. Fitzgerald, Friend of the Poor and Needy.

John F. Fitzgerald, or "Honey Fitzgerald," as he is familiarly called on account of his ability as a "mixer," who has just been elected mayor of Boston in the first nonpartisan election held under her new charter, was born in the Boston tenement district in 1863. He was mayor in 1905-6 and was defeated for re-election because during his administration it was charged that unnecessary employees carried on the payrolls of the city to do work that should have been done by contract instead of day labor cost the city not less than $1,900,000 in fire departments alone.

Fitzgerald represents the Democratic machine in Boston and obtained his popularity among the masses along the same lines as "Big Tim" Sullivan of New York. He is hail fellow well met, never misses a New England clambake or chowder party and is a friend of the poor and needy among the lower classes.

He is a glib tongued Irishman, a Harvard graduate and an ex-congressman, with a record for speechmaking.

During the recent campaign through his splendid physique he has been known to work twenty hours a day and attend nine dances an evening in nine different halls. When introduced he always says, "Call me Fitz."

In 1892 Mr. Fitzgerald became a member of the Boston common council. The next year he was elected to the state senate, serving two years. He was a member of congress from 1895 to 1901. His home is in Dorchester, Mass. He married in 1889 Josephine Mary Hannon of South Acton, Mass.

Utilizing Niagara's Power.

A recent article in the Electrical World contains the following data relative to the utilization of the energy from Niagara falls. Of the 5,000,000 horsepower represented by Niagara falls only about 5.5 per cent is being utilized. Of this 126,800 horsepower is employed in electro chemical processes, 56,200 horsepower for railway service, 36,400 horsepower for lighting, 45,540 horsepower for various industrial services, 12,300 horsepower is transmitted over more than a hundred miles, 33,500 horsepower between seventy-five miles and a hundred miles, 3,100 horsepower fifty miles, 79,640 horsepower between ten and thirty miles, while 145,400 horsepower is used locally, showing that many industries have been attracted to Niagara Falls because of the favorable electric power conditions to be found there.

THE TRUST PROBLEM

Thomas A. Watson Has Cure for Ills

Thomas A. Watson, founder of the Fore river shipbuilding company, was the speaker at the meeting of the 20th Century club Saturday afternoon. Speaking for the "disfranchised," as he said, Mr. Watson put forward his views of industrial conditions and suggested some means by which he believed the present difficulties might be solved.

Mr. Watson reported in part by the Globe as follows:

"A great modern industry is an exceedingly delicate and complex thing easily thrown into confusion by unwise interference—to the injury of the whole country, the prosperity of which depends absolutely on the unimpeded and economical operation of all its industries. I believe that neither socialism nor more rigorous restrictive laws promise any permanently effective solution of the complex and difficult industrial and financial problems of the day. Some other plan must be found which has not the serious objections attaching to these.

ONE MIGHTY MACHINE.

"In this complex modern life we are realizing more and more that the welfare of all the people is geared up in one mighty machine with the nation's industries, and that the owners or managers of any important industry cannot be allowed to operate it on the principle that, being exclusively theirs they may do with it what they please. On the contrary, it is now clear that they are all doing public work, and that, if they handle it inefficiently or unjustly, their employes and the general public suffer from the expensive or inefficient service that results, more than the owners do from their decreased dividends.

CAUSE OF FRICTION.

"We have not, however, heretofore realized that the present total exclusion of the public and of the employes from the management of industrial affairs so important to their welfare is inconsistent with democratic institutions, and that such exclusion is the main cause of the confusion, friction, and turmoil we see everywhere today; that strikes, socialism, and the demand for anticorporation laws represent the struggles of these disfranchised interests to obtain a voice in that most important part of their life, their industries.

THREE INTERESTS.

"No remedy for the industrial troubles of the day is possible unless it is based on the now generally ignored fact that there are three great interests vitally concerned in the operation of every industry—that of the general public, that of the employes of the industry and that of the capitalist who furnishes the money and much of the vitalizing energy. These three are the inseparable trinity of modern industry. No one of these interests can be ignored if the present three-sided fight between them is to be stopped.

THE REMEDY.

"The remedy lies in giving the public and the employes representation on the board of directors of each corporation.

"As the government of our industries is almost entirely vested in the various boards of directors of corporations, it is obvious that any any change in industrial government must be made in the makeup of those boards. Representing a limited class only (the stockholders) they are oligarchic, ruled by the few, they must be made democratic, representative of all classes—the public and the employes, as well as the stockholders. To do this is not difficult. To make the government of any one industry essentially demoneratic it is only necessary to change the method of electing the directors of the corporation operating that industry. For example, in a board containing, say, eight directors, instead of having them all elected by the stockholders, as now, four should be elected by the stockholders, two elected or appointed to represent the public, and two, who must be employes of that company, elected by the employes.

NOT REVOLUTIONARY.

"The plan had no feature beyond the present capability of the public to put successfully into practice. Its adoption would not be a revolution in present industrial methods. It would not require the expenditures of public money. It would be a natural step forward in industrial evolution. It eliminates from the old what the times have outgrown, but retains all that use and experience have proved good.

"The formation of trusts and great trade corporations cannot be stopped. It is the abuse of combinations under the present autocratic and oligarchic industrial system that works the mischief. Mystery and secrecy excite suspicion. The secret junto of magnates the manufacturers' camarilla sitting with closed doors, makes the public think of the robber crag-barons of the Rhine and the Danube of old.

TAXES SMALL.

"And there is reason for the comparison, as things go. All the taxes we pay for the purpose of carrying on our national, state or municipal governments is but little compared with the increase in the cost of food, clothing, rent, education, recreation—the necessities of life—due to the excessive prices arbitrarily fixed by despotic industrial combinations, or made necessary by mistakes in their management or by burdens imposed upon them by the public. Yet these great concerns are a necessary and legitimate part of the world's industrial evolution, and opposition to them is a brake on the wheels of progress.

SELF GOVERNMENT.

"A properly organized monopoly is the best possible means for doing any kind of needed work cheaply and well. No harm can come from one when its governing board includes representatives of its employes and the general public. Then competition to regulate the prices of any product or services would be needed no longer, for any attempt to unjustly raise prices, to reduce wages or increase hours of labor would be met at its very inception by the objections of the representatives of the public and the employes on its board of directors, who would also, from their knowledge of the affairs of the company, be in a position to insist upon reducing the prices whenever the profits of the business allowed.

"The demand for industrial self-government must be granted, for a people that has lived and prospered for more than a century under a purely democratic form of political government will not long submit to an autocratic government of that most important part of a society—its industries."

NEW LOCATION GRANTED

Tuberculosis Camp Will Be on Faxon Park Road

Inspector of Buildings Warren S. Parker has issued a permit for the building of the tuberculosis camp. The hospital will be erected on the property of H. M. Faxon, between Phipps street and Quincy avenue. The site of the hospital has been changed from that first selected, which was objected to by some of the residents in that section. It is now to be located about 300 feet easterly from Phipps street on Faxon Park road, and will be 160 feet from the nearest property. The permit calls for a building 30 x 30. Work on the building has already been commenced.

Height of Atlantic Waves.

The size of the waves of the Atlantic ocean has been carefully ascertained, the result of extensive investigations made by officers of the hydrographic office of the navy department. In height, we are assured, these waves usually average thirty feet, but in rough weather they will attain some forty to forty-eight feet. During storms they are frequently from 500 feet to 600 feet long and endure ten or eleven seconds. The longest wave measured by the hydrographic officials was half a mile, and it did not spend itself for twenty-three seconds.

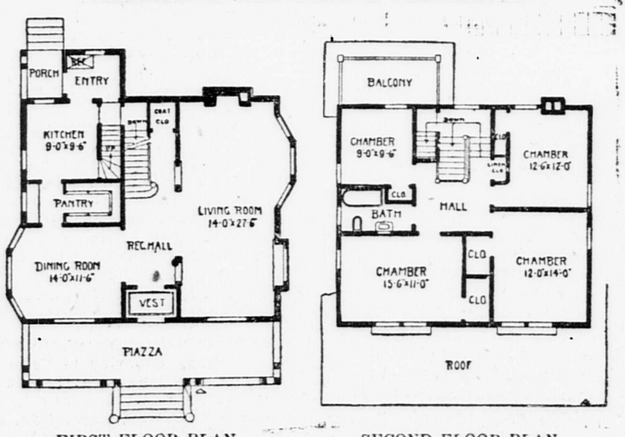
A Novel and Artistic Dwelling.

Design 840, by Glenn L. Saxton, Architect.

PERSPECTIVE VIEW—FROM A PHOTOGRAPH.



FIRST FLOOR PLAN. SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

This house, from the exterior, would naturally impress one as a cottage, owing to the way in which the broad side of the roof in front is treated, but upon careful examination it will be seen that the rooms in the second story are all full height. In carrying out this idea of treatment of the roof the architect gets away from the stereotype style of a hip or the gable roof, and the design not only looks better, but is symmetrical and harmonious in outline.

The size of the house is thirty-two feet six inches wide and twenty-eight feet deep over the main part. There is a full basement. The first story is nine feet and the second eight feet in the clear. Birch floors are used throughout, with Washington fir or red oak finish in the first story and pine to paint in the second.

As a practical plan for a home this design can be recommended. A feature is the living room, which is twenty-seven feet long. Another feature is the arrangement of the stairs. There is an open staircase from the reception hall, also back stairs from the kitchen to the landing of the main stair. Underneath this one can go into the basement either from the kitchen or from the rear entry. The refrigerator is in the rear entry. Cost to build, exclusive of plumbing and heating, $3,225.

By special arrangement with me the editor of this paper will furnish one complete set of plans and specifications of design No. 840 for $25.

BRIEFS.

McKinley day tomorrow.

How is today's weather for the last Friday of the month?

Everbody goes to the Police ball tonight.

The annual meeting of the Wollaston yacht club will be held at the club house Tuesday evening, Feb. 1.

Randall Faxon left town this week to accept a position in Portland, Maine.

The Sons of Veterans and Auxiliary are to hold a whist party in Union hall tonight.

Herbert Y. Follett of Park street has returned from New York where he was called on account of the sudden death of his father, this week.

The Westland quarete is the attraction this evening at First Church chapel and a large audience is assured as the singing of these ladies is unusually enjoyable.

Practically all of the snow that has fallen since Christmas has disappeared and if the general public have their wish there will be no more this winter.

Capt. Robert A. Bartlett who was captain of the Roosevelt on the Peary exposition to the North Pole, will lecture in Quincy under local auspices on Thursday evening, Feb. 10.

Wollaston delegates attended the winter meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch of the Woman's Board of Missions at Brockton this week, and by invitation the annual meeting in April will be held in Wollaston.

—While it is unnecessary to raise an alarm about the crack in the libery bell ,the possible danger involved in sending this venerable relic about the country is so obvious as to furnish sufficient reason in itself why its journeyings should cease. There is the additional reason that the place of the bell is in the old state-house, where it gained its celebrity. To separate it from its historic associations diminishes both its own interest and the interest of the patriotic shrine to which it belongs. If any other argument be needed to keep the bell at home, the consideration of its physical safety is altogether pertinent.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

INDUSTRIAL VICTORY

So Says Holland of Argentine Contracts

"Holland," the New York writer of the Boston Herald writes understandingly of the $22,000,000 contract of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company of Quincy. He says:

"There are several points of view consequent upon the announcement of the Argentine naval awards which are of importance. One is the proof that the incident furnishes that the United States is in this way to receive back some portion, in fact a considerable portion, of the phenomenal export of gold from this country to Argentina in the year 1909. The information which has come from Buenos Ayres is not in complete detail, so that it is impossible to report with any accuracy the exact terms of the contract which Mr. Schwab for his company has secured, and which the Fore River Shipbuilding Company has obtained. At present the best information fixes the aggregate amount at about $23,000,000.

PARALLEL CASE.

"In the second place this triumph well supplements the one obtained by American manufacturers last spring when the Australian government felt compelled to award to the Pratt & Whitney Company of Hartford the contract for equipping the Australian arsenal with apparatus for the manufacture of small arms. In fact, the competition in the case of the Argentine battleships seems to have many points of resemblance with the Australian competition. Apparently the Argentine government would have been glad could these contracts at least for the construction of the battleships, have been placed in Europe. The relations are very intimate between Great Britain and Argentina. To Liverpool and to London the Argentines have been sending more wheat in the past 12 months than the United States has done, and expect in the course of a year or two to send more beef than we do.

DIPLOMACY.

"Dispatches from London received a day or two ago report that the newspaper press of Great Britain, plainly expressing the chagrin of many people in that country that these contracts should have gone to the United States rather than to England, attribute the triumph to American diplomacy.

"If any diplomacy has been used by Secretary Knox, he must have discovered that his diplomacy was being confronted by some exercised by the British government. But there is no reason for assuming that any greater diplomacy was employed to persuade the South American nations to award these contracts to the United States than was used a year and a half ago to persuade Australia to accept the American bids for the equipment of her arsenals with machinery for the manufacture of small arms.

ENGLISH APPEAL.

"The chances are that if there were any strenuous diplomacy used with the Argentine government, it reflected pressure which came from Great Britain. For it is now known that at the time that Australia was seeking the best machinery with which to manufacture small arms, every bit of diplomacy possible to the British government, including even an appeal to imperial pride, was employed to persuade the Australians to accept the English contracts. No pressure came from the state department at Washington, or from any of our diplomatic representatives, with intent to ald the American manufacturers in that competition.

PRICE LOWEST.

"The Australians awarded the contract to the United States manufacturers, first, because the apparatus would be built and delivered within a year; second, because it worked almost automatically, each machine requiring only one expert handler, whereas each English machine required several skilled artisans to operate it; third, because the American price was the lowest.

"And it is presumed that like reasons influenced the Argentine Republic to award these large contracts to the United States.

"Then, again, the contracts do reflect the promise of largely increased trade relations with Argentina, which may ultimately become the best customer of the United States in South America, we still remaining one of her leading customers."

Eleven Chicago City Officials Charged With $240,000 Conspiracy

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Paul Redieske, resigned deputy commissioner of public works; Michael H. McGovern, a wealthy contractor who has many big city contracts, and nine city officials and employes of McGovern were indicted by the grand jury here.

The men are charged with conspiracy to defraud the city out of $254,000, according to the sum mentioned in the true bill. The indictment came as a surprise, for it was believed the alleged frauds involved only about $45,000 in the so-called "shale rock" scandal.

MOORE COMPARED TO EXPLORER COOK

Forest Expert Attacks Head of Weather Bureau

Washington, Jan. 28.—Professor Moore, chief of the weather bureau, experienced the sensation of being compared to Dr. Cook. It happened because of the dispute whether the removal of forests from water-sheds tends to increase floods. Moore has publicly declared that it does not, and conservation advocates disagree with him.

Secretary Finney of the Appalachian National Forest association issued a statement to the effect that Moore has not proved his point, but has been disproved by other scientists.

"Like the gentleman who recently came out of the north with tremendous claims but without his notebook and instruments, Moore states his conclusions with a great flourish of language—but withholds his records," says Finney.

FAKE MURDER STORY

Hall's Plan to Secure Discharge From the Navy Was Successful

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 28.—The case against James Hall, who confessed to the murder of Anna Schumacher, has fallen flat. After his arrival in this city from Portsmouth, N. H., a farmer for whim he worked on the day of the murder established an alibi for him.

Formal charges of murder and assault were made against Hall yesterday and the hearing was put over. The authorities hope to induce the federal authorities to start proceedings to prosecute Hall for confessing to the murder, thus fraudulently gaining his dishonorable discharge from the United States navy. It is now thought that the murder charge will not be pressed further.

CONFESSES WRONGDOING

Tax Collector Used More Than $7000 of Money Belonging to Town

Wellesley, Mass., Jan. 28.—Clarence H. Dadmun, 35 years old, tax collector of this town since 1902, after confessing a shortage of $7270.76 in town funds in his possession and resigning the office of tax collector, was arrested late last night and locked up on a charge of larceny and embezzlement.

Chairman Sweetser of the board of selectmen says that Dadmun made a confession and declared that he had used the money for his living expenses.

BEEF CATTLE ON A DECLINE

Caused by Breaking Up Range Lands For Homesteads

St. Paul, Jan. 28.—The chief reason for the decrease in the supply of beef cattle in the United States, according to J. B. Power of Power, N. D., a "cattle king" who was the first man to run pure bred stock west of the Red River of the North, is the breaking up of the range lands, the dispossession of the rancher by the farmer. Power, who is staying in St. Paul this winter, would remedy this by the adoption of a new conservation plan which he explains thus:

"The government has taken over vast timber tracts as national reserves. Why not hold the unopened Indian reservations, such, for instance, as the Fort Peck and Blackfeet tracts in Montana, as government cattle ranges? The Blackfeet reservation, comprising 5,000,000 acres, would fatten thousands of head of cattle every year. Steers can run on that range, which is right at the foothills of the Rockies, the year around and come out in March fat and ready for market.

"I think it would pay the government and be more to the interest of all the people of this country to make such use of its reservations than to divide them as homesteads. A reasonable charge coulde be made for running cattle on the government ranges, and such a plan unquestionably would increase the production of beef by many thousand head each year."

This is Power's description of the change that has come upon the great cattle country of the west, and his argument for his conservation idea:

"Owned by comparatively few men, the cattle barons, as they were called, thousands of head of cattle were turned loose on the plains, kept in certain agreed bounds by the cowboys. They were rounded up every year and all the two and three-year-old steers that were in proper condition were sent to market. Cows and heifers and calves were turned out again on the ranges to rustle for themselves, the cows and heifers and heifer calves kept for breeding, the steer calves for growth to marketable age.

"No barns were erected for shelter, very little, if any, hay was put up for winter feed. It was a question of the survival of the strongest adding to the number. But under these conditions, herds were constantly increasing faster than required for home consumption. Outside the original herd, they cost comparatively nothing, so the consumer was furnished with cheap meats.

"This condition is rapidly changing. The great influx of new settlers to these western plains, irrigation and dry farming methods, promising so much in crop returns, is rapidly breaking up the ranges and forcing the cattle barons to dispose of their great herds. These new settlers are taking their lands to cultivate them; they need the quick money returns that grain crops will bring. They are not handling cattle now. They lack experience in breeding, care and best methods of feeding, and, primarily, capital to secure the right foundation stock to build on. Several years will have to go by before these small farmers will be producers of cattle in numbers equal to the past supply of cheap cattle."

Consumers Benefit by Boycott

Washington, Jan. 28.—The ultimate consumer is beginning at last to reap the benefit of the agitation against the high cost of living. Retail dealers, forced to action by congested markets and perhaps by the pressure of public opinion, are cutting the prices of foodstuffs. The downward movement is by no means violent, but it has the supreme virtue of being in the right direction.

Federal and state investigation of prices in general continues and various remedies for present conditions are suggested.

Congressman Sabath has introduced a bill to put practically all food products on the free list; Senator McCumber wants the senate to inaugurate an inquiry into the whole cost of living problem.

Probing Alleged Insurance Plot

Louisville, Jan. 28.—What attorneys employed by life insurance companies to conduct criminal prosecutions say is a plot to defraud insurance companies by an alleged conspiracy, is to be made the subject of an investigation in Louisville, New Albany, Ind., and other points.

IN THE THEATRICAL WORLD

TREMONT THEATRE.

That "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" is the one big genuine success of the year is now an assured fact, the play which is now in its fourth week at the Tremont Theatre has attracted thousands of people who seldom of ever enter a theatre, it is equally interesting to young and old, rich or poor, Catholic, Protestant or Jew, Rebecca appeals equally to all, she preaches no sermon; but she takes you back to your childhood days and brings up memories of happier days and when all the world was young. The play has been described a rural play; but this is erroneous, that is in the ordinary acceptance of the word as applied to the drama. The scene of Rebecca while laid in a small country town in Maine might just as well be anywhere else, the scene simply talked of and wonderfully successful play. So phenomenal has been its vogue that there are now four companies playing "The Girl From Rector's "on as many circuits in the United States and Canada. It has been called a scream from start to finish. It overflows with life, love, laughter, melody and song, the Gay White Way of New York, with its attendant scenes of merriment, forming an interesting background for the innumerable complications, witty lines, ludicrous situations and laughable episodes which are found in abundance. The company is composed entirely of comedians of both sexes, so capable in their respective roles, that the audience is kept in the merriest of moods throughout the performance. Chief among the principals are such sterling artists as Elitta Proctor Otis, acts as a background in which is mirrored the life of a young girl, just such a girl as we have all known at some time during our lives. Edith Taliaferro makes an ideal Rebecca she was selected by Kate Douglas Wiggin especially for the role and it is doubtful if there is another actress on the stage today who could so faithfully show the transition from the girl of twelve to the young lady of seventeen and play both parts equally well. Archie Boyd one of the best characters on thestag etodaym akesagenuineppli on the stage today makes a genuine down East stage-driver.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

The barefoot dancing craze has taken possession of Boston as nothing has done in years, and as usual Keith's is proving to be the centre of attraction. Loie Fuller, the originator of this type of dancing and herself the most famous dancer in the world today, brought her troupe to this country as part of the Metropolitan and Boston grand opera seasons and it was a master troke on the part of Mr. Keith to secure this great attraction and present it at Popular prices. The result has been such crowds as have never been known in Boston at every performance. This condition has kept up for two weeks and now Mr. eKith has induced Miss Fuller to go a step further and to give not only the Ballet of Light, but to present with it one of the most famous of her dancers, Orchidee, who made such a wonderful hit at the Metropolitan opera house in New York in her dance impersonating "Diana, the Huntress." Orchidee has presented this dance in all the cities of Europe with tremendous success and she is without question the most accomplished of the mythological dancers, and at Keith's she will be seen, according to Miss Fuller's own statement, to better advantage than ever before. The manner in which the Ballet of Light has been put on by Mr. Keith is attracting universal attention, in fact, it is claimed that it has even surpassed the magnificent production at the Metropolitan opera house in New York.

THE BOSTON THEATRE.

As the engagement of Paul M. Potter's merry farce from the French, "The Girl From Rector's" at the Boston theatre, is strictly limited to two weeks the Wednesday and Saturday and six evening performances of the week beginning the 31st instant, will be the only chances to see this much Gertrude Millington, Nena Blake, Nella Webb, Edward Heron, George Anderson, Charles P. Morrison, Lincoln Plumer and others equally well known. Cohan and Harris minstrels come to the Boston theatre for only one week beginning Feb. 7.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

There will be a week of laughter at the Castle Square. "Are You a Mason?" which was one of the hits of last season, is to be revived on Monday. It is a farce of the liveliest and most wholesome sort, and there is no rest from merriment in it from beginning to end. Its hero, a young married man named Frank Perry, pretends to become a Mason to please his wife, and out of this little bit of humbug on his part arises the humor of the play and its situations. "Are You a Mason?" was originally a German play, and it has been made into English by Leo Ditrichstein, the well known actor and dramatist who also wrote "All on Account of Eliza" and many other clever farcial plays. After a week of acting Othello, Mr. Craig will find relief in the lightsome frivolities of Frank Perry, a part with which he is perfectly familiar, and which he does in his customary breezy style. As for the rest of the cast, which will draw upon the entire personnel of the John Craig Stock Company it will do equal justice to the comicalities of the play.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL.

The second week of R. A. Roberts at the American Music Hall will mark his first presentation in the Hub of his biggest success "Cruel Coppinger." Those who witnessed Mr. Roberts' wonderful work this week in "Dick Turpin" may rest assured that he will prove even greater in "Cruel Coppinger." This is a fantastic pirate story in two scenes, the action taking place in 1790. Interest centers around the character of Captain Coppinger of Cornwall, the great wrecker, pirate and murderer. There are seven characters in the piece all of them being portrayed by Mr. Roberts. Mr. Roberts has been pronounced one of the greatest actors of modern times and while he is devoting his time to the stage he will be able to give to protean stagecraft the dignity which belongs to fine art. James J. Corbett will be another big feature of this all star bill. Mr. Corbett will deliver a monologue containing many humorous incidents of his pugilistic career. The Austin brothers are eccentric knockabout comedians who indulge in general burlesque including jugglery and acrobatics. They furnish plenty of fun while on the stage and finish very strongly. Tambo & Tambo present one of the most novel acts in vaudeville. They spin tambourines with the greatest dexterity and never fail to keep the audience interested. Pelletier & Messenger presenting clever imitations the principal one being that of Eva Tanquay. The balance of the bill will include many other headline features of the vaudeville stage.

WYETH'S

SAGE AND SULPHUR

HAIR RESTORER

Grew a Full Growth of Hair On a Bald Head

Here's the Proof

For two or three years my hair had been falling out and getting quite thin, until the top of my head was entirely bald. About four months ago I commenced using Sage and Sulphur. The first bottle seemed to do some good and I kept using it regularly, until now I have used four bottles. The whole top of my head is now fairly covered with hair and it keeps coming in thicker. I shall keep on using it a while longer, as I notice a constant improvement.

ASQUITH WILL BACK IRISH HOME RULE

Reported Agreement With Head of Nationalists

London, Jan. 28.—Home rule for Ireland will be the overshadowing issue in the next English election, according to an agreement that is reported to have been reached between Premier Asquith and John Redmond, the Nationalist leader.

According to this agreement the Liberals and Nationalists will work in complete union in the proposed reformation of the house of lords, in the budget fight and in support of a bill to effect sweeping election law reforms. After those measures have been put through the home rule bill will be introduced.

The party totals up to last evening were: Unionists, 258; Liberals, 250; Labor, 39; Nationalists, 74.

CARRIE NATION'S CHECK

Cashed by Saloon Keeper, Who Now Uses It For Advertising

Washington, Jan. 28.—The drinking population at last has one on Carrie Nation, the saloon smasher of Kansas.

Carrie came to Washington a few weeks ago and wrecked the Union station bar. She was arrested and fined in the police court. She paid her attorney, Matthew E. O'Brien, by check. O'Brien cashed the check with a friend. Another friend accommodated the first friend and a saloon keeper obliged the second friend.

Now the saloon keeper has an advertising card out. It contains a photographic reproduction of the check, over which is the caption: "We Cash Carrie Nation's Checks."

BATTLESHIPS' DAY IS OVER

Will Be Put Out of Business by Airships, Says an Aeronaut

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 28.—Clifford B. Harmon, a New York aeronaut, said in a lecture before the Pasadena chamber of commerce that the day of the battleship had passed.

No nation, he said, would dare to send a fleet of these to our shores on a hostile mission with so many masters of the air ready to meet it.

Thread Mills Strike Probably Off

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 28.—The combined influence of the older operatives and of several labor leaders proved sufficient to obtain from the striking backboys at the J. & P. Coats, Ltd., thread mills, a half promise to return to work Monday.

Theatrical Agent a Murderer

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Jan. 28.—George L. Marion, a theatrical agent, charged with the murder of his common law wife in this city, was found guilty of murder in the first degree. The theatrical people of the country raised a defense fund for Marion.

DUTY OF GOOD HOSTLERS

Veterinary's License Not Required to File Teeth of Horses

Boston, Jan. 28.—The law does not clearly define where the work of a hostler ends and that of a veterinary begins, and Judge Wait, in the superior criminal court, dismissed the complaint against James Bell, who was charged by the state board of registration in veterinary medicine of practising as a horse doctor in Massachusetts without a license. He was arrested because he filed the teeth of horses so they could masticate with more facility.

Bell, who was fined $50 in a lower court and appealed, frankly said he was not a veterinary. He maintained that filing a horse's teeth is not veterinary practice.

"Bell wasn't doing veterinary doctoring. He was just performing the duty of a first-class hostler," said Judge Wait.

SHOOTING MAY PROVE FATAL

Boston Man Gets Bullet In Abdomen While Defending a Friend

Boston, Jan. 28.—Edward Bransfield, 48 years old, a fireman in the car shops of the Boston and Albany railroad, while defending a sick friend from annoyance, was shot through the abdomen and is on the dangerous list at the city hospital.

John Managan, 24 years old, a car cleaner of the Boston Elevated, is locked up, charged with assault and battery with intent to kill. The police say that should Bransfield's wound prove fatal the charge will be changed to murder.

So far the police have been unable to get head or tail as to how the shooting occurred. The men were alone in the house at the time, with the exception of John Kelleher, the sick friend, who was the innocent cause of the trouble.

FOR A NEW "KINGDOM"

Indian Conspirators Tried to Secure Freedom From Great Britain

Lahore, British India, Jan. 28.—It has developed at the trial of an alleged Indian conspirator that the plans of conspiracy against the British Indian government included the establishment of an independent kingdom with a king, an imperial counsel of five, house of princes and a house of commons, the latter having a membership of thirty. The seat of government was to be at Delhi.

Costly Decorations For Goat

Pittsburg, Jan. 28. — Reuben Schwartz, 14 years years old, who used to be an office boy in a millinery establishment here, was sent to the reform school for having stolen at least $1000 worth of fine Irish lace and ostrich plumes worth $60 apiece to decorate the Schwartz family goat, which had won some local sled races.

GLAVIS' TESTIMONY UPHELD IN COURT

First Blood For Pinchot in Western Land Decision

Washington, Jan. 28.—Louis D. Brandeis evidently has scored first blood in the Ballinger-Pinchot hearing, in view of the decision announced simultaneously by Judge Hanford in the United States district court at Seattle that the lands concerning which Brandeis drew from Louis R. Glavis, his client, the testimony that Ballinger had drawn up a secret agreement concerning them were obtained from the government by fraud. These were what is known as the Wilson coal lands, in western Washington.

The testimony apparently was wholly irrelevent to the present Ballinger-Pinchot controversy and was introduced to indicate that Ballinger's conduct had been of doubtful propriety long before he became land commissioner.

The decision of Hanford relates to the identical lands in question, and is hailed with joy by the Pinchot adherents as establishing the truth of the Glavis charges as far as they have been taken up by the committee.

MEAT ISSUE ABANDONED

Will Simplify Our Tariff Negotiations With Germany

Washington, Jan. 28.—Germany's place among the nations which are to be declared exempt from the 25 percent increase in duties which the Payne-Aldrich tariff law provides shall be imposed after March 31, was practically assured by a decision of this government to leave the German boycott on American cattle out of consideration in determining whether the kaiser's people shall be granted minimum tariff privileges.

Word has been cabled to Germany that the cattle point is waived by the United States in the present discussion and the the way thus is paved for a settlement of Germany's tariff relations with this nation.

Alpha Hall--Peary's Trip to the Pole
State House Hearing
Lost --Brindle Boston Terrier

BRIEFS

Washington's Birthday will come on Tuesday this year.

The carpenters of greater Boston desire a new bill to go into effect June 1.

The class of William E. Lee at the Quincy Point church enjoyed a banquet Thursday evening at Hotel Greenleaf.

Frank Stone of River street, a Quincy High boy, has been confined to the house all the week with a severe cold.

The postponed annual meeting of Reapers circle of Christ church is to be held this evening at the rectory at quarter of eight.

F. D. Fellows is vacating the Hall house on Revere road this week, having entered a clothing house at Taunton.

A meeting of the finance committee of the Quincy Point church met Thursday evening and are encouraged by the interest taken in the church.

William McDonald of Willard street is recovering from an operation which was performed in the Belleview hospital recently.

Rev. George A. Strong, now of New York city, will be one of the special speakers at the Lenten services at St. Paul's church in Boston.

A patent was issued this week to Gregory C. Davison of this city for a depth-regulating mechanism for moving vessels.

A horse attached to one of the Eaton Ice Co. teams had an attack of colic on Hancock street this noon. The animal was attended by Dr. Abele.

The coasting accident to Martin Fay, the 14 year old West Quincy lad, early in the month proved fatal on Wednesday, the boy dying at the City Hospital.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been issued against the Balfour Manufacturing Company of this city by three creditors whose claims amount to $1,109.

The contested election case of J. Mitchell Galvin against Joseph F. O'Connell was argued on Thursday before the House committee on elections No. 1, of Congress. It was confined chiefly to whether the ballots at the Congressional election of 1908 should be examined.

The evangelistic services at the Water Street Presbyterian church during the week have been largely attended, and considerable interest has been manifested. Good preaching and a good spirit is manifest. The young people's meetings have been fine, nearly 500 being present on Thursday afternoon.

BRIEFS

Lent will begin Feb. 9, a week from next Wednesday.

Next Wednesday will be Candlemas day.

City Treasurer Curtis has awarded the temporary loan of $65,000 payable Jan. 27, 1911, to F. S. Moseley & Co. of Boston at a discount of 3.84 plus a premium of $3.25.

DEMOCRATIC CITY COMMITTEE.

The Democratic City committee met Thursday night and elected these officers:

President—John D. Smith of Ward Four.

Vice President—Edward Dunn of Ward One.

Secretary—William H. Flynn of Ward Two.

Treasurer—Rednor P. Coombs of Ward Six.

PRESIDENT SMITH

President Smith and Secretary Flynn are both members of the present City Council, the former serving on the committees on Finance, Public Buildings and Grounds and Street Railway; the latter on Streets, Licenses and Street Railway.

CHURCH HELPERS.

At a meeting at the home of Mrs. Gorham Nickerson of Prospect avenue on Thursday afternoon an organization to be known as the Unitarian Church Helpers was formed. Mrs. Carl G. Horst presided and the following officers were eleteed:

President—Mrs. W. E. Rowe.

Vice President—Mrs. Charles Monroe.

Secretary—Mrs. W. H. Boynton.

Treasurer—Mrs. Thompson.

Auditor—Mrs. Edmund Taylor.

Membership Committee—Mrs. Chas. E. Barker, Mrs. McLean, Mrs. F. C. Babcock.

Membership in the society is open to women connected with the Wollaston Unitarian church, and all others in sympathy with the object of the organization, which is to work for the church.

Meetings wil lbe held on alternate Thursday afternoons at the homes of the members, the next to be held with Mrs. W. A. Bense. There were 25 charter members.

Plans have been made for the production of a play entitled "The Ladies' Sewing Society," which will be given in the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on Wednesday evening, February 9, by 14 young ladies for the benefit of the society.

SPELLING MATCH.

A session of the district school was held by the Murray club at the Universalist church Thursday evening. Miss Mabel Damon was the teacher and was gowned as a school mistress. School was opened in regular form by the singing of America and the calling of the roll of members. Following this there were recitations by Mrs. S. A. Harris, Chester French and Miss Harriet Lombard. Two classes in spelling were then formed with Rev. C. L. Paddock as captain of one team and Mrs. R. G. Reed as captain of the other. There were fourteen spellers on each side. Gradually the number was reduced until only Mrs. George Wheeler and Miss Nellie Barnes of Mr. Paddock's class were left. As neither of these failed in spelling the tie was settled by drawing, the souvenir was given to Miss Barnes. A social hour followed.

He Advertised at Last.

Here is a lesson in the advertising line from the Mail Order Journal:

There was a man in our town who thought he was wondrous wise.
He swore by all the fabled gods that he'd never advertise.
But, alas, he advertised, and thereby hangs a tale.
His ad. was set in nonpareil and headed
"Sheriff's Sale."

☞ In these times of high prices Ledger readers find it to their advantage to read R. E. Foy's advertisement. He has a big bargain in oranges and customers say they are not only cheap but sweet.

ALL-POLISHED MONUMENT

Handsome Work Cut from Quincy Stock

Birnie & Diack have completed and shipped today to its destination, Dubuque, Iowa, a very handsome all polished monument of extra dark Quincy stock, juarried at the celebrated Granite Railway quarry. The monument is as perfect a piece of work as ever was shipped from this city and reflects great credit on the firm which cut it. There is not a blemish or knot in it, and it has been much admired by those who have seen it set up in the yard of Birnie & Diack before it was boxed for shipment.

The monument consists of two bases, a die and shaft. The bottom base is 8x8x1-3; the second base 5-9 x5-9x1-8; and the die 3-10x3-10x4-6.

Surmounting this die is a handsome shaft 2-8 square and 28-10 tall. The family name appears in raised polished leters on the front and back of the second base, and on the front and back of the die is a raised polished cross.

SPORTING NOTES.

Manager Gardner Wilson of the undefeated Thayer Academy basket ball team is very desirous of a ranging a game with Quincy High to be played at South Braintree Saturday afternoon. Will the manager of Quincy High school phone Capt. Avery Braintree 282-3, or write Manager Wilson at once if Saturday is an open date.

EVER NEW HAT QUESTION.

As the Season Advances Models Become More Attractive.

You may plunge as often as you will into the fathomless depths of the hat question and yet bring up fresh and captivating spoil each time, partly because the original source is so bountiful and partly because fashion is launching new specimens every day, each with special attractions of its own.

The tricorne, chic and beguiling, but seldom becoming, gives place to an amazing variety of turbans, with hints of the nearer east and reminiscences of every period of history. Then there are statements that small hats are to be largely worn, which amounts to just this—that it is now possible to find a modish small hat, but large hats still hold their own trimphantly if you include the large turbans in the hat list. Hats are flat or high, gay or somber, airy or ponderous and are alike in only one quality, a sort of magnificent simplicity.

Before the fashion is killed by popularity it will be interesting to note the enormous use made of gold and silver tissues and laces in the makeup of all sorts of hats. These sumptuous fabrics are, of course, usually employed for dressy hats, though by no means exclusively. They are at their best on wide brimmed hats with a marked crown, though there are some good looking turbans, notably a large swathed one of gold lace over tulle, with two gold colored ostrich feathers at the left side.

This piling of luxury on splendor by trimming the gold and silver fabrics with fur produces a rare effect. The large hat of the picture, for example, is made of somewhat heavy dull silver lace and is mounted on the frame without lining. Around the full, extremely high crown is draped a soft brownish gray pelt and at the side a huge swirl of gray aigrets.

MARRIED MEN VICTORIOUS

Defeat the West Quincy Team at Every Point

The Married Men walked all over the West Quincy team in the Makaria bowling league on Thursday night. The total scores were 1836 to 1573. The Married Men won the first string by 107 pins, the second by 138 and the third by 129. Ganzel was high man both on single and totals.

BASKET BALL.

After a hard and well fought game the St. Marys lost to Co. G of Gloucester Thursday evening to the tune of 30 to 18. The feature of Gloucester's playing was that of McGinnis, who had an eye for the basket from any part o fthe floor. The best work for the St. Marys was the playing of Kelley and Duggan, who both showed their old time form

The line up follows:

CO. G	ST. MARY'S
S. McInnes rf	lb, Kelly
Colby lf	rb, Mullen
Campbell, c	c, McLaughlin
J. McInnes, rb	lf, Robertson
Nugent, lb	rf, Duggan

Score, Co. G 30, St. Mary's 18. Goals from floor, S. McInnes 6, Campbell 7, J. McInnes 3, Nugent, Kelly 6, Duggan 3. Referee, Pendis. Scorer, Buckley. Timer, King. Time, 20m halves.

The St. Mary's second team was more successful and won from Fore River 34 to 16. In the St. Mary's team were O'Rourke, Bennett, P. Duggan, Collins and Hebert. The Fore River had seven men on the floor—Howley, Dhal, Melver, Boyle, Isburn, Oliver and Good.

A CLEVER TRICK.

Children Take Hot Bottles to Bed Dressed as Dolls.

It probably didn't occur to a certain minister's wife who lives in a badly heated rectory when she amused her babies by dressing the hot water bottle up like a doll that she was doing something that would please a great many babies besides her own. Even on chilly nights the youngsters seemed to prefer to take their dolls to bed with them rather than the very interesting looking hot water bags that their mother wanted them to coddle.

This put a bright idea into their mother's head, and she said to herself, "Why not pretend that the hot water bottle is a doll, and now off we go into the Land of Nod with a warm little playmate to take the chill off the sheets on a cool night?"

So quite to please and entertain her own youngsters she evolved a good night dollie, all in a warm little eiderdown hood and gown, which concealed an ordinary hot water bottle. But the idea pleased so many other mothers that now it is being copied all over the country.

For the small boy who had never had the overweening love for dollie that his sister had enjoyed this clever mother devised a white bunny with pink ears and nose and pink eyes which were two little pink buttons.

For little babies who play on the floor, which may be chilly, these dolls are just the thing.

CAN CORBETT HELP JEFFRIES?

Doubt Whether He Will Be of Much Service to Californian.

CAN GIVE NOTHING PHYSICALLY

In Training Bouts With Corbett Jeff Will Have to Go Easy—Latter Needs Several Rough and Ready Sparring Partners to Help Him.

One dislikes to take a desponding view of things and at the same time assail a belief that is entertained by so many, but in view of all this journalistic hullabaloo about Jim Corbett training Jeffries for his mixup with Jack Johnson and incidentally helping him reclaim the world's heavyweight championship from the negro one is forced to ask, "How and in what manner can Corbett bring about Jeffries' rejuvenescence?"

In his day there is no question that Corbett was the cleverest and fastest boxer in the ring. His footwork was superb, and he was a great ring general even if he didn't always maintain a cool head. But those sterling qualities of the boxer of a decade ago can be of no possible help to Jeffries today, who is to do battle with the best black man that ever pulled on a glove and one who outstrips Corbett himself in his palmiest days.

It should be borne earnestly in mind that the intent of this article is not to take away anything from Corbett, to question his ability as a trainer and his wisdom as an adviser or to impugn his motives in gratuitously volunteering to work with Jeffries. The intention is to destroy in the minds of Jeffries' unthinking admirers the false hope that Corbett can fit him physically for the coming match and assist him materially in regaining the title he relinquished nearly six years ago The sum and substance of it is, Corbett simply can't.

Corbett has nothing he can give Jeffries. Advice? Perhaps he might be able to give him a point or two. But it isn't advice Jeffries needs at this stage of the game. Physically there is absolutely no way in which he can help Jeffries. Corbett will be forty-four his next birthday. He started fighting twenty-five years ago. It will be seven years in August since he engaged in his last bout—the one with Jeffries on the coast. His showing in that bout scarcely could be called up to the standard. It is proverbial that Jeffries actually outboxed him in that contest. Even if he attempted to box with Jeff in training it would be detrimental rather than beneficial to the latter. It would be necessary for Jeffries to "hold back," because, soft and out of condition as he is, Corbett would not be physically able to stand any hard slamming. To last any length of time the training bouts between Jeffries and Corbett would have to be "easy," and it isn't the light and airy form of exercise that Jeff requires.

JIM CORBETT, WHO WILL HELP JEFF TRAIN.

What he does need is a pile of outdoor running to improve his wind and harden the muscles of his legs.

In the sparring time what Jeffries needs is the rough, slambang article, the kind Corbett cannot give him. By indulging in bouts of that description Jeff can "let everything go." If he were forced to hold back it would not only throw him out of his hitting stride, but affect his judgment of distance as well. He wants to be handicapped in no way when he's boxing. The benefit will be derived when he can tear in and slam away to his heart's content. Fighting power and ability to hit truly are the things he likely will strive for in the gymnasium. If he boxed lightly he could not improve his eye, because hitting in an "easy" bout and banging in a "hard" one are two different propositions.

Everything with him must be just exactly as it will be in a regular fight. In fact, it would not be a bad idea if he engaged in three or four actual fights in the training quarters. There are men who could be secured, and it would give him a fine line on himself. Then if he found any weak points he'd have ample time to strengthen them. Rough, hard, strenuous work—that is the story. And that is why Jim Corbett, decent fellow that he is and sincere in his intentions to help Jeff in every possible way, can be of very little help to him.

Cornell's new $100,000 athletic field is expected to be ready by next fall.

POPULARITY OF THE POLICE BALL

Never Such a Large Crowd Before at Quincy Music Hall.

Police and City Officials As Guests of Association.

Seldom if ever has there been such a jam at Music hall as last night at the fourth annual concert and ball of the Quincy Police Relief association. Comfortable dancing until late in the evening was out of the question, yet everybody had a good time. The evening as far as weather was concerned was all that could be desired. The air was clear and it was not too cold, which in a measure counted for the large attendance.

The arrangements for the evening were perfect. Efficient committees saw that the guests of the evening were carefully looked after, and not a thing was left undone that would add to the comfort and pleasure of those present. Nothing in the way of decorations was attempted ,yet the hall never looked more attractive.

From 8 until 9 o'clock Wilson's orchestra of ten pieces gave a promenade concert, the program of which was as follows:

March, "Greeting" — Luscomb
Overture, "Pique Dame" — Supper
Duet—Flute and Claronet — Cling
The two little Bullfinches

Selection, The fair "Co-Ed" — Luders
Concert Waltz, "Verschmahte Liebe" — Linke
Xyloph one Solo, The Trumpeter — Soucl
Gerald A. Sullivan
Finale. Glorious America — Losey

While this was in progress the participants were arriving in groups. The early arrivals sought the balcony as the best place to watch the scene, and this was soon filled too overflowing. Then the seats around the sides and end of the hall were occupied and soon every available seat had its occupant. It then lacked half an hour from the grand march so that it was necessary for the participants to stand at the front end of the hall. Gradually the crowd here began to grow and by the time the march was started the hall was half full.

The grand march was scheduled to start at 9 o'clock and it was but a few minutes after this that Inspector Daniel R. McKay, the president of the association, with Mrs. McKay, took his position at the head of the line. Then came His Honor Mayor Shea with Mrs. James Sennott. Back of the Mayor was Chief Burrell and daughter, Miss Elsie Burrell, Inspector Goodhue and Miss Ethel Blair, John T. Larkin and Mrs. Larkin, Patrick A. Milford and Mrs. Milford, William S. Lyons and Mrs. Lyons, and Henry F. Riley and Miss M. Minot. These composed the first eight couples and as they circled about the hall followed by nearly one hundred couples the scene was a pretty one.

CHIEF OF POLICE BURRELL.

The march was under the direction of Leo J. McMaster and was finely executed and drew from the onlookers well deserved applause, especially as they came down the hall with sixteen front.

As the front line reached the centre of the hall a halt was made for a few minutes while a flash light picture was taken. Few knew just what the halt in the march was for and some of the ladies gave a little gasp at the sharp bang and flash as the flashlight cartridge was exploded. It was over in a second, however, and the march was resumed, unwinding to single couples when it came to an end with a short circle dance.

From then on the ball went on uninterrupted, save for a brief intermission at midnight during which a buffet lunch was served in the annex. The need of a dining room at Music hall has long been felt but never more so than on this occasion, when there were so many who desired to be served at the same time.

INSPECTOR MCKAY.

Many out of town police officials and city officials were noticed among the thousand persons present, and while some of them participated in the festivities, the majority preferred to watch the merry scene from vantage points.

Among those noticed were Chief Maurice Pierce and Officer William S. Fallon of Milton; Chief James R. Qualey of Braintree, Chief Thomas Fitzgerald of Weymouth, H. J. McLaughlin chief of the Fore River police, Mayor William T. Shea, ex-

FAREWELL RECEPTION

Presentation at High School to Mr. Cleveland

In a palm bedecked corner of the gymnasium backed by a large American flag, Mr. Leslie L. Cleveland received last evening, the classes of 1908 and 1909, which graduated under him, and the two upper classes, for the last time as headmaster of the Quincy High school. Mrs. Cleveland and Supt. and Mrs. Albert L. Barbour were also in the receiving line.

The reception was from 8 to 9 o'clock with over three hundred in attendance. The ushers were Charles Kendall, Theodore Corey, Starret White, Charles Hull, Brewster Walker, Demi Gourlie, Forrest Royal and Winthrop Safford. Several of the former teachers were seen, including Miss Tucker, Mr. Stone and Mr. Pierce. Chairman John L. Miller of the School Committee and Walter Bentley, master of the Coddington school, were also present.

At 9, sub-master, Melvin T. Holbrook, master of ceremonies, presented Mr. Cleveland a beautiful statue of "Victory." In the presentation he said, "I am here to speak for the students and graduate classes of the High school who have been here during Mr. Cleveland's reign—no, reign isn't quite the word, though you know what I mean. I don't have to speak in appreciation of him; your presence in such numbers shows it. Mr. Cleveland in behalf of the students and the graduates I present you this statue of "Victory," may it represent the many victories won by you here in the Quincy High school."

Amid much applause Mr. Cleveland said, "I hardly know what I can say to express my feelings. This has been a hard day for me. It doesn't seem possible I am going to leave you young people. As I said in the hall this afternoon, I have never enjoyed teaching as much in any other place as in the Quincy High school. I have thoroughly enjoyed its work here; it has been especially pleasant. I have found a most cordial reception, more forcibly brought home by the willingness and gladness with which young people have responded. When a boy or girl finds what the teacher wishes, he will fall in line and help to carry it out. I appreciate this gift more than I can tell. I will always remember you by it for it stands for you but you would be remembered without it. I have found here in all my work with teachers and all others the most cordial cooperation. I have become well acquainted with the boys and girls of the school and have just reached the point where our work together could accomplish the most.

However I expect I will find the same willingness to help where I am going. I will be strange and even lost among so many strange faces. I have known all of you by name, indeed I rather pride myself on that for I wished each student to be an individual to me. I trust you will give my successor the same cordial welcome and hearty support you have given me. As I mentioned in the hall, I have said many good things about you. Mr. Howlett expects this school is an exceptionally good school. Let Quincy High school in all ways have more and more the spirit of the old school, and you boys show your in-

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

The "fishy five" representing Co. G of Gloucester, evidently are too speedy for St. Mary's.

What are you going to have for dinner tomorrow? Isn't it cheaper to go visiting?

What will our friend do with that money? Perhaps "O'Brien has no place to go."

The Quincy Yacht Club is waking up If they elect "Robbins" it is a sure sign spring is near.

If you see a "cop" asleep on his his bea today don't disturb him, for there's a reason.

Although the Fore River Shipbuilding Company could not handle the two Argentine battleships at once and deliver them within two years, it will be ready in a few months to accept another contract for a battleship for Uncle Sam. Such a contract is expected if Congress authorizes any battleships at this session. The Quincy shipyard will be run at its full capacity now for several years, and the sooner Quincy real estate men, financial men and business men awake to their opportunities the better for the city as a whole. Let the coming reception to President Bowles be a rouser.

While Quincy regrets losing such an able headmaster as Leslie L. Cleveland who leaves to acept a better position at Cambridge, it should feel pleased that in his place will be James D. Howlett, a former sub-master some six or more years ago who proved his worth, despite being in a lower position, at that time.

Mr. Howlett evidently is a universal favorite in Plymouth for this evening he will be tendered a large reception in the school hall, which it is expected will be taxed to its utmost capacity with his friends and pupils who wish him success in his new field.

Although it is hard for any man to fit himself into the ways of another at this time of the year when the graduation exercises have to be dealt with, we feel confident that Mr. Howlett will fit in much better than any oher, for his former Quincy experience will help him.

Plymouth and Quincy are closely related in historical points of interest and we hope the schools of the "1620" town are also the equal of Quincy public schools and that Mr. Howlett will be a help to the present pupils who are the coming business men and women of our city.

In an address which Governor Hughes of New York delivered during the recent conference of the governors in Washington he discussed the relative responsibilities of the state governments an dthe national governments. He agreed with President Taft that there must be "team-work" between state and national governments to assure the accomplishment of desirable results in government. He declared that national activities inevitably will widen but that the fuure prosperity of the country must largely depend upon the efficiency of state governments. These annual consultations, he belives, should be conducive to the bringing about of uniformity of state laws and that in cases where absolute unformity may not be expected causes of friction may be avoided by comity of action. He declared that the "significance of this conference lies in our recognition of the fact that to make our system of government answer its intended purposes we must encourage the development of state comity without loss of state prerogative." Here, he said, are forty-six commonwealths dealing with substantially the same problems of government, and he argued that from the interchange of views should be evolved not merely a nearer approach to uniform legislation and better system of inter-state comity, but, with respect to governmental machinery there should be devised the best state government possible.

QUINCY OF YEARS AGO

First Incorporated Railroad Built Here

(Historical Paper No. 6.)

The opening of the granite quarries in Quincy was the cause of the building of the first incorporated railroad in America here in 1826. This road was constructed for the more rapid transportation of the stone to Charlestown for the construction of Bunker Hill monument but did not meet the expectation of Mr. Willard. It also gave an impetus to the stone business by bringing to the attention of the community a building material, which has adorned many of our cities with a class of noble and substantial buildings, both public and private. This experiment of Mr. Willard in opening the stone quarries in this place has added millions of dollars to the wealth of individuals and the town as well as to enable the Bunker Hill Monument Association to procure first-class material to erect the monument.

About seven years after this road was opened, a fatal and serious accident occurred on it, which was the first railroad accident in New England if not in the United States. July 25th, 1832 four gentlemen left the Tremont House, Boson, to come to Quincy and view this new railroad enterprise. After having examined the process of transporting large and weighty loads of stone, they were invited to ascend the inclined plane in one of the vacant returning cars. While the car was ascending this inclined plane, the chain gave way, and they were precipitated over the precipice, a distance of twenty or thiry feet. Mr. Thomas Bachus of Cuba was killed. Mr. J. Gibson of Boston had both legs broken. Mr. W. G. Bend of Baltimore was severely injured and Mr. Andrew E. Belknap of Boston slightly injured.

The following is an account of the opening of the first railroad in America, as given by the papers of that time:—

"This railroad, the first we believe in the country, was opened on Saturday, in presence of a number of gentlemen, who take an interest in the experiment. A quantity of stone weighing sixteen tons, taken from the ledge belonging to the Bunker Hill Association and loaded in three wagons, which together weigh five tons making a load of twenty-one tons, was moved with ease by a single horse from the quarries to the landing above Neponset bridge, a distance of more than three miles. The road declines gradually the whole way, from the quarry to the landing, but so slightly that the horse conveys back the empty wagons, making a load of five tons.

After the starting of the load which required some exertion, the horse moved with ease in a fast walk. It may therefore be easily conceived how greatly the transportation of heavy loads is facilitated by means of this road. A large quantity of beautiful stone already prepared for the Bunker Hill Monument, will now be rapidly and cheaply transported to the wharf at the termination of the railroad, whence it will be conveyed by lighters to Charlestown.

The road is constructed in the most substantial manner. It rests on a foundation of stone laid so deep in the ground as to be beyond the reach of frost, and to secure the rails on which the carriage runs effectually against change of their relative position; they are laid upon stones of eight feet in length, placed transversely along the whole extent of the road at a distance of six or eight feet from each other. The space between these stones is filled with smaller stones or earth, and over the whole between the rails a gravel is made. The rails are formed of pine timber, on the top of which is placed a bar of iron. The carriages run upon the iron bars, and are kept in place by a projection on the inner edge of the truss wheels. The wheels are of a size considerable larger than a common cart wheel.

"We learn from a gentleman who has visited the principal roalroads in England that in point of solidity and skill in construction this is not exceeded by any one there.—Columbia Centinal, Oct. 11, 1826, and taken from the Daily Advertiser."

The cost of this tramway was thirty-four thousand dollers. See Charles F. Adams', Jr., "Railroads; their Origin and Problems."

"Next comes the Lowell, incorporated in 1830; then followed the Worcester, Providence and others. The Lowell was first opened for public travel in June, 1835; the Worcester in July, the same year; the Providence was also opened in 1835, with a single track. The Maine was opened from Wilmington to Andover, in 1836, to South Berwick, 1843. The Eastern comes next, in 1838 which year it was opened to Salem. The Old Colony began in November, 1845. The Fitchburg in 1845, and the Hartford and Erie in 1849, under the name of the 'Norfolk County Road.' It is somewhat singular, that all the railway stations in Boston stand on ground reclaimed from the sea."

"There has been a strange misapprehension respecting the importance of the railway to us" said Mr. Willard. "I think the following statement, will illustrate this point: The whole quantity of stone carried from our ledge to the water, is 2287 tons, which at 35cents per ton comes to $800.50. The price offered by a respectable company for the hauling the common way, was fifty cents per ton, so that all the gain that ever was expected, provided they had fufilled their agreement, was only the difference between 35 and 50 cents on 2287 tons, $343.05 in a work where $28,000 had been expended. On the other side of the account we must reckon the loss of two years in waiting for this company to perform a job which amounts to a little mroe than $800. For loss in time no estimate in money can be made. It has been, however, an injury which is irreparable. The loss in cash paid to men with their hands tied in consequence of the delinquency of the Railway Company, (I should say to speak within bounds) was ten times the whole cost of carying 2287 tons to the water."

ENCAMPMENT OFFICERS.

D. D. G. P. Samuel W. Johnson and suite of Boston installed the following officers of Manet Encampment, I. O. O. F., on Friday evening:

Chief Patriarch—Thomas D. Milne.
High Priest—Charles Barron.
Senior Warden— Washington G. Woodward.
Scribe—George C. Ela.
Treasurer—Frank L. Carlton.
Junior Warden—Walter H. Walker.
Guide—William H. Nettleton.

HOUGHS NECK INDIGNANT.

D. J. Maloney, president of the Houghs Neck Associates, indignantly denies the story published in Thursday's Telegram. He requests the Daily Ledger to say that the statement attributed to him to the effect that Councilman Whiton's action in collusion with the street railway company is false. He adds that there were several other mis-statements, and says the article was a great injury to Houghs Neck. The people of Houghs Neck appreciate the good services of Councilman Whiton, at various times in their behalf, and his readiness to work for them, and regret very much that the false statements should have been published so conspicuously.

PARIS THINKS WORST IS OVER

Seine Stops Rising and Situation is Greatly Improved

Paris, Jan. 29.—It was officially stated this morning that the River Seine was stationary and that its tributaries continued to fall.

The situation greatly improved between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning. This, in part, is attributable to the change in the weather. Suddenly the skies cleared and a full moon burst out. The temperature dropped and the wind veered to the eastward.

The improvement in the condition appears not to be merely temporary, and the officials are convinced that the end may be said to be in sight and that the waters will begin to recede today.

The water has begun to fall in all of the affluents of the Seine above Paris, but the passage through the city is clogged by bridges and an immense accumulation of drift, and the seething waters hourly are spreading over new acres.

Choked underground rivers and sewers are bursting their confines and playing havoc with the streets, swamping more cellars and threatening more foundations of buildings.

Last night the city presented a wierd spectacle. The soldiers, sailors, firemen and police hastily constructed temporary walls by the light of camp fires and torches in an endeavor to keep out the invading waters, while pickets patrolled those sections of the city which are plunged in darkness by the bursting of the gas mains and the stoppage of the electric lighting plants.

Several hospitals where sick and numbers of refugees were taken are in a dreadful plight, owing to the water having reached their cellars and quenched the fires in the furnaces.

Four hundred patients were hurriedly removed in ambulances from the Hospital de la Salpetriere to the Hospital Boucicault.

Their rescue was dramatic; some of them were dying, and aid came to them in the nick of time. The hospital already was isolated and a new rush of water threatened to level it.

At this moment the tireless prefect of police, M. Lepine, arrived and sent out a score of policemen on bicycles to summon ambulances and boats and additional police and soldiers.

While some of the soldiers were laying pontoons, others lifted out patients from the hospital, all of them enveloped in blankets. Two hundred of them were saved in boats, while the other 200 were carried across the pontoons on the backs of soldiers.

A majority of the schools in Paris are closed, and many of those in the suburbs are in recess.

Traffic in front of the Equitable Life Assurance building is closed on account of the collapse of the subway there. A dozen of the large jewelry shops in the Rue de la Paix have suspended business.

The prevailing belief is that even if the damage done by the water reaches no greater extent than is now the case, it will take years to efface the traces of the flood here.

The police are forcing evacuation of entire streets in the Ile de la Cite and the Isle St. Louis, where the houses are in danger of collapsing.

An alarming subsidence of the ground has occurred all along the Quai des Tuileries and the Quai du Louvre. Engineers are throwing up further walls and barricades of sand, stone and cement to protect the Place du Carrousel.

War would hardly play such havoc. The "City of Light" has become a city of slime filled with muddy waters. Business is almost at a standstill, and the hotels are crowded with persons who have fled from inundated homes.

The prices of necessaries are advancing as the paralysis of transportation facilities entering the city extends.

The devastation has now penetrated the very heart of Paris, the gorging rivers and sewers underneath literally blowing up the streets.

Twelve of the twenty-five bridges over the river have been closed and the quays on either side from one end of the city to the other are either inundated or or have been roped off.

DYSPEPSIA

"Having taken your wonderful 'Cascarets' for three months and being entirely cured of stomach catarrh and dyspepsia, I think a word of praise is due to 'Cascarets' for their wonderful composition. I have taken numerous other so-called remedies but without avail, and I find that Cascarets relieve more in a day than all the others I have taken would in a year." AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water. Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.
After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.
This recipe insures four perfect loaves.
N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.
"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.
Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

The Social Realm

Charles Francis Adams and family of South Lincoln, have gone to Washington, D. C., for the late winter months, being domiciled at 1701 Massachusetts avenue.

* * *

It is reported that Nathaniel Thayer of Boston is seriously ill of hardening of the arteries and the family is living very quietly this winte . Mrs. Thayer will be remembered as Miss Pauline Revere of Presidents hill.

* * *

Mrs. E. W. Sheppard is in New York for a few days' rest, and will spend the week end with friends in East Orange, New Jersey.

* * *

The appearance of Miss Nora Burns of Boston as alto soloist in the Messiah concert of Feb. 15th, is of more than ordinary interest to many Quincy people from the fact that she is soloist at the church of the Immaculate Conception. For many years, the late Mrs. Ita Welch Donovan of this city held that position and her admirers cannot but regard any successor of her with warm interest. While they do not expect to hear a voice equal to that one which they all loved so much, they know the approximate merit which a singer must have to hold this position and they anticipate a rare treat in hearing Miss Burns in the beautiful Messiah solos. She is a young singer who has yet to win the wide reputation which the other announced soloists have already acquired and it is certain that her Quincy audience will be receptive and sympathetic.

* * *

Mrs. Ross Kittredge Whiton of Bedford was a guest a few days this week of Miss Flora Underwood of Presidents hill, and other Quincy friends coming for the musicale of the Quincy Women's club on Tuesday afternoon. Dr. and Mrs. Whiton are very pleasantly located in Bedford and have made many new friends, but Quincy and old friends still hold first place in their affections.

* * *

Miss Catherine S. Parker of Dorchester has been the guest this week of her mother Mrs. John Whitney Hall of Hancock street.

* * *

Mrs. W. T. Babcock returned this week from Seattle where she went last June as the guest of her son Mr. Thorpe Babcock. Mrs. Babcock will return to the North-west to make her home there as soon as she can finish necessary business here.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Fryberg, nee Laura Jones, who were married in December, are at home to their friends after February first at 50 Jackson street.

* * *

Mrs. George A. Tisdale of Providence, R. I., left this week for a tour of Southern California, as the guest of her cousin Charles Cummings. Mr. and Mrs. Tisdale formerly lived on Adams street, East Milton, but have been in Providence the past few years.

* * *

The James H. Broughtons are very pleasantly settled in their new home on Newport avenue moving from Taylor street where they have resided the past few years. The estate is a large one and has been thoroughly renovated making it one of the best homes in Wollaston.

* * *

Mrs. A. Edwin Clattenburg of Hancock street, Wollaston, who went over to New York the first of the week is returning to day, accompanied by her mother, who comes for a short visit.

* * *

A. E. Taylor first officer of the Cretic of the White Star line was the guest this week of Rev. A. Edwin Clattenburg at the rectory, Wollaston.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bain of Prospect avenue entertained a party of friends at whist Thursday evening. Mrs. Albert E. Kingsbury, Mrs. John G. Thomas, James B. B. Smith and William O. Phelps carried home souvenirs of the occasion.

* * *

Mrs. Harry Read of Squantum street was hostess of the Atlantic Shakespeare club which met Thursday afternoon. Miss Mary Hinkley gave an interesting talk on Jane Seymour and Mrs. Charles Safford's subject was Anne of Cleaves. The song from the third act of Henry the Eighth was artistically rendered by Mrs. William Cummings.

Mrs. Clarence Burgin, Mrs. Russell A. Sears and Mrs. Henry I. Hall are to be the matrons at the Valentine German being arranged by Mrs. Charles M. Bryant for the benefit of the Quincy Day Nursery. The dance is to be held on Saturday afternoon, February twelfth at Quincy Music hall.

Mrs. Carl Sheppard is entertaining a party at hearts tonight for her brother, Charles V. B. Bechtel of Elizabeth New Jersey, who is spending the winter with her.

* * *

Miss Martha Lyons of Hamilton street was given a surprise party by a number of her friends and presented with a beautifully engraved signet ring.

* * *

Walter G. Thomas of Newton street returned to Rome the first of the year after making several side trips. During December he enjoyed the magnificence of Amalfi stopping at Grand Hotel dei Cappuccini, having the room occupied by Henrick's Isben when he wrote his famous play "The Doll's House."

WESTLAND QUARTET

Last of Entertainments by Quincy Alliance

A thoroughly enjoyable concert was given last evening in First Church chapel by the Westland quartet, it being the third and last in a series of entertainments under the auspices of the Quincy Alliance, of which Mrs. E. B. Marsh is president.

The quartet were beautiful gowned; their personality was charming and their singing,— well their singing must be heard to be appreciated, for it is far beyond that of most quartets. Why their singing is so enjoyable must be because each individually is so perfect in voice and enunciation and the voices blend unusually well. Then again the selections rendered were pleasing as to variety and melody, there being real music in every one on the program.

The cordial greeting extended to the quartet and Miss Whiton pianist with the opening number continued through the program and one and often two encores followed each selection, especially after the solos by Miss Dadmun Miss Coe, Miss Whiton and Mrs. Moore.

It was a disappointment that Mrs. Miller was unable to sing the solo for which she was down on the program but she was suffering from a cold.

Miss Marion Chadwick Whiton accompanied at the piano in her usual pleasing way.

In the quartet were: May Belle Grace Dadmun, Emma Schufeldt Moore, Alice Gertrude Coe and Dorothy McTaggart Miller and the program was as follows:

"Waken, Lords and Ladies Gay," Matthews—Quartet.

"Song of the Shepherdess", Anderson—Quartet.

"Se Saran Rose", Arditi—Miss Dadmun.

"The Clock," Sherwood—Quartet.

"A Bowl of Roses," Clarke and "Oh Happy Swallow," Whelpley—Miss Coe.

"Mazurka," Leschetizky — Miss Whiton.

"My Lady Chlo'," Clough Leighter; "Dry Yo' Eyes," Lansburg—Quartet.

"I Fly Like a Bird," Foote—Mrs. Moore and Miss Coe.

"Lullaby," Gilchrist—Quartet.

"Hearts' Delight," Gilchrist—Mrs. Moore.

"Carmena," Wilson—Quartet.

Chiefs Walter H. Ripley and Joseph W. Hayden of the Quincy department Chief Engineer Peter J. Williams, Assistant Engineer Daniel J. Nyhan, Councilman Charles E. Cherrington, chairman of the standing committee on police matters, Councilmen John R. Richards, Edward J. Sandberg, William H. Flynn, Charles A. Ericson, George A. Bolster and William A. Carey, Representative William R. Thomas, City Messenger Harry W. Tirrelll, Overseer of the Poor James H. Elcock, Assessor John A. Duggan, and Lawrence W. Lyons, assistant clerk at the district court.

The wants of these guests were carefully looked after by an efficient committee headed by Chief Frank E. Burrell, who was assisted in this pleasant duty by Sergt. Mark E. Hanson and Officers William S. Lyons, Henry F. Riley and George F. Phillips.

President Daniel R. McKay was floor marshal and Inspector Alfred W. Goodhue was floor director, with John T. Larkin, Jeremiah Hinchin and Patrick A. Milford assistant floor directors. They were assisted by a large corps of aids including: Edward Johnson, John Halloran, Claes A. Broberg, Charles Olsen, Edward J. Curtin, John P. Duffy, John J. Duane, George A. Cahill, Michael Donovan, Ernest H. Bishop, Daniel H. Doran, Daniel J. Ford, Henry W. Thorne, James H. Whelan James W. Murray, Jeremiah Dinneen, Charles T. Crooker Henry F. Riley, George F. Phillips, David L. Farrell.

The ball was over at 2 o'clock and as the dancers left the hall special cars were found in waiting to take them to their homes. Nothing occurred during the entire evening to mar the pleasure of the affair and it doubtless was the most successful of any yet held by the association.

BRIEFS

QUINCY MUSIC HALL

THE HIGHEST CLASS OF LICENSE – A THEATRE LICENSE, is now issued to Music Hall. Last year the fire exits and facilities for fire prevention were ample for a Hall License, but to obtain the present highest class of License, the whole main exit has been torn down and made absolutely fire-proof, large automatic smoke and fire vents have been constructed over the stage, all scenery has been made fire-proof, and the previous generous exit facilities have been very greatly increased. There are now ten (10) doors opening from the Hall, and six (6) separate exits, 2 of 8 feet each, 1 of 7 1-2 feet, 2 of 5 feet each, and 1 of 3 1-2 feet, a total of 37 feet of exit. All exits are lighted continually by both gas and electricity. There is an asbestos curtain, just specially rehung, by which the stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are chemical fire extinguishers, and fire pails throughout the Hall.

The Location is in the heart of the city. The street cars with double tracks pass the door.

The Elaborate, Permanent Decorations which have recently been put up are most attractive, and add much to the appearance of the Hall.

The Electric Light Festoon over the entrance way, flashing first red, then white, is a unique feature of much value.

The Moonlight Effect obtained by having the electric light come through Japanese lanterns is a pleasing novelty.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded Hall.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a switchboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a particularly generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards are valuable.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish an absolutely safe and large and really first class Hall.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . . at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET.

Let Your Husky Howler Howl, Dr. Hall Tells Hubbie Metaphysicians. Argentine Contract for Warships Spreads Peace at Quincy Point—Phillips Brooks Memorial Introduces a New Touch of Sentiment in Boston's Copley Square—More Honors for Composer Chadwick—The True Story of Certain Suffragette Happenings.

Let the baby cry—that is to say, don't feel badly if he does cry. He or she, if a goodhusky howler, probably will become a second Constantino or Nordica. At least, so said Dr. G. Stanley Hall, president of Clark University, at a recent meeting of the Metaphysical club, and he certainly ought to know. Crying develops the muscles, gives wonderful vocal exercise, makes the blood circulate and expands the lungs, and Dr. Hall claims that the reason we have no more singers in America is because our babies are not allowed to cry enough. It is not to be supposed that the eminent scientist advocates starving, whipping, or any kindred discomforts to encourage this early training for the operatic stage, but merely points out the advisability of letting the youngster have his cry out, good and loud and lusty, when he feels in the mood for this form of training. It may be a bit trying to the nerves, but just imagine that your infant prodigy is practising the prison song from "Il Trovatore" or the sextet from "Lucia" and you won't mind half so much.

"Preacher of the word of God, Lover of mankind,"—What higher tribute could be paid to any man than this which ma ks the memorial to Boston's beloved Phillips Brooks, unveiled before a great and sympathetic throng of churchmen of every denomination in the shelter of Trinity church on Jan. 22. One more wo k of artistic and romantic beauty is added to the already attractive Copley square and a symbol of sentiment as well, for no citizen of the hub but feels that Phillips Brooks was a personal friend. Rumors have been rife during the time that the monument has been veiled to the effect that it was not characteristic nor seemly in its pose, but could the late Augustus Saint Gauden have witnessed the admiration and emotion expressed by the great gathering as the beautiful bronze group was disclosed to view he would have felt that this was his crowning achievement. It is a monument not only to a great preacher and lover of his fellow men, but to a great and sympathetic artist.

There are smiling faces and happy family circles in the little village near the Fore River Ship Bulding Company's bg plant at Quincy, and in the numerous homes in Boston which shelter workers at this trade., for the Argentine Republic has placed an order for two great battleships. This means at least three years' employment for 2,000 men, many of whom were on the point of losing their positions since the completion of the North Dakota. The work s of a highly specialized and well paid nature, and brings a feeling of comfort and security to many. This feeling, perhaps, may be enhanced in no small part by the fact that the majority of workmen at the big shipbuilding establishment are enthusiastic upholders of the doctrine of independence and thrift, as evidenced by the number of them who are holders of policies in the savings bank insurance and old age pension departments of which the Fore River Company is an agency. Doubtless many who have held back through fear of losing their positions and being unable to keep up their premiums will now avail themselves of the advantages offered by this novel Massachusetts plan for providing against the contingencies of death and superannuation.

Boston fun lovers read with real sorrow the announcement of the death of Ezra Kendall on January 23d, after his having closed his season in "The Vinegar Buyer," on account of ill health. Probably no comedian on the vaudeville or legitimate stage has won for himself such widespread popularity for to see him once was to see him every time he came to town. So well known was he and so infectious his style of humor that the Boston girl remembers several occasions when members of his audience have been obliged to leave the theatre on account of hysterics. On one appearance he had not opened his mouth to speak when a lady who was evidently familiar with his performance began to laugh. Mr. Kendall looked at her with his inimitable expression, but never said a word. For at least three minutes the audience was in an uproar, and attendants assisted the lady, helpless with laughing and crying, from the theatre, before he could begin his monologue. His sudden death leaves a real void in the theatrical world which is felt deeply by Bostonians among whom he was as popular as in any American city.

Boston music certainly is winning the West. The Chicago papers enthusiastically of the delight produced in the western metropolis these last few days by the well rounded performances of the Hub's opera company. Simultaneously the Windy City has conferred especial honor upon, and received exceptional pleasure from, the dean of Boston composers, George Whitfield Chadwick, director of the New England Conservatory of Music and holder of many distinctions in the world of music. Mr. Chadwick was invited last week by the Theodore Thomas Orchestra Association to conduct at performances of one of his own works, the Symphonic Sketches, a series which has before now been played by the orchestras in New York and Philadelphia. Occasionally to turn over these orchestral organizations to visiting conductors has become quite the vogue of late, and it is not always a distinguished foreigner who is brought on to wield the baton. On the contrary the day of the American composer has arrived to such an extent that a young man, thoroughly educated in music on this side of the water and passing his career here, may reasonably expect not only to have his pieces performed from time to time by the great symphony orchestras of our leading cities but perhaps to be asked to conduct in person. Training in such orchestras as that at the New England Conservatory, which Mr. Chadwick conducts with the spirit and competence that are his characteristics is today fitting a large number of young people to follow in the professional footsteps of the director of the nation's oldest and most largely attended music school.

The truth is something that is always interesting to get at. Here is the explanation given by Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, president of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, of Lady Constance Lytton's disguising herself and going to jail at Liverpool, the sequel to a dispute that grew out of her recent imprisonment at Newcastle. It seems that many English women of wealth and position were indignant at the treatment of the suffragettes in prison. Some features of this treatment they believed to be illegal, especially the forcible feeding by means of gagging the prisoner and thrusting a tube through the nostrils and down into the stomach. Lady Constance Lytton, daughter of a former viceroy of India and Mrs. H. N. Brailsford, the wife of a prominent and influential Liberal journalist, made up their minds to take part in some militant demonstration, get themselves sent to jail, and see whether the authorities would venture to inflict forcible feeding upon women of their social position. At a Newcastle meeting where a cabinet minister was to speak, Lady Constance threw a stone wrapped in a piece of paper at Sir Walter Runciman's automobile, taking care not to hit the occupants. Mrs. Brailsford concealed a hatchet until she reached the twenty-foot-high wooden barrier which had been erected to keep the women away from the meeting, and then ,in full sight of the police, made one chop at the barrier, and was immediately arrested. They were both sent to prison, with other women. All went on hunger strike. The "commoners" were forcibly fed, but Lady Constance and Mrs. Brailsford were allowed to fast for two or three days, and were then set at liberty. Lady Constance denounced this as snobbery. Questions were asked in Parliament, and Mr. Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, said that she had not been forcibly fed because she had a "serious heart trouble," and it would have endangered her life. Lady Constance declared her heart trouble was slight, and that before taking her militant action, Mrs. Brailsford had had herself examined by her physician, who pronounced her health perfectly sound. Now further to prove her point Lady Constance has dressed herself as a workingwoman, going to Liverpool, where she was not known, and taking part in a suffrage demonstration. She was sent to prison, went on a hunger strike, and had been forcibly fed for a week before anyone found out who she was.

MORSE PETITION IN BOSTON

Comparatively Few Names Put on the Paper by Business Men

Boston, Jan. 29.—One of the papers being circulated over the country for signatures to a petition seeking the pardon of Charles W. Morse, who was sentenced to fifteen years in prison, arrived yesterday. It created considerable discussion and quite a difference of opinion among the grain brokers.

Those who were the keenest sympathizers signed the petition, but the number of names put on the paper was comparatively few.

In the Business World

New York, Jan. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Measured by such tests as bank clearings and railroad earnings, there is no visible diminution in the volume of industrial and mercantile transactions.

GRAY HAIRS BANISHED.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy and gradually restored the natural color. One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days on account of it souring quickly. This objection has been overcome and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow. It is sold by all druggists for 50c. and $1.00 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

CITY OF QUINCY.

IN COUNCIL,

Jan. 10, 1910.

ORDERED: That public convenience and necessity require that the City of Quincy, take under the provisions of law authorizing the taking in fee of land by cities for the purpose of erecting a schoolhouse thereon, the parcel of land hereinafter described, and located in that part of the said city, known as Montclair, for the purpose of erecting a schoolhouse thereon. Said parcel of land is owned by and bounded and described as follows:—

Beginning at a stake on the southeasterly line of West Squantum street at its intersection with the easterly line of Highland avenue, so called, the northwesterly line of said lot runs in a northeasterly direction on West Squantum street a distance of about 220 feet to a stake, thence turning and running in a southerly direction parallel with Highland avenue, so called, a distance of about 343 feet to a stake in the northerly line of Broadway, so called, thence turning and running in a westerly direction along the northerly line of Broadway, so called, a distance of about 200.5 feet to a stake in the easterly line of Highland avenue so called, then turning at 90 degrees and running in a northerly direction along the easterly line of Highland avenue, so called a distance of about 225.4 feet to the point of beginning, all as more particularly shown on a plan made by Ezekiel C. Sargent, City Engineer, dated November 1909, and accompanying this order.

Said parcel of land is owned or supposed to be owned by the following named persons:—John L. Norris, or Norris, heirs of Horatio N. Holbrook and Henrietta Holbrook.

And it is further ordered that a public hearing be given by the City Council to all parties interested on MONDAY evening, Feb. 21, 1910 at 7.45 o'clock in the Council Chamber, City Hall, and that due notice of the intention of the city to take said parcel of land for such a purpose, and of said hearing, be given to all parties, interested by publishing a copy of this order in the Quincy Daily Ledger, Quincy Advertiser and Quincy Telegram, at least 21 days before the date of hearing, and that an attested copy of this order be served upon the owner or owners of said parcel of land, by a constable authorized to serve civil process by delivering an attested copy thereof in hand to said owner or owners or by leaving an attested copy thereof at the last and usual place of abode of said owner or owners.

Adopted Jan. 10, 1910.

GRAVE DEFECTS IN MEYER PLAN

According to Paymaster General Rogers of the Navy

Washington, Jan. 29.—Only one objection stands in the way of the adoption by congress of the Meyer plan for the reorganization of the navy. The members of the house committee on naval affairs are now trying to determine whether the lone defect, or alleged defect, is sufficiently serious to warrant the rejection of the entire scheme. So far the committee is in doubt. The objection is aimed at the proposition that line officers shall run the navy yards. The whole thing was summed up in this question which was plumped at Secretary Meyer:

"What will happen to the navy yard organization when a war comes and the line officers who have been running things are rushed to sea?"

A satisfactory answer to this question has not yet been made. The house committee has been told that the whole scheme proposed by the secretary would fall to pieces at the very moment its perfect working was most needed. With injured battleships limping into the yard for repairs, in time of war, there would be no experienced officers on hand to supervise the work. The officers who had run the yards up to the time of declaring war, would all be at sea.

The alleged defects of the Meyer system were pointed out in a striking fashion by Paymaster General Rogers, who startled the members of the house committee by telling how the Meyer system would "go to pieces" at the most critical moment. This is what Rogers said:

"In time of war there is no question about it that the most important asset the government has is the educated, trained, enthusiastic, patriotic line officer. That man has been trained by the government for one specific purpose and has spent $20,000 to educate that man at the naval academy as a boy. It has a big investment in him. It is paying a very high rate of interest to keep that man trained for one single moment, the supreme moment of battle. To say that that man can be supinely put in any shop, in any yard, under any circumstances, is to negotiate everything that the navy has ever done; it is an insult to the man. The duty of that man is to be on the firing line and he will tell you he should be there.

"Here is a big engineering department being built up in a navy yard, taking away from the bureau of construction and other bureaus everything to do with the machinery of every kind except the coffee mill and in the clothing factory.

"This plan provides for what? It provides very beautifully for building up a big department in the yard, to be useful in time of peace to train these officers for their duties in time of war.

"Let us admit that may be true. A war comes, and what happens? Every one of these men who is worth anything will put in an immediate application to go to sea, and the secretary must send them there because the navy needs every man who has ever had any experience in the navy; must take them from civil life if they have resigned or retired from the navy. It needs every man who is in health to go, every man from the merchant marine who can possibly be of service, because this war with Spain was a mere summer holiday in comparison with what we are preparing for and which some day we may have to meet; and to say that we are going to build up this department, when in the time of the highest demand, when in time of war a lame fleet comes in, or when we are working twenty-four hours a day; to say that these men must go to sea, would leave this department where?

"In the hands of retired officers, it is said. Where are you going to get capable retired officers? Every available officer, whether he is on the retired list or not, will be sent to sea, and this organization must go to pieces, and the result must be disaster, and cannot be otherwise—I am stating my opinion only. That is the reason I am opposed to the building up of this big engineering department in the navy yard."

Superior Court Norfolk, ss.

To the Honorable the Justices of the Superior Court, next to be holden at Dedham within and for the County of Norfolk.

Respectfully libels and represents Giovanni Corti of Quincy, in the County of Norfolk, that he was lawfully married to Guiseppina Maraggio Corti now of Providence in the State of Rhode Island, at Boston on the ninth day of November A. D., 1902, and thereafterwards your libellant and the said Guiseppina lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at Boston, Quincy and Milford, New Hampshire; that your libellant has always been faithful to his marriage vows and obligations but the said Guiseppina Corti being wholly regardless of the same at Milford, New Hampshire on the eighth day of September A. D. 1903 utterly deserted your libellant, and that said utter desertion has continued to this day, being more than three consecutive years next prior to the filing of this libel.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bonds of matrimony may be decreed between your libellant and the said Guiseppina Corti.

Dated the eighteenth day of September A. D. 1909.

CORTI GIOVANNI.

A FEW MEATLESS OR LENTEN RECIPES

Now that the price of meat is soaring so that it makes harrowing demands upon the resources of the average household it is not a bad idea to borrow a few tested recipes from our vegetarian friends, and the chances are that these will become favorite dishes in the family menu.

RISOTTO.

Wash one-half pint of rice, throw it into salted boiling water and boil rapidly for fifteen minutes. While the rice is boiling, put into a saucepan, one tablespoonful butter, one small onion, chopped fine, one Spanish sweet pepper cut into strips, and after these are thoroughly heated, add one-half pint of canned tomatoes. Drain the rice, and put a layer in the bottom of a baking dish, then add a sprinkling of grated cheese, a layer of the tomato sauce, then another layer of rice and sauce and a top of rice covered thickly with cheese. Cover the dish and stand in a hot oven for twenty minutes. Serve in the dish in which it is baked. Serve with a green salad and fruit dessert.

PECAN SAUSAGES.

One pint pecan meats, one egg, one-half teaspoonful salt, one cup cooked farina or cream of wheat, a dash of pepper and one tablespoonful sage.

Put the nuts through a meat chopper, add the farina and all the seasoning, and last the beaten egg. Make into round cakes, place on oiled paper in a baking dish, and bake twenty minutes in a quick oven. Serve with either tomato or white sauce. Other nuts may be substituted for the pecans.

BANANA CANNELON.

Six ripe bananas, one-half pint peanuts or English walnuts, one-half pint water, four tablespoonfuls cornstarch, one teaspoonful salt.

Put the nuts through the meat chopper; mash the bananas. Stir the cornstarch into the water, add the seasoning and fruit pulp. Pour mixture into moulds, or pound baking powder cans, cover and stand in boiling water; boil for three hours. When done turn out and serve with drawn butter.

MOCK HAM.

One quart kidney beans, one-half pint English walnuts, one-half pint black walnuts, 1-2 pint pecans, one-half pint almonds, one can pimentos, one tablespoonful salt and one saltspoonful black pepper. Soak beans over night, drain and cover with fresh boiling water, boil twenty minutes and throw water away. Cover with fresh water and boil until tender. Press through a colander. Chop nuts and pimentos, add them with seasoning to beans. Form into shape of small ham, place on greased paper and brush form over with melted butter. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. When done brush again with butter and dust thickly with bread crumbs. Put back in oven to brown. Serve cold cut in thin slices.

BEAN CROQUETTES.

One pint white beans, one-half cup cream, yolks of two eggs, one tablespoonful butter, one tablespoonful flour, one tablespoonful chopped parsley, one tablespoonful onion juice, one teaspoonful salt, one saltspoonful pepper.

Soak beans over night, cover with fresh water and after boiling an hour throw this water away. Cover with fresh water and boil until tender. Drain and press beans through colander. Rub the butter and flour together, add cream and stir until nearly boiling, then add the yolks of eggs. Stir for a moment then add the bean puree and seasoning and turn out to cool in shallow dish. When cool form into cylinders, dip in the whites of eggs, roll in bread crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve plain or with tomato sauce.

Waiter Gests $100 a Week in Tips

New York, Jan. 29.—In asking for alimony from William Wendling, a Waldorf-Astoria waiter, Mrs. Wendling made affidavit in the supreme court that his income from tips alone amounts to at least $100 a week.

Higher Wages For Enginemen

Reading, Pa., Jan. 29.—Enginemen on the Philadelphia and Reading railway will receive an increase in wages amounting to 13 percent beginning Feb. 1. Twelve hundred men are affected by the increase.

MINIMUM TARIFF RATES

To Be Given Seven Countries In Proclamation by President Taft

Washington, Jan. 29.—The tariff officers of the government have recommended to the president, through the secretary of state, that proclamations be issued by him declaring the following named countries as not being unduly discriminative in their tariffs against the United States and therefore entitled to receive mininmum rates of duty imposed by the Payne-Aldrich act:

Denmark, The Netherlands, Norway, Sweden, Belgium, Egypt and Persia.

It is expected that the proclamation recommended will be issued by the president today or Monday.

Failed as a Prophet

Pittsburg, Jan. 29.—Discouraged because the end of the world did not come yesterday, as he had predicted to his family and neighbors, Robert Strucel blew his brains out.

NEW EVIDENCE SUBMITTED

Federal Grand Jury Is Not Through With the Heinze Case

New York, Jan. 29.—The federal grand jury is considering new evidence submitted by United States District Attorney Wise relative to F. A. Heinze and his connection with the Mercantile National bank.

Following the quashing of one of the indictments against Heinze last week it was said that the government authorities were seeking a new indictment against Heinze on charges of manipulating the bank's funds in authorizing large loans to Otto Heinze & Co., and to himself personally.

GREEK CABINET TO RESIGN

Forced Out by Military League, Which Wants Constitution Revised

Athens, Jan. 29.—The Military league has provoked another crisis by charging the premier with inefficiency. The league demands the resignation of the cabinet and the convocation of a national assembly to revise the constitution.

The ministers held a protracted session, at which it was decided to tender their resignations to King George. Later Premier Mavromichalis decided to meet parliament before he resigns and compel a hostile vote to avoid the appearance of yielding to the dictation of the Military league.

Loving Cup For Old Pedagogue

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 29.—A loving cup was presented to William F. Bradbury, head master at the Latin school in this city, who retired yesterday after fifty-three years of service. The cup was a remembrance from the scholars of the school.

Fined $500 For Smuggling

New York, Jan. 29.—John McMorrough, an importer, pleaded guilty to a charge of smuggling, and was fined $500. McMorrough was recently indicted with twenty-six dressmakers for complicity in the "sleeper trunk" smuggling conspiracy.

Big Fare of Halibut

Portland, Me., Jan. 29.—The Gloucester schooner Selma, Captain Colson, arrived here from the Banks with 25,000 pounds of halibut, the largest fare to be landed here in months.

Wants Name Shortened a Bit

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 29.—Vasilios Koustantinos Pappandreopoulos, a Worcester merchant, has asked the probate court, in a petition, to change his name to William Patterson.

DISCUSSION IS RENEWED

Slogan of "Back to the Farm" Emphasized In Many Ways

Boston, Jan. 29.—"Back to the farm" is the slogan of the day. It has been emphasized in various ways, and been brought home to the minds of the people by many agencies until it has influencel their action.

It is prescribed as a preservative of public health, remedy for the crowded and unsanitary mode of living in cities, replenishment of dwindling household resources, a conservation of the ratural resources and in the present meat agitation it is prescribed by producer, dealer and consumer alike as the only effective preventative of excessive prices on meats, cereals and vegetables.

A most cursory inquiry reveals that the people of Massachusetts have not been able to withstand the force of this persistent advice and argument. They are responding to it in a way that a few years ago would have surprised all but the most far-sighetd observers. They are going "back to the farm," and farm property is everywhere discussed as valuable property.

There never before was so much inquiry about farms as there is now, through the state board of agriculture as well as through the real estate agencies, or as much correspondence between the board and the farming sections of the state.

One reason for this correspondence, however, is the effort of the state to secure information for a special bulletin or directory which it is to publish in the near future. Real estate men have done a heavy business in farm land and are looking forward to great activity early in the spring.

This discussion is revived by the meat "boycott" movement, in which it appears as the only readjustment that has permanent value. What bearing it will have eventually upon such a situation is a matter of speculation, and cannot be determined with much accuracy until the state takes its next farm census. Then it will appear to what extent the Massachusetts population is returning to agricultural pursuits.

In recent months there has been a substantial movement from the big cities to the rural country, and a wholesome change of hands on agricultural property.

According to the census of 1905, an analysis of which has just been published, there are still 1,198,720 acres of uncultivated agricultural land in Massachusetts and nearly twice as much woodland. The total value of farming products in the state for that year amounting to $73,110,496, as against only $52,880,431 ten years earlier.

This increase is large when compared with the increase during the preceding ten years. In the last ten years there were substantial increases in hay, market gardens, fruit orchards, seed gardens, cranberry bogs, woodland, and poultry, but there were decreases in general farm products, in cattle and in pear culture.

Last year there developed such an enormous demand for fruit trees that the nurseries were unable to supply it. This year again the nurseries have had their agents in the fields taking orders for spring, and these agents declare that they are doing a large business and are sold out on many of the popular varieties.

NO REASON FOR IT

When Quincy Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Quincy citizen says:

James P. Daugherty, Hammond Place, Quincy, Mass., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and am glad to let other sufferers know what they have done for me. I was bothered a great deal by back ache and had but litt'e strength or energy to do my day's work. I took many so-called kidney cures, but did not succeed in finding relief until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills which I procured at the Cox Drug Store. I was surprised and gratified at the prompt way in which they relieved me. My back was soon strong and free from pain and I felt better generally. I would go to considerable trouble to induce anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills, as I have so much confidence in them."

BRIEFS

James Elcock, D. H. C. R. and suite installed officers of Hingham court M. C. O. F. on Monday night.

As Lent comes so early this year the Valentine supper under the management of St. Margaret's Guild will be held Friday night Feb. 4.

The Sacred Heart parish at Atlantic will hold its annual reunion in Music hall, Atlantic, next Wednesday evening.

The C. E. Society of Bethany church will observe the anniversary of the Endeavor movement with a public service Sunday evening, Feb. 6.

Several members of the Quincy Order of Elks started from Hull Tuesday night to attend the meeting but were obliged to give it up as the street car broke down.

Rumor is quite persistent that the Riker-Jaynes Company of New York and Boston are to open a drug store in the Welch block in the store recently vacated by the F. D. Fellows Co.

The Woolworth 5 and 10 cent store company which has stores in all the large cities is to occupy two stores in the Adams building and will be ready for business in a few weeks.

The Woman's Guild of Christ church decided several months ago not to hold their annual fair but in place of it to have a penny collection, that is for every one interested in the church to put by a penny each day through the summer and as a result $424.71 was realized.

Rev. Dr. Howe, rector of the Church of Our Saviour, Brookline preaches at Christ church at the 10.30 service Sunday morning. Dr. Howe was rector of Christ church from 1872 to 1877 and it was during his pastorate the present church was built. Old parishioners will be glad of the opportunity of greeting Dr. Howe.

The mid-winter meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs will be held in the Park Street church, Boston, on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 10 A. M. At the morning session the Legislative Department will present legislative measures for the endorsement of the Federation. Short addresses upon "A Glance at the Work of the State Federations of Women's Clubs in New England," will be given by the Presidents of the New England State Federations. The afternoon session will commence at 2 o'clock. Hon. Curtis Guild, Jr., will speak on "The Preservation and Use of some of the Natural Resources of New England." Brown admission tickets may be obtained of Mrs. Tirrell, corresponding secretary of the Quincy Women's club.

☞Following out their well known policy of never carrying over goods from one season to another D. E. Wadsworth & Co., are slashing prices and are offering some unusual bargains. They are closing out all lines preparatory to getting in spring goods. Mothers will do well to inspect the children's coats and also take a look for themselves at the same time Besides suits, coats, skirts and waists, a special sale of hamburg and laces is now going on, and there are special inducements in cotton underwear and lace curtains. An early call will give you a choice of the bargains offered.

TURBINES FOR BATTLESHIPS

And Quincy Shipyard May Have the Call

The Washington correspondent of the Boston Transcript writes: It has been decided by the naval engineering experts that the new battleships which it is expected Congress will authorize at this session shall be propelled by turbines, the choice being between the two types Parsons and Curtis, both of which are used on naval ships. There has been no consideration of the installation of reciprocating engines.

Several new designs are before the Department, being a combination of turbine and electric motor, with which it is said the battleship can be driven at economical speed. Another proposition contemplates the installation of a turbogenerator, which has been developed by the electricians at Schenectady, N. Y., and which is said to remove many of the difficulties which attend the use of turbines.

In other respects the next battleships to be laid down will practically be duplicates of the Florida and the Utah. There is a possiblity—and this subject will shortly be taken up—that the main battery will consist of 14-inch instead of 12-inch guns. This means considerable difference in internal structural design, especially in regard to ammunition hoists, magazines and storage places for the larger shell. It is expected that if 14-inch guns are adopted on the 26,000-ton battleship it will not be possible to carry more than eight. It is altogether a matter of adjusting the weights, however, whether ten 14-inch guns can be included in the armament.

HOSPITAL AID ASSOCIATION

Takes New Lease of Life and Is Growing

At the meeting of the Hospital Aid Association Thursday afternoon there was an unusually large attendance and much interest was shown. A number of new members were added.

Any person may become a member of the association by paying the annual fee of one dollar. The membership fee is now due and may be paid to the directors in the wards or to Mrs. C. A. Howland, treasurer.

The list of directors follows:

Ward 1—Mrs. T. King, Mrs. Laurance Sturtevant, Mrs. N. S. Hunting, Miss Carrie Spear.

Ward 2—Miss Gertrude Sampson, Miss Amey Newcomb.

Ward 3—Mrs. Roderick McClellan, Mrs. Alfred Bishop, Mrs. Arthur Mitchell.

Ward 4—Mrs. Samuel Ames, Mrs. James F. Burke, Mrs. George L. Badger, Mrs. Fred Badger.

Ward 5—Mrs. Herbert W. Pinkham, Mrs. Arthur Linnell, Mrs. Boyd F. Bowles.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. William B. Rice, Adams street, on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 24. It is hoped many new members will be added this year.

MARCEAU WINNER.

Franz Marceau of Quincy was entered as the Boston A. A. representative in the mile handicap at the meet of the Pastime A. C. in New York city last night, and made a great showing against the fast ones of the country. Against him were C. A. Finneran of the West Side Y. M. C. A., W. B. Schreiber of the National A. C. and a score of others. Marceau had a handicap of 40 yards and finished first, his time being 4m., 27s.

Carl Gram of Quincy was a member of the Boston A. A. relay team and took the lead at the start, but Dorland of Brooklyn led by three yards on the first heat. Robbins of Brooklyn held the position in the second heat, and Sheppard of Brooklyn in the third, but Harry Gissing of New York A. C. made a great spurt on the very last lap and won the mile in 3m., 26 1-5s.

RECEPTION

terest by going out on the field for the games. Alumni, it is an excellent thing to increase that. Always think of the name of the school. I want to thank you again."

Mr. Holbrook then introduced Albert L. Barbour, superintendent of schools, who said in part: "Mr. Cleveland and young people a farewell reception is something of a praise service. In conversation with Mr. Cleveland a few days ago, talking over the change, he said, 'this school is already to welcome my successor, the king is dead, long live the king.' This is significant in two respects, it shows the loyalty to the Quincy High school, and the loyalty to the teachers. These are the finest attributes, showing Mr. Cleveland a broad man, working for the good of the school.

The High school is more than a mere building, teachers and pupils. It is an unremitting force with mighty effect on the community. Those here in the last few years have found the work qualitative rather than quantitive with the raising of the standard. The views that Mr. Cleveland held will still be carried out. I congratulate you for the spirit of the reception and for the cordial hope, utmost love and loyalty for the Q. H. S."

The committee who so ably planned this reception was composed of four smaller committees with Miss Marion Howe, Brewster Walker and Demi Gourlie from the class of 1908; Corliss Berry, Harold Richards and Sylvester Brown of 1909; Miss Lillian Mead, Leon Brown and Aaron Gould from the Seniors; and Miss Margaret Tubinan, Miss Cora Barnicoat and Ralph Greene from the Juniors. Everyone considered this one of the best receptions ever given in th school.

Dancing was enjoyed until 11.15. The orchestra was composed of Max Pinkham, violin; Harry Smith, piano; Ernest Pletsch cornet, and Charles Sayward, drum. There were three encores. At the end of the dancing, three cheers were given for Mr. Cleveland.

THE MAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY.

Edward H. Frye of Boston will recite Dr. Edward Everett Hale's "The man without a country" at the Y. M. C. A. men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A. L. Hayden will render vocal solos, accompanied by William Weston. Mr. Frye is a reader and entertainer of note and a man of strong christian character. This occasion will be one worthy of the time of any man as Mr. Frye has spared no pains to make this recital of Dr. Hale's best known story a notable event. All men are invited.

BRIEFS

Evangelistic Schaeffer will continue the special meetings at the First Presbyterian church another week. He is doing a great work here.

Miss Ella Acorn and Miss Doris Smith, representing the Ladies' Aid Society of the Union chapel at Houghs Neck, took sunshine into several homes of the winter colony yesterday, when they distributed flowers to the sick and shut-ins. It is a very commendable kindness and should be encouraged.

GROSSMAN FOUND GUILTY

Takes Appeal in Much Advertised Junk Case

The case of Louis Grossman, for keeping a junk shop without a license, was heard at the district court this morning. Counsel for Grossman moved to quash on acount of informality of the complaint but was overruled.

Mas Pervis, first witness, testified on Jan. 12, he sold Grossman iron and bottles to the amount of $75. A circular offering to buy old junk was identified as one received by witness from Grossman.

Edward A. Haynes testified to selling to Grossman iron, bottles, papers and bones in December. Some were delivered at Grossman's place and some at a car.

Haynes said that he would take a load to Grossman's place on Jackson street, the price being fixed at Haynes' place. Arriving at Grossman's place the load is weighed and he then takes it to the car.

Officer Goodhue testified to seeing Haynes go to Grossman's yard and leave a load that was in bags. Had seen him go there with bottles. Witness described Grossman's place and the large sign on the building which read dealers in old junk, etc.

In the arguments the court ruled that it did not matter where the bargain was made, but the sale was not consumated until the goods were delivered at Grossman's place, which the evidence showed they were, although the seller afterward transported them from the shop to the car. Also that the fact that the sign on the building showed him to be doing a junk shop business. The court then overruled the motion to quash holding the ordinance to be constitutional, and imposing a fine of $20. An appeal was taken.

UNIQUE COSTUMES

At Masquerade of Wollaston Yacht Club

A private masquerade which was the premier event of its winter season, and one of the most successful of its kind, was held by the Wollaston Yacht club in the club house on Saturday evening.

For unique costumes, variety of character and number attending the gathering probably eclipsed any previous masquerade held in Wollaston. All sorts of individuals were present from the Whatisit which might have come from the wilds of Africa to the Deadbroke couple and the stately figure of Martha Washington.

Much of the evening's success was due to the committee composed of A. J. Podbury, F. F. Taylor and E. S. Woodman who saw that things were kept moving and that everyone had a good time.

Masks were worn for a large part of the evening until in the Portland Fancy, just before intermission to the blast of the cornet and the cry of "Everybody unmask," faces were uncovered. Then the laugh went up, for in everybody's partner he or she discovered just the person they thought it wasn't.

With Frank F. Taylor as master of ceremonies prizes were awarded for the most original costumes. Mrs. J. R. Wyeth received the first ladies' prize, a silver net bag, for her character of Tommy-Grace; while Miss Lillian Hendrickson as a Southern belle took a silver belt buckle as second prize.

The ever-popular Bill Jones with his good impersonation of Nervy Nat of newspaper fame carried off the first prize for the gentlemen. He received a fine fountain pen. The second gentlemen's prize was awarded Ed Sawin as a tramp, and consisted of a gold scarf pin.

As the prizes were awarded each contestant was applauded to the echo, and Mr. Taylor in a fitting speech thanked those present for their interest as manifested by their attendance and costumes.

With good music a fine floor and pleasant partners the evening's enjoyment was complete and all joined in voting it a huge success. The dance orders were elaborate and most suitable for the occasion. Fruit punch was served throughout the evening and light refreshments during intermission.

A partial list of participants and costumes follows:

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Forbes—Mexican senor and Turkish bath lady.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Burrell—French chef and dairy maid.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Richardson as student and Swedish peasant.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Landry as Dr. Pill and Red Cross nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Valentine Dale as Pierrot and colonial dame.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Fuller as the heavenly twins.

DANGER NOT YET OVER IN PARIS

Fall of the Seine Measures but Fifteen Inches

Paris, Jan. 31.—While the most imminent peril is over, the fall of the Seine has only measured 15½ inches. At this rate it would require a fortnight for the river to reach its normal level.

Fortunately, tidings from the flooded sections above Paris give hope of a more rapid subsidence after today.

In the meantime the situation in Paris and in many place throughout the country shows little improvement. Indeed, the ravages of the flood within the city seem actually to increase. The water is higher in some of the streets, while the situation at the inundated towns between Paris and St. Germain is distinctly graver.

A stream of water twelve feet deep rushed through Gennevilliers and Colombes, making the work of rescue and succor more difficult than ever. Several houses collapsed and many persons were taken off the roofs of their houses where they had been clinging for days.

Hundreds are reported without food or shelter, and an army of troops and civilians worked relentlessly in the flooded territory, bringing succor to the distressed and distributing provisions by boats to the thousands of victims surrounded by water who refused to quit their homes.

Within the city itself great throngs of sightseers besiege the cordons of troops which fringe the flooded districts, or climb to points of vantage from which they can survey the wide vistas of water stretching off in every direction.

On account of the danger of cave-ins from the pressure of the turbulent waters beneath, hundreds of points are rigorously guarded.

Although there is no intention on the part of the government to declare martial law, the completely submerged districts, such as Javel, are in the hands of the military, to prevent pillaging. The soldiers have orders to give short shrift to criminals caught in the act of looting.

Thus far there have been no such cases within the city, but the danger is great, as the French usually keep their money and valuables in their homes.

Outside of Paris, however, many deplorable instances of looting have been reported. A regular band of thieves have been at work in the vicinity of Charenton, but the soldiers have been shooting them at sight.

The Zouaves killed two of the pillagers at Ivry and two at Bric. These robbers have now transferred their operations to the devastated regions below Paris, many attempts to pillage the deserted villas and homes being reported.

Besides the aid distributed directly by the government and the municipality, more than $250,000 from the fund raised by the newspapers has been handed over to the various relief societies and the local authorities of the various towns and villages near Paris.

The press refers gratefully to the spontaneous help coming from abroad, and makes particular mention of the evidences of sympathy in the United States.

DR. HALE'S STORY.

About 60 men enjoyed the recital of "The man without a country" at the Y. M. C. A. hall on Sunday afternoon by Edward H. Frye of Boston. It was given in fine dramatic style and held the closest attention of the audience.

QUINCY POST OFFICE.

STRUCK BY ELECTRICS.

A buggy owned and driven by Thomas McMann of Roxbury was struck by an electric car on Hancock street just north of the Atlantic bridge at 9 o'clock Sunday night. The car was going toward Neponset and before the motorman was aware of it the team turned directly in front of the car. The car was moving slowly at the time. The buggy was somewhat smashed but fortunately the car did not hit it hard enough to throw the driver out. The driver, Mr. McMann was uninjured although somewhat shaken up.

NEW HIGH HEADMASTER

Presentation at Reception Given in Plymouth

James D. Howlett, the new head master at the Quincy High school, assumed his duties this morning. On Friday evening the senior class of the Plymouth High school gave him a reception and presented him with an oak desk, chair and desk set. For the present Mr. Howlett will make his home with Emery L. Crane on Whitney road.

WARD TWO ELECTION.

The last day for filing nomination papers of candidates to be voted on at the special election to be held in Ward Two on March 1, is February 16. In order for the registrars to properly certify the names however, the papers should be filed the preceding day. As there is but one candidate to be voted for, voters can sign but one nomination paper, and as at least fifty names are required it is up to prospective candidates to get a move on. Up to the present time no papers have been taken out.

RAILROAD PROSPEROUS.

The report of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. for December shows an increase of $349,610 in freight earning over December 1908, an increase of $169,335 in passenger earnings, and an increase of $594,532 in total revenue. The expenses increased but $6,317. For the last six months of 1909 the increase in net income was $3,066,614, nearly 40 per cent.

TODAY'S COURT.

John McDonald, George Dunn, James Gallagher, were fined $10 each Peter McGrail $15, Archibald Miller, Adam Gordon and Patrick Fallon $3 each for drunkenness at Quincy.

John Noonan was sent to the State farm for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Charles Green was sent to the State farm for being a tramp at Braintree.

Charles Boucher was fined $10 for drunkenness at Milton.

Theo Lillenaoen and James H. Alexander were find $3 each for having chains on their automobiles in the Metropolitan park.

CHILD LABOR BILLS.

Three child labor bills will be the subject of a legislative hearing next Wednesday at 10.30 A. M. before the Committee on Labor, Room 426, State House. These bills are House, No. 329, limiting work for children under sixteen to eight hours a day. House No. 330, prohibiting the employment of children in trades declared dangerous by the State Board of Health and House No. 331, prohibiting the employment of children under sixteen at night.

BRIEFS

Charles Penniman and family are to move from Foster street to the Hall house on Revere road recently occupied by F. D. Fellows.

The Bible Study class of the Wollaston M. E. church will meet Wednesday evening with Miss Ethel Smith of Prospect avenue.

Many friends in this city will be sorry to learn of the sudden death of Frank Field which occurred at Cambridge last Friday.

The cottage prayer meeting at the home of H. J. Grass, 52 Ardell street, Montclair, Tuesday evening, will be led by Deacon George A. Brown.

Wednesday evening, at 7.45 a church social and entertainment will be held in the chapel of the Wollaston Baptist church. Refreshments will be served.

BANQUET OF APPRENTICES

Shipyard Young Men to Have a Grand Time

Arrangements have been completed for the annual banquet Wednesday evening of the Fore River "Apprentices." It will be held at Alpha hall and it promises to be a grand affair. The banquet will be served at 7.45 o'clock by a Boston caterer. Then J. E. Neary the instructor of the school, will introduce George Simpson, chief draughtsman at the works, who will act as toastmaster.

The first speaker will be Mayor Shea, who will respond to the toast, "Relation of apprentices to the community." Other speakers and their toasts will be "The importance of industrial education," by Prof. Charles H. Morse of Cambridge, a former principal of the Rindge school, and now consulting engineer and chief of the electrical department of Cambridge; "Future business of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co.," by General Manager H. G. Smith of the Fore River Co., "Track Athletics" by Thomas Burke, known as Bob Dunbar, sporting editor of the Boston Journal; "Base ball" by Steve Bjorklind, coach of the Fore River Apprentices team; "Apprentices in Japan" by Manuel Perry chief machinist at the Fore River, and one of the men who went to Japan to set up the turbines.

During the evening an orchestra will furnish music and the speaking will be interspersed with a pleasing program that will include a violin and piano duet by DeNeil Bros., clog dancing by Archie Shannon, and probably sleight of hand tricks by Charles Dornan.

The committee having the affair in charge are Bernard Boyle, captain of the base ball team; Leo Howley of the basket ball team; William H. Hackett, of the track team; William Ridge, of the blacksmith shop; George Grossman, of the sheet iron shop; Sam Bird and Arteo Cicconi of the copper shop; Thomas Clinton, of the electrical department; John Keaney, of the ship carpenters; Harry Hayden of the joiners shop; Andrew Chapman and William McCarthy of the machine shop; Charles Killyon of the engineering force; and John Gouthie of the ship fitters department.

The guests of the banquet, in addition to the speakers mentioned, will be several officers of the Fore River Company and former apprentices.

The program of the evening will be in the nature of a pen and ink souvenir. It will be in book form and made to represent a set of specifications. In addition to the names of present and past apprentices, it will contain the menu, committee and drawings of some of the battleships.

WHERE WOMEN GAIN

At Sarkin's of course. We are still fitting the fashionable women of Quincy with Coats, Suits and Skirts that are heart winners, the kind that are always perfect in fashion, fit and finish.

BOARD OF TRADE.

A regular meeting of the Board of Trade will be held Wednesday evening. There will be a discussion on how to provide new houses for the workmen at the Fore River that are expected on account of the recent large contracts on connecting the Quincy shore boulevard and the Furnace brook parkway, and other matters of interest to the city. A lunch will be served after the business meeting.

RUNAWAY.

There was a lively runaway Saturday night. The horse was owned by R. B. Forbes of Milton and started from Milton. The animal ran to Quincy through City Square and up Granite street to West Quincy, then back through South Quincy where he turned about and ran to West Quincy again. He was captured on the parkway. The buggy to which he was attached was smashed somewhat.

—"I believe the river and harbor bill to be reported early in February will be the most comprehensive, businesslike and satisfactory bill ever passed by the rivers and harbors committee. In the words of the President it will be the inaugurator of the new system of inland waterways."—Representative Joseph E. Ransdell president of the national rivers and harbors congress.

BURGLARS AT BRAINTREE

Discovered in House at 5 This Morning

The house of David Healey at East Braintree was entered by burglars early this morning who got away with $3 in money. When the domestic came down stairs at 5 o'clock and turned on the light she was very much surprised to find a man at work in the dining room. She screamed at which the man grabbed her and threw her down. He then took a lot of silver that had been given Mr. and Mrs. Healey as wedding gifts, and tying it in a napkin, and taking the money which was on the sideboard, took his departure. As soon as the man had gone the domestic aroused the family who notified the police. Later the silver was found in the back yard where the man had thrown it. The girl describes the man as being stout and dressed in overhauls, and that he wore a soft hat.

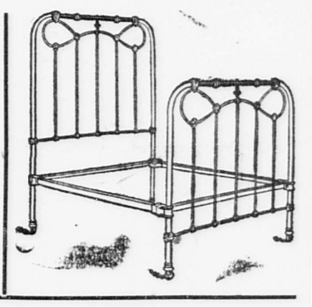
You've Never Seen A Bed Like This



It's a bed that has class to it. Heavy continuous iron posts—no brass knobs to loosen or come off. Nothing to tarnish by handling. A heavy brass rail and brass spindle on head and foot. A graceful beautiful design of bed—made to sell for about $10.00 and worth the price. The factory needed money and we secured for spot cash 100 of these beds at a shamefully low price. For a limited period we will sell them at $4.98. We hope you'll be one of the lucky ones to get one before they're gone.

Free Trial Electric Lighting

As a special inducement to the citizens of Quincy, whose homes or stores have never been wired for electric light, the Quincy Electric Light and Power Company makes the following proposition:

To all who will expend at least twenty dollars ($20) for wiring and fixtures, before January 31st, 1910, the Company will make the service connections, install meter and standard carbon filament lamps without charge, and will also FURNISH FREE twenty dollars ($20) worth of electric current . . .

at regular meter rates to be used before June 30th, 1910, provided the premises can be reached from the present lines of the Company without the setting of additional poles. This concession will go far towards paying the entire cost of wiring the average house.

For further particulars telephone Quincy, 185, between the hours of 8 A. M. and 5 P. M., or fill out and mail to the Company, No. 9 Granite Street, Quincy, the attached coupon.

HONESTY IN EVERYTHING

We do not meat as we pass by.

They cry vegetables, vegetables, when there are no vegetables.

French aviation stock, according to the latest reports from Los Angeles, is flying high.

Tomorrow Edward Payson Weston the pedestrian starts from Los Angeles to return east. He expects to cover the distance to New York in 90 days, as he is in better walking trim than he was on the outward trip. Is there any man in Quincy over seventy who could walk as far as Boston and back, let alone going across the continent?

Owing to labor troubles at Brockton, building has been at a low ebb in the shoe city and few permits for new buildings were granted this month. In Quincy things are different and although it is midwinter Warren Parker, Inspector of Public Buildings reports many permits issued by him and prospects of much greater activity this spring. Good for Quincy.

The Malden News, is commenting upon the agitation in favor of the better lighting of business streets in cities, expresses the belief that the expense should be borne by the municipality and no special taxes levied or contributions taken up among the business men. The News says that the high tax on business property warrants the merchants in demanding better lighted streets.

Lynn merchants can hardly be blamed if they are wrathy because a big supply of beds and mattresses for the almshouse was purchased in Boston. They have grounds for complaint as they were not given a chance to even bid on the contract. Such things should not be, taxpaying merchants should always be considered first and outside parties as a last resort if a city is to prosper. It is up to city official to set the example of everybody trading at home.

Do our people appreciate and take advantage of what is nearest at hand and available? This thought comes to us as we see the Visiting Nurse going on her round of duties among the sick needing her ministrations. This nurse is maintained by the Quincy Women's club and her time all through the day is subject to the call of any local physician. Do our Doctors call upon her when they have patients in need of just such care as she can give yet are unable to afford the services of a nurse? In other towns the services of the Visiting Nurse are so much in demand that she is kept very busy and usually has to have one or two assistants. As this does not seem to be the case in Quincy where a nurse has been maintained for nearly five years the thought comes to us that perhaps our Doctors do not take advantage of the services of the Visiting Nurse and perhaps some patient suffers needlessly. The smoothing up of the pillows, an appetizing bit of broth and the touch of skilful hands means much to a sick person if only for an hour a day.

DRIFT OF OPINION.

The Fore River Shipbuilding Co., of Quincy have received the contract for building the two Dreadnaught battleship for the Argentine Republic, one of which will be sublet to a New York Co. The company is to be congratulated on receiving this wide recognition of its facilities for handling big work. It means a great deal for the city of Quincy and the several thousand skilled mechanics engaged in the work.—Hyde Park Gazette.

The Walker bill for direct nominations has been amended by accepting the provision of the Cushing bill that 10 per cent. of the voters in any district must ask for the referendum, before it can be made to apply to that district. Speaker Walker has accepted the compromise and that assures its passage through the House. The main fight will be in the Senate, where opposition to direct nominations is more pronounced. Direct nominations may not prevail this year, but they will in the end, for the principle is right.—Lynn Item.

Can America assimilate a foreign population continually streaming across the Atlantic? Testimony comes from Philadelphia that she can. One of the most remarkable sights in this country is the attendance of mothers with children in their arms in the Philadelphia night school. These women are all foreign-born and they are so eager to learn English that they go to school after the day's work, taking their babies with them and leaving their husbands to care for other children at home. There are more than 1000 mothers in the Philadelphia night school. The total is growing steadily.—Haverhill Gazette.

It is the opinion of Gov. Hadley, who was interviewed in St. Louis, that the problem of living cost can be solved if each family will keep a cow and some hens. All that is required is some capital, some time to give to taking care of them, and some land. Hens might be kept on roofs of apparment houses if the board of health didn't mind, but the tenement dweller couldn't very well get along without a plot of ground on which to maintain a cow, and a shed would be quite essential in the climate of the United States. Given land and several hundred dollars to start, and the Hadley plan might be a very useful and helpful one. The mass of the dwellers in cities, however, will find that it is not a scheme that is entirely feasible.—Brockton Enterprise.

New Bedford is to be before the legislature with a request for a new charter. It provides for a mayor, a municipal council of six members and a school board of the same number. The mayor is to have a vote in both bodies. All other municipal officers are to be appointed by the municipal council. The mayor is to be chosen for three years, and two aldermen and two members of the school committee each year. The mayor would be paid $3500 a year, and the members of the municipal council $1800 each. The mayor would have no veto.—Chelsea Record.

The people of the United States are up in arms against the prevailing high prices for meats, milk, eggs, vegetables and other necessary food products. The crusade started in Cleveland, Ohio, and is now wide spread. Hundreds of thousands of people are abstaining from the purchase of meat, eggs, etc., and already the trusts in control of these commodities are lowering their unfair and exorbitant prices. The people's boycott is a popular one and the Food Trusts are helpless—they cannot get an injunction to restrain the people from acting in self-defense. If they could, no judge of any court would dare grant one. The people are supreme when they act as a unit. They ride in the car of Juggernaut and woe betide those who cross their path and especially when, as in the present case, their cause is right and just. Economic tyrany must yield to the irresistible power of public opinion. Monopoly's extortionate prices must go. Fair prices must come.—Dedham Transcript.

LABOR LIFTS.

When cooking a chicken or game in the oven roast it in the usual way until nearly browned, then turn back upward and let it remain so until done. This causes the gravy to run into the breast, making it soft and tender.

When peeling potatoes put them in hot water, and you will be able to take the skin off easily. A few drops of camphor added to the water will remove the shining appearance.

Castor oil mixed with an equal amount of tallow or other oil is an excellent dressing for leather. Besides this, neither rats nor other vermin will attack leather so prepared.

The secret of success in baking is always to test the yeast before adding to the flour. Mix the yeast with half a teaspoonful of flour and half a pint of lukewarm water. Good yeast will froth sharply in less than ten minutes.

White of eggs is an excellent dressing for patent leather.

If the tired housekeeper will try cleaning the bathtub with gasoline she will find it to be a great time saver with surprisingly good results.

To keep linoleum, hardwood and stained floors clean cover the broom with soft flannel and moisten with kerosene. Have one broom, and the same cover can be used repeatedly.

Save fuel by burning soup bones or any large bones that always are thrown away. I can keep a good slow fire in the range for five hours on a fifteen cent bone after it has been boiled all day.

METHODISM LOSES ONE OF ITS LEADERS

Bishop Foss Succumbs to an Attack of Paralysis

Philadelphia, Jan. 31.—Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, retired, of the Methodist Episcopal church, one of the best known clergymen in the country, died from paralysis. The bishop was stricken Jan. 18. All his family were at his bedside when he died.

Rt. Rev. Cyrus D. Foss, D. D., LL. D., was one of the conservative bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. Never leading in any one of the radical changes in the "discipline" of the church, he still refrained from obstructive action against the modern liberalism of the denomination which enlarged the priviliges of the laity and gave to women a freedom and voice in legislation and administration never before known.

Renowned as one of the great pulpit orators of Methodism, he was even more conspicuous in the work of education and his ardent support of all missionary effort. He was for five years president of Wesleyan university. He was retired at the general conference of 1904. He was born in Kingston, N. Y., Jan. 17, 1834.

VAHEY AND FOSS AGAIN

Already Slated as Prepared to Run For Office Next Fall

Boston, Jan. 31.—The first gun in the gubernatorial fight will be fired this week when James H. Vahey and Eugene N. Foss will appear before the committee on federal relations at the state house in favor of the income tax amendment.

The income tax amendment was a plank in the Democratic platform last fall, and its disposition by the legislature will undoubtedly have an important effect on the gubernatorial fight.

There is no question but that Vahey will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor this fall and that Foss will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

SURVIVED 6600 VOLTS

Laborer's Desire to Experience an Electric Shock Is Satisfied

Lincoln, N. H., Jan. 31.—While trying to understand what kind of a sensation an electric shock would give him, Givunski Krantxiz, a laborer, aged 33, had a miraculous escape from being electrocuted.

Krantxiz was working near wires charged with 6600 volts. He touched one of the wires with iron he had been working with. His hands and arms were frightfully burned, but he was not fatally hurt.

BURGLAR A MURDERER

Kills a New York Manufacturer and Perhaps Fatally Shoots Son

New York, Jan. 31.—Moses Gutman, a manufacturer, was shot dead in his apartment, and his son, Isaac, a lawyer, 35 years old, was also shot by a burglar.

The elder Gutman heard the burglar forcing open a window and called to him. The intruder rushed at Gutman, and after a brief struggle shot him dead. Isaac, going to his father's aid, was shot in the shoulder and right arm. He may be fatally wounded. The burglar escaped.

Train Takes Four Lives

Mansfield, O., Jan. 31.—Pennsylvania train No. 19 struck and killed Mrs. Roy Covert and fatally injured her husband at a crossing near Loudonville. Proceeding farther the train struck an automobile and killed J. H. Sigler and Charles E. Chelberger.

HALL HELD FOR MURDER

Efforts Being Made to Have Him Punished For False Confession

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 31.—James Hall, self-confessed murderer of Anna Schumacher, was held for the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Sexton of Charlotte, the justice saying that whether Hall's confession was false or not, he would not take the responsibility of discharging him.

A representative of the Monroe county district attorney has gone to Washington and New York, trying to induce the federal authorities to proceed against Hall for fraudulently getting a dishonorable discharge from the United States navy by false confession of the Schumacher murder.

Boost In Price of Bibles

Chicago, Jan. 31.—The price of Bibles will go up on March 1, according to an announcement by a large Bible publishing house. The cause for the advancement is the enforcement of the new tariff on imported leather and paper.

Panama, Jan. 31.—During the past week several Americans have left the isthmus for Nicaragua. It is said that they have gone for the ostensible purpose of joining Estrada's army.

BRIEFS

The three molasses boats Fifi, Miguelito and Giezielo recently launched at the Fore River, left today for Cuba.

The annual meeting of the Wollaston yacht club will be held Tuesday evening at the club house.

A grocery store has been opened on Hancock street near Merrymount park.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club will be held Thursday evening at Colonial hall.

There was just a little fall of snow Sunday evening to remind us that winter is still here.

Quincy's second inauguration day will take place next Monday, at which time the city officials who will look after the business of the city the coming year will take office. There are but few changes in the personnel of the officials of 1909-10.

The Meadow Brook Ice company have their house at Quincy Neck filled and their houses at South Quincy about half full. They were obliged to stop work Saturday as the recent rains had honeycombed the ice. With a few cold days they will probably be able to fill the houses this week.

The annual reunion of St. Mary's parish will be held Tuesday evening at St. Mary's hall, and promises to be a grand social affair. James F. Burke is chairman of the committee of arrangements and he will be assisted by a very large committee. The program will include an entertainment, moving pictures, refreshments and dancing.

MONKEYS DO NOT REASON.

Conclusions of a Scientist Who Has Been Studying Them.

Instinctive imitation is all the monkey has. Inferential imitation is not among his mental equipment. Physiologically he is closely related to the greatest minds the world has ever known, but that is where the wise man stops in his drawing of parallels. Such are the conclusions of Professor W. T. Sheperd of George Washington university. He has had a dozen assorted monkeys caged in the laboratory of the university for months past trying to get from any or all of them what a layman would designate a gleam of intelligence.

These little copies of the human being were invited to do dozens of stunts such as trained animals are taught, but the professor made no effort to compel them to learn them. He simply made conditions such that if they had had any reasoning power they would have been able to figure out a way of doing the desired stunts without any further assistance from him. But not one showed what to the professor would be evidence of the reasoning power. Not one showed capacity to watch the professor do a certain thing and then do it himself because he liked the result.

Not one of them, for instance, was able to trip the lever that released a peanut, although the professor showed them often how he did it. All, however, held forth dirty paws begging for the peanuts. Not one even made what the sharps that study mental phenomena call a trial in error. Altogether they were about as stupid a lot as can well be imagined. But because the professor did not get such results as are claimed by Haggerty, Hobhaus and others who have experimented with monkeys he is not prepared to say the claims of the other comparative psychologists are not well founded. All he can or does say is that he could not obtain the results that came to them.

SAW TOOTHED SCISSORS.

Cut Slippery Material Handily Without Danger of Slipping.

A very handy tool can be made from an old pair of scissors or shears. One blade is cut with a set of saw teeth inclined toward the handle. These teeth hold the material fast and prevent it slipping toward the point of the shears. Rubber sheeting, strips and all kinds of soft packing can be easily cut with square or inclined ends. It matters not in what position the scissors are held, they will cut without slipping.

In using these scissors for rubber and other slippery goods the saw toothed blade should be on the bottom to obtain the best results. Heavy rubber and packing can be cut with less effort, as it is not necessary to hold the scissors against the goods to prevent slipping. The same design of lower blade can be applied to plumbers' and metal workers' shears with a change in the relative positions of the holding and cutting blades.

If the saw toothed blade is kept on the bottom of the goods the edge will be left rough, but by reversing the shears so that the saw teeth come on top the edge is left just as clean as if no teeth were used. The piece cut off, however, is rough on the edge. The scissors can be used to cut paper, cloth or any other material if the saw teeth are kept on top or bottom, according as it is desired to have the smooth edge on the left or the right hand piece cut off.—Scientific American.

AN ESPECIALLY GOOD BREAD RECIPE

ONE TABLESPOONFUL of shortening, one level tablespoonful salt, one-third cup sugar. Add one pint scalding water, then add another pint of cold water.

Let stand until lukewarm and add one yeast cake. STIR "WINGOLD" FLOUR into this with a spoon until it becomes as thick as you can possibly stir it. DO NOT KNEAD IT, as this is all the mixing it requires.

After Sponge has risen, KNEAD DOWN and let rise again. Then place on board, mold into loaves, and place in pans. Let rise until level with top of pan. Bake in moderate oven.

This recipe insures four perfect loaves.

N. B.—Bread made with water keeps moist longer than if made with milk.

"WINGOLD" is the finest flour sold anywhere at any price.

Grocers say the demand for "WINGOLD" is steadily increasing.

GLOVER WILL CASE COMES UP IN COURT

Expected to Throw Light on Waltham Murder Mystery

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 31.—The opening hearing in the contest of the will of Clarence F. Glover, the murdered Waltham laundryman, which begun in the probate court, is expected to bring to light evidence which may go a long way toward solving the mystery for which Hattie Le Blanc is now held in jail.

Attorneys for Albert R. Glover and three brothers and a sister not mentioned in the will have already brought proceedings seeking to have Hattie Le Blanc testify.

By the terms of the will, which has been probated, three-quarters of the dead man's estate goes to his wife and the other quarter is left to Seymour Glover, a brother.

Albert Glover declares that the probated will was typewritten, all but the date of execution, which was filled in by the hand of a person other than Clarence F. Glover.

BIG HOUSE COLLAPSES

Was In Process of Construction and Nobody Is Injured

Boston, Jan. 31.—With a roar that resounded for blocks, one-half of the three-story brick double apartment house at 23 Grove street, Roxbury, near Blue Hill avenue, crashed to the ground, filling the street in front and a vacant lot by its side with broken timbers, brick and stone. This house was in process of erection and no one was injured.

The building was designed for twelve suites and was constructed of brick, with granite trimmings. It was owned by Peter B. Segel.

The building was fairly well along toward completion, the outside structure being finished and the roof on.

SUNDAY IN THE CHURCHES

Evangelistic Meetings of the Presbyterians Continue

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN.

The First Presbyterian church was crowded to the doors on Sunday, at the Evangelistic services conducted by Rev. C. T. Schaeffer. At the evening service many extra chairs were used. The services will be continued each evening this week, but there will be only three afternoon services for children.

SWEDISH CONGREGATIONAL.

The series of five Sunday evening sermons on "The Unfortunates of the Bible" closed Sunday and has been of great interest to church members and outsiders alike. Rev. G. W. Palingren the pastor, and the church as a whole feel very much pleased with the results.

The sermon on "Judas" was listened to by a congregation that crowded the church to the doors, and in the evening the edifice was well filled with those who went to hear the closing address. In one word, the interest manifested has increased steadily during the entire month.

As these sermons have all been of an evangelistic character, with the object of conversions in view, several have accepted Christ during the month. Special singing under the able leadership of the choirmaster, John S. Anderson, has added greatly to the worth and success of these meetings. At Sunday evening's service the pastor sang "My Lord and I" from "Alexander's Hymns," which he had translated into Swedish.

The subjects treated were as follows: Jan. 2, "Cain"; Jan. 9, "Esau"; Jan. 16 "Saul"; Jan. 23, "Judas"; Jan. 30, "Demas." Five hundred invitation cards have been distributed broadcast throughout the city, and as stated the invitation has been responded to by large numbers.

BETHANY CONGREGATIONAL.

Rev. Robert H. Cochrane, the popular pastor of the Union church of Braintree and Weymouth, preached Sunday morning in exchange with Rev. Dr. Hardy, taking his text from St. Marks 5:30. He spoke of people who touched Jesus, and people whom Jesus touched, and held up before the large congregation the generous self giving of Jesus. His illustrations were largely from personal experiences. We are nearest Christ he said, when we give unsparingly. He urged all to get into the work and help the church. No sacrifice for God is ever lost. The music at the service included an anthem, hymns and a solo by Mrs. E. S. Moore.

In the evening at 7.30 a lecture on "Christ the light of the World" was illustrated by fifty or more lantern photographs of the great masterpieces of art.

The Christian Endeavor Society will have charge of the service next Sunday evening at Bethany church and announce a "Decision Day." Rev. Samuel Lindsay, the evengelist will give the address. It is expected that a goodly number will take their stand on the Lord's side.

AT ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S.

Rev. Albert Edwin Clattenburg took for his text Sunday morning: St. Matthew 6:6 "But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door, pray to thy Father which is in secret; and thy Father which seeth in secret will reward thee openly."

The sermon on the Mount was a series of instructions for individual Christians. If it is taken as such all the time people will not fall into error when the actions of bodies of Christians are considered. The same rules apply for personal action of Christians all the time, and no matter where the Christians be. But bodies of Christians may change unimportant detail at times in order that all things connected with the service of Christians may be done in decency and in order.

Often you hear people objecting to "prayers from a book." The printed ritual of a service seems to them an objectionable thing, especially the printed prayers. Let us see how this objection can be met. One could say that every body of Christians has some part of its Ritual printed in a book. That is a beginning. The prayers are the pet aversion, they should be the expression of the man making them. Turn back to our text and you find that the Blessed Master of men asked every Christian to pray to God in secret.

If every Christian follows out this command, why do we need one man's individual prayers when a large body of Christians have gathered together in a house set apart for God's use, and for common worship? Is it not more fitting and more in keeping with the humility that Christ taught to use at such times the devout prayers of the historic Church? Prayers that have come down to use from the lips of proven saints? That all done in common worship may be done "in decency and in order." The preacher has opportunity enough to speak with stammering lips without giving him this greater opportunity. And, if some people think that ancient and incense-laden prayers are not enough, the Church, thru its Bishop, may set forth prayers to be used in common and in private worship.

At the evening service the subject of the rector's address was "The teaching of Christ."

HALL PLACE M. E.

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." John 17: 20-21, was the text of the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. Carl H. Raupach at the Hall Place M. E. church. Sunday school was held at 11.45 with a fair attendance. The Junior League was held at 3 P. M. The Epworth League at 6.15 was led by Miss M. E. Hodgkinson, the topic being "The New Acts of the Apostles." At the evening service the pastor preached on "The Philosophy of Salvation," te text being "He hath made us accepted in the beloved; in whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins according to theriches of his grace." Eph. 1: 6-7.

WOLLASTON UNITARIAN.

Just twenty-two years ago today our church was organized. Surely God has prospered his church. Starting with a handful of most loyal people who were determined that a liberal church the one thing needful in Wollaston, should be founded, the society has grown until today it has 270 members, a splendid property all paid for, and an active progressive and forward looking constituency.

At the annual business meeting the president, Dr. C. S. Adams, in a very graceful manner welcomed to the membership of our Society twenty-nine new members, including: Mr. and Mrs. George B. Damon, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Damon, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Williams Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bense, Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Munroe, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Babcock, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Zerega, Mrs. Martha C. Aitken, Mr. and Mrs. Carleton Adams Gifford, Mrs. Richard D. Jacobs, Rev. and Mrs. Carl G. Horst, Mrs. E. T. Turner, Mrs. R. D. Hall, Ernest S. Merrill, Herbert W. Percival and John Norrie.

Wednesday evening, Feb. 2 the Rev. Joel H. Metcalf of Taunton who is not only a good preacher but also an astronomer of considerable repute, will give a lecture under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Alliance on "Astronomy" illustrated by stereopticon.

There will be a children's dance in Brazee's hall Friday, Feb. 4 from 4 to 6.

A beautiful custom is growing up in our church, namely for members to supply flowers for the pulpit in memory of some dear one, and then distribute them among the friends of the one remembered. The beautiful calla lilies last Sunday were the gift of Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, as a memorial to her father on his birthday, and later were sent to old friends of Mr. Faunce.

To all who enjoy the blessing of a quiet hour we recommend the half-hour noon day services every Wednesday in King's Chapel the organ recitals in the Arlington Street church every Wednesday at 4.30 P. M. and the vespers in the First Church of Boston every Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Sunday evening, Feb. 6, Dr. Harris Kennedy of Dorchester will give an illustrated lecture on Japan before the Young People's Religious Union.

Rev. Carl G. Horst attended the sessions of the Ministerial Union in Boston today.

The next vespers will be held Sunday, Feb. 13, at 4.30 o'clock, and several musical selections will be rendered by a Boston Male Quartet. Remember the date, Feb. 13.

The "Unitarian Church Helpers" will give a play in the vestry Wednesday, Feb. 9.

FORTY-TWO NEW MEMBERS

As a Result of the Y. M. C. A. Campaign

The first part of the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign finished as planned with a supper for all workers and new members as well, on Saturday evening. While the desired goal was not reached, no one felt that the effort was a failure as several times as many men have been pledged to join within a few weeks as actually did join. A total of 42 new members were received in the six days, which after all is said and done isn't so bad, when the season is considered; the fact that the swimming pool, which is the special drawing card, isn't yet finished; and that this has to be a "money down" deal.

It was decided unanimously to continue the effort through the month of February allowing the same liberal terms; namely an extra month's privilege(dating tickets March 1 instead of February 1, as would naturally be the case.

The ten teams which worked during the six days' effort are being combined into two teams under the leadership of the two leading captains, Harry Brooks and Delcevare King. It is expected that the 200 members will be secured before the effort closes, which will not be now until the swimming pool is fully completed. Let the new members come along and so get the advantage of this month of activity.

—An exhibit of South Framingham's total of $1,185,000 forged town notes should in itself be sufficient to secure immediate pasage of the proposed bill to secure registration and certification of town notes everywhere in Massachusetts in the future. The collection is the most extraordinary showing of combined laxness and rascality on record in the state—Boston Record.

AN ADVISORY BOARD

Elected by the Quincy Y. M. C. A. Directors

An adjourned meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held last Saturday evening at the association building and the following gentlemen were elected to the advisory board:

Joseph A. Dasha.
H. M. Faxon.
Thomas Fenno.
George W. Gragg.
Charles A. Hobart.
Dr. D. B. Reardon.

This action is in accordance with a vote of the Quincy Association at a meeting held in December, creating an advisory board, which will consist of the above named gentlemen, acting with the regular board of directors.

This action does not change the association relation with the International and State bodies, but it does give to the association the advantage of the advice and cooperation of able business men who have an earnest interest in the welfare of the youth of the community.

—A house decorator gives this important advice to women who are arranging their homes. They should not hang curtains of one color against a wallpaper of another color. They should not join carpets of opposite colors. They should not put different papers on the walls of adjoining rooms which have wide archways or folding doors between. These are simple suggestions, but they mean a great deal. The woman who is guided by them will arrive at much better results than she who ignores them. When it is not possible to have the carpets alike in rooms that are joined by wide openings a rug should be laid over the long seam to hide it.

Words For Women.

A bachelor is a man who either has too much sense to marry or not enough.

The wise man keeps his temper even when he is getting the worst of it.

A man will confess to one bad habit for the purpose of hiding a dozen others.

You can estimate the value of your reputation by trying to induce a pawnbroker to advance you something on it.

A woman never realizes how awkward her husband is until he attempts to pass things to guests at the dinner table.

WHERE THE ENGLISH LOST

When Bids Were Asked for Complete Battleships

The Boston Transcript says editorially:

"Two aspects of the award of the contract for the Argentine battleships to an American firm are of especial importance, both for what they signify affirmatively, and for the things which they may be twisted into an appearance of supporting.

"No argument for a ship subsidy can rationally be extracted from the facts as to price. The competition between the bidders was of unprecedented sharpness, and the Argentine Government seems to have taken the utmost possible advantage of the international rivalry for its money. The result is highly creditable to the successful American bidder. The cost of materials and labor such as enter into the building of merchant ships is lower in England than here and this initial advantage is backed by the fact that the English build each year many ships of substantially the same pattern. The consequence of this repetition of tasks is that the construction of steel merchant ships has been reduced to a manufacturing routine. Mechanics and foremen know just what to do; they cause no waste of time or material by having to learn how to do the work. The price of steel merchant ships accordingly ranges from thirty-five to forty per cent lower in England than here.

American mechanics seem to have a larger output per man than the English workers, and American mechanical processes in the shipbuilding trades appear to be rather more efficient than the English; but even with these advantages added to the economy which would result if our shipyard forces had the training of repeating ships from substantially the same pattern, competent judges hold that there would still be an advantage in price of from fifteen to twenty per cent in favor of the English builders.

"With completely equipped battleships the case is different for two reasons. Battleships are a specialized product, in which there is no routine of construction to produce economies and in the matter of guns and armor plate English prices are higher than American prices. The English builder loses the benefit of routine, and is at such a disadvantage in the cost of guns and armor that the Fore River Company was able to underbid its English competitors. If the competition had been for building merely the hulls of the Argentine ships, without guns or armor, the American bidders could not make a profit out of buildings them at the English prices.

In design, the Argentine ships show a marked superiority over all official designs of the American Navy in the large proportion of bow and stern fire to broadside fire. In all essentials, the arrangement of the main battery of the Argentine ships is that proposed by the Fore River company in its first design. American naval architects can thus make an extremely good design when they have to meet foreign designers in a strictly commercial competition. Their success emphasizes one of the greatest needs of the American Navy, the unrestricted competition of American designers with the purpose of producing the best practicable design for warships ,and with the certainty that this best design, when developed, will be adopted by the Navy Department.

—Although we often speak of the Age of Chivalry as gone forever, it is decidedly refreshing to dwell upon the fact that chivalrous men and women are still with us. Under the rough garments of our street workers beat hearts that are true to the finer sense of brotherhood. Real heroes but not clad in shining helmet or glittering mail. As we read of the deeds of bravery, sacrifice, and self-effacement on the part of men, women and even children, which have received the commendation of the Carnegie commission, it is with a sense of satisfaction in the soundness and ultimate worth of human nature. Underneath the more selfish and unpleasant features so constantly on the surface, we find deeper down the spirit of magnanimous regard for others, of brotherhood and sodality.—Framingham News.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

In observance of the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rowe of Winthrop avenue were agreeably surprised on Saturday evening by a large party of Wollaston friends. Among those present were many members of the new society known as the Unitarian Church-Helpers, of which Mrs. Rowe is president, together with their husbands. On behalf of this society the vice president, Mrs. Charles E. Monroe, in a fitting speech, presented the couple with a cut glass fern dish. Cards were enjoyed until a late hour.

TO REVISE HOUSE RULES

Resolution With That End In View Is Fathered by Champ Clark

Washington, Jan. 31.—The many-angled fight in the house of representatives over the question of revising the rules of that body took a new turn and assumed additional importance when Representative Champ Clark (Mo.), the leader of the minority, introduced a resolution providing for the election by the house of a new rules committee of fifteen members. Special significance attaches to the Clark resolution, because Clark is himself a member of the present rules committee.

CHAMP CLARK.

Provision is made in the resolution to "revise, amend, simplify and codify the present rules of the house and report to the house at the earliest day practicable."

Whether a majority of the house can be mustered to amend the rules at this time is a question which cannot be answered. The Republican insurgents are expected to support the Clark resolution with one or two exceptions.

5000 MURDERS THIS YEAR

Professor White Says Our Greatest Peril Is the Wave of Crime

Ithaca, N. Y., Jan. 31.—That this country's greatest peril is the crime wave that has recently swept over the land, and that unless some strenuous measures are taken more than 5000 persons will be murdered during the coming year, is the belief of Professor Andrew D. White, first president of Cornell and former ambassador to Germany.

In an interview he made these statements, and declared that his belief was the result of eight years' study and thought.

Naval Station Quarantined

CONSERVATION OF FORESTS

Matter of Life and Death With New England States

Detroit, Jan. 31.—Curtis Guild, Jr., ex-governor of Massachusetts, now president of the National Forestry association, while a guest of the Detroit Sons of the American Revolution, paid his respects to Speaker Cannon on his attitude toward the Appalachian forest reserve affair and accused him of being responsible for all the trouble.

"The question of conserving our forests is not a political one," said Guild. "It is as broad as the nation, affecting our children's happiness as well as our own.

"The one great force that has done more than any other to blight the efforts of forestry is Joseph G. Cannon, stand-patter, reactionary, unprogressive and opposed to every conservation scheme that does not further his own narrow interests. It was he whose opposition to the Appalachian forest reserve bill caused all the trouble.

"Consider the injustice of it all. Forest conservation is a matter of life and death with the New England states. With you here in Michigan it is grave enough, but it is all a question of timber. With us it goes much further and far deeper. With our mountains denuded of the trees that make possible an even water supply the year around, we have freshets in the spring and drouths in the summer, when the rivers dry up to the very center of their beds.

"In Massachusetts, for instance, we lay no claim to being an agricultural state, but our agricultural products amount to $70,000,000 a year, and we haven't enough water for this any more than we have to feed our stock to enable us to comply with our very strict regulations.

"More paper is made in Holyoke than any other place in the world. We have not enough water to run the mills, nor enough to wash the rags of which the paper is made. Now no state is rich enough to do this colossal work for itself. Certainly poor New Hampshire has got all it can do to manage to get along.

"The Boston customs, next to New York, add more to the national revenue than any place in the country, and we are glad that some of this shall be applied to irrigation for the west and for the improvement of the waterways of the middle west, because there is no forgetting for a moment that we are one nation bound by common ties and interests.

"But New England wants her share. We want to conserve our forces and we want to be helped just as we are glad and eager that others shall be helped. Mr. Cannon says the Appalachian forest reserve bill is unconstitutional. Of course, that is absurd on the face of it and no one takes any stock in it, but I'd just like to ask why, if it is constitutional to spend national revenue to which New England contributes for the maintenance of forest reserves in California, why it is not constitutional to spend it for the acquisition of forest reserves on the Atlantic slopes?"

Return With Wage Question Unsettled

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—The switchmen of the northwest, who have been on strike since Nov. 30, are about to resume work with the wage question unsettled, but they will be governed by the figures agreed upon in the Chicago compromise conference.

QUINCY MUSIC HALL

THE HIGHEST CLASS OF LICENSE—A THEATRE LICENSE, is now issued to Music Hall. Last year the fire exits and facilities for fire prevention were ample for a Hall License, but to obtain the present highest class of License, the whole main exit has been torn down and made absolutely fire-proof, large automatic smoke and fire vents have been constructed over the stage, all scenery has been made fire-proof, and the previous generous exit facilities have been very greatly increased. There are now ten (10) doors opening from the Hall, and six (6) separate exits, 2 of 8 feet each, 1 of 7 1-2 feet, 2 of 5 feet each, and 1 of 3 1-2 feet, a total of 37 feet of exit. All exits are lighted continually by both gas and electricity There is an asbestos curtain, just specially rehung, by which the stage can be instantly cut off from the Hall proper. There are chemical fire extinguishers, and fire pails throughout the Hall.

The Location is in the heart of the city. The street cars with double tracks pass the door.

The Elaborate, Permanent Decorations which have recently been put up are most attractive, and add much to the appearance of the Hall.

The Electric Light Festoon over the entrance way, flashing first red, then white, is a unique feature of much value.

The Moonlight Effect obtained by having the electric light come through Japanese lanterns is a pleasing novelty.

The Floor is of selected maple laid with the greatest care, and is kept in perfect condition, being covered with canvas when not used for dancing.

The Ventilation—a most important consideration—is such as to keep the air pure with even a crowded Hall.

The Hall is Lighted by electricity, brilliantly and pleasantly, and with a switchboard arranged so that all desired effects can be obtained in the Hall proper or on the stage. Gas is used as an auxiliary light.

The Heating is direct—indirect, ample, and giving the most healthful results.

The Stage has been designed with care, and is furnished with a particularly generous supply of attractive and appropriate scenery.

For Advertising, the Music Hall Billboards are valuable.

To Darken the Hall, there are special window fittings so that at noonday the Hall can be made as dark as at midnight.

As a whole, Quincy Music Hall has been carefully planned to meet the requirements of those who wish an absolutely safe and large and really first class Hall.

MEAT BUYERS STAY AT HOME

Boston Dealers Realize That Boycott Is on In Earnest

Boston, Jan. 31.—To whatever it was due, there was a very noticeable falling off in the volume of business of meat and provision dealers in and about the big markets in Boston Saturday evening.

Members of the No Meat clubs claimed that the boycott was on in dead earnest and that this explained the depression in business. Marketmen said bad weather was responsible for the falling off in their business.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock, the latter the closing hour of the big markets, one could almost acquire the lonesome feeling while walking through the two big markets, and the lack of the usual throng of Saturday night shoppers in the streets of the market district was very noticeable. There was none of the crowding and squeezing there, as is usually the case.

The few patrons who were abroad, however, might well have imagined they were in Salem street in the old days of the "pullers-in." In those days they almost tore the clothes from the back of a man who dared pass through the street in their anxiety to get him into their shops and to sell him something.

This was due to the fact that salesmen in even the two big markets were unusually ambitious to make sales, and anyone who faltered or seemed interested in a piece of meat was "barked at" and in some instances dragged into stalls by the anxious butchers, who showed them choice cuts of beef at prices which in some isolated instances were alluring. Competition was admittedly sharper in the two big markets and, for that matter, in the streets, than it has been in a long time before.

As a matter of fact there was no appreciable cut in prices of choice meats, but there was plenty of cheap cuts of beef of all kinds at lower figures. But such cuts were dear at almost any price, for they were the pieces of beef which, if not sold Saturday night and cooked and eaten at once, would in the course of events be consigned to the brine barrels or the waste boxes.

A vegetable dealer said he could surely appreciate the falling off in business all along the line. He said: "Of course we are looking after our own interests here. We are not selling beef and the boycott is not against us, but we, nevertheless, are feeling the depression in the usual Saturday night business."

Pedestrians found walking in the streets and sidewalks of the usually thronged market district very comfortable because of the absence of Saturday night shoppers, and this fact alone seemed to make it apparent that the boycott spirit was general and had kept the people at home for the sole purpose of making an impression on the minds of the beef men who have been holding the high prices.

While the meat men held to their usual high prices quite firmly, because each was afraid to have the other see him be the first to fall before the will of the people, there was an array of small sidewalk dealers who slashed prices in all directions in the effort to get rid of their stock.

AT WAR OVER NOTES

Town and Bank Trying to Shift Burden of Hall's Deal

Southbridge, Mass., Jan. 31.—A dispute between the town of Southbridge and the Southbridge Savings bank over the question as to whether the town or the bank shall be the one to bear the loss of $21,000 on the two notes that figure in the larceny charge against John A. Hall, the former treasurer of the bank, now under $50,- bail, seems to be impending.

Developments tend to show that both the bank and the town will seek to shift the burden, each from its own to the other's shoulders.

"The town must reimburse us for the $21,000 represented by the notes," says President Paige of the bank. "The bank must pay the town $21,- 000," say the selectmen.

The notes believed to have been issued by Hall in his capacity as town treasurer and paid by him in his role of bank treasurer are in sums of $20,- 000 and $1000 respectively.

BLACK HAND CONVICTIONS

Several Members of Ohio Band Receive Sentences to Prison

Toledo, O., Jan. 31.—Heavy penalties were imposed by Judge Taylor, in the federal court, upon principal members of the Ohio band of Black Hands found guilty of conspiracy and using the mails to extort money from Italians living in Ohio and Indiana. The jury reported after a trial lasting eight days.

Salvatore Lima, chief of the band, was sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment; Sebastian Lima, his brother, and Giuseppe Ignoffo, his brother-in-law, were sentenced to ten years each.

All of the fourteen defendants were found guilty, but the court granted new trials to three men. The others were sentenced to from two to six years each.

MT. M'KINLEY NEXT

Miss Peck May Try to Scale North America's Highest Peak

New York, Jan. 31.—Miss Annie Peck, who holds the mountain climbing championship, wants to climb again. This time her ambitions lie in the direction of Mt. McKinley, the highest point in North America, which Dr. Cook claimed to have surmounted.

At the present time Miss Peck is living in a hotel on Eleventh street. She has reached the summit of the Matterhorn and also ascended Mt. Popocatepetl and Orizaba. Her heart's desire is now Mt. McKinley.

MUST HAVE $2000 INCOME

Intended Bridegrooms Cannot Otherwise Be Married by Mr. Gibson

Pittsburg, Jan. 31.—Rev. Wright Gibson, pastor of McKees Rocks United Presbyterian church, notified his congregation that until the high price of the actual necessities of life are reduced to a reasonable figure he absolutely refuses to perform a marriage ceremony unless the intended bridegroom is able to prove he has an income of at least $2000 a year.

Mr. Gibson is minister of a church where very few parishioners have the income required by him.

Eight-Year Chess Game Ends

New York, Jan. 31.—The longest chess tournament on record was concluded when Gaston G. Netter won the last game of a 1000-game match, begun in April, 1902, from Emile Stehli. Netter is a Frenchman and Stehli a Swiss. They have played at the same table in a downtown hotel every day.

CONGRESS HOLDS UP TAFT'S MEASURES

"White House Schedule" Meets With Strong Opposition

Washington, Jan. 31.—Little headway has been made in the two months congress has been in session toward the enactment of important legislation demanded by President Taft, yet on every side are heard predictions of an early adjournment.

The question is one which congressional leaders admit is giving them deep concern. The absence of unanimity as to almost all of the president's measures is such as to make exceedingly difficult the work mapped out for those who have the bills in charge.

Bills to create a court of commerce and amend the railroad rate laws, to establish postal savings banks, to validate withdrawals of public lands wanted for conservation purposes and to legalize national charters for corporations doing interstate business, which have been placed at the head of the "White House schedule," have all met with determined opposition.

From a political point of view Republican waters seemingly are becoming muddled by several investigations which are in progress, and the minority members appear not unwilling to let this procedure continue indefinitely.

NEGROES MAY RULE CUBA

Talk of Forming Political Party as Result of Racial Row

Havana, Jan. 31.—Fears of a race conflict, growing out of the recent refusal of the management of an American hotel to entertain negroes, have for the present abated. The tense feeling, however, has served to revive a great negro party for the purpose of controlling the government.

In urging the negroes to take some such action The Prevision, the organ of the race, has printed the newly instructed platform of the Independent Party of Color, which has hitherto lacked aggressiveness.

To what extent the promoters of the new movement may be successful remains to be seen, but there can be no manner of doubt that if the organization of the colored race as a political club should ever be effected it would rule the republic of Cuba.

KELLEY GOES TO PRISON

Sentence of Smuggler Whose Case Is of International Interest

Portland, Me., Jan. 31.—William J. Kelley of Richmond, N. B., the smuggler for whom the federal officials waited seven years, was sentenced to serve fourteen years in the federal prison at Atlanta by Judge Hale in the United States court. Counsel recently forwarded the evidence in the case with an appeal to Washington that Kelley was on Canadian territory when captured, but no word has been received here to defer sentence.

Ten years of the sentence were for an attack on Deputy Collector Burns, near Houlton, on the night of April 17, 1902, when Burns was pounded over the head with a sled stake and left in the road for dead. The remaining four years were for smuggling.

FACING GRUESOME ORDEAL

Cherry's Dead Miners to Be Removed From Death Pit This Week

Cherry, Ills., Jan. 31.—This little coal mining town is steeling itself to undergo the ordeal of exhumation which is expected this week after the promised unsealing of the St. Paul mine, in which the bodies of more than 200 coal miners have been entombed since Nov. 13, when fire caused the death of some 350 men.

If conditions are propitious, the fan will be started to supply fresh air. Also any smouldering fire will have to be extinguished and 2,000,000 gallons of water be pumped from the third level.

AWAITING STORK'S ARRIVAL

Dutch People Hope That Queen Will Be Blessed With a Son

The Hague, Jan. 31.—Queen Wilhelmina bids fair to make her subjects the happiest people in the world; again there is hope of an heir to the throne of Holland; again the Dutch folk are looking eagerly forward to soon having a little edition of the queen's husband for a future king.

The faithful people of Holland are devotedly attached to Princess Juliana, but it is of the most vital importance that the queen should give them a prince who will one day be their king.

Death of Oldest Actress

Providence, Jan. 31.—Mrs. A. L. M. Mann, a widely known actress for more than half a century, died at her home here of apoplexy, aged 80. She was commonly called the oldest American actress. A daughter and two sisters survive. Mrs. Mann was born in this city.

Two Loads of Beer Seized

Wakefield, Mass., Jan. 31.—Two wagon loads of beer were seized during four liquor raids made by the local police early Sunday morning. The raids were participated in by every member of the department.

CHURCH HISTORY.

The one hundredth anniversary of the founding of a church is an event of great historic importance and should be observed with fitting services of recognition. The centennial anniversary of the founding of the Union Congregational church of Weymouth and Braintree approaches, but there seems to be some doubt in the minds of the church authorities what is the proper date to celebrate, as the following historical data, furnished by John J. Loud, Esq., president of the Weymouth Historical society shows:

"Impressed with the importance and advantage of erecting a meeting house at or near Weymouth Landing, and collecting and establishing a Congregational church," forty-three (43) persons associated themselves by an instrument dated March 13, 1810.

The associates met upon that date (March 13, 1810) and voted to buy the meeting house about to be taken down in Hollis street, Boston. On March 21st, 1810, "the purchase being effected, it was voted to erect their meeting house."

"The frame of the meeting house was raised, May 10, 1810. The meeting house was opened for public worship "on Lord's day Nov. 10, 1810." So far there was no incorporated society ,or parish, and no organized church.

"The Union Religious society in the towns of Weymouth and Braintree" was established by Act of the legislature, February 1811.

On August 2, 1811, several persons, who belonged to the Union Religious society in the towns of Weymouth and Braintree—that is the parish—but were "members of different churches" met to consider steps to be taken to form and establish a church in the said society.

This church—our church—was organized by council Aug. 14 1811.

"What shall we celebrate?" asks the president o fthe Hisorical society. "The informal association of March 13, 1810—Raising the frame of the church May 10, 1810—The First service in the church Nov. 10, 1810—The incorporation of the parish, Feb. 1811—or the organization of the church, Aug. 14, 1811?

Here is a chance for centennial anniversaries on March 13, 1910—March 21, 1910—May 10, 1910—Feb. 1911 and Nov. 10, 1910, and Aug. 14, 1911.

At the annual parish meeting held last Tuesday evening, Jan. 25th, John J. Loud and Charles T. Crane were chosen a committee to act with the pastor of the church in taking such action as seemed advisable about holding centennial anniversary services. As the first anniversary date falls on Sunday, March 13, 1910 there will be fitting commemoration services held at that time.

The Ladies' Benevolent society will meet next Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 2d, at 2.30 o'clock in the church parlor.

The monthly supper of the Social club will be held in the banquet room of the church next Wednesday evening Feb. 2d, at 6.30 o'clock. After the supper there will be an illustrated lecture by the Rev. Roy B. Guild of Boston on "The Man from Italy." It will be a most graphic and interesting presentation of the "immigration problem" by an expert who has given it careful study. Mr. Guild is a very bright and interesting speaker. No admission fee is charged to this lecture and no collection is to be taken. Everybody interested is welcome.

Next Sunday morning Jan. 30th, Rev. Edwin N. Hardy, Ph. D., of Quincy, the pastor of the Bethany church, will exchange pulpits with the pastor of the Union church. The presence of Dr. Hardy in the Weymouth and Braintree church pulpit ought to assure a large congregation.

ADVERTISE.

AN UP-TO-DATE DRUGGIST
says it is surprising how many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old time-tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy, nothing equaling our grandmothers' "sage tea" has ever been discovered. Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer. Nowadays when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. This preparation is sold by all leading druggists for 50 cents and $1 a bottle, or is sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

BRIEFS

Frank Baker, business manager and treasurer of the Boston Traveler has leased the house at the corner of Merrymount road and Putnam street owned and formerly occupied by A. W. Parker. Mr. Baker comes here from Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carmen hold a whist party in Protection hall this evening.

Miss Susan McRitchie of Calidonian avenue, South Quincy, is the week end guest of friends in Milford, N. H.

Word has been received in Quincy of the death in Medfield on Sunday of Charles E. Hardwick, formerly of Quincy. He is a son of George H. Hardwick of Pearl street.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Granite Railway Co., held this morning the following officers were chosen: President, Henry M. Faxon; vice president, Charles E. Morey; directors, Henry M. Faxon, Charles E. Morey, Stillman P. Williams, Henry H. Kimball and Luther S. Anderson; clerk and treasurer, Luther S. Anderson.

The jury list for 1910 has been posted by the Registrars of Voters.

The annual ball of the local Jewish society will be held Tuesday evening.

The Sons of Veterans expect a visit from Division Commander Warren and Divison Secretary Strattard on Friday evening when they will initiate fifteen candidates.

The womans home missionary circle connected with the Universalist church will meet with Mrs. George E. Sprague of Washington street Saturday afternoon instead of Tuesday when Mrs. L. W. Attwood of South Weymouth will speak to the members.

Tabernacle services are now held Sunday afternoons and evenings in one of the stores in the Kincaide block.

Quincy is happy over the securing of the contracts to build two Dreadnoughts for a foreign country. Such a sum of money spent in a couple of years will materially help business in that section.—Plymouth Memorial.

☞ Capt. Robert A Bartlett who has been secured to give an illustrated address in Quincy Feb. 10, appeared before the Boston City club on Thursday evening. A Boston paper says: "Capt. Bartlett, with his quaint humor placed himself at once on the friendliest terms with his audience. His discription of the details of the voyage to the North Pole were listened to with utmost interest and uproarious laughter was frequently evoked by his impromptu sallies relative to odd things in the domestic habits of whites and Eskimos in the Arctic."

COTTAGE BURNED

A'most Destroyed Before Alarm Was Given

A new unoccupied house on Pawsey end of Rock Island was completely destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock Sunday morning. Just how the fire started is a mystery but it must have been burning some time before discovered. Victor Jarvis, the lamp lighter at Houghs Neck, while on Manet avenue, saw the fire and hastened to the fire station and notified the firemen. About the same time Officer Thorne, who was on duty at Quincy Point, also saw it and notified the police station who in turn notified the central station at Quincy. By the ttime the department arrived the building was practically destroyed. The building was of wood with a cement outside and was owned by A. L. Griswood. The loss is estimated at $1,000.

NEW SAW FOR GRANITE

Will Do Work Quicker Than Old Gang Saw

Elroy A. Chase of Northfield, Vt., is the inventor of a new granite cutting saw, which is said to be a wonder and which will soon supersede the present saw now used in the business, inasmuch as the new invention will saw as much granite in one hour as the old gang saw will do in six or eight hours, says the Barre Times. The invention was tried out at the Webb Granite company's plant in Worcester, Mass., this week ,and according to the Worcester Telegram, worked splendidly.

The most important feature of the new saw is that it is composed of a series of nine blades, which are set in swinging heads that are set one be hind the other and move through the granite in rotation. Te first blade cuts ten inches an dthe last cuts four feet deep into the stone. The cut in the stone is made up of a series of arcs, each arc going deeper into the stone from the top to the bottom on an incline.

Another feature of the new saw is that it can be used on any stone not over four feet deep, and with a different set of heads it could be used for bigger stones. Stones will not have to be quarried for the saw either. The new saw also cuts a smoother surface than the old machine.

BRIEFS

A whist party will be held at Poland's hall, Norfolk Downs on Thursday evening under the auspices of N. E. O. P.

Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Hanson of Barre, Vt., have taken up their residence in Quincy.

Reports from other churches which arrived late will appear in the Daily Ledger of Tuesday. All letters should reach the office before 9 A. M., and earlier if possible.

—The petition of Messer Bros., to build a granite shed on Farrington avenue, Brockton ,acted on unfavorably by the board of aldermen late last year ,after a hearing in which the people of the neighborhood protested vigorously, came before the new board last evening and action was deferred, owing to the absence of Alderman Littlefield of Ward 7.

☞ If you have a vacant house advertise it. Why let a house lie idle when a little money expended in printer's ink brings quick returns and saves losing a month's rent. Ledger advertisers say they get results.

☞ If you are reading R. E. Foy & Co.'s ad each day you will notice they are offering some especially good bargains in canned goods.

THREE GAMES AT WOODWARD

Refreshments and Dancing for an Hour

Three games of basketball were played at the Woodward gymnasium on Saturday afternoon resulting as follows: Woodward, 18, Alumnae, 10. Woodward 2d, 21; Alumnae 2d, 4. Picked team, 28; Woodward 3d 7.

The teams were composed as follows:

Woodward — Misses Samuelson, Gould, Moorhouse, Bean, Murray and Halloran.

Alumnae—Misses E. Badger, H. Baker, Boyle, Rhodes, Bass and Totman.

Woodward 2d — Misses Mullen, Laing, Curtin, I. Dasha, Torrey and Hardwick.

Alumnae 2d—Misses Lydia Hennigar, Pattee, Lovejoy, M. Mitchell, T. Keating and Hayden.

Woodward 3d.—Misses G. Baker, M. Beal, Burns, I. Beal, T. Edwards and Callahan.

Picked Team—Misses Chase Z. McDonnell, B. Badger, Fallon, Goodhue and Bass.

Miss Bass, who is a member of the basketball team of Dr. Sargent's School of Gymnastics, played a remarkable game. Probably Woodward has never before seen more efficient work than that of Miss Murray in her position as defender. After the game refreshments were served, and an hour was spent in dancing in the music room.

SOCCER TOURNAMENT.

The Fore River soccer team has entered for the Williamson challenge cup competition, and in the first round will play the Clan MacPherson team of Lawrence at Quincy before Mar. 12. Other teams entered are: Charlestowns of Charlestown, Boston Rangers of Brighton, Brewsters of Canton, Andover of Andover, Boston Rovers of Jamaica Plain, Andover Thistles of Andover, Brockton Cricketers of Brockton Lynn City of Lynn, and the Walworths of South Boston. James Frazier of Quincy will be one of the referees.

SPORTING NOTES.

The Y. M. C. A. basket ball team was defeated at Bridgewater by the Normal boys on Saturday evening 47 to 22.

Nearly 600 are entered for the B. A. A. games.

Two of the local yacht clubs will hold annual meetings this week, the Wollaston club on Tuesday evening and the Quincy club on Thursday evening.

The Hyde Park High basket ball quintet will be here tomorrow afternoon to play Quincy High.

Winthrop High will play Thayer Academy at Winthrop on Friday.

It is expected that challenges will soon be issued for the Quincy cup by the Quincy, Eastern and Corinthian Yacht clubs. It is now held by the Boston Yacht club.

The season of the American base ball league will open Thursday, April 14, only ten weeks from next Thursday.

—Over 400 boys from 80 different towns and cities of Massachusetts and Rhode Island attended the twentieth annual conference of boys' departments of the Y. M. C. A. at Holyoke on Saturday and Sunday. William F. Moore who organized the first conference in Everett Jan. 28, 1891, gave a sketch of the work done at that time.

—During a fire in Nampa, Idh., a whole square was destroyed, among the buildings being a furniture store, the proprietor of which showed his pluck by immediately commencing the erection of a new building of concrete. Having at the time a carload of iron beds on hand, he had them encased in the walls to lend strength to the building by holding the cement together, the walls being modelled round the bedsteads. The building will probably be something of a wonder to a later generation when it falls into decay.—London Strand.

—Principal Alfred C. Fay of the Bridgewater high school has been offered the position of superintendent of the public schools of Chillicothe, O., for a term of four years at a salary of $2,500 a year. The offer is left open until after school closes in the summer, when Mr. Fay will decide.

WOMAN'S RIGHT TO THE BALLOT

Dr. Lyman Abbott Thinks It Should Not Be Granted

VOTING AN ABSOLUTE DUTY

Should Be Accorded Only to Sex Which Assumes Responsibilities of Government, With Its Difficulties and Hazards—Very Small Majority of Women Anywhere Wish Suffrage —Would Not Affect Wages

In The Ladies Home Journal for February Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott considers the question of "Why the Vote Would Be Injurious to Women." The eminent clergyman says:

It was my wife who led me to see the difference between influence and power; between counseling and commanding. She led me to see that voting is not a right, but a duty; not a privilege refused to women, but a task from which she has been exempt in the past and from which an overwhelming majority of women wish to be exempt in the future. The question for the woman is not, Have I a right to share in the privilege of governing the state? but, Is it my duty to take up the task of governing the state? The question for the man is not, Shall I refuse to woman an equal share in political privilege? but, Shall I lay upon woman an equal share in the burden which my fathers bore alone? The whole question may be put in a sentence thus: The primary object of the government is to protect persons and property: is it the duty of women to share with men in protecting the persons and property of the community? No one supposes that she should perform military, police or fireman's duty—that is, no one supposes that she should directly protect persons and property. Few suppose that she should act as sheriff, mayor, governor, judge or legislator. Ought she, then, to assume the responsibilities of government, but not its difficulties and hazards? To arrest no one, but to direct the police whom to arrest? To close no saloons, but to direct the men which saloons they must close? To punish no crime, but to determine which crimes the men shall punish? Let us make no mistake. A ballot is not an expression of opinion; it is a command. Every election is a conflict of wills. It is rightly called a campaign. The great majority of women do not wish to take part in this campaign. They do not wish to enter into this conflict of wills. They do not wish to command the state. Shall they be required to do so? They are not volunteers. Shall they be drafted?

The Question of Woman's Rights

That the great majority of women do not wish to assume this new responsibility cannot be questioned; indeed, is not questioned even by the advocates of woman's suffrage. Said Mrs. Snowden, the English suffragist, in New York last winter: "You say over here that the majority of women do not want suffrage. It is true that the great majority never want what is good for them." Are we men, then, to force upon women a duty which they do not want to undertake because we think we know better than they what is good for them? To Professor Dicey's statement there seems to me absolutely no reply: "Every reason which supports the claim of women to votes supports, also, the right of women to be consulted on the question whether they shall be given votes or not." The state of Massachusetts, in 1895, did consult them. It submitted to the women of that state the question whether they wished to vote. Less than 5 percent of the possible voters answered in the affirmative. More than 95 percent were either opposed to woman's suffrage or so indifferent to it that they would not cast a ballot in favor of it. The report that of the women in the state of New York who have a right to vote in school elections not more than 2 percent ordinarily do so vote, indicates that only a small majority of women anywhere wish the suffrage.

Shall woman add the town meeting to the mothers' meeting, the work of protecting persons and property to the work of educating persons and making homes that are worth protecting? Shall she force herself to assume the tasks which have hitherto been performed by men? And if she does not, shall we men force this upon her whether she will or no? This is the woman's question as my wife led me to see it.

It is claimed that women must be given the suffrage to protect themselves from the injustices inflicted on them by men. I confess that this claim arouses my indignation. To set class against class is bad, to set race against race is worse, to set religion against religion is even more perilous; but to set sex against sex is a degradation so deep that political polemics can no further go.

Is the vote of the protected woman necessary to protect the wage-earning women? Will it raise their wages or improve their condition? Wages depend on economic, not on political conditions.

BROWSING ROOM FOR GIRLS.

Radcliffe College Has One Where Dignity and Learning Are Forbidden.

What it is believed will be one of Radcliffe's most pleasing features to the undergraduate taste is the new "browsing room" recently opened in the library building of the college at Cambridge, Mass. The room, which is dedicated to Miss Agnes Irwin, dean for fifteen years of the college, who retired last June, is one of the most attractive corners in the new building. It is like the luxurious lounging room of a man's club, with its great easy chairs and reading tables. And the dignity common to the ordinary library rooms is lacking, for not a book of solid reading is allowed on its shelves, which are filled with the latest plays and novels. It is the understanding that the room shall be for comfort wholly, and it has already become popular.

Another feature of the new year which was to have been a part of the new room is the "current events bulletin," started the other day in the reading room of Agassiz house. Even such a seemingly light diversion was not allowed to intrude on the "browsing room" by the donor, who insisted that there should be nothing essentially educational in the whole apartment.

FLAT BASEBALL BAT.

Its Inventor Thinks It Will Tend to Increase Hitting.

An application has been made at the patent office in Washington for a patent on a baseball bat which promises to solve the problem that is bothering the baseball world at the present time by increasing the interest and popularity of the national game. The two principal advantages which are claimed are:

First.—That foul balls which now glance off the round bat will take a more perpendicular direction, enabling the catcher to have opportunities to put out the batter which he now lacks and incidentally avoiding the annoying monotony of watching ball after ball disappear over the grand stand, while the catcher dashes into the boxes or against the net in the vain effort for an out.

Second.—Increasing the chances of hitting a fair ball and with more precision as to direction and distance. It is evident that a flat surface even of half an inch will offer a much greater degree of certainty to the batter than with the round bat, where one point must meet the ball in order to drive it straight ahead, and, similarly, if the ball strikes above the center of the bat the tendency will be to glance upward from a flat surface.

In every department of the game of baseball improvements have been made since its inception except in the matter of the bat, which is now practically what it was in the beginning. Several prominent baseball players have expressed favorable opinions of this bat, and as soon as the spring season opens it will be tried out in practice by many of the professional teams.

If its superiority is demonstrated it will be ultimately adopted by the major leagues. F. A. Ware, who is the patentee, conceived the idea of a flat surfaced bat while watching games last summer.

PROPOSED OLD AGE PENSION

Coudrey of Missouri Would Transplant to America the English Scheme.

Representative Coudrey of Missouri wants to transplant to the United States the English scheme of old age pension for everybody. He recently introduced a bill in the house which, if it becomes a law, will make it the duty of the government to pay a weekly pension to every man in the United States who can show continual residence of a score of years or more and whose income is not more than $153 a year.

If the septuagenarian's income is less than $102 a year he is to receive $1.24 a month. Then the amounts graduate until, if it is $140 a year, he is to receive less than 25 cents a week. No one with an income from all sources of more than $153 a year is to participate in the benefits of the old age pension.

New Way to Catch Sparrows.

As the state of Michigan pays 2 cents apiece for the sparrows, Escanaba lads place whisky soaked breadcrumbs in places where sparrows collect. The birds eat the "dope" and become intoxicated and unable to walk or fly, in which condition they are easily picked up by the hunters. Hundreds of sparrows are being bagged in this manner.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS.
